The findings of a ESEA Title III study designed to assess the feasibility and utility of the paraprofessional concept in education are presented. This study involved: (1) an observation and evaluation of existing paraprofessional programs, primarily in Wayne County Michigan; (2) a comprehensive study of the literature; (3) a review of relevant community college and university course offerings; (4) an examination of negotiated contracts that include paraprofessional provisions; and (5) an analysis of an interinstitutional training program for paraprofessionals. The findings of the study are presented in the form of answers to the following key questions: (1) At what point does the work of the paraprofessional conflict with the responsibilities of the school professional? (2) What kinds of paraprofessional positions are currently held, and what additional positions are needed? (3) What types of training programs will produce desirable paraprofessional skills? and (4) What type of basic demonstration program would be of value to districts of different sizes and needs? The appendix includes a list of specific performance objectives for paraprofessionals. [Parts of document may reproduce poorly due to marginal legibility.] (JH)

The demands placed on schools by society today call for new and imaginative approaches. One such approach is the use of trained paraprofessionals working in schools to provide at-the-elbow help for teachers and students. There is unlimited potential for positive educational change through the prudent utilization of trained assistants in every area of professional service in schools.

Unquestionably, school leaders are obligated to heed and to rectify the widening breach between the school and the community. Involving trained community workers as school paraprofessionals promises to provide the needed linkage to make schools more relevant to the life around them. As a significant by-product, this practice will bring self-renewal for teachers by enhancing their professional status and will open new career opportunities for the many who heretofore have been excluded from employment offering self-realization.
THE PARAPROFESSIONAL STUDY STAFF wishes to acknowledge the support, foresight, and interest of the Wayne County Intermediate School District Board of Education.

Performance Goals for Paraprofessionals

- in the Classroom: 28
- in the Materials Resource Center: 36
- on the Playground (Gym): 39
- Departmental Aide (Language): 42
- Semi-Instructional Tasks: 46
The term "paraprofessional" is defined as a person who has less than the required or expected level of education or training, but who is performing duties usually performed by the professional, under the supervision of the professional. A paraprofessional may be a paid or volunteer worker. He may be assigned to assist any certificated staff member, e.g., a teacher, a counselor, librarian or administrator (school-community agent). He may provide general school aid which cuts across rigid position descriptions. In short, a paraprofessional may work in the school or community on tasks usually performed by the professional or not performed at all.
Report of the Paraprofessional Study

1. WHERE THE STUDY WAS CONDUCTED

The Paraprofessional Study, Title III, ESEA, U.S.O.E., No. 67-2998, was conducted under the auspices of the Wayne County Intermediate School District. The District comprises 622 square miles. Within this area there were at the time of the Study 708,000 school children in 43 local school districts, ranging in size from the City of Detroit with 296,089 pupils and 9,946 teachers to the Brownstown Township School District No. 10 with 104 pupils and 7 teachers. There are 33 major city and township units of government.

The County has an estimated population of 2,728,000, a number greater than the population of 30 of our states. Nearly one-third of Michigan's school population lives within the area served by the Wayne County Intermediate Office of Education. Demographic extremes can be observed in Wayne County. It is possible to see a high-density urban setting, as in Detroit; while a few miles away one can see semi-rural communities without water lines, sewage disposal, or public transportation.
II. HOW THE STUDY WAS CONDUCTED

The general personnel needs in the area were determined in a variety of ways including questionnaires and interviews involving school administrators, teachers, counselors, board members, officers of professional teacher organizations, curriculum coordinators, sociologists, psychologists, research directors, and regional education laboratory and state department of education personnel.

This assessment involved observation and evaluation of existing programs for employing paraprofessionals and the training of these paraprofessionals; comprehensive study of the literature; comprehensive study of community colleges and university course offerings; comprehensive study of negotiated contracts that include provisions for relief of teachers from nonprofessional chores such as lunchroom duty; and joint planning of a Head Start training program with a consortium of seven universities and five community colleges, and nine OEO agencies and affiliates.
Nine paraprofessional projects in Wayne County were visited by the Paraprofessional Study Staff. These were the:

- Miller High School Demonstration Project (Detroit)
- Basic Reading Project (Detroit)
- Pre-School and Head Start Projects (Detroit)
- Archdiocese Opportunity Program (Detroit)
- Inkster Head Start Program
- Marshall School Experimental Program (Livonia)
- Highland Park Paraprofessional Program
- Wayne County Trainable Program
- Detroit Trainable Program

Outside of Wayne County a visitation was made to the Semiprofessional Training Project Workshop in Syracuse, New York (Educational and Cultural Center Serving Onondaga and Oswego Counties) and the Study of Auxiliary Personnel, Bank Street College of Education, New York City.

Some of the training programs assessed by letters of inquiry and/or a study of the literature include:

- Shoreline Junior College (Seattle, Washington)
- Garland Junior College (Boston, Massachusetts)
- Bowling Green State University (Bowling Green, Ohio)
- Goddard College (Plainfield, Vermont)
- St. Petersburg Junior College (Florida)
- Val Verde Project (Riverside, California)
- Berkeley Unified School District Project (Berkeley, California)
- Institute for Youth Studies (Howard University, Washington, D.C.)

Participating institutions and agencies in the Paraprofessional Study Consortium included the following:

Universities and Colleges

- Bowling Green State University
- Eastern Michigan University
- Marygrove College
- Mercy College
- Merrill-Palmer Institute
- University of Michigan
- Wayne State University

III. IDENTIFIED NEEDS

The Study identified the following specific needs:

1. To alleviate shortages of trained personnel to meet demands for services in schools that have a student population of 708,000

2. To improve career opportunities for both professionals and paraprofessionals in new staffing relationships

3. To institutionalize training programs for 7000 paraprofessionals already employed in Wayne County Schools as well as for the professionals with whom they work according to the expressed intent of Rule 390-1105(2) of the "Rules Governing the Certification of Michigan Teachers, 1967" and the Opinions of the Attorney General of the State of Michigan. The State requires licensing of "instructional aides" after they earn 60 hours of college credit or its equivalent

4. To strengthen school community relations especially in disadvantaged areas by improving the effectiveness of school staff in meeting needs of students
IV. FINDINGS OF THE STUDY: THE FOUR KEY QUESTIONS; THE ANSWERS

Key Question No.1

What is the job of the school paraprofessional? At what point does the work of the paraprofessional conflict with the legal and ethical responsibilities of the professional?

Answer

The Limits of Paraprofessionalism

The purpose of employing school paraprofessionals is to make it possible for the certificated person to use his skill and training more effectively. The paraprofessional will not replace the classroom teacher. The tasks performed by the paraprofessional are under the direct supervision of the professional.

Questions concerning the limitations of the school paraprofessional are raised frequently. What should the paraprofessional be permitted to do? What should the paraprofessional not be permitted to do? These questions are central to the issues of role definition and procedures to be established for granting of credentials, certificates or licenses. Clearly, the school professional performs a variety of tasks, the range of which extends from simple behaviors requiring no training and little ability to those behaviors that require special talents and perceptions, supported by extensive training and experience.

The line that separates the professional from the paraprofessional can best be drawn by considering the following precepts:

1. Diagnosing of student needs is a professional task.
2. Prescribing instruction programs is a professional task.
3. Selecting appropriate materials is a professional task.
4. Presenting or teaching content is a professional task.
5. Counseling with students is a professional task.
6. Evaluating student progress and achievement is a professional task.
7. Initiating, determining the why, the how, the where, and the when are professional tasks.

The professional is the decision-maker for the implementation of the educational program.

The paraprofessional does only those things that he is directed to do, working under the supervision of the certificated person. These tasks can be described as those that are:

1. clerical
2. monitorial
3. reinforcement of instruction

Depending on his skill and training, the paraprofessional may be called upon to perform more complex tasks related to the reinforcement of instruction.

Therefore, since the professional and paraprofessional occupy different positions, which can be described in behavioral terms, there need not be confusion over role definition and the limitations of the school paraprofessional.

Key Question No.2

What kinds of paraprofessional positions are currently held?
What additional positions should there be?

In Detroit, the Great Cities Project, Head Start, the Basic Reading Program, the Pre-school Program, and the Trainable Programs employ paraprofessionals in a variety of tasks. In 181 schools, the Great Cities Project employs 1,200 paid paraprofessionals, 500 of whom serve as teacher aides. Three hundred and fifty paraprofessionals in the Great Cities Project serve as school community aides, most of whom work under the direction of professional school-community agents.

*Estimated figures
NOTE ON TRAINABLE PROGRAM IN WAYNE COUNTY

Paraprofessionals are an integral part of the program for trainable students in the Wayne County Public Schools. As an example of this program in Detroit, 40 classes of 15 students are each taught by a teacher assisted by a paraprofessional (40 teachers-40 paraprofessionals). The salaries of aides in the Trainable Program throughout the country are funded under Public Act 221 (Michigan).

REMUNERATION OF PARAPROFESSIONALS

The wages paid paraprofessionals in Wayne County Public Schools ranged from a minimum hourly rate of $1.25 to a maximum hourly rate of $3.50 and a minimum yearly rate of $1,500 to a maximum yearly rate of $3,520.

SOURCES OF FUNDS FOR PARAPROFESSIONALS

The programs employing paraprofessionals are funded as follows:*

- ESEA (Title I) 55%
- OEO 30%
- Local School Funds and State Aid 15%

Types of School Paraprofessional

Serving as a teacher aide is only one of many different types of school paraprofessional. The Paraprofessional Study has identified twenty-six positions which may assist in understanding the concept of paraprofessionalism and how trained non-certificated persons can contribute to strengthening a school's educational program. The twenty-six positions are:

1. Classroom Aide performs clerical, monitorial, and teacher reinforcement tasks under the direct supervision of the classroom teacher.

2. Audio-Visual Technician inventories, stores, performs simple maintenance tasks, and operates audio-visual equipment; may also assist as a stage manager.

3. School Counselor's Aide performs clerical, monitorial, and counseling reinforcement tasks under the direction of the counselor.

4. School Lunchroom Aide supervises lunchroom according to school practices during lunch periods; maintains order, helps children when assistance is needed, works with administration and teachers to improve procedures; supervises after-lunch playground or special activities.

5. General School Aide performs a variety of school duties as assigned by principal, assistant principal, or designated teacher; may assist at doors and in halls, office, bookstore, library, clinic, classroom, but is not assigned to a single station.

6. School Community Aide acts as a liaison person between the school and the community by informing parents of school and community services and by informing teachers of community problems and special needs.
7. School Hospitality Aide receives parents who visit the school and under the direction of the principal conducts the parent to where the parent may meet with a teacher;
may also arrange for refreshments for teachers,
parents, and for children.

8. Departmental Aide works in a particular school department (language, science, fine arts, etc.) to perform designated departmental tasks such as record keeping, inventories, attendance, supplies, marking objective tests, etc.

9. Library Aide works under the supervision of the certificated librarian to assist in operating the school library.
Shelving, filing, clipping, circulation, and book processing are some of the tasks to be performed.

10. Testing Service Aide works with professional testers in schools or regional centers to arrange for, administer, check, and record student test results.

11. Teacher Clerical Aide performs record keeping function, collecting, monitoring, duplicating of tests and school forms.

12. School Security Aide assigned by the principal to security tasks - doors, corridors, special events, lavatories, parking lot,
banking of school receipts.

13. After-School Program Aide supervises, under the direction of the teacher, any after-school activities.

14. Materials Resource Center Assistant (Program Learning Lab Assistant)
performs clerical, custodial, and monitorial functions in a material resource center or program learning laboratory.
15. Special Talent Paraprofessional has special talents to assist teacher in teaching art, music, and/or crafts.

16. Special Skills Aide assists teacher by having special skills in the areas of shop, homemaking, or speaking a foreign language (native Spanish speaker).

17. Crisis Center Paraprofessional (Opportunity Room) works with children who have problems of adjustment in the regular classroom situation.

18. Playground (Recreation) Paraprofessional works with teachers during the school day to assist with physical education activities.

19. Reading Improvement Aide assists reading specialist with basic and/or remedial instruction in a single school or group of schools.

20. Special Education Aide assists special education teacher in implementing instruction and activities for individual or groups of special education pupils.

21. Speech Correction Aide works with speech correction teacher to provide increased correctional services for pupils with speech problems.

22. Attendance Officer Aide provides assistance in dealing with attendance problems; may make home calls whose purpose is delineated by the attendance officer.

23. Bus Attendant Aide is employed at beginning and end of the school day to supervise loading and unloading of school buses; may be assigned to ride buses, especially those transporting very young children.
24. High School Theme Reader reads and checks class themes for those aspects of writing indicated by the teacher.

25. School Health Clinic Aide operates health clinic under direction provided by school nurse.

26. Laboratory Technician assists in school laboratories (language, science) under supervision of teacher; sets up, maintains,
and operates equipment.
Key Question No.3

Since training is necessary, what is the rationale for developing programs which will produce in the trainees the needed knowledge and skills?

Answer

If paraprofessionals are to make their fullest contribution to school programs, their tasks must be defined clearly so that they can be trained to provide maximum service. Teachers and principals must also understand the paraprofessional's role.

The training program must be flexible and yet concrete. It must be task-oriented training based on clearly delineated performance goals. Further, the behaviors for which paraprofessionals are trained must be observable to the teacher and any outside observer who seeks to evaluate the program's effectiveness.

The training program must be preceded by the careful listing of the specific, observable performance goals which the paraprofessional is expected to meet. The next step is to provide training experiences calculated to meet the goals.

The Paraprofessional Study has compiled lists of performance goals for some positions - classroom aide, materials resource center aide, playground or physical education aide, and departmental aide. These lists of performance goals are found in the appendix of this Report. Additional position lists are being developed. Ultimately there should be a list for each of the 26 paraprofessional positions identified by the Study.

The Study has also developed a list of behavioral goals for those paraprofessionals who are able to operate at a higher, more sophisticated level. This list, organized under the headings: Motivating, Organizing, Presenting, Counseling, and Evaluating, is included in the appendix entitled "Behavioral Goals for Paraprofessionals: Semi-Instructional Tasks."
Key Question No. 4

Assuming a rationale for structuring training programs, what is the outline of a basic demonstration program, one which would be of value to districts of different sizes and need?

Answer

Outline of a Basic Demonstration Training Program

The training program should involve a multi-level approach to meet the needs of central office administrators, principals, teachers, and paraprofessionals. Such an approach demands flexibility of grouping in team sessions, grouping by professional level, grouping by paraprofessional function, and other combinations of such grouping in work sessions, small group discussions and seminars.

The function of the work experience is to enable the trainees to achieve the behavioral goals previously determined, particularly those goals which have relevance to the particular job assignment. The program will stress learning by doing, role-playing, and job simulation techniques. Learning will be applied directly on the job.

Programmed materials developed by Science Research, Inc., and other firms, may be used by paraprofessionals for instruction in lunchroom supervision, toileting, snack breaks, auditorium duty, cafeteria duty, playground duty, and trips. SRI materials may also be used in the instruction in the use of audio-visual equipment, but this material will be supplemented by actual practice on the machines themselves.

Independent study will be performed by each paraprofessional under the direction and assistance of the professional members of his team. These independent study assignments may involve field trips, logs or diaries, visitations and observations within the particular school building, and/or practice in how-to-do activities.

The following is an outline of a training program of ten half-day sessions:

1. "The Emerging Role of the Paraprofessional"
   General Session: Background
Film: "Teacher Aides, A New Opportunity"
Work Session: Bank Street College Checklist of Activities, small groups
General Summary: Reports of Work Sessions

2. Paraprofessional Work Session and Professional Seminar
   Audio-Visual Techniques Work Session
   Professionals will analyze and discuss twenty-six paraprofessional job descriptions and performance tasks of paraprofessionals.
   General Summary: Professionals report findings.

3. Role-playing to involve all participants in teams and teams in combination; presentation of problems encountered in new staffing relationships
   General Summary: Symposium report

4. Paraprofessional Work Sessions and Professional Seminar Work
   Sessions on large and small group games for children, and art activities. Paraprofessionals learn by playing a variety of games and by engaging in the preparation of art projects and bulletin boards. Professionals will analyze new staffing practices and how changes in staff affect classroom management.

   Professional Seminar: Behavioral goals for teachers.

6. The Library and the Material Resource Center: general presentations, films, at the Wayne County Library and at the ASSIST Center.

7. Teacher Reenforcement Tasks in Reading, Writing, and Mathematics-school team approach. Practice in "how-to-do."
8. Sensitivity Training - The Dynamics of Group Work. Activities planned by Dr. Allen Menlo, University of Michigan School of Education and/or Mrs. Marilyn Harris, Executive Director, State of Michigan Training Laboratory, the regional laboratory of the National Training Laboratory, Bethel, Maine.

9. Large Group Work Sessions for Paraprofessionals on Child Growth and Development - films and presentations by staff members of Merrill-Palmer Institute with special emphasis on nutrition.

V. FORTY RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE STUDY

A. GENERAL RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING THE NEED TO EXTEND AND IMPROVE PARAPROFESSIONAL PROGRAMS

The practice of using paraprofessionals should be extended and training be improved.

1. Since there are presently some 7000 paraprofessionals currently employed in Wayne County, most with little or no training, establish training programs for those who are on the job or who have already been selected by local districts for placement.

2. Certificated personnel must be oriented to the potential of paraprofessional assistance through inservice education programs.

3. Certificated personnel must be assisted in order to make effective use of and to work productively with school paraprofessionals.

4. Cooperative arrangements for inservice programs are necessary. Included should be local districts, teacher training institutions, appropriate social agencies, and the intermediate district.

5. Regional demonstration training programs should be initiated for paraprofessionals, for certificated personnel with whom they work, and for those responsible for school paraprofessional programs.

These programs should operate under the auspices of the State Department of Education or the Intermediate School District.

B. RECOMMENDATIONS RELATING TO THE NEED FOR DEVELOPING AN INSTITUTIONALIZING PROCESS FOR EDUCATIONAL PERSONNEL TO PROMOTE NEW AND IMPROVED STAFFING PRACTICES

An institutionalizing process for educational personnel to encourage new and improved staffing practices is a necessity.

C. RECOMMENDATIONS TO LOCAL SCHOOL DISTRICTS ON TAPPING A NEW SOURCE OF PERSONNEL THROUGH THE RECRUITMENT AND SELECTION OF PROMISING CANDIDATES FOR PARAPROFESSIONAL TRAINING AND PLACEMENT.

Local school districts have a new source of personnel from which promising candidates for paraprofessional positions can be recruited, trained, and placed.

1. The basic prerequisite for being hired as a paraprofessional should be experience and interest in working with children and not an arbitrary restriction such as graduation from high school.

2. A significant percentage of the paraprofessionals assigned to a specific school should be indigenous to the community.

3. The employment of trained paraprofessionals should be considered an additional route for achievement of integration of school staffs.

4. A comprehensive advisory council on the employment of paraprofessionals should be established in each local school district. It should be comprised of paraprofessionals, teachers, counselors, principals, members representing professional associations and/or unions, community leaders, and central office personnel.

5. The local Board of Education should establish written policies that clearly outline conditions of employment, salary schedule, fringe benefits, probationary periods, grievance procedures, job tenure, if any, period of employment, sick leave, working conditions, and terminations.

6. Local school districts should provide each paraprofessional with a handbook as an on-the-job resource.

7. Improved job performance of paraprofessionals should be reflected in pay increases.
8. The position filled by the paraprofessional should be one for which he is trained and one which offers upward mobility and personal satisfaction.

9. Many paraprofessionals will be recruited from the ranks of the unemployed or underemployed. Training programs, job assignments, and continuing inservice programs must emphasize the individual needs of the paraprofessional for personal growth as well as his potential contribution to the school program.

10. The paraprofessional should be assigned to work with a professional on a one-to-one basis whenever possible. Paraprofessionals work most effectively when their responsibilities and allegiances are not diluted. Ultimately there will be situations, e.g. classrooms, where there will be more than one paraprofessional working with a teacher.

11. School systems should realize the importance of the linkage to the community provided by the paraprofessional and capitalize on this positive aspect.

D. RECOMMENDATIONS ON THE DESIGNING OF TRAINING PROGRAMS

The design of training programs should include the following elements:

1. Involve both paraprofessional and certificated personnel during training to provide for the interaction which must precede understandings regarding the role of each in the school's program.

2. Inservice programs should be structured to meet the needs of teams of participants from individual schools. A team should consist of a central office administrator, a teacher, a principal, and two paraprofessionals.

3. Learning experiences for paraprofessionals should be based on observable performance tasks. These must be developed prior to the training programs.

</table>
As is the case in many educational ventures, the growth of the concept of paraprofessionalism depends on the availability of money. Employing large numbers of new educational staff members means additional strain on the already over-burdened local school district budget. If local districts locate funds not already spoken for, an organized, increasingly militant professional union or association is likely to demand that such monies be allocated to a needed raise in teacher salaries.

This is likely to be the case especially when teachers see the emerging paraprofessional as a threat rather than a benefit, as an additional problem rather than a promise of better days to come, as a means of undermining the profession rather than a means of enhancing it. For a number of reasons, not all certificated personnel view the paraprofessional as a useful, productive, and needed ally. However, the Study indicates that where paraprofessionals have been properly trained and employed, and where teachers and administrators are attuned to their potential, paraprofessionals are cherished additions to the school's staff.

One Wayne County district is presenting an option to its teachers. When there are certain staff vacancies in any school building, the staff decides on whether it would rather fill the vacant positions with teachers or paraprofessionals, using the ratio of one teacher to two paraprofessionals. Included is the proviso that if paraprofessionals are selected in this manner they cannot comprise more than 15% of the total staff.
Clearly, the paraprofessional concept will flourish initially only when outside funds (state? federal?) are made available to local districts for the express purpose of training paraprofessionals and paying their salaries. This may come about through some kind of matching arrangement made available to all districts, or it may result from increased monies allocated to districts eligible for additional assistance because of large numbers of disadvantaged children within their boundaries. The 1968 Michigan State Aid Act provides some assistance in this manner to such districts, with matching funds earmarked for paraprofessional salaries.

Bills have been introduced into the Congress for similar purposes, but to date none has been reported out of committee. It is likely that efforts will be renewed to achieve this end. An aroused and supportive profession can make its needs known.

The paraprofessional concept, with its career ladder component, offers the potential for improving not only the ways in which children achieve, but it contains also the promise of new, self-realizing jobs for thousands of persons who presently are unemployed or underemployed.

Paraprofessionals can make significant contributions to schools, to their communities, and enjoy the satisfaction which flows from performing a socially valuable service.
Appendix A

Performance Goals for Paraprofessionals in the Classroom

The list which follows is meant to be comprehensive, but not exhaustive. No single classroom aide should be expected to do all of these tasks; his job is determined by needs as perceived by the local school district.

An effort has been made to list tasks which are observable, since an evaluation of the effectiveness of a paraprofessional will depend largely on what he does which is evident to the teacher and to an outside observer, should one be present.

The list is divided into two broad categories: One, those tasks which are primarily Institutional in nature, that is, tasks which grow out of the demands of the school administration as it functions; two, those tasks which are characterized as Reenforcement of Instruction, that is, tasks evolving from the direct instruction of children. In all cases the paraprofessional is expected to work under the direct supervision of the classroom teacher to perform tasks prescribed by the teacher.

The two categories, Institutional and Reenforcement, are listed according to a frequency distribution:

1=tasks usually performed one or more times each school day
2=tasks performed on the average of once each week
3=tasks performed 6 to 20 times during the school year
4=tasks performed fewer than 6 times a year

Thus, a task listed under R-2, indicates that it is performed to reenforce instruction once a week.

1. Taking roll
2. Recording daily work into grade book
3. Collecting lunch money
4. Collecting milk money
5. Filing correspondence and other reports in children's records
6. Checking mailbox twice daily for communiques
7. Supervising students during short rest period
8. Preventing students from running in halls
9. Checking student passes and activity in hall before class
10. Writing student permission slips
11. Picking up paper from floor
12. Checking lavatories
13. Supervising students on recess
14. Closing lockers left open
15. Assisting children to tie shoe laces
16. Assisting children to zip zippers
17. Assisting children to button buttons
18. Assisting children to tie scarves
19. Recording tests into grade book
20. Straightening room after dismissal - pulling shades, opening drapes, cleaning board and sink, etc.

Paraprofessional Performance Goals

1. Tasks usually performed one or more times each school day

1. Pick up books and magazines at end of period, module, and day
2. Distribute interoffice mail
3. Hang up newspapers
4. Straighten furniture in library
5. Turn on equipment
6. Put on cartridge in tape disk
7. Manage communications laboratory
8. Write passes for students when approved
9. Erase tapes for re-use
10. Clean all equipment (heads of tape recorder, etc.)
11. Repair broken tapes
12. Adjust headphones for students
13. Mark all tapes, boxes with pertinent information
14. Put date and name information on large group lecture tapes and visual materials
15. Check on large group lecture tapes for audibility
16. Check on student behavior
17. Record tape information on record sheet (type name, etc.)
18. Adjust levels for hearing or Speaking
19. Check on student passes
20. Keep modular record of attendance for monthly report
21. Write repair orders for AV equipment
22. Deliver equipment when needed
23. Change bulbs
24. Issue audio tapes
25. Make copies of audio tapes (and of series - 2)
26. Order films for teacher
27. Check in films from central office
28. Prepare films to be returned to central office
29. Issue all AV equipment to teachers
30. Make transparencies for teachers
31. Water plants
32. Sort daily mail
33. Type cards for magazine circulation (if no secretary or clerk)
34. Process magazines for use (binding, plastic cover, etc.)
35. Read articles for vertical file
36. Clip articles for vertical file
37. Run filmstrip projector
38. Issue filmstrips
39. Issue transparencies
40. Issue slides
41. Issue micro-film
42. Issue film loops
43. Issue records
44. Issue magazines from stacks
45. Help locate information in Reader's Guide
46. Run 8mm single loop projector
47. Demonstrate use of Audio-visual equipment in teachers' rooms
48. Run record player
49. Find books (if no secretary or clerk)
50. Assist with reference work (look up information in books, look up information on cards)
51. Answer telephone
52. Count circulation by category
53. Accept money for fines
54. Check in books from circulation
55. Write overdue notices
56. File book cards for circulation
57. Stamp book card for circulation date
58. Stamp circulation slips
59. Check student ID cards (circulation desk for check out)
60. Sort books into categories
61. Shelve books
62. File catalogue cards (several places) public catalogue shelf list, etc.
63. Stamp books with school name, etc.

2. Tasks performed on the average of once each week

1. Interfile IBM inventory cards
2. Verify catalogue cards and order cards
3. Pull IBM order cards
4. Help to classify books
5. Mark spine of books
6. Run off mimeograph notices to teachers
7. Make reports on broken furnishings or custodial help needed
8. Correct catalogue cards
9. Correct cataloguing errors
10. Set up audio equipment in lecture theater or large group rooms
11. Make transparencies for students
12. Review new audio-visual materials
13. Prepare displays
14. Fix bulletin boards
15. Attend building faculty meetings
16. Punch IBM cards (if no secretary or clerk)
17. Order books - fill in order slips
18. Sort catalogue cards
19. Type book cards (if no secretary or clerk)
20. Paste card pockets
