"The Measurement and Description of Language Dominance in Bilinguals"

1. Overview

The three-month period covered by this report was primarily devoted to interdisciplinary data collection in a Puerto Rican neighborhood in Jersey City, N. J. Copies of the final instruments, data collection schedules, interview guides and other measures developed thus far are appended to this report, as called for in our contract.

Considerable effort was also directed toward transcribing the many taped interviews, conversations and test sessions that have been conducted by project staff members. In a number of instances data analyses were also begun, usually on a "try-out" basis. Data processing and data analysis plans pertaining to next year's work have been drawn up or, at least, discussed in connection with every one of the studies included in the project.

The measurement and description of widespread and stable intra-group bilingualism: psychological aspects (Robert L. Cooper)

During the months under review our activities fell into three stages: 1) preparation for a trial data gathering run, 2) trial administration of our procedures, and 3) data collection.

The trial data were gathered to test the adequacy of our directions for both respondents and interviewers and to give us an additional basis for choosing those instruments which would ultimately be employed. Respondents for the trial administrations were obtained through the assistance of the Rev. Joseph Plunkett, whose church is located nine blocks from our neighborhood in Jersey City. These respondents live near but not in our neighborhood and were chosen to represent a range of communicative competence.

With each respondent we conducted two interviews, each lasting about two hours. During the first interview, we administered the "multivariate" techniques. These consisted of ten tape-recorded conversations which were played to the respondent. After a conversation had been presented, the respondent was asked questions designed to determine his comprehension of both the manifest and latent (social) content of the conversation.

During the second interview, four "univariate" techniques were administered. These were word frequency estimation, word naming, word association, and recall. In addition, the respondent was asked to rate the frequency with which he used Spanish with different interlocutors in various settings.

On the basis of our trial administrations we were able to shorten the time ultimately required per respondent. This was accomplished by retaining five of the ten multivariate conversations, by reducing the number of items in the word association and Spanish usage rating procedures, and by eliminating the recall technique, which, of the univariate procedures that we tried out, seemed least promising.

After revising our interview schedule on the basis of the trial administrations, we proceeded to gather data in our neighborhood. Respondents were chosen who varied in terms of certain criteria (number of years of formal schooling, language in which schooling was conducted, age, and degree of job responsibility) in an attempt to maximize variation in performance on our tasks. All respondents chosen had already been "censused" (see section 5c, below), and most of the male respondents were also involved in sociological interviews (see section 5d, below).

Transcripts of the retained tape-recorded multivariate conversations are presented in Appendix A. The revised interview schedule is shown in Appendix B. Two forms of the schedule were used. These were identical except for the order in which the Spanish and English stimuli were presented in the word frequency estimation, word naming, and word association tasks. The schedule has eight parts: 1) conversations (multivariate techniques), 2) perception test, 3) word frequency estimation, 4) word naming, 5) reading of word lists, 6) reading of prose, 7) word association, and 8) Spanish usage rating. The interview, which took between 2½ to 3 hours to complete, was conducted in whichever language (or combination of languages) seemed to be most comfortable for the respondent.

The second, fifth and sixth sections of the interview were included as part of the linguistic investigation. The second section was designed to assess respondents' ability to recognize certain phonological variables. The fifth and sixth were constructed to elicit speech at two different levels of formality. In addition, an attempt was made to elicit casual speech by the use of certain probes as part of the multivariate questioning (see, for example, Appendix B, page 4, #6.0, 6.01, and 6.1), and, in general, by encouraging the respondent to digress or to relate material of personal relevance. Thus, from each respondent, in addition to
4. The data obtained from his performance on the multivariate and univariate tasks, we have samples of speech elicited under contexts varying in formality and susceptible to linguistic analysis.

4. The measurement and description of widespread and stable intra-group bilingualism: linguistic aspects (John J. Gumperz and Roxana Ma)

During the past three months, we have concentrated on gathering our linguistic data in accordance with the elicitation procedures outlined in the Third Progress report. The first half month of June was spent in getting acquainted with various members of our Jersey City community and getting them used to seeing us around with our tape recorders (even letting them listen to themselves on playback). Because of the informality of our approach, we have been able to gather a lot of conversations which are quite natural despite our being present at them. Most of July was spent in literally tagging along with particular respondents as they went about their daily routines. In the case of women, these involved shopping trips, looking after children, going to the hospital and church, visits to friends' homes, visits by friends and god-parents, etc. In the case of men, many informal conversations were recorded on the front stoops (where the men gather in the evenings over beer to listen to the ballgame or chat about the day's events), in local bars, and in the home during visits by neighbors, relatives and friends. In August, we designed a linguistic "questionnaire" consisting of a perception test, word lists, and reading passages especially designed to elicit those English and Spanish phonological variables which we have found to vary significantly with social context. This questionnaire is being administered currently as part of the psychological interview schedule and will constitute the formal speech variety of our linguistic data. In contrast to our casual speech samples which were collected from a small number of respondents, the questionnaire will be collected from a much larger sample of the community population. (The psychological interviews also seek to elicit informal speech; see section 3, above).

The speech events collected in the natural settings cited above range in topic (for men) from small talk about the weather, family affairs, anecdotes about work, joking, etc: to discussions and arguments of technical know-how about cars, baseball, getting around New York, etc. Among women, topics revolve typically around children's health and care, good (steady worker) and bad (drinks too much) habits of their husbands, living conditions in New York vs. Puerto Rico, schooling and the importance of education and learning English, etc. We also have samples of children's play talk among two different age groups. Not all of our natural conversations were recorded with an observer (non-participating) in the room. There were times when we left the room but left the tape recorder running; these situations are quite revealing for the phenomena of switching (from English to Spanish, most often).

In addition to these casual neighborhood conversations, we have recorded more formalized but still natural speech routines such as exchanges between customers and storekeepers, sidewalk services by a Pentecostal minister, speech-making at a Puerto Rican Day parade, public speeches at a local community council meeting, as well as some forms of ritualized language or politeness formulas such as introductions, requests for services or permission, leave-taking, and baby talk (i.e., what mothers use in talking or cooing to their babies).

The sample of respondents from whom we collected almost all of our casual conversations was purposely kept small and selective, for a number of reasons. Our aim is to document this natural casual linguistic behavior of members of a small group interacting in a common social setting, the neighborhood. By developing a close relationship with only a few "typical" members of this group, we have become accepted as their friends and have been able to observe almost unobtrusively at a variety of social events with a minimum loss of the casual quality of these interactions. In addition, the difficulties of recording casual yet phonologically useable conversations against the constant background of a high noise level (radio/TV, children playing, crying, or yelling, washing machines and running water, street noises of children and vehicles) have sometimes made it necessary to gather more data from the same respondents in hopes of obtaining better tape quality. This continued contact has made it easier to obtain increasingly casual speech. A third reason for concentrating on a few respondents was the limiting factor of time.

Our respondent types were chosen partly on the basis of information available from the neighborhood census, partly from personal observations (we kept a diary of observations for all field work and recordings). Using such socio-economic and ethnographic factors as amount of formal education, Puerto-Rican vs. U.S. nativity, middle class aspirations of mobility vs. inability to stick to a job, role-segregated vs. non-segregated household, strict vs. little supervision of children, etc., we hope to build a composite picture of six or more speaker types (male and female, with children being classified by a subset of these broad categories). Conversations collected from our speaker types reflect a broad range of topic variation as well as variation among role relationships (husband-wife, mother-child, mother-coparent, child-child, etc. and social relationships (family unit, peer groups, acquaintances, strangers, etc.).

Concurrent with our data collection, we have been preediting our tapes as we collect them so as to avoid unnecessary transcription. We have tried to limit our transcription task to recording those sequences of speech which are self-contained in some sense (as well as relatively free from external noise or interruptions) such as continuous talk about a particular topic, routine or formulaic exchanges when a new participant comes into or leaves the room, scolding a child about something he has or hasn't done, and so forth. Our transcriptions are annotated as to the expressive functions of the speech event as we observed it and the channel cues such as laughter, speech speed and loudness of voice.

One of the major tasks in the next few months is the continued transcription and categorization of these conversation tapes, as well as detailed phonetic transcription and analysis of phonological variation co-occurring with shifts in code, situation, topic and speaker/listener identity. When these are done and scored (we are presently working on methods of scoring and evaluation of data), we will compare them to the scores of data obtained by more formal elicitation methods (the linguistic questionnaire and the psychological interview) to arrive at a broader picture of our speakers' communicative competence and range.

5. The measurement and description of widespread and stable intra-group bilingualism: sociological aspects (Joshua A. Fishman, Gerard Hoffman, Lawrence Greenfield)

a. Sociolinguistically relevant ethnographic description (G.H.). A third draft was completed of the combined ethnographic summary (of the literature) and ethnographic report (based upon several months of observations and taped discussions). This draft was reviewed with the senior staff and criticisms obtained pointing to its further improvement and elaboration. Many of the impressions gained in connection with sociological interviewing in the Puerto Rican neighborhood in Jersey City (in which all Project staff members have been working during this quarter) will also prove to be useful in arriving at a more complete ethnographic description of Puerto Rican bilingualism. Staff members have been keeping diaries of their observations and experience in the neighborhood and these will also be screened for the purposes of the ethnography during the months ahead.

The sociolinguistically relevant ethnographic description aims to provide a systematic introduction to Puerto Rican daily life (its domains, interactions... networks, role-relationships, situations) as well as introduction to widespread aspirations and self- and other- concepts as these are related to and clarify bilingual usage. This description should provide a basic familiarity with the kind of society we have been studying and, as such, provide contextual perspective for the detailed sociological, psychological and linguistic measures yielded by the other studies of this project.

b. Experimental Study of Some Macro- and Micro- Sociolinguistic Parameters (L.G.)

Several preliminary instruments continued to be tried out pertaining to (a) major value clusters and their relationship to use of English and Spanish and (b) self-report of situational language choice. At this time a detailed report is being prepared of the entire experience gained in this study-area during the past half year. On the basis of this report a decision will be reached as to which, if any, of the several rating and/or sorting methods scrutinized thus far might be suitable for final data gathering during the months ahead.

c. Language Census (J.A.F., Heriberto Casiano, Diane Sperber)

After a complete enumeration of the Puerto Rican households in the neighborhood (with the assistance of local informants) a detailed language census was undertaken during the month of July. In each household an adult member was asked to report on his own language behavior as well as on that of each other member of the household. The schedule employed for this purpose (Appendix C) was developed in such a way as to provide also information relevant to some of the individual and social parameters to be investigated by the other studies of this project.

All in all 90 Puerto Rican households were identified in the neighborhood we are studying. Census information was obtained from all but 6 of these households.

In July a reliability check was completed on a random sample of 20 of the initially "censused" households. The purpose of this check was to determine whether or not the language and personal background questions that we had asked would be answered again in the same way as they had been answered initially.

In August the census data obtained were subjected to a preliminary analysis in order to help plan the final analyses that will be attempted during the months to come.

d. Sociological Interviewing (J.A. Fishman and Gerard Hoffman)

A random sample of 30 adult males was selected for interviewing. The selection of respondents was based upon age, number of years of education (in Spanish and in English) and job-responsibility (non-routineness of assignment, importance of work for the firm, direct contact with other employees or with the public at large). Two-hour interviews were conducted in English or Spanish, depending on the respondent's preference, on the following topics: personal background, social contacts, interests, language usage, attitudes toward being Puerto Rican, everyday ethnic behaviors, cultural and leisure time activities, attitudes toward being American, and aspirations concerning one's children's Puerto Rican-ism and Americanism.

Most of the individuals interviewed have also been "censused" and will also be tested on the psychological measures of bilingualism mentioned in section 3, above. As a result, it will be possible to compare the social interview data with other kinds of data (census, sociological interview, psychological testing, linguistic repertoire testing) to determine areas of agreement, disagreement and interrelationship.

All interviews have been tape recorded and a few of the tapes have been transcribed during the period covered by this report. A copy of the interview schedule is attached (Appendix D).
e. Newspaper Content Analysis (J.A.F.)

Both Spanish dailies of New York City as well as one cultural monthly have been monitored continuously during the current quarter. Our attention has been focused on items dealing with the Puerto Rican community at large and its social, cultural and economic activities and concerns. Our ultimate analysis will seek to reveal the extent to which the Spanish and/or English languages are mentioned in these connections. Hundreds of clippings have now been copied, arranged, and readied for analysis. Preliminary plans for content analysis have also been developed.

f. Interviews with Intellectuals and Community Leaders (J.A.F.)

Twenty 2 to 3 hour interviews (in English and in Spanish) have been completed with ten male and nine female respondents. One more female remains to be scheduled. These interviews deal with personal background, language usage, leisure and cultural activities, and attitudes toward Spanish language maintenance and continued cultural creativity among Puerto Ricans in New York. These interviews will be subjected to content analysis. In addition the self-report data on language usage will be related to the repertoire range exhibited by the respondents in their English and in their Spanish speech. Tentative plans have been made for data analysis and data processing.

g. High School Student Self-Report (J.A.F.)

Some four hundred Puerto Rican high school students (all of them members of ASPIRA) have submitted brief self-reports on the same eight variables mentioned in connection with the sociological interviews (section d, above). Two-thirds of these students were also asked to provide information concerning their personal readiness to strengthen and improve the use of Spanish among Puerto Rican youngsters in New York City. These latter youngsters have been invited to attend a program in order to discuss this matter further.
The "personal readiness" reports will be analyzed to discover their relationship to the other areas of self-report. Our goal will be to determine the impact of this topic ("personal readiness" to work for the strengthening and improvement of Spanish among Puerto Rican youngsters in New York) on the other self-report topics. All self-reports will be analyzed to discover their relationship to actual attendance at the discussion program. The aim of this study is to illuminate the relationship of self-report to actual behavior in the language-ideology area. Preliminary data analyses were planned and attempted during this period in order to guide final data processing and analysis during the months ahead.

7. A Glance at What Lies Ahead

During the next quarter a modicum of data collection will still be necessary in order to complete a few studies. Disturbances in Newark and in New York slowed down our data collection for several weeks and, as a result, we will need to continue some data collection during the next 3 months rather than turn our entire attention to other matters as initially planned.

The lion's share of attention and effort during the next quarter will be devoted to (a) transcribing data (interviews, discussions, test performance) obtained on tape, (b) readying transcribed data for IBM processing. Scoring, content analysis and transferring of data to work sheets should be in full swing (and, in some cases, completed) during the next quarter. If this can be accomplished, the following quarter (December, 1967 - February, 1968) will be devoted to data processing, to be followed by preliminary analyses and interpretations (March, 1968-May, 1968) and final report preparation (June, 1968-August, 1968).

Transcriptions of Conversations Used With "Multivariate" Items
First Conversation

First boy  Well, I'll see you tomorrow and if anything happens, just call me up.

Second boy  Hey listen, don't go yet, my mom says she cooked some food and she wants me to ask you to stay.

First boy  Na, that's okay. I gotta go home anyway. It's about seven o'clock and my mother's probably waiting for me anyway, anyway. So thanks anyway, I'll see you.

Mother  Pero mira Louie tu no te vas a quedar a comer? (But look Louie aren't you going to stay and eat?)

First boy  No, gracias, es que tengo que ir a casa y ya es tarde y tengo que hacer un trabajo de la escuela y mi mama me está esperando. (No, thank you, it's just that I have to go home and it's late already and I have to do homework and my mother is waiting.)

Mother  No, pero mira, si ya servi la comida. (No, but look, I've already served the food.)

First boy  Bueno, no gracias, lo siento pero tengo que irme porque ve mami me está esperando. (Well, no thank you, I'm sorry but I have to go because you see my mother is waiting for me.)

Second boy  Louie, todavía es temprano si allí está en la mesa. (Louie, it's still early, it's there on the table already.)

Mother  Sí, no me vas a despreciar, no? (Yes, you're not going to say no to me, no?)

First boy  Well, I'll guess I'll stay but I gotta leave early.

Mother  Ahora sí, está bien entonces. (Well now, everything's fine then.)
Second Conversation

Mother Hello, quién habla? (Who's speaking?)

Boy Quiero hablar, si es posible con Delilah. (I want to speak to, if it's possible with Delilah.)

Mother Quién es? (Who is it?)

Boy Puede decir que es Tony Figueroa. (You can say it's Tony Figueroa.)

Mother Un momento, por favor. Dalila, Dalila te quieren hablar en el teléfono. Un tal Tony Figueroa. (One moment, please. Delilah, Delilah, they want to speak to you on the phone. A Tony Figueroa.)

Girl Hello?

Boy Hello, Delilah.

Girl Ah, who is this?

Boy Tony Figueroa.

Girl Oh hi.

Boy Hi, how are you.

Girl Oka:.

Boy Listen, what are you doing Saturday night?

Girl Saturday? Nothing really. Why?

Boy I wanted to see if you wanted to go downtown and see a movie with me.

Girl Oh, ah, that sounds nice. Hold on a second, I have to ask my mother. Mami, tu sabes ese muchacho Tony Figueroa? (Mother, do you know that fellow Tony Figueroa?)

Mother No, no lo conozco. Quién es? (No, I don't know him. Who is he?)

Girl Tu lo has visto en casa de Trinidad te acuerdas? (You met him at Trinidad's house, do you remember?)

Mother Cuando? (When?)
Girl
La semana pasada.
(last week.)

Mother
O, aquel alto, medio gordito.
(Oh, that tall one, rather chubby.)

Girl
Sí, ese mismo.
(Yes, that's the one.)

Mother
Sí, sí me recuerdo. Y qué?
(Yes, yes I remember. So what?)

Girl
Bueno él quiere que yo salga al cine con él el Sabado.
(Well he wants me to go to the movies with him on Saturday.)

Mother
El Sabado?
(Saturday?)

Girl
Sí, el Sabado.
(Yes, Saturday.)

Mother
Bueno, te voy a decir, yo no sé, a mí me pides permiso (Well, I am going to say, I don't know, you ask me permission pero al quién le tienes que hablar es a tu padre.
but the one you have to speak to is your father.)

Girl
Bueno .............
(Well.............)

Mother
Y otra cosa que tengo que decir si el muchacho viene, si tu (And another thing I have to say if that boy comes here, if you sales con él tiene que venir aquí, tengo que conocerlo, tu go out with him he has to come here, I have to meet him, your father has to meet him.)

Girl
Tu sabes que él es lo mas nice.
(You know he is very nice.)

Mother
Bueno, allá con tu padre. Tu lo arreglas con tu padre.
(Well, that's up to your father. You fix it with your father.)

Girl
Okay, okay. Ah, hello Tony.

Boy
Yeah.

Girl
Listen, can you call back later? I have to ask my father.

Boy
Sure, about what time?

Girl
About eight o'clock
Okay, I'll call you back later.
Okay, bye.
Bye.

Third Conversation

No, I kid you not. I think what's being done with it is a farce. You know, in Latin America they call Puerto Rico "La Colonia Perfumada."

Why?

Because they feel it's just a nice way of putting perfume on something that stinks, you know.

What would happen in Puerto Rico if it were independent?

Then I ask you that. If you are going to have a piece of dirt don't call it dust. If it's dirt, you know ........

And what else can you call it? Can you call it a state?

Listen, you know what you can call it. Call it a colony. The same situation that existed con, with the whole business of England and the colonies here. Well, it's the same thing except that it's put in a political framework of today's world, that's all. It's a nice way of getting away with murder.

Okay, but why? Isn't it because the people are not actually that capable of being able to rule?

Stop. Now you're putting down your own people. Because ......

I'm not exactly putting down my own people.

Yes and don't tell me that the United States is the only one that has been able to in Puerto Rico .........

Okay so you have a couple of people like Moscoso and Luis Ferrer
First girl  Un momento.
            (One moment.)
Boy           Bueno.
            (Well.)
First girl  Un momento.
            (One moment.)
Boy           Have you got people capable of starting something like the ....
First girl  The Communists.  (sarcastically)
Boy           Like General Motors  or wait a second.  You're going to tell me that un pobre campesino encima de una montaña  is able to come down (A poor farm hand on top of a mountain) to the town and  run something like in Utuado the plant that was Second girl  Wait a second.
            (Everyone yelling at once.)
Boy           But they don't bother taking things over like that.
Fourth Conversation

Boss Carmen, do you have a minute?
Secretary Yes Mr. Gonzalez.
Boss I have a letter to dictate to you.
Secretary Fine. Let me get my pen and pad. I'll be right back.
Boss Okay.
Secretary Okay.
Boss Okay, this is addressed to Mr. William Bolger.
Secretary That B-o-r-g-e-r?
Boss B-o-1
Secretary Oh, oh, I see.
Boss Okay. His address is in the files.
Secretary Okay.
Boss Okay. Dear Bill, Many thanks for telling me about your work with the Science Research Project. The information you gave me ought to prove most helpful.
Secretary That was "The information you gave me ought to prove most helpful."
Boss Correct.
Secretary Okay.
Boss Ah, particularly the data about recency of arrival by Junior High School.
Secretary Okay.
Boss Okay, ah. I very much appreciate the time you gave me. Never mind, strike that out. Ah, enclosed are two of the forms that you let me borrow. I'll be sending back the data sheets very soon. Thanks again. I hope that your hospital stay will be as pleasant as possible and that your back will be soon in top shape. Will soon be in top shape. It was nice seeing you again.
Sincerely, Louis Gonzalez.

Secretary

Do you have the enclosures for the letter Mr. Gonzalez?

Boss

Oh yes, here they are.

Secretary

Okay.

Boss

Ah, this man William Bolger got his organization to contribute a lot of money to the Puerto Rican parade. He's very much for
it. Tu fuiste a la parada?
(Do you go to the parade?)

Secretary

Sí, yo fui.
(Yes, I went.)

Boss

Sí?
(Yes?)

Secretary

Um huh.

Boss

Y cómo te estuvo?

that I came here is cause as I was telling you before I'm going into college and I wanted to see if you could give me a letter of recommendation in order for me to get into the special program that they are offering. I need this to go out by next week some time.

Priest: O lo mandamos hoy. Que quiere que yo escriba?

Boy: Oh just a letter of recommendation tell them that you know me, about my character.

Priest: Who is it to?

Boy: It's going to be Dr. Mack.

Priest: Do you know the first name and the middle initial?

Boy: Well, I have the form that you can fill it out and .......

Priest: O eso es mejor.

1. CONVERSATIONS

Now I'd like to play some recordings for you. These are recordings of people talking to each other. I'll play each recording twice. Then I'll ask you to tell me what you heard.
Conversation One (The Invitation)

A. Now for the first story. What was happening here? Try to tell me what each once said. If you can, try to use the words that the speakers used. When they spoke in Spanish, try to use Spanish. And when they spoke in English try to use English.

B. I know you may have already said this, but I want to make sure I didn't miss anything.

1.0 Who were talking?
   1.01 How do they know each other?
   1.001 Are they strangers or what?
2.0 Where were they talking?
3.0 Why were they talking?
   3.01 Were they talking just to pass the time (to "make conversation") or was there some other reason?
   3.02 The two boys at the beginning of the story
   3.03 The three speakers
4.0 Do you remember if anyone mentioned the time?
   4.01 What time was it?
5.0 Do you remember who asked the boy to stay first?
6.0 When the mother asked the boy to stay, where was the food?
7.0 Did the boy agree to stay?
   7.01 How long was he going to stay?

C. Do you remember who used English and who used Spanish? And when?

7.0 Did the priest agree?
8.0 What did the priest ask the boy about the letter?

C. Do you remember who used English and who used Spanish? And when?

1.0 Would it have made any difference if they had spoken about the boy's family and about the uncle in English?
   1.01 Imagine that both speakers know English and Spanish equally well.
   1.02 Would it have been better, the same, or worse in English?
2.0 Would it have made any difference if they had spoken about the letter of recommendation in Spanish?
   2.01 Imagine that both speakers know English and Spanish equally well.
   2.02 Would it have been better, the same, or worse in Spanish?
3.0 Why do you think the boy changed from Spanish to English when he asked the priest to write a letter for him?
4.0 Would it have been better to use the same language for the whole conversation?
   4.01 Which language?

D. Que cree Vd.?

1.0 Where does the priest come from?
   1.01 How can you tell?
2.0 Is the boy a member of the priest's church?
3.0 Do you think the boy addresses the priest in the right way?
   3.01 Respectfully?
4.0 What kind of letter will the priest write?
   4.01 A so-so one, a bad one, a good one?
Instructions: Please listen carefully. You will hear the same word or phrase spoken in two different ways. The speaker will then repeat one of the pronunciations. Tell me whether it was more like the first or more like the second. If you can't seem to hear any difference, make a guess. Here is an example in Spanish:

1. hasta 2. hahta Repeat: hasta. Is the repeated word more like the first one or the second one?

Here is another example:

1. tarde 2. talde Repeat: talde. Is the repeated word more like the first one or the second one?

Spanish list first.

1. interesado 2. interesao (Underlined form represents repeated word)

1. mas 2. mah

1. partes 2. paltes
1. pan 2. pang
1. guhto 2. gusto
1. acuerdo 2. acuelo
1. xopa 2. rropa

Continued instructions: "We will now do the same thing, this time using English. Here is an example in English:

1. nothing 2. nuthin' Repeat: nuthin'

1. bad 2. byed
1. most 2. must
1. heat 2. (el) hit
1. my friend 2. my fren
1. hiya 2. here
1. car 2. ca
1. coming 2. cawming
1. It's a dog 2. I's a dog
3. Word Frequency Estimation

A. ENGLISH

I'm going to read you some English words. You probably use some of them all the time. There are others that you may use only now and then. After I read you a word, I want you to tell me how often you hear or say it. For example,

- If you hear or say it more than once a day, tell me "more than once a day."
- If you hear or say it about once a day, tell me "once a day."
- If it's about every other day, tell me "every other day."
- If you hear or say it about once a week, tell me "once a week."
- If it's about every other week, tell me "every other week."
- If you hear or say it about once a month, tell me "once a month."
- If it's about every other month, tell me "about every other month."

And if you never hear or say it, tell me "never."

(Review the "times" with R: 1) point out the two extremes ("more than once a day" and never.") 2. Point out that the other times go with day, week, and month (once a day, every other day; once a week, every other week; once a month, every other month.) Ask R to repeat the times.)

For example, how often do you hear or say the word cat? Is it more than once a day? once a day? (Continue until R selects a response.) Fine, now how often do you hear or say the word city? (As above.) And how often do you hear or say the word organization (As above).

(Begin the following list of words. Read each word in a conversational tone. Go at a relatively brisk pace, but give R a second after he finishes rating one word before saying the next one. You may need to remind him of the frequencies from which he can choose. This is OK. Do so as often as necessary.)
Word Frequency Estimation List (English)

(To the left of each word, write the number corresponding to the R's rating, as follows:

7 = more than once a day  3 = every other week
6 = once a day         2 = once a month
5 = once every other day  1 = every other month
4 = once a week         0 = never)

6. Reading of passages.
Por la tarde hizo calor, pues fueron al mar y se echaron debajo de un arbol. Flor y Angel quisieron tomar sol. Leonor les hizo ponerse crema para no quemar la piel. Despues de -co tiempo, los dos muchachos se fueron a buscar conchas marinas. El año pasado, habian recogido algunos pero esta vez, querian unas mas grandes.
One of my best friends is named Harry. He's always trying to act like a real tough guy. His mother doesn't like it because he uses bad language. In fact, she can't stand it. The other day, she asked him what he was trying to prove and he mumbled something like "I don't know" and shuffled his feet like a lost puppy. Last year, he didn't seem as bad as this year. Even his teachers can't keep up with him and leave him alone.
Como es de suponer las noches de debut o estreno en cualquier cabaret o club nocturno, son noches especiales, en esta ocasión y al "Alameda" se dieron cita, la noche de la reaparición de Rocio de Granada, su tío el guitarrista Sabica, el conocido y muy estimado hombre de empresas Manuel Garcia Busto, acompañado de su gentil esposa y su encantadora hija, que reside en España, Bobby Capó, cantonista y figura de relieve en la T.V. hispana en Nueva York.
An all-year, glass-enclosed swimming pool, the first of its kind in the city, will be built in Commodore Barry Park in Brooklyn. Completion is expected in 1968. According to the plans, the pool will be built at the corner of Navy and Nassau Streets. The pool will be operated by the Department of Parks and will serve the area which includes Fort Green. It is designed for youngsters and teenagers, but there will be a balcony for adults.
7. Continuous Word Association

A. ENGLISH

Now I'm going to give you some English words. When I say a word, I want you to tell me all the different English words it makes you think of. For example, if I say the word ocean, it might make you think of words like (Pause slightly between words to give the idea of "associating") water - big - blue - wet - sand - beach - sky - waves - ships - and so forth. If I say the word tree, it might make you think of words like leaf - bark - trunk - shade - green - tall - birds - - palms - and so forth. Now if I say the word mountain, what different English words does it make you think of? (Encourage R to give several words). And if I say the word lake, what different English words does it make you think of? (Encourage R to give several words. Use as many of the following practice words as you think necessary to give R the idea of what is wanted: chair, clock, cat.)

Now when I give you a word, I want you to tell me all the different English words it makes you think of. Tell me as many as you can. I'll tell you when to stop. OK?

school (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "school" above.)

factory (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "factory" above.)

church (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "church" above.)

street (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "street" above.)

home (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "home" above.)

(Make sure that R has responded to each word (each should be checked) before proceeding to the Spanish part.)
B. SPANISH

(Give instructions in Spanish)

Now I'm going to give you some Spanish words. When I give you a word, I want you to tell me all the different Spanish words it makes you think of. OK?

escuela (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "escuela" above.)

factoría (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "factoría" above.)

iglesia (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "iglesia" above.)

calle (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "calle" above.)

casa (When one minute has elapsed, say) Good, that's fine. (Make a check to the left of the word "casa" above.)

(Make sure that R has responded to each word (each should be checked) before proceeding to the next section.)
8. Spanish Usage Rating

Now I'm going to ask you to tell me how much of your talk is in Spanish when you speak to people who know both English and Spanish.

I'll ask you about different people who might know both English and Spanish. They might not know them equally well, but they might be able to speak and understand at least a little of each.

If they only know one language, tell me. Or if you don't speak to the person I mention, tell me. But if you speak to the person, and if he knows both English and Spanish, tell me how much of your talk with him is in Spanish.

Tell me if it's all in Spanish.

- almost all in Spanish (only a few English words)
- about 70% in Spanish
- about half in Spanish
- about 30% in Spanish
- only a few words in Spanish
- none in Spanish

(Review these categories with R. Ask him to repeat them.)

OK?

(NOTE: -- When R says all in Spanish or none in Spanish, ask him if the person he's talking about knows both languages.)
(Score R's ratings according to the following:

NE = person does not know English
10 = All in Spanish
9 = Almost all in Spanish
7 = About 70% in Spanish
5 = About 50% in Spanish
3 = About 30% in Spanish
1 = Only a few Spanish words
0 = None in Spanish
NS = Person does not know Spanish
X = Does not talk to person

(For Respondents Who Are In School)

WHEN YOU ARE AT SCHOOL

In the classroom before or after class
- teachers
- close friends (boys)
- other boys
- close friends (girls)
- other girls

In the classroom during class (whispering)
- close friends (boys)
- other boys
- close friends (girls)

Sociological Interview and/or Group Discussion Guide
THIRD DRAFT: INTERVIEW AND/OR GROUP DISCUSSION GUIDE for individual and/or tandem (S/E)ELICITATION

NOTE: Use Topic 10 (Biographical) for factual opening when appropriate

1.0 Recent and Hoped for Changes

*1.1 Has your life changed in any way during the past 5-10 years? E.g.

*1.1.1 Are there any things that are better now than they were 5-10 years ago?

*Note: Also permit responses in terms of other members of the household or of the household as a whole

1.1.2 Are there any ways in which life now is more difficult than it was 5-10 years ago?

1.1.3 How does that (whatever is mentioned as better or worse) compare with the way things were in Puerto Rico before you came to New York?

*1.2 Are you interested in (or are you doing) any additional things than was the case 5-10 years ago? If so, what new things are you interested in (are you doing)?

*1.2.1 Do you get away from the house (and from the neighborhood)--to go places or see things--any more than you did then? How often? Where do you go and what do you see?

*1.2.2 Do you get to meet (to do things) with different people than you used to 5-10 years ago? What people (or what things) and how different?

(a) Family vs non-family

(b) Puerto Rican vs non-Puerto Rican
(c) [Probe for changes in reading, studying, hobbies, memberships, etc.]

*1.3 What do you hope the next 5-10 years will bring for you (and your family)? (Highest aspiration).

1.3.1 How good are the chances that things will turn out the way you would like them to? Why are your chances good (poor)?

*1.3.2 Is there anything you can do to make your hopes come true?

1.3.3 Are there any people that could help you make your hopes come true? (Do you know them? What can you do to obtain their help? Who or what might influence them?)

1.3.4 Are there any skills or characteristics that you must have in order to obtain your goals?

[Probe for information concerning training requirements, job requirements (competences), character prerequisites, formal (degree, certificate) requirements, etc.]
2.0 Social Contacts

*2.1 Who are your best friends? Are they related to you? What do you do when you get together?

*2.1.1 Do you have good friends who are not members of your family (not related to you in any way?)

Who are they?

2.1.2 Where did you meet them?

2.1.3 How often do you see/meet/talk to them? Where?

When? To do what?

*2.1.4 Are most of your good friends also members of your family (related to you in some way)?

2.1.5 Would you like to have more friends than you now have? Why?

*2.2 Do you belong to any clubs, organizations or societies?

*2.2.1 Why do you belong to (each of) them?

2.2.2 Whom do you meet there?

2.2.3 How often do you attend?

*2.2.4 What (kinds of) clubs/organizations/societies/groups would you like to join if you had enough time (and money) to do so?

2.3 Do you (and your wife) get away from your families much (go to theatres, museums, trips) or do you tend to spend most of your spare time visiting members of your family?

2.3.1 Are you pleased (displeased) that you spend so much (little) time with your family? Are there any people outside of family and neighbors that you (would like to) spend a good deal of your free time with?

2.3.2 Are there some favorite topics of discussion that How often do you meet non-Puerto Ricans? Where? When?

*2.4.1 Do non-Puerto Ricans visit you at your home? Who?
   How often? When? Why?

*2.4.2 Do you visit non-Puerto Ricans in their homes? How often? When? Why?

2.4.3 Would you prefer to have more contacts with Americans than you now have?

2.4.4 What proportion of all of your good friends are non-Puerto Ricans?

2.4.5 Do you believe that Americans are better or worse to have as friends than Puerto Ricans? Why?
3.0 Interests: Upper Range (S/E)

[Pick one, or at most two, of the following to probe upper limit of knowledge and concern, in accord with answers to 2.0 series ]

3.2.1 How often? What was discussed last time? What did X say? What did you say? How important is religion in your life?

3.2.2 Do you think the separation of church and state is a good thing? Should the state support church schools? What is the court's view?

3.3 Around election time (e.g. last November when there were elections for Governor) do you get into discussions on politics and on how our (city, state, national) government can be improved?

3.3.1 What was discussed? What did X say? What did you say? How important is politics to you?

3.3.2 Would you favor the discontinuation of the Electoral College? Limitations on campaign expenditures? Fines for not voting?

3.4 Have you ever been an officer or a committee member of some organization?
3.4.1 What were your duties? How successful or involved were you? Did you quarrel with anyone in performing your duties?

3.4.2 Do you think most organizations are sufficiently interested in the community as a whole? Should there be fewer small organizations?

3.5 Do you and others who work at your (shop, store, etc.) ever talk about how the work might be improved?

3.5.1 What was discussed? What did X say? What did you say? How important is your work to you?

3.5.2 Do you favor (producers cooperatives) (Labor-management Profit-sharing plans)? (Compulsory unionization?)
4.0 Language (S/E)

*4.1 Did you speak English/Spanish with anyone (A Puerto Rican) yesterday and today?
  4.1.1 To whom? Where? What about? When?
  4.1.2 Is that the only thing you would talk to him (her) about in E/S?
  4.1.3 Is that the only language you talk to X in?
  4.1.4 If "no," tell me about a time when you spoke E/S to him (her). If "yes," what would he/she think if you spoke to him/her in E/S instead?

*4.2 Is there any other Puerto Rican (whom you did not necessarily meet yesterday or today) to whom you would normally speak in E/S about something or other?
  4.2.1 To whom? About what? Where? When?
  4.2.2 Is that the only thing you would talk to him (her) about in E/S?
  4.2.3 Is that the only language you talk to X in?
  4.2.4 If "no," tell me about a time when you spoke E/S to him/her. If "yes," what would he/she think if you spoke to him/her in E/S instead?

*4.3 Are there any Puerto Ricans to whom you try to talk a "better kind" of E/S?
  4.3.1 What makes it "better?" ("buen español")
  4.3.2 Why do you (try to) talk "better" to him/her? When?
  4.3.3 Did you ever forget to talk "better" to him/her? What would/did he/she think if/when you did not talk "better" to him/her?
  4.3.4 Is it hard to talk a "better" kind of E/S?
4.3.3 Have you ever made any attempt to improve your E/S? How did you learn (when, where, from whom)?

*4.4 Are there any Puerto Ricans to whom you try to talk a very "folksy" (popular, informal) kind of E/S? (español popular, pateado)

4.4.1 What makes it folksy?
4.4.2 Why do you (try to) talk folksy to them? When? (emotion, familiarity)
4.4.3 Did you ever forget to talk "folksy" to him/her? What would/did he/she think if/when you did not talk "folksy" to him/her?
4.4.4 Is it hard to talk folksy? Is it proper?
4.4.5 How did you learn to talk folksy (when, where, from whom)?

*4.5 Do you wish you could talk (an) other kind(s) of E/S than you usually talk?

4.5.1 What is the best kind?
4.5.2 Who speaks it? When? Where?
4.5.3 Why would you like to talk that way? How can you learn?

*4.6 Do you want your (grand)children to know Spanish? Why?

4.6.1 Do you think they will know it?
4.6.2 How will they get a chance to learn it? What kind of Spanish will it be?
4.6.3 When and with whom do you think they will use it?
4.6.4 Do you think they will be glad they know it? Why?
4.6.5 Would it tend to spoil their English?
4.6.6 Will they feel differently about knowing it than you do?
4.7 What do you think of American born (or bred) Puerto Ricans who do not speak Spanish?

4.7.1 Are they pretending? Why?

4.7.2 Are there many such? Will their number increase?

4.7.3 Is there anything you (do/could do) to help them learn/use more/better Spanish?

4.8 Here are a few sentences in E or in S. Please read them aloud, one by one, and then tell me in your own words what they mean.
5.0 Being Puerto Rican and American

*5.1 Are you a Puerto Rican? What makes you a Puerto Rican?

*5.1.1 Do you have to do anything(s) in order to be Puerto Rican (believe anything, know anything, observe anything) or is it enough just to be born of PR parents?

*5.1.2 Do you like being a PR or is it a bother (headache) for you (sometimes)?

*5.1.3 How is being PR different from being some other kind of Hispano?

*5.1.4 How important is it to know Spanish to be a PR (in N.Y.)?

*5.2 Are there different kinds of PRs? What kinds of PRs are there? How do they differ (in daily behavior, beliefs, attitudes)?

5.2.1 Is there any kind better than some other kind?

*5.2.2 Are there any who don't want to be PR any longer? Why?

*5.2.3 How do they act (what do they do) in order to stop being PRs? What about their Spanish? Their English?

*5.2.4 Are there any PRs who constantly stress (emphasize) that they are PR? Any who try to be more PR than do most others? [Note: Among those who know English] Why?

*5.2.5 How do they act (what do they do) in order to stress (emphasize) that they are PR? What about their Spanish? Their English?
5.3 Are there any things that PRs do better (are better at) than (other) Americans?

5.3.1 Why are they better at these things?
5.3.2 Are you yourself good at these things?
*5.3.3 Would you like your children to be good at these things (too)?
*5.3.4 Is Spanish important in (doing these things)?

5.4 Are there any things that Americans do better (are better at) than PRs?

5.4.1 Why are they better at these things?
5.4.2 Are you yourself good at these things?
*5.4.3 Would you like your children to be good at these things (too)?
*5.4.4 Is English important in (doing these things)?

*5.5 Are there any times that being PR and being American are in conflict? When? Why?

5.5.1 Are there some things that you do that are "distinctly American" (rather than PR)?
5.5.2 Are there some PRs who are too American?
5.5.3 What do they do that makes them "too American?"
5.5.4 Would you like to be like them?
5.5.5 Would you like to be more American than you are? How could you be more American than you are?
5.5.6 Would you like to be more Puerto Rican than you are? How could you be even more PR than you are?

*5.6 If you had to choose between the two (i.e. if they could not be combined), which would you prefer being: PR or being American?
6.0 [Other] Everyday Ethnic Behaviors

*6.1 What (typically) PR/Amer. foods do you eat at home?

*6.1.1 If you had a choice of foods when eating out, which would you take?

*6.1.2 Which foods (Amer./PR) do you really prefer? Which do you eat more frequently?

*6.2 What (typically) PR/Amer. dances do you like? Can you dance them? Do you? When?

*6.2.1 What PR/American songs do you like? Do you know the words to them? Do you sing them? When?

*6.2.2 Which dances/songs/music do you really like best: Amer. or PR?

*6.3 What Church(es) do you attend? How often?

*6.3.1 Are the services in Eng. or in Spanish? (Are most members PR?)

*6.3.2 Are there any (other) church activities/events in Spanish? Do you participate in these activities? How often?

*6.3.3 Are there any other church(es)/church activities/religious groups you would like to participate in?
