ABSTRACT

A listing of 178 curriculum guides for exemplary special education programs is presented, based on a national 1983 survey of over 500 programs. For each program, information is presented on the title of the guide, the source and source address, development date, price, number of pages, recommended exceptionality area(s), and recommended level(s). In addition, an exceptionality use index is included to enable users to locate the program by exceptionality or topical area. The index includes the following exceptionalities/topics: mental retardation (educable, trainable, and severe and profound); emotional disorder; learning disability; speech, hearing, and language; deafness; hearing impairment; blindness; visual impairment; giftedness; physical handicap; multiple handicaps; infants; career-vocational education; preschool education; mainstreaming; parents; autism; deaf/blind programs; English; general resources; individualized education programs; Native Americans; recreation/physical education; counseling; Down's Syndrome; family life education; hospital/homebound programs; mathematics; nonvocal communication; and sex education. ## INTRODUCTION

The Indiana Department of Public Instruction, Division of Special Education, has developed a unique, effective, and economical solution to special education curriculum identification problems. The Special Educators' Guide to Exemplary Curricula is the result of a national, field-based survey designed to identify exemplary special education curricula.

Over 500 universities, State Departments of Education, and special centers from throughout the nation were directly contacted through this effort. Respondents were asked to report on exemplary special education curricula with which they were familiar. This publication is a listing of the 178 curriculum guides reported as exemplary. This qualitative feature adds a dimension of authority which is missing from bibliographies of existing guides.

Respondents were asked to report on exemplary curricula by title, source, source address, development date, price, number of pages, recommended exceptionality area(s), and recommended level(s). This information is reported in the body of this publication as follows:

Title	Source	Source address	Development date	Price	Number of pages	Recommended exceptionality area(s)	Recommended level(s)
-------	--------	----------------	------------------	-------	-----------------	------------------------------------	----------------------

Also, an Exceptionality Use Index is contained on page ii. Each guide reported is assigned a number, from 1 to 178 (the total number of responses received). The Exceptionality Use Index lists the respective numbers of the guides reported by exceptionality area or topical area.

In summary, this publication is a listing of exemplary special education curricula as reported by 178 special education curricular authorities from throughout the nation. Curriculum development groups should find this publication invaluable as a source of curricular models.
