PREFACE

Socio-economic data related to the Anti-Poverty Programs are gathered by many government agencies, and consequently appear in many publications. This handbook has been prepared to present information frequently requested in a single, ready-reference volume. Information about population, income, employment, and education is presented for each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, the seven regions of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and the United States. It is a presentation of facts that administrators, researchers, planners, and decision-makers can use for reference or as the basis of analysis.

The data are presented uniformly for each of the states, the District of Columbia, and in regional and United States Summaries. For the most part the numbers are reproduced as they appeared in the original source document. When a specific statistic was not available for a state or the District of Columbia, it is not mentioned in the text. Estimates are labelled as such. In the interest of brevity in presentation, some series of data omit a segment, but give a total. The missing figure can be determined by addition, subtraction, or combination of the numbers, as appropriate.

UNITED STATES SUMMARY

POPULATION

The total population of the United States, estimated as of July 1, 1965, was 193,773,000, or 8.1% higher than that reported in the 1960 Census of Population. 10.5% of the population was under five years of age, 58.9% was 21 years of age or older, and 9.4% was 65 years of age or older.

The net increase of 14,478,000 persons between 1960 and 1965 was accounted for by 21,864,000 births, 9,234,000 deaths, and a 1,848,000 net increase due to migration. In 1960, 69.8% of the population lived in urban areas and 7.4% lived on rural farms. Racial characteristics of the population were 88.6% white, 10.5% negro, and 0.9% other ethnic groups. From 1950 to 1960 the nation's negro population increased 26.7%.^{1/}

In 1960 there were 45,128,393 families in the United States. 21.4% of them had 1959 incomes under $3,000. The 1960 number of poor (using a sliding scale of family size and household location) was 38,684,677, 21.6% of the population. A survey relating 1964 income and 1965 population, estimated the number of poor at 34,273,100, 17.7% of the population. 18,864,500, 55.0% of the 1965 poor lived in urban areas.

INCOME

The U.S. 1959 per capita income, $2,161, rose to $2,546 by 1965, an increase of 27.1%. The U.S. median family income was $5,660 in 1959, and $6,900 in 1965, an increase of 21.9%.

EMPLOYMENT

The 1960 Civilian Labor Force numbered 68,144,079, of whom 3,504,827 were unemployed. 67.2% of the total Civilian Labor Force was male. The Civilian Labor Force increased 6.8% between 1960 and 1965.^{2/}

The rate of unemployment in 1965 was 4.3%, as compared to 5.6% in 1960. Based on annual averages, the rate of unemployment was 6.8%, 5.6%, 5.4%, and 4.9% for 1961, 1962, 1963, and 1964 respectively.

EDUCATION

The 1960 school age population, persons 5 to 17 years of age, was 43,739,569, or 24.5% of the population as compared to 49,553,000 or 25.8% in 1965.^{3/}

The 1960 school enrollment was 43,769,592, of whom 31,138,103 were in kindergarten or elementary school, and 9,696,043 in high school. Fall 1965 school enrollment was 54,456,204, of whom 35,925,675 were in kindergarten or elementary school, and 13,017,829 in high school. Public school enrollment increased 1.8% over the prior year. The estimated national average cost per pupil was $532. Median educational attainment in 1960 for those 25 years of age and over was 10.6 years of schooling. Of those 25 years and over in the nation, 8.4% completed less than 5 years of school, and 41.1% completed at least high school.
