Teaching English as a second language is the purpose of this curriculum guide developed for adult basic literacy classes within the Home Education Livelihood Program in New Mexico. The guide consists of 16 teaching units composed of conversations and exercises with teaching notes. Emphasis is on memorization through oral and written drills. A related document is RC 001 645. To Learn a New Language

To learn to speak a new language, it is necessary (1) to learn to understand a body of words and sentences, (2) to learn how to say those words and sentences, (3) to memorize them, and (4) to put them to use in one's own life situation. Learning to read and to write the new language should accompany learning to speak it, for not only are reading and writing indispensable skills in today's world, but they can be very strong supports in learning to speak.

The teacher's functions in the language-learning process corresponds to the needs of the learner as outlined above. It is for the teacher to help the learner understand, orally produce, memorize, and practically apply the material set forth in the course of study. It is also for the teacher to help the learner read and write the things he has learned to understand and say. The role of the teacher and the responses he may expect from his class are illustrated in the following which shows how a teacher might present:

1. The teacher helps the class memorize the conversations. In this book, all the new material is presented in the form of conversations. The better they are memorized, the sooner the members of the class will begin to speak English in their everyday lives.

The oral practice is given primarily to help the class learn to say the conversations correctly, but it also goes a long way toward memorization. The practical application of the dialogues to the students' own situations is of great help in memorizing.

Reading and copying conversations are not only important for building these skills themselves, but they are very useful, indeed, for help in memorizing.
2. The teacher helps the learner put this lesson to use in everyday life. It is to further this learning that the material in this book is presented in conversational form.

The teacher guides the class in practice of greetings. He helps the students make the greetings their own. When you switch from the fictitious names in the book to the actual names of his students, limit the greetings to those proper for the actual time of day, thus making this part of the practice deal with present reality.

As the course continues and the class learns more conversations with more words and sentence patterns, the opportunities of relating this material to daily life increases. This presents a constant challenge and stimulus to teacher and class alike.

Perhaps a word of caution is in order here. We should always remember that practical application of English words and expression to everyday life cannot take place until those words and expressions are acquired by the learner. This acquisition comes only by thorough oral practice. Therefore, oral practice must come first and be very thorough.

3. The teacher helps the class. Until the learner masters a body of oral English, he can hardly profit by any attempt to do reading on his own. The blurbs are read aloud by the teacher and repeated by the class. Reading is involved in every exercise. At first this is largely reading by imitation and rote on the part of the class, but it is to be gradually built into recognition of more and more words, and at last, hopefully, into independent reading.

4. The teacher helps the class learn to write English. Writing, or printing, by the class does not come into our work until the final units. Its purposes are (a) to give practice in manuscript, and (b) to support the memorization of the conversations.
During the copying of class exercises, the teacher moves about the class observing the work of individuals, putting check marks on accurate copies, correcting incorrect ones.

As any individual finishes copying what is on the board, the teacher directs him to begin copying other conversations from the book.

For those in the class who write badly or not at all, the teacher has prepared in advance hand-printed copies of one or two selected conversations.

When the session ends, the students take home their books and unfinished copies of conversations. They will complete copying them at home.
Notes on Reviewing

Often much of what was thoroughly practiced at the previous lesson seems lost and forgotten. The teacher must be prepared for this and not be disappointed. To start the review of Unit One, for example, the following on the blackboard will help:

Good __________________, Mr. __________________.

Good __________________, Mr. __________________.

And this:

Good __________________, __________________ ______.

How are you?

Fine, ______ ______. How are ________ ______?

If this is not sufficient, the teacher can say complete sentences and let the class repeat them. The teacher will soon be able to judge how much review drill is necessary. At the next session, the class will probably have no difficulty at all recalling the memory work and little difficulty in using it.

Reading and writing should be reviewed as proficiency in these skills develops.

A cumulative review of Units One through Five may well follow Unit Six; a review of One through Eight might follow Nine, and so on. It is best to give some advance material, even if not a whole unit, even in sessions that are devoted mainly to cumulative review. The sense of going ahead is very important for the people who study this book.

The question of whether to give written reviews is one that each teacher must answer for his own class. Certainly written reviews should be so well within the capacity of the class that most of the students are spared any sense of failure. Perhaps, if written work has been going well, a written lesson to cover Units One to Six might be given after the class finishes Unit Ten. Selections from exercises in the book might be used.
THE UNIT PLAN OF HELP THROUGH LEARNING ENGLISH

Conversation. These dialogues are designed to furnish, in progressive steps, English words and sentences that the learners need in their everyday lives. Many of the dialogues are to be memorized so that the material they contain can be readily used both inside and outside of class. The illustrations are designed to aid comprehension.

Exercises. All of the exercises are closely related to the conversations. Exercise A gives item by item practice of new words and expressions. Other exercises provide systematic drill on new sentence structures. The last exercise of most units calls for copying of conversations. Copying provides not only practice in writing or printing but also important reinforcement of oral learning.
A General Teaching Outline for Units Two to Sixteen

1. Review of material covered at the preceding session, and often of that covered in prior sessions. About half of class time should be given to reviewing.

2. The teacher reads the new conversations and the class listens. This gives the class an idea of the material as a whole. It is usually good for the class to follow, either in their books or on the overhead projection, while the teacher is reading.

3. Making the meaning clear is an objective of the teacher's initial reading. One way is by pointing at the illustrations accompanying the text. Other helps may be other pictures, objects, simple demonstrations, or well worked-out verbal sequences.

4. Oral practice should occupy about three fourths of class time. Nothing can take the place of clear hearing of words and sentences to be learned, and then repeating them until they are memorized.

5. Reading by members of the class.

6. Special exercises in pronunciation. This material is not included in the student's book; it will be found in the Unit by Unit suggestions.

7. Exercise A. Here are listed all new words and expressions. The list is to be given intensive three-fold drill.

8. Other exercises. Directives accompany each. Except for those that call for copying, all should be done orally in class.
9. Written work. As many exercises as possible should be written or hand-printed in class or as home assignments. All should be done on separate paper, handed to the teacher, corrected and returned.

10. Practical application of material. Many of the exercises direct the student to use his or her own name, place of residence, and the like in conversations. Unit Six, in the conversations with and about the Rivera family, provide models for asking any member of the class about his or her family and models for his or her replies. In conversations in other units, there is abundant opportunity for role playing by teacher and students. A word of caution: Keep inside the limitations of the sentence patterns practiced to date. A great deal can be said, and said right, within these limitations. The teacher need not hesitate to supply the names of things not given in the lesson from time to time.

The criterion of the thoroughness of the oral practice and memory work is how well the class can apply the material to and for themselves.

1. The teacher helps the class understand. The teacher begins the session by projecting page 1 on the wall in front of the class, using the overhead projector. The pages in the book may be projected on the wall so that the teacher and class can look at them together. At first, the teacher presents the single words morning, afternoon, evening; these words are the key to the whole unit. The next step is to indicate in the first picture the two persons who exchange greetings suitable to morning, and then the greetings themselves. In this way, Conversations 1, 2, and 3 are interpreted in two short steps each. As the lesson progresses, comprehension is reinforced by using the proper greetings between teacher and class and between individual students. The use of proper names, first those in the book and then those of real people in the class, helps make the meaning clear.

Conversations 4, 5 and 6 build on Conversations 1, 2, and 3.

Comprehension of the items listed in Exercise A is no problem, for each has been encountered already in the conversations. Nor should there be any problem in Exercises B and C as the teacher guides the class.

Gestures and demonstrations convey to the class the directives they are to carry out in oral practice, in reading and in writing, so that the lesson went smoothly without the use of the students' native tongue. Thus we see that the lesson can be effectively taught by a teacher who does not know a word of his students' language.

Some teachers who do know that language, eliminate its use from the classroom so that during their lessons the class will learn how to depend solely on English for verbal communication. Other teachers use the native language, but very sparingly indeed, and then almost exclusively for interpreting the directives of exercises. If, however, you think it best to interpret the conversations wholly or in part by translation, the native language utterance should be given quickly and once only, and it should be followed immediately with thorough drill of the item in English. Time spent on translation tends to slow up the learning process.
2. The teacher helps the class say the items of the lesson understandably. The teacher endeavors first of all to let the class hear the word, phrase, or sentence very clearly. Thus, he says the word morning three times. He is careful not to say morning, morning, morning like words in a series, with the voice rising on the first two utterances and falling on the third. He is careful to repeat the word as three complete utterances: Morning, Morning, Morning. The tone falls at the end of each utterance. This is important as varying the tone can confuse the learner so that he will not know how to imitate what the teacher says.

The teacher goes on in scene after scene, having the class imitate his three-fold utterances in three-fold repetition. Why three-fold? To make the item as clear as possible both in hearing and imitating. Why not four or five times? Because after three, attention flags.

Several things are accomplished by this repeating/imitating routine. (a) It releases the learner's natural impulse to imitate the teacher's utterance. (b) The learner begins to exercise the muscles of his speech organs. (c) An association between hearing, muscular motion, and meaning begin to develop.

The first imitation of the teacher's speaking is in chorus. This gives everyone in the class a chance to begin. It also helps shy persons and slow persons practice without fear of ridicule.

Individual repetition of expressions tells the teacher exactly which individuals are having trouble with pronunciation. The teacher can then give correction and help where needed.

The purpose of Exercise A is to give some attention to individual words and expressions introduced in the conversations. (There is an exercise like this in each unit in the book.) This is a reinforcing exercise. It is also an exercise that builds for future lessons, when many of these words and expressions will be used in other contexts.
CONVERSATIONS

1.

1. Good morning, Mr. Rivera.
2. Good morning, Mrs. Mason.

2.

1. Good afternoon, Miss Sanchez.
2. Good afternoon, Mr. Carter.
1. Good evening, Mr. Lopez.
2. Good evening, Mr. Bond.

4.
1. Good morning, Mr. Romero. How are you?
2. Fine, thank you, Mrs. Mason. How are you?
   1. Fine, thank you.

5.
1. Good afternoon, Miss Sanchez. How are you?
2. Very well, thank you, Mr. Carter. How are you?
   1. Very well, thank you.

6.
1. Good evening, Mr. Lopez. How are you?
2. Fine, thank you, Mr. Bond. How are you?
   1. Very well, thank you.
Excercise A. Pronounce each of the following after your teacher. Memorize them.

Mr. (Romero)    good            How are you?
Mrs. (Mason)    morning         Fine, thank you.
Miss (Sanchez)  afternoon       Very well, thank you.
evening

Excercise B. Complete the following. Use the names of people you know.

1. Good afternoon, _______ _______.
2. _______ , _______ _______.

1. Good _______ , Good _______ ,
2. _______ . _______ _______.

1. Good _______ , Good _______ ,
2. _______ . _______ _______.

Excercise C. Copy conversations 4, 5, 6.
UNIT TWO TEACHING NOTES

This happens to be a unit better taught in an order different from the General Teaching Outline. In this unit the practical application should precede the study of the conversations instead of following, as in other units.

The class might begin this unit by learning to say the English alphabet, since each one is to learn to spell his or her own name orally. Use the alphabet on page 6. Members of the class who are starting from scratch to learn the alphabet will not fully master it in one session, but a good beginning can be made.

Begin work on conversations with books closed and without using the projector. The class needs first to learn the word name. If the teacher writes his own and two or three students' names on the board, and pointing at each says, "A name", the class will understand, and will be able to pronounce a name.

Continue to withhold the printed page, but say to one of the class whose name is on the board, "What is your name?" He will doubtless be ready to answer, for example, "Robert Ortiz." This is good. The question should be orally put to others, who will also answer with just the name.

Next the teacher might put on the board and then read:

My name is James Brown.

My last name is Brown. B - R - O - W - N.

By erasing from the sentences his name, the teacher now leaves on the board:

My name is __________ _____________.

My last name is ______________. __ __ __.
Now the following is possible:

TEACHER: What is your name?
STUDENT: My name is Carmen Sena.

TEACHER: What is your last name?
STUDENT: My last name is Sena.

TEACHER: How do you spell Sena?
STUDENT: S - E - N - A.

This may be repeated with several members of the class. Some will need help with the oral spelling, and the help should be given promptly and followed by quick reinforcing drill.

After this practice, the class is ready to see Conversations 1, 2, and 3 in the printed material.

Observe that What is your name? My name is ____________, and How do you spell your name? and other sentences listed in Exercise A, page 5, are presented as complete entities; they should not be broken down into separate words at this time. The context of the conversations makes these sentences easy to understand and use.

The other items for teaching this unit may follow the General Outline on page F.
1. What is your name?
2. My name is Paul Moffit.

1. How do you spell Moffit?
2. M-O-F-F-I-T.

1. Thank you.
2. You're welcome.

2.

1. What is your name?
2. Mary Ojinaga.

1. How do you spell your last name?

1. Thank you. Are you Miss Ojinaga, or Mrs. Ojinaga?
3.

1. What is Mr. Bond's first name?
2. It is Hillery.
1. How do you spell it?
2. You spell it H-I-L-L-E-R-Y.

EXERCISES

Exercise A. Pronounce each of the following after your teacher. Memorize them.

alphabet
name
your name
my name
(Mr. Bond's) first name
What is your name?
last name

My name is (Paul Moffit).
How do you spell (your name)?
You spell it (M-O-F-F-I-T).
You're welcome.
Are you (married or single)?
I am (single).
I am not (married).

Exercise B. Complete these conversations. Make the answers true for yourself.

1.

1. What is your name?
2. My name is ______________.

2.

1. How do you spell your last name?
2. You spell it ______________.

1. Thank you.
2. You're welcome.
3.

1. What is your first name?
2. My first name is ____________.
1. How do you spell it?
2. You spell it ____________.

4.

1. Are you married or single?
2. I am ____________. I am not ____________.

Exercise C. Copy the list in Exercise A.

Exercise D. Copy the English alphabet. Copy both capital and small letters on the following page.

Aa Bb Cc Dd Ee Ff
Gg Hh Ii Jj Kk Ll
Mm Nn Oo Pp Qq Rr
Ss Tt Uu Vv Ww
Xx Yy Zz
Unit Three Teaching Notes

The General Outline may be followed in full for this unit. Do not overlook the review.

Items for special pronunciation practice should include a review of How do you spell your name? and a review of the position of the tongue for th.

The th in this and that, takes the same position as the th in thank you, but it is a voiced sound in this and that. Practice saying these words.

Since native speakers of English often use this and that interchangeably, no special point need be made at this time to differentiate between them in meaning. A better use of the time is to have the class practice their pronunciation by imitating that of the teacher.
CONVERSATIONS

Exercise B. Copy the questions and answers in Conversation 3.

Exercise C. Copy Conversation 1.

Exercise D. Ask a question about each thing in Conversation 3 and answer the question. Use the question form of Conversation 1.

Examples: What do you call that in English?
A door.
What do you call this in English?
A chair.
UNIT FOUR TEACHING NOTES

The General Teaching Outline applies here.

Before doing the conversation, introduce orally a farm, a field, fields, a tree, and trees, having the class drill on the words. The singular-plural concept will be clear simply by indicating for example, one tree and saying a tree, then indicating two or more and saying trees. Of course the class should hear and repeat a tree and trees several times. At each repetition, the teacher should point to the corresponding object or objects in the picture.

Some time should be devoted to the practice of this and these, that and those, to make sure of clear differentiation between singular and plural.

In the practice of Exercise A, the final s, z and iz sounds of the plural nouns need special attention so that the class will enunciate them clearly. Memorization is the way for the class to learn which nouns have an extra syllable in the plural. There is a rule, but at this point, it is probably better to stay with specific words than to attempt to apply rules.

The beauty of patterns like those diagrammed in Exercise B is that when once they are memorized, any number of correct sentences can be made like them by a simple substitution of one word.

With this on the board

What is this? It is ________________.

a good drill can be conducted by showing or pointing at an object, so that this kind of dialogue results.

TEACHER (touching a chair): What is this?

STUDENT A: It is a chair.

TEACHER (holding up a watch): What is this?

STUDENT B: It is a watch.
With the plural pattern also on the board, this can easily be done:

TEACHER (holding up two books): What are these?

STUDENT C: They are books.

Students can also ask the questions of other students. A drill on singular and plural forms can be done like this:

TEACHER (holding up one book): Miss Sena, question; Mr. Cortez, answer.

MISS SENA: What is that?

MR. CORTEZ: It is a book.

TEACHER (holding up two books): Miss Sanchez, question; Mrs. Bernal, answer.

MISS SANCHEZ: What are those?

MRS. BERNAL: They are books.

Drill on these sounds and words:

farm (final m)
name
field (long e)
tree, trees

Practice to differentiate between this and these, that and those.

Exercise C. Using sentences like those in Conversation made six or more questions and answers about things listed in Exercise A. Follow the examples.

Examples:  What is the plural of an apple?
           It is apples.
           What is the singular of watches?
           It is a watch.

Exercise D. If you have time, make five singular and five plural questions and answers like those in Conversation A.

Examples:  What do you call that in English?
           You call it a car.
           What do you call those in English?
           You call them trucks.
UNIT FIVE TEACHING NOTES

As the General Teaching Outline is followed, it should be observed that the conversations in this unit introduce the shortened forms what's for what is, it's for it is, etc. Comprehension of these forms is not hard if they are once seen for what they are and practiced aloud sufficiently.

The question form Is this a shirt? requiring a yes or no answer is not hard to understand, but it requires a surprising amount of practice. We have all heard make shift questions from non-English speakers like, "Thees ees a shirt -- No?" Oral practice will prevent such verbal misuse.

The question form Is this (a jacket) or (a coat)? may seem so like the yes/no question form as to confuse the student at first. Again, thoroughness of practice is the solution both for the problem of comprehension and that of usage.

The overhead projector can be of immense assistance in introducing all the material.

Preliminary reading practice can be done from projections, and it should be followed with reading from the books. The better use books are put to in class, the more the learners will study them between lessons.

The large number of exercises suggest that double time be allotted to Unit Two. Probably it is not feasible for all of the exercises to be written after their oral practice, but surely some can be written.

As special pronunciation drill, work on

8. Miss Romero and her sister are single. They aren't married.

Exercise J. Copy Conversations 1, 2, and 3.
UNIT SIX TEACHING NOTES

The picture with its labels can interpret virtually everything new in this unit. The names and the ages of the Rivera children should be well memorized along with the words husband, wife, etc. This family appears again and again in units to come.

These conversations will prove profitable if they are given ample practice. This is true in spite of the fact that the information imparted in Conversations 2, 3 and 4 is exactly the same as that in Conversation 1. The differences in them are differences due to the shift in speakers.

This device permits a natural use of the subject we in Conversation 1 and they in Conversation 2; it permits a natural shift from calling Maria and Joe and Albert daughter and son in Conversation 1 to calling them sister and brother in Conversation 3. These shifts also permit a natural use of the possessives my, our, etc.

The present of have occurs in this unit, and with two meanings, i.e. We have four children is a different meaning from We have our books. However, nothing need be said to the class about this semantic shift. Simply to learn the sentences that contain the word have will suffice. Exercise E introduces has as the form to follow the subjects he, she, Pedro, Maria, and, by implication, all other singular nouns. Exercise F should be very thoroughly practiced and memorized.

Good memorizing of Exercise G will prevent a tendency on the part of some to say, "Pedro has 10 years" instead of Pedro is 10 years old, or simply, Pedro is 10.

Again, let the class be prevented from writing in books to complete Exercises B, H, and J. Let the blank-filling be done orally, with drill. If possible, have the exercises written out in full.
Several words in this unit are likely to cause difficulty because their spelling does not correspond to their pronunciation. To list them on the board thus is helpful:

- dot'r daughter
- bruth'r brother
- muth'r mother
- sun son

Fortunately, these words are not difficult to say and can usually be mastered when thoroughly practiced imitatively.

The word 21z2, however, is not only misleadingly spelled; it contains the combination sound u plus r -- ur -- which many learners find hard to say. To teach it, begin with the u sound in sun, and in the first syllable of husband, muth'r, and bruth'r. Pronounce these words again, and have the class pronounce them. Next pronounce the u sound alone. Then say road, then just the sound of r. The teacher can help here by demonstrating with his hand the tongue shape for making the English r sound, by holding out his hand, palm up, and curving back the ends of his fingers. As soon as the r sound is established, u-r should be practiced in two syllables, then in one syllable ur. Now pronounce gurl several times and have the class imitate. Next the class needs to look at girl and pronounce it until the pronunciation becomes firmly established.

When, in Unit Seven, the class meets work, works and worker, and nurse in Unit Eight, the effort put into ur in girl will pay off handsomely.

You: ________________, thank you.

3.
Miss Sanchez: What is your name?
You: My name is ________________.
Miss Sanchez: How do you spell your first name?
You: You spell it ________________.
UNIT SEVEN TEACHING NOTES

A farm, pictured in Unit Four, should be recalled before going into the conversations about a farm worker here.

A calendar is helpful in talking about the days of the week, and in giving a concept of every day.

A map sketched on the board similar to the one showing Rexford and Watertown, but showing the actual area in which the class is located, will go far to interpret I live in ___________________

Observe the differences in these two questions and answers:

Where do you work? Where does Mr. Rivera work?

I work on a farm. He works on a farm.

The distinction in usage between do you live and does he live, and between live and lives, seem very hard for many people studying English. Many mistakes are made by failure to grasp these distinctions. Memorizing Conversations 1 - 4 (5 and 6 should be practiced but need not be memorized), and close attention to the exercises will go far toward mastery of these forms. This unit is short, and it introduces only the two verbs live and work; this allows for intensive practice.

There is often a pronunciation problem with do, does, don't doesn't. List them on the board like this and give them plenty of drill. Though the class doesn't know all the pronunciation symbols, the spelling does help.

   doo   do   dont   don't duz   does  duz'nt  doesn't

Practice work etc., following the steps for girl in Unit Six -- like this:

   wark   work
   wurks  works
   wurk'x  worker

4. John's sister lives in New Mexico. She doesn't live in California.

5. We live in ________. We don't live in ________.

6. My sisters live in Arizona. They don't live in New Mexico.

Exercise E. Copy conversations 1, 2 and 5 of this unit.
UNIT EIGHT TEACHING NOTES

For interpreting factory, worker, teacher, mailman, doctor, and nurse, it will be very useful to have pictures other than those in the book. Magazines yield excellent pictures to the alert teacher, not only for this unit but every one in the book. To introduce extra pictures, especially in color, can enliven class sessions as well as broaden the learner's concept of the words he is trying to master.

It is a good idea to practice the pronunciation of problem words early in Unit Eight. The word school needs to be practiced as sskool. Nurse, farm worker, and factory worker should begin with the ur routine of girl in Unit Six.

1.
A: What is Mr. Rivera?
B: He's a farm worker.

A: What is Mr. Bernal?
B: He's a factory worker.

A: What is Mr. Carter?
B: He's a teacher.

A: What is Mrs. Gomez?
B: She is a teacher too.

A: What is Mr. Sanchez?
B: He is a mailman.

A: What is Dr. Salazar?
B: He's a doctor.

A: What is Miss Bond?
B: She's a nurse.
2.

A: Where do you work, Mr. Mason?
B: I work in a factory. I'm a factory worker.
A: Is Mr. Bernal a factory worker too?
B: Yes, he is.

3.

A: What is Mr. Carter?
B: He's a teacher.
A: Where does he teach?
B: He teaches in a high school.
A: Is Mrs. Gomez a teacher too?
B: Yes, she is, but she doesn't teach in a high school.
   She teaches in a grade school.

4.

A: Where does Mr. Sanchez live?
B: He lives in Watertown.
A: Does he work in Watertown too?
B: Yes, he does. He's a mailman.
A: Where does Miss Bond work?
B: She works in a hospital.
A: Is she a nurse?
B: Yes, she is.

A Grocery Store

This place is a grocery store. This man is a clerk. He works in the store. He sells groceries every day. He is selling groceries now.

This woman is a customer. She is buying groceries.
When numbers are learned, there tends to be trouble with differentiating between fourteen and forty, fifteen and fifty, etc. This is a matter of where the word is stressed.

The last conversation in this unit need not be memorized, but the others should be, and so should all the new words. The names and ages of the Rivera children should be reviewed in Unit Six.

It should be easy for the teacher to role-play the clerk and various students to role-play the customers.

A word concerning present verb forms in this and future units may be in order. Most English verbs occur regularly in two present tenses — as illustrated by these pairs of sentences:

1. The clerk sells groceries every day.

   He is selling groceries now.

2. Mr. Rivera works every day.

   He is working now.

3. I buy bread every week.

   I am not buying bread right now.

To understand English and to speak it understandably, the distinction between these two verb tenses must be learned. Not that any formal presentation with grammatical terms is called for. What is necessary is for the learner to associate work, don't work, works, doesn't work, sell, don't sell, sells, doesn't sell, etc. with time expressions like every day, every week, etc.; and to associate am working, are buying, isn't selling with now, right now, and other expressions of specific present time.

The am/is/are-ing form appears in picture captions in this unit, because it is the natural tense to use in speaking of specific action in pictures. However, no special attention needs to be drawn to it. The form is presented for thorough practice in Unit Thirteen.

1.
The customer: I want a dozen eggs, please.
The clerk: All right. What else?
The customer: I want a loaf of bread.
The clerk: And what else?
The customer: That's all. How much is it?
The clerk: Eggs are 55 cents a dozen, and bread is 25 cents a loaf. That is 80 cents, plus 3 cents tax ... 83 cents. ...Thank you. Come again.

2.
The customer: I want two loaves of bread and a pound of coffee.
The clerk: Okay. What else, please?
The customer: That's all, thank you. How much is it?
The clerk: Two loaves of bread are 50 cents, and the coffee is 78 cents a pound. That's one dollar and 28 cents, plus 5 cents tax ... one dollar and 33 cents... Thank you. Come again.
This grocery store is a supermarket.

The clerk: Bread is 25 cents a loaf; two loaves are 50 cents. Sugar is two pounds for 33 cents. Eggs are 55 cents a dozen. Potatoes are five pounds for 41 cents. Onions are 12 cents a pound; three pounds are 36 cents. What else, please?

The customer: That's all.

The clerk: That is two dollars and 15 cents, plus 9 cents tax ... two dollars and 24 cents ..... Thank you. Come again.
Maria Rivera is at the grocery store now. The twins, Joe and Albert, are with their sister. Maria is buying groceries for her mother.

Exercise E. Copy Conversations 1 and 4.
UNIT TEN TEACHING NOTES

A real calendar, in addition to the pictured one, will be helpful in this unit.

The verb be, unlike work, sell, teach, etc., etc., has only one present tense. Unlike any other verb in English, be has a past tense with two forms, was and were. The future of be however, is formed like that of any other verb: will be, or am/is/are going to be. The present of be was presented several units ago. This unit teaches the past and future (with will) of be, along with words yesterday, tomorrow and other past and future time expressions. Some of the conversations have blanks to be filled with the actual words to fit today, yesterday, and tomorrow, etc. The conversations, completed appropriately and put on the blackboard, could be copied on a dated sheet of paper by (or for) each member of the class.

The class should be able to take the questions and answers in conversation 7 in stride. If there are doubts, this sentence:

A week has seven days.

Will interpret this one:

There are seven days in a week.

The question pattern How many -- are there -- and the answer pattern There are -- should be clear. If translation is used, translate these as whole sentences. Confusion will result if an attempt is made to break them up.
CONVERSATIONS

A: What do you call that in English?
B: You call it a calendar. Do you know the English names of the twelve months?
A: Well, I know January and February. They are winter months.
B: That's right. December is a winter month too.
A: What are the names of the spring months?
B: They are March, April, and May. The summer months are June, July, and August.
A: What are the fall months?
B: They are September, October, and November. The winter months are December, January, and February.
3.

The teacher: Mr. Martinez, do you know the days of the week in English?

Mr. Martinez: Yes, I do.

The teacher: What are they?

Mr. Martinez: They are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

4.

The teacher: What day is today, Mrs. Bernal?

Mrs. Bernal: It is ____________.

The teacher: That's right. Mrs. Lopez, what was yesterday?

Mrs. Lopez: It was ____________.

The teacher: Good! What will tomorrow be, Mr. Sanchez?

Mr. Sanchez: It will be ____________.

The teacher: That's right.

5.

The teacher: What is this month, Mr. Villa?

Mr. Villa: It is ____________.

The teacher: Good! What was last month, Mrs. Lopez?

Mrs. Lopez: It was ____________.

The teacher: That's right. What will next month be, Mrs. Rivera?

Mrs. Rivera: It will be ____________.
6.
The teacher: What is this year, class?
The class: It is ____________.
The teacher: What was last year?
The class: It was ____________.
The teacher: What will next year be?
The class: It will be ____________.

7.
The teacher: How many days are there in a week?
The class: There are seven.
The teacher: Good! How many months are there in a year?
The class: There are twelve.
The teacher: How many seasons are there in a year?
The class: There are four.
The teacher: That's right. What are the names of the seasons?
The class: They are winter, spring, summer, and fall.
The teacher: Yes, that's right.

B: You spell it __ __ __ __ __ __.

A: Where do you work?
B: I work __________. I am a __________.

A: Where do you live?
B: I live in __________.
UNIT ELEVEN TEACHING NOTES

Observe the two types of answers in Exercise B — the short and the long. Both are conversationally correct.

In Exercise C, the best conversational answers are Yes, you can and No, you can't (using the impersonal you), or Yes, I can and No, I can't. These short answers are usual in conversational English. It is a good test of aural comprehension to see whether students can answer readily in this way. As the questions and answers are practiced, a point should be made of stressing the can and can't of the reply.

In Conversation 4, give thorough practice to

Is there a workshop at the Center?

Yes, there is.

An interpreting sentence could be

Does the Center have a workshop?

Yes, it does.

The sentence There is a big work table in the sewing room is a little long for immediate repetition. With this, as with any long sentences in the book, it is wise to break up the sentence and build it up like this:

-----in the room.

-----in the sewing room.

-----a table in the sewing room.

-----a big table in the sewing room.

-----a big work table in the sewing room.

There is a big work table in the sewing room.
By beginning at the end and working backward, normal intonation is easily observed.

A good supplementary drill on the There is/There are pattern can easily be done with actual objects or objects in pictures. For example:

There is a book on the table.
There is a pencil on the table.
There are two pencils on the table.
There is a truck on the road.
There are a lot of cars on the road.

If it is too much to memorize all six conversations, 1 and 2 might be omitted.

Special pronunciation drill can be given to words the class find troublesome.
Mrs. Lopez: What is that building?
Mrs. Rivera: That is the HELP Center.
Mrs. Lopez: Do you go to the HELP Center?
Mrs. Rivera: Yes, I do. I go there every week.
Mrs. Lopez: Why do you go to the Center?

Mrs. Rivera: I go to study English.

Mrs. Lopez: Do you have a lesson every day?

Mrs. Rivera: No, I don’t. I have a lesson every Tuesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Lopez: I want to study English too. Can I go to the HELP Center with you?

Mrs. Rivera: Yes, you can. You can go with me next Tuesday.

Mrs. Lopez: Oh, thank you very much!
This is a woodworking shop.

Mr. Cortez: Do you study English at the HELP Center, Mr. Rivera?

Mr. Rivera: Yes, I do. I go to a woodworking class too.

Mr. Cortez: Oh, is there a workshop at the Center?

Mr. Rivera: Yes, there is.

Mr. Cortez: How many workbenches are there in the shop?

Mr. Rivera: There are two workbenches and a lot of tools.
Mrs. A: Are there sewing classes at the HELP Center?

Mrs. B: Yes, there are. The teacher's name is Mrs. Watson, and she's a very good teacher.

Mrs. A: How many sewing machines does the Center have?

Mrs. B: It has three. And there is a big work table in the sewing room.
Mrs. B: Do you want to go to the sewing class with me?

Mrs. A: Yes, I do.

Mrs. B: Can you go with me next Wednesday afternoon?

Mrs. A: No, I can't. I am sorry.

Mrs. B: Can you go on Friday?

Mrs. A: Yes, I can. Thank you very much?

Exercise D. Practice the underlined phrases in the following sentences, then each full sentence.

1. A lot of men and women go to the HELP Center every day.
2. Dr. and Mrs. Salazar have a lot of children. They have six boys and seven girls.
3. Mrs. Salazar buys a lot of groceries every day.
4. There are a lot of chairs in our classroom.
5. There are a lot of tools in the workshop.
6. A lot of men and women work in factories in California.
7. Supermarkets sell a lot of groceries every day.
8. There are a lot of cars on the road every day.

Exercise E. Copy Conversations 1, 2, and 4. Copy also 3, 5, and 6 if you have time.
UNIT TWELVE
UNIT TWELVE TEACHING NOTES

In the teaching notes for Unit Nine we discussed the two present tenses shown in these examples:

1. Mr. Rivera works every day.
2. He is working now.

This unit begins practice in the am/is/are-ing form and the time now expressed or understood.

Exercise E gives practice in both the present tense with now and the present tense with every day.

It is natural to use the now form in captions of action pictures such as She is taking care of the children now, and The children are playing, etc. There can be no better introduction to the am/is/are-ing form than thorough practice of these sentences while the pictures with such captions are projected in front of the class. The captions of these pictures are as important as the conversations.

In the conversations there are numerous sentences with every day expressed or understood, like the following:

Children come every day.

Two women take care of the children (every day).

The children play (every day).

They eat lunch (every noon).

They sleep every afternoon.
In Exercise E, be sure that the following forms are used to complete the second of each pair of sentences:

1. works
2. teaches
3. plays
4. study
5. buys
6. sells
7. teaches
8. sleep
9. eat

An excellent additional drill goes like this:

TEACHER: The children are sleeping now. Class, please repeat. The class repeats.

TEACHER: Miss Sena, please repeat the sentence.

MISS SENA: The children are sleeping now.

TEACHER: Good! Use Every Afternoon.

MISS SENA: The children sleep every afternoon.

TEACHER: Excellent!

For special pronunciation, practice thank you, this, that, and other words with th; review name and farm; review school, skirt, stockings. Practice sleep.
CONVERSATIONS

1.

Mr. A: How many rooms are there in the HELP Center?

Mr. B: There are eight or nine. It has a reception room, an office, two classrooms, a workshop, a sewing room, a kitchen, and a nursery.

Mr. A: Is there a lavatory in the building?

Mr. B: Yes, there are two.
This is the nursery. This young woman is Miss Villa. She is taking care of the children now. The children are playing.

Mrs. A: Is the nursery for children?

Mr. B: Yes, it is. Ten or fifteen little children come to the nursery every day. Two young women take care of the children.
These are toys.

These children are looking at a picture-book.

Mrs. A: What do the children do in the nursery all day?

Mrs. B: They play, they look at picture books, and at noon they eat lunch.

Mrs. A: Are there toys and books in the nursery for the children?

Mrs. B: Yes, there are. And there are little tables and chairs and little beds.
These children are eating lunch now.

Mr. A: Do the children sleep in the nursery at night?

Mr. B: No, they don't. They go home at night.

Mrs. B: The children sleep in the nursery every afternoon.

These children are sleeping now.

7. Mrs. Watson is teaching sewing now. She ______ every Thursday.
8. I am not sleeping now, but I ______ every night.
9. You are not eating now, but you ______ every day.

Exercise F. Copy Conversations 2, 3, and 4 -- more if you have time.
UNIT THIRTEEN TEACHING NOTES

The conversations give two ways of telling time, for the class needs to understand both. After going through Conversations 1 - 6, other examples of clock time could profitably be practiced.

Conversations 7 - 10 give thorough practice in verbs in the present in which now is understood even if not always expressed. Conversations 7 - 9 should be thoroughly practiced while the pictures are projected. Thus the class should begin to associate the am/is/are-ing form with action going on, as it were, before their eyes.

In Conversations 7 - 9 the Riveras themselves talk, using mainly the subjects you and I. Conversation 10 uses subjects in the third person -- Mr. and Mrs. Rivera, they, Mr. Rivera, he; Maria, she, etc. This is to afford broad practice of the verb forms with now.

Exercises C and D carry on with the Rivera family 30 minutes later than Conversations 7 - 10 and practices negative and affirmative forms with now.

The teacher might be selective in choosing just which conversations shall be memorized. All should be well practiced.

Give special pronunciation practice to words with the i sound in Miss and the e sound in tree. Review the ur words -- girl, work, nurse, shirt, skirt, and any others in A exercises to date.

5. A quarter past six is the same ______ 6:15.
6. Your book is the same as my book.
7. Albert's coat is the same as Joe's.

Exercise G. Review Conversation 6 in Unit Ten, then complete the following with the correct numbers and other necessary words.

Joe and Albert Rivera are twins. They are six years old now, Last year they were five years old. Next year they will be seven.

Maria Rivera is twelve. Last year she was ________.
Next year she will be ________ years old.

Pedro Rivera _____ ten years old now. Last year he _____ __________ years old. Next year he _____ be _____ years old.

Exercise H. Copy Conversations 1, 6, 10, and others if time permits.
UNIT FOURTEEN TEACHING NOTES

This unit introduces some new verbs, read, write, etc., but no new tenses. It does, however, give extensive practice in the imperative, e.g. please make a list, don't lose the money. It teaches suitable replies to imperatives, including I will and I won't. It teaches Shall I? in the sense of Do you want me to? It also teaches the pattern -- close to the imperative in meaning -- I want you to ------.

These conversations can be fun if the class has the Rivera family clearly in mind.

Extra practice given to the words reading, and writing will be valuable, since these words are near enough alike in sound to confuse many persons learning English.

1.

Mrs. Rivera: Maria. I want you to go to the store for me.

Maria: All right, Mother. What shall I buy?

Mrs. Rivera: Please make a list. Do you have a pencil?

Maria: Yes, I do. What shall I write?

Mrs. Rivera: Please write: a dozen eggs.

Maria: Okay. What else shall I write?

Mrs. Rivera: Write: two loaves of bread.

Maria: What else?

Mrs. Rivera: Can you carry five pounds of sugar?

Maria: Yes, I can.

Mrs. Rivera: Good. Write: five pounds of sugar.

Maria: Okay.

Mrs. Rivera: Now read the list to me.

Maria: A dozen eggs, two loaves of bread, five pounds of sugar. Is that all?

Mrs. Rivera: Yes, that's all.

Maria: Can I buy some bananas?

Mrs. Rivera: Okay. Write half a dozen bananas.
Maria: Shall I wear my coat or my jacket to the store?
Mrs. Rivera: Wear your coat.
Maria: All right.
Mrs. Rivera: Put this money in your pocket, and don't lose it.
Maria: All right, I won't.

Mrs. Rivera is giving some money to Maria.

Joe: Can we go to the store with Maria, Mother?
Albert: Can we go with Maria, Mother? Please, Mother?
Mrs. Rivera: All right. You can go with her, but be good boys.
Joe and Albert: We will be good, Mother.
Mrs. Rivera: Don't play on the road.
Joe and Albert: Okay, we won't.
Mrs. Rivera: And help Maria. Help her carry the groceries.
Joe: I will carry the bananas.
Mrs. Rivera: All right, but don't eat them!
Albert: I will carry the sugar.
Mrs. Rivera: Maria, take good care of your brothers.
Maria: All right, Mother, I will.
Joe: Maria will take good care of us.

6. (now, every noon) They eat lunch in the nursery ________.
7. (now, every Tuesday and Thursday) Mr. Lucero teaches an English class ________.
8. (now, every Tuesday and Thursday) He is teaching ________.

Exercise H. Copy Conversations 2 and 3.

Exercise J. Write the exercises your teacher assigns.
Introducing the past of verbs (other than be, which came into Unit Ten) means practicing a great many new words, because the past form even of regular verbs is sufficiently different from the first form to require special attention. Learners of English tend to have more trouble pronouncing regular verbs than irregular ones. Either they give one syllable too much to verbs like worked and studied, or one too few to wanted and needed. To the native speaker, the rule for forming the past form from the first form is simply to add -ed. This is mostly true in spelling, but ed has three pronunciations: d in lived, t in worked and id in wanted. There are rules to cover this, but the application of rules at this time is less satisfactory and more time-consuming than to teach each word separately.

As for the irregular verbs, everyone expects to have trouble with them and so most persons put an extra effort into mastering them. Irregular verbs abound among the words most needed for talking about the commonest activities. Eat, ate; sleep, slept; buy, bought; sell, sold; go, went are only a few of them.

After the past forms of the verbs are mastered the major difficulty with the past forms went, bought, wanted, cooked, etc., is that in the past negative they do not occur at all. It is well to learn at the outset to say The twins went, but Pedro didn't go. It is equally important to learn early to say Did he go? What did she buy? and the like. In Conversation 4, we read:

What did Maria write?

She wrote a list.

Did she wear her jacket?

No, she didn't. She wore her coat.
Exercises C and D contrast the affirmative of the three tenses studied so far, i.e., the present with everyday, the past with yesterday, and the present with now. The association between the time expressions and the verb forms needs to become very firm indeed.

A supplementary oral practice can be given like this:

TEACHER: Mrs. Sandoval buys bread every day.
Class, please repeat.
The class repeats.
TEACHER: Mr. Lopez, please repeat.
Mr. Lopez repeats.
TEACHER: Yesterday, Mr. Lopez.
MR. LOPEZ: Mrs. Sandoval bought bread yesterday.
TEACHER: Good! Now, Mrs. Bernal.
MRS. BERNAL: Mrs. Sandoval is buying bread now.

Give special drill to the pronunciation of the first and past forms of all the verbs studied so far.

Exercise G. Copy as many of the conversations as you can.

Exercise H. Write the exercises that your teacher assigns.
UNIT SIXTEEN
UNIT SIXTEEN TEACHING NOTES

The three verb tenses already studied come into these conversations. All of Conversation 1 is in the past tense. Conversation 2 contains both present tenses. In Are you taking woodworking this year? this year, like now, is a specific time in the present. When does the class meet? and the reply It meets every Monday are in the present tense associated with habitual action.

These matters of tense need not be spelled out to the class, but the sentences should be clearly understood.

In Conversation 2, we encounter the future with going to and the expression next Monday night in the sentence *Are you going to do next Monday night? Many other sentences in the unit are in the future tense with tomorrow or some other expression of future time -- though sometimes the time is understood, not expressed.

The class practiced the future of be in Unit Ten. There the form will be was used. Will be comes into this lesson also, and also the form am/is/are going to be. Most of the future tense sentences given for practice in this unit are in the going to form, since that form is much more in use than the will form. Actually, there is no difference in meaning between will and going to.

There are probably too many long sentences in these conversations for all to be memorized. It is suggested that at least Conversations 3 and 4 be memorized, and the others thoroughly practiced.
Exercises D, E, and F tell about the same happenings in three different tenses. Good oral exercises might be done as follows:

TEACHER: The children play every day. Yesterday, Mrs. Bernal.

MRS. BERNAL: The children played yesterday.

TEACHER: Good! Tomorrow, Mr. Ortiz.

MR. ORTIZ: The children will play tomorrow.

TEACHER: That's all right, but going to is better than will in this sentence.

MR. ORTIZ: The children are going to play tomorrow.

TEACHER: Very good! Class, please repeat.

CLASS: The children are going to play tomorrow.

For special pronunciation drill, review the first and past verbs practiced so far.
CONVERSATIONS

1.

Mr. Cordova: Did you take a woodworking class last year?

Mr. Lopez: Yes, I did. I took it at the HELP Center, and I liked it very much.

Mr. Cordova: What did you make?

Mr. Lopez: I made a table, I made a set of shelves, and I mended a broken bed.

This is a set of shelves

This is a broken bed.

Mr. Lopez mended this bed.

2.

Mr. Cordova: Are you taking woodworking this year?

Mr. Lopez: Yes, I am.

Mr. Cordova: When does the class meet?

Mr. Lopez: It meets every Monday night at 7:30.

Mr. Cordova: Do you have a good teacher?

Mr. Lopez: Yes, we do. We have a very good teacher.

Mr. Cordova: Are you going to go to woodworking class next Monday night?

Mr. Lopez: Yes, I am. Do you want to go with me?

Mr. Cordova: Yes, I do. Will it be all right?
Mr. Lopez: Sure it will. You can go with me.

Mr. Cordova: Thanks a lot.

Mr. Lopez: Don't mention it.

3.

Mr. Cordova: I am going to take a woodworking class at the HELP Center.

Mrs. Cordova: Oh, that's good! When are you going to begin?

Mr. Cordova: Next Monday night. I'm going to go with Mr. Lopez.

Mrs. Cordova: What are you going to make?

Mr. Cordova: What do you want me to make?

Mrs. Cordova: Well, we need a set of shelves in the kitchen.

Mr. Cordova: Okay. I think I can make some shelves.

4.

Mrs. Cordova: Are you taking a sewing class at the HELP Center this year?

Mrs. Sandoval: Yes, I am. The class meets every Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Cordova: What are you making?

Mrs. Sandoval: Right now I am making baby clothes. My daughter is going to have a baby.

Mrs. Cordova: Oh, you are going to be a grandmother!

Mrs. Sandoval: Yes, I am.

Mrs. Cordova: Congratulations!

Mrs. Sandoval: Thank you.

A Baby

Baby clothes
5.

Mrs. Cordova: Is there a kitchen in the HELP Center?

Mrs. Rivera: Yes, and there is a good big stove in the kitchen.

Mrs. Cordova: Do you take cooking at the Center?

Mrs. Rivera: No, I don't. I take English and sewing, but I am sure there are cooking classes too.

Mrs. Cordova: Can I take a cooking class?

Mrs. Rivera: Yes, I am sure you can. I am going to be at the Center tomorrow, and I will ask about a cooking class for you.

6.

Mrs. Rivera: Mrs. Cordova wants to take cooking lessons. Can she come to a class at the Center?

Miss Sanchez: Sure she can. A new class is going to begin next week.

Mrs. Rivera: When is the new class going to meet?

Miss Sanchez: On Monday evening at 7:30. Can Mrs. Cordova come at that time?

Mrs. Rivera: Yes, I think she can.

7.

Mrs. Cordova: What are we going to make in the cooking class?

Miss Sanchez: Well, next week we're going to make cookies. The week after next, we're going to make bread.

Mrs. Cordova: I am sure I am going to like the cooking class, and I think my husband is going to like it too!

Exercise D. All of the sentences in this exercise are about every day at the nursery. Practice them aloud.

1. Miss Villa and Miss Ray take care of the children every day.
2. The children play with the toys every day.
3. The children don't go home for lunch.
4. They eat lunch at the nursery every noon.
5. They sleep from one to two o'clock every afternoon.
6. Fathers and mothers come for the children after work every evening.
7. The children don't sleep at the nursery at night.
8. They sleep at home every night.

Exercise E. This exercise is about yesterday at the nursery. Complete the incomplete sentences with the past forms of the verbs underlined in Exercise D. Practice the sentences aloud.

1. Miss Villa and Miss Ray took care of the children yesterday.
2. The children ________ with the toys yesterday.
3. They didn't go home for lunch yesterday noon.
4. They ________ lunch at the nursery.
5. They ________ from one to two o'clock yesterday afternoon.
6. Fathers and mothers came for the children after work last evening.
7. The children didn't sleep at the nursery last night.
8. They ________ at home.

Exercise F. This exercise is about tomorrow at the nursery. Make sentences 4-8 fit tomorrow by inserting are going to or aren't going to before the simple verb of the corresponding sentences in Exercise D. Omit don't in 3 and 7. Instead of every day, etc., use tomorrow, etc.

1. Miss Villa and Miss Ray are going to take care of the children tomorrow.
2. The children are going to play with the toys tomorrow.
Exercise G. Copy as many conversations as you can.

Exercise H. Write the exercises your teacher assigns.
