Descriptors: Home Economics; Skills, Occupational Clusters, Occupational Guidance, Occupational Home Economics; Occupational Information, Occupations

Identifiers: Dictionary of Occupational Titles

This bulletin is a reference tool for the identification of home economics-related occupations and requirements and methods of entry into these occupations. A full description of 200 home economics-related occupations as found in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, Volume I, and page references which will facilitate the location of descriptions of the "area of work" and "worker trait group" as indicated in Volume II of the Dictionary are presented. Occupations have been classified and alphabetically arranged into one of six clusters: (1) family relationships, (2) clothing and textiles, (3) foods and nutrition, (4) housing and furnishings, (5) clothing maintenance, and (6) household maintenance and services. Home economics-related occupations were identified by independent analysis of the third edition of the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, Volume I. Lists were compared and organized into clusters. Value judgments of 136 knowledgeable persons to the questions: (1) Is the occupation related to the cluster in which it is classified? (2) To what extent is home economics needed for job competence or job training? and (3) What other professional, business, or industrial groups are involved? were the bases for the wide variety listed. Condensed data are available in VT 002 611. A wide variety of occupational classifications, work areas, worker trade groups, and educational requirements are represented. (FP)

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Special appreciation is extended to the Division of Vocational Education, State of Michigan Department of Education, for funding the project, "Procedures for Establishment and Evaluation of Training Programs for Wage-Earning Occupations Related to Home Economics" and for their assistance and support.

The ten Michigan communities participating in the project brought into sharper focus the need for interpretation, definition and identification of home economics-related occupations and reacted at different stages to materials included in this bulletin.

The Advisory Committee to the Project assisted in making decisions about the general method which appeared suitable and feasible, within the framework of the project, for the tentative identification of occupations which are home economics-related. They realized that some risks were involved, but were open-minded to the exploratory approach used.

The Executive Board of the Michigan Home Economics Association reacted to the proposed method for identification of home economics-related occupations and provided names of persons who were knowledgeable about the extent home economics was needed for job competence or job training for specific occupations. Their responses made it possible to identify tentatively the occupations which are included in this bulletin.

It has been through the cooperation of individuals within these groups that this bulletin has been possible. A very deep appreciation is extended to all.

Beatrice O'Donnell
Project Director

January 1967
This bulletin has been prepared to assist in meeting certain problems experienced by the various groups involved in the research project, "Procedures for Establishment and Evaluation of Training Programs for Wage-Earning Occupations Related to Home Economics." The Project was a joint effort of the State of Michigan Department of Education, Division of Vocational Education; Michigan State University, College of Home Economics and College of Education; and ten Michigan communities including Alpena, Gaylord, Grand Rapids, Lapeer, Menominee, Muskegon, Petoskey, Pontiac, Wayne and Wyandotte.

Purpose of the Bulletin

The major purpose of this bulletin is to share with others the attempts or progress made in the Project to answer two persisting questions raised in the Workshop, summer 1965 and continued to be raised by others in the communities participating in the project: (1) "Just what are the home economics-related occupations?" (2) "What are the requirements for and methods of entry into these occupations?"

The materials contained herein are submitted as tentative and for trial or exploratory use in local communities in processes of interpretation of home economics, occupational orientation, vocational guidance and occupational education.

The position taken in the Project is that effective occupational education at local, regional or state levels requires joint effort of all groups directly involved. In this team approach, home economics has alternative contributions, roles and responsibilities. However, local communities are in need of some assistance in interpretation of home economics as a potential contributor in occupational education for employment in homes, business, industry, government, health and social service.

Content of the Bulletin

This bulletin describes and classifies into clusters approximately 200 "home economics-related" occupations. The description of each occupation consists of two parts: (1) a full description of each occupation as found in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, Volume I, and (2) page references which will facilitate the location of descriptions of the "area of work" and "worker trait group" as indicated in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, Volume II.

It is assumed that the material in this report would be for quick reference and that the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, Volumes I and II would be used as the official reference.

Organization of the Bulletin

Each of the home economics-related occupations has its own identity and is presented on a single page. Each of the occupations has been organized into one of six clusters. There are a few exceptions in which an occupation is included in more than one cluster. The occupations are alphabetically arranged within each cluster. The clusters include:

1. Family, Child Care, Care of the Elderly, and Health Services
2. Clothing, Textiles, and Related Art
3. Foods and Nutrition
4. Housing, Equipment, Furnishings, and Related Art
5. Dry-Cleaning and Laundry Services
6. Non-Domestic Housekeeping, Cleaning, Maintenance, and Miscellaneous Services
Method Used in Identification of Home Economics-Related Occupations

The method selected for use in identification of the home economics-related occupations was primarily exploratory. The occupations in the Third Edition of the Dictionary of Occupational Titles, Volume I, were carefully read by independent analyzers or readers. Lists were compared. A "reasonable" list of occupations was prepared and organized into clusters. Questionnaires were prepared to secure value judgments of persons knowledgeable about occupations and about home economics. Answers were sought to three types of questions: Is the occupation related to the cluster in which it is classified? To what extent is home economics needed for job competence or job training? What other professional, business or industrial groups are involved?

Persons recommended by members of the Executive Board of the Michigan Home Economics Association were asked to respond to the one cluster in which he or she was recommended as knowledgeable. Results from the value judgments of one hundred and thirty-six respondents were used in the selection of the occupations to be included in the tentative listing. If 50 per cent or more of the respondents within each panel indicated they believed that home economics was needed to a "considerable" or "great" extent for job competence or job training, the occupation was listed tentatively as "home economics-related".

Characteristics of the Occupations

The occupations which are included fall into a wide variety of occupational classifications, work areas and worker trait groups. All occupations represent important segments of the work world. The occupations include those requiring widely varying amounts of education, from completion of eighth grade (or no statement about educational level) through college graduation and advanced degrees. The occupations also vary in the types and intensity of specialized and on-the-job training required for entry and for promotion.
Relation of the Occupations to Other Professional Groups

Some of the occupations listed in the Family, Child Care, Care of the Elderly, and Health Services are obviously the major concerns of the professions of nursing, public health and social service. These occupations are included in this bulletin for several reasons: (1) home economists and others on the reaction panels indicated that they believed these occupations were "home economics-related"; (2) these occupations are of increasing importance to individuals and families in our society and there are serious shortages of trained personnel at all educational levels; and (3) home economists have deep commitments to support joint efforts in occupational education involving the provision of these much needed services.

Some of the occupations listed are the concerns of one or more services in vocational education, including agricultural education, business education, distributive education, home economics education, trade and industrial education and health occupations. The extent and nature of involvement and the unique contributions of the various services within vocational education are matters for continued study or consideration as occupational education increasingly becomes characterized by joint or cooperative effort at state and local levels.

Description of the Occupation: (What gets done, how it gets done and why it gets done)

Weaves threads or patches into fabric articles to repair holes, tears, or worn places, using weavers' hand needles:

Cuts patches from seam or hem allowance or article, using scissors. Pins article to padded block. Reweaves defective area by either of the following methods:

(1) Pulls lengthwise and crosswise threads from patch. Inserts ballpoint or latch needle some distance from edge of hole and interlaces it over and under threads of article running perpendicular to needle, across hole or worn area, and into fabric on opposite side, following original pattern. Inserts raveled thread in needle and pulls needle and thread through fabric, leaving thread ends projecting from fabric. Repeats interlacing of raveled threads (rewaving) until hole or worn area is filled. Pulls strands back and forth with fingers until woven part forms color or pattern design of article; and

(2) Ravels threads from edge of hole and patch leaving frayed appearance, and pins or bastes patch under hole so that pattern matches. Interlaces needle over and under threads of article perpendicular to needle. Inserts end of raveled patch thread and pulls needle and thread through fabric. Repeats process until loose (raveled) ends around hole are rewoven into patch. Turns article over and repeats process to reweave thread ends of patch into fabric of article. Cuts off projecting thread ends and marks repaired area with thread to facilitate inspection. May press article, using steam iron or damp cloth and dry iron.
