This guide to recent sources of published information in hearing, speech, and communication disorders lists 759 references. The items are arranged in nine major sections and are annotated except when reasons of processing prevent. The section on reviews covers hearing, language, speech, and additional reviews; the section on special serials contains review journals, annual and irregular review serials, status reports of laboratories, statistical survey series, translation serials, and publishers' series. Indexing and abstracting publications listed include indexes, abstracts, research in progress, and meetings; guides and directories cover members and individuals, societies and associations, centers and services, professional training, and funding. Additional sections contain core and cognate journals; hearing, language, speech, and cognate area bibliographies; English language, deaf language, and foreign language/English language dictionaries and glossaries; audiology, otolaryngology, and speech pathology handbooks; and films and other media lists. An appendix cites publications from meetings dealing with hearing, the vestibular system, and language and speech. (JD)

This symbol was designed to represent the activities of the Information Center as well as the subject areas it covers.

represents INPUT of information to an individual (hearing) and to the Information Center.

represents OUTPUT from the individual (speech and language) as well as from the Information Center.

The lack of separation between the two elements in the design symbolizes the free exchange of information requisite to orderly communication.

FOREWORD

The growth of scientific research since World War II and the resulting "information explosion" have necessitated the development of new methods of handling published materials and a new emphasis on the identification and use of existing information tools.

An important development in information handling methods has been the establishment by the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness of the Neurological Information Network. This Network consists of a group of interrelated information centers which help scientists, physicians, and teachers keep up to date with developments in neurological and sensory research.

The Information Center for Hearing, Speech, and Disorders of Human Communication, one of the four centers in this Network, is located at the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions. Its mission is to identify, locate, analyze, store, retrieve, repackage, synthesize, and disseminate information in hearing, speech, language, and communication disorders. The Information Center is staffed by a group of scientists in The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and information specialists. The Center maintains close cooperation with the Welch Medical Library, the Medical Division of the University's Computing Center, the National Library of Medicine, and the other information centers in the Neurological Information Network.

One function of an information center is to identify and locate services and to provide an inventory of source materials. The rationale for Information Sources in Hearing, Speech, and Communication Disorders is the identification and compilation of existing information sources in communication disorders for the scientist, teacher, student, and librarian. Because this is a developmental edition of Information Sources, we are particularly eager to receive comments from users on the scope, coverage, organization, format, content of entries, and style of writing. We also would like to hear about the uses to which this guide has been put.

Other products offered by the Information Center for Hearing, Speech, and Disorders of Human Communication include Communication Disorders, a computer-based current awareness service; a state-of-the-art report on the Acoustic Neurinoma; Programmed Instruction on the Decibel in Clinical Audiology; and a number of bibliographies and translations.

Although many of these materials were prepared as working tools for the Information Center, their use by interested scientists, physicians, librarians, and information specialists is encouraged. This multiple application of materials prepared by the Information Center, which is supported by public funds, earns for the public an increased return on its investment in the National Institutes of Health programs.

Additional information on products and services may be obtained by writing the Information Center for Hearing, Speech, and Disorders of Human Communication, 310 Harriet Lane Home, The Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions, Baltimore, Maryland 21205.

Information Sources in Hearing, Speech, and Communication Disorders.
Part I. Publications is intended as a guide to recent sources of published information in the areas covered by this Information Center. This developmental edition lists 759 references to works produced in the English language.

The primary purpose of the present edition is to display the lists of sources that have been compiled thus far so that they may better meet the needs of the Information Center and be given trial use among the researchers, practitioners, teachers, students, librarians, information specialists, administrators, and allied health personnel for whom the guide is intended. It is hoped that this compilation will also serve as a step toward identifying the activities in the many-faceted field of hearing-language-speech, thus enhancing its visibility and providing a perspective that will be useful in defining its scope.

Information Sources can serve the user by providing:

A handle on the literature

The continuing growth of the literature of communication disorders and the wide range of publications in which it appears have pointed to the need for a comprehensive inventory of the sources of pertinent information and references. This guide begins to provide such a list and to annotate the purpose, scope, and characteristics of such sources.

A definition of the field

The field of communicative disorders needs definition. It now contains a mosaic of unrelated parts which many investigators believe should be brought together into an integrated design. For this reason, the Information Center has gathered data on sources and services in this area in the hope that awareness of such parts will demonstrate the existing pattern of activities as well as illustrate the gaps.

An information referral network

The day of insularity in biomedical research and in information centers is passing. Most systems, biological or informational, interact with other related systems. This guide is one step toward developing a referral network by listing the related sources of information.

A selection aid for libraries

Another use for Information Sources is as an aid to: the organization within the field that wishes to build a library; the librarian who wishes to represent communication disorders in a general library or a library in a related field; and the individual who wishes to acquire a personal library.

Developmental Edition

A limited number of copies of this guide have been made. The developmental edition was prepared as a working tool for the Information Center. Because so much information was gathered, however, it was decided to share this wealth and, at the same time, seek critical comments on the scope, organization, form, and content of entries.

Part II. Organizations will be a companion volume describing established activities such as societies, associations, clinical centers, laboratories, foundations, government bodies, libraries, and information centers.

It is planned that the material will be kept up-to-date by further editions and appropriate supplements. The participation of both the general user and the person of authority within the field will be enlisted in the shaping of future editions to increase their usefulness.

Scope

The scope of the Information Center, and hence the scope of the guide, is that order of knowledge especially important to the professionals whose task it is to understand, describe, treat, and do research on the hearing, language, and speech disorders of human subjects, and for the training of new professionals in the same areas.

Content and Organization

In the present guide, the term information sources is used to include the following kinds of publications: (1) those with a strong review function, such as review articles, review serials, certain other special serials, handbooks, and publications from major conferences and symposia; (2) the journals and other serials that are continuing sources of articles with new researches and other new information; and (3) the "tool" publications, such as indexing or abstracting services, bibliographies, dictionaries, guides, directories, and film lists.

Each major section is preceded by an introduction and table of contents to explain the use of the section and to reveal the arrangement of items. This arrangement varies according to the nature and purpose of each section. Subgrouping is either by subject area or by type of publication. Final arrangement of items is alphabetical by name of publication, author of paper, or significant word in title.

References with a "cognate" or occasionally "supplemental" relation to the basic, or core, references are a feature of all sections of the guide. The primary journals are divided at once into core and cognate groups. A publication has been considered core if it mainly concerns a subject of primary interest and responsibility on which the Information Center authoritatively assembles and disperses information. A cognate publication mainly concerns subject areas that are related to core areas but have their own scope and centers of authority. Cognate areas differ in emphasis from the core areas of the Information Center, but they are in some respect relevant and important to them. A publication dealing generally with biomedicine is considered cognate, but one of scientific scope beyond this purview of the Information Center is called supplemental.

Item Numbers

Each entry in the guide has been assigned an item number. These numbers are intended solely as an aid in finding titles and have no other significance. The number appearing before the colon refers to the section and the number after the colon refers to the location of the item within that section.

Quality Control

Nearly every description of a journal, an abstracting or indexing publication, and a directory was sent to the editor of that publication for review, correction, and updating. Those items marked by a black dot (•) were either not sent in time or not returned by the editors in time for publication. Because the information was believed to be relatively accurate and useful to users of this edition, the item was included. The absence of a black dot in these sections does not imply responsibility of the editor of the publication for any of the representations in the descriptive item.

Recent volumes and issues of all publications with item numbers were examined directly in the writing of descriptions unless there is an editorial note to the contrary.

Availability of References

The books, periodicals, reports, and other materials listed are available from a variety of sources. Whenever an item may not be available from a commercial publisher, if possible, information on its acquisition is given in full for the convenience of the user.

The prices given for most items have been taken from Books in Print and current issues of journals and are subject to change at any time. Every effort was made to obtain 1968 prices for all journal and abstract and index subscriptions. The price given is the institutional subscription cost. Descriptions of reports known to be available from the Clearinghouse for Federal Scientific and Technical Information include the accession/report numbers for ordering.

Although not specifically indicated, most books and journals are available in technical libraries, medical libraries, and the larger public libraries. Often, they may be obtained by local librarians on inter-library loan.

Form

Although the developmental issue is bound, this guide was originally planned as a loose-leaf continuing publication. Comments from users on whether the final form should be bound or loose-leaf will be appreciated.

This guide was prepared on an IBM 1050 Data Communications System for the flexibility that punched cards provide for correction and for eventual computer input.

INTRODUCTION

REVIEWS

The section on Reviews has been given first place in this developmental edition both in position and in the number of items treated. Most of these items describe articles that survey or review a segment of the literature or of the field, with varying degrees of critical or creative participation by their authors.

THE MAIN SECTION of reviews contains annotated articles arranged under subject headings. Within subject groupings, the more recent reviews are listed first. Where ordering cannot be done by date of publication, it is done alphabetically by name of author. Articles in cognate areas are appended to some subject headings.

A LIST OF ADDITIONAL REVIEWS contains references to articles that, for reasons of processing unrelated to selection or evaluation, have not yet been annotated and classified. These references are arranged with the most recent first. A small group of articles from cognate fields is similarly arranged.

HOW TO USE

The review section has been arranged in a way that we hope is both conducive to browsing and helpful to the person who is looking for something on a particular subject:

1. The browser should find that, in general, like subjects are together, that the most current items appear first, that there is some advice about items occurring elsewhere in the section, and that some items offer excursion into related fields.
2. The person looking for a particular review article should, if the author is known, use the author index at the end of the volume; if the title is known, use the title index at the end of the volume.
3. The person looking for a review article on a particular subject should first scan the listing of contents of the Review section for a heading suggesting that subject. If a reference to the desired subject is not found among the annotated articles, it may be possible to find one by scanning the list of Additional Reviews (1:136-1:335).

ANNOTATIONS are noncritical and are indicative rather than informative in that they tell what subjects are reviewed and what the characteristics of the review are but give no substantive information directly. The section headings from the review articles are listed wherever they appear to be a good key to content. Capitalization among these headings usually indicates major topics but has no special significance other than to facilitate reading. These words or terms are not to be construed as descriptors.

NUMBER OF REFERENCES is the count of items of literature cited within the review article or of items occurring in a terminal bibliography. When the number of references is in parentheses, it refers to the smaller portion of the work cited, such as a chapter.

SOURCES

The basic source of review articles has been the Bibliography of Medical Reviews, 1963 through June 1968. Review-type articles were also taken from symposia volumes, other publications resulting from professional meetings, and multi-authored handbooks. Other review articles were found by examining appropriate review serials; abstracting publications such as dsh Abstracts; and primary journals within the areas of hearing, language, and speech. Some were obtained from the document files of the Information Center.

Review articles directly concerning hearing-language-speech, or core articles, were sought systematically by the use of descriptors determined by the indexing characteristics of each source. The articles in cognate areas were gathered less systematically and in more exploratory fashion.

CRITERIA used in the selection of review articles are, for the most part, those listed in the MEDLARS Indexing Manual (National Library of Medicine, 1966, Section 11.2). Some articles were included, however, that in the Bibliography of Medical Reviews or other compilations might not be treated as reviews, such as: the paper of theoretical revision or model-building; the "opinion paper" by the expert; the paper that prescribes rather than describes previously reported or well-established procedures; the more than routine review of cases; and the historical review. Unfortunately, as pointed out in the MEDLARS Manual, all review articles are not clear-cut, and very frequently the selection is subjective.

Intensity discrimination. SPEECH PERCEPTION. MASKING. Masking of various types of signals. Interaural relations and masking. Backward masking. PITCH. Pitch identification and scaling. Problems of low pitch. Problems of high pitch. LOUDNESS. ANNOYANCE. PERCEPTIONS RELATED TO QUALITY. TEMPORAL DISCRIMINATIONS. TEMPORARY THRESHOLD SHIFT (TTS). LATERALIZATION AND LOCALIZATION EFFECTS. Lateralization. Localization. ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY: SOUND CONDUCTION PROCESSES. Anatomy. Middle ear muscles. Impedance. INNER EAR. Anatomy. Metabolism. Fluids and blood supply. Electrical potentials. Drugs and endocrine conditions. NERVE POTENTIALS. INTERMEDIATE PATHWAYS. Anatomy. Electrical activity. CORTEX. Extirpation experiments. Electrical responses and their modification. ABNORMALITIES OF HEARING. General problems of identification audiometry. Speech reception testing. Physiology measures. Evaluation of middle ear function. Problems of bone conduction. Tone decay and diagnosis of eighth nerve involvement. Cortical hearing tests.

1:7 AUDITION.

Small, Arnold M., Jr. (University of Iowa, Iowa City).
1963. Ann. Rev. Psychol. 14:115-154. 297 refs.

Critical survey covering a relatively comprehensive array of topics in audition and citing international papers chiefly from the years 1960-1962. Well-literated areas that the author does not treat comprehensively include: auditory pathologies and their audiometric evaluation, aural rehabilitation, stereophonic perception, and speech perception. Review is under the following headings: SOUND CONDUCTION PROCESSES. Anatomy. Impedance. Middle ear muscles. INNER EAR. Anatomy. Mechanical action. Cochlear fluids. Metabolism. Drugs and radiation. Potentials. NERVOUS SYSTEM. Anatomy. Potentials. Nervous system damage. AUDIOMETRY. Pure tone, air conduction. Pure tone, bone conduction. Speech testing. Bekesy audiometry. 'Objective' audiometry. Age effects. Noise effects. PITCH. LOUDNESS. SCALING. SIGNAL DETECTION THEORY. MASKING. SENSITIVITY. Absolute sensitivity. Differential sensitivity. ADAPTATION AND FATIGUE. Fatigue. Adaptation. BINAURAL PHENOMENA. TEMPORAL EFFECTS. SPEECH PERCEPTION. EFFECT OF SOUND ON NON-AUDITORY FUNCTIONS. HEARING IN LOWER ANIMALS. Echo-location. Insects. Other animals.

Sataloff, Joseph (1721 Pine St., Philadelphia, Penna.) and Vassallo, Larry.
1963. Arch. Otolaryng. 78:729-734 (Nov). 42 refs.

Review of progress in audiology during the year 1962. The authors note in this year a great deal of investigative effort in close observation of the organ of Corti of both humans and animals. The papers cited are not organized under review headings; all are English-language titles.

1:9 HEARING.

Lawrence, Merle (University of Michigan, Ann Arbor).
1961. Ann. Rev. Physiol. 23:485-500. 118 refs.

Review of the literature of hearing for the 4-year period 1956-1960, under the following topics: [General]. THE MIDDLE EAR. Surgical alteration. Impedance measures. Middle ear muscles. ANATOMY. Cochlear duct. Inner ear fluids. Terminal nerve fibers. COCHLEAR MECHANICS. Frequency and intensity distribution. Aural harmonics. PHYSIOLOGICAL CORRELATES OF AUDIOMETRIC MEASURES. Normal threshold. Poststimulation thresholds. OTHER AREAS.

ELECTRICAL POTENTIALS OF THE COCHLEA.

1:10

Wever, Ernest Glen (Princeton University, Princeton, N.J.).
1966. Physiol. Rev. 46:102-127. 80 refs.

Review of the literature, mostly of the years 1930-1965, on cochlear potentials, under the following topics: DIRECT POTENTIALS. Resting or Endolymphatic Potentials. Intracellular Potentials. "Summating" Potentials. ALTERNATING POTENTIALS OF THE COCHLEA. Characteristics of Potentials: Frequency relations. Waveform. Intensity relations, linearity. Overloading. Overstimulation and injury. Stability of potential. Distortion in the ear. SOURCE OF ALTERNATING POTENTIALS OF THE COCHLEA. FUNCTION OF ALTERNATING POTENTIALS OF THE COCHLEA. Remarks on Experimental Techniques: Stimulus specification. Thresholds. Noise.

ATTENTION AND AUDITORY ELECTROPHYSIOLOGY.

1:11

Worden, F. G. (Department of Psychiatry and Brain Research Institute, School of Medicine, University of California, Los Angeles).
1966. Progr. Physiol. Psychol. 1:45-116. 176 refs.

Critical review of the electrophysiology of the cochlear nucleus in relation to attention, acoustic information processing, and auditory perception. The major purpose of this report is to clarify methodological and conceptual issues in research on brain function and behavior. To achieve depth, the topic is narrowed to one neural structure and relatively limited behavioral dimensions. Literature cited is international and of the years 1940-1965.

Review headings include the following: INTRODUCTION. Scientific observation and thinking. Brain function and behavior. Cochlear nucleus in attention. THE PSYCHOLOGY OF ATTENTION. Introduction <"Attention" in common experience. The neglect of attention in psychology.> Glimpses of information pertaining to attention <Sensation and perception. Cognition and other considerations.> "Attention" approached electrophysiologically. THE HYPOTHESIS OF AFFERENT NEURONAL INHIBITION. Feedback in brain function. Afferent neuronal inhibition. THE COCHLEAR NUCLEUS IN ATTENTION. Supporting evidence. Conflicting evidence <Replication problems. Persistent misinterpretation of data. The acoustic variable. Issues revealed in bilateral recordings.> Rejection of the hypothesis. SENSORY GATING AND NEURAL UNIT ACTIVITY. Efferent systems <An extra reticular feedback system. A reticular feedback system.> Neuron activity in cochlear nucleus. The question of efferent sensory function. IN SEARCH OF A PHYSIOLOGY OF PERCEPTION AND ATTENTION. Sustaining and adjusting processes. Perception. Attention. CONCLUSION.

- 1:12 COMPARATIVE NEUROPHYSIOLOGY OF HEARING.
Katsuki, Yasuji (Tokyo Medical and Dental University, Yushima, Bunkyo, Tokyo, Japan).
1965. Physiol. Rev. 45:380-423. 208 refs.

Review of the literature of comparative neurophysiology of hearing, emphasizing mechanoreceptors, for a period of years beginning 1959, under the following topics: INTRODUCTION. SENSORY RECEPTION IN PRIMITIVE FORMS. Protozoa. Coelenterates. Mollusca. Arthropoda. Insecta: Structure of the ear. Receptor potential. Range of frequency and intensity of sound audible to insects. Directional sense. VERTEBRATES. Aquatic vertebrates: Lateral-line organ. Ampullary organ. Labyrinth.- Elasmobranchs. Teleosts. Amphibia. Reptiles. Aves. Mammals - Endocochlear d-c potential (EP). Coding mechanism in the cochlea. Inhibition under efferent control. Inhibition under nonefferent control. SOUND LOCALIZATION. Direct: Insects. Mammals. Echolocation: Cetacea. SYNAPTIC MECHANISMS IN THE AUDITORY SYSTEM. CORTICAL AUDITORY SYSTEM. CONCLUSION.

- 1:13 RESEARCH IN OTOLOGY--ONE HUNDRED YEARS AFTER HELMHOLTZ.
Ormerod, F. C. (37 Portland Place, London).
1965. J. Laryng. 79:845-869 (Oct). 64 refs.

Review of the structure of the sensory organs of the inner ear and the historical development of this area of knowledge within the past decade. Bibliographic references are assembled under the following subject headings: Cochlear and vestibular sensory cells. Tectorial membrane. Reissner's membrane. Basilar membrane. Stria Vascularis. Nerves of the sensory cells. Electric potentials of the inner ear.

- 1:14 THE EFFERENT INNERVATION OF THE INNER EAR. A HISTORICAL-BIBLIOGRAPHICAL SURVEY.
Rossi, G. and Cortesina, G. (University of Torino, Torino, Italy).
1965. Laryngoscope. 75:212-235. 121 refs.

Historical survey of the study of efferent connections between the central nervous system and the cochlear and vestibular receptors. Literature of the study divides into two periods: FIRST PERIOD (1895-1942) which predates systematic study. SECOND PERIOD (1942-1962) in which systematic studies are discussed under the following headings: Introduction. EFFERENT COCHLEAR FIBERS. Anatomical research. Biological and histochemical research. Electrophysiological research. EFFERENT VESTIBULAR FIBERS. Anatomical research. Histochemical research. Electrophysiological research. ROSSI AND CORTESINA'S RESEARCHES.

FUNCTIONAL ANATOMY OF THE VESTIBULAR AND LATERAL LINE ORGANS. 1:15
Wersall, Jan, and Flock, Ake (Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, Sweden).
1965. Contrib. Sens. Physiol. 1:39-61. 49 refs.

Review of the structure and organization of the receptor organs of the acousticolateralis system of vertebrates.
The text, with 4 diagrams and 9 microphotographs, is under the following headings: Introduction. STRUCTURE AND ORGANIZATION OF THE RECEPTORS. Structure of the Sensory Epithelia. Morphology and Orientation of the Sensory Hair Bundles.--Morphology of the sensory hairs. Orientation of the sensory hair bundles. Functional interpretation of the polarization of the receptor cells. Different Cell Types and Pattern of Innervation.--Primitive sensory epithelia. Highly differentiated sensory epithelia. Significance of the different nerve endings. STRUCTURE OF THE CUPULA AND OTOLITHIC MEMBRANES.

PSYCHOPHYSICAL CORRELATES OF INTRATYMPANIC REFLEX ACTION. 1:16
Loeb, Michel (U.S. Army Medical Research Laboratory, Fort Knox, Ky.).
1964. Psychol. Bull. 61(2):140-152 (Feb). 72 refs.

Review of research on the intratympanic muscle reflexes, citing world literature of the years 1878-1962. Topics discussed are: nature of the reflex; methods used for observation of the reflexes; natural protection against noise afforded by the reflexes, and its limitation; various types of stimulation used to elicit the reflexes; uses of artificial reflex elicitation for enhanced protection against noise and for clinical diagnosis; implications for damage risk criteria and for psychologic and physiologic research.

CYTOPHYSIOLOGY AND CYTOCHEMISTRY OF THE ORGAN OF CORTI: A CYTOCHEMICAL THEORY OF HEARING. 1:17
Vinnikov, J. A. and Titova, L. K. (I. M. Sechenov Institute of Evolutionary Physiology, Leningrad, U.S.S.R.).
1963. Int. Rev. Cytol. 14:157-191. 91 refs.

Review of the literature accompanied by an account of the authors' research on the cytophysiology and cytochemistry of the organ of Corti and its hair cells, both at relative rest and excited. These data are used to outline a 'cytochemical' theory of hearing based on the cellular and molecular organization of the receptive structures of the organ of Corti. Review is carried out under the following headings: INTRODUCTION. INTRAVITAL CYTOPHYSIOLOGICAL INVESTIGATIONS OF THE ORGAN OF CORTI. General considerations. Intravital investigation of unstained living flattened preparations from the organ of Corti. Vital staining of the cochlea. Quantitative studies on vital staining of the cochlea. CYTOCHEMICAL (HISTOCHEMICAL) INVESTIGATIONS OF THE ORGAN OF CORTI. General considerations. Patterns of distribution and activity of Acetylcholinesterase in the organ of Corti. Distribution of glycogen in the organ of Corti. Patterns of phosphorylase location and activity in the organ of Corti. Location and activity of the succinic oxidase enzyme system. Location and activity patterns of alkaline and acid glycerol phosphatases or phosphomonoesterases. Location and distribution patterns of nucleic acids (RNA and DNA). Location and distribution of proteins and of functional groups (--H, --SS--, and --COOH). GENERAL CONCLUSIONS. CYTOCHEMICAL THEORY OF HEARING.

- 1:18 THE ANATOMICAL LOCUS OF PRESBYCUSIS.
Hinchcliffe, Ronald (State University of Iowa College of Medicine, Iowa City).
1962. J. Speech Hearing Dis. 27(4):301-310 (Nov). 57 refs.

Review of the audiological features of presbycusis in relation to the structural changes that occur in the auditory mechanism with increasing age. The author tries to account for audiological changes in terms of histologic changes and finds it likely that presbycusis is primarily dependent upon degenerative changes in the brain. Literature cited is international and of the years 1908-1961.

- 1:19 BONE CONDUCTION: A REVIEW OF THE PRESENT POSITION WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF DR. GEORG VON BEKESY.
Hood, J. D. (The National Hospital, Queen Square, London, England).
1962. J. Acoust. Soc. Amer. 34(8, part 2):1325-1332 (Sep). 46 refs.

State-of-the-art and historical review of bone-conducted sound, with emphasis on the fundamental investigations of Bekesy and their influence on later workers. Papers cited are of the years 1827-1960. Review is under the following headings: MODE OF VIBRATION OF THE SKULL. MECHANISM OF BONE CONDUCTION. OCCLUSION EFFECT. BONE CONDUCTION IN A FREE SOUND FIELD. Interaural attenuation.

Sharpless, Seth K. (Albert Einstein College of Medicine, New York City).
1964. Ann. Rev. Physiol. 26:357-388. 212 refs.

Review of the literature of use and disuse in nervous system, surveyed to April 1963, under the following topics: [INTRODUCTION]. REGENERATION AND COLLATERAL GROWTH. EFFECTS OF DENERVATION AND DISUSE ON NEUROEFFECTOR JUNCTIONS: SUPERSENSITIVITY -- TO WHAT? Smooth muscle. Glands. Skeletal muscle. Summary. PHARMACOLOGICAL DENERVATION SUPERSENSITIVITY. MECHANISMS OF DENERVATION SUPERSENSITIVITY. Supersensitivity to catecholamines in autonomic effector organs. Enlargement of receptive area in denervated skeletal muscle. Biophysical and biochemical changes. Summary. EFFECTS OF DENERVATION, DISUSE, AND USE ON NEURONS: AUTONOMIC GANGLIA. CENTRAL NERVOUS SYSTEM. Disuse of monosynaptic spinal reflexes. Posttetanic potentiation of monosynaptic spinal reflexes. Habituation of spinal reflexes. Habituation and inhibition. Habituation and desensitization of the postsynaptic membrane. Cerebral cortex. Effects of use and disuse on the visual system. RIBONUCLEIC ACID. COMMENT ON LEARNING. ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Auditory Perception

A MODEL OF LOUDNESS SUMMATION. 1:22

Zwicker, Eberhard (Technische Hochschule Stuttgart, Germany), and Scharf, Bertram (Northeastern University, Boston, Mass.).
1965. Psychol. Rev. 72(1):3-26 (Jan). 39 refs.

Review of psychoacoustic data on loudness, embodied in a psychophysical model explaining why loudness summates across frequency. Loudness is represented by geometric patterns derived from the masking of pure tones by narrow bands of noise. Calculated values of loudness are compared to experimental values. Literature cited is in English and German of the years 1937-1963.

CENTRAL FACTORS IN AUDITORY FREQUENCY SELECTIVITY. 1:23

Swets, John A. (Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass.).
1964. Psychol. Bull. 60(5):429-440 (Sep). 31 refs.

Review of studies considering the role of central, or cognitive, factors in the process of auditory frequency analysis. Included is a discussion of the single-band and the multiband models that have been proposed to incorporate the action of central factors, along with testing of predictions from these models. Literature cited is in English and of the years 1940-1962.

- 1:26 HYPNOTIC "COLORBLINDNESS," "BLINDNESS," AND "DEAFNESS": A REVIEW OF RESEARCH FINDINGS.
Barber, Theodore Xenophon (Medfield Foundation, Harding, Mass.).
1964. Dis. Nerv. Syst. 25(9):529-538 (Sep). 56 refs.

Critical review of experimental studies for the production of deafness under hypnosis and under waking conditions, included with similar studies of colorblindness and blindness. The author emphasizes the critical importance of motivational and instructional-situational variables in studies of "hypnotic" sensory-perceptual alteration, and the need for stringent experimental controls. Auditory experiments under review are of the years 1932 to 1964, the earlier studies using the startle response and the later studies using performance with delayed auditory feedback as an index of deafness.

SOURCES OF REPORTS OF VISUAL AND AUDITORY SENSATIONS IN PERCEPTUAL-ISOLATION EXPERIMENTS. 1:27

Zuckerman, Marvin, and Cohen, Nathan (Albert Einstein Medical Center, Philadelphia, Pa.).
1964. Psychol. Bull. 62(1):1-20 (Jul). 62 refs.

Review of experiments on perceptual isolation with the purpose of relating situational, subject, and response variables to the reported incidences of visual and auditory sensations. Relevance to physiologic, psychoanalytic, cognitive, and social-psychologic theories of perceptual isolation is discussed. Experiments analyzed cover the decade from the first perceptual-isolation report in 1953.

Review is under the following headings: RVSs [REPORTED VISUAL SENSATIONS]. Method of confinement and restriction of motility. Conditions of illumination. Duration of isolation. Set, instructions, and suggestion. Continuous reporting instructions. Sleep and cortical alertness. Population variables. Ss prior knowledge and expectations. Intelligence. Personality characteristics. Stress response and RVSs. Methods of reporting RVSs. REPORTED AUDITORY SENSATIONS. THEORETICAL CONSIDERATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS.

BACKWARD MASKING. 1:28

Raab, David H. (Brooklyn College, N.Y.).
1963. Psychol. Bull. 60(2):118-129 (Mar). 88 refs.

State-of-the-art survey and discussion of more than 70 studies of backward masking, more than two-thirds of which appeared in the 10 years prior to 1963. Literature cited is international in scope. In all but two studies, either visual or auditory stimulation was used.

Review is under the following headings: AUDITORY BACKWARD MASKING. CUTANEOUS BACKWARD MASKING. VISUAL BACKWARD MASKING. Broca-Sulzer effect. Metacontrast. Crawford effect. SUBLIMINAL INFLUENCES. Discussion.

UNDERSTANDING HEREDITARY NERVE DEAFNESS.

1:51

Proctor, Conrad A., and Proctor, Bruce (University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.).
1967. Arch. Otolaryng. 85:23-40 (Jan). 79 refs.

Review of kinds of hereditary nerve deafness, combining a genetic and clinical method of classification, with special attention to etiologic factors. The authors correlate their own work on embryologic developmental pattern with the pathologic findings of hereditary deafness, toward an understanding of secondary biochemical effects of faulty genetic mechanisms. World literature is cited in support of clinical syndromes. Review is under the following headings: CLASSES HEREDITARY NERVE DEAFNESS [detailed outline, including names of syndromes with associated deafness]. Dominant nerve deafness. Recessive nerve deafness. - 1:53 PROFOUND CHILDHOOD DEAFNESS.
Fraser, G. R. (Royal College of Surgeons, London).
1964. J. Med. Genet. 1:118-151. About 350 refs.

Comprehensive review of the world literature of perceptive childhood deafness, defined as socioeducational with early enough onset and of sufficient degree to necessitate the use of special methods for the learning of speech. Main emphasis bears on genetical causes, but exogenous causes of pre-, peri-, and postnatal periods are also covered. Review is under the following topics: Definition and introduction. Historical note. GENETICALLY DETERMINED DEAFNESS. Mode of inheritance. Syndrome of retinitis pigmentosa with deafness. Syndrome of goitre with deafness. Syndrome of electrocardiographic abnormalities, fainting attacks, and sudden death with deafness. Other recessive syndromes involving deafness and the pathogenesis of recessive deafness. Sex-linked recessive deafness. Dominant deafness with pigmentary anomalies. Dominant deafness without pigmentary anomalies. DEAFNESS DUE TO INVOLVEMENT OF THE EAR IN CONGENITAL MALFORMATIONS. ACQUIRED DEAFNESS. Causes acting in prenatal life. TYMPANOPLASTY.

Proctor, Bruce (William Beaumont Hospital Research Institute, Royal Oak, Mich.).

1966. Arch. Otol. 84(6):698-702 (Dec). 35 refs.

Critical review of the literature on tympanoplasty for 1965. The authors note for this period a predominance of reports on methods of reconstructing a functioning ossicular chain, particularly with interposition techniques; also a scarcity of reports on the exact results obtained with many of the new techniques reported.

Survey and comment are under the following headings: RESEARCH IN TYMPANOPLASTY. PATHOLOGY. TECHNIQUES. RESULTS.

THE USE OF VEIN HOMOGRAFTS IN TYMPANOPLASTY.

1:57

King, P. F. (Princess Mary's Royal Air Force Hospital, Halton, England).
1965. Ann. Roy. Coll. Surg. Eng. 37:65-92 (Aug). 56 refs.

State-of-the-art review on tympanoplasty in mastoid surgery, with particular comparison of the use of vein homografts with the use of skin homografts. Fourteen short tables facilitate presentation. Review includes 140 of the author's own cases, in addition to those of papers of the past 10-15 years. This paper was delivered as a Hunterian Lecture at the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

Review is under the following headings: Introduction. AIM AND TECHNIQUE OF TYMPANOPLASTY. FAILURE IN SKIN TYMPANOPLASTY. FATE OF VEIN HOMOGRAFT. HOMOGRAFT REACTION. SELECTION OF CASES FOR OPERATION. PROCEDURE AND MODE OF EMPLOYMENT OF VEIN HOMOGRAFT. RESULTS OF VEIN TYMPANOPLASTY. HEALING OF THE TYMPANIC MEMBRANE. Post-operative otitis media. HEARING AFTER OPERATION. Illustrative case. Summary.

Goldman, Herbert B. (Rockville Center, New York, N.Y.).
1965. Trans. Indiana Acad. Ophth. Otolaryng. 48:7-25. 82 refs.

Review of literature supporting the author's belief that all types of Meniere's disease have a common adrenocortical dysfunction, with localized response in the labyrinthine causing the most dynamic symptom, vertigo. The paper aims to familiarize otolaryngologists with the symptoms and history of hypoadrenocorticism and emphasizes treatment.

Critical review of developments concerning the psychological concomitants of physical disability, mainly for the years 1951-1961, including a review of some of the more recent books of that period. The paper opens with a review of the variables on which earlier studies showed the physically disabled to differ from each other in accord with the principle of individual differences.

Headings in the review include: PERSONALITY CORRELATES OF PHYSICAL DISABILITY. Structural brain pathology. Cerebral palsy. Multiple sclerosis. Case illustration of structural brain damage. PHYSICAL DISABILITY WITHOUT BRAIN DAMAGE. Paraplegia. Poliomyelitis. Muscular dystrophy. Orthopedic disabilities. Tuberculosis. Deafness. Blindness. Other disabilities. CONCLUDING COMMENTS.

Biological and Neurological Mechanisms

- 1:63 CEREBRAL DEVELOPMENTAL ANOMALIES AND DISTURBANCES OF LANGUAGE.
Garoutte, B. (University of California School of Medicine, San Francisco).
1967. J. Neurol. Sci. 4:339-347 (Mar-Apr). 36 refs.

Review of the major causes of language disturbance, in particular those which result from maldevelopment of the central nervous system. The mechanisms involved in normal language production, a timetable of normal developmental processes, and the pathologic origins of anomalies of the central nervous system which may affect language are outlined in three tables and discussed. Literature is cited from the years 1949-1964.

- 1:64 NEURONAL HISTOGENESIS, MATURATION AND ORGANIZATION RELATED TO SPEECH DEVELOPMENT.
Sloan, Robert F. (University of California, Los Angeles).
1967. J. Commun. Disord. 1(1):1-15 (May). 79 refs.

Review paper that outlines a chronology of neurophysiological evidence on the neurohistogenesis and maturation of the cerebral cortex and formulates a parallel relationship to a chronology of the descriptive behavioral events related to speech development. This relation between cortical maturation and speech development is drawn in an elaborate figure. Two theoretical neurophysiological experiments are suggested: (1) seeking a time delay in receptor-association-motor-effector circuits as a causal factor for stuttering and (2) relating nucleic acid activity to cellular fatigue. Lastly, the author suggests, and depicts by figure, a 'continuum' system as a construct for speech formulation. A number of standard reference texts from the fields of embryology, histology, neuroembryology, neurology, neurophysiology, and genetic neurology were used in preparing this review.

Argument for the progressive development of language through a sequence of maturationally determined milestones. The argument is supported by 6 figures and 3 tables, including a summary survey in chart form. This paper is from the proceedings of a conference on "Language Development in Children," sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, April 1965. Lenneberg's paper is discussed subsequently by Richard Allen Chase in a paper "Evolutionary Aspects of Language Development and Functions," and both are then followed by general discussion.

The initial presentation is under the following headings:

Sherwin, Ira (Veterans Administration Hospital, Boston, Mass.).
1966. Cortex 11(3):349-356 (Jul). 20 refs.

Review of literature pertaining to cases of epilepsy in which the use of language (reading, writing, or speaking) appears to precipitate seizures. The hypothesis that proprioceptive feedback provides the triggering mechanism is rejected in favor of the suggestion that language itself can function as a conditioned stimulus in the formation of a "reflex" epilepsy. Literature cited is international in scope and chiefly of the years 1957-1966.

RELATIONSHIP OF LANGUAGE TO THE THINKING PROCESS. 1:77

Vernon, McCay (Institute for Psychosomatic and Psychiatric Research and Training, Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, Ill.).
1967. Arch. Gen. Psychiat. (Chicago) 16:325-333 (Mar). 71 refs.

Review of 33 research studies of intelligence in the deaf and hard-of-hearing, covering the period from 1930 to 1966. These studies are considered by the author to yield an experimental paradigm in which the level of verbal language is systematically manipulated while the thinking process is being measured. Together the studies involve over 8000 children ranging in age from 3 to 19. Three conclusions are submitted: there is no functional relationship between verbal language and cognition or thought process; verbal language is not the mediating symbol system of thought; and there is no relationship between concept formation and level of verbal language development.

Tracing of the "intellectual history" of psycholinguists, with special emphasis on developments in this field during the decade 1954-1964. The author uses as a framework for his review the categories and the contents of Saporta's reader, Psycholinguistics: A Book of Readings, 1961. These are as follows: The nature and function of language; Approaches to the study of language; Speech perception; The sequential organization of linguistic events; The semantic aspects of linguistic events; Language acquisition, bilingualism, and language change; Pathologies of linguistic behavior; Linguistic relativity and the relation of linguistic processes to perception and cognition. In addition, he discusses future developments in the field; and nonverbal communication and zoosemiotics.

LINGUISTIC THEORY AND THE PHILOSOPHY OF LANGUAGE.

Moravcsik, J. M. E. (University of Michigan, Ann Arbor).
1967. Found. Lang. 3:209-233. 15 refs.

Critical review in which the author seeks to show the relevance of linguistic theory to the philosophy of language without the overstatement that he finds in Katz's The Philosophy of Language. This paper tries to show that certain key concepts are used both in the formulation of linguistic theory and in philosophic claims. The author's approach is to discuss one particular linguistic theory (Chomsky's) and to examine it from the point of view of whether it contains claims logically relevant to statements made by recent philosophers of language such as Quine, Austin, and Wittgenstein.

Headings in the review include: LINGUISTIC COMPETENCE. LEVELS OF EXPLANATORY ADEQUACY. CHOMSKY'S SUBSTANTIVE PROPOSALS. PHILOSOPHICAL RELEVANCE OF THIS LINGUISTIC THEORY.

LINGUISTIC STRUCTURE AS RELATED TO CONCEPT FORMATION AND TO CONCEPT CONTENT.

IN READING PERFORMANCE.

Glass, Gene V., and Robbins, Melvyn P. (University of Illinois, Urbana).
1967. Reading Res. Quart. 3(1):5-51 (Fall). 48 refs.

Critical review of 15 empirical studies, each of which has been cited in one of three works by C.H. Delacato in support of his system of improving reading performance through neurological training. Twelve experiments within the works are evaluated in terms of shortcomings in controls and statistical measures used, and alternative interpretations of the data are presented.

Headings within the review include: DELACATO'S THEORY OF NEUROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION AND READING. LANGUAGE FUNCTIONS IN MENTAL RETARDATION, A REVIEW: 1. LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT, TYPES OF RETARDATION, AND INTELLIGENCE LEVEL.
Spreen, Otfried (University of Iowa, Iowa City).
1965. Amer. J. Ment. Defic. 69:482-494 (Jan). 99 refs.

State-of-the-art review of language functions in mental deficiency. This first of two parts deals with incidence, cause, and consequences of language deficit. No attempt is made to include problems of assessment, treatment, and other more specific questions of speech pathology. Literature cited is international in scope and chiefly of the three decades extending into 1963.
Review is under the following headings: Abstract. INCIDENCE OF LANGUAGE DYSFUNCTION AND CORRELATION WITH INTELLIGENCE. THE QUESTION OF A SPECIFIC LAG IN LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT. DIFFERENTIAL LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT IN SPECIFIC TYPES OF RETARDATION. CONTRIBUTORY FACTORS. Environment, Institutionalization. Auditory defects. Handedness. FACTOR ANALYTIC STUDIES.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE PHONOLOGICAL SYSTEM IN THE NORMAL AND THE DEAF CHILD, pp. 187-206 in The Genesis of Language, edited by Frank Smith and George A. Miller.

Fry, D. B. (University College London, England).
1966. Cambridge, Mass., M.I.T. Press. 400p. (8 refs.).

Review of the normal process leading to the establishment of a complete phonemic repertory by age 5 to 7 and of the critical effects of sound impoverishment and what can be done about it. This paper is from the proceedings of a conference on "Language Development in Children," sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, April 1965. The presentation is discussed in subsequent sections of the proceedings.

Review is under the following headings: BABBLING STAGE. DEVELOPMENT OF ARTICULATION. DEVELOPMENT OF THE PHONOLOGICAL SYSTEM. ACOUSTIC CUES AND THE PHONEMIC SYSTEM. DEVELOPMENT OF THE PHONOLOGICAL SYSTEM IN THE DEAF CHILD.

Sharf, D. J., and Prins, D.
1965, Dec. 15. 16p. 16 refs. Report 9, Grant 5-PO1-HD01368-02.

Review of studies concerned with two different aspects of phonological development in children: the establishing of normative data against which a child's speech might be compared and the establishing of a pattern for the child's development of phonemic distinctions. English-language references are cited from the years 1931-1962.

Review and suggestions for future programs are under the following headings: NORMATIVE STUDIES. Age of sound acquisition. Sound substitution patterns. Sound type and frequency. LINGUISTIC STUDIES. Pattern of phoneme development. Phoneme stability and consistency. Consonant vs. vowel phonemes. SUMMARY OF PAST STUDIES. Variability in sampling method and sample size. Phonetic vs. phonemic analysis. PROSPECTUS FOR FUTURE STUDIES. Theories of phonologic development. Development of phonemic control. RESEARCH PROBLEMS. Sampling. Word identification.

1:105

Lane, Harlan (Center for Research on Language and Language Behavior, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor).
1965. Psychol. Rev. 72(4):275-309 (Jul). 60 refs.

Review of the motor theory of perception of speech, which maintains that articulatory movements and their sensory feedback mediate between the acoustic stimulus and the event called perception. Experimental evidence is illustrated in 13 figures. Literature cited is international and chiefly of the years 1950-1965.

Review is under the following headings: EVIDENCE THAT FAVORS A MOTOR THEORY OF SPEECH PERCEPTION. Similar acoustic stimuli, diverse perceptual and articulatory responses. Diverse acoustic stimuli, similar perceptual and articulatory responses. Changing perception correlated less with the acoustic stimuli, more with the patterns of articulation that produce those stimuli. EVIDENCE THAT OPPOSES THE MOTOR THEORY OF SPEECH PERCEPTION. Identification functions for consonants, vowels, and nonspeech stimuli. Discrimination functions for consonants, vowels, and nonspeech stimuli. Correspondence of identification and discrimination obtained with consonants, vowels, and nonspeech stimuli. Gradients of identification latency for consonants, vowels, and nonspeech stimuli. Psychophysical functions for speech loudness and their relation to vocal effort. SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS.

Lieberman, Phillip.
1967. Cambridge, Mass., The M.I.T. Press. Res. Monogr. 38. 210p. 194 refs.

Review of 14 analyses, mostly of British and American English, whose goal has been the development of a notation for the objective representation of intonational phenomena. The author identifies three fundamental different approaches that have evolved since 1900 - the British "tone" and "tune" analyses and the American "phonetic" descriptions. Works are presented chronologically and range from Henry Sweet (1892), New English Grammar, to M. Bierwisch (1965), "Regeln fuer die Intonation deutscher Saeetze."

Speech Communication

VARIATIONS IN VOCAL BEHAVIOR, chap. 30 In Disorders of Communication, 1:110 edited by David Mck. Rioch and Edwin A. Weinstein.
Starkweather, J.A. (University of California School of Medicine, San Francisco).
1964. Res. Publ. Ass. Res. Nerv. Ment. Dis. 42:424-449. (107 refs.).

Review of studies of the information carried by vocal behavior, considering for this purpose the vocal communication channel apart from the verbal and gestural. The review contains seven figures and cites literature from the years 1931-1962.

Headings in this chapter include: STUDIES OF VOCAL BEHAVIOR WHICH INVOLVE
THE USE OF JUDGES. Investigations of the judge. Separation of vocal information. Change in emotional expression. THE PHYSICAL DIMENSIONS OF VOCAL BEHAVIOR. The duration of utterances. The rate of speaking.
Changes in vocal pitch. Linguistic coding of vocal dimensions. Analysis

RESEARCH IN ARTICULATION AND INTELLIGENCE. 1:111
Winitz, Harris (Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio).
1964. Child Develop. 35:287-297 (Mar). 24 refs.

Review of studies relating articulation and intelligence in children who are within the normal range of intelligence and without psychological and organic involvements. Statistical measures are obtained for correlation between the status of intelligence and articulation (7 studies) and for the correlation between initial intelligence and articulation improvement
(4 studies). All studies are in English and of the years 1931-1961.

Kramer, Ernest (Napa State Hospital, Calif.).
1963. Psychol. Bull. 60(4):408-420 (Jul). 95 refs.

Survey of research efforts to demonstrate validity in the judgment of nonverbal properties of voice such as timbre, inflection, and stress.
Literature cited is almost entirely in English and is of the years 1920-1962.

Review is under the following headings: VOICE AND STABLE CHARACTERISTICS
OF AN INDIVIDUAL. Physical characteristics. Aptitudes and interests.
Personality: Personality traits. Personality as a whole. Personality adjustment and psychopathology. VOICE AND CHANGING EMOTIONAL STATES.
Meaningless content. Constant content. Ignoring content. Acoustical

Rieber, Robert W. (Rutgers University, Newark, N.J.).
1963. J. Psychol. 55:307-311 (Apr). 19 refs.

1:117

Review of studies that have sought to relate stuttering to self concept and to treat it as a clinical phenomena of disturbed self concept. Methodologic and conceptual limitations of these studies are briefly examined, and suggestions for additional research are presented. Papers cited are in English and of the years 1929-1962.

1963. Behav. Res. Ther. 1:95-119 (Aug). 73 refs.

Review of empirical studies of the effects of delayed auditory feedback on normal speech and of studies on the characteristics of stammerers. The main facts and their interpretations are outlined toward subsuming these two sets of phenomena under a single theory. Literature cited is in English of the years 1936-1963.

Review is under the following headings: EMPIRICAL STUDIES OF DELAYED AUDITORY FEEDBACK AND STAMMERING. Delayed auditory feedback <Effects of feedback delay and intensity on speech structure. Effects of feedback delay and intensity on intensity of utterance. Effects of delay time and feedback intensity on fundamental frequency. Effects of delay time and feedback intensity on intelligibility. Effects of delay time and feedback intensity on articulation. Adaptation to D.A.F. Personality and delayed auditory feedback. Morley, Muriel E. (University of Newcastle upon Tyne, England).
1967. Mod. Trends Plastic Surg. 2:255-267. 12 refs.

Review of the scope and limitations of speech therapy in relation to primary and secondary surgical procedures for cleft palate. The need for therapy, its most appropriate timing, and some useful methods are indicated. Literature cited is in English and chiefly of the years 1956-1966. Review is under the following headings: Introduction. SPEECH AND ITS MODIFICATION IN CLEFT PALATE. Vocal tone and vowel sounds. Articulation. THE ASSESSMENT OF SPEECH. Intra-oral air pressure. Vocal tone and resonance. Articulation. SPEECH THERAPY FOLLOWING CLEFT PALATE REPAIR. Indications for speech therapy. SECONDARY PROCEDURES.

- 1:121 SECONDARY REPAIR OF CLEFT LIP AND PALATE DEFORMITIES, sec. 11 in chap. 8, Congenital Deformities.
Muir, I. F. K. (Mount Vernon Centre for Plastic Surgery, Northwood, England) and Bodenham, D. C. (Frenchay and United Bristol Hospitals, England).
1966. Mod. Trends Plastic Surg. 2:226-254. 21 refs.

Review of progress in secondary, postinfancy repair procedures for hare lip and cleft palate deformities. The emphasis of a decade ago on the soft tissues has now shifted to the management of jaw deformities. The text is amplified with 28 figures. Literature cited is of the years 1949-1964. Review is under the following headings: Introduction. NASAL DEFORMITY OF THE REPAIRED SINGLE HARE LIP. CORRECTION OF THE NASAL TIP DEFORMITY. Support of the weak dome. Rhinoplasty for the hare lip case. Double hare lip deformity of the nose. The retracted columella. The short lip. DEFORMITIES OF THE JAWS. Unavoidable Defects in Patients Who Have Had Good Primary Soft Tissue Repair.--Abnormalities of teeth near the cleft. 'Collapse' of the lesser segment. Bilateral clefts. Contraction of the arch in bicuspid region. Mandibular prognathism - Real or relative? Aggravated Defects in Patients When Primary Treatment Has Been Unsuccessful. PROGRAMME FOR 'WELL TREATED' PRIMARY CASES.

PRIMARY BONE GRAFTS IN CLEFTS OF LIP, ALVEOLUS AND PALATE, sec. 1 in chap. 8, Congenital Deformities.

Schuchardt, Karl (Nordwestdeutschen Kieferklinik, Universitätskrankenhaus, Eppendorf, Hamburg, Germany).

1966. Mod. Trends Plastic Surg. 2:214-225. 11 refs.

Review of the author's procedure of primary osteoplasty, carried out simultaneously with the closure of cleft lip. Techniques are illustrated in 9 figures.

Presentation is under the following headings: Introduction. DEFINITION.
GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS. Timing. Lip repair. Formation of bed for graft.
Obtaining the Graft. Statistics. SCHUCHARDT'S TECHNIQUE OF PRIMARY BONE
GRAFTING IN UNILATERAL CLEFTS. SCHUCHARDT AND PFEIFER'S TECHNIQUE OF PRIMARY BONE GRAFTING IN BILATERAL CLEFTS OF LIP, ALVEOLUS AND PALATE.
Conclusions.

(Saginaw, Mich.).

1963. J. Oral Surg. 21(6):469-491 (Nov). 32 refs.

Review of recent literature, citing references (English-language only) to mid-1962, on cleft palate clinics and cleft palate diagnosis, mainly on the use of roentgenography therein. (The authors also report the results of an investigative survey for the evaluation of the method of roentgenographic examination described by Randall, O'Hara, and Bakes in 1958.)

Review of the literature is under the following headings: FUNCTION OF CLEFT PALATE CENTER. ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY. SURGERY. PROSTHESIS.
SPEECH. ROENTGENOGRAPHY.

EPIDEMIOLOGY OF CONGENITAL CLEFTS OF THE LIP AND PALATE.

Lewin, Michael L., and Ship, Arthur G. (Montefiore Hospital, The Bronx, N.Y.).
1962. New York J. Med. 62(15):2523-2535 (Aug). 42 refs.

State-of-the-art report on the treatment of cleft lip and cleft palate patients.

Review is under the following headings: Classification. Embryologic development. Causes of cleft lip and palate. PEDIATRIC ASPECTS. SURGICAL CARE OF CLEFT LIP. Management of the alveolus. Timing of lip repair. Anesthesia. CLEFT PALATE REPAIR. Palate insufficiency. Pharyngoplasty. Technics for evaluation of palatal function. ORTHODONTIC TREATMENT. PROSTHODONTIC TREATMENT. SPEECH. OTOLARYNGOLOGIC ASPECTS.

- 1:126 A REVIEW OF CLEFT PALATE GROWTH STUDIES REPORTED IN THE PAST 10 YEARS.
Subtelny, J. Daniel (Eastman Dental Dispensary, Rochester, N.Y.).
1962. Plast. Reconstr. Surg. 30(1):56-67(Jul). 31 refs.

Review of the literature between 1950 and 1960 on growth studies of the nasopharyngeal and velopharyngeal areas relating to congenital clefts of lip and palate. The review is organized according to the development of certain concepts, rather than chronologically, and shows the strong stimulus of two prior 'landmark' studies by Graber and Pruzansky. The inadvisability of adenoid removal because of its effect on speech is stressed. Pharyngoplasty is not discussed.

ADVANCES IN LARYNGEAL PHYSIOLOGY AND THEIR CLINICAL APPLICATION. 1:129
Arnold, G. E. (University of Mississippi Medical School, Jackson).
1966. Eye Ear Nose Throat Monthly 45(1):78-80,82-84(Jan). 2 refs.

Review of the clinical advances achieved in modern laryngology, with a short historical note and discussion in the following areas: physical aspects of phonation, organic limitations on vocal function, physical origin and effect of benign lesions, functional falsetto voice, organic falsetto voice, phonosurgical indications, and contraindications to intrachordal injection.

Devine, Kenneth D. (Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.).
1965. Laryngoscope 75(4):533-569 (Apr). 131 refs.

Review of the granulomatous disease sarcoidosis with emphasis on laryngeal sarcoidosis. According to the author, there has been no prior thorough review or detailed discussion of laryngeal sarcoidosis in the medical literature. Literature cited is international and from the years 1907 into 1963.

Review is under the following headings: Introduction. Purpose of the study. Justification of the study. SARCOIDOSIS. Pathologic features. Etiologic and epidemiologic features. Diagnosis. Treatment and prognosis. LARYNGEAL SARCOIDOSIS. Frequency of laryngeal sarcoidosis in sarcoidosis. Larynx in sarcoidosis. Recurrent laryngeal nerve in sarcoidosis. Report of cases. Arnold, Godfrey E. (2500 North State St., Jackson, Miss.).
1964. Ann. Otol. 73(2):426-442 (Jun). 36 refs.

Review of the physical effects of laryngeal lesions, and the use of this knowledge to indicate phonosurgical procedures for the improvement of voice.

The paper begins with a general discussion of the past and present relations of laryngeal science to disorders of voice and is organized under the following headings: STRUCTURE, LESION AND FUNCTION. PHYSICAL EVALUATION OF THE LARYNGEAL VOICE GENERATOR. ACOUSTIC EFFECTS OF LARYNGEAL LESIONS. Excavation of the vocal cords. Deficient adduction. Granulating processes. Changes in vocal cord. Lowering of the speaking voice. PHYSICAL INTERPRETATION OF BENIGN LARYNGEAL LESIONS. FALSETTO VOICE OF FUNCTIONAL ORIGIN. FALSETTO VOICE OF CONGENITAL ORIGIN. INDICATIONS OF PHONOSURGERY. Summary.

SPECIAL SERIALS

The section on Special Serials includes special-purpose periodicals and irregular serials that do not fit readily into the other sections. Many of these fulfill the review function. The next edition will have more complete coverage generally, but especially of annual and irregular reports issuing from research laboratories and other centers of interest.

STANDARDS PUBLICATIONS of the USA Standards Institute and the recommendations of the International Organization for Standardization and of the International Electrotechnical Commission will be treated in the next edition.

HOW TO USE

1. To look for the different kinds of special serials, use the contents listing for this section.
2. To look for a special serial of known title, use the general Index to Titles at the end of the volume.

REVIEW JOURNALS are entered in the same format as the primary journals, and their descriptive items have similarly been reviewed by their respective editors.

SOURCES

This list of special serials has been assembled by the use of various sources such as standard lists of periodicals, the reference shelves of the National Library of Medicine and of the library of the Johns Hopkins University Neurocommunications Laboratory and the collections of the Information Center and the Welch Medical Library.

REVIEW JOURNALS

No journal mainly concerned with literature or theoretical review within the area of hearing-language-speech science has been identified.--Ed.

2:2 NEUROSCIENCES RESEARCH PROGRAM BULLETIN

1963- About 6 Issues/Yr. Distributed primarily to libraries and qualified investigators; also to selected administrators, writers, and editors.

Neurosciences Research Program (NRP)*
280 Newton St., Brookline, Mass. 02146

Serial reports of the Work Sessions of the Neurosciences Research Program, an interdisciplinary and international center for the investigation of the physical basis of mental processes, including memory and learning. Each issue gives a distilled and integrated state-of-the-art report on an important area of the neurosciences and indicates future directions of research.

In English.

Contains original summaries of research results and ideas from Work Sessions of 12 to 20 international leaders on various topics within the neurosciences. Each report has two parts: an evaluative summary-critical essay and a selective bibliography. Author participants have the services of NRP writer-editors.

Author and subject index beginning with September 1967 issue. Cumulative index of authors, titles, and participants in Vol. 3, No. 1, covering Vols. 1 and 2 (1963-1964). Anthologized in the Neurosciences Research Symposium Summaries, M.I.T. Press (SEE separate entry).

ANNUAL AND IRREGULAR REVIEW SERIALS

2:7 PROGRESS IN LEARNING DISABILITIES.

Myklebust, Helmer R., ed.

1968- New York, Grune and Stratton Vol. 1, $12.50.

Series designed to provide a current compilation of research findings as they relate to psychoneurological studies in childhood. Will be of interest to educators, psychologists, neurologists, psychiatrists, and others engaged with the child who has general ability and integrity but who does not learn and achieve in the normal manner. (Noted from publisher's announcement; not yet examined. Ed.)

2:8 YEAR BOOK OF THE EAR, NOSE, AND THROAT.

Lindsay, John R., ed.

1901- Annual Chicago, Year Book Medical Publishers $9.00.

Annual review presenting selected works pertinent to the study of the ear, nose, and throat. There is also a special section on maxillofacial surgery. Material is presented in a noncritical fashion with occasional critical comments by the editor. In selecting items for inclusion in the Year Book Series more than 175,000 articles are reviewed. Articles are arranged by subject headings as in a text. Subject and author indexes.

ADVANCES IN CHILD DEVELOPMENT AND BEHAVIOR.

2:9

Lipsitt, Lewis P., and Spiker, Charles C., eds.
1963- Irregular New York, Academic Press. Price varies.*

Serial publication providing critical syntheses to be used as reference articles by teachers, researchers, and students in the field of child development and behavior. No attempt is made to organize each volume around a particular topic or theme. Manuscripts are solicited from investigators conducting programmatic research on problems of current interest. Of interest in the area of hearing-language-speech is article entitled "Evidence for a Hierarchical Arrangement of Learning Processes" (Vol. 2, 1965) which utilizes information on delayed auditory feedback. In book form, with author and subject indexes.

*Vol. 1, $12.50. Vol. 2, $8.50.

REVIEW OF CHILD DEVELOPMENT RESEARCH.

2:10

Hoffman, Martin L., and Hoffman, Lois Wladis, eds.
1964- Irregular New York, Russell Sage Foundation. $8.00/Vol.
Prepared under the auspices of the Society for Research in Child Development.

Series for interpretive and selective reviews of child development research, planned chiefly for practitioners in such areas as pediatrics, social work, clinical psychology, education, and child psychiatry. Two initial volumes (1964 and 1966) contain reviews of research that are centered on familiar problem areas and are intended to provide practitioners with larger perspectives within which to fit professional experience and make professional judgments. These volumes, taken together, are organized around general aspects of child development, with chapters on the child's social and psychological development, environmental influences, and constitutional factors; infancy and adolescence; deviancy; and testing. Future volumes are expected to deal with more specific problems. Of special interest in Volume 2 is "Language Development" by Susan Ervin-Tripp. Each volume has author and subject indexes.

YEAR BOOK OF PEDIATRICS.

Gellis, Sydney, S., ed.
1928- Annual Chicago, Year Book Medical Publishers. $9.00.

Annual review presenting selected works pertinent to pediatrics. Includes sections on otolaryngology; dentistry; neurology and psychiatry. Material is presented in a noncritical fashion usually followed with critical comments by the editor. Items are arranged by subject headings as in a text. Subject and author indexes.

(Gerontology)

2:12 ADVANCES IN GERONTOLOGICAL RESEARCH.

Strehler, Bernard L., ed.

1964- Irregular New York, Academic Press. Vol. 1., $13.50.

Series providing comprehensive and critical summaries of biological and medical research in which recent advances significant to the field of gerontology have been made. Articles presented vary from the fundamental considerations of the genetic basis of aging to the immunological, histological, ultrastructural, and physiological reflections of the basic processes. Contributors come from the United States, U.S.S.R., and other European countries. There are approximately 10 articles per volume. In book form, with author and subject indexes.

(Neurosciences)

2:13 NEUROSCIENCES RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM SUMMARIES.

Schlitt, Francis O.; Melnechuk, Theodore, and others, eds.

1966- Irregular Cambridge, Mass., M.I.T. Press. Price varies.*

Anthologies of the Work Session Reports from the Neurosciences Research Program Bulletin. Volume 1 contains 9 reports of work sessions held in the years 1963-1964. Volume 2 contains reports of 6 sessions held in the years 1966-1967. (SEE ALSO Neurosciences Research Program Bulletin.)

*Vol. 1, 1966, $7.50. Vol. 2, 1967, $12.00.

(Oral Biology; Dentistry)

2:14 ADVANCES IN ORAL BIOLOGY.

Staple, Peter H., ed.

1964- Irregular New York, Academic Press. Price varies.*

Series to provide critical surveys of the state of knowledge in selected areas of biology that bear upon growth, development, and maintenance of normal function of oral tissues, together with departures from normal. Articles are selected to demonstrate the improvement of dental health through a consideration of dental disorders within the wider field of oral biology. There are between 6 and 12 articles per volume. Author and subject indexes.

*Vol. 1, 1964, $14.00. Vol. 2, 1966, $12.00.

YEAR BOOK OF DENTISTRY.

2:15

Tylman, Stanley D., et al., eds.

1942/1943- Annual Chicago, Year Book Medical Publishers $8.00.

Annual review of selected works pertinent to the study of dentistry. The aim of this publication is to tell the reader about the latest in each of the major fields of dentistry as well as to provide a practice manual for the evaluation and application of the most up-to-date knowledge in the field. Entries are noncritical with occasional critical comments being made by the editorial board. More than 175,000 articles are reviewed in selecting those for inclusion in the Year Book Series. Subject and author indexes with each volume. There are 18 other Year Books in various fields, of medicine (SEE separate entry on Year Book of the Ear, Nose and Throat).

(Neurology, Neurosurgery, and Psychiatry)

PROGRESS IN BRAIN RESEARCH

2:16

Under varying editorship.

1963- New York, Elsevier Publishing Company. Price varies.

Series of volumes, each on a single theme or a specialized area in the study of brain and nervous system. The typical volume contains review-type articles in English, international in scope, by a dozen outstanding investigators who are recognized as having made a major contribution to the area. Many articles are enlarged lectures from the workshops and symposia of international meetings. A few volumes represent the research of a particular laboratory or country while others are monographs by noted individuals. The number of volumes appearing within a year has varied from 2 to 9. Thematic volume titles with significance for the area of hearing-language-speech include Brain Mechanisms: Specific and Unspecific Mechanisms of Sensory Motor Integration (Vol. 1); Degeneration Patterns in the Nervous System (Vol. 14); Cybernetics of the Nervous System (Vol. 17); Sensory Mechanisms (Vol. 23). Each volume has author and subject indexes and is abundantly illustrated.

2:17 PROGRESS IN NEUROLOGY AND PSYCHIATRY

Spiegel, E. A., ed.

1946- Annual New York, Grune and Stratton. Price varies.

Comprehensive survey and review in four areas: Basic Sciences, Neurology, Neurosurgery, and Psychiatry. Topic coverage is basically the same each year with the minor variation that some topics are reported biennially. Over 5200 papers, about one third dealing with the basic sciences, are given critical or noncritical mention in Vol. 22 (1967). Headings of 35 subareas, manned by 65 specialists, include the following (those in capitals may have greater relevance for hearing-language-speech): Neuroanatomy. General neurophysiology. REGIONAL PHYSIOLOGY OF THE CENTRAL NERVOUS SYSTEM. Clinical neurology. OTONEUROLOGY. PEDIATRIC NEUROLOGY. ELECTROENCEPHALOGRAPHY. Radiology of the skull and central nervous system. Cerebral trauma and traumatic infections of the central nervous system. PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSESSMENT METHODS. REHABILITATION.

2:18 YEAR BOOK OF NEUROLOGY, PSYCHIATRY, AND NEUROSURGERY.

Mackay, Roland P. (ed., Neurology); Wortis, Sam Bernard (ed., Psychiatry), and Sugar, Oscar (ed., Neurosurgery).

1948- Annual Chicago, Year Book Medical Publishers. $11.00?

Annual review presenting selected works pertinent to the study of neurology, psychiatry, and neurosurgery. Each section is introduced by editorial comment on trends within the area, on articles of special interest, or on the year's selection of articles. Material is presented mainly in noncritical fashion, but frequently with interpretive or critical comment by the editor appended. Review items are arranged by subject headings as in a text. Index terms relevant to hearing-language-speech include acoustic neurinomas, aphasia, attention, cerebellopontine angle lesions, reading and writing difficulties, and speech disorders. Subject and author indexes.

(Physiology)

ANNUAL REVIEW OF PHYSIOLOGY.

2:19

Hall, Victor E., ed.; Glese, Arthur C., and Sonnenschein, Ralph R., assoc. eds.

1939- Annual Palo Alto, Calif., Annual Reviews. $8.50.

Series of yearly volumes that survey and review the literature of selected topics in physiology. Investigators who review emphasize their own special areas of interest. Therefore, in order to obtain uniform coverage, topics are divided and their publication staggered. Thus reviews do not usually cover the literature of a calendar year but of a longer and variable period. Reviews on 'Hearing' from the viewpoint of different authors have appeared every 3 years (Vol. 23, 1961, by Merle Lawrence; Vol. 26, 1964, by J. E. Hawkins, Jr.; Vol. 29, 1967, by J. Schwartzkopff - SEE separate entries). Other topics have included: Navigation by Animals (Vol. 26); Central Nervous System: Afferent Mechanisms and Perception (Vol. 29); Nervous System: Afferent Mechanisms (Vol. 30). Author and subject indexes with each volume. Cumulative indexes of authors and titles (Vols. 26-30) in Volume 30, 1968. These cumulative indexes cover 5 years and appear in each volume.

Reprints of articles published in 1968 are available at $0.95 each from Annual Reviews, Inc., 4139 El Camino Way, Palo Alto, Calif. 94306. Descriptive brochure with author and subject listings is free.

PROGRESS IN PHYSIOLOGICAL PSYCHOLOGY.

2:20

Stellar, Elliot, and Sprague, James M., eds.

1966- Annual? New York, Academic Press. $9.50, Vol.1.

Serial publication in physiological psychology intended to serve as "continuing handbook" in this field. It presents critical and speculative evaluations of concepts in physiological psychology, new investigations published for the first time, and brief authoritative accounts of the current state of special fields. An average of 6 to 8 articles per year are presented in book form and with author and subject indexes. Articles of special interest to the field of hearing-language-speech in the first volume to appear are "Attention and Auditory Electrophysiology," by F. G. Worden, and "Neurophysiological Correlates of Information Transaction and Storage in Brain Tissue," by W. R. Adey.

(Psychology)

2:21 ADVANCES IN THE STUDY OF BEHAVIOR.

Lehrman, Daniel S.; Hinde, Robert A., and Shaw, Evelyn, eds.
1965- Annual New York, Academic Press. Vol. 1, $9.50.

Series of critical reviews oriented toward the facilitation of current and future progress in all aspects of behavior. Includes intensive factual reviews of recent work, reformulations of persistent problems, and historical and theoretical essays. Two articles in areas relevant to hearing-language-speech are "Aspects of Stimulation and Organization in Approach/Withdrawal Processes Underlying Vertebrate Behavioral Development" and "Physiological and Psychological Aspects of Selective Perception" (both in Vol. 1, 1965). In book form, with subject and author indexes.

2:22 ANNUAL REVIEW OF PSYCHOLOGY.

Farnsworth, Paul R.; Rosenzweig, Mark R., and Polefka, Judith T., eds.*
1950- Annual Palo Alto, Calif., Annual Reviews. $8.50.

Series of yearly volumes with articles that survey and review the literature of psychology by topical areas. Reviews as a rule do not center on the papers published in a single year but comment over a variable period with emphasis on recency. Of particular interest to hearing-language-speech, the literature of 'Audition' has been treated annually. Other topics have included: Brain Functions (Vols. 17, 19); Cognitive Functions (Vol. 17); Developmental Psychology (Vols. 15-19); Learning of Psychomotor Skills (Vol. 19); Operant Conditioning and Verbal Learning (Vol. 16); Perception (Vols. 15, 17, 18); Perceptual Learning (Vol. 17); Psycholinguistics (Vol. 17); Verbal Learning and Memory (Vol. 19) Author and subject indexes with each volume. Cumulative indexes of contributing authors and chapter titles (Vols. 15-19) in Volume 19, 1968. These cumulative indexes cover 5 years and appear in each volume.

*Editors of the 1968 volume.

Reprints of articles published since 1961 are available at $0.95 each from the Annual Reviews, Inc., 4139 El Camino Way, Palo Alto, Calif. 94306. Descriptive brochure with author and subject listings is free.

MENTAL MEASUREMENTS YEARBOOK.

Buros, Oscar K., ed.
1938- Highland Park, N.J., Gryphon Press.

Mainly a classified listing of all commercially available tests published as separates in English speaking countries, with critical reviews and with references to publications that discuss the construction, validity, use, and limitations of each test. Each edition supplements earlier editions and is designed to assist test users in education, industry, psychiatry, and psychology to locate, choose and use tests with greater ease and discrimination. Listed separately are books on measurements with excerpts of reviews. There are 5 indexes: classified index to tests in print; index to periodical review sources; index to publishers of tests and books; index to titles of tests and books in print in mid-1964; and index to names of reviewers, authors, and others. The 6th edition has listings for 1,219 tests, 795 critical test reviews by 396 reviewers, 97 excerpts from reviews of tests which first appeared in 30 journals, and 8,001 references for specific tests. In the tests and reviews are sections on speech (11 tests), reading (87 tests), listening comprehension (2 tests), and hearing (16 tests). A companion volume is TESTS IN PRINT, edited by O.K. Buros (Gryphon Press, 1961, $7.00), which presents information on 2,171 tests and to which the Yearbook refers the reader for further information on many tests.

Ed. 1-2, out-of-print; ed. 3, 1949, $18.00; ed. 4, 1953, $20.00; ed. 5, 1959, $22.50; ed. 6, 1965, $32.50.

PROGRESS IN CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY.

Abt, Lawrence, E., and Riess, Bernard F., eds.
1952- Biennial New York, Grune and Stratton. Price varies.

Biennial volumes with an eclectic approach to clinical psychology. Each volume carries 15-20 review presentations of various aspects of psychodiagnosis and psychotherapy, including reports on developments abroad. Beginning with Vol. 8 (1968) each book will address itself to a particular topical area. There is a subject index with each volume. Volume 6 (1964) has a table of contents for Vols. 1-5. As well as informing generally on areas of clinical psychology, the series has in the past treated speech and reading disabilities (Vol. 2, 1956) and the physically handicapped (Vol. 5, 1963).

STATUS REPORTS OF LABORATORIES

- 2:25 DEVELOPMENT OF LANGUAGE FUNCTIONS, A RESEARCH PROGRAM-PROJECT. Annual Report. Center for Human Growth and Development, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Language Development Program. 1967- Annual

Annual report of the Language Development Program, with short summaries of research in progress in 14 subareas having to do with speech production, speech perception, and the development of language of functions in infants and children. Also includes list of Program participants, including staff members and graduate students; bibliography of 76 publications, listed by author and including the numbered Technical Reports of the Language Development Program as well as publications in the open literature.

- 2:26 SPEECH RESEARCH: A REPORT ON THE STATUS AND PROGRESS OF STUDIES ON THE NATURE OF SPEECH, INSTRUMENTATION FOR ITS INVESTIGATORS, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATION. Haskins Laboratory, New York, N.Y. 1965- Quarterly

Series of status reports on speech research conducted by the Haskins Laboratory. Contains extended reports and manuscripts, interim reports, abstracts, and list of publications, manuscripts, papers, and talks. Not all work in progress during the quarter is described, but only that which has reached a certain stage of completion such as descriptions of experiments which have yielded sufficient data to be of interest, but which require further work before being published as entire studies. Extended reports and manuscripts are papers written especially for the Reports. Interim reports consist of work not yet ready for detailed description. Averages 5-6 articles per issue. Exemplary of the titles of articles carried are "An Electromyographic Study of Articulatory Dynamics in Hearing-Impaired and Normal Speakers" and "A Study of Voicing in the Stops Found in the Pre-Linguistic Babblings of Infants " (July-Dec. 1966).

Inquire availability from Haskins Laboratory, 305 East 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

WORKING PAPERS IN PHONETICS.

2:27

University of California, Los Angeles. Phonetics Laboratory.
1964- Irregular

Series of working papers in phonetics intended as a record for the UCLA Phonetics Group, a report as required by funding agencies and a preliminary account of work in progress. Papers which have been submitted or accepted for publication are not reproduced in this series, except as abstracts. Includes summaries of books, papers, and theses published as well as papers presented at meetings. Some articles of relevance to hearing-language-speech include "Some Phonetic Specifications of Linguistic Units: An Electromyographic Investigation" by Victoria A. Frankin (No. 3, 1965 - complete issue); "Larynx Vs Lungs: Cricothyrometer Data Refuting Some Recent Claims Concerning Intonation and 'Archetypality'" by Ralph Vanderslice; "Use of Hooked-Wire Electrodes for Electromyography of the Intrinsic Laryngeal Muscles" by Minoru Hirano and John Ohala; "The LINC-8 Computer in Speech Research" by Richard Harshman and Peter Ladefoged (No. 7, 1967).* Table of contents with each issue. No cumulative index.

*Available from Textbook Department, Student Store, UCLA, Los Angeles, California 90024 for $2.50.

Statistics.

1963-	Irregular	PHS No. 1000 - Series 10	Price varies.*
1964-	Irregular	PHS No. 1000 - Series 11	Price varies.*

Recent data from the National Health Survey includes the following two series: Series 10 is based on data collected in a continuing national household interview survey, called the Health Interview Survey, and consists of statistics on illness, accidental injuries, disability, use of hospital, medical, dental, and other services, and other health-related topics. Series 11 is based on the direct examination, testing, and measurement of national samples of the population, called the Health Examination Survey, and includes statistics on the prevalence of specific diseases and distributions of the population with respect to various physical and physiological measurement. Reports within these series particularly relevant to hearing-language-speech: No. 35, Characteristics of Persons with Impaired Hearing (United States, July 1962 - June 1963) consists of demographic and other characteristics of persons with a binaural hearing impairment, classified according to amount of hearing loss; No. 11, Hearing Levels of Adults by Age and Sex (United States, 1960 - 1962) contains distributions of hearing levels at frequencies of 500, 1000, 2000, 3000, 4000, and 6000 cycles per second, for the right ear, left ear, and better ear; No. 26, Hearing Levels of Adults by Race, Region, and Area of Residence (United States, 1960-1962) contains distributions of hearing thresholds for the better ear in excess of 15 decibels and -5 decibels or more below audiometric zero as determined by pure-tone air-conduction audiometric tests at frequencies of 500, 1000, 2000, 3000, 4000, and 6000 cycles per second.

INTRODUCTION

PRIMARY JOURNALS

In the section on Primary Journals are journals whose main intent is the reporting of new researches or other new information. The term "journal" is applied loosely since the list includes, in addition to the typical periodical of a professional society or privately incorporated interest, serial volumes or monographs which similarly report primary information but are of irregular appearance.

ARRANGEMENT is in two principle lists: core journals with interests focused mainly within the area of hearing-language-speech science and cognate areas carrying articles relevant to this area but with interests focused in related areas. Because of the bio-medical orientation of this Information Center, all journals with a significant portion devoted to otolaryngology have been labeled core.

SUBJECT HEADINGS within these lists are "natural" in that no special effort was made to force a grouping other than to avoid placing one journal under more than one heading.

HOW TO USE

Information in a standard format is offered for each journal:

1. To find journals within subject areas, use the contents listing of this section.
2. To find information on a journal of known title, use the general Index to Titles at the end of the volume.

REVIEW BY EDITORS. All entries except a few recently acquired were mailed to their respective editors for review and correction. Titles of journals not receiving the benefit of such review or for which a reply was not available by press time are followed by a black circle o .

ACQUISITION INFORMATION follows the journal title. Subscription prices are those forecast by editors or were taken from recent issues. The subscription price given is that for institutions if not otherwise noted. Frequently a journal is free to members of the publishing society or available at reduced rates to students or to individuals. Consult a recent issue of the journal for this information.

ABSTRACTING AND INDEXING COVERAGE was largely derived by checking for the names of journals on the lists usually published by abstracting or indexing services stating the journals that they cover. Only likely services were checked for each journal.

Abbreviations used are in the following table:

BA	Biological Abstracts	IM	Index Medicus
BPI	Behavior and Physiology Index	LingB	Linguistic Bibliography
CA	Chemical Abstracts	LLBA	Language and Language Behavior Abstracts
CD	Child Development Abstracts and Bibliography	MR	Mental Retardation Abstracts
DA	Dental Abstracts	OR	Oral Research Abstracts
dsh	dsh Abstracts	PA	Psychological Abstracts
EdI	Education Index	PhysicsA	Physics Abstracts
EngrI	Engineering Index	SA	Sociological Abstracts
ExM	Excerpta Medica	SCI	Science Citation Index
HLI	Hospital Literature Index

SOURCES

A list of about 400 journals, containing titles from a list devised during the feasibility project of the Information Center and titles from the first thousand documents entered in the Information Center retrieval system, was used as the basis for a survey of journals in the hearing-language-speech field. This survey commenced in the Welch Medical Library and the National Library of Medicine and extended to other area libraries. Standard lists of periodicals were consulted, and additional titles added through diverse encounter in Information Center activities. The present list of English-language journals derives from a consideration of about 600 titles. Recent volumes and issues of all the journals listed have been examined, except where otherwise noted.

INDEXING AND ABSTRACTING PUBLICATIONS

The section on Indexing and Abstracting Publications includes regular and irregular serials that treat current literature, research projects in progress, or professional meetings. Indexing or abstracting services that appear within journals on a continuous basis, and are substantial on their coverage, are also included.

ARRANGEMENT is with separate subsections for indexes, abstracts, research in progress, and meetings. Independently issued services are followed by any services that are published within journals. Items cognate or supplemental are placed last in each subsection. Within each smallest grouping, descriptive items are listed alphabetically by title.

HOW TO USE

1. To look for a particular kind of service, use the contents listing and scan the appropriate subsection.
2. To look for a service of known title, use the general Index to Titles at the end of this volume.

The description of each indexing or abstracting service follows a standard format to which the following information pertains:

REVIEW BY EDITORS. Nearly every descriptive item was mailed to the editor of the publication concerned for review and correction. The titles of those publications not receiving the benefit of such review by press time are followed by a black circle ● .

ACQUISITION INFORMATION follows the title of the publication. Subscription prices are subject to change.

CURRENCY OF ABSTRACTS/CITATIONS. Refers to an estimate of the average interval of time between the publication date on the cover of the primary journal and the publication date on the cover of the secondary journal unless otherwise noted.

TYPE OF ABSTRACT. In the informative abstract, the abstractor condenses the information, giving main ideas, methods, and data. In the indicative abstract, the abstractor describes content without giving qualitative and quantitative data directly from the article.

COMMUNICATION DISORDERS

1968- Irregular Free upon request subject to restrictions upon quantity printed

Information Center for Hearing, Speech, and Disorders of Human Communication

310 Harriet Lane Home
Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions, Baltimore, Md. 21205

Subject Coverage: Current awareness service, combining indexing and a condensed form of abstracting; covering the world literature on hearing, language, speech, reading, vestibular system, and disorders of human communication.

Currency of Entries: 2-3 months.

Publications Regularly Searched: About 1500 primary journals and secondary services in 1968.

Numbers of Entries: Increasing to about 200-300 per issue in 1968.

Exchange Agreements: None.

Arrangement: Items are numbered consecutively throughout each volume and are arranged under headings and subheadings representing areas of major interest. An additional section announces subject bibliographies and translations produced by the Information Center.

Indexes: Whether author and subject indexes are supplied for the first and subsequent volumes will depend upon user demand (questionnaire planned for autumn 1968).

Special Features: The publication is composed of print-outs from a computer-based information retrieval system. Bibliographic citations include, in addition to usual information, the institution where the work was done or the address of author; funding agency; type of document; language of document and whether English translation of foreign language is available; number of references; and "mini-abstracts." The mini-abstract is an indexing device that provides key facts from the document and is also machine-searchable.

Format: All uppercase computer print-out.

INDEX TO DENTAL LITERATURE

4:7

1921- Quarterly $20.00/Yr.
4th Issue $10.00
American Dental Association
Bureau of Library and Indexing Services
211 East Chicago Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611 and National Library of Medicine

Subject Coverage: Covers international dental literature including articles on cleft lip and palate and others relating to face and skull.

Currency of Entries: Undetermined.

Publications Regularly Searched: 348 dental journals and 847 medical and other journals in 1967. Of dental publications, 245 are not indexed by Index Medicus.

Number of Entries: 13,516 in 1967. 77 percent from dental journals and 23 percent from medical and other journals in 1967. Number of citations not also in Index Medicus is 3,266 or about one fourth.

Arrangement: In the Subject Section, citations are under alphabetical Dental Subject Headings; in the Name Section, citations are under alphabetically ordered names of authors. Arrangement, format and style are very similar to Index Medicus. Issue 2 cumulates Issue 1; Issue 3 cumulates Issue 2; and Issue 4 is a bound volume cumulating the whole.

Indexes: Subject and name sections are indexes.

Special Features: Each issue contains a list of dental publications indexed; the Bibliography of Dental Reviews with subject and name sections. Issue 4 adds an annual list of new dental books; a listing of dissertations and theses by author and by institution; a complete list of publications indexed; and an alphabetical list of Dental Subject Headings. Since 1965 the Index has been produced through the National Library of Medicine MEDLARS and GRACE systems, of which the former may be searched.

History: Volume 1 has a copyright date of 1921, although the preface was dated 1920. Early volumes spanned the literature of varying periods of years. Through 1949 the title on the spine was Index Dental Periodical Literature. In 1950, the Index became the quarterly cumulative index with the title Index to Dental Literature. No foreign language literature was covered until 1962.

4:8 INDEX MEDICUS

1960-	Monthly	$55.00/Yr.	$5.00/Issue*
	Annual	$38.00/Set	Cumulated Index Medicus*

MENTAL HEALTH BOOK REVIEW INDEX

4:10

1956- Annual $8.00/Yr.
Paul Klapper Library
Queens College of the City University of New York
Flushing, N.Y. 11367
Published by the Council on Research in Bibliography, Inc.

- Subject Coverage: Selected list of books reviewed in the open literature by specialists and organized as a bibliography by cooperating librarians. It aims at a synthesis of the significant monographic literature in the behavioral sciences by listing each book with its review sources. Some books on hearing-language-speech may be found in this list, derived not only from journals in the communication sciences but also from a great many other journals with overlapping interests.
- Currency of Entries: The bulk of the books listed in each volume were published 2 years before the publication date of the INDEX; reviews are cited to April of the year of each annual volume. Currency of books or reviews is not a factor of selection for the listing. Rather, the aim is to present a body of the significant literature that is being discussed in the scientific community over a period of years.
- Publications Regularly Searched: The index is based on unpublished cumulative file of references to signed book reviews appearing in 249 journals in the English language (of which 200 are still current and publish reviews) (data for Vol. 12, 1967). About one third of these originate outside of the U.S. A revised and expanded list of these source journals appears in each annual issue.
- Number of Entries: Each issue lists about 300 books, with 3 or more reviews. At least 1 review cited is from a journal in the psychological sciences: psychology, psychiatry, and psychoanalysis. Since issue No. 1, 3,885 book entries and more than 22,000 entries for book reviews have appeared.
- Arrangement: Books are listed alphabetically by author in each issue and have been numbered consecutively since the first issue. Titles previously listed and later having 3 or more additional reviews are repeated in their alphabetical place with the original number along with cross-referencing of previous issues containing reviews.
- Indexes: A 12-year cumulative author-title index, 1956-1967 in preparation.
- Special Features: Editorial article.
- Sponsor: The World Federation for Mental Health, the International Council of Psychologists, and the New York University Research Center for the Mental Health.

4:11 NATIONAL LIBRARY OF MEDICINE CURRENT CATALOG^o

 $14.25/Separate ann. cum.*
 $30.00/Quarterly issues only, including ann. cum.*
 National Library of Medicine
 8600 Wisconsin Ave., Bethesda, Md.

- Subject Coverage: Cites recent books and technical reports cataloged at National Library of Medicine. Includes many publications relating to hearing-language-speech science.
- Currency of Entries: Includes publications with an imprint date of the current or two preceding years.

Number of Entries: Undetermined.

Arrangement: Biweekly issues are arranged in six sections: Subject Section, with titles listed under main subject only, without subheadings; alphabetic author/title listing--Name Section; list of volumes published as additions to sets originally cataloged when the first volume was issued; alphabetic directory of names and addresses (when known) of publishers of those monographs, listed in the issue, which were published in the last year, and of those serials which began publication during the year; Technical Reports Subject Section; and Technical Reports Name Section. The subject headings are from Medical Subject Headings (MeSH).

Indexes: Subject, name, and technical report sections are indexes and cumulate quarterly. The 4th quarterly issue contains a complete list of citations for the preceding year and is published as a case-bound volume.

Format: Like Index Medicus.

SCIENCE CITATION INDEX

4:16

1964- Quarterly $1250.00*
Institute for Scientific Information (ISI)
325 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19106

Subject Coverage: International bibliography of references to literature cited annually in a broad range of scientific publications. Effectiveness of the Index is dependent upon the number of source publications used, and coverage becomes more comprehensive each year as more sources are added. Citing references include articles, book reviews, abstracts, editorials, letters, and technical notes. Soon several thousand books will be included in source coverage each year.

Publications Regularly Searched: In 1967, over 1700 journals, 59 per cent foreign, from 41 countries; 13,815 journal issues searched.

Number of Entries: In the 1967 system coverage, 3,401,000 cited references, 20,000 different journals cited, 31,000 book reviews indexed, 510,000 authors whose works were cited, and 305,000 source journal items indexed.

Exchange Agreements: None mentioned.

Arrangement and Indexes: Each quarterly issue in two parts: Source (author and anonymous sections) and Citation (author, anonymous, and patent sections). These are replaced by hardcover annual cumulations. Commonly the Citation Index is used to find who has been citing whom and what earlier work is being cited in current work. The Source Index Section is used to determine what has been published in each calendar year by any scientist. The Corporate Index is used to determine the papers published by a particular organization. The Permutem Index (started in 1966) provides an additional annual subject-retrieval approach by pairing of all source title terms.

Special Features: Retrospective ISI Search Service, Magnetic Tape Service, weekly Automatic Subject Citation Alert, and Original Tear Sheets.

*Educational price.

4:17 TRANSLATIONS REGISTER-INDEX

1967- Semimonthly $30.00/Yr.
 Special Libraries Association Headquarters
 235 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10003

Subject Coverage: Announces and indexes unpublished translations of world literature in the natural, physical, medical, and social sciences. Covers translations deposited in the Special Libraries Association Translations Center by scientific and professional societies, industrial and other special libraries, colleges, universities, and other non-governmental institutions in the U.S.A. and abroad.

Currency of Entries: Announcement made within 3 months of receipt of a translation or information on its availability.

Number of Entries: In 1968, the average issue contains 250 register items and 500 index entries.

Arrangement: There are two main sections - the register section and the index section. The register lists translations under COSATI subject headings and gives bibliographic description, order information, and price. The index section provides a journal citations index; patent citation index; and author references to conference papers and monographs. It indexes not only those translations noted in the register section but those announced in Technical Translations, 1967, U. S. Government Research and Development Reports, 1968 and following, as well as translations reported by commercial translating agencies and other sources, domestic and foreign.

Indexes: The index cumulates quarterly during the calendar year, with the second, third, and final cumulations replacing those preceding.

History: Translations deposited at the Translations Center from 1955-1958 were listed in Translations Monthly, issued by SLA; from 1959-1966 in Technical Translations of CFSTI.

Special Features: Copies of its holdings are made available by the Center for the cost of photocopying plus an incorporated service charge of $5.00. Upon receipt of a complete bibliographic citation, the Center will make a search of its files to determine if and where a specific translation is available.

Sponsor: The Special Libraries Association.

SOCIOLOGICAL ABSTRACTS

4:37

1953- 8 times/Yr. $100.00/Yr. $15.00/Issue
 Sociological Abstracts, Inc.
 2315 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10024

Subject Coverage: International coverage of sociology and related fields including sociological aspects of communication and language development, speech acquisition, and rehabilitation.

Type of Abstracts: Noncritical; Informative.

Currency of Abstracts: From 6-16 months, varying with the language of the journal and its geographic place of publication.

Publications Regularly Searched: Approximately 7000 periodicals in 1965.

Number of Abstracts: 5460 in 1967.

Number of Abstractors: 37 in addition to authors in 1967.

Arrangement: In each issue, abstracts are alphabetized by author under classified headings that tend to disperse the articles bearing on communicative science. These may be located in the subject index under descriptors such as deafness, hearing, language, and speech.

Indexes: Author index each issue. Cumulative author index, subject, and periodical indexes in last issue.

Special Features: Articles describing the "state of the art" of sociology in various countries, prepared under the auspices of the International Sociological Association, will appear about every other issue beginning in fall 1968. A microfiche repository is available for unpublished manuscripts deposited with the Clearinghouse for Sociological Literature. These are abstracted and announced in Sociological Abstracts.

Companion Pieces: Information Files (consists of 21 areas of the abstracts) $5.00/File.

ABSTRACTS OF CURRENT LITERATURE.

4:38

Mullen, Marjorie M., ed.

1940- Monthly in Rehabilitation Literature.

Abstracts of literature on rehabilitation of the handicapped, including aphasia, deafness, laryngectomy, and speech correction. Abstracts are noncritical and usually informative rather than indicative. For most abstracts, the interval in appearance is 6 weeks or less. Abstracts are under subject headings that are arranged as an alphabetical index, with cross references to related abstracts and other contents of the issue. There is an author index covering abstracts in each issue, with an annual cumulative author index appearing as Part 2 of the January issue for the following year. About 65 numbered abstracts appear in the section each month.

- 4:39 INTERNATIONAL ABSTRACTS OF PLASTIC AND RECONSTRUCTIVE SURGERY.
Snyder, Clifford C., ed. (University of Utah Medical School, Salt Lake City).
1947- Monthly In Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

Abstracts of articles within the purview of plastic and reconstructive surgery, including many on head, neck, and cleft lip and palate. Each monthly section contains approximately 30 abstracts, which appear from 3-6 months after the primary publication and are prepared by 9 U.S.A. abstractors (including the editor and coeditor) and 30 foreign abstractors. Abstracts are informative and are arranged by subject headings and subheadings. There is a semiannual author index. No exchange agreements are mentioned.

Supplemental

4:40 DISSERTATION ABSTRACTS

1938- Monthly $75.00/Yr. - Sections A and B
University Microfilms, Inc.
300 North Zeeb Road
Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106

Subject Coverage: Lists doctoral dissertations written in all academic fields, including the communicative sciences.

Type of Abstracts: Informative summaries.

Currency of Abstracts: Undetermined.

Source of Abstracts: More than 160 cooperating institutions.

Number of Abstracts: Over 1,800 new abstracts monthly.

Arrangement: In two sections: A, Humanities, and B, Sciences. Abstracts listed by subject headings within each section.

Indexes: Author and subject indexes in each issue. Part 2 of Issue 12 for each year is the cumulative index for that year.

Special Features: Datrix (Direct Accession To Reference Information; A Xerox Service) provides xerographic prints of complete dissertations at 4.5 cents per page.

History: From 1938-1952, it appeared as Microfilm Abstracts.

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

- 4:42 LANGUAGE RESEARCH IN PROGRESS.
Center for Applied Linguistics, Washington, D.C.
Hayes, Alfred S., and Varley, Joy, eds.
1965- Semiannual.

Serial reports listing current, documented research projects on language systems and language communication behavior in the U.S.A. and abroad. The basic list of numbered projects (Part 3 of each report) gives name of principal investigator, institution at which the research is taking place, and title of project. Titles included are of projects either ongoing or terminated within the 6 months prior to report issue. Projects thus announced are "documented" by abstracts that are available from the Center for Applied Linguistics. Additional projects for which there has been insufficient documentation for the writing of an abstract are announced in an appendix within each report. The basic list of projects is indexed by subject (Part 1) and by investigator and institution (Part 2). The system underlying these services depends upon direct contributions of background information from individual investigators. Although centered on linguistic and behavioral aspects of language study, this publication reports on research projects across the spectrum of hearing-language-speech. Report No. 6, April 1968, supersedes the previous ones (except as historical record).

- 4:43 RESEARCH IN EDUCATION (PROJECT SECTION)*

1966- Monthly $11.00/Yr. $1.00/Issue
Division of Information Technology and Dissemination
Bureau of Research, Office of Education
Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C.
Prepared by the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC).

Subject Coverage: Announcement of current projects supported through the Bureau of Research, Office of Education. Coverage includes the communication skills of hearing, language, reading, and speech and the problems of handicap and education in these areas.

Type of Abstracts: Noncritical; Informative; about 200 words.

Currency of Abstracts: Undetermined.

Publications Regularly Searched: Varies among Clearinghouses.

Number of Abstracts: 737 in 1967.

Arrangement: Within the Project Section of each issue, project resumes are in order of accession number. Each project resume includes the title of the project, name of investigator, institution where the research is done, contract number, start and end dates, descriptors, and the abstract.

Indexes: In each issue, the Project Section has indexes by institution, subject, and investigator. There is an annual index for 1967 (for issues Nov. 1966 through Dec. 1967): Report Resume Index, $3.25; Project Resume Index, $1.50. Subject index headings follow the Thesaurus of ERIC Descriptors, Ed. 1, December 1967 (OE-12031. $2.50.)

Special Features: Project resumes cannot be ordered from the ERIC Document Reproduction Service. Material for Research in Education is assembled by North American Rockwell Corporation under contract to the Office of Education.

Format: All uppercase printing using Linofilm electronic composition.

RESEARCH RELATING TO CHILDREN. BULLETIN.

Children's Bureau, Washington, D.C. Clearinghouse for Research in Child Life. 1949- Irregular (About twice a year).

4:44

Reports of research in progress, or recently completed, in such areas as child growth and development; personality and adjustment; exceptional children; family life; socioeconomic and cultural factors; service programs in child health, child welfare, or special education. Each item gives the title of research project, purpose, subject sample, methods, findings, duration, principal investigators, cooperating groups, and publication or availability of results. Information is derived from summaries of research contributed directly by individual investigators or obtained from the Science Information Exchange. Each issue has an alphabetical directory of investigators, an alphabetical subject index, and a geographic list of organizations. With the exception of long-term research, the current Bulletin does not report again the studies that are included in earlier issues, even though they may still be continuing.

Most earlier issues are out of print but are available in many libraries. Recent issues available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402: Bull. 18 (Mar.-Dec. 1964) - $1.25; Bull. 19 (Jan.-Sep. 1965) - $1.50; Bull. 20 (Oct. 1965-May 1966) - $1.25; Bull. 21 (Jun. 1966-Apr. 1967) - $1.25.

An investigator receives a free copy of the issue of RESEARCH RELATING TO CHILDREN in which his study appears. A free copy of each issue is available to libraries and research centers. The Clearinghouse also maintains a mailing list of interested persons who receive announcements of new issues as they are published. Address: Clearinghouse for Research in Child Life, Children's Bureau, Washington, D.C. 20201.

MEETINGS

Announcements of meetings or a "calendar of events" are carried as regular or irregular features of numerous journals classed as "core" or "cognate" with respect to hearing-language-speech. Comprehensive services are listed below.--Ed.

4:45 WORLD LIST OF FUTURE INTERNATIONAL MEETINGS.

Prepared by the International Organizations Section, Library of Congress,
Washington, D.C.
1959- Bimonthly.

Serial directory to internationally organized or financed meetings scheduled for the ensuing three years and in which three or more countries are represented. Two separately paged chronologies (Part 1: Science, Technology, Agriculture, Medicine; Part 2: Social, Cultural, Commercial, Humanistic) appear under one cover. Items on meetings in each part are in order of identification number referring to the year, month, and beginning day so that meetings occurring at a particular time are found together. Notices also include special notations such as postponing of meetings and restrictions on participation; sponsoring organizations; addresses to use for further information. Access to notices of meetings by particular subject, sponsor, or geographical location is through a modified keyword-in-context index that covers both parts.

Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. $6.00 per year; $1.25 for single copy.

WORLD MEETINGS... OUTSIDE U.S.A. AND CANADA.
 Baum, Harry, ed. and pub.
 1968- Quarterly.

4:46

Registry of future scientific, technical, and medical meetings that will take place through the world during the two-year period following each date of issue. The directory consists of a data section which is divided in eight parts, one for each calendar quarter of the two-year period following the date of issue of the publication; and of five pre-coordinated indexes - by date of meeting, keyword, deadline for abstracts, location, and sponsor. In the data section, meetings are arranged by invariant registry numbers referring to the date of the meetings. Information on each meeting includes name, headquarters, date, sponsor, contact for general information, a brief description of the meeting including number of papers to be presented, estimated attendance and restrictions on attendance, deadline for submission of papers and address of individual to whom they may be sent, information on availability of abstracts or papers, and information on exhibits. Issues are cumulative. Each new issue drops the first part of the preceding issue covering meetings which have occurred during the three-month period between issues and adds about 250 to 300 new meetings.

World Meetings, 79 Drumlin Rd., Newton Centre, Mass. 02159. $35.00 annually.

WORLD MEETINGS... UNITED STATES AND CANADA.
 (Formerly Technical Meetings Index).
 Baum, Harry, ed. and pub.
 1963- Quarterly.

4:47

Registry of future scientific, engineering, and medical meetings that will take place in the United States and Canada during the two-year period following each date of issue. The directory consists of a data section which is divided in eight parts, one for each calendar quarter of the two-year period following the date of issue of the publication; and of five pre-coordinated indexes - by date of meeting, keyword, deadline for abstracts, location, and sponsor. In the data section meetings are arranged by invariant registry numbers referring to the date of the meetings. Information on each meeting includes name, headquarters, date, sponsor, contact for general information, content of meeting, estimated attendance and restrictions, deadlines for submission of papers and contact for further information, information on availability of abstracts or papers, and information on exhibits. Issues are cumulative. Each new issue drops the first part of the preceding issue covering meetings which have occurred during the three-month period between issues and adds about 250 to 300 new meetings.

World Meetings, 79 Drumlin Rd., Newton Centre, Mass. 02159. $25.00 annually. ($35 after 1/1/69).

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

The section on Bibliographies contains lists of references that have been published variously as books, pamphlets, technical reports, journal articles, appendices, literature searches, or book lists. Excluded are periodical or recurrent bibliographies, which are listed elsewhere (SEE Indexes).

ARRANGEMENT is by the major subject headings: Hearing, Language, and Speech. Under each major heading, descriptive items are ordered alphabetically on the first significant word of the title. Related items in cognate areas are appended in a single separate list.

HOW TO USE

1. To find bibliographies within subject areas, use the contents listing of this section.
2. To find information on a bibliography of known author or title, use the general indexes to authors or titles.

SOURCES

This list of items was derived from the Bibliographic Index and from other standard library sources and various Information Center activities.

5:4 BIBLIOGRAPHY ON DEAFNESS.

Fellendorf, George W., ed. (The Volta Bureau, Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf, Inc., Washington, D.C.)
1966. Washington, D.C., Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf.
148p.

Selected index of articles from The Volta Review (1899-1965) and the American Annals of the Deaf (1847-1965). This bibliography lists about 3,450 articles by about 1,400 writers, many of whom have substantially influenced methods and philosophies in the education of the deaf in the United States and abroad. A special attempt was made to retain articles reflecting such controversies as residential vs. day schools, manual vs. oral communication, and deaf vs. hearing teachers. Each article is listed only once under one of 28 subject categories. Under each category, entries are arranged alphabetically by author, separately for the Review and the Annals. There is an author index.

SEE 5:17

5:5

BIBLIOGRAPHY ON FUNCTIONAL HEARING LOSS, chap. 9, pp. 262-272, in Multidiscipline Study of Functional Hearing Loss, edited by Ira M. Ventry and Joseph B. Chaiklin.

Ventry, I.M.; Chaiklin, J.B.; Deatsch, W.W., et al. (University of California Medical Center, San Francisco).

1965. J. Aud. Res. 5(3):179-272 (Jul).

Comprehensive bibliography of 401 references to books, articles, and theses on or related to functional hearing loss. Coverage is international in scope, with references from the years 1840-1964. Sources used in preparing this bibliography included the Journal of Speech and Hearing Disorders, Journal of Speech and Hearing Research, dsh Abstracts, Archives of Otolaryngology, The Laryngoscope, Acta Oto-Laryngologica, Psychologic Abstracts, Excerpta Medica (Section 11), Index Medicus, and Stevens and others' Bibliography on Hearing. In so far as possible, each reference was checked with the original publication for accuracy and relevance. References are arranged alphabetically by author; no subject index.

BIBLIOGRAPHY ON HEARING.

Stevens, S.S., director; Loring, J. G. C., compiler, and Cohen, D., technical editor (Psycho-acoustic Laboratory, Harvard University).

1955. Cambridge, Mass., Harvard University Press. 599p. $7.00.

Alphabetical listing by author of well over 10,000 titles in the literature of audition to 1952. This work is an enlargement of A Bibliography in Audition compiled by George A. Miller and others, published in 1950. Professor W. A. Rosenblith was adviser and consultant in the collecting of the references. Only a small proportion of the titles were taken from original sources. Foreign titles are translated into English. Finding of references is based on the classification of titles into 13 main headings and 3 levels of subheadings to a total of 315 categories. Each entry, identified by the name of the first author, is placed in one or more of the numbered categories. The assignment of an entry to a given category rests on the judgment of the various compilers, who in most instances had only the title to go by. Therefore, according to the authors, the classification is perhaps more suggestive than definitive. By browsing the detailed subject classification, however, the user may be started on a fruitful trail in searching out the literature on a given topic. A list of abbreviations to journal names is given, with definitions of relatively unfamiliar words.

- 5:7 HEARING AND DEAFNESS: A SHORT LIST OF BOOKS.
Royal National Institute for the Deaf, Library.
1966, July. London, The Institute. 4p. mimeographed.

List of 53 references specially prepared for anyone with little or no knowledge on the problems of hearing and deafness to acquire a general background in the subject. Entries are arranged under general subject headings. All are references to British and American (U.S.A.) publications.

Available free from the Royal National Institute for the Deaf, 105 Gower St., London W.C. 1, England.

- 5:8 HEARING IMPAIRMENT AND MENTAL RETARDATION: A SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY.
Anderson, Robert M. (University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.).
1965. Volta Rev. 67:425-432. 8p.

Bibliography of 100 references pertinent to clinical and educational programs for children who are both auditorially impaired and mentally retarded. The bibliography is for parents and laymen, as well as teachers and other professional personnel, and is intended to focus attention on needed educational services. All items are in English and nearly all from the years 1950-1964. Arrangement is alphabetical by author. Preceding the bibliography is a brief review of studies of multiple disabilities in children.

- 5:9 NOISE-INDUCED HEARING LOSS: ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY, 1958-1964. [Includes supplementary references for 1965.]
Warren Spring Laboratory, Stevenage, Hertfordshire, England.
1966, April. 38p.

Bibliography of 368 items on noise-induced hearing loss primarily for use by the Warren Spring Laboratory. Items are arranged in numerical order. Each entry has two separate parts - a citation and an annotation ranging from one line to complete paragraphs. Articles and other works listed are from the international literature, including Russian, Japanese, and many European publications. There is no index or table of contents.

Available from Warren Spring Laboratory, Gunnel's Wood Road, Stevenage, Hertfordshire, England. 52s. ($6.30).

PSYCHOACOUSTICS - A SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY.

5:10

American Foundation for the Blind, Inc., New York, N.Y.
Dimmick, Kenneth (University of Arizona, Tucson).
1966, March. 24p.

Bibliography of 238 references to articles, reports, and books relating to psychoacoustics particularly as important in research with the blind and severely visually impaired. Items are alphabetically by author. References included are nearly all to English-language publications and from the years 1934-1965, with emphasis on recent years.

RARE BOOKS AT THE VOLTA BUREAU.

5:11

Anonymous.
1965. Volta Rev. 67:664-645,658. 3p.

Bibliography of 19 items in the rare book collection of the Volta Bureau of the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf. Some of the books in the library include works donated by Melville Bell and by his son Alexander Graham Bell. Additions to this library are made by purchase and by donations of complete libraries as well as individual books and papers. Titles of this sampling are in English, Italian, German, and French and date from the 17th, 18th, and 19th Centuries.

SPEECH AND HEARING REHABILITATION; AN ANNOTATED CHECKLIST OF RECENT BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS (REV.).

SEE 5:21

AN ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY OF PUBLICATIONS ON TESTING THE HEARING OF INFANTS.
McCroskey, Robert L. (Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.) and Bell, Marian A. (Atlanta Speech School, Atlanta, Ga.).
1965. Volta Rev. 67:548-558,592-593(Oct).

5:12

Annotated bibliography of 49 items on hearing tests conducted on infants. This is not a comprehensive list of audiological procedures with children but is a guide for those who are interested in knowing the kinds of techniques which have been used to assess the auditory functions of infants. The bibliography is a result of a survey of literature which was completed in conjunction with the Home Training Program for Deaf Infants at the Atlanta Speech School. Entries are arranged alphabetically by author.

5:13 A SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY OF ACQUIRED VERBAL IMPAIRMENT SECONDARY TO BRAIN DAMAGE IN ADULTS.

Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, New York University Medical Center.
Compiled by Martha Taylor Sarno and Elaine Sands.
1967. New York, The Institute. 43p. (Rehab. Monogr. 34).

Bibliography of over 450 references to publications on aphasia and dysarthria. Linguistics, speech science, experimental psychology, and learning theory are heavily represented, reflecting a primary interest in aphasia rehabilitation. References from foreign journals are not included; nor are references to publications on 'childhood aphasia' or other developmental language failures; nor are subjects not a part of the aphasia syndrome, although related, such as intellectual impairment secondary to brain damage. Bibliographic items are alphabetical by author and without an index.

Available from the Publications Division, Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, 400 East 34th St., New York, N.Y. 10016. $1.50.

5:14 INDEXED BIBLIOGRAPHY ON THE EDUCATIONAL MANAGEMENT OF CHILDREN WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES (MINIMAL BRAIN DYSFUNCTION).

Edgington, Ruth, and Clements, Sam D. (University of Arkansas Medical Center, Little Rock).
1967. Chicago, Argus Communications. 109p., paper. $1.75.*

Selective bibliography of 370 references to the major subject areas relating to learning disabilities, defined as the educational counterpart of minimal brain dysfunction. The preface is devoted to a specification of these terms. References are arranged alphabetically by author. They are preceded by an elaborate index with 19 subject categories considered basic: General concepts of education for children with specific learning disabilities; Perception (with 9 subcategories); Cerebral dominance; Conceptualization--thinking disorders; Behavior disorders; Language disorders; Speech disorders; Team approach in diagnosis and treatment; Counseling with parents; Types of programs; Ancillary services; Basic tool subjects (with 6 subcategories); Classroom management; Educational supplies and devices; Outlook for the child's future; Vocational guidance; Teacher characteristics; Teacher training--recruitment, requirements, and places of training; Public relations. References are listed by number under these categories with additional information on whether the article is concerned mainly with one or more of the following: background and theory; assessment; training procedures. The authors have limited the bibliography to those publications that they "have had at hand and have examined" and state that inclusion does not imply approval or disapproval. Literature cited is in English and of the years 1917-1966, with a preponderance of recent publications.

HUMAN LATERALITY IN LEARNING AND APHASIA.
National Library of Medicine, Bethesda, Md.
1967. Literature Search 14. 6p.

5:15

Bibliography of 105 citations from the medical literature of mid-1963 to August 1967, compiled by the Library's computerized Medical Literature and Retrieval System (MEDLARS). Items include descriptors assigned from the Library's categorized list of Medical Subject Headings.

Single copy may be ordered without charge by number and title from the National Library of Medicine, 8600 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, Md. 20014.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY ON THE NATURE, RECOGNITION AND TREATMENT OF LANGUAGE DIFFICULTIES (REV. ED.).

5:16

Prepared by Margaret B. Rawson for the Orton Society, Inc.
1967. Pomfret, Conn., Orton Society. 104p.

Selected reading and reference list of 415 items for persons concerned with language disorders, especially specific language disability (developmental dyslexia). Items have brief evaluative annotations and are arranged by author in 9 sections: Medicine, neurology, psychology, general; Language and semantics; Education - general; Various developmental and remedial approaches to language learning; Specific language disability; Psychological, achievement, and diagnostic tests; Manuals, work books, instructional materials, and texts for students; Journals: annual, quarterly, monthly; and Bibliographies. The listing is printed with blank pages at the left for the user's convenience in making notes and additions. Blank leaves are provided between sections for the attachment of a supplement. Section 10, References in languages other than English, is projected. At present all references are in English.

May be obtained from either The Orton Society, Box 153, Pomfret, Conn. 06258, or the Educators Publishing Service, Inc., 75 Moulton St., Cambridge, Mass. 02138. $1.50 (orders of 10 or more, $1.00 each).

- 5:17 DELAYED AUDITORY FEEDBACK: A BIBLIOGRAPHY, pp. 227-236 in Annual Report of the Neurocommunications Laboratory, The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, Baltimore.
Fargo, Nancy (Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.).

Bibliography of 94 items (some annotated) on delayed auditory feedback. The bibliography is arranged alphabetically by author and includes references to journals, theses, and books, international in scope and of the years 1958-1966. This bibliography updates the 1959 bibliography by Chase, Sutton, and First (SEE next item) and the 1963 bibliography of Yates (Psychol. Bull., 60:213-232. SEE under Reviews 1:106.). It does not include references from either of these bibliographies.

Available free as a separate from the Neurocommunications Laboratory, Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, 601 North Broadway, Baltimore, Md. 21205.

- 5:18 BIBLIOGRAPHY: DELAYED AUDITORY FEEDBACK.

Chase, Richard Allen; Sutton, Samuel, and First, Daphne (Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City).
1959. J. Speech Hear. Res. 2(2):193-200 (Jun).

Comprehensive bibliography of 101 references to articles, reports, and theses on delayed feedback and a separate bibliography of 46 related papers. The section on auditory feedback has references of the years 1950-1958 and was compiled from a systematic review of the following sources: Journal of Speech and Hearing Disorders, Journal of Speech and Hearing Research, Journal of the Acoustical Society of America, Archives of Otolaryngology, Speech (London), Index Medicus, Current List of Medical Literature, Psychological Abstracts, Doctoral Dissertations, and Dissertation Abstracts. Other titles then current, known through correspondence with the authors, were also added. Related papers, in the second bibliography, were also brought to the attention of the authors through such correspondence. The items of both lists are arranged alphabetically by author and include papers of European origin. The bibliographies are preceded with a short resume of the beginnings of the subject.

THE PERSONALITY, ATTITUDES AND BEHAVIOUR OF PARENTS OF CHILDREN WHO STUTTER: 5:19
AN ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Selligan, Judith (University of Toronto, Ontario, Canada).
1966. J. Ontario Speech Hearing Ass. Pp. 35-106.

Bibliography that is a critical review of those studies in the literature concerned with the personality, attitudes, and behavior of the parents of children who stutter. The author states as purposes (1) to update the literature, (2) to push the research into hitherto uncovered pieces of work, (3) to try to evaluate the literature, and (4) to determine the most promising areas for future research. Each paper listed in the bibliography is described under four headings: purpose, experimental design, summary, and conclusions. Assessments and criticisms are added under a fifth heading. Articles are treated in three categories according to whether the parental personality, the parental attitudes, or the parental behavior were studied.

SPEAKER RECOGNITION, SPEECH CHARACTERISTICS, SPEECH EVALUATION, AND 5:20
MODIFICATION OF SPEECH SIGNAL--A SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Holmgren, Gary L. (U.S. Army Medical Research Laboratory, Fort Knox, Ky.).
1966. IEEE Trans. Audio Electroacoust. 14(1):32-39 (Mar).

Expansion of the author's earlier paper, "Speech Analysis, Synthesis, and Processing - A Selected Bibliography, 1963." Included are approximately 550 references of international scope intended to provide the researcher with a fairly extensive and representative coverage of the following subareas: speaker recognition by listeners and automatic speaker recognition; perceived characteristics, physical characteristics, and psychophysical judgments of speech; speech intelligibility and articulation and speech analysis and synthesis; speech processing systems, compression, and masking. The bibliography includes books, journals, reports of meetings, and congress proceedings. These items are not classified by subarea but are arranged alphabetically by author.

SPEECH AND HEARING REHABILITATION; AN ANNOTATED CHECKLIST OF RECENT BOOKS AND 5:21
PAMPHLETS (REV).

National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Chicago, Ill.
1966, July. 23p., mimeographed.

Annotated bibliography of 132 books and pamphlets selected as of interest to educational institutions, libraries, and professional persons and students. These titles have been previously reviewed in Rehabilitation Literature and are additions to the Library of the Easter Seal Society. The listing is alphabetical by author within 2 sections - auditory impairments and speech impairments. Literature covers the years 1949-1966. Publications are mostly from the United States, with a few from Switzerland, England, and Scotland.

- 5:22 A CUMULATIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY ON BRAIN IMPAIRMENT, APHASIA, AND ORGANIC PSYCHODIAGNOSIS, WITH SUPPLEMENTS.
Wepman, J.P. (University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.).
1961. Chicago, Language Research Associates. 60p. Price includes Suppls. 1 and 2 (combined), 1961-July 1964, 20p.; and Suppl. 3, August 1964-July 1966, 16p.*

Bibliography that covers the areas both of language disturbance and of diagnosis of brain injury. The basic bibliography of 1961 is limited more or less to the literature of the 20 years preceding its publication. More than 1000 references are classified under the following headings: Brain structure, theory, and function; Aphasia, agnosia, and apraxia in adults; Aphasia tests and manuals; Language development and language impairment in children; Aphasia in foreign language books and journals; Organic psychodagnosis - personality and brain impairment, localization of function; Psychometric and projective test studies; Psychometric and projective tests and manuals; Psycholinguistics; Rehabilitation. At the end of each section are cross references to other sections. The representation of foreign-language journals is small and unselected. In the preface, the author gives further advice to the person approaching the literature of the area. The supplements add about 670 references, in lists that are alphabetical by author. Lists of the journals indexed accompany the basic bibliography and each supplementary issue.

- 5:23 BRAIN INJURY AND RELATED DISORDERS IN CHILDREN; SELECTED REFERENCES (REV.).
National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Chicago, Ill.
1967, Feb. 19p., mimeographed.

Annotated bibliography of 87 books, pamphlets, and other publications on the brain-injured child, selected for their interest to individuals, groups, or libraries. Included in this bibliography are references to publications distributed by several state and local organizations for brain-injured children. References are to publications from the years 1937-1966.

COMMUNICATION SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING, pp. 119-229 in Publications, Research Laboratory of Electronics, 1946-1966, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass.

Compiled by John H. Hewitt and Helen L. Thomas.
1967, July 31. Spec. Tech. Rep. 16. 275p.

Listing of publications and theses resulting from research conducted by staff members of the Research Laboratory of Electronics during the first 20 years of its operations. The area of Communication Sciences and Engineering is divided into 24 research groups, separately listed, of which the following are of special interest in hearing-language-speech science: Cognitive Information Processing; Communications Biophysics; Electroencephalic Activity; Human Communication Systems; Linguistics; Neurology; Neurophysiology; Processing and Transmission of Information; Sensory Aids; Signal Detection by Human Observers; Speech Communication; and Statistical Communication Theory. For each research group, entries are chronological and under the headings Journal Papers, Special Publications, Technical Reports, and Theses. Author and subject indexes are provided the publication as a whole.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY ON NERVE CONDUCTION AND NERVE IMPULSES.
McKeldin, Elizabeth; Newman, Lois, and Wallach, Judith (The RAND Corporation, Santa Monica, Calif.).

1967. Rand Library Literature Search No. 127, reproduced by the Rand Corporation. 28p. AD-654 637.

Bibliography on nerve conduction and nerve impulses, the result of retrospective search of world literature from the year 1952 and continuing to June 1, 1967. The bibliography does not include items dealing with EEG waves, automata, or bionic devices. It does include items on the theory and simulations that apply very closely to the behavior of living nervous tissues and networks. This list is arranged alphabetically by author or main entry and contains 361 references. Works by researchers at the Rand Corporation have not been included.

CFSTI HC $3.00, MF $0.65.

- 5:26 A BIBLIOGRAPHY IN NEUROPSYCHOLOGY, REVIEWS AND BOOKS, 1960-1965.
National Institute of Mental Health, Bethesda, Md.
Louttit, Richard T.
1966. 26p. PHS-Bibliog-65; PHS-1473.

Bibliographies of review articles and of books on neuropsychology published in the years 1960-1965. Works included meet a definition of neuropsychology as "research involving direct manipulation--anatomical, physiological, or biochemical--of the central nervous system and measurement of resulting effects on behavior; or conversely, research in which measures of changes within the nervous system follow behavioral manipulation." Review articles which deal primarily with drugs, behavioral responses to drugs, or mechanisms of drug action, as well as reviews of brain anatomy or physiology which include little or no reference to behavior, and purely behavioral articles are all excluded. Section 1 lists 220 critical review and theoretical articles alphabetically by senior author. It is followed by a broad-category subject index. Section 2 lists 100 neuropsychological books and is followed by a subject index.

- 5:27 BIBLIOGRAPHY OF RESEARCH REPORTS AND PUBLICATIONS.
6570th Aerospace Medical Research Laboratories, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. Biodynamics and Bionics Division.
1963, June. 50p.

Bibliography of 451 references, covering publications which have resulted from the research activities of the Biodynamics and Bionics Division of the 6750th Aerospace Medical Research Laboratories. Subject matter is listed under the following headings: Sound Sources and Noise Fields; Sound Propagation; Instrumentation; Noise Control- General; Noise Control Structures; Hearing and Physiology of the Ear; Speech; Biological and Psychological Effects of Noise and Sound; Ear Protection; Mechanical Characteristics of the Human Body. Effects of Vibrations and Shock; General Noise Guides and Criteria; Bionics; Miscellaneous. There is an author index. Chronological arrangement of references within categories lends this bibliography to use for historical background.

SIGNAL DETECTION THEORY AND PSYCHOPHYSICS: A TOPICAL BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Preliminary draft.

National Academy of Sciences - National Research Council Committee on Hearing, Bioacoustics, and Biomechanics, Washington, D.C.

Egan, James P. (Indiana University, Bloomington).

1967, December. 146p. AD-663 906.

Topical bibliography on signal detection theory primarily for those who are interested in psychophysics, sensory psychology, and perception. The bibliography of about 1000 references is assembled from the point of view of the "stimulus-oriented psychophysicist." The author observes that his selection of references favors psychoacoustics. References are arranged under selected topics of detection, of recognition, and of a signal detection theory, and the listings under each topic are in chronological order. A given reference may occur several times. A detailed hierarchical outline of topics serves as a table of contents.

CFSTI HC $3.00, MF $0.65.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SPEECH AND ALLIED AREAS, 1950-1960.

5:29

Mulgrave, Dorothy Irene (New York University, New York); Marlbor, Clark, S. (Adelphi College, Garden City, N.Y.), and Baker, Elmer, E., Jr. (New York University, New York).

1962. Philadelphia, Chilton Company. 184p. $6.50.

Selective bibliography of doctoral dissertations and books completed or published during the fifties. "Allied areas" include anatomy, education, fine arts, history, journalism, literature, physiology, and psychology as directly related to speech and drama. Sections of particular interest to hearing-language-speech are Basic Science; Fundamentals of Speech; Speech Education; and Speech and Hearing Disorders. (Other sections are Oral Interpretation; Public Address; Radio and Television; and Theatre.) Items are unnumbered but accessible through a detailed table of contents.

- 5:30 STUDIES OF RANDOM NOISE: AN ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY.
Army Missile Command, Redstone Arsenal, Ala. Redstone Scientific Information Center.
Eckstein, Herbert P.
1966. 49p. AD-651 308.

Selected bibliography of 93 items, most of them annotated, on noise and the effects of noise on signals. The articles and reports deal primarily with the mathematical aspects of retrieving from noise signals the information contained in the form of stationary (time-independent) elements. Several surveys on information theory and other interrelated subjects are also included. Source of noise in these studies was either environmental or inherent in the equipment, thus effects of both the atmosphere and other transmitters are included. No studies on noise elimination are included. The bibliography is intended to represent the state of the art rather than to be comprehensive. References are arranged alphabetically by author, and there is an author index. An appendix lists 11 books treating both the physical nature of noise and its statistical properties.

CFSTI HC $3.00, MF $0.65.

- 5:31 BIBLIOGRAPHY OF TRANSLATIONS IN THE NEURAL SCIENCES 1950-1960.
National Institute of Mental Health, Bethesda, Md.
Prepared by Richard T. Louttit and Michael J. Hanik.
1967. 112p. PHS-1635.

Bibliographic listing of over 1000 research reports in the brain sciences which have been translated into English from the language of original publication. Thirteen countries are represented, but 90 percent of the reports were originally published in Russian. No evaluation has been made of the quality of either the original research or the translation, and no annotation is included. The main listing of articles is alphabetical by senior author and has a broad-category subject index. A separate list of 87 translated books and monographs follows the main listing. Information on ordering translations is given; also a list of additional sources of information on translations.

Single copy is free from Public Inquiries Branch, Public Health Service, Washington, D.C. 20201. For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402: USGPO:1967 0-260-754. $0.60.

DICTIONARIES, GLOSSARIES

The section on Dictionaries, Glossaries contains publications of special terms, some of terms in the English language and some bilingual or polyglot. Glossaries usually give only definitions whereas dictionaries more often supply encyclopedic and etymological information, illustrations, and biographical references.

ARRANGEMENT is under major headings of English Language, Special Language of the Deaf, and Foreign Language/English Language. Under each major heading, descriptive items are ordered alphabetically on the first word of the title with subject-matter significance.

HOW TO USE

The section is small enough to be scanned directly.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS RELATING TO CHILDREN WITH HEARING PROBLEMS. 6:1
Rushford, Georgina (John Tracy Clinic, Los Angeles, Calif.).
1964. Volta Rev. 66:750-753.

Glossary of 41 terms relating to hearing, hearing loss, and audiometry.
Terms are arranged alphabetically with subterms and definitions for types of hearing loss and hearing tests.

Available as Reprint No. 831 from The Volta Bureau, 1537 35th St., N.W.,
Washington, D.C. 20007. $0.50.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS FROM THE PHYSIOLOGICAL AND ACOUSTIC PHONETIC THEORIES. 6:2
Peterson, Gordon E., and Shoup, June E. (University of Michigan, Ann Arbor).
1966. J. Speech Hear. Res. 9(1):100-120 (Mar):

Separate publication of 235 terms that are formally defined in two theoretical papers of the authors that appear contiguously in the Journal of Speech and Hearing Research - "A Physiological Theory of Phonetics" (9:5-67, 1966) and "The Elements of An Acoustic Phonetic Theory" (9:68-99, 1966). The extraction of the terms with their definitions, and their arrangement alphabetically, are intended to simplify their use with reference to the two theories. No additional definitions were constructed for this glossary. Preceding the list of terms, the authors discuss the importance of definitions in the development of a field.

6:3 A DICTIONARY OF SPEECH PATHOLOGY WITH A SUPPLEMENT ON PHONETIC AND VOICE TERMS (ED. 2).

Robbins, Samuel D., compiler (Emerson College, Boston, Mass.).
1963. Cambridge, Mass., Sci-Art Publishers. 128p. $3.95.

Dictionary of terms and prefixes used in naming disorders of speech and language, with about 800 primary entries and with a 5-page classification of such disorders. About 200 other technical terms in the fields of phonetics, speech, and voice appear as a separate section in the second edition. Definitions have been adapted from the literature on speech disorders and from leading unabridged and medical dictionaries. Name of author is given for some definitions. Word pronunciations, synonyms, and comparisons are given. The author's stated aim is definition of all the known types of speech defects and disorders which occur in speech clinics and in public school classes. No attempt has been made to define syndromes.

6:4 TERMINOLOGY AND NOMENCLATURE, chap. 2, pp. 44-71, in Handbook of Speech Pathology, edited by Lee Edward Travis.

Wood, Kenneth Scott (University of Oregon, Eugene).
1957. New York, Appleton-Century-Crofts. 1088p.

Glossary of over 500 terms used in speech pathology, with a list of 188 roots, prefixes, and suffixes. A bibliography of 22 items includes references to English and foreign-language dictionaries of related areas. A discussion of the general problems of stability of terms and of learning terms precedes the glossary.

6:5 USA STANDARD ACOUSTICAL TERMINOLOGY (INCLUDING MECHANICAL SHOCK AND VIBRATION).

Sponsored by the Acoustical Society of America.
1960, May 25. New York, United States of America Standards Institute.
62p. $5.50.*

Standard containing definitions and explanations for 615 terms in the field of acoustics. Terms are presented under the following section headings: General; Levels; Oscillation, Vibration, and Shock; Transmission-Propagation; Complex Parameters of Linear Systems; Transducers and Instruments; Transducer Parameters; Recording and Producing; Underwater Sound; Sonics; Architectural Acoustics; Hearing and Speech (34 terms); Music. A table shows the relations among 3 systems of acoustical units in common use and gives conversion factors. There are 4 other tables, 1 figure, and a subject index.

CURRENT CLINICAL DENTAL TERMINOLOGY; A GLOSSARY OF ACCEPTED TERMS IN ALL DISCIPLINES OF DENTISTRY. 6:6

Boucher, Carl O., ed. and comp. (Ohio State University College of Dentistry, Columbus, Ohio).

1963. St Louis, Mo., C.V. Mosby Company. 501p. $11.00.

Glossary of clinical dental terminology, with terms and their definitions from 21 different areas of dental practice. These areas include cleft palate, oral diagnosis, oral medicine, oral pathology, oral physiology, oral roentgenology, oral surgery, and pedodontics. The compilation was made for members of the teaching profession, students, essayists, clinicians, and private practitioners to encourage the correct use of terms in spoken and written communications. The list is drawn from over 10,000 terms and definitions supplied by 52 contributors and collaborators. The main section of the glossary contains the terms arranged alphabetically, with definitions that include the connotations of different areas of specialization. A second section has alphabetical lists of the terms used in each disciplinary area, without definitions. Conversion tables of weights and measures and other information not readily available are contained in an appendix.

THE IRC EXPANDED GLOSSARY OF ELECTRONICS TERMINOLOGY. 6:7

International Resistance Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

1965, May 1. 28p. Paperbound.

Illustrated glossary of 754 terms and abbreviations "in wide use-- and some misuse" in the field of electronics. The Company also distributes a shorter, pocket-size version called the IRC Condensed Glossary.

Request copies from the International Resistance Company, 401 North Broad St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19108.

A DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN HOMOPHONES AND HOMOGRAPHS. 6:8

Whitford, Harold C. (Teachers College, Columbia University, New York City).

1966. New York, Teachers College Press. 83p. $2.00.

Dictionary intended primarily for foreign students of English who are confused by different words that sound alike (homophones) and by different words that are written alike (homographs). The main section lists over 1000 homophones and 160 homographs. For each there are single or multiple definitions, pronunciation equivalents, and one or more illustrative sentences. There is an additional listing of 800 less frequently used homophones and 60 homographs. Exercises are provided by which the student may test his knowledge.

- 6:9 CONCISE HANDBOOK OF LINGUISTICS, A GLOSSARY OF TERMS.
Stelble, Daniel J. (Our Lady of Cincinnati College, Cincinnati, Ohio).
1967. New York, Philosophical Library. 146p. $6.00.

Glossary of 603 terms for the student of English linguistics. The author's aim is to provide brief and simplified explanations of the terms in wide use by linguists and teachers of linguistics, with examples and cross-references. Excluded are most literary terms and terms of traditional grammar; historical terms; and highly technical terms having to do with the speech organs, phonetics, acoustics, and computer science. Appendixes include a list of symbols and abbreviations used by linguists; line diagrams of the speech organs; a simplified phonemic alphabet; and phonetic charts.

- 6:10 GLOSSARY OF LINGUISTIC TERMINOLOGY.
Pel, Marlo (Columbia University, New York City).
1966. Garden City, N.Y., Anchor Books, Doubleday and Company.
299p. $1.95, paper.

Glossary of about 1800 terms for the beginning and advanced student of linguistics. The author has tried to include the general terminology used by linguists of a certain stature that has gained a measure of acceptance. Authority has been given for many terms, especially where definitions are contradictory or controversial. Other useful features are synonyms, opposites, and abundant cross-referencing.

- 6:11 DORLAND'S ILLUSTRATED MEDICAL DICTIONARY (ED. 24).
1965. Philadelphia, W.B. Saunders Company. 1724p. $13.00.

Standard dictionary of medical terminology, stating its purpose beyond a record of usage as the maintenance of standards of etymological propriety and of selection. This edition contains a major revision of anatomical vocabulary to provide terms and definitions in accord with the Nomina Anatomica approved by the 6th and 7th International Congresses of Anatomists. The alphabetical listing of terms is preceded by a discussion of "Fundamentals of Medical Etymology," by Lloyd W. Daly. Also named are 10 editorial consultants and 58 contributors. Among the entries, terms consisting of two words are usually defined under the second or principal word. Included are bibliographic information on eponymic terms; phonetic respelling to indicate the commonly heard pronunciation of terms; information on etymology and irregularly formed plurals. There are 51 plates, other occasional illustrations, and 19 tables that assemble related data.

STEDMAN'S MEDICAL DICTIONARY; A VOCABULARY OF MEDICINE AND ITS ALLIED SCIENCES WITH PRONUNCIATIONS AND DERIVATIONS (ED. 21). 6:12
1966. Baltimore, Md., Williams and Wilkins. 1836p. $14.00.

Standard dictionary of medical terminology, stating its philosophy as that of "a working dictionary, a record of a living language," which must spell, pronounce, and define words as they are used, although it can suggest or set standards. This edition contains 9,183 new entries and more than 8,897 revised entries. Named are 27 consulting editors and 38 aldes, the latter to the consultant in dentistry. The vocabulary listing includes and defines every term listed in the Nomina Anatomica Parisiensis as modified by the 7th International Congress of Anatomists. There is a chapter on "Medical Etymology," with lists to assist in analysis and formation of words. Vocabulary entries include an indication of pronunciation; etymological information; spelling variations; eponymic biographies with cross-referencing to the entity involved. There are 31 color plates, 10 other plates, 374 text figures, and over 120 tables assembling data. Among the 10 appendices is a separate "Glossary of Prosthodontic Terms."

A COMPREHENSIVE DICTIONARY OF PSYCHOLOGICAL TERMS; A GUIDE TO USAGE. 6:13
English, Horace B. (Ohio State University, Columbus), and English, Ava Champney.
1958. New York, David McKay Company. 594p. $10.75; text ed. $8.00.

Dictionary of terms frequently used in a special or technical sense by psychologists, including some from mathematics, the natural and social sciences, and medicine. In general these terms denote mental and behavioral phenomena and the concepts and constructs used in ordering these phenomena. Psychiatric and psychoanalytic terms are included. Although this is primarily a defining dictionary, there are about 288 general articles that go considerably beyond the other entry terms in information given. Some cross-referencing of information is accomplished by listing under the most distinctive word of a phrase or compound term. Terms with the meanings of everyday speech have been excluded; foreign terms are included only when at least half-naturalized in English. Pronunciation appears for words likely to give trouble; and irregularly formed inflections and parts of speech are indicated. The listing is alphabetical and includes commonly used symbols and abbreviations.

HANDBOOK OF PSYCHOLOGICAL TERMS. 6:14
Harriman, Philip L. (Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.).
1965. Totowa, N.Y., Littlefield, Adams and Co. 222p. $1.95, paperbound.

Illustrated glossary intended as an inexpensive and convenient reference to terms and concepts with technical meanings in psychology and cognate fields. The author states that, although it was prepared primarily for the undergraduate or first-year student, it will serve the general reader of psychological literature as well. There are 4000 terms, combining forms, and abbreviations with short definitions.

SPECIAL LANGUAGE OF THE DEAF

- 6:15 A DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN SIGN LANGUAGE ON LINGUISTIC PRINCIPLES.
Stokoe, William C., Jr.; Casterline, Dorothy C., and Croneberg, Carl C.
1965. Washington, D.C., Gallaudet College Press. xxxiii, 346p. $6.95.

Dictionary with written description of American sign language (ASL). The graphic system used follows principles of structural linguistic analysis and is explained in a long introduction. Three aspects of signs are used and given convenient labels: the place where the sign is made (tab), the configuration of the active hand or hands (dez), and the action of the hand or hands (sig). These three aspects are the basis for a table of 55 symbols which with additional conventions provide an abbreviated notation. Line drawings and photographs supplement written descriptions. Signs in the dictionary are listed in the order of the symbols used to write them, with the proper order of symbols determined by their order in the table of symbols. The dictionary entry gives information for each sign such as symbols, variants, nature, how made, special usage, syntactic value, English glosses, examples, and cross-references. Appendices discuss the ALS syntax, name and number signs, linguistic community and dialects. There is a bibliography of 11 annotated references and an index of English words.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE/ENGLISH LANGUAGE

- 6:16 A DICTIONARY OF PROFESSIONAL TERMINOLOGY OF SPEECH PATHOLOGY AND AUDIOLOGY:
GERMAN-ENGLISH\ENGLISH-GERMAN.
Mueller, Peter B. (Auburn University, Auburn, Ala.).
1967. Springfield, Ill., Charles C Thomas. 53p. $5.00.

Two-section dictionary of modern professional terminology of speech pathology and audiology, intended for use in translating from German to English or vice versa. Most of the terms included were obtained through a search of current professional journals and periodicals. Terms are arranged in alphabetical order in the two sections. The German-English section includes 1663 terms and gives information on the gender of nouns. The English-German section lists 789 terms and gives abbreviated grammatical information on them.

GLOSSARY OF SOME TECHNICAL TERMS IN THE FIELD OF THE TEACHING AND THE EDUCATION OF THE DEAF, pp. 1113-1167 in Report of the Proceedings of the International Congress on Education of the Deaf and of the Forty-first Meeting of the Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf. Tervoort, Bernard Th. (Instituut voor Doven, St. Michielsgestel, The Netherlands). 1963. Washington, D.C., U.S. Senate, 88th Congress, 2d Session. Document No. 106. 1270p. 6:17

Multilingual table of 899 terms, listed alphabetically in English with equivalents in French, German, Spanish, Swedish, and Dutch. Terms are highly relevant to hearing-language-speech, providing a useful vocabulary in six languages. Separate alphabetical listings of the terms in each language other than English provide indexes to the multilingual list. Thus, for each term in any of the languages, it is possible to find the equivalent term in any other of the languages.

Available as a separate reprint from American Annals of the Deaf, Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C. 20002. $1.00.

Cognate

GERMAN-ENGLISH GLOSSARY OF NEUROPHYSIOLOGY. 6:18
Morrell, Roger Merritt, ed.
1958. New York, Consultants Bureau. $12.50.

List of approximately 9000 German terms with their English equivalents in the areas of neuroanatomy, biochemistry, physiology, neurology, electrical engineering, and electronics, as well as certain idioms and selected general vocabulary. This compilation began with the author's preparation for the language requirement for a degree in physiology.

Foreign-language/English-language dictionaries for medicine and science are available in all larger libraries. References to a few are listed here:

INTRODUCTION

HANDBOOKS

The reference publications included in this section on Handbooks are of three kinds: (1) the large, comprehensive, and authoritative "Handbuch"-type publication which reviews a broad subject according to a plan and is frequently referred to as an "advanced textbook and reference work"; (2) the small handbook which has characteristics as above but is a condensation of material; and (3) special compilations of professional subject matter such as methods manuals.

ARRANGEMENT is by major subject field. Under the heading for each field, descriptive items are arranged alphabetically by title. Items related to each field are appended to that field under the heading cognate.

HOW TO USE

1. To find handbooks within subject areas, use the contents listing of this section.
2. To find information on a handbook of known title, use the general Index to Titles.

SOURCES

This list of items was derived from standard library sources and from various Information Center activities.

AUDIOLOGY

APPLIED AUDIOLOGY FOR CHILDREN (ED. 2).

7:1

Dale, D.M.C. (London University Institute of Education, London, England).
1967. Springfield, Ill., Charles C Thomas. 159p. $7.75.

Handbook and text to help professional workers and parents make the most use of sound in the treatment of hearing-impaired children. Results of modern research on hearing, speech, and deafness by many workers and their relevance to the needs and problems of children in experiencing sound are summarized and explained. Numerous illustrations including a series of photographs of visible speech recordings are included in this volume as well as several appendixes containing word lists. Bibliography of 206 items and subject index.

AUDIOLOGY (ED. 2).

7:2

Newby, Hayes A. (Stanford University School of Medicine, Stanford, Calif.).
1964. New York, Appleton-Century-Crofts. 400p. $6.75.

Text and reference book written primarily for beginning or advanced students of audiology, but also as a reference for physicians, psychologists, speech pathologists, and others concerned with hearing and deafness. Chapters 1-4 and 10-13 survey the field, covering the lineage of audiology, the hearing mechanism and its disorders, development of tests, the handicap, training, rehabilitation, and the profession of audiology. Chapters 5-9 deal specifically with hearing measurements, covering pure-tone and speech audiometry, special problems in testing, public school programs, and industrial audiology. An appendix contains word lists for speech audiometry. There are name and subject indexes. Literature cited is footnoted throughout the text, and each chapter is followed by references for supplemental reading.

7:3 AUDIOMETRY: PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICES.

Glorig, Aram, ed. (Callier Hearing and Speech Center, Dallas, Tex.).
1965. Baltimore, Md., Williams and Wilkins Company. 271p. $9.75.

State-of-the-art summary of authoritative information on the various facets of audiometry, intended "to present the most advanced thinking in language acceptable to the neophyte as well as the master." The book is sponsored by the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, undertaken at the request of the Committee on Conservation of Hearing. It is intended for the use of otolaryngologists and audiologists in practice or in training; also industrial physicians and nurses, pediatricians, and general practitioners, special education teachers, psychologists, safety engineers, school audiometrists, and hearing aid dealers. Appendix 1 is a 12-page glossary of some common terms used in audiometry. Appendix 2 is called "The International Standard Reference Zero for Pure-tone Audiometers and Its Relation to the Evaluation of Impairment of Hearing."

7:4 AUDITORY DISORDERS IN CHILDREN; A MANUAL FOR DIFFERENTIAL DIAGNOSIS.

Myklebust, Helmer R. (Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.).
1954. New York, Grune and Stratton. 367p. $6.75.

Manual of clinical procedures and techniques useful to making a differential diagnosis of auditory disorders in infants and children too young for verbal procedures. This book is written primarily for the pediatrician, audiologist, psychologist, and otolaryngologist; for the practitioner and the student in training. The manual has 14 chapters in 5 parts: Introduction, containing a discussion of the problem of auditory disorders, the relation to language development, and the role of professional specialization; The History, covering differential history taking and interpretation; Behavioral Symptomatology, discussing the auditory disorders due to peripheral deafness, aphasia, psychic deafness, and mental deficiency; Examination Methods and Procedures, covering the use of tests, examination of auditory capacity, and psychological examination; Illustrative Cases and Recommendations, with case studies and recommendations for training. Summary descriptions at the end of each chapter may be used as a guide to clinical procedure without reference to the full discussion. There are author and subject indexes.

7:5 HEARING ENHANCEMENT.

Victoreen, John A. (Colorado Victoreen Laboratory, Colorado Springs).
1960. Springfield, Ill., Charles C Thomas. 183p. $7.50.

Handbook and elementary text on the measurement of residual hearing and its enhancement, written primarily for hearing-instrument dispensers, audiologists, and otologists. The author has tried to write in terms acceptable to all three groups and "to present the fundamental principles of acoustics and physics as they apply to hearing enhancement in the simplest possible terms, while carefully preserving scientific accuracy." The numerous explanatory figures and tables originated in the author's laboratory. There are test questions at the end of each chapter; no bibliography. Subject index.

ACOUSTIC BEHAVIOUR OF ANIMALS.

7:6

Busnel, Rene-Guy, ed. (Institut National de la Recherche Agronomique, Jouy-en-Josas, S.-et-O., France).

1963. New York, Elsevier. 933p. $45.00.

Compiled for the International Committee on Biological Acoustics.

Compilation of writings on animal sounds and communication, intended to support the exchange of information among workers in the field and at the same time afford the nonspecialist a review of current progress in selected areas of bioacoustics. There are 25 contributions, in English and by 24 members of the International Committee on Biological Acoustics (mostly of France and the U.S.A., also England, Germany U.S.S.R., and Finland) who have interests in comparative physiology, animal behavior, sensory and neurophysiology, ecology, taxonomy, and evolution. The introductory chapters of the book discuss definitions, principles, methods, and equipment relating to the reception and recording of animal sounds. Separate sections are given to general and specific aspects of animal acoustics; technical aspects of the emission and reception of sounds; and acoustic behavior. There are lists of references at the end of each chapter, several with over 200 items, and addenda of more recent material to 6 chapters. An alphabetical glossarial index amplifies the text's discussion of terminology. There are systematic and alphabetical indexes to scientific and common names. The book has 65 tables and 415 figures.

ACOUSTIC MEASUREMENTS.

7:7

Beranek, Leo L. (Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass.).

1949. New York, John Wiley and Sons. 914p. $13.95.

Prepared under the auspices of the Office of Naval Research, Navy Department, Washington, D.C.

Reference book intended primarily for graduate students and workers in the field of acoustics. Book is aimed at 5 main groups of research workers: the acoustic physicist, the communications engineer, the psychologist, the otologist, and the industrialist applying acoustic measuring techniques in manufacturing processes. There are 20 chapters. Of particular interest to hearing-language-speech are: Microphones and Ears (Chap. 5); The Audiometer (Chap. 8); and Articulation Test Methods (Chap. 17). Author and subject indexes.

7:8 HANDBOOK OF MATHEMATICAL PSYCHOLOGY.

Luce, R. Duncan (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia); Bush, Robert R. (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia), and Galanter, Eugene (University of Washington, Seattle), eds. 1963-1965. New York, John Wiley and Sons. 3 vols.*

Broad survey of mathematical applications in psychology, intended both as a guided tour of the research literature for the expert and as an introduction for those knowing little of the field. The first volume treats measurement and psychophysics and also has two largely methodological chapters. The second volume treats the main body of mathematical learning theory; also, language and social interaction. The third volume has chapters on sensory mechanisms, learning, preference, stochastic processes, and functional equations. Some topics of mathematical psychology not included are information theory, psychometric scaling, factor analysis, and test theory. The reader is presumed to have mathematical skills and access to certain basic reference books that are listed. Chapters with particular relation for hearing-language-speech include: 5, "Psychophysical Scaling" by R. Duncan Luce and Eugene Galanter; 11, "Introduction to the Formal Analysis of Natural Languages" by Noam Chomsky; 13, "Finitary Models of Language Users" by George A. Miller and Noam Chomsky; and 15, "Analysis of Some Auditory Characteristics" by Jozef Zwislocki. Author and subject indexes with each volume.

*Vol. 1 (Chaps. 1-8), 1963, 491p., $10.50. Vol. 2 (Chaps. 9-14), 1963, 606p., $11.95. Vol. 3 (Chaps. 15-21), 1965, 537p., $11.95.

7:9 HANDBOOK OF NOISE MEASUREMENT (ED. 6).

General Radio Company, West Concord, Mass. Peterson, Arnold P.G., and Gross, Ervin E. 1967. 282p. $1.00, paperbound.

Reference source for information on measurement of noise and vibration. Although the measuring equipment described is limited to one manufacturer, the book is usable as a reference with other types of equipment as well. The purpose of the booklet is to help those who are faced, perhaps for the first time, with the necessity of making sound and noise measurements. There are appropriate chapters on terminology and definitions of measures; the use and selection of measuring instruments; and the solving of typical problems. Appendixes and index.

[Edition 5 (1963) has been examined.--Ed.]

OTOLARYNGOLOGY

7:12 DISEASES OF THE EAR (ED. 2).

Mawson, Stuart R. (King's College Hospital, London, England).
1967. London, Edward Arnold. 554p. $19.00.

Textbook on diseases of the ear written primarily with the postgraduate student in mind. Also intended as a useful reference for general practitioners, house surgeons, consultants, and all who treat patients with aural conditions. A section of the book discusses anatomy, physiology, and other introductory subjects. Classical division of subjects into diseases of the external, middle and internal ear is followed. There is a section on operative surgery at the end of the book. All of the illustrations in the book are original. Subject index.

7:13 DISEASES OF THE EAR, NOSE AND THROAT (ED. 2).

Scott-Brown, W.G.; Ballantyne, John, and Groves, John, eds. (Royal Free Hospital, London, England).
1965. London, Butterworth and Company. Vol. 1, 792p.; Vol. 2, 838p. $70.00.

Comprehensive textbook and reference work, intended for the advanced student of otorhinolaryngology as well as the general practitioner. Volume 1 treats the nose and paranasal sinuses (Part 1, with 15 chapters) and the larynx and tracheobronchial tree (Part 2, with 16 chapters). Volume 2 treats the pharynx and esophagus (Part 1, with 10 chapters) and the ear (Part 2, with 19 chapters). There are 34 British contributors to this work. Each part is prefaced with chapters on basic anatomy and physiology, followed by a minimized discussion of methods of examination and an elaboration of diseases and their treatment. Chapters on voice and speech were introduced to this revised edition. References follow each chapter, and each volume and a general subject index and a symptom index. There are 27 color plates as well as numerous halftone and line illustrations.

OTOLARYNGOLOGY (1968 EDITION).

Schenck, Harry P., ed.-in-chief (University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia).
1968. Hagerstown, Md., Hoeber Medical Division, Harper and Row. 5 Vols.

Set of loose-leaf volumes of uninterrupted text and illustrations, intended to serve as an up-to-date clinical reference to the aspects of medicine and surgery pertaining to ear, nose, and throat problems. Revision is made annually; in 1967, about 400 new pages were sent to subscribers for the replacement of outmoded material and incorporation into about 4 or 5 thousand pages of existing text. Volume 1 has 12 chapters on anatomy, physiology, embryology, and pathology of the ear; functional hearing tests; deafness; and surgery. Volume 2 has 32 chapters dealing with deafness, hearing aids, rehabilitation, tumors of the ear, and surgery. Volume 3 has 29 chapters on anatomy, physiology, and pathology of the nose and sinuses; allergies; tumors of the nose and surgery. Volume 4 has 33 chapters on anatomy and pathology of the nasopharynx, pharynx, oral cavity, and larynx. Volume 5 has 36 chapters dealing with diseases of larynx, esophagus, and respiratory tract; surgical and radiation treatments of carcinoma of the larynx and the neck; and otorhinolaryngologic aspects of subject such as the pharmacology, therapeutics, anesthesia, and prostheses. There is a separately bound subject index to the 5 volumes. In addition to the revision service, the Prior Company offers with the volumes a monthly abstract service called the International Surgical Digest and the reference facilities of its Consulting Bureau.

W.F. Prior Company, Inc., Hagerstown, Md. 21740 (Local agent: Mr. Edw. T. Britton, 429 Woodbine Ave., Baltimore, Md. 21204, Telephone 823-7901). $130.00 for the 5-vol. set and index; $12.00 annually for the Revision Service, $30.00 annually for 3-fold services (Revision, Digest, and Consulting Bureau).

SURGERY OF THE EAR (ED. 2).

7:15

Shambaugh, George E., Jr. (Northwestern University Medical School, Chicago, Ill.)
1967. Philadelphia, W.B. Saunders Company. 722p. $30.00.

Handbook of surgical operations on the ear. This edition was extensively rewritten to take account of the large gains in otologic surgery in the 7-year interlude. The volume has 24 chapters arranged in the following 4 parts: Introduction to surgery of the ear; Surgery of infections of the ear; Surgery of deafness; Surgery of the facial nerve, endolymphatic hydrops, and tumors of the ear. There are 404 figures, some in color. The anatomical drawings and preparations of Dr. Barry Anson and Dr. Theodore Bast have been freely utilized on developmental and adult anatomy of the ear. Chapters on the conventional and tomographic examination of the temporal bone are written and illustrated by Dr. W.E. Compere, Jr., and Dr. Galdino E. Valvassori. Anatomical transparencies on the ear are provided as an insert in the back cover. There are indexes of names and of subjects.

- 7:16 SYNOPSIS OF EAR, NOSE, AND THROAT DISEASES (ED. 2).
Ryan, Robert E. (St. Louis University School of Medicine, St. Louis, Mo.); Thornell, William C. (University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio), and von Leden, Hans (University of California School of Medicine, Los Angeles).
1963. St. Louis, Mo., C.V. Mosby Company. 425p. $7.50.

Small handbook written for the general physician, intern, medical student, nurse, and speech or voice pathologist. The material is arranged in 4 parts: The Ear; The Nose and Paranasal Sinuses; The Pharynx; The Larynx. Each part contains a concise review of clinical anatomy and physiology; simple techniques and tests for routine examination; etiology, pathology, symptomatology, prognosis, and therapy for common diseases; and surgical procedures of interest to the intended users. There are 67 illustrative figures and a subject index.

- 7:17 SYNOPSIS OF OTOLARYNGOLOGY (ED. 2).
Simpson, John F., and Robin, Ian G. (St. Mary's Hospital, London, England); Ballantyne, John C., and Groves, John (Royal Free Hospital, London, England), eds.
1967. Bristol, England, John Wright and Sons (Distributor in U.S.A.: Baltimore, Md., Williams and Wilkins Company). 536p. $10.00.

Small handbook of information in otorhinolaryngology, in outline form intended for quick reference and especially for persons studying for postgraduate examinations in the specialty. Material is drawn from current standard textbooks and journals. Seven main parts give information on surgical anatomy, applied physiology, and diseases--for the ear; the nose and paranasal sinuses; the mouth and pharynx; the esophagus; the larynx; the trachea and tracheobronchial tree; and neurology of the ear, nose, and throat. Principles of operative procedures are stated but details of technique are not given. There are 94 line drawings and a subject index.

- 7:18 HANDBOOK OF CONGENITAL MALFORMATIONS.
Rubin, Alan (University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, Philadelphia).
1967. Philadelphia, W.B. Saunders Company. 398p. $14.00.

Handbook listing in a standard format over 700 entities describable as congenital malformations as they occur in the various systems of the body.

Inborn errors of metabolism are not included except where associated with gross malformations. Description includes synonyms, prevalence, associated anomalies, hereditary factors, treatment and outlook, and a reference to further information. Of special interest to hearing-language speech are Chapter 7, The Face and Oral Structures, by Carl J. Witkop, Jr. and others; Chapter 10, The Ear, and Chapter 11, Nose, Pharynx, and Larynx, by Louis E. Silcox. Chapter 14 lists and discusses etiologic agents, with separate treatment of infectious agents and of physical and chemical agents. There are 23 contributors (all U.S.A.) to the 14 chapters and glossary. Subject Index.

ORAL SURGERY; A STEP-BY-STEP ATLAS OF OPERATIVE TECHNIQUES (ED. 4).
Archer, W. Harry (University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.).
1966. Philadelphia, W.B. Saunders Company. 1157p. $23.50.

7:19

Comprehensive volume of surgery for the oral surgeon, dental practitioner, and dental student, aiming to give "specific and concrete details, whether of etiology, diagnosis, or treatment." Illustrative case histories are included. The author has been assisted by 12 chapter authors and 36 contributors. The 26 chapters of the book include "Cleft Lip" and "Cleft Palate" by R.H. Musgrave and "Oral Prosthesis in Rehabilitation of Cleft Palate Patients" by William R. Harkins. A new chapter on "Dentofacial Orthopedics" has been added to this edition, and several chapters have been completely rewritten and reillustrated. There are 1530 figures and a subject and author index.

RECONSTRUCTIVE PLASTIC SURGERY.

7:20

Converse, John Marquis, ed.
1964. Philadelphia, W.B. Saunders Company. 5 Vols. 2,253p. $125.00.

Handbook of principles and procedures of correction, reconstruction, and transplantation in plastic surgery. There are 76 contributors to the 79 chapters of this continuously pagged set of volumes with the following subtitles: 1. General principles (16 chs.); 2-3. Head and neck (29 chs.); 4. The hand and upper extremity (16 chs.); 5. The trunk (18 chs.). Volume 3 has 12 chapters on cleft lip and palate. The work is abundantly illustrated, and references follow each chapter. There is an index of subjects which is repeated in each volume.

SPEECH PATHOLOGY

7:21 COMMUNICATION TRAINING IN CHILDHOOD BRAIN DAMAGE.

Mecham, Merlin J. (University of Utah, Salt Lake City); Berko, Martin J. (Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.); Berko, Frances Giden (Special Children's Center, Inc., Ithaca, N.Y.), and Palmer, Martin F. (Wichita State University, Wichita, Kans.).
1966. Springfield, Ill., Charles C Thomas. 392p. $11.75.

Text and reference book for use in therapy and education of cerebral-palsied and other brain-damaged children. Dr. Mecham is author of the following chapters except where indicated; Dr. Palmer served as consultant and general contributor:

1. Introduction - Nature and Scope of the Problem.
2. Disorders of Speech and Hearing.
3. Appraisal of Speech and Hearing Problems.
4. Role of the Speech Therapist In Speech, Hearing and Language Habilitation.
5. Indirect Facilitative Approaches to Speech, Hearing and Language Training.
6. Shaping Adequate Speech, Hearing and Language Behavior.
7. Psychological and Linguistic Implications of Brain Damage In Children (Martin J. Berko, pp. 144-260).
8. Special Education for the Cerebral Palsied: A Group Language Learning Experience (Frances G. Berko, pp. 261-376).

References follow each chapter. Appendix A is a nucleus vocabulary for speech therapy. Author and subject indexes.

7:22 DIAGNOSTIC METHODS IN SPEECH PATHOLOGY.

Johnson, Wendell (University of Iowa, Iowa City); Darley, Frederic L. (Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.), and Spriestersbach, D.C. (University of Iowa, Iowa City).
1963. New York, Harper and Row. 347p. $8.00.

Handbook for speech clinicians and for students concerned with the diagnostic aspects of speech pathology. The book begins with the philosophy of diagnosis and appraisal and continues with a discussion of principles and techniques of case study interviewing. Subsequent chapters include functional descriptions of basic speech, voice, and language examination procedures, as well as test materials and clinical forms. There are case history outlines for cerebral palsy, cleft palate, dysphasia, laryngectomy, and stuttering patients. Reviews of research are included in the substantial background information. Although the authors collaborated on this work, specific chapters are written by each author. Subject index.

HANDBOOK OF SPEECH PATHOLOGY.

Travis, Edward Lee, ed. (University of Southern California, Los Angeles).
1957. New York, Appleton-Century-Crofts. 1088p. $13.00.

Reference work and text on speech, hearing, and voice disorders. Twenty-seven authorities from the cross-disciplinary areas of speech pathology contributed the 33 chapters of this volume. It has 4 parts: Basic Considerations in Speech Pathology; Speech and Voice Disorders Associated with Organic Abnormalities; Speech and Voice Disorders Unrelated to Organic Abnormalities; and Psychotherapy and Speech Therapy. References follow each chapter, and there is a subject and author index.

SPEECH PATHOLOGY, AN INTERNATIONAL STUDY OF THE SCIENCE.

7:24

Rieber, R.W. (Pace College, New York City), and Brubaker, R.S. (Pennsylvania State University, University Park).

1966. Amsterdam, North-Holland Publishing Company (Distributors for U.S.A. and Canada: Philadelphia, J.B. Lippincott Company. 654p. $20.00.

Handbook of Interpretations of the past and present status of speech pathology in the U.S.A. and abroad. There are 29 international contributors to 31 chapters. These are organized in 5 parts: Part 1 contains historical reviews of the literature of speech pathology in Europe and in the U.S.A.; and discussions of normal development of speech and language, experimental phonetics, psychotherapy and speech disorders, and public school speech and hearing in the U.S.A. Parts 2-4, also devoted to speech pathology in the U.S.A., cover more specifically the clinical disorders of the peripheral, central, and psychological-interpersonal levels of the communicative process. Part 5 contains reports on the current status of speech pathology within their countries by professional speech pathologists in Austria, Great Britain, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Holland, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Japan and Formosa, Latin America (chiefly Mexico), Poland, the Scandinavian countries, South Africa, Spain, and the U.S.S.R. Extensive bibliographies accompany many chapters. There are author and subject indexes.

VOICE AND SPEECH DISORDERS: MEDICAL ASPECTS WITH SECTIONS ON OTOLGY, AUDIOLOGY, AND SURGERY OF HEAD AND NECK.

7:25

Levin, Nathaniel M., ed. (University of Miami School of Medicine, Coral Gables, Fla.).

1962. Springfield, Ill., Charles C Thomas. 966p. $27.50.

Advanced text and reference book emphasizing the medical aspects of defective hearing and communication. The text is "designed for physicians, speech pathologists and audiologists; and for those in the medical, surgical, dental and rehabilitation specialties and in special education who are concerned with defective voice, hearing and speech." Thirty-five specialists, mostly for the U.S.A., have contributed 27 chapters. The volume has 4 main parts: Basic Mechanisms of Voice and Speech; Otolgy and Audiology; Pathology and Therapy of Voice and Speech; Habilitation and Rehabilitation. Chapters are abundantly illustrated and documented. Subject Index.

- 7:26 VOICE-SPEECH-LANGUAGE. CLINICAL COMMUNICOLOGY: ITS PHYSIOLOGY AND PATHOLOGY. Luchsinger, Richard (Zurich University Medical School, Zurich, Switzerland) and Arnold, Godfrey E. (University of Mississippi Medical School, Jackson). 1965. Belmont, Calif., Wadsworth Publishing Company. 832p. $26.00. Translated from German by Godfrey E. Arnold and Evelyn Robe Finkbeiner.

First English edition of the Lehrbuch der Stimm- und Sprachheilkunde, translated from the second German edition of 1959, with many additions and rearrangements. As seen by Dr. Robert W. West in its foreword, the book is useful as a manual for researchers, as an advanced textbook, and as a reference book for professionals in the fields of speech pathology and audiology, voice training, special education, reading disability, pediatrics, otorhinolaryngology, prosthodontia, orthodontia, plastic surgery, neurology, psychiatry, clinical psychology, and physical medicine and rehabilitation. Also contributing to the foreword, Dr. Harry P. Schenck points to the breadth of detail and wide scope of this volume and to its coalition of American and European thought, research, and practice. There are two main sections: Physiology and Pathology of Respiration and Phonation, by Dr. Luchsinger, and Physiology and Pathology of Speech and Language, by Dr. Arnold. Each section has many short chapters, grouped into a General Part that considers subjects more broadly and a Special Part that considers specific disorders. Also included are a list of speech sounds; a list of the most important journals dealing with voice, hearing, and language; and names and subject indexes. References following each chapter are restricted to selected works of authors directly cited, thus reducing the encyclopedic chronology and documentation of the German edition. There are 126 halftones and 122 line drawings.

Handbook of materials and techniques for therapists, teachers, family members, and others faced with retraining an aphasic. Although this book is prepared primarily for use with the aphasic patient, it contains techniques that also can be applied to patients who are hard of hearing, mentally retarded, laryngectomized, cerebral palsied, or delayed in speech. The book is divided into 2 main sections -- Part 1: Aphasia in Adults and Part 2: Aphasia in Children. There are 34 chapters, including some that have general explanation of aphasia. In addition to chapter references, a general bibliography lists books, journals, and some films on aphasia; a second bibliography regards aphasia in children. There is a glossary of 25 terms and a detailed subject index.

HANDBOOK OF ABNORMAL PSYCHOLOGY, AN EXPERIMENTAL APPROACH.
Eysenck, H.J. (University of London, England), ed.
1961. New York, Basic Books. 816p. $18.00.

7:28

Handbook treating abnormal behavior from the point of view of experimental psychology rather than within the traditional psychiatric framework of medical diseases. Abnormality is conceived as the defective functioning of certain psychological systems rather than as classes of mental diseases produced by definite 'causes.' The editor observes that less than one fifth of the published papers and books examined were found suited to this purpose. Part 1 deals with the description and measurement of abnormal behavior in terms of sensorimotor functions, perceptual functions, thought processes and the like. Part 2 deals with the causes and determinants of abnormal behavior, such as genetic factors, constitutional factors, conditioning and learning, childhood and other environmental factors. Part 3 deals with the experimental study and modification of abnormal behavior, such as the effects of drugs, psychotherapy, electroshock, surgical treatment, and brain damage. There is no extended treatment of communicative disorders in relation to abnormal psychology, but frequent references to functions of hearing-language-speech are made within various chapters. The 20 chapters were prepared by 19 contributors, each with its own 5- to 10-page bibliography. Author and subject indexes to the volume.

HANDBOOK OF CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY.
Wolman, Benjamin B., ed. (Adelphi University, Garden City, Long Island, N.Y.).
1965. New York, McGraw-Hill Book Company. 1596p. $32.50; text ed. $24.50.

7:29

Comprehensive handbook of scientific research and practical experience in clinical psychology, representing its various areas of specialization and diversified points of view. The book is intended as a reference work for psychologists and related professionals and as an advanced textbook. The 58 chapters are contributed by 61 authorities, mostly of the U.S.A., and are organized in 6 parts: Research Methods, Theoretical Foundations, Diagnostic Methods, Clinical Patterns, Methods of Treatment, and Clinical Psychology as a Profession. A chapter on "Speech Disorders" has been contributed by Dr. Jon Eisenson. Each chapter is followed by references. There are name and subject indexes.

HANDBOOK OF EXPERIMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY.
Stevens, S.S., ed. (Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.).
1951. New York, John Wiley and Sons. 1436p. $19.75.

7:30

Handbook written in the period just after World War II and summarizing the midcentury state of experimental psychology. The work commences with S.S. Stevens' chapter "Mathematics, Measurement, and Psychophysics" and has 35 other chapters, by 33 contributing specialists, organized in main sections of Physiological Mechanisms, Growth and Development, Motivation, Learning and Adjustment, Sensory Processes, and Human Performance. Six chapters specifically concern hearing, language, speech, or vestibular function. Name and subject indexes.

- 7:31 HANDBOOK OF RESEARCH METHODS IN CHILD DEVELOPMENT.
Mussen, Paul H. (University of California, Berkeley), ed.
1960. New York, John Wiley and Sons. 1061p. $15.00.

Handbook with descriptions and evaluations of research techniques that are especially adapted for use with children. Research work and findings are used only to illustrate research methods. The first part of the book is concerned with general research design and the use of observation and experimental methods in child study. This is followed by 3 chapters on the study of biological growth and development (including receptor functions). The next 6 chapters are concerned with the cognitive processes (perception, learning, and language). Part 4 deals with the major research tools and methods in areas of personality development, and the final section covers the study of the child's social behavior and environment. The 22 chapters are written by 30 authoritative contributors in the field of child development. Of particular relevance to hearing-language-speech are "Language and Communication" by Orvis C. Irwin (Chap. 12) and "Psycholinguistic Research Methods" by Jean Berko and Roger Brown (Chap. 13). Author and subject indexes.

- 7:32 PSYCHOLOGY: A STUDY OF THE SCIENCE.
Koch, Sigmund, ed. (Duke University, Durham, N.C.).
1962. New York, McGraw-Hill Book Company. 7 Vols.*

Encyclopedic examination of the "status and tendency of psychological science," published as a two-part study in a number of volumes:

Study I, Conceptual and Systematic:

1. Sensory, Perceptual, and Physiological Formulations.
2. General Systematic Formulations, Learning, and Special Processes.
3. Formulations of the Person and Social Context.

Study II, Empirical Substructure and Relations with Other Sciences:

4. Biologically Oriented Fields: Their Place in Psychology and in Biological Science.
5. The Process Areas, the Person, and Some Applied Fields: Their Place in Psychology and in Science.
6. Investigations of Man as Socius: Their Place in Psychology and the Social Sciences.

The last volume presents the study director's view of certain problems of psychological inquiry in the light of the findings of the project:

7. Psychology and the Human Agent.

Of special note for hearing-language-speech is Volume 4 with material on aphasia, audiogenic seizures, audiometry, audition, auditory response areas, deafness, and speech. There are approximately 75 contributors. Each volume has name and subject indexes.

GUIDES, DIRECTORIES

The section on Guides, Directories has publications that assemble information on persons, organizations, or activities in the field.

ARRANGEMENT is with separate subsections for lists of members or individuals and for lists of organizations. Other subsections list guides to opportunities for professional education and training and to obtaining funds. Within each subsection, descriptive items are arranged alphabetically by title. Items cognate or supplemental are appended to each subsection.

HOW TO USE

1. To look for a particular kind of guide or directory, use the contents listing and scan the appropriate subsection.
2. To look for a guide or directory of known title, use the general Index to Titles.

SOURCES

This list of items was derived from standard library sources and from various Information Center activities.

All items except those marked ● had the benefit of review by their respective editors.

- 8:47 THE FOUNDATION DIRECTORY (ED. 3).
Prepared by The Foundation Library Center under the editorship of Marianna O. Lewis.
1967. New York, Russell Sage Foundation. 1198p.

Directory to foundations in U.S.A., published about every 3 years. Edition 3 includes 6,803 corporations and trusts fitting the Foundation Library Center's definition of a foundation and possessing assets of $200,000 or distributing annually $10,000 or more in grants or for program. Entries are arranged alphabetically by state and name of foundation, and contain information concerning the legal name of the foundation; present address; data on establishment; names of donor, officers, and trustees; a statement outlining the general purpose and activities; fields of interest and any specific limitations; financial data for the most recent year available, including amount of assets, total expenditures, and grants. The subject index to fields of interest contains 760 references to 395 foundations - the larger general purpose foundations and those with precise fields of activity. An index of persons lists alphabetically all officers and members of governing boards. There is a complete index to the entries by name of foundation.

GRANT DATA QUARTERLY.
Academic Media, Inc., 10835 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90025.
1967- $35.00/Yr.

8:49

Reference journal giving up-to-date information on all forms of grant programs, including those of government, business, and labor foundations; technical and professional societies; private voluntary associations; and other profit and nonprofit bodies. Volumes 1 and 2 follow a plan in which issue 1 presents an integrated overview of the support programs of government, business and professional organizations, and foundations, following which issues 2-4 treat these 3 sectors comprehensively one at a time. Each grant program is described under headings, where appropriate, for information on type, purpose, legal basis, eligibility, financial data, duration, application, deadline, address for inquiry, and special stipulations. Items are arranged in major sections of Humanities, Social Sciences, and Sciences, with areal or disciplinary subsections. Each issue has a subject index, with cross references, and an organizational index. This publication represents continuous, on-going inquiry into areas of grant support. An estimated 87 percent of the items in the beginning issue of Volume 2 represented new or substantially revised grant support programs. Information of special interest to hearing-language-speech is under headings such as Language and Literature, Communications, Handicapped, Health and Medical Sciences.
