INTRODUCTION

Drug Dependence and Abuse: A Selected Bibliography is a selected listing of references designed to provide an introduction to the scientific, as well as the more substantive popular drug abuse literature. The bibliography is intended for a broad audience encompassing advanced high school and college students writing research papers; teachers developing curricular materials; lawyers, gatekeepers, clergy and supportive professionals needing an overview of the problem and community leaders establishing libraries and drug abuse information centers.

Material for the bibliography was selected from the large volume of drug abuse literature according to some of the criteria listed below:

1. 1969 or 1970 books by recognizable and authoritative writers;
2. current research articles which reflect responsible factual conclusions and add to existing knowledge;
3. items which were cited in two or more significant bibliographies;
4. classical books, articles or studies, such as the Report of the Indian Hemp Commission;
5. factual literature in popular periodicals, such as the New York Times Magazine, which are meaningful additions to the literature.

To supplement these general guidelines for selection, professionals in the drug abuse field were asked for their comments on the bibliographic entries, suggestions for additions or deletions and their overall impression of the effectiveness of the publication. These recommendations were incorporated into the final draft along with newly published research material.

Some of the books and references consulted in the compilation of this bibliography are listed below.

1. Drugs on the College Campus by Helen G. Nowlis
2. The Drug Dilemma by Sidney Cohen
3. Resource Book for Drug Abuse Education, National Institute of Mental Health
4. A Bibliography of Drug Dependence by Helen F. Sells
5. A Comprehensive Guide to the English-Language Literature on Cannabis (Marihuana) by James R. Gamage and Edmund L. Zerkin
6. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Library Acquisitions List

7. The Drug Dilemma. An annotated list of current paperbacks on drug use and abuse by R. R. Bowker Company
8. The Pharmacological Basis of Therapeutics by Louis S. Goodman and Alfred Gilman

Other sources of information include the reference tools listed in the Information Resources section and the many scientific articles with extensive footnotes that provide invaluable material for library research.

The Clearinghouse developed the twenty-one major subject areas of the bibliography through working with the literature and through consultation with experts in the field. These section headings are useful as broad classifications of the drug abuse material. Entries in each section are independent of each other. A citation appropriately falling in two categories is repeated in the second category, rather than resorting to an elaborate cross-reference system which is time-consuming for the reader.

The primary objective of this bibliography is to present an overview of the type of literature and research published in the drug abuse area. The Clearinghouse has attempted to categorize the material and to include a representative sampling of significant works in each category. Significant material often reflects opposing viewpoints and incompatible research results. This provides the reader with enough information resources to study the problem and to develop his own conclusions.

The Clearinghouse is planning to publish an annotated, updated edition of the bibliography in the near future. The information in each abstract will allow the reader to more easily identify the relevant material of his interest.

Entry in this listing does not represent endorsement of the cited works or their content.
