FOREWORD

Competition for sales dollars is a constant challenge faced by most, if not all, types of marketers. Invariably, increasing competition in terms of merchandise, prices, services, facilities, displays, employee development, and public relations emphasizes the need for effective coordination of all marketing activities involved in the selling function.

This adult distributive education course, Sales Promotion, was developed initially by members of the Bureau of Business and Distributive Education and based on material used in the adult distributive education program in Connecticut and several other states of the North Atlantic region. The present revision was prepared by Alan J. Rubin, merchandise manager at the Casual Corner, Inc., Midtown Plaza, Rochester, New York, under the direction of E. John Gradoni and Hunting Sherrill of the Bureau of Business and Distributive Education.

Sales promotion, when successfully executed, supplements and reinforces the materials and techniques used in advertising, personal selling, product display, and publicity. In their quest for additional business, it is anticipated that many owner-managers of retail establishments, and some of their employees, will acquire greater insight into an important and at times complex phase of their operation by completing this course.

The Bureau of Continuing Education Curriculum Development revised, edited, and prepared this manuscript for press.

INTRODUCTION

Broadly defined, sales promotion refers to any special effort a marketer may make to improve his business and to hold on to his customers. It includes anything he does to move additional goods and services out of his store. All business activities which are intended to have a positive influence on sales can be considered sales promotion.

This suggested outline for a course in Sales Promotion is designed to cover some of the basic aspects of the subject, including such things as the relationship of sales promotion to other forms of selling activity, purposes and objectives of a properly conceived program, use of major types of promotional media, and accepted evaluative criteria and techniques. The complex nature of sales promotion restricts the scope and depth of content presented in any short course. The course outlined in this publication is not intended for anyone with extensive experience in sales promotion.

This course is planned for not less than five 2-hour sessions. Possible teachers include a sales promotion manager, a merchandising manager, an owner-manager of a small business enterprise, a teacher of distributive education in high school or college. Because of the need for continuity in presentation, it is suggested that one individual be assigned to teach the complete course. This should not be interpreted to preclude the use of selected guest speakers. Whenever possible, group participation and discussion rather than the lecture method should be used.

Experience has shown that the most successful instructors of sales promotion are those who are familiar with local business conditions and practices, and can relate course content to day-to-day experiences of the enrollees.

TIPS FOR INSTRUCTORS

A. Preparation

1. The room
   a. Arrange chairs so students can face one another.
   b. Check visual aids and physical properties such as heat, light, ventilation, ashtrays, comfortable chairs, and freedom from noise.

2. Teaching aids--chalkboard, charts, illustrations, diagrams, posters, cartoons, books, manuals, pamphlets, instruction sheets, samples, cutaways, motion pictures, filmstrips and slides, models, exhibits, and field trips

3. Teaching methods
   a. Discussion--to warm up or review, to promote understanding, to give reasons, to emphasize factual material, to make people think, to get opinions
   b. Conference--to modify opinions, to develop understanding, to get acceptance
   c. Demonstration, dramatization, and field trips--to show manipulative operations, to clarify principles or theory, to show use of equipment, to orient and explain
   d. Practice and drill--to develop performance skill, to help in retaining information, knowledge, and understanding
   e. Lecture--to present information or explain a process

B. Presentation

1. Be positive--direct attention quickly to the subject at hand.
2. Direct the thinking of the group--focus attention on specifics; keep order.
3. Speak correctly--use a pleasant voice, control pitch and volume; speak slowly and distinctly; enunciate clearly; use proper words.
4. Be well groomed and conservatively dressed.
5. Avoid distracting mannerisms.
6. Start on time; be businesslike; stop on time.
7. You should:
   a. Smile--it's standard equipment.
   b. Be enthusiastic--it's contagious.
   c. Sell--never tell.
   d. Change voice, pace, and tone.
   e. Encourage participation.
   f. Dramatize.
   g. Follow your plan.
C. Handling visual aids

1. Flow charts
   a. Face the students, not the chart.
   b. Be sure everyone can see the flow chart.
   c. Use a pointer.
   d. First go through the points on the chart quickly.

2. Chalkboard
   a. Write legibly, but quickly.
   b. Stand beside, not in front of, your writing.
   c. Talk while writing.
   d. Use the chalkboard as you would a chart presentation. (See C, 1, Flow Charts, above.)

3. Films (moving picture and slide)
   a. Preview the film.
   b. Plan introductory remarks.
      (1) What the film will show
      (2) Why it is being shown
      (3) What the students are expected to get out of it
   c. Prepare the room and equipment.
   d. Prepare students to see the film.
   e. Project the film. (Don't leave the room.)
   f. Summarize the main points.

D. Using the proper teaching method

1. Discussion, conference, demonstration, practice and drill, and lecture (see A, 3, a-e) are all good methods.
2. Do not embarrass an adult with a question he can't answer.

E. Closing the session

1. Summarize the key points.
2. Encourage the students.
3. Promote attendance at next session.
4. Do not assign homework.
POINTERS FOR DISCUSSION LEADERS

A. Prepare the lesson.
   1. Determine what is to be presented.
   2. Organize your lesson; outline it.
   3. Decide the best method of presentation.
   4. Plan suitable visual aids—charts, graphs, slides, films, and pamphlets.
   5. Reduce your plans to writing:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A.-----</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.-----</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.-----</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B.-----</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.-----</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

B. Prepare yourself.
   1. Rehearse your presentation.
   2. Time your presentation. Reserve about half your time for discussion and questions.
   3. Attempt to anticipate questions that may be asked.

C. Prepare the room.
   1. Check list of materials and aids you plan to use.
   2. Check operation of any required equipment.
   3. Check room facilities—chalkboard, chalk, erasers, lights.

D. Prepare your class.
   1. Introduce yourself.
   2. Make a few introductory remarks.

E. Miscellaneous
   1. Emphasize and summarize important points.
   2. Announce each topic you present; summarize afterwards.
   3. When talking, face the class, not the chalkboard.
   4. Insist that students identify themselves when asking questions.
   5. Ask that elaborate questions be rephrased into shorter ones.
   6. Do not permit questions until the end of lecture period.
   7. Permit only one question or problem at a time. Carry each problem through to a conclusion before the next question.
