ABSTRACT

The Children in Custody (CIC) report provides biennial information, in the form of statistical charts, on public and private residential facilities holding juveniles in custody across the country, and on the juveniles they hold. The reference date for this CIC census was February 1, 1983. Annual data are for the calendar year 1982. The major findings of this CIC census include the following: (1) 97 percent of the residents of public and private juvenile detention and correctional facilities were juveniles; (2) from 1979 to 1983 there was a 13 percent increase in the number of facilities; (3) public facilities held 62 percent of the total residents; (4) from 1972 to 1982 the average daily population in juvenile facilities increased 7 percent; (5) there were 624,928 admissions to juvenile facilities; (6) males constituted 80 percent of those in custody; (7) the rate of confinement was 250 per 100,000 of the age-eligible population; (8) delinquents accounted for 75 percent of juveniles in custody; (9) violent offenders were 24 percent of delinquents in custody; and (10) the average length of stay in public facilities was one and a quarter months; in private facilities it was four and a half months. This report was written by Melissa Sickmund of BJS in cooperation with Barbara Allen-Hagen of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP), U.S. Department of Justice. Phyllis Jo Baunach and Marianne W. Zawitz of BJS assisted in the editing. Marilyn Marbrook, BJS publications unit chief, administered production, assisted by Betty Sherman, Millie Baldea, Joyce Stanford, and Michelle Ellison. Data collection and processing were carried out by Rick Meyer and Arthur Ciampa of the U.S. Bureau of the Census. Statistical assistance was provided by Christopher A. Innes and Sophie Bowen of BJS.

The Children in Custody Census of juvenile facilities is funded by OJJDP through an interagency agreement with BJS. Data collection, processing, and preparation of public use data tapes are the responsibility of the U.S. Bureau of the Census. Data analysis is conducted by BJS staff.

Preface

The Children in Custody series began in 1971. It was initially designed by the predecessor agency of the Bureau of Justice Statistics (the Statistics Division of the National Criminal Justice Information and Statistics Service, Law Enforcement Assistance Administration) and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. In 1977 the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) began sponsoring the series. In 1985 the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) assumed data analysis and report preparation responsibilities as part of an interagency agreement with OJJDP. Data for the series are collected by the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

BJS is currently analyzing the 1984/85 public juvenile facility census data for a forthcoming publication.

The Children in Custody series is made possible through the cooperation of juvenile facility administrators and statistics specialists across the country. BJS and OJJDP hope that this and future Children in Custody reports will prove useful to juvenile justice practitioners and policymakers.

The Children in Custody (CIC) series is designed to provide biennial information on public and private residential facilities holding juveniles in custody across the country, and on the juveniles they hold.

The reference date for the 1982/83 CIC census was February 1, 1983. Annual data are for the calendar year 1982.

The major findings of the 1982/83 CIC census include:

- Of all 82,272 residents housed in the 2,900 public and private juvenile detention and correctional facilities in the United States, 97% were juveniles (table 1).
- From 1979 to 1983 there was a 13% net increase in the total number of juvenile facilities.
- Public facilities held 62% of the total number of residents on the census date in 1983.
- The average daily population in juvenile facilities increased 7% between 1979 and 1982.
- During 1982 there were 624,928 admissions to juvenile facilities. Of these admissions, more than 500,000 were to public facilities and just under 90,000 to private facilities.
- Males constituted 80% of all juveniles in custody in 1983 (table 2). Whites were 64%, blacks 33%, and other races 3%; Hispanics were 10%.
- Committed (postadjudication) juveniles made up 74% of the juveniles in custody in 1983. Detained (pre-adjudication) juveniles were nearly 18%, and those voluntarily admitted (without adjudication) were the remaining 8% of juveniles.
- The rate of confinement per 100,000 of the age-eligible U.S. population in 1982 was 175 for public facilities and 115 for private facilities, for an overall rate of 290 (table 3).
- Delinquents accounted for 75% of the juveniles in custody (table 4). Public facilities held 81% of the delinquents; private facilities held 83% of the non-delinquents.
- Violent offenders were 24% of the delinquents in custody, property offenders 49%.
- The average length of stay for juveniles discharged from public facilities in 1982 was 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> months and for juveniles discharged from private facilities 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> months (table 5).
- Juveniles discharged from private long-term facilities with institutional environments had the longest average stay, more than 8 months. Juveniles discharged from public short-term institutional facilities had the shortest average stay, 13 days.*
- Among public facilities 55% were long-term, and among private facilities 91% were long-term (table 6). The number of juveniles held in public long-term facilities in 1983 was more than twice the number held in public short-term facilities. In the private sector the number of juveniles in long-term facilities was almost 18 times higher than the number in short-term facilities.

● In 1983 public facilities were more likely to have institutional (61%) than open environments. The reverse was true for private facilities—90% had open environments. Juveniles held in public facilities were more likely to be in institutional (79%) than open facilities. In the private sector most juveniles were held in facilities with open environments (82%).

● Although 72% of all facilities had open environments, just over half of all juveniles in custody in 1983 were held in facilities with institutional environments.

● Of all facilities, 80% were small—that is, designed to hold 40 or fewer residents (table 7). Seventy-one percent of all small facilities were in the private sector; 60% of all larger facilities were in the public sector.

● About 6% of all facilities were occupied above their design capacity. An additional 19% were occupied at 100% of their design capacity.

● For every 11 residents in the public sector there were 10 full-time staff members (table 8). In the private sector the ratio was 12 residents to every 10 full-time staff members.

● During 1982 the average daily number of juvenile program enrollments in public facilities was more than twice the number in private facilities (table 9). In public facilities education programs had the highest percentage of enrollments, 37%. In private facilities counseling programs had the largest proportion of enrollments, 43%.

● Nationwide juvenile facility expenditures totaled over $1.8 billion for 1982 (table 10).

● The average cost to house one resident for one year was almost the same for public and private facilities (table 11). However, costs varied substantially by State, ranging from slightly over $10,000 in South Carolina to nearly $46,000 in Alaska for private facilities, and from about $12,000 in Florida to nearly $60,000 in Rhode Island for public facilities.

● The average cost to house one resident for 1 day was nearly the same for public and private facilities, around $60 (table 12).

Methodology

Data were obtained through mailed questionnaires. Repeated mailouts and follow-up phone calls were used to encourage reporting. The response rate in 1983 was virtually 100% (100% for public facilities and only slightly lower for private facilities).

Residential programs and group homes in operation on February 1, 1983, were included in the census if they housed more than three residents, 50% of whom were juveniles, and if offenders were at least 1% of their average daily population. Juvenile detention centers operated as part of an adult jail were excluded, as were nonresidential facilities, facilities exclusively for drug/alcohol abusers or nonoffenders, and Federal juvenile correctional facilities.

Each facility included in the census was classified as either short-term or long-term. Short-term facilities were typically preadjudication detention institutions, and long-term facilities were generally post-adjudication correctional institutions. Facilities were also categorized according to whether they had an open or an institutional environment based on existing security arrangements and the degree of resident access to community resources. Most detention or diagnostic centers, training schools, or ranches were classified as having institutional environments. The group of facilities with open environments consisted mainly of shelters, halfway houses or group homes and a few ranches.

<sup>d</sup>Status offenders are those whose offense would not be a criminal offense for adults (runaways, truants, incorrigibles, etc.). Nonoffenders are those held for dependency, neglect, abuse, emotional disturbance and mental retardation.

Bureau of Justice Statistics Announces the Justice Statistics Clearinghouse

The Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), in conjunction with the National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS), announces the establishment of the Justice Statistics Clearinghouse. The Clearinghouse toll-free number is:

800-732-3277

Persons from Maryland and the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area should call 301-251-5500.

Services offered by the Clearinghouse include:

- Responding to statistical requests. How many rapes are reported to the police? How many burglaries occurred in the past year? Call the Clearinghouse, toll free.
- Providing information about BJS services. Interested in receiving BJS documents and products? Register with the BJS mailing list by calling the Clearinghouse, toll free.

- Suggesting referrals to other sources for criminal justice statistics. If the Clearinghouse doesn't have the answer, an information specialist will refer you to agencies or individuals who do.

- Conducting custom literature searches of the NCJRS document data base. We can search the NCJRS data base and provide topical bibliographic citations and abstracts to answer specific requests.

- Collecting statistical reports. The Clearinghouse collects statistical reports from numerous sources. Submit statistical documents to share with criminal justice colleagues to: NCJRS, Attention BJS Acquisition, Box 6000, Rockville, MD 20850.

You have 24-hour access to the Justice Statistics Clearinghouse. From 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. EST, weekdays, an information specialist is available. After work hours, you may record your orders or leave a message for an information specialist to return your call.

Please put me on the mailing list for:

- Justice expenditure and employment reports--annual spending and staffing by Federal/State/local governments and by function (police, courts, etc.)
- Computer crime reports--electronic fund transfer system crimes
- Privacy and security of criminal history information and information policy--new legislation; maintaining and releasing intelligence and investigative records; data quality issues
- Federal statistics--data describing Federal case processing, from investigation through prosecution, adjudication, and corrections
- BJS bulletins and special reports--timely reports of the most current justice data
- Courts reports--State court caseload surveys, model annual State reports, State court organization surveys
- Corrections reports--results of sample surveys and censuses of jails, prisons, parole, probation, and other corrections data

- National Crime Survey reports--the only regular national survey of crime victims
- Sourcebook of Criminal Justice Statistics (annual)--broad-based data from 150+ sources (400+ tables, 100+ figures, index)

The National Institute of Justice/National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) abstracts documents published in the criminal justice field. Persons registered with the Reference Service receive NIJ Reports every other month. It includes an order form for Bureau of Justice Statistics publications. If you are not registered with NCJRS and wish to be, please check here:
