About the Civil Rights Data Collection

The Civil Rights Data Collection (CRDC) is a mandatory survey of all public schools and school districts in the 50 states, Washington, D.C., and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. It gathers information about student access to educational programs, activities, staff, and school climate factors from public schools serving students in preschool through 12th grade. For more information about the CRDC or to download the full 2020-21 CRDC public-use data file, please visit <https://civilrightsdata.ed.gov>.

Impact of the Coronavirus Pandemic

During the 2020-21 school year, 88% of schools offered a hybrid of in-person and virtual instruction in response to the coronavirus pandemic; 6% of schools offered only in-person instruction, and 5% of schools offered virtual instruction only. Only 1% of schools reported that the pandemic had no effect on instruction.

Student-Teacher Ratio by State

During the 2020-21 school year, the average student-teacher ratio was 15:1, meaning that there was 1 teacher for every 15 students. The state with the highest student-teacher ratio was California. The state with the lowest was Vermont.

National Average: 15:1
Highest Student-Teacher Ratio: California (21:1)
Lowest Student-Teacher Ratio: Vermont (10:1)

Note: The student-teacher ratios are averages based on an aggregation of school-level data. The student-teacher ratios at the school-level may vary (e.g., may be larger or smaller) within each state.
