

West Virginia After 3PM

In 2009, West Virginia parents/guardians were asked about their children's regular participation in various after school care arrangements, with a special focus on afterschool program participation and satisfaction. The America After 3PM survey identified the supply of and demand for afterschool programs, as well as the major barriers to program enrollment.

After School Care Arrangements

- 21% (59,609) of West Virginia's K-12 children are responsible for taking care of themselves after school. These children spend an average of 6 hours per week unsupervised after school.
- 13% (36,792) of West Virginia's K-12 children participate in afterschool programs. On average, afterschool participants spend 6 hours per week in afterschool programs. Participation averages 3 days per week.
- 80% of West Virginia K-12 children spend some portion of the hours after school in the care of a parent or guardian.
- Other care arrangements include traditional child care centers (7%), sibling care (9%) and non-parental adult care, such as a grandparent or neighbor (36%).

Notes: The maximum amount of time in after school care arrangements is limited to 15 hours per week, which reflects the after school hours of 3:00 to 6:00 p.m. Care arrangements add up to greater than 100% due to multiple regular care arrangements for many children.

Satisfaction with and Support for Afterschool Programs

- 81% of West Virginia parents are satisfied with the afterschool program their child attends.
- West Virginia parents cited convenient location (72%), affordability (68%) and child enjoyment (60%) as their top three reasons for selecting an afterschool program.
- 89% of adults surveyed in West Virginia agree that there should be "some type of organized activity or place for children and teens to go after school every day that provides opportunities to learn" and 83% support public funding for afterschool programs.

Need or Demand for Afterschool

- 30% (74,526) of all West Virginia children not in afterschool would be likely to participate if an afterschool program were available in the community, regardless of their current care arrangement.
- Parents of non-participants believe that their children would benefit most from afterschool programs in the following ways: by having fun, receiving academic enrichment, improving social skills and workforce skills and reducing their chances of using drugs.

Barriers to Enrolling in Afterschool Programs

- After lack of need, the predominant obstacles to enrollment include preference for alternative activities, cost and lack of child enjoyment.

Contextual Information about Afterschool Programs

- In West Virginia, the public schools are the largest provider of afterschool programs. Religious organizations, YMCAs, Boys & Girls Clubs and private schools round out the top five providers of afterschool programs in the state.
- On average, West Virginia families spend $71 per week for afterschool programs.

About America After 3PM

In West Virginia, 678 households were surveyed for this study. Among those households, 57 percent qualified for free or reduced price lunch, 1 percent were Hispanic and 2 percent were African-American. According to U.S. Department of Education data from 2005-2006, the total school enrollment in West Virginia is 285,212, which is the foundation for all statewide projections in West Virginia After 3PM.

*America After 3PM was sponsored by the JCPenney Afterschool Fund. Between March and May 2009, 29,754 parents/guardians responded to survey questions about their after school child care arrangements during the 2008-2009 school year. RTi, a market research firm, conducted the survey and analyzed the data for the Afterschool Alliance.
