ABSTRACT

Sixteen oral lessons for teaching beginning English as a second language are presented. The lessons were developed to teach small groups of adolescents. The lessons are each self-contained and include noun picture cards, a vocabulary game, opposites, teacher commands, expanding sentences, pronouns, and vowel sounds. The picture card lessons can be duplicated and used as flash cards. Teaching hints and a chart of 333 verbs in three tenses are provided. (RW)

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE: HINTS FOR TEACHING

Bridget H. Hart

* HAND SIGNALS should be used constantly in the beginning, and in the same context each time. The teacher should devise signals so they will be spontaneous and consistent as s/he talks. Important words that need hand signals are yesterday, today, tomorrow, more (as in "say more" or make a longer sentence"), correct answer, give me an answer.

The teacher should be sure to ASK QUESTIONS TO WHICH THE ANSWER IS ALREADY KNOWN in order that the correct response may be taught to the student.

HAVING A STUDENT READ from a simple book does not necessarily mean that the student comprehends what is being read. The student may be making sounds that are understood only by the teacher.

Use of a small hand mirror may help the student to pronounce DIFFICULT SOUNDS. Teacher should model the lip movements while the student watches and then tries to emulate the same movements. In the beginning the teacher should not expect perfect enunciation. After the student becomes more comfortable in the new surroundings, s/he will be more receptive to speech correction.

Very early in the course the student should learn HELPFUL PHRASES such as Where is the restroom?, How do you say...?, I don't understand, What is that?, Will you help me?, and Pardon?

Comprehension of SAFETY WORDS should be taught early. Some of these words are poison (which is usually accompanied by a picture of the skull and crossbones or the new "yuk" face), danger, exit, fire, and police.

The CALENDAR may be used for introducing past, present and future tenses, plus vital words such as yesterday, today, tomorrow, last week, this week, next week, last month, this month, next month, day-before-yesterday, day-after-tomorrow, last year, this year, next year. The same hand signals may be used for all past tenses, the same signal for all present tenses, and the same signal for all future tenses.

Teaching OPPOSITES doubles the number of descriptive words and phrases which may be taught in a given time.

PREPOSITIONS may be taught with the use of small, handy objects (the pencil is over the book, under the book, beside the book).

BODY PARTS should be taught, large parts first, then detail parts.

COMMAND WORDS which will be beneficial include point, write, draw, stand, sit, circle, read, study, hop, skip, throw, run, shake hands, etc.

The QUESTION WORDS, why, where, when, what, which, will require many demonstrations.

PRONOUNS are important for the non-English-speaking student since the pronoun is widely used in English. (In some languages there is no word for "it" and no distinction between "him" and "her".) A chart showing subjective pronouns on the left and objective pronouns on the right should be made for the student to use as a reference.

When asking "DO YOU UNDERSTAND?", the teacher will be more assured of understanding if s/he requires the student to demonstrate. The words "SHOW ME" should frequently be used.

A list of REGULAR VERBS in three tenses and a different list of IRREGULAR VERBS should be issued to each student when s/he is ready.

Some languages contain no upper/lower case, and therefore have no capital letters. Students who use those languages may frequently fail to capitalize properly when writing in English.

Because English contains so many words for the same action, the teacher must be consistent when saying things such as Give me the book. There are also Hand me the book, and Pass me the book. Other examples of this are lay the book on the table, Put the book on the table, and Place the book on the table.

Many MATH SYMBOLS are the same in other languages as they are in English; therefore, students may be taught the meanings of several English words by the use of these symbols. The equal sign can be used to demonstrate means the same as... The addition sign can be used to demonstrate more, add, and plus. The infinity sign may demonstrate always or forever and the zero may demonstrate none or all gone.

The NUMBER SYSTEM may seem the same in English as it is in the student's native language, but in some cases it changes slightly in some areas. Caution must be taken concerning page numbers and math computations.

TEACHER TALK should be kept to a minimum in order to stimulate verbalizing by the student.

SMILES mean the same in any language.

LINGO: A Game of Vocabulary

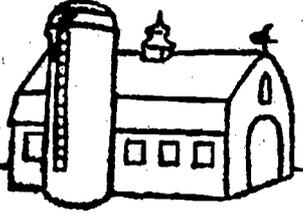

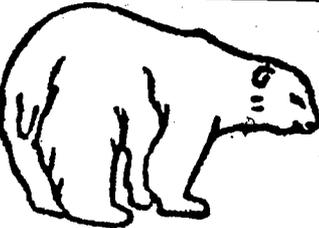

Played like Bingo or Lotto, the game of LINGO consists of 56 calling cards and 30 different playing cards. Each calling card is simply a picture card which the teacher may label appropriate to the locale in which the students reside. After the students have learned all the simple names of each picture, the teacher may want to call out the definition of the noun pictured, thereby expanding the vocabulary already learned. This game works extremely well in expanding the vocabulary of students native to America. By using the definitions (such as bovine instead of cow, a fabric dwelling instead of tent, etc.), the primary child will quickly learn many new words.

OPPOSITES

While teaching opposites, the teacher will need to create hand signals to accompany as many words as possible.

After several opposites have been thoroughly taught, the teacher may explain to the students that these words are called "opposites." There will be many instances when the teacher will have to refer to the word "opposite" while teaching new words and phrases.

in	out	open	closed
up	down	young	old
near	far	modern	ancient
over	under	new	old
weak	strong	first	last
to	from	beginning	ending
close to	away from	start	stop
into	out of	question	answer
come	go	right	wrong
come here	go away	right	left
easy	hard, difficult	alike	different
alive	dead	opposite	same
long	short	work	play
soft	hard	light	dark
buy	sell	daytime	nighttime
wet	dry	more	less
all the time	never	before	after
loud	quiet	better	worse
sick	well	forward	backward
ill	healthy	live	die
whisper	shout, yell	awake	asleep

INSTRUCTION WORDS

The following instruction words should be demonstrated daily by the teacher until they are mastered.

trace	read	circle
print	draw	follow
answer	question	beginning
ending	middle	letter
directions	number	words
pictures	names	sentence
line	story	sound
change	paragraph	use
right	left	same

TEACHER COMMANDS

Props needed: any book, a pencil, a blank sheet of paper

Get out your book.

Open your book to page ____.

Write your name on your paper.

Pass your paper to me.

Close your book.

Pick up your pencil.

Hand me your book.

Hold up your pencil.

Lay your pencil on the table.

Pick up a different pencil.

Come and get your book.

EXPANDING SENTENCES
(Opposites should precede this lesson.)

The teacher presents a picture, makes an oral statement concerning the picture, and student repeats. At some point during the procedure the student should try to make a statement without assistance. The following are examples which might accompany two separate pictures.

This is a horse.

The horse is strong.

The strong horse is brown.

The strong, brown horse is big.

The big, strong, brown horse has white feet.

The big, strong, brown horse has four white feet.

The big, strong, brown horse can run on his four white feet.

The big, strong, brown horse can run and jump on his four white feet.

The big, strong, brown horse can run fast and jump high on his four white feet.

These are kittens.

The kittens are gray and white.

The gray and white kittens are little.

The little gray and white kittens are soft.

The soft, little gray and white kittens are pretty.

The pretty, soft, little gray and white kittens are hungry.

The pretty, soft, little gray and white kittens are hungry and sleepy.

The hungry little kittens are crying.

PRONOUNS

Place accompanying chart with stick people and dog in view of the students. Pointing to the chart, explain exactly what persons are included in each pronoun.

Write the following on the board:

I _____ me.
 He _____ him.
 She _____ her.
 It _____ it.
 We _____ us.
 They _____ them.
 You _____ you.

Say the example sentences below while pointing to each appropriate pronoun in the chalkboard list.

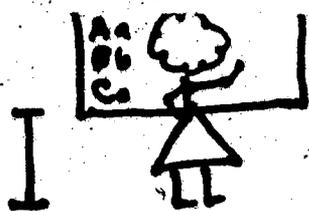

I like it. (For "it" pantomime petting a dog or point to a table, desk, etc.)

I like you.
 I like them.
 I like her.
 He likes me.
 She likes you.
 He likes her.
 She likes him.
 It (the dog) likes me.
 We like him.
 We like you.
 You like him.
 You like them.
 We like her.
 They like him.
 They like us.
 They like you.

Use other verbs such as see, hear, watch.
