ABSTRACT

The document describes the field of paralegalism in terms of what tasks paralegals, or legal assistants, have performed. The contents are based on surveys (seven specifically identified), journals, internal memoranda, and personal contact through the staff of the National Paralegal Institute. Specific tasks performed by paralegals are listed in separate sections of the document dealing with the following areas of legal practice: Law Office Administration, Change of Name Law, Law of Children, Community Work, Consumer Law, Corporate Law, Criminal Law, Divorce Law, Draft Law, Education Law, Employment Law, Health Law, Immigration and Naturalization Law, Investigation, Landlord-Tenant Law, Litigation, Military Law, Motor Vehicle Law, Petroleum Land Law, Post-Conviction Remedies and Corrections Law, Real Estate Law, Tax Law, Tribal Courts, Trust and Estates Law, Unemployment Insurance Law, Welfare Law, and Workmen's Compensation Law. Each task is assigned a rating on a scale of three for the characteristics of: frequency (how commonly the task is being performed by paralegals in the country today), skill (how much skill is needed to perform the task), and supervision (how much lawyer supervision has been needed to assist the paralegal to perform the task). Appended is information on the parajudge and a 16-item selected bibliography. (Author/MS)

Introduction:
How To Use This Text

A great deal has been written about the paralegal.<sup>1</sup> There appears to be little or no let-up in the volume of literature that is being produced. The issues raised by these documents are extensive and far reaching. What is the future of the paralegal? Will the bar carve out a role for him? Is he engaged in the unauthorized or the authorized practice of law? How do you train the paralegal?

To be sure, such issues need to be dealt with. The problem, however, is that we run the risk of talking about these issues in a vacuum. It would be an understatement to say that paralegals are already making a significant impact on the way in which the public and private bar practice law. No one has yet attempted to chronicle the present activities of paralegals in the country today. Hence, many of us talk and think about paralegals as if they don't exist. We are well past the initial pilot-research stage of paralegalism. This is not to say that further study and research is not needed. It is rather to argue that such undertakings in the future should be grounded on what has already happened. "We ought not re-invent the wheel," as one prominent mid-western attorney recently put it.

This text is designed to describe where we are today in terms of what paralegals have done to date. Hopefully it will be of use not only to program developers who are getting into the field for the first time, but also to individuals already working with paralegals who might explore expanded roles for their paralegals if they had a better grasp of how others are using paralegals.

This text uses the term "paralegal," although it is clear that this is not a universally accepted term. Other terms include: legal assistant, legal paraprofessional, lay advocate, paralegal, legal adjuncts, etc. "Paralegal" is a short-hand way to describe all the terms currently in use; its use in this text should in no way be interpreted as an endorsement of it as the definitive term.

What is a paralegal? It is submitted that the energy required to try to pinpoint and sell a definition is wasted. Rather, the approach taken is to let the content of the text constitute the definition.

Sources of information on the content of the following pages include: surveys, journals, internal memoranda and personal contact through the staff of the National Paralegal Institute. The surveys relied upon include:

1. Citizens' Advisory Committee on Meramec Community College & Methods of Practice Committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis, Results of Survey of Questionnaire on Legal Technicians (1968).
2. Johnstone & Hopson, "Lawyers and Their Work: An Analysis of the Legal Profession in the United States and England (1967)".
3. Los Angeles County Bar Association, Survey on Training and Employment of Legal Paraprofessionals (1971).
4. Ryan, "Large Law Firms," American Bar Association Special Committee on Legal Assistants, The Utilization of Legal Assistants by Law Firms in the United States: Liberating the Lawyer, pp. 53-68 (June, 1971).
5. Strong, "Small Law Firms," American Bar Association Special Committee on Legal Assistants, The Utilization of Legal Assistants by Law Firms in the United States: Liberating the Lawyer, pp. 1-49 (June, 1971).
6. Yegge and Jarmel, "Report on a Survey of Paralegal Training in the United States," American Bar Association, Special Committee on Legal Assistants, New Careers in Law II, pp. 93-144 (June 1971)
7. Zeitz, Survey of Legal Service Offices, National Paralegal Institute (1972)

Some of these surveys do not go to the question of what paralegals are doing. As indicated by the titles, they cover topics such as who is doing training and who is likely to be employing paralegals. Such surveys have, however, provided leads to information on what paralegals are actually doing. There has never been a comprehensive survey covering this matter. Hence reliance had to be placed on other sources such as journals, memos and particularly personal contact.

The listings on the following pages cover paralegals working in private law areas as well as poverty law. The listings reflect the data that has come to the attention of the author; no representation is made that they cover every area of paralegal activity. The common denominator of all of the paralegals described is that they work for or closely in association with lawyers.

Frequency, Skill, Supervision

At the far left hand corner of each of the following pages are three columns which will provide the reader with some information on each task listed. The three columns will be:

FIRST COLUMN: "Fr." (Frequency)

On a scale of three, this column will provide a rough estimation of how commonly the task is being performed by paralegals in the country today. The scale will be "1" "2" or "3" (or a fraction thereof):

- "1": infrequently performed
- "2": being performed a fair number of times
- "3": being performed frequently

SECOND COLUMN: "Sk." (Skill)

On a scale of three, this column will provide a rough estimation of how much skill (e.g., organizational ability, reading comprehension, perserverence, etc.) the paralegal needs to perform this task. The scale will be "1" "2" or "3" (or a fraction thereof):

- "1": does not require much skill to perform
- "2": requires a moderate amount of skill to perform
- "3": requires considerable skill to perform

THIRD COLUMN: "Su." (Supervision)

On a scale of three, this column will provide a rough estimation of how much lawyer supervision has been needed to assist the paralegal to perform the task listed. The scale will be "1" "2" or "3" (or a fraction thereof):

- "1" requires very little supervision of paralegal to perform the task
- "2" requires a moderate amount of supervision of paralegal to perform the task
- "3" requires a considerable amount of supervision of the paralegal to perform the task

EXAMPLE:

ITEM

A. Making a preliminary draft of a will.....	Fr. 1	Sk. 3	Su. 3
B. Serving papers in court on a divorce case.	3	1	1

INTERPRETATION:

Paralegal seldom draft wills (1); they often serve papers (3). It takes considerable skill to draft a will (3); it takes very little skill to serve papers (1). A great deal of supervision is needed to assist a paralegal to make a preliminary draft of a will (3); it takes very little supervision on serving papers (1).

No effort is made in the following pages to evaluate the effectiveness of performance on any listed task. The only test of whether an item is included in the following pages has been: does any evidence exist that the paralegal is performing the task listed? Also, no effort is made to describe the training program (formal or on-the-job) that the paralegals went through to be able to perform the task.

THE PARAJUDGE

I. Traditional Use of Non-Lawyer Judges

A..Justice of the Peace Court

The non-lawyer judge normally has jurisdiction over minor misdemeanors (e.g., traffic cases) and over civil actions involving small damage claims.

B. Tribal Courts

For the kinds of cases heard by the Indian non-lawyer judge, see section 23 supra (describing such Courts from the perspective of the non-lawyer advocate).

C. Rabbinical Courts

The jurisdiction of such courts has been limited to cases involving religious issues, e.g., kosher food preparation and distribution.

II. New Roles for Non-Lawyer Judges

In the juvenile law area, a number of experimental programs have established community courts or community mediation centers where non-lawyer judges attempt to mediate disputes involving youngsters whose case has been diverted out of Juvenile or Family Court and referred to the community group.
