CITY SCHOOL SYSTEMS, 1925-26

Statistics concerning city school systems for the year ending June, 1926, are presented in this report. The principal items included are the number of teachers; number of pupils enrolled in kindergartens; elementary grades; high schools, including junior departments; vocational schools; normal schools and colleges under the direction of local school boards; special schools, as schools for the blind, deaf, crippled, and tubercular, and evening schools and Americanization classes; number of pupils in average daily attendance; number and value of school buildings, value of grounds and of contents of buildings; receipts, as well as the sources from which they are obtained; expenditures, under the eight principal headings for expenditures; and amount of bonds and payments toward outstanding indebtedness.

Cities are classified into groups according to size of city as determined by the Bureau of the Census in 1920. In Group I are 68 cities having a population of 100,000 and over; in Group II, 186 having a population of 30,000 to 100,000; in Group III, 517 cities having a population of 10,000 to 30,000; and in Group IV are 2,101 cities with a population of 2,500 to 10,000. All cities in Groups I, II, and III made a report, while the returns from Group IV cities are about 80 per cent complete.

Table I gives a summary of the principal items for cities of Groups I, II, and III. Data for these cities are practically complete for 1924, so that direct comparisons may be made without any perceptible degree of error. Total enrollments in cities of these groups show an increase of 4.16 per cent in 1926 over 1924. If cities of Group IV are included for each year, the increase is about the same, 4.1 per cent. Kindergarten enrollments show an increase of 9.3 per cent; a little more than twice as much as the increase in total enrollments. In cities of Group I, kindergarten enrollments increased 6.4 per cent, in cities of Group II, 16.7 per cent, and in cities of Group III, 15.5 per cent. These increases are due partly to the taking over of some of the private kindergartens, but as no statistics were gathered for private kindergartens in 1926 it is not possible to determine just how much of the increase came from that direction. At any rate there is a substantial increase in kindergarten enrollments in city schools for the past two years.

Elementary school enrollments show a slight decrease from 1924. In cities of Group I the decrease is 0.56 per cent, in cities of Group II the increase is 0.5 per cent, and in cities of Group III the increase is 1 per cent, or a net decrease for all groups of 0.013 per cent. This decrease is due partly to the growth of the junior high school, which includes a large number of pupils from the upper grades of the elementary school. Since 70 per cent of the junior high school enrollment is from grades formerly considered to be elementary grades, growth in junior high schools must of necessity draw largely from elementary school enrollments. If 70 per cent of the increase in junior high school enrollments were added to the 1926 elementary school enrollment, the elementary school enrollment would then show an increase of 2.6 per cent over 1924, instead of a decrease.

The two-year increase in junior high school enrollments in cities of these groups is 47.3 per cent. In cities of Group I the increase is 43.3 per cent, in cities of Group II it is 54.7 per cent, and in cities of Group III it is 46.8 per cent. There are now about three-quarters of a million pupils in junior high schools in the cities of these three groups. From 1922 to 1924 the increase was 217,876 pupils, and from 1924 to 1926 it was 236,500 pupils. Junior high school growth in cities of Groups I, II, and III from 1918 to 1926 is shown in Figure 1.

In public high schools above the junior high school grades—that is, regular high schools and senior high schools—the increase in enrollment over 1924 is 6.4 per cent, which is an increase of 9.4 per cent for cities in Group I, 2.5 per cent in cities in Group II, and 3.6 per cent in cities in Group III. The junior high school includes an enrollment 30 per cent of which belongs to regular high school grades. If 30 per cent of the increase in junior high school enrollments from 1924 to 1926 were included with high school enrollments in 1926, the increase would amount to 12.1 per cent instead of 6.4 per cent. The high school enrollment, however, grew about 50 per cent faster than did the total public school enrollment in these cities.

Cities in Group I lead the others in their increase in high school enrollments, those in Group II lead in increases in kindergarten and in junior high school enrollments, while those in Group III lead in increases in elementary school enrollments.

The number of kindergartens reported increased from 6,607 in 1924 to 7,521 in 1926, the number of elementary schools from 12,365 to 12,938, the number of junior high schools from 696 to 980, and the number of high schools from 1,195 to 1,270 for cities in all three groups.

The increase in enrollments in colleges under the control of city boards of education is 88.5 per cent from 1924 to 1926. This increase is due to the rapid growth of junior colleges within the public school system. Colleges increased in number from 12 to 27 in the two-year period. Normal school enrollments increased 31.6 per cent, and the number of such schools reported increased from 41 to 42 during the two years. The increase in enrollments in vocational schools is 6.7 per cent for all three groups, and for special schools it is 0.5 per cent.

FIG. 1.—Growth of junior high schools

The following tabulation shows the average number of pupils per teacher, average annual salary of teachers, and per capita costs of instruction for pupils in average daily attendance for 1924 and for 1926 for the types of schools enumerated.

Pupils per teacher, salary of teachers, and per pupil cost of instruction for certain types of schools in cities of Groups I, II, and III, 1923-24 and 1925-26

Normal.....	21.2	3,056	192.55	22.9	3,145	187.62

There is a slight increase over 1924 in the number of kindergarten pupils per teacher; while kindergarten enrollments increased 9.3 per cent since 1924, kindergarten teachers increased only 6.3 per cent. In the other types of schools there is generally a small decrease in the number of pupils per teacher. The kindergarten teacher leads with 55.8 pupils, the elementary teacher comes next with 38.1, the junior high school teacher has 29 pupils, and the high school teacher 25.6.

There has been a substantial increase in the average annual salary of kindergarten teachers, the amount being $156; an increase of $41 annually for elementary teachers, $60 for junior high school teachers, $63 for high school teachers, $8 for teachers of special schools, $172 for teachers of city vocational schools, and $89 for teachers of normal schools. These increases have occurred since 1924 in schools of cities in the three groups mentioned. Per capita costs of instruction have decreased in kindergartens and in normal schools, and have increased in all other types of schools. In 1926 it cost $53.55 to instruct each pupil in average daily attendance in kindergartens, $63.50 per pupil in elementary schools, $86.91 in junior high schools, and $116.57 in high schools. Per-pupil costs for the other types range from $150.68 per pupil to $187.62. A small part of the cost of instruction in kindergartens is included with elementary schools costs, as it is not always possible to separate it.

While the number of pupils in kindergartens in cities of these three groups increased 9.3 per cent, the number in average daily attendance increased 11.3 per cent, and while elementary pupils show a decrease of 0.3 per cent in enrollments, the increase in average daily attendance is 0.9 per cent. The corresponding figures for junior high schools are 47.3 and 49.2 per cent; for high schools, 6.4 and 7.6 per cent; for special schools, 0.5 and 2.3 per cent; for vocational schools, 6.7 and 14.6 per cent; for normal schools, 31.6 and 33.5 per cent; and for colleges, 88.5 and 158.3 per cent. The higher increase in every type of school for average daily attendance over that for enrollment ought to give cause for gratification to every attendance officer and to the authorities who are trying to make the school both more attractive and more effective.

Table 2 gives a summary by States of the personnel and attendance in day schools, in night schools, and in summer schools for all cities having a population of 2,500 and more. The number of men teachers in day schools is 40,060, an increase of 15 per cent over 1924, and the number of women teachers is 298,770, an increase of 7 per cent over 1924. The number of pupils in average daily attendance is 9,694,379, an increase of 4.3 per cent over 1924. The number of teachers and other officers in night schools increased nearly 11 per cent, while the number of pupils increased scarcely 2 per cent during the two-year period. Substantial increases in night-school enrollments over 1924 are shown in Alabama, California, Colorado, Delaware, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and Washington. Marked decreases are noted in Arizona, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, and Wisconsin.

The summer schools show an increase of 13 per cent in the teaching force, and of 19 per cent in enrollments.

Table 4 shows for cities of 2,500 to 10,000 population, the same items which Table 2 shows for all cities. The increases over 1924 are rather uniform for all items in this table except for summer-school teachers and pupils, which show a decrease.

In Table 3 is given a summary by States of school buildings, value of school property, and of several items of expenditure for all cities having a population of 2,500 and more. Value of school property in cities increased from $2,664,283,000 in 1924 to $3,385,276,000 in 1926, an increase of 27 per cent. During this time, annual expenditures for capital outlays increased 5 per cent; that is, to $286,069,677.

Salaries increased 13 per cent and total current expenses increased 15 per cent during this period. Capital outlays represent 24.4 per cent of the total 1924 expenditures and 22.7 per cent of 1926. Expenditures for capital outlays in cities with a population of 2,500 to 10,000 decreased about $5,000,000 from 1924 to 1926, as shown by the data in Table 5.

The remaining tables of this bulletin furnish, for each city reporting, detailed information upon the various items included in the first paragraph of this publication, distributed, where possible, according to type of school. It is possible, with the published figures, to compute per capita costs for each city, and for each type of school, and to perform many other computations in making comparisons between cities. Space is given here to but a brief discussion of per capita costs.

PER CAPITA COSTS

Public school expenditures are generally classed under eight headings. General control, or overhead, includes all costs of administration of the schools as a whole. Salaries and expenses of superintendents, business managers, school boards, and superintendents of buildings go into general control, as do salaries of chief attendance officers, charges for rents, and costs of maintaining and operating administration buildings.

Instruction costs include salaries and expenses of teachers, principals, supervisors of instruction, and all expenditures for educational supplies, free textbooks, library books used as supplementary teaching material, and any other items that are expended to improve the quality of teaching.

Operation costs include all moneys spent in keeping the school buildings open and ready for use. This means that fuel costs, payments for light and water, salaries, and expenses and supplies of janitors, watchmen, engineers, and other building employees should be included under operation costs.

Maintenance costs include all payments made to keep the school plant in good repair, but they do not include improvements and additions beyond the necessary upkeep.

Coordinate activities include all salaries and expenses of field workers in compulsory attendance, and employees in medical, dental, and nurse service.

Auxiliary agencies include payments for transportation of pupils, school gardens, savings banks, and operation of playgrounds.

Fixed charges include payments for pensions, rent, insurance, and taxes.

Capital outlays include payments for grounds and improvements of sites, new buildings and additions, and contents of buildings that are not replacements nor repairs. Capital outlays are not included with current expenses, nor have any computations been made that attempt to measure depreciation or appreciation of building values.

The per capita costs mentioned below are based upon the number of pupils in average daily attendance in day schools; and costs for day schools are used, capital outlay and interest on indebtedness, as well as all other debt service, not being included.

In cities of Group I the average per capita cost is about $105. Such cities as Oakland, Calif., Denver, Colo., Boston, Mass., Dayton, Ohio, St. Louis, Mo., Omaha, Nebr., Chicago, Ill., and Camden, N. J., approach this average quite closely. Yonkers, N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y., and Los Angeles, Calif., are near the upper limit of cost per student, ranging from $130 to $150 per pupil in average daily attendance. Birmingham, Ala., Norfolk, Va., and New Orleans, La., are near the lower limit of cost, the range for these being from $60 to $70 per pupil for current expenses.

In cities of Group II the average cost is slightly lower than in Group I, being about $93 for representative cities. The range is from $40 to $140. Cities near the average are Topeka, Kans., Elmira, N. Y., Duluth, Minn., Rockford, Ill., Manchester, N. H., and Quincy, Ill.

In representative cities of Group III the average per capita cost is about $85, being highest in Virginia, Minn., $175.36, and lowest, $24.76, in Phenix City, Ala. Cities near the average are Logansport, Ind., Freeport, Ill., Gloucester, Mass., Braintree, Mass., Fulton, N. Y., and Mason City, Iowa.

In Group IV representative cities have an average of about $75, which is lowest of the group averages. Dixon, Ill., Dodge City, Kans., Merrill, Wis., McPherson, Kans., and Grand Junction, Colo., are cities with a per capita cost near the average of the group.

Averages have been computed showing for each group the percentages of total current expenditures that go to the various fundamental accounts. The amount going to general control ranges from 3.3 to 4.2 per cent. That going to instruction ranges from 74.8 to 76.9 per cent. The range for operation of plant is from 9.6 to 12.1 per cent; for maintenance, from 4 to 5.3 per cent; for coordinate activities and auxiliary agencies, from 2.5 to 3 per cent; and for fixed charges, from 1.8 to 2 per cent.

Table 10 gives a distribution of money received by school systems in cities in Groups I, II, and III, according to the source of such receipts; as, from the United States Government, from State taxes and appropriations, from county taxes, from local taxes, and other local sources of income, from loans and bond sales, from sale of property, and from other nonrevenue receipts. No totals are made for these items, but totals are made for each city reporting. No attempt is made to compute the portion of income from the various sources, but the data are presented in convenient form for those who wish to make comparisons between cities.
