THE PUBLIC TELEVISION LIBRARY

General Information

The Public Television Library (PTL) is a department of the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS). Established in 1965 as an activity of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, the Library was known as the Educational Television Stations Program Service (ETS/PS). In 1971, PBS assumed responsibility for the Library and the name was changed to the Public Television Library. The Library is operated by the Indiana University Foundation for PBS, and utilizes the services provided by the radio-TV and audio-visual facilities of Indiana University.

The Public Television Library, now an integral part of services provided by PBS, is operated for and in behalf of the public television stations in the United States, directly responsible and responsive to the stations' changing programming needs and conditions. The Library's policies and procedures are established by the Board of Directors of PBS. The Library serves as the national center for the delayed distribution of PTV programs to a variety of users.

The objectives of the Public Television Library are to provide:

1. A national centralized storage and retrieval system for PTV programming distinct from the real time program offerings of the PBS interconnected network.
2. A national agency offering maximum opportunity for varied sources to contribute nationally useful PTV programming and, conversely, the opportunity for PTV stations and educational agencies to obtain quality PTV programming which is useful at the local level.

The television programs in the library are selected to fill the programming gap between instructional (school and college) courses and PBS interconnected offerings. The Library is not a producing organization and has no enhancement grant or contract money available to support local station production.

The Public Television Library serves as the national centralized source for the delayed distribution of all PTV program materials of more-than-local interest. With the primary distribution of many PTV programs via the PBS interconnected network, PTL concentrates on a "tape by mail" distribution of PTV programming to afford repeated and independent scheduling and use of PTV programming to meet various user-specified needs.

The Library acquires programs of more-than-local interest from individual PTV stations, and other producers. All PTV stations are encouraged to submit programs for distribution consideration by the Library. Programs submitted by other producers or agencies are also considered for PTL distribution.

Programs submitted for possible distribution to PTL are evaluated by the Program Selection Committee of PTL which meets periodically to screen and evaluate all submissions. The decision to acquire and distribute any given program or series originally submitted to the PTL rests with the Committee. The Committee consists of representative PTV station program executives appointed by the station managers of the PBS Board. The Executive Director of PTL also serves on the Committee.

Program selections for inclusion in the Library at given times are governed by the Program Selection Committee's knowledge of various program sources and station needs. Priorities and needs for particular kinds of programs are established by the Committee and regularly reviewed by them.

PTV stations support the Public Television Library by contributing programs, so no direct payment is made for programs acquired by PTL under normal circumstances. PTV stations or educational agencies pay a modest fee of $12.50 per half hour program for programs rented from the Public Television Library.

Programs distributed by the PTL are available to all PTV station members of the Public Broadcasting Service. Where rights allow, programs are also available to non-commercial, educational or governmental agencies, institutions, or school systems, or to those organizations, agencies, or institutions who are registered as not-for-profit organizations under the federal tax laws of the United States, for their transmission or broadcast on a non-commercial basis. Where rights allow, programs are also available to non-commercial and governmental foreign broadcast organizations or agencies for broadcast on a non-sponsored sustaining basis.

The Public Television Library also has an agreement with the Indiana University Audio Visual Center (AVC), providing for audio-visual distribution of selected Library programs in a film format to educational, governmental, and private organizations and institutions.

Over 1,600 television programs are included in the Public Television Library. Approximately 5% of the yearly program offerings on the nation's 220 public television stations are obtained from PTL. The Library distributes approximately 20,000 programs per year to the nation's public television stations.

THE PUBLIC TELEVISION LIBRARY

INTRODUCTION

- Known as the Educational Television Stations Program Service (ETS/PS) when originally established in 1965 as an activity of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters (NAEB)
- Became THE PUBLIC TELEVISION LIBRARY (PTL) in July 1971 when, upon recommendation of the NAEB, the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) assumed responsibility
- Administered by the Indiana University Foundation for PBS as a cooperative activity of the public television stations in the United States

The Public Television Library was established as the national exchange library to select, acquire and distribute programs produced by individual public television stations. As a national, centralized storage and retrieval system for public television programming, PTL seeks the enlargement of public access to PTV programs.

The programs listed in this catalog—more than 1,800 television program units—were chosen by the PTL Program Selection Committee, composed of representative PTV station program executives, for distribution by PTL.

DEFINITION OF TERMS

The programs/series in this catalog have been categorized according to subject matter. Some programs/series may be listed in two or more categories.

Each of the programs/series listings in this catalog include number of programs, length of the program or programs, and producing station.

Additional information is given regarding:

FORMAT . . . with few exceptions, PTL programs are distributed at this point in time only on quadruplex videotape: monochrome (black and white) programs at 7½ ips (inches per second) lo-band; color programs at 15 ips hi-band.

This is designated under "Format" as VT 7½ Mono
VT 15 Color

BROADCAST RIGHTS. . . All programs are available to all public television station members of the Public Broadcasting Service.

Where rights allow, programs are also available to non-commercial or governmental agencies, institutions or school systems, or to those organizations, agencies, or institutions who are registered as not-for-profit organizations under the federal tax laws of the U.S., for their transmission or broadcast on a non-commercial basis.

This is designated under "Broadcast rights" as U.S.

Also where rights allow, programs are available to non-commercial and governmental foreign broadcast organizations or agencies for broadcast on a non-sponsored sustaining basis.

This is designated under "Broadcast rights" as FOREIGN, or in some cases as CANADA only.

NON-BROADCAST RIGHTS. . . Programs are designated for non-broadcast rights as:

- None . . . if there are no non-broadcast rights to the program
- CCTV . . . if closed circuit utilization is permitted
- A-V . . . if rights exist for audio-visual utilization. In such a case, the program is available in a film format to educational, governmental, and private organizations and institutions.

A-V distribution is currently handled for PTL by film distribution agencies. Please contact PTL for full information.

RIGHTS EXPIRATION. . . The date at which PTL's rights agreement with the producing station expires. PTL may negotiate a renewal of rights, or remove the program from distribution.

Special arrangements may be possible for additional utilization of specific programs.
