Introduction

Part C Updates is a compilation of information on various aspects of the Early Intervention Program for Infants and Toddlers with Disabilities (Part C) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). It is the seventh volume in a series of compilations, which included two editions of Part H Updates, the former name of the program. Several items have been reprinted in their entirety from the original sources. The intent of Part C Updates is to collect, in a convenient format, a variety of resources that meet the information needs of state and jurisdictional Part C program staff, the Office of Special Education Programs of the U.S. Department of Education, and policy makers at all levels.

We welcome your feedback on the usefulness of the Part C Updates. States and jurisdictions are particularly invited to provide updated information to the editors or to the authors of individual documents.

¹ Number and percentage of infants and toddlers receiving early intervention services under Part C, Chapter 1 (for FY 1987 through FY 1994 only), and other programs as of December 1 of the Federal fiscal year. For example, for fiscal year 1991, 194,000 children were reported to be receiving services as of December 1, 1990.

² A combination of factors appears to account for the apparent decline in these child counts:

- Early inaccuracies, including duplicated counts in state data collection systems;
- Inclusion in earlier years of children received some services but did not necessarily have IFSPs; and
- In the count for 1993, the decline in the reported number of children served in several large states masked the reports from other jurisdictions of increases in the number of children served.

³ Includes $34 million to offset the elimination of funding for the Chapter 1 Handicapped Program.

⁴ Sources: www.ideadata.org, updated as of July 31, 2004 (downloaded March 31, 2005).

⁵ FY 2005 was level funded from 2004 but there was a .80% rescission.

State and Jurisdictional Eligibility Definitions for Infants and Toddlers with Disabilities Under IDEA

by Jo Shackelford

A major challenge to state and jurisdictional policy makers in implementing the Early Intervention Program for Infants and Toddlers with Disabilities, Part C under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), is determining definitions of developmental delay and criteria of eligibility for services to young children, birth through 2 years of age, and their families. Under Part C, participating states and jurisdictions must provide services to two groups of children: those who are experiencing developmental delays, and those who have a diagnosed mental or physical condition that has a high probability of resulting in developmental delay. In addition, states may choose to serve children who are at risk of having substantial developmental delays if early intervention services are not provided. (See Table 1 on page 2 for the statutory language relating to eligibility under Part C of the IDEA Amendments of 1997.)

The task of defining the eligible population has been a challenge for states. Eligibility criteria influence the numbers and types of children needing or receiving services, the types of services provided, and ultimately the cost of the early intervention system. Over the years, several states have revised their definitions: some have narrowed their eligibility criteria and others have expanded them. Soon after the creation of the Early Intervention Program under IDEA, many states were interested in serving children at risk, but fears of highly increased numbers of eligible children and, therefore, highly increased costs, reduced the number of states that included children at risk in their eligibility definition. Several states that are not serving children at risk under their definition indicate that they will monitor the development of these children and refer them for early intervention services as delays are manifested.

This paper discusses how the 50 states and 6 jurisdictions that participate in the Part C program define developmental delay and, as applicable, at risk in their definition of eligibility for services. Table 2 displays a summary of states' and jurisdictions' definitions of developmental delay and, as applicable, their approaches to serving children who are at risk of having substantial developmental delay.

The information in Table 2 is an update from September 2004. Changes were made to Maine.

Criteria for Definitions of Developmental Delay

Although the IDEA statute for Part C specifies the developmental areas that are to be included in states' definitions of developmental delay (see Table 1), states must identify appropriate diagnostic instruments, procedures (including the use of informed clinical opinion), and levels of functioning or other criteria that will be used to determine eligibility. A review of state eligibility definitions under Part C reveals that states are expressing criteria for delay quantitatively — such as (a) the difference between chronological age and actual performance level expressed as a percentage of chronological age, (b) delay expressed as performance at a certain number of months below chronological age, or (c) delay as indicated by standard deviation below the mean on a norm-referenced instrument — and qualitatively — such as delay indicated by atypical development or observed atypical behaviors. A few states have developed a matrix of criteria for delay, differentiating the amount of delay according to the age of the child in months. The rationale for this is that a 25% delay in a 1-year-old's development, for example, is quite different from a 25% delay in a 3-year-old's development (Harbin, Gallagher, & Terry, 1991; Shonkoff & Meisels, 1991).

There is wide variability in the type of quantitative criteria states use to describe developmental delay, and there also is a wide range in the level of delay states require for eligibility. Common measurements of level of delay are 25% delay or 2 standard deviations (SD) below the mean in one or more developmental areas, or 20% delay or 1.5 SD in two or more areas. Traditional assessment instruments, yielding scores in standard deviations or developmental age in months, may not adequately address some developmental domains, or may not be comparable across developmental domains or across age levels (Benn, 1994; Brown & Brown, 1993). For this reason, some states have included qualitative criteria for determining developmental delay. This type of criterion includes findings of atypical behavior.

Because there is an insufficient number of reliable and valid instruments for the birth-through-2 age group and questionable predictive validity for available instruments, determining delay by traditional assessment can be problematic (Benn, 1994; Shonkoff & Meisels, 1991). For that reason, the Part C regulations require that informed clinical opinion be included for eligibility determination (see 34 C.F.R. §303.322(c)(2)). Informed clinical opinion relies on qualitative and quantitative information to determine the need for early intervention services, and typically is derived from the consensus of a multidisciplinary team that includes parents and information from multiple sources (Benn, 1994; Shackelford, 2002; Harbin et al., 1991). Several states determine eligibility only through informed clinical opinion.

Definitions Related to Eligibility Under Part C of the IDEA Amendments of 1997

Under Part C of IDEA, states must provide services to any child "under 3 years of age who needs early intervention services" (20 U.S.C. §1432(5)(A)) because the child:

- "(i) is experiencing developmental delays, as measured by appropriate diagnostic instruments and procedures in one or more of the areas of cognitive development, physical development, communication development, social or emotional development, and adaptive development; or
- (ii) has a diagnosed physical or mental condition which has a high probability of resulting in developmental delay" (20 U.S.C. §1432(5)(A)).

A state also may provide services, at its discretion, to at-risk infants and toddlers. An at-risk infant or toddler is defined under Part C as "an individual under 3 years of age who would be at risk of experiencing a substantial developmental delay if early intervention services were not provided to the individual" (20 U.S.C. §1432(1)).

Inclusion of Risk Factors

Three categories of risk for adverse developmental outcomes that are frequently described by states are conditions of established risk, biological/medical risk, and environmental risk. Children with an established physical or mental condition with a high probability of resulting in developmental delay are, under IDEA, eligible for services. If a state decides to include in its eligibility definition children with other risk factors, it must delineate the criteria and procedures (including the use of informed clinical opinion) that will be used to identify those children. The IDEA Amendments of 1997 encourage states "to expand opportunities for children under 3 years of age who would be at risk of having substantial developmental delay if they did not receive early intervention services" (20 U.S.C. §1431(b)(4)). The Amendments also allow states that do not serve infants and toddlers who are at risk to use IDEA funds to identify, evaluate, refer, and conduct periodic follow-up on each referral to determine any changes in eligibility status (see 20 U.S.C. §1438(4)).

Conditions of Established Risk. IDEA requires states to provide services to children who have conditions of established risk. A condition of established risk is defined as a "diagnosed physical or mental condition which has a high probability of resulting in developmental delay" (20 U.S.C. §1432(5)(A)(ii)). These conditions include, but are not limited to, "chromosomal abnormalities; genetic or congenital disorders; severe sensory impairments, including hearing and vision; inborn errors of metabolism; disorders reflecting disturbance of the development of the nervous system; congenital infections; disorders secondary to exposure to toxic substances, including fetal alcohol syndrome; and severe attachment disorders" (see 34 C.F.R. §303.16, Note 1). Children in this category are eligible for services under Part C of IDEA by virtue of their diagnosis, regardless of whether a measurable delay is present.

Although many states have mirrored the Part C regulatory language in listing diagnosed conditions in their eligibility definitions, several states have included many other conditions in their eligibility definitions. This may be because there is less agreement among professionals about what other conditions might be included in this category versus the biological/medical risk category. Accompanying their list of diagnosed conditions, many states use the phrase "but is not limited to the following" to allow flexibility for other conditions to be accepted for eligibility.

Biological/medical risk. Because children with a history of significant biological or medical conditions or events have a greater chance of developing a delay or a disability than children in the general population, states may include them under the optional eligibility category of at risk. Examples of biological/medical risk conditions that states have listed include low birthweight, intraventricular hemorrhage at birth, chronic lung disease, and failure to thrive.

Biological/medical risk conditions do not invariably lead to developmental delay, and many children who have a history of biological events will do well developmentally with or without services (Shonkoff & Meisels, 1991). Therefore, a comprehensive child and family evaluation by a multidisciplinary team (MDT) is necessary to determine (a) eligibility and (b) the appropriate intervention services (Shonkoff & Meisels, 1991).

Environmental Risk. Children at environmental risk include those whose caregiving circumstances and current family situation place them at greater risk for delay than the general population. As with biological/medical risk, states are not required, but may choose to include children at environmental risk under the optional eligibility category of at risk. Examples of environmental risk factors that states have listed include parental substance abuse, family social disorganization, poverty, parental developmental disability, parental age, parental educational attainment, and child abuse or neglect.

As with children at biological/medical risk, environmental risk factors do not invariably result in delay or disability. Therefore, an MDT's comprehensive evaluation is essential to determining eligibility and appropriate services.

Single vs. Multiple Risk Factors. No single event or risk factor reliably predicts developmental outcome. The greater the number of both biological/medical and/or environmental risk factors, the greater the developmental risk. Research shows, however, that there can be factors in a child's caregiving environment that may mediate the impact of risk factors. These may include temperament of the child, high self-esteem, good emotional relationship with at least one parent, and successful learning experiences (Brown & Brown, 1993; Knudtson et al., 1990). Assessments should address multiple and cumulative risk criteria, both biological and environmental, and consider the resilience or protective factors, within a context of change over time (Kochanek, Kabacoff & Lipsitt, 1990; Shonkoff & Meisels, 1991).

Some states that choose to serve children who are eligible under optional at-risk categories use a multiple risk model with a range of three to five risk factors required for eligibility for services. A few states require less delay for eligibility when environmental and/or biological/medical risk factors also are present.

Summary of Part C Definitions

Table 2, at the end of this paper, summarizes the policies of states and other governing jurisdictions regarding the definition of developmental delay for Part C eligibility and the provision of services for at-risk children. The author gathered this information from the most recent copy of states' Part C applications or from personal communication with Part C coordinators. The Table is divided into three categories: Level of Developmental Delay Required for Eligibility, Serving At-Risk, and Comments.

Level of Developmental Delay Required for Eligibility. State criteria for delay are indicated in different ways. Those measured by assessment instruments are expressed in standard deviation (SD), percent delay, delay in months, or developmental quotient (DQ). Other determinants include informed clinical opinion or the judgment of an MDT. Areas refer to the five developmental areas cited in the law: "cognitive development, physical development, communication development, social or emotional development, and adaptive development" (20 U.S.C. §1432(5)(A)(i)).

Serving At-Risk. Whether or not a state has elected to serve at-risk children under its Part C program is indicated. If a state is serving only particular categories of at-risk (e.g., biological/medical risk and/or environmental risk), the eligible category as identified by the state is indicated. Please note that diagnosed physical or mental condition with high probability of resulting in developmental delay, commonly referred to as "established conditions," is an eligibility category required under Part C and, thus, is not included in this Table.

Comments. This column provides several kinds of information. For those states that have elected not to serve at-risk under Part C, the intent to track, screen, or monitor this population or to study the feasibility of serving at-risk is described if the state has so indicated. Other relevant observations about a state's eligibility criteria also are included, such as state-developed lists of risk factors or established conditions.

State definitions are current as of publication date, but may change as states redefine their eligible population. NECTAC maintains files on states' Part C eligibility criteria and can provide updated information on request.

Survey of Part C Coordinators and Assistive Technology

The Part C Program for Infants and Toddlers, although federally supported through IDEA, varies from state to state. In order to learn about how states provide Assistive Technology (AT) services and devices for infants and toddlers, coordinators of the Part C Programs in each state and the District of Columbia were surveyed with a written questionnaire. Coordinators were asked to provide information about policies regarding AT services and devices, how AT services and devices are funded, availability of resources for parents and providers, and collaboration.

Method

Part C Coordinators completed written surveys (<http://tnt.asu.edu/appendix/TNTPartCSurvey.pdf>) between December 2002 and December 2003. A total of 30 (60%) of the Coordinators completed the survey between December 2002 and June 2003. A second survey attempt was made during October–December 2003 in order to increase the number of responding states. A total of 44 states (86%) fully or partially completed surveys.

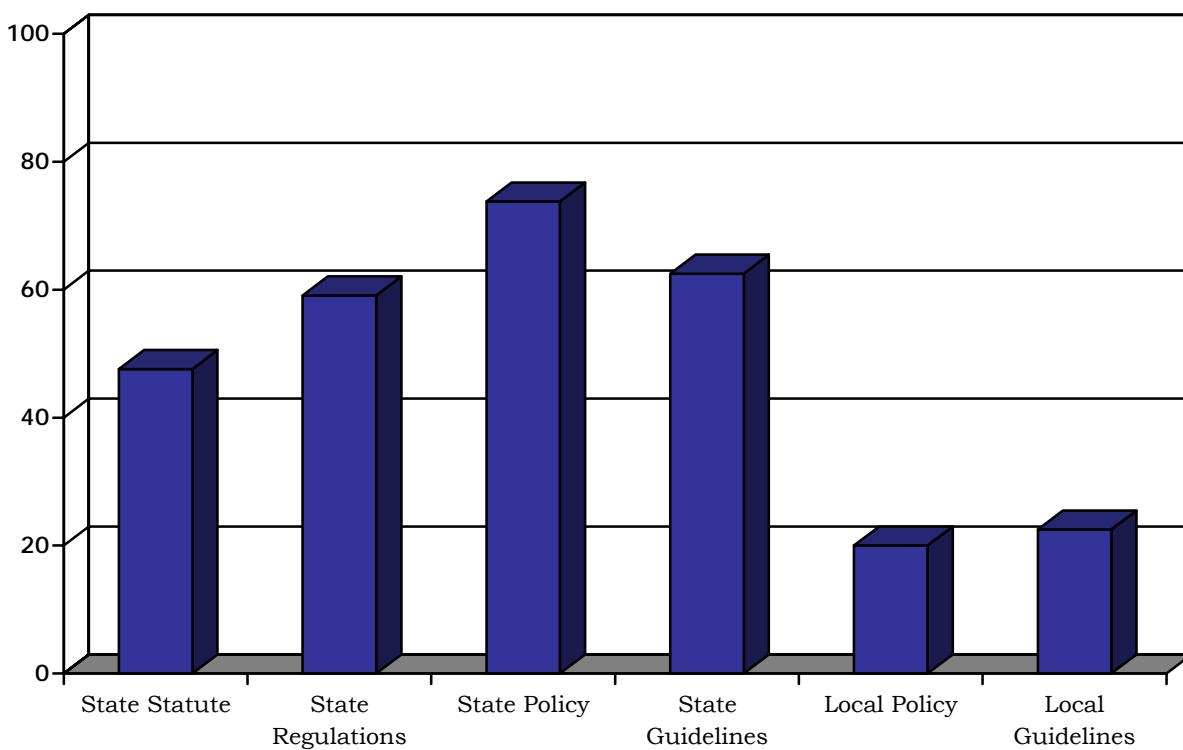

Results

Data from the 44 completed surveys were summarized descriptively. Information from the following question categories was included: (a) policies and guidelines, (b) funding, (c) resources for families and providers, and (d) collaboration.

Policies & Guidelines:

A majority of the Part C coordinators reported that some type of state policy or guidelines regarding assistive technology (AT) for infants and toddlers was in place in their states. The type of state policies reported included: existing state statutes (20 or 45.5%); written state regulations (26 or 59.1%) reported written state regulations, and specific policies regarding AT services and devices for infants and toddlers (31 or 70.5%). In addition, guidelines for AT had been established in 25 (56.8%) of the states. One of the coordinators noted that state policies were currently in progress and four (9.1%) noted that state guidelines were in progress. Locally-developed policies were reported in eight (18.2%) of the states and nine (20.5%) reported availability of locally developed guidelines.

Percent of States Reporting AT Policies and Guidelines

Coordinators were asked to indicate whether or not policies or guidelines contained information specific to payment for services and devices, ownership, eligibility for and access to services/devices, the relationship of AT devices to AT services, maintenance and repair of devices, recycling, documentation requirements, trial periods for use of devices, and procedures about devices and transition to preschool. The percent of states reporting policies covering and not covering these areas are listed on Table 1.

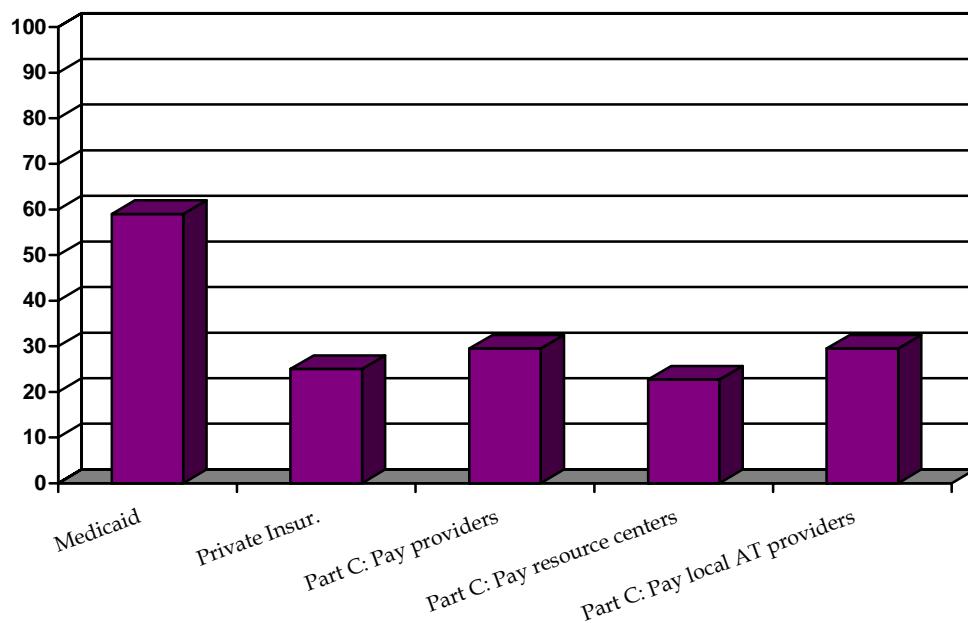

Table 1. Percent of States Reporting Areas Covered in State and Local Policies

Policy regarding...	State	Local	State and Local	Not Covered
Payment for AT devices and services	65.9	2.3	18.2	11.4
Ownership	40.9	6.8	11.4	31.8
Eligibility for and access to AT services	75	2.3	9.1	13.6

Funding:

A total of 26 (59%) of the Part C coordinators reported that “very frequently” funding for services was provided through Medicaid by billing for a particular discipline (e.g. Occupational Therapy or Speech-Language Pathology). Other “very frequently” used sources included: private insurance for a particular discipline (11 or 25%); Part C payments to providers (13 or 29.5%); Part C payments to resource centers and other programs (10 or 22.7%); and Part C payments to local assistive technology provider agencies (13 or 29.5%).

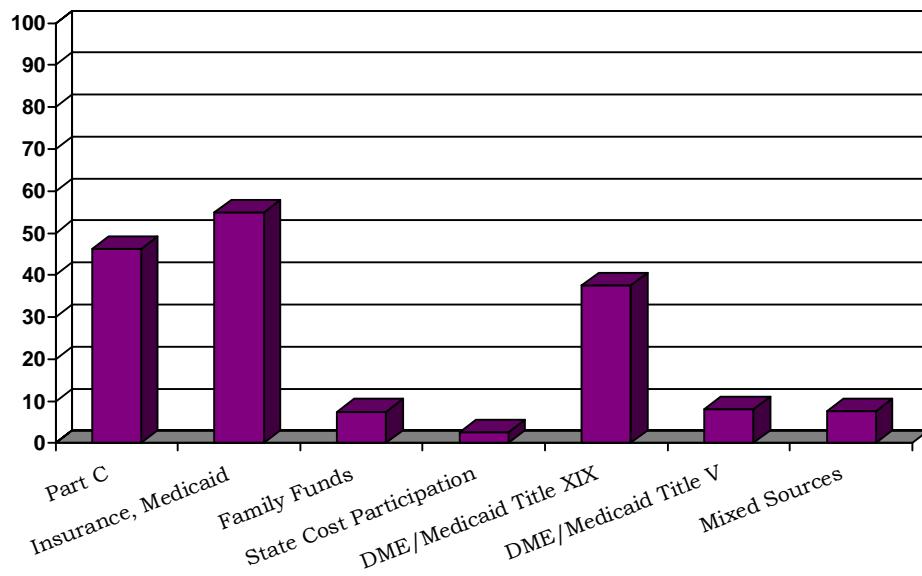

Percent of State Funding Sources “Very Frequently” Used to Pay for AT Services

The types of devices eligible to be paid for by Part C funds included the following : communication device (39 or 88.6%); switch interface (39 or 88.6%); adaptive chair (37 or 84.1%); switch to speak words (36 or 81.8%); materials to adapt for positioning (33 or 75%); “Boppy” or other type of positioning cushion (32 or 72.7%); a switch that hooks to toys (34 or 77.3%); commercial stroller (27 or 61.4%); off-the-shelf toy (25 or 54.5%); battery-operated toy (25 or 54.5%); computer (23 or 50%).

A variety of sources were identified as being used “very frequently” as funding sources for AT devices. Part C funding as a payor of last resort occurred “very frequently” in 21 (47.7%) of the states. A family's private insurance, Medicaid, or other 3rd party payers made up 23 (52.3%) of the funding pool. Family funds were reported as a “very frequently” used funding source by three (6.8%) states. Other categories included: use of state cost participation programs (1 or 2.3%); DME under Title 19 (16 or 36.4%); funding through Title V (4 or 9.1%) , and funding from state agencies other than Part C (5 or 23.8%). Only 14 (31.8%) of the coordinators provided information about the amount of Part C funding used in fiscal year 2000-01 to purchase assistive technology devices for infants and toddlers. The range reported among the 14 states was $0 to $630,000.

Percent of Sources Used “Very Frequently” to Pay For AT Devices

Resources for Families & Providers:

Coordinators were asked to indicate how common or not common various methods are used by providers and families to learn about AT services and devices for infants and toddlers. The percent of Coordinator responses indicating commonly used methods by parents and by providers is listed on Table 2.

Table 2. Percentage of State Methods Available for Learning About AT Services and Devices for Infants and Toddlers

Lending Libraries (e.g. Lebotek)	29.5	34.1
Written Materials (e.g. brochures)	36.4	31.8

Collaboration:

Coordinators were provided a list of potential agencies and programs with which the Part C program coordinated in providing AT services and devices for infants and toddlers. The coordinators were asked to rate their state's degree of participation in collaboration along a five-point scale, ranging from "1" (not at all) to "5" (a lot). Table 3 lists the percent of states reporting a lot of collaboration.

Discussion

The federally funded Part C programs for infants and toddlers vary from state to state. This survey explored how the states provide AT services and devices for infants and toddlers. Almost three-quarters of the states have some sort of policy, regulation, or guidelines to support the provision of AT services and devices for infants and toddlers. In approximately two-thirds of the states, these policies discuss payment for devices and services including information about ownership, maintenance and repair, recycling, loan periods for devices, and procedures for devices during the transition to preschool.

Medicaid is the most frequently used state-funding source for payment of services and to purchase devices, although other sources such as Part C as the payor of last resort and DME/Medicaid Title XIX for devices are also used. A majority of the coordinators reported that their states may fund communication devices, switch interfaces, adaptive chairs, switch to speak words, positioning materials, switches for toys, commercial strollers, off-the-shelf toys, and computers.

The states' coordinators indicated several methods by which providers and families have the opportunity to learn about assistive technology services and devices for infants and toddlers. In addition to state and/or local training for families and providers, the availability of statewide and regional resource centers, as well as technology resource fairs were also reported by many states as being "commonly used."

Lastly, frequent collaboration between the state's Part C coordinators and various other agencies that offer AT devices and services for infants and toddlers was evident. The lead agencies for preschool special education, the DOHs, the state ICCs, and the Tech Act projects were the agencies with which more states reported collaborating "a lot."

¹Data were first reported by race/ethnicity in 1998. If all children were not reported by race/ethnicity, the number of children reported by age may not equal the number reported by race/ethnicity.

²Percentage of population is for the 50 States and DC. Population data are not consistently available for Puerto Rico and the outlying areas. Percent of population was calculated by dividing the child count by the general U.S. population estimates for children in this age range for a particular year and multiplying the result by 100 to get a percentage.

Population data for 1997 through 1999 are July estimates downloaded from the Census website in July 2001. These data are based on the 1990 decennial Census. For 2000 through 2002, population data are July 1 estimates, released October 2003. These data are based on the 2000 decennial census. The population estimates are from the Population Estimates Program, U.S. Census Bureau, Population Division.

¹Percentage of children in each program setting is calculated by dividing the number of children in each program setting by the total number of children reported in all program settings and multiplying the result by 100 to get a percentage.

For 1997, the children reported in the family child care category were combined with the children reported in the program designed for typically developing children category.

Percentages are based on all Part C infants and toddlers who were reported in the race/ethnicity category. These percentages show the proportion of infants and toddlers with disabilities in the race/ethnicity category who were served in each program setting (number in race/ethnicity category X who were in program setting A ÷ total number in race/ethnicity category X).

Data based on the December 1, 2002 count, updated as of July 31, 2004.

Percentages are based on all exiting infants and toddlers for whom race/ethnicity was provided.

These percentages show the proportion of exiting infants and toddlers in the racial/ethnic group who were in the exit category (number in race/ethnicity category X who exited in category A ÷ total number in that race/ethnicity category who exited).

Data based on the December 1, 2002 count, updated as of July 31, 2004.

Please see data notes for an explanation of individual state differences: <http://www.ideaadata.org/docs/cdatanotes2003.pdf>

Percentages are based on all exiting infants and toddlers for whom race/ethnicity was provided.

These percentages show the proportion of exiting infants and toddlers in the racial/ethnic group who were in the exit category (number in race/ethnicity category X who exited in category A ÷ total number in that race/ethnicity category who exited).

Data based on the December 1, 2002 count, updated as of July 31, 2004.

Percentages are based on all exiting infants and toddlers for whom race/ethnicity was provided.

These percentages show the proportion of exiting infants and toddlers in the racial/ethnic group who were in the exit category (number in race/ethnicity category X who exited in category A ÷ total number in that race/ethnicity category who exited).

Data based on the December 1, 2002 count, updated as of July 31, 2004.

¹For the Transition From Part C section, the percentage is calculated by dividing the number of children reported in each transition category by the total number of children who transitioned out of Part C (the sum of the number exiting because they were Part B eligible, were not Part B eligible but exited to another program, were not Part B eligible and exited with no referral, and did not have their Part B eligibility determined) and multiplying the result by 100 to get a percentage. For the Exit Prior to Age 3 section, the percentage is calculated by dividing the number of children reported in each Exit Prior to Age 3 category by the total number of children who exited Part C Prior to Age 3 (the sum of the number exiting because they completed their IFSP prior to reaching maximum age, had died, moved out of state, were withdrawn by a parent, and were not successfully contacted) and multiplying the result by 100 to get a percentage.

Because personnel data are reported by states using FTE fractions, and this table shows only the rounded values, the ALL STAFF column may not equal the sum of individual personnel types.

The total FTE for the U.S. and outlying areas and the 50 States, D.C., and Puerto Rico may not equal the sum of the personnel categories because (1) some States could not provide personnel data by category and (2) rounding.

Federal Statute for Part C of IDEA
20 U.S.C. Chapter 33, Sections 1431–1444, as amended by P.L. 108-446

Part C of Public Law 108-446, the Individuals with Disabilities Education
Improvement Act of 2004A-3

“PART C—INFANTS AND TODDLERS WITH DISABILITIES

20 USC 1431.

“SEC. 631. FINDINGS AND POLICY.

“(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that there is an urgent and substantial need—

“(1) to enhance the development of infants and toddlers with disabilities, to minimize their potential for developmental delay, and to recognize the significant brain development that occurs during a child’s first 3 years of life;

“(2) to reduce the educational costs to our society, including our Nation’s schools, by minimizing the need for special education and related services after infants and toddlers with disabilities reach school age;

“(3) to maximize the potential for individuals with disabilities to live independently in society;

“(4) to enhance the capacity of families to meet the special needs of their infants and toddlers with disabilities; and

“(5) to enhance the capacity of State and local agencies and service providers to identify, evaluate, and meet the needs of all children, particularly minority, low-income, inner city, and rural children, and infants and toddlers in foster care.

“(b) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to provide financial assistance to States—

“(1) to develop and implement a statewide, comprehensive, coordinated, multidisciplinary, interagency system that provides early intervention services for infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families;

“(2) to facilitate the coordination of payment for early intervention services from Federal, State, local, and private sources (including public and private insurance coverage);

“(3) to enhance State capacity to provide quality early intervention services and expand and improve existing early intervention services being provided to infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families; and

“(4) to encourage States to expand opportunities for children under 3 years of age who would be at risk of having substantial developmental delay if they did not receive early intervention services.
