COLUMBUS, OHIO
1966
This materials list has been prepared to help implement a sequential instructional program for slow learning children. (These are the educable mentally retarded in Ohio, I.Q. 50-80.) For this reason, groupings have been planned for specific age ranges:

1. PRIMARY—refers to classes where children less than ten years of age are enrolled.

2. INTERMEDIATE—refers to groups of children in the general age range of ten through twelve years.

3. JUNIOR HIGH—is planned for children approximately thirteen through fifteen years of age, while

4. SENIOR HIGH—refers to pupils who are sixteen years old and over, and to grades 9 through 12.

Elementary classes which include pupils of both primary and intermediate ages (as, C.A. 8-11 or 9-12) will obviously need to have some materials selected from both Primary and Intermediate levels.

Junior high classes which include Grade 9 will need to have materials indicated for ninth grade on the Senior high list. The four high school years were put together because of the requirements specified in the State Board of Education Standards for graduation.

A persisting problem in securing appropriate instructional materials for slow learners has been the indiscriminate use of available materials. There are now many items in use in elementary classes which should be reserved for secondary levels. When books are used inappropriately in the early years of the program, their value for older pupils is negated even though the content may be more applicable to high school curricula and the functioning levels of slow learning adolescents. Elementary special class teachers can use SELECTED materials prepared for the general elementary grades but this is not possible at the high school level. Thus, if materials are used prematurely, the secondary teacher may be left with insufficient instructional resources.—Where titles are applicable in more than one study area or at more than one instructional level, they have been so listed. Therefore it is hoped that age range suggestions will be followed.

It should be noted that the materials and publishers identified in this publication are in no way intended to represent an exhaustive listing. These are intended to be examples of materials appropriate for use with slow learning children.

It is anticipated that from time to time new editions of this bulletin will be issued. Comments and suggestions from teachers as they use the current list will be appreciated. Reactions can aid in reviewing, improving and up-dating the list so that it can be kept practical for school use. In addition requests for review purposes are being continued. As more materials are evaluated, subsequent editions should contain representative items from more publishers.
CRITERIA FOR SELECTION OF MATERIALS

1. Appropriate materials are of necessity selected to fit the age ranges, mental maturity ranges and social developments which may be expected at each level in the program.
   a) Difficulty of materials is related to probable range of mental abilities.
   b) Content is related to the chronological age and social interests of the children.

2. Program goals must be kept in mind when selecting materials, since instructional materials used help determine whether these goals are attained. This is more important now than formerly because more communities have a sequential program providing for children from primary years through high school graduation. Teachers must now be more aware of what is appropriate for their own segment of the program.

3. With books, specific factors were reviewed:
   a) Appearance, by comparison with those used by other students of comparable age.
   b) Page arrangement—placement and quantity of pictures and diagrams; kind, quality and social significance of pictures.
   c) Kind, style, quality of type used.
   d) Evidence of grade labelling and whether this is too obvious.

4. Accuracy of content. Inaccuracies are never deliberate, but sometimes exist:
   a) by implication for a group of children who read quite literally.
   b) because material written even five years ago may not reflect current knowledge in some content areas.

5. Selection was made in part from materials already in use in Ohio slow learning classes and recommended by experienced teachers in the field.

LANGUAGE ARTS
FOR
SLOW LEARNERS
The primary class for slow learning children is basically a non-academic program.

The teacher's major responsibility is to develop a strong readiness program. This should provide background experiences which will enable the child to make acceptable academic gains in intermediate and junior high classes. Formal reading experiences should not begin before the child has attained a mental age of six.

Publisher Code Title Description

P-1 1. A Reading Readiness Program for the Mentally Retarded A complete kit—teacher's manual plus materials for 15 children—excellent for the youngest children, M.A. 3 and 4—for directed work. Developed specifically for slow learners.

2. A Simplified Reading Readiness Program Readiness materials for small group work under direction. Can follow materials listed above or be a part of general readiness for M.A. 4+. Developed specifically for Slow Learning children.

F-4 The Frostig Visual Perception Materials Study sheets for use by small groups in a directed situation. Excellent if used as suggested.

A-6 Peabody Language Development Kit #1 Provides an effective vehicle for language stimulation with small groups.

V-3 Match 'N Learn Alphabet Board

For use by small group approaching reading activities—stimulates written language with emphasis on words. (Teacher resource for older children, also.)

Work sheets to be used, under direction, by individual or small group. These come in tear-off pads.

Readiness material for more advanced children, approaching level for reading.

For teachers who want to use a basic series, this provides a set for slow learning children. It also satisfies parents' need for evidence that "Johnny can read." For directed study with small groups.

Provides practice in identifying capital and small letters.
At the intermediate level, teachers may want to use a basic reading series. The teachers manuals of the series are essential for the sequential development of reading skills.

The reading series selected should be different from the reading series used in the regular elementary program.

When a basic reading series is used, it must be supplemented with books from this list. This is necessary because the sequence in basic series moves faster than the growth patterns of slow learners.

3. Friendly Birds
4. I Like Cats
5. In the Woods
6. Monkey Friends
7. On the Farm
8. Some Are Small
9. Tommy’s Pets
10. Zoo is Home

Because these have a well controlled vocabulary, they are good for directed reading with small groups.

Fanciful tales to stimulate imagination and extend language understandings. Single copies for room library suggested; children can then read them independently and share reports.

Factual stories to counterbalance the folklore group and help children distinguish the “real” from the “make believe”. Single copies for independent, recreational reading should be in the classroom library.

Two or three copies for reference.

To be read to class by teacher—for extending experiences, developing language.

Good, fanciful stories for individual reading and group sharing. Single copies. Independent reading for those with limited skill.
LANGUAGE ARTS

3. Jim Forest and the Mystery Hunter
(Other titles in set recommended for Junior High classes.)

Words for Writing, A to Z Spellers
1. Book I
2. Book II

Single copies — recreational reading.

Book I — resource for less mature, Book II — for more mature intermediate children. Teachers will find the approaches suggested (combined writing, spelling and written expression) helpful.

H-9 The Small One

To be read to class by teacher for extending experiences, stimulating language development.

L-2 Instructional Signs—Set I

For group and individual use to develop awareness of directional signs.

L-6
1. Little Bear’s Pancake Party
2. Little Bear’s Sunday Breakfast
3. Do You Want to Hear a Secret?

Fanciful stories to read for fun and for stimulating imagination — single copies. Good for those with limited reading skill. Teacher read — to small group for language stimulation.

1. George and Herbert
2. Mrs. Talky and Jim Spot
3. Willie Duck

Single copies for independent reading.
4. Who's Afraid?
5. Robin Fly South
   (Other titles in this series recommended for Junior High classes.)

M-4 Tony, the Pony
Single copy - recreational reading.

M-7 The Ugly Duckling
Teacher read—to extend listening-thinking skills, stimulate group discussion.

M-8 Red Deer, the Indian Boy
   (Other titles recommended for Junior High classes.)
Diagnostic reading work-book for directed use with individuals or groups who need practice in reinforcing reading skill.

M-9 1. Little Monkey
    2. Where's Andy?
Single copy—recreational reading for those with limited reading skill.

P-1 Keyboard Town Typing
Where classes have multi-handicapped pupils included, typing may be desirable in order that some of these pupils (C.P., visually handicapped) may be enabled to produce legible papers. Typing can also become an aid in occupational training later. This is a method devised for slow learning children which the classroom teacher will find useful with 10-13 year old slow learners.

P-5 The Magic Bridge Readers
A new series of fanciful short stories — for individual enjoyment and sharing with classmates and friends.

6. Green Eggs and Ham

May be used by individuals for enjoyment or directed work with small groups to sharpen auditory perception skills.

S-4 Learn to Listen, Speak and Write series
1. Level 1-2
2. Level 2-1
3. Level 2-2
(Other levels recommended for primary and Junior High classes.)

Teachers' edition will prove to be good resource. Extending written communication skills.

Linguistic Block Series
1. The Second Rolling Reader
2. The Third Rolling Reader
3. Rolling Phonics - consonants
4. Rolling Phonics - vowels
My Little Pictionary

For reinforcing knowledge of sentence structure and phonics, under direction. Children can practice or review in pairs, also.

My Second Pictionary
(also recommended for Junior High)

Two or three copies for reference. More useful than other picture dictionaries because of its classification system: "Words for People", "Words for What We Do and Did", etc.

S-5 I Learn to Write
1. Book One
2. Book Two

Two or three copies for reference. Most advanced group at intermediate level can use this as a learning tool.

Book I — good teacher resource, will need adapting for older children because of choice of words and pictures. Book II—may be utilized by small group.
S-11 Functional Basic Readers
1. About Things at Home
2. About Going Away
3. Come Along
4. Ready to Help
5. Making Friends
6. Something to Do
7. World of Wonder
8. Enjoy the Seasons
9. Things to Believe
(Other titles in this series suggested for primary, Junior High and Senior high classes.)

T-4 Common Signs of Community Service and Safety

M-3 Challenge Readers
1. Being A Friend
2. Winning Friends

Teachers looking for a basic series will appreciate the progression of this series which is geared to the developmental patterns of slow learners. For use in directed study with small groups.

Two or three sets are suggested for use by individuals and groups. Reading for protection.

Co-basal readers highlighting comprehension skills. Stories are based on social situations with provisions for class discussion.
LANGUAGE ARTS MATERIALS
JUNIOR HIGH LEVEL

Reading skill development is a vital part of the language arts program in the junior high slow learning class. These are the years when the pupils can make greatest gains in academic skills and should be helped to use skills independently. In addition to formal reading instruction, opportunities for application of reading must be provided. This is one reason why library reading is stressed and many single copies of books are included in the lists for subject matter areas (science, social studies).

The junior high teacher will need to be familiar with reading techniques and should have as a professional resource copies of reading manuals and a reading text (Betts, Gates, etc.)

LANGUAGE ARTS (JUNIOR HIGH)

Single copy—recreational reading in line with holiday activities.

Diagnostic reading workbooks for directed use with individuals or groups who need practice in reinforcing reading skills.

Teacher's edition—a good resource—for improving and extending written communication skills.

Individual copies for recreational reading—excellent for giving these pupils the experience of reading "a whole book," also for sharing.

Individual copies—must be purchased as a set of 25 books. (Planned initially for regular 3rd grade.) Books for individual reading, class sharing.

Two or three copies for reference. Less capable Junior high pupils will be able to use this.

Two or three copies for reference. More capable pupils in Junior high will be able to use this.
S-5 Learn Manuscript Writing

For use in helping junior high pupils develop and maintain good manuscript writing patterns needed in meeting community demands.

S-11 Functional Basic Reading series
1. Enjoy the Seasons
2. Things to Believe
3. Something New
4. Among Friends
5. Gather Around

(Other titles in this series suggested for primary, intermediate, and senior high classes)

May be used by small groups in directed study.

W-4 New Practice Readers—Books A & B

For individual or small group use—remedial reading on practice in independent skills.

W-7 American Adventure Series
First four titles

(Other titles in this series suggested for senior high classes)

Single copies for individual independent reading—later sharing with group.
The slow learner in senior high has, at most, four years in which to prepare for community self-sufficiency. For him the language arts program needs to focus on the kinds of language usage required in an adult world; the major portion of his English time will need to be spent in helping him make efficient use of whatever skills he brings with him from the previous classes—applying them to inter-personal relations, personal safety, social and occupational situations, economic demands.

P-5 Numbers for You and Me Workbooks, to be used under direction, on a selective basis with those children who have completed other materials—for further reinforcement of number understandings.

S-4 Numbers We See Teachers' edition is very helpful, as it has a well defined, developmentally oriented approach. If used with children, it is suggested that pictures be covered with “windows”, to reveal small groups at one time instead of cluttered pages. One copy, used with an overhead projector, is suggested. Do not use where this is basic material in primary grades.

I—GENERAL INSTRUCTIONAL AIDS

Concrete arithmetic experiences, started with the primary children, must be continued in the intermediate classes. This is the way number concepts are established, and both computational and problem solving skills developed. Reference book for classroom library—good to reinforce concepts.

Teacher's edition is helpful in developing skills in sequence. Material should be carefully selected and adapted for pupils—not used directly. One copy only.

Workbooks used with teacher direction and supplemented with other activities.

Teacher's edition can provide guides to the development of a sequential skills program. Because of the unfortunate tendency to note “The second grade boys and girls had ——” “The children in the second grade were getting ready to ———,” material should be adapted, rather than used directly with the pupils.

This workbook, planned for slow learners, has good supplementary work pages for the children who have learned to tell time by the clock and calendar. The intermediate child should not be expected to comprehend problems of time in relation to distance (m.p.h.) or dealing with geographical time zones.

JUNIOR HIGH LEVEL

I — GENERAL INSTRUCTIONAL AIDS

Even at the secondary level, concept development must be reinforced through practical application. In the junior high it may be expected that some pupils are still establishing computational skills (especially those of multiplication and division). Similarly, for many slow learners fractions and decimals (money) take on meaning for the first time at this age level because of their relationship to shop and home economics programs, use of the school cafeteria and participation in school activities. Therefore, the following visual manipulative and non-book materials are needed in a junior high class:

ARITHMETIC
(SENIOR HIGH)

1-0 Everyday Consumer Business

This provides information from which the teacher can expand and build depth into instruction for groups using P-2, above. A single copy should suffice, since it is not recommended as a book to put into the hands of the students. (On rare occasions an individual pupil may be permitted to use this for a specific assignment.)

Recommended for Grades 10 and/or 11, so as to relate to work experience (particularly Book 2). Developed by a special class teacher for his own classes.

For use in 9th grade, whether this is in junior or senior high school in local organization. Good preparation for material in N-5, P-2, above.

Good review to insure pupils in Grades 11-12 have mastered essential arithmetic needed in life situations.

In a senior high class there may be one or more pupils whose skills are weak—not to the point where they need initial instruction, but where remedial instruction is indicated. Because the format is juvenile, although the content is basic to adult needs, teachers may prefer to have one copy, with the guidebook, and adapt material for their students.

SOCIAL STUDIES FOR SLOW LEARNERS
SOCIAL STUDIES
PRIMARY LEVEL

Since the majority of slow learners up to and through age ten have little reading skill, social studies is primarily an action experience for the primary class. Seeing, feeling, and talking all take precedence over reading in developing children's awareness of people, places and things in their immediate environment and in learning social interaction. Consequently, few books can be suggested for use with slow learning children in primary classes. (Teachers are referred to appropriate curriculum guides, teachers manuals and professional references from which ideas for social studies units can be gleaned.)

cepts relative to home, school and neighborhood. Because this is a readiness book, requiring no reading, it can be used, under direction, by a group of children. The teacher can edit to delete "the first grade", where it appears, as she reads or re-tells the story. The teachers' edition is particularly helpful because, in addition to suggested activities and procedures, there are lists of related books to be read to the children, films and filmstrips that may be helpful.

A-3 Our Homes and Our Schools

The first part of this book is quite usable by a small group under teacher direction. Chapters 4 through 7 will be usable by the more advanced children or may be read to the group by the teacher. Basic ideas relative to school and family living are emphasized.

H-7 A New Hometown

Especially good for communities where new housing developments are being established, or for any class where a child and his family is moving into or out of the area. Acquaints children with concepts of interdependence of people, importance of interpersonal relationships. Teacher's edition is especially helpful because it includes lists of books to be read to the children and handled by the children, suggested films, filmstrips and records, and professional refer-would be good to introduce a unit on homes (pointing up how "homes" differ from "houses")—and good for the library table afterwards. Not over six copies needed—and a single one could suffice.

teacher's edition encompasses excellent suggestions for a readiness program in the social studies. the children's book, which should be used after classroom working patterns have been established, puts emphasis on shared responsibilities and earned privileges within the family. can relate to children's experiences. a new (diamond) edition was printed in 1965 for communities that are seeking materials reflecting different ethnic groups; can be used to develop an awareness of differences among peoples. - The use of this pictorial and readiness sheet can be the prelude to using the newspapers in the secondary school program. Develops language and social awareness. Copies for the entire class are desirable.

- The teacher can do much to implement learnings if pictures are taken of classroom and field trip activities. Should always be used to reinforce a basic concept. (If the P.T.A., or another organization, wishes to make a contribution, a Polaroid camera is especially helpful to use with young children.)

- Children should be acquainted with these commercially prepared signs, but these should be supplemented by field observations of actual signs within the school neighborhood—and how they should be obeyed.

- Primary children. Three to five copies of the pupils books would be helpful for use in reinforcing concepts with small groups of children within the class. Should always be used under teacher direction, to insure the development of an appropriate idea, since it is difficult for slow learners to “un-learn and re-learn” once misconceptions have been established.
4. Other neighborhood signs

Children can use these — the neighborhood gas station, church, yellow brick house, trailer camp entrance, etc. to orient themselves to directions within the community.

5. Monthly Activity Units, Grade 1

General information for community living.

Monthly publication which offers opportunity for the development of social studies concepts and interpretation through oral language and readiness activities.
SOCIAL STUDIES

INTERMEDIATE LEVEL

While a few slow learners are unable to make substantial reading progress even in the intermediate special class, most bring a degree of social background and sight vocabulary with them from the primary area. They can acquire skill proficiency during their intermediate years equivalent to that of an average third grade pupil. Skills developed in the language arts can be used in subject areas, so that, while seeing, feeling, and talking about social studies content still receives major emphasis, intermediate class pupils are now encouraged to secure additional information by reading books and using other resources.

Textbooks, per se, are not recommended; but textbooks purchased in limited quantities (3 to 6 per class) may become resource materials studied by small groups under teacher guidance or used by class committees in working out reports. In addition, the room library should include many single copies of "information books" and stories relative to units planned for the intermediate area. Most of these will relate to the immediate neighborhood and will be designed to encourage greater personal responsibility, improved social interaction and sharper awareness of the environment than children of a younger age could develop. A wide variety is particularly essential because children may find themselves in the same special class for two to four years. (Most school districts do not have sufficient number of slow learning classes to permit annual promotion.)

Among the books which have proven useful in intermediate slow learning classes are the following:

These are too difficult, both in terms of vocabulary and concept development, for the intermediate children to really read "on their own". However, these are at a social level of the intermediate slow learner, and contain information with which his peers will expect him to be acquainted. It is suggested that single copies be in the classroom library and that the teacher use them with the children at appropriate times during the school year.

1. The True Book of the Circus
2. The True Book of Our Post Office and How It Helps

Single copies for reference use may be helpful, since content covers many points which are emphasized with slow learners. However, teachers should scan to select segments to be used. Those parts in which “the First Grade” or “the Second Grade” appear should be avoided.

Good for use by individuals or by a group within the class. Can be read easily by most intermediate slow learners, and contains information pertinent to the social studies sequence. Suggest 5 or 6 copies.

A good reference for the more mature intermediate child. Suggest 5 or 6 copies for the class.

Three to five copies may be shared by a small group, with teacher direction—later put on classroom library shelves for individual reference.

Single copies — for reference use — are suggested for the classroom library.

Single copy for library reference.

Although the reading level of these books is beyond that of most intermediate slow learners, the photographic plates help to develop the concepts behind the words. Single copies for reference when studying units on use of leisure time, homes, travel.

Single copies, to be kept on the library shelf, can be used effectively for guidance and social studies reference. (The children will think they are also “for fun”.)

Particularly good to use with children who have just been promoted from a primary special class—or with those children who are less mature in the intermediate group. This book lends itself well as a reference for unit teaching. Suggest five or six copies for the class. Teacher’s edition suggests many good resources, also.

Single copies of these are suggested for the classroom library.

These should work well for small group work and individual references in classes which contain children of both primary ages and intermediate age. The introduction to concept of change and progress is well done. 1965 Diamond edition is available for communities desiring it. Three to five copies of each title are suggested. Teacher's edition gives many pertinent suggestions for social studies sequence, and concept development. Pictures tend to be babyish for older intermediate children.

Although pictures are young for intermediate children, one copy should be kept for reference. Stories tend to accentuate the idea of being helpful, consideration for others — developing friendships. Map skills are well introduced, also. Teacher's edition is quite useful especially in its listing of resource materials.

for "tests". The older intermediate children can check acquired information and feel more "like" their peers in the intermediate grades who have progress tests in content areas.

These provide the child with another key to the world around him and help him develop awareness of events both near and far away. Older children in the class may be pointed towards awareness of newscasts on TV and radio and of headlines in the daily paper.

As with primary children, snapshots or Polaroid pictures of class activities and field experiences can be good motivation for both initial learning and recall. If feasible, slides are another way to picture activities, also.

Provides a good way for children to summarize information, listen to their presentation and, with help, learn to organize ideas more effectively.

After using these signs which are commercially available, children should be encouraged to make their own, relating them to local community usage.

Because this was written for children in regular intermediate and junior high school grades, the vocabulary is be-

These can be related to general community pattern, and used as an introductory step towards making simple maps of their own community.

These are used only incidentally with intermediate slow learners, but can be related to visits from people out of the community and to community orientation. More detailed map study is reserved until secondary level.

These can build a general background for interpretation so necessary for communication expected of adolescents in the community. The Grade 3 series would preferably be used with those children who are most likely to be in junior high school after the current school year.
At the junior high level, social studies for the slow learners has two major emphases:

1. Personal—social development
   The adolescent should be beginning to assume responsibility for his own actions, to work out a code to live by and to demonstrate his ability to interact with his peer group in school and community.

2. A depth study of the local community which notes:
   a) community change—local history, civic progress
   b) community responsibility—provisions for law, government, health, welfare, safety
   c) community recreation—facilities provided, how to use them
   d) community occupations—kinds of work done in the area
   e) inter-community relations—differences and similarities with other communities; exchange of goods and services.

Because much of this information cannot be found in available textbooks, library reference materials become especially important for this age level. Among these resources which junior high groups have found useful are:

Written by a special class teacher for her own pupils, this provides an orientation to help the adolescent gain perspective of himself in relation to "his" world. Parts can be used as written; other items will need to be adapted to the local area. Some of this information will be reinforced in the high school program; it is and should be at the acquaintanceship level. Good, if appropriately used, for mature pupils within the class.

S-2 Our Working World

This presents a sound picture for the concept of work—individual and collective economic responsibility. However, the material will need adaptation for junior high pupils rather than being presented “as is”.

a) Advertisements from local stores—groceries, clothing, etc.

b) Maps—city, county, county-seat (If not own school district) and state road maps furnished by gas stations in community. Simple globe.

c) Menus—from local restaurants and from recognized establishments within a 10 to 20 mile area. (Should not be limited to the "hamburger joints". In this day, slow learners need acquaintanceship with "good" restaurants, also. Some may patronize them; some may work in them, a few years hence.

Uses of these would appear to be self-explanatory. The creative teacher will think of additional items.
d) Notices — banks, city-county offices, church and lodge bulletins, newsletters for civic and social organizations (with emphasis on those which have appeal for teenagers).

8. Local Library resources

For information on local history.

9. Commercially available slides, filmstrips, movies and tapes related to units being taught

These are too numerous to list—and will vary from class to class. How they are used is extremely important; most slow learning groups will need two or three directed viewings.

10. Globe, state maps, area maps

To relate to current events and to map routes for field trips.

Although scarcely "materials", per se, mention should be made of the fact that well planned field trips can serve a highly functional purpose at this age level. Field trips should include industrial plants, historical sites, county court houses, hospitals, etc. These places are not appropriate for the younger slow learner.

SENIOR HIGH LEVEL

The purpose of social studies for the senior high slow learner is to round out his preparation for and assist his transition to adult community living. Emphasis is given to the development of habits and attitudes that encourage objective self-appraisal, contributing family membership, responsible citizenship and efficient work patterns—with opportunities for the pupil to demonstrate the degree to which he can meet these goals. The social studies program must, therefore, relate to the occupational orientation and work-study program for slow learners as well as provide background to partially meet the standards for graduation—Ohio history, United States history and government should be taught at a level commensurate with the pupil's ability and rate for learning.

Library reference material, both within the classroom and in the school library, thus become major teaching aids, because the most important content may not be available in any textbook currently available. Resources which high schools have found useful include:

SOCIAL STUDIES
(SENIOR HIGH)

N-5 The Turner-Livingston Reading series
1. The Person You Are
2. The Family You Belong To
3. The Friends You Make
(Other titles suggested elsewhere in this list.)

The Turner-Livingston Communication series
1. The Television You Watch
2. The Phone Calls You Make
3. The Newspaper You Read
4. The Movies You See
(Other titles suggested for English)

S-1 Tab books
1. Clara Barton
2. Just Plain Maggie
3. The Story of John Paul Jones
4. Boy on the Mayflower

Good basic information, written by a special class teacher. Can lead to group and individual judgments relative to attitudes, behavior, and personal responsibilities.

These books, written by a special class teacher for his own group, can be used to reinforce acceptable communication patterns in community living.

Paperback books which can “respectably” be carried to home room or on the school bus. Single copies for the room library are suggested. Other titles from the series might be suggested for the school library.

II. COMMUNITY UNDERSTANDINGS
1. General

N-5 The Turner-Livingston Reading series
The Town You Live In

Good for use with those pupils who may not have gained sufficient depth in junior high, for review with others.

N-6 Living in Our Neighborhood

Written for adult illiterates, this may prove helpful for the adolescent with limited reading ability as well as limited community concepts.

S-4 Men and Machines Work Together

Paperback; good for reference use—two or three copies in room library.
Transportation, Lifeline of America

Also a paperback. One copy sufficient; reading vocabulary more difficult than many slow learners can manage independently.

2. Ohio History (Grades 9 or 10)

A-3 Our State

A single copy, for reference, would appear to be helpful — chiefly in helping the pupils understand that all states are alike in some respects, different in others. Teacher's edition is useful.

B-2 Where the Ohio Flows

At current writing, this is the best single reference for slow learners because it is within the reading range of a larger number of slow adolescents than any other Ohio history. Six to eight copies suggested for class use. Teacher's manual may also be useful.

C-3 Enchantment of America series

1. Lakes, Hills and Prairies
2. Ohio

Two or three copies of each are suggested for room reference. Well illustrated and acceptable format for high school.

H-6 Land of the Great Lakes

Good information which, unfortunately, is "packaged" in a rather juvenile fashion. A single copy is suggested for library reference.
SOCIAL STUDIES
(SENIOR HIGH)

L-8 Buckeye Tales

An older book, written for younger children, but which contains sufficient information to warrant having a single copy on the reference shelf.

M-8 Columbus, the Buckeye Capital

Two or three copies are suggested for the reference shelf. Much of the information should be adapted to make it available to those pupils who have insufficient reading skill to read it independently. For those groups which do not live within easy access of Columbus, relationships to the rest of the state should be brought out through discussion and role playing.

M-8 The Story of Ohio

In workbook form, this contains material that lends itself to adaptation — and to developing the semester tests (which older slow learners frequently want to have when their peers are having exams.)

P-5 Ohio, The Buckeye State

A popular text for junior high school, this book contains some information not included in the others on this list. One or two reference copies may be useful; the pictures and diagrams can be interpreted even though the vocabulary is beyond the slow learning level. (This will also provide good background information for a teacher who is not a native Ohioan.)
III. American History (Grade 10 or 11)

A-1 Learning About Our Country

Our America

Good information but, because of format, single copy only is suggested for room library reference.

C-3 Pictorial Encyclopedia of American History

Sixteen volumes, plus a teacher's guide (Vol. 17) make up this set. Ideally, it should be in the high school library, where students in the slow average range could also have access to it. A set is recommended for reference use by the slow learning class(es), whether in room or in library.

F-2 The Story of America series

1. Colonial America
2. Great Americans
3. Great Explorers
4. Pioneer Days
5. Transportation

NOTE: Sets of photographic plates to parallel the material in these books are available from I-1

F-4 Great Moments in American History

Two or three copies for reference use.

H-2 Citizens of the U.S.A., Book I
A workbook text which emphasizes personal—local citizenship responsibility, and personal relationship to the national government. Reading level (approximately fifth grade) limits its usefulness with many slow learners, but ideas can be adapted.

M-8 The Great Law of Our Land
A text workbook that some slow learners may enjoy using for review and clarification of information gained from other sources. Reading level appears to be fifth to sixth grade equivalent.

N-6 How to Become A United States Citizen
Written for the foreign born adult in naturalization class, this handbook spells out citizenship responsibilities in terms the slow learner can understand. Three to five copies suggested for small group use.

How We Live
A citizenship handbook written for adult illiterates, this, too, will be useful in working with slow adolescents. Three to five copies suggested.

Live and Learn
A corollary to How We Live, by the same author. Simple vocabulary. Concepts are well presented. Three to five copies suggested.

O-2 How to be a Wise Consumer
Used also with math, this brings a personal dimension to the responsibilities of the citizen. (Same author as wrote civics handbooks noted in N-6.)
R-5  Foundations of Citizenship, revised

Written by a special class teacher for his own pupils, this volume again brings citizenship responsibilities down to the personal level where they have meaning for these adolescents.

Rights and Duties of Citizens

This workbook accompanies the book mentioned above. Good for occasional use to reinforce or review concepts, good for suggestions for teachers.

S-7  The Free State

Geared more to the interests and capabilities of the slow average pupil, a single reference copy would be useful in a high school learning class.

S-14  My Country

A civics handbook written for adult illiterates, this presents information at a level the slow learner can understand. Five or six classroom copies are suggested.

U-1  Federal Textbook on Citizenship, Simplified edition

Written for naturalization classes, this is an excellent handbook—and one which is adult in appearance and content. The more competent pupils could profitably use this as a study reference, and it would be most helpful for the teacher. Five or six copies suggested.

How Our Laws Are Made

Single copy for reference. The teacher should find it very helpful.

Our American Government

Single copy for reference. Some pupils can use this for a specific purpose, under guidance. Good aid for the teacher.

These occupations may be occasionally within the reach of the slow learner; but using this information as a take-off, the students can learn this for themselves rather than from adults.

Single copies for reference are suggested. (Written for slow average, reading range is Grade 4-6.)

Used in English and math, these two pads point up personal responsibility and direction in seeking jobs. Good for practice, preliminary to utilizing local resources.

Written by a group of special teachers for their students, these units encompass information about occupations, family living and social skills. Copies should be available to supplement and extend concepts developed with Mrs. Carson's and the Finney Company materials mentioned above.

Written by a special teacher for his pupils, these workbooks contain pertinent information for slow adolescents. The format appears somewhat juvenile for the age group towards which it is directed, for which reason two or three copies of each title should suffice. A single copy from which the teacher can adapt information may be preferable in many settings.

The same comments as made above apply here—only more so. A single copy from which the teacher can adapt information is recommended.

Good to parallel the Finney materials and The Job Ahead for pupils with limited background in both reading and job orientation.

Written on three reading levels, this book is the successor to the Rochester Occupational Reading series. Because it contains basic information related to work preparation and experience for slow learners, this book can be used as a class text with a group just

S-11 Off to Work

One of the Functional Basic Reading series, this book is a good one to precede The Job Ahead (S-2) for less mature high school pupils. Points up many of the same characteristics for success on the job and in the community. Three to five copies suggested for group use.

S-19 A Teen-Ager's Guide to Employment

Copies of this should be in the hands of every pupil prior to paid community work experience and the information should be well reinforced through discussion, role playing and reports from graduates or class members who are already working.

VI. OTHER MATERIALS

1. Student Newspapers
   L-9 News for You, Editions A & B or S-1 News Explorer and Newstime or W-12 My Weekly Reader, Editions 4 & 5
   Of these, News for You is strongly recommended because it is more adult (intended for an adult group). More advanced editions of the other two are available but beyond the reading level of slow learners.

2. Local Newspapers
   Important for developing awareness of local affairs and for the pattern of following current events.

3. Pictures
   Pictures of service projects and job experiences can reinforce concepts of work and community responsibility.

4. Tape recorder
   For summarizing and reviewing information. Also for recording classroom interviews.

5. All safety and highway signs
   As community resources, these are of vital importance. Most are now drivers as well as passengers. This has impact on the community because driving requires the ability to decipher, interpret and obey all road signs and road regulations.

6. Driving Rules
   Bulletin issued with each Ohio’s learner’s permit and available from local police. Can be secured for class group.

7. Practical information related to community living
   a) Advertisements from local stores—groceries, clothing, etc.
   Uses of these would appear to be self-explanatory. The creative teacher will think of additional items.
b) Maps—city, county, county seat (if not own school district) and state road maps furnished by gas stations in community.

c) Menus—from local restaurants and from recognized establishments within a 10 to 20 mile area. (Should not be limited to the hamburger joints. In this day, slow learners need acquaintance with "good" restaurants, also, some may patronize them; some may work in them, a few years hence.)

d) Notices — banks, city-county offices, church and lodge bulletins, newsletters for civic and social organizations (with emphasis on those which have appeal for teenagers).

8. Local library resources

To develop a pattern of seeking information which can continue after school years.

9. Commercially available slides, films and filmstrips, also records and tapes related to units in history, government, occupations.

See person responsible for audio-visual aids in your local school.

10. Local map, county, state and area maps, also national map and globe.

To relate chiefly to current events and personal travel plans —also to extend the idea of relationships between communities, states and nation.
SCIENCE FOR SLOW LEARNERS
SCIENCE
PRIMARY LEVEL

Science, like social studies, is primarily an action experience for the young slow learner. Science is designed to develop the child's awareness of his environment, and for that reason must be centered around his physical and mental health, and personal safety. Through observations and manipulations, the pupil can also learn about plants and animals and the effect of weather and seasons on his daily life. Books are of least value in teaching him what he needs to know; therefore very few are suggested. Among those which can be used are:

learners. Teacher's manual is helpful.

Teacher's edition has many good suggestions. Material is up-to-date. Two or three copies could be used, as well as accompanying filmstrips.

L-1 First Steps to Health

Well planned, well illustrated, but teacher will need to adapt because of phrases like "The first grade planned ----". Teacher's edition contains many good ideas. Single copy suggested.

M-1 The Macmillan Science-Life series, Book 1

Good to use with the children, under direction. Makes use of activity and picture interpretation more than reading. Teacher's edition appears particularly helpful. Three to five copies suggested for class use.

S-4 Science is Wondering

A series of charts that stimulate science questions and activities, these should be a "must" in every primary class. Introduction to basic concepts.

Health and Safety charts

A second chart series built around health concepts. Teacher's resource book, which accompanies charts, is full of suggestions. Should be a part of classroom materials.

S-14 Do You Know?

Workbook that can stimulate language relating to science, help review and determine whether concepts have been established, or be used when a substitute teacher is present.
Because his peers are using books to gain information, it becomes important to slow learners at this age level to use some comparable material. However, seeing, feeling, and experimenting with things to secure answers to questions are still the most important approaches to science for these boys and girls. Teachers need to be selective of information, also, recognizing that health, safety, plant and animal life, weather and seasons, are the primary topics for study. Unit studies on dinosaurs, planets or space exploration are not appropriate for slow learners.

filmstrips should be helpful, as should teacher's edition of the texts. Three to five copies suggested.

This book is quite usable as a reference for intermediate slow learners, under teacher direction. Concepts well presented.
Activities and experiments are feasible for classroom use.
Teacher's edition is particularly helpful. Approach to mental as well as physical health is positive. Suggest three to five copies.

Written as supplementary or
"co-basal" readers, these books are actually presenting a mental health approach to personal relationships which intermediate slow learners both need and appreciate. Suggest five or six copies of each title, to be used under teacher direction.

Single copies for library reference are suggested.

Good to use with a few of the slower developing children in an intermediate class. Its reliance on picture interpretation rather than reading for information gives the older elementary child who is borderline a chance to do some thinking "on his own."
Basic concepts are developed.
Teacher's edition plus three to five copies are suggested.

2. Science is Learning

Good basic material within the comprehension of the upper group in the class. Teacher's edition plus five or six copies are suggested for class use.

3. Health for All, Book One
Health for All, Book Two

Up-to-date. Deal with mental as well as physical health. Three to five copies of each title suggested for class use.

S-6 Science 1

Photographic plates make this a superior reference for intermediate children. Concepts presented are basic to daily living.
Three to five copies suggested
for class use.

S-8 Science for You

Single copy on reading shelf can be useful in extending information.

S-14 Things Around You

A workbook that can be useful for review or when substitute teacher is needed. (Substitute cannot be expected to know group routines.)
Major science emphases continue to be those mentioned at the elementary level. However, because adolescents have more responsibilities within the family and these young people need specific information to survive in regular shop and home economics courses, the proper care and use of gas and electrical appliances, motor driven equipment, comes in for consideration. Adolescent curiosity (and appetites!) make this a good time to stress food preparation and preservation—and to experiment with food spoilage. Experimentation, observation and discussion should take precedence over reading about science; but information can be secured from such materials as:

SCIENCE

SENIOR HIGH LEVEL

The importance of physical and mental health is still the primary consideration in the science program—with emphasis now on family and citizenship responsibilities as well as personal health and safety. An amazing amount of general science can be assimilated in relation to job orientation, also—such as uses and choices of detergents, stain removal, choice of paints and varnishes for specific uses, friction, etc. Wherever feasible, observation and experimentation are the best approaches; but supplementary book information can be helpful.

Materials other schools have found useful are listed below. (Health books are marked with an asterisk so that they may be identified for specific health classes.):

One way to acquaint pupils with their national heritage—and to relate science to leisure time activities. Single copies on library shelf are suggested.
Another way to extend horizons for these boys and girls. Photographic plates make up for difficulty of the reading level—and the books are acceptable to all high school students. Single copies are suggested, for reference.

Teacher’s edition suggested for adaptation, plus single copies for reference. Format and illustrations negate general use at high school level, although the information is sound. While inappropriate for direct use with pupils, the content of these books is pertinent to needs of slow learners. Single copies of the teacher's edition are suggested for ideas and adaptation.

The teacher—or the more advanced readers in the class—may find it preferable to read to the group from these books, since operational level is beyond many pupils in the slow learning range. However, the content is important to the development of mental health concepts. CRITERIA FOR SELECTION OF MATERIALS

1. Appropriate materials are of necessity selected to fit the age ranges, mental maturity ranges and social developments which may be expected at each level in the program.
   a) Difficulty of materials is related to probable range of mental abilities.
   b) Content is related to the chronological age and social interests of the children.

2. Program goals must be kept in mind when selecting materials, since instructional materials used help determine whether these goals are attained. This is more important now than formerly because more communities have a sequential program providing for children from primary years through high school graduation. Teachers must now be more aware of what is appropriate for their own segment of the program.

3. With books, specific factors were reviewed:
   a) Appearance, by comparison with those used by other students of comparable age.
   b) Page arrangement—placement and quantity of pictures and diagrams; kind, quality and social significance of pictures.
   c) Kind, style, quality of type used.
   d) Evidence of grade labelling and whether this is too obvious.

4. Accuracy of content. Inaccuracies are never deliberate, but sometimes exist:
   a) by implication for a group of children who read quite literally.
   b) because material written even five years ago may not reflect current knowledge in some content areas.

5. Selection was made in part from materials already in use in Ohio slow learning classes and recommended by experienced teachers in the field.
