To relate the three major aspects of the home economics program at the secondary level, a curriculum model consisting of education for homemaking and family life, education for employment utilizing home economics knowledge and skills, and pre-professional education was developed by the director of the Department of Vocational and Technical Education and Bureau of Educational Research, University of Illinois. A scope and sequence chart and course outline for Grades 7-12 are given for all three aspects of the curriculum model. Detailed plans for a sequence of prevocational units, which were field tested at the 7th, 8th, and 10th-grade levels and revised, contain objectives, generalizations, content, learning experiences, teaching aids, means of evaluation, and references. Also included are curriculum guides for 11th and 12th grade occupationally oriented classes. Objectives, generalizations, content, learning experiences, teaching aids, means of evaluation, and references are provided for courses in child care as well as food and clothing services. (SB)

Preface

The curriculum model for home economics education at the secondary level herein presented was developed out of efforts over a period of several years to relate in a meaningful way the three major aspects of the home economics program at the secondary level.

Outlines for all three aspects of the program (education for home and family living, preparation for employment in home economics-related occupations, and preprofessional education related to home economics) are given. Detailed plans for prevocational units of instruction at the seventh-, eighth-, and tenth-grade levels are presented, along with curriculum plans for occupationally oriented courses in the senior high school.

In the process of preparation are detailed teaching plans for the homemaking and consumer education aspects of the program.
Acknowledgements

The project director wishes to acknowledge the contributions of a number of graduate assistants, students, and staff members in making this project possible.

Mrs. Bessie Hackett and Mrs. Norma Bobbitt merit special mention for their continued interest, support, encouragement, and contributions of ideas and materials for the project. As assistants, both went far beyond the call of duty in serving as members of the project team.

Dr. Amy Jean Knorr, Dr. Mary Mather, and Dr. Emma Whiteford were generous in their contributions of time, interest, and ideas.

Mrs. Lila Jean Eichelberger and Miss Carol Hodgson contributed in a very substantial way in preparing the sections on child care and clothing occupations.

Others who made excellent contributions to the total curriculum development project were Mrs. Winifred Davis, Miss May Huang, Miss Alice Kauffman, Miss Linda Lucht, Mrs. Mildred Griggs, Mill Julie Miller, and Mrs. Jean Viar. Some of the materials prepared by these graduate assistants are not presented in the present report but have appeared in issues of the Illinois Teacher, a publication of the Division of Home Economics Education, University of Illinois, or will appear in future publications of the division.
HOME ECONOMICS EDUCATION AT THE SECONDARY LEVEL--A CURRICULUM MODEL

The creation of a new theoretical model for home economics programs has resulted from a need for synthesizing and coordinating the broadened areas of responsibility in the field. The proposed integrated model\(^1\) consists of three major aspects: (1) education for homemaking and family life, (2) education for employment utilizing home economics knowledge and skills, and (3) pre-professional education. These three aspects are united by an area of commonality with a central core of "roles of women." Connections also exist among aspects of home economics and other fields of vocational education. They serve to extend areas of commonality beyond traditional subject-matter boundaries. A diagram of this model is presented to enable readers to visualize the concept and to understand the organization of curriculum content.

Bases for decisions

The establishment of bases for decisions is essential for concerted effort in curriculum development. Therefore, a fundamental step in proceeding with the curriculum project was to examine various bases and to determine those which seemed relevant. Primary considerations in reaching decisions in this project were social conditions--family life in America, roles of family members in our culture, social institutions as they affect family members. Other bases which seemed important to explore at length were the structure of home economics as a field of study, research findings in relation to adolescent characteristics and needs, and learning theories as they apply to curriculum construction. All approaches to the task pointed to the need for increased emphasis on relationships, management, and the development of occupational competence.

Home economics today is a complex and broad field of study, a loose composite of knowledges derived from a variety of disciplines. Because of the wide range of possible choices of subject matter, priorities need to be considered in choosing content which is most significant for today's patterns of living. In the current project, every effort was made to select content pertinent to the roles which women will actually assume. As certain homemaking skills become less important, there is less need to emphasize them in a homemaking program. Garment construction is considered here to be one of the less essential skills. Management, on the other hand, has increased in importance as women's roles have expanded. An initial step in this project was the evaluation of numerous topics that have been a part of traditional programs. In addition, there was an examination of other areas of study, facets of women's roles relatively new to the home economics curriculum. Final decisions represented an attempt at rational selection of content for a balanced program in home economics to provide for both depth and breadth.

Once selected, it was necessary to organize the content into a meaningful sequence. Members of the project staff considered many factors in order to provide for a logical and psychological order of presentation. They arranged and rearranged topics, examining both vertical and horizontal progression, before deciding on a final plan.

Because of the thought given to arranging the sequence, teachers are encouraged to follow the general outline of units for a given year if they wish to try out the curriculum guides. It is recognized, however, that local situations must be considered; it may be necessary to make adaptations. The proposed curriculum is designed to be accommodative and to allow for individual circumstances. Grades 7, 9, and 11 are considered basic courses incorporating major areas important for homemaking today with some pre-employment emphasis. Grades 8, 10, and 12 provide for enrichment. They include more activity in the sense of "doing and making." They could be eliminated without creating gaps in subject matter. It should be noted that grade 11 is a foundation course for grade 12. If there is a choice, grade 11 is preferred.

Curriculum guides for the early years contain certain basic content, yet total emphasis is not given their applicability to either homemaking or employment situations. Much emphasis at this level is given personal development of the girl in her various roles. A major objective is development of self-understanding and acceptance and ability to cope effectively with the various facets and responsibilities of her feminine roles. Included at this level are units on prevocational preparation with emphasis on developing traits that make for employability, learning about home economics-related occupations, and looking ahead to the dual role of homemaker and wage-earner. Curriculum guides for the last two years of the senior high school emphasize either homemaking and family living or occupational preparation. Learnings common to the homemaking role and the occupational role are identified with the student, with the expectation that greater transfer of learning may result from such identification and application. Emphasis on the dual role is continued at this level.

Boys in the program

Whereas emphasis is given the education of girls in the early years, both boys and girls are to be served by the program at junior and senior high school levels.
Boys will be prepared for their roles as family members and homemakers and for employment in service occupations in such fields as child care and food services.

Of the three aspects presented in the scope and sequence outlines, employment and pre-professional areas are the least structured. This is consistent with the fact that their organization is more dependent upon local school situations. The charts on the following pages outline the scope and sequence of major areas of content for junior and senior high school programs.

1. Material contributions.
2. Non-material contributions.

D. Values in supporting well-being of aging family members.

1. To the aging.
2. To other family members.
3. To the society.

UNIT VI. CONTINUING EDUCATION IN FAMILY LIFE.

I. Need for continuing education in family life.

A. Societal changes bring about changed conditions and requirements for individuals and families.

1. Different life patterns for women and men.
2. Different employment patterns and opportunities for women.
3. New requirements for homemaking and management skills.
   a. Changes in income bringing increased responsibility for handling money and credit.
   b. Changes in time available for homemaking and leisure bringing increased significance to decision-making concerning allocation of time.
   c. New products and services increasing the alternatives available to families.
   d. Relocation of homes and jobs; living and working in new situations.

B. Research continuously produces new knowledge with implications for family life.
   2. Characteristics of family life which influence human development.

II. Need for recognizing reliable information in family life education.
   A. Bombardment of the public by mass media with both reliable and non-reliable information.
   B. Consequences of using non-reliable information.
   C. Characteristics of reliable information.
   D. Sources of reliable information.

III. Challenge to family members in continuing education in family life education.
   A. Constant reassessment of values and the resources for achieving them.
   B. Building attitudes of inquiry and excitement in learning in family members.
Introduction

Educators have expressed concern because occupational education is not offered early enough to reach those students who need it most. It has been suggested that a realistic concept of work, emphasizing the need for continued development of salable traits and skills, be introduced early in the elementary school and built upon throughout the grades. Recently the President's Advisory Council on Vocational Education recommended that the concept of vocational education be broadened: "Pre-vocational training should be included within the definition of vocational education."4 In line with this thinking, vocational educators throughout the country are designing curricula geared to the needs of youngsters in early adolescence.

The pre-vocational unit developed for grade 7 was selected for publication to aid home economics teachers who are in the process of adopting new employment-related areas for study at the junior high level. The unit attempts to help students in improving their skills in human relations and in cultivating their employment potential.

This seventh grade unit was field-tested at Franklin Junior High School in Champaign, Illinois by Mrs. Connie Sasse. It was discovered that certain learning experiences were inappropriate and that other changes should be made. As a result of this trial, there was an extensive revision of the original unit plan. The unit also was evaluated by Mrs. Mildred Griggs and Mrs. Gail Heidari, junior high school home economics teachers.

Readers will observe that elements of the unit plan have been classified according to categories in the taxonomies of educational objectives. One purpose of classifying is to facilitate communication, to enable teachers to identify specific levels of learning. It also stimulates thought in curriculum planning and encourages the selection of a sequence of experiences which are consistent with stated objectives. Classifying tends to promote teaching toward higher levels of behavior and provides a check on changes which take place in students. Some difficulty in assigning objectives, learning experiences, and test items to appropriate categories was encountered by project workers. There were differences in interpretation. It is anticipated that readers will find some inconsistencies and that they will disagree in certain instances with the categorizations. It is hoped that they will note their opinions on the evaluation form provided.

The unit is structured so that teachers may perceive relationships among the five aspects: objectives, content, learning experiences, teaching aids, and means of evaluation. Objectives, as stated, specify two dimensions: content and level of behavior. Content, expressed in terms of conceptual statements or generalizations, is to be "discovered" or "arrived at" by students as they participate in learning. The learning experiences are designed to lead to student-drawn generalizations and are stated in terms of student actions. They are arranged in sequence so that learning will proceed from lower to higher levels of behavior. Teachers will need to supply specifics that will enable students to generalize. Although teachers might prefer not to use all of the experiences in their teaching, it is suggested that the general order be maintained. Additional experiences could be introduced at various points to enhance the progression of learning. A list of teaching aids appropriate for the various topics is included in each section.

Resources are also compiled in appendices and reference lists at the end of the unit plan. Time limitations prevented previewing all of the films. It is hoped that teachers will keep this in mind when they make selections. Means of evaluation for each set of objectives are included to enable teachers to have a cumulative check of progress. To aid in test construction, objective items are included at the end of the unit.

Overview

The purpose of this unit is to help students grow in awareness of their resources for developing qualities that contribute to healthy inter-personal relationships and to employability. The material may be used in part, or it may be adapted for use at the high school level in work-orientation units. It may supplement the Grade 10 unit: "Looking Forward to Marriage and/or a Job or Career."

Major Objectives

Comprehends that self-knowledge and self-acceptance are necessary to healthy inter-personal relationships with friends and employers.

Comprehends that many personal qualities which contribute to healthy friendships also contribute to employability.

Comprehends what makes a tentative vocational decision a sound one.

Is able to use information from self assessment and about vocations in making sound vocational choices.

Believes in using principles for change in making plans for self-improvement.

Believes in making continuous educational and vocational plans.

Major Generalizations

When a person has an accurate picture of himself and accepts himself, he has a sound basis for becoming a friend and for making himself employable.

Many qualities which make a person a valued friend also tend to make him employable: physical qualities, psychological resources, social capabilities, habits, interests and special skills, personal values.

Occupations differ in the qualifications they require for successful performance.

There are socially valuable jobs for a wide range of personal capabilities.

A sound vocational choice is one in which personal capabilities are consistent with job requirements and opportunities.
Insight into personal capabilities can be secured through: observations by teachers, counselors and others; records of attendance, grades, performance; tests of achievement, intelligence, abilities, interests, and personality; self-analysis.

Occupational information is available from counselors, employers, workers, others; advertisements; public and private employment agencies; placement offices; and printed materials.

When plans for self-improvement are consistent with principles for initiating change, the chances of accomplishing the improvement are enhanced.

Continuous educational and vocational plans enable a person to take advantage of educational and other opportunities for increasing employability.
OBJECTIVES

Recognizes that knowing oneself can provide a basis for becoming a friend and an employable person. (C-1.31 Knowledge of Generalizations)

Aware that some personal characteristics are important for both friendship and employability. (A-1.1 Awareness)

Aims to get an accurate view of own qualities and characteristics. (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

CONTENT

When a person has an accurate picture of himself, he has a basis for becoming a friend.

When a person has an accurate picture of himself, he has a basis for making himself employable.

Some personal characteristics which make a person a valued friend also tend to make him an employable person.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

(This series of learning experiences serves only to introduce students to the purpose of the unit and to a few of the basic ideas in it. The total unit is designed to develop depth understanding of these ideas.)

1. Examine case examples of teenagers who do not have accurate views of themselves and who cannot understand why others do not remain friendly with them.

2. Explain what each teenager described needs to learn about himself in order to become a friend.

3. Examine case examples of individuals who lose jobs and cannot understand why.

4. Explain what these individuals need to learn about themselves to become employable.

5. Identify some characteristics of people in the case examples which seem to make them lose friends and jobs and state the opposite characteristic which could help them keep friends and jobs.

6. State in own words the major ideas developed about:
   --the relation between knowing oneself and becoming a friend
   --the relation between knowing oneself and becoming employable
   --the relation between characteristics or qualities that help in making friends and holding a job.

TEACHING AIDS

Teacher made or collected case examples:

--Teenagers who have inaccurate views of themselves and have trouble making and keeping friends
--Individuals who lose jobs and cannot understand why.
EVALUATION

7. Each student make a list of things he would think it important to know about himself as a basis for becoming a friend and an employed person. Teacher appraise students' statements of major ideas learned and what they want to learn about themselves for accuracy of ideas and attitude toward self-knowledge.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends what personal information and guidance for use in developing as a friend and in making vocational decisions can be secured from various sources. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

Is interested in discovering information and guidance for use in developing as a friend and in making an occupational decision. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

Knowledge of sources of personal information and guidance contributes to an individual's potential for self-discovery.

Information and guidance from a variety of sources can give a more complete view of an individual than that from one or two sources.

Sources of personal information available to the student are:

--observations of teachers, counselors, and others
--records of attendance, grades, performance
--tests of achievement, intelligence, abilities, interests, personality
--personal intuition.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Read reference materials on learning about oneself to compile a list of questions to ask resource person(s).

2. Listen to resource person(s) talk about ways in which students can learn about themselves and make plans for self-improvement and vocational choice; question resource person(s).

3. Share ideas about the meaning of "personal intuition" and explain how it may limit an individual in knowing about himself.

4. Summarize ideas about sources of personal information and guidance.

TEACHING AIDS

Books:

Pamphlets:

Cosgrove and Unruh, Discovering Yourself.
Kirkendall, Finding Out About Ourselves.
Menninger, All About You.

EVALUATION

5. Respond to objective test items matching sources of information and guidance with particular information for which they are reliable sources.
6. Each student add to list of things he wants to find out about himself and for each item identify source(s) he plans to use. Teacher appraise accuracy of students' responses and attitude toward self-study.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends sources from which occupational information and guidance may be secured. (C-2.2 Interpretation)
Is eager to locate sources of occupational information and guidance. (A2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

Knowledge of sources of occupational information and guidance enables one to locate information about job requirements and opportunities.

Many sources of occupational information are available for persons to investigate.

--counselors, employers, workers, others
--advertisements
--public and private employment agencies, placement offices
--pamphlets, books

Using a variety of sources of information can give a relatively complete picture of job requirements and opportunities.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Brainstorm for ideas about the kinds of information persons might seek concerning jobs.
2. Organize the ideas from brainstorming into categories of information about occupational requirements and opportunities.
3. Develop questions for and conduct a class interview with guidance counselor, librarian, and/or teacher on locating and using printed sources of occupational information.
5. Exchange ideas on how a person might get leads on a part-time job or question high school students for advice on locating work.

6. Listen to a resource person from a public or private employment agency explain the kinds of information available from such agencies; ask questions of the resource person.

7. Each student list 3 questions about an occupation in which he is interested; name sources to use in finding answers to the questions; investigate the sources and try to answer the questions.

EVALUATION

8. Each student judge his success in locating occupational information.

9. Respond to objective test item requiring matching of categories of occupational information with reliable sources of them.
   Teacher assess efficiency and accuracy of students' performance in locating occupational information and attitudes in performing the task.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends how physical qualifications are related to vocational choices.
(C-2.2 Interpretation)

Is eager to investigate physical requirements of various vocations. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

Comprehends how physical qualifications may be related to friendships.
(C-2.2 Interpretation)

Senses the differing effects of physical characteristics on first impressions of people and those developed over a period of time. (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)

CONTENT

Occupations differ in their physical requirements.

Physical characteristics affect employability in certain occupations.
---height status
---strength, energy, stamina
---age, height, weight
---posture, appearance
---grooming, clothing
---voice and speech
---physical handicaps

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

(Teacher prepare a list of occupations which differ in physical requirements.)

1. State own ideas about physical requirements for each listed occupation.

2. In small groups investigate sources of occupational information to check own ideas about physical requirements for selected occupations with authoritative statements; share findings with total class.
Careful analysis of personal physical assets and liabilities will help in determining a suitable choice of occupation.

Physical characteristics and appearance tend to have a greater influence on first impressions of people than on opinions developed over a period of time.

TEACHING AIDS

3. Cite physical characteristics which people can develop or improve.

4. Prepare a bulletin board or make a collection of stories and articles showing instances in which individuals have overcome or capitalized on physical characteristics; share knowledge of similar instances and discuss reactions to them.

5. View a film on posture, appearance, and speech; summarize ideas.

6. Share ideas about the meaning of "People communicate their feelings about themselves by their posture and walk."

7. Demonstrate posture which gives an impression of self-confidence.

8. Tape record interviews with class members; play for students to hear own voices.

9. Give examples of instances in which first impressions of a person based on physical characteristics were changed with longer acquaintances.

EVALUATION

10. Each student list five occupations for which he could not qualify due to physical restrictions and explain his limitations for each job.

11. Each student list two or three occupations he would be interested in entering and explain a few physical characteristics he will need to develop to be successful in them.

Teacher appraise students' acceptance of their physical limitations. Observe individual students and look for ways in which they can be helped to improve their physical characteristics.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the importance of mental health in friendships and employability. (G-2.2 Interpretation)

Is alert to the importance of mental health in enjoying people and finding satisfaction in work. (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)

Shows willingness to approach friendships and becoming employable in a mentally healthy way. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)
Mental health helps a person to enjoy people and find satisfaction in work.

Characteristics which contribute to mental health are self-confidence, optimism, freedom from fears and tensions, and freedom from jealousness and resentments.

Understanding possible psychological bases for the behavior of self and others can aid in being mentally healthy.

Your Feelings

EVALUATION

1. Read references or articles on mental health and share findings with the class.

2. Explore in buzz groups ideas for answering such questions as follow and report to class:
   --What are the indications of mental health?
   --How do people develop a feeling of self-confidence?
   --What are indications of mental ill health?
   --What kinds of fears and tensions bother teen-agers and interfere with their mental health?
   --What is jealousy? How do people show their jealousy to others?
   --Why are people jealous?
   --What can we do to bolster the mental health of others?
   --Where can ordinary people find help to improve their mental health?

   Summarize generalizations.

3. Examine illustrations in chart, Adventuring in Home Living, pp. 10-13, to identify indications of good and poor mental health.

4. View film on mental health. Explain how it relates to teenage problems.

5. Determine resources of the community which support the mental health of the citizens.

6. Write descriptions from personal experience of friendship situations which depict practices that are mentally healthy and mentally unhealthy.

7. Read teacher-prepared case examples of teenagers with problems in work situations. Propose a way of meeting each problem and then judge whether the proposal is mentally healthy or unhealthy.

8. Complete the sentence? "In spite of my shortcomings, people like me because _________."

Teacher appraise accuracy of students' interpretation of mentally healthy and unhealthy approaches in case situations; examine completed sentences and observe reactions in class for clues concerning the state of students' mental health.
OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that occupations differ in the kind and level of intelligence they require. (C-2.2 Interpretation)

Is aware that there are socially valuable occupations for a wide range of intellectual abilities. (A-1.1 Awareness)

Comprehends the relation of accurate self-knowledge of intellectual abilities to realistic occupational decisions. (C-2.2 Interpretation)

Is willing to learn about own intellectual abilities and to plan for continued development. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

Jobs differ in the degree and kind of intelligence required.

--general intelligence
--mechanical ability
--ability to follow directions

There are socially valuable jobs for a wide range of intellectual abilities.

When a person knows the nature of his intellectual abilities, he has a basis for making appropriate educational plans relating to occupational decisions.

Your School Record Is Important

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Listen to and ask questions of a resource person on nature of intelligence, instruments for measuring, limitations of current devices, interpretation of results.

2. Examine examples of elementary intelligence tests. Explain how limited experiences may prevent pre-schoolers from showing true ability. Cite ways in which children can be helped to develop natural abilities.

3. Read about developing intellectual abilities, school achievement, academic success.

4. Tell about famous people who had poor school records or those who compensated for lack of academic ability by developing talents and skills.

5. Investigate the intellectual requirements of a number of different occupations selected by the class.

6. Listen to and ask questions of a resource person on occupations for the mentally handicapped.

7. As a class interview school counselor on ways of learning about own intellectual ability and using self-knowledge in making educational and vocational plans; follow with individual conferences.
8. Write a paragraph in answer to the question: "On the basis of your knowledge of your intellectual qualities for what kinds of work might you prepare?"

EVALUATION

9. Respond to objective test questions requiring the matching of occupations with kinds of intellectual ability; levels of intellectual ability.
10. Examine teacher-prepared case examples of teenagers who have made occupational decisions and explain why each decision is or is not realistic. Teacher compare students' expressed opinions about their abilities with standardized measures for clues to their self-knowledge of intellectual qualities.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the meaning of emotional maturity. (C-2.2 Interpretation)
Comprehends the relation of emotional maturity to healthy friendship and employability. (C-2.3 Extrapolation)
Is willing to examine objectively behavior of self and others in terms of emotional maturity. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

Some characteristics of emotional maturity in adults are: self-discipline, good judgment, initiative, acceptance of criticism, dependability, and a sense of responsibility.

Emotional maturity has an influence on a person's ability to make and keep friends.

Emotional maturity influences a person's employability.

When a person can take an objective view of his emotional behavior, he has a basis for growing toward emotional maturity.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Study references on emotional development from early childhood to adulthood.
2. Explain the meaning of emotional maturity and the difference between it and physical maturity; it and mental maturity.
3. Observe children at play. Cite examples showing emotional maturity at different ages.
4. Dramatize situations showing childish emotional behavior in teenagers. Give ideas on what a mature way of behaving in these situations would be.
5. Hypothesize as to the effect of the immature emotional behavior shown in the dramatizations and the mature behavior suggested would be likely to have on friendships, on employability.

6. Examine check list on maturity, such as "Marks of Emotional Growth, p. 12, Steps in Home Living. With teacher's help, class construct a scaled questionnaire to appraise emotional maturity among teenagers. Administer to other classes to obtain anonymous responses. Tabulate findings.

7. Write conclusions based on findings of survey along with comments on validity of items and responses.

EVALUATION

8. Respond to objective test items requiring that descriptions of emotional behavior of teenagers with friends and on jobs be categorized as mature or immature.

9. Keep a diary of own emotional responses for a week and then use the scaled questionnaire developed in Learning Experience #6 to examine maturity of own emotional behavior; indicate next steps for developing an emotional maturity. Teacher examine the evidence of students' perceptions of mature teenage behavior; examine students' assessments of their own emotional maturity.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that personal attitudes and characteristics are related to friendships and employability. (C-2.0 Comprehensions)
Sense the importance of developing attitudes and character traits which are consistent with healthy relationships and job success. (A-1.13 Controlled or selected Attention)

CONTENT

Attitudes and character traits affect a person's ability to keep friends and hold a job.

Through their behavior, individuals express their attitudes toward people, things, school, and work.

Some attitudes associated with healthy friendships and employability are respect, enthusiasm, and a sense of humor.

Character traits are "what people are really like inside."

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. View a film on attitudes or character traits; explain the meaning of the terms "attitudes" and "character traits"; list as many specific attitudes and character traits as class members can think of; give the meaning of each.

2. Complete an attitude checklist such as Appendix A. (A check list may be used as a preview of students' attitudes.) Share ideas about responses.
Character traits associated with healthy friendships and job success are such basic moral values as honesty, integrity, fairness, and trustworthiness.

EVALUATION

3. Give examples from experience of how specific attitudes and character traits affect friendships.

4. Collect cartoons depicting situations which illustrate attitudes and traits. Share ideas about them in a circle discussion.

5. Select cartoons for two bulletin boards: "Sure Ways to Lose Friends," "How to Irritate the Boss."

6. Role play situations of realistic occupational problems involving attitudes and character traits. Identify the attitudes and character traits shown by the worker and explore the effect of these on other workers and the employer.

7. Study teacher-prepared case examples of teenagers expressing attitudes and character traits in friendship and work situations; identify the attitudes or character traits and give hunches as to how these will affect the quality of friendship or job success.

8. Each student complete Checklist of Personal Traits, Appendix B, and write a short recommendation for himself giving evidence of positive attitudes and character traits.

Teacher observe student reactions in analyzing cartoons and their ideas for constructing the bulletin boards. Note their understanding of case examples and their insight in role playing. Check their responses to a checklist for evidence of their true attitudes.
OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that having social capabilities is an aid in making friends and becoming employable. (C-2.0 Comprehension)

Wants to develop social capabilities that will be an aid in friendships and in work. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

A person's social capabilities can contribute to the formation of friendships and to employability.

People demonstrate their social capabilities by ability to communicate, enjoyment of people, leadership qualities and consideration of others.

Some qualities which show consideration for others are: empathy, courtesy, tact, loyalty, tolerance, acceptance of differences, good manners, patience, generosity.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

(Teacher prepare a collection of pictures or slides showing teenagers in friendship or work situations which illustrate a need for ability to communicate, to enjoy other people, to exert leadership, and to show consideration of others.)

1. View pictures and identify social capabilities that are an aid in friendships and in work.

2. Share ideas about ways in which people communicate with others through posture, touch, gestures, facial expressions, appearance, and space--as well as through speech and writing.

3. Pantomime examples of nonverbal communication--to show emotion, worry, annoyance, anger, happiness, pleasure.

4. Role play talking with a new student and introducing him to a classmate. Ask the person playing the new student what was communicated to him. Examine why he felt as he did.

5. Interview school cafeteria workers, custodians or secretaries concerning the kinds of students they like and why.

7. Role play work situations showing lack of the above characteristics. Class members identify the missing characteristic and suggest alternative courses of action.

8. View filmstrip on friendships and note all the instances in which social skills appear to contribute to the friendships.

9. Discuss "When and How Does Taking Leadership Help in a Friendship and On a Job" or "Is Leadership or Followership More Important?"

10. Rate selves on a checklist such as: Teen Guide to Homemaking, p. 14, Experiences in Homemaking, p. 8, or Steps in Home Living, pp. 31-32. Individually identify one or two social capabilities to work to develop.

EVALUATION

11. Keep a diary of successes or non-successes in developing social capabilities. Teacher check self-ratings of social characteristics and compare with observed behavior. Give a sociometric test to identify the class social structure and to ascertain which students need guidance in relationships.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the relation of personal habits to friendships and job success. (C-2.0 Comprehension)

Is eager to improve own personal habits. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

Personal habits are related to maintaining successful friendships and job performance.

Types of habits thought to be positively related to success with friends and jobs are: neatness and cleanliness, freedom from mannerisms, careful use of time, and management of energy and money.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Give ideas for a blackboard list of habits which contribute to success with friends and employers.

2. Write habits of other people that are pet peeves and place in a box. Each student draw out a pet peeve and explain why this habit bothers other people.
TEACHING AIDS

3. View a film on habit formation and summarize principles and steps necessary for forming new habits.

4. Complete a habit check list such as Appendix C. Select one or two habits to develop (or change), plan and carry out a self-improvement project, such as Appendix D. Explain how the plan uses principles and processes of habit formation.

6. Make a self-evaluation of progress in the habit development or change undertaken in Learning Experience #4. Teacher quiz students on habits which affect job success to discover their practical knowledge. Rate students on their habit self-improvement projects. Observe attitudes toward self-improvement for guidance purposes.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that developing interests and abilities can enrich friendships. (C-2.2 Interpretation)

Comprehends that examining individual interests and abilities can help to focus vocational planning. (C-2.2 Interpretation)

Wants to examine own interests and abilities for clues for vocational planning. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

When a person has or is developing interests, he has something he can share in a friendship.

Examining one's interests and abilities helps to focus vocational planning.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Report to the class on interests or hobbies. Develop a bulletin board or display showing interests of various class members. Suggested titles: "Personal Preferences," "What We Like To Do," "Teenage Interests."
One indicates his preferences through choices in reading, recreation, group membership, and activities.

One's qualifications are enhanced by special skills and abilities in areas such as sports, art, music, drama, dancing, cooking, sewing, woodworking, and others.

EVALUATION

2. Explain how hobbies and interests can aid in establishing friendships with teenagers and adults.

3. Report on pamphlet "Do Your Dreams Match Your Talents" or discuss how one needs more than interest to succeed in a job.

4. Study case examples of teenagers which describe their interests and abilities and the realistic problems they face in planning for vocations. Explain how interests and abilities can figure in their decision-making. For each case example, explore possible solutions and draw a conclusion.

5. Complete an interest inventory and confer with counselor on interpreting it.

6. List personal interests and abilities and indicate vocational areas which are related.

7. Respond to objective test items relating individual interests and abilities to occupational opportunities.
   Teacher examine interest inventories and students' own assessments of their interests, abilities and the related vocational areas. This will aid in vocational counseling.

OBJECTIVES

Understanding how educational and other experiences add to a person's qualifications for work (C-2.2 Interpretation)

Appreciates the value of education in preparing for employment. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value)

Is eager to take advantage of opportunities for experiences which contribute to a person's employability. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

Educational experiences contribute to a person's qualifications for employment.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Discuss kinds of experiences which add to one's over-all work qualifications.
Other experiences such as travel, work experience, association with people, and activity in organizations add to a person's qualifications for work.

When a person takes advantage of opportunities for educational and other experiences, he increases his chances for employment.

EVALUATION

8. Keep a record of out-of-school experiences and what was gained from them to add to qualifications for work.
   Teacher note the experiences which students have had and which they consider important. Identify students who have limited experiences or negative attitudes toward school in order to plan enrichments, to give help, and to provide counseling.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that occupational aspirations and expectations are related to personal values. (C-2.2 Interpretation)
Is interested in examining occupational expectations and goals in relation to personal values. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

CONTENT

When a person recognizes his values, he has one basis for making meaningful vocational plans.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Read to find out what different authors say values are; contribute ideas to a blackboard list of values; give examples of particular values.
2. Discuss the values which are important to teenagers.
Personal values are the things one prizes highly and may include ethical principles, life purposes, goals, expectations for home and career, desires in relationships with people and hopes for success.

3. Determine how people rank values differently and express their values through choices.

4. Give examples of people whose abilities are similar but whose occupations are different; hypothesize as to the relation of these differences to personal values.

5. Role play counselor-student discussions concerned with planning for a vocation. Study situations to identify values affecting choices.

6. Complete a paragraph beginning, "When I become an adult I expect to __________"; study the statement to identify values held to be most important.

EVALUATION

7. Respond to an objective test item requiring the matching of values with occupational choices. Teacher observe the values expressed in class. Study students' statements concerning their aspirations for clues about their present goals in life. Examine their analyses to ascertain how they perceive their values.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that self-understanding, self-acceptance, and a feeling of personal adequacy aid in interpersonal relationships in friendship and employment. (C-2.2 Interpretation)

Seeks to gain in self-understanding and self-acceptance. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value)

CONTENT

When a person understands himself, he tends to be able to see his assets and limitations accurately.

Understanding one's personal strengths and limitations promotes self-acceptance. 2. Understanding and accepting oneself is a first step toward healthy interpersonal relations with others.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Discuss how handicaps and failures sometimes assist people in becoming effective individuals.
3. Discuss how we can accept our limitations and how self-acceptance relates to mental health.

4. Review individually the self-assessment made up to this point in the unit. Summarize personal strengths and limitations. Check items which can be improved or corrected.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to use information from self-assessment and information about occupations in making valid tentative vocational decisions. (C-3.0 Application)

Believes in using accurate information about self and occupations in making vocational decisions. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value)

CONTENT

Analyzing personal qualifications and exploring occupational preferences enable one to plan for and make tentative vocational decisions.

A valid occupational decision is one in which personal qualifications mesh with the job requirements and opportunities.

TEACHING AIDS

Books:
Lifton, Keys to Vocational Decisions, "Using Information About Yourself," p. 188.

EVALUATION

Teacher appraise students' personal resumes for evidence of their ability to evaluate themselves. Examine their statements concerning tentative vocational choices to discover whether they are realistic in selecting areas which match their personal qualifications.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to apply principles of self-improvement in developing personal strengths. (C-3.0 Application)
Believes in making continuous efforts to improve self. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value)
Believes in making educational and vocational plans. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value)

CONTENT

The know-how and the desire to improve personal qualities facilitates establishing friendships and becoming employable.

An individual can improve himself in many ways: overcoming deficiencies, changing habits, developing new strengths, expanding interests, acquiring new experiences, improving social relationships, changing attitudes, and pursuing education and training.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Review plans for self-improvement made throughout the unit; select the most and least successful outcomes to date and explain in terms of principles for self-improvement.

2. View films on self-improvement and educational planning. Note additional ways in which teenagers and adults can improve themselves. Revise plans in Learning Experience #1.

3. Write a brief summary of educational and vocational plans using previous papers for suggestions.
EVALUATION

Teacher rate students' observed growth in self-understanding. Discuss plans for self-improvement and education with students during individual conferences. Arrange parent conferences to evaluate students' needs, aspirations, qualifications, and educational plans.
Pre-employment education is being encouraged at the junior high level in order for more students to become prepared for the realities of work in a rapidly changing society. In response to requests for curriculum materials designed to introduce young adolescents to employment education, detailed unit plans for seventh and eighth grades are presented in sequence. The seventh grade pre-employment unit plan concentrates on becoming employable and making friends. The focus shifts in the eighth grade. Here students investigate work and become familiar with jobs associated with home economics.

As in the first plan, certain elements of the eighth grade unit are classified according to categories of educational objectives in the various domains. This is done to specify expected levels of behavior and to aid in communication. Learning experiences for the unit are arranged according to progressions in learning behavior. Teachers are encouraged to maintain the general order, but they will need to provide supporting details. Generalizations for students to formulate, as a result of learning experiences, constitute the content of the plan. A variety of teaching aids is offered. It is suggested, however, that teachers watch for new resources as they become available. Since all of the films listed have not been previewed, teachers are cautioned to select them with care.

Overview

The purpose of this unit is to acquaint students with major factors to consider in choosing an occupational field through examination of job opportunities in the different areas of home economics. Hopefully, practice in job analysis will help students to acquire a realistic view of the world of work. By relating job requirements to their personal qualifications (previously studied in the seventh grade), students are aided in making educational and vocational plans.

Major Objectives

Appreciates the increasing need for individuals to develop personal qualities and skills that are salable.

Is aware of women's increasing participation in the labor force as related to cultural change.

Understands the adjustments required of families when homemakers are employed.

Recognizes contributions of home economics in preparing women for varied roles.

Is able to analyze an occupation to determine worker requirements and the nature and conditions of work.
Is familiar with a variety of occupations, requiring different levels of knowledge and skill, in areas of home economics.

Major Generalizations

As a person improves his personal qualifications and acquires skills, his opportunities for employment tend to increase.

Socioeconomic developments are continuing to encourage the employment of women.

When a homemaker secures employment outside the home, certain adjustments occur in family living often requiring changes in responsibilities of family members.

Home economics is a field of study that is oriented toward preparing women to assume various roles—personal, home and family, and employment.

A person's satisfaction in the choice of a vocational field is influenced by his understanding of the related occupations.

Home economics offers preparation for a wide variety of occupations at high school, post-high school, and college levels in areas of: child care; foods; home and industrial management; home furnishings and equipment; clothing; related fields.
OBJECTIVES

Recalls major factors that are involved in vocational planning. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)
Knows criteria used in examining occupations to determine worker qualifications. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Continues to desire to plan for a vocation. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value)

CONTENT

Knowledge of major factors which influence vocational planning aids in making a vocational decision.

Occupations differ in their physical requirements.

Mental health affects one's ability to enjoy people and find satisfaction in work.

Emotional maturity has a direct relationship to employability.

Occupations differ in the degree and kinds of mental abilities required.

Occupations vary in the degree of socialization required.

People differ in the degree of socialization they desire in a job.

Occupations differ in the combinations of interests and abilities which they require.

The more accurately one perceives the factors which influence vocational planning, the greater her ease in choosing a vocation.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. View a film on occupational choice. Draw generalizations from material presented on factors which influence choices.

2. List several occupations. Divide into buzz groups and select an occupation to investigate. Examine references, interview workers, or counselors to obtain specific information. Locate information on the following:

   Physical requirements needed.
   Personality characteristics necessary or helpful.
   Interests and abilities and personal qualifications required.
   Whether occupation requires a person that is very friendly, moderately friendly or not very friendly.

What Do I Want to Be

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Discuss jobs which deal with "things," "people," or "ideas." How does one's personality affect choices of occupations in these categories?

2. Define terms used in discussing occupations: "white collar," "blue collar," "managerial," "service," "professional," "semiprofessional," "skilled," and "unskilled" and "clerical." (C-1.11 Knowledge of terminology)

3. Assemble career materials, occupational briefs, etc. Arrange a display. (Knowledge of specific facts)

4. Identify occupations which are appealing to each and attempt to narrow the selection by reviewing the above factors related to the occupations.
EVALUATION: Note students' special occupational interests for guidance purposes. Quiz students objectively to determine their knowledge of terms.

OBJECTIVES

Becomes familiar with types of jobs in relation to kind and level of education required. (C-1.23 Knowledge of classification and categories)

Appreciates the importance of education. (A-3.3 Commitment)

Knows sources of information on careers and employment opportunities. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)

Is willing to seek information on careers. (A-2.1 Acquiescence in responding)

CONTENT

The range of job opportunities available to a person is limited by the kind and level of his education.

Basic general education and employment education are essential for individuals to qualify for jobs today.

One's choice of vocation suggests the amount and kind of education he will need.

There are various ways in which one can train for occupations--in high school, vocational school, technical school, college, and graduate school or through special courses, adult education, apprenticeships, and internships and on-the-job training.

Opportunities for employment are enhanced through education.

In general, the more education a person has the higher his income will be.

More jobs for the highly skilled worker and fewer job opportunities for the unskilled worker have increased the importance of acquiring training for a job.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Identify the kinds of education: general, vocational. Discuss the meaning of general education and vocational education. Decide on an acceptable definition of each.

2. Conduct a panel discussion on the values of general education and vocational education.

3. Prepare a topical guide for studying occupations. Identify sources of employment education and send for resource materials. Select home economics-related occupations to study as individual projects. Compile information in folders or notebooks. (See Appendix for a list of home economics related occupations.)

4. Investigate educational requirements and opportunities for the specific jobs selected.

5. Report findings and classify the occupations studied according to kind and level of education required.

6. Investigate educational offerings in the surrounding area. Compile a comprehensive list of training institutions. Identify opportunities for training in home economics at all levels.
EVALUATION: *Note student contributions in investigating educational offerings of community. Observe reactions toward educational planning in order to reinforce positive attitudes and to identify negative thinking. Confer with individuals concerning their choices of occupations for study in order to guide them toward areas appropriate for their abilities and interests. Check student projects for their information on educational requirements and opportunities.

7. Determine likely advancements for selected occupations based on additional education or training.

8. Select a typical occupation for an individual with a high school education. Figure the anticipated lifetime income of the individual. Compare with figures for anticipated lifetime income of an individual with vocational school, college and graduate school education.

9. Identify and discuss jobs that are no longer available. Determine whether these jobs required skilled or unskilled workers.

List and discuss new jobs. Determine whether these jobs require skilled or unskilled workers.

EVALUATION: Note students' understanding of yearly incomes for various occupations, awareness of jobs which no longer exist, and new jobs which demand new skills.
OBJECTIVES

Knows occupational restrictions which affect individual qualifications. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)

CONTENT

Occupations differ in their requirements for licenses, certificates, union or professional affiliations.

Restrictions, peculiar to certain occupations, limit one's capacity to qualify for jobs. There are special restrictions which pertain to age, marital status, dependents, experience, physical limitations, appearance, and union shop.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Read references to determine types of occupational restrictions which may limit a person's job choice. List on board.

2. Ascertain restrictions connected with the occupations studied for student projects.

CONTENT

When one has a thorough knowledge of working conditions his job choice is more likely to be rewarding and satisfying.

Monetary factors such as pay scales, tips, commissions, discounts and profit sharing affect occupational choice.

Time factors such as working hours, overtime, vacation periods influence occupational choice.

Physical activity, tools and machines to be used, and safety factors affect occupational choice.

Opportunities for friendship and personal satisfaction may influence choice of occupation.

Benefits as retirement or pension plans, sick leave, maternity leave may influence occupational choice.

Services such as health and counseling, provisions for meals and parking are considerations in choosing an occupation.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Interview junior and senior students who have had part-time and summer jobs. Divide into groups and discuss how part-time and summer jobs were located. Report findings to class.

2. View film on getting a job. Summarize tips presented and compare them with experiences of high school students.

3. Identify part-time jobs available locally and list the requirements for these positions. (A list might be obtained from the chairman of the vocational education department.)

4. Group different types of part-time jobs according to career to which they are related.

5. Identify home economics-related part-time jobs, summer employment and apprentice-like opportunities.

6. Select several part-time and summer jobs that one is interested in securing and list steps to take in obtaining employment.

EVALUATION: Observe students' participation in collecting information by interview and their ability to discuss the findings. Note student reactions to film and contributions in identifying home economics-related jobs. Confer with individuals concerning their choice of part-time or summer jobs in order to guide them in areas appropriate for their abilities and interests.
OBJECTIVES

Knows characteristics of women in the labor force. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)
Is aware of the trend for women to combine homemaking and wage earning. (A-1.1 Awareness)

CONTENT

When one knows the characteristics of women in the labor force, it is easier to anticipate trends in the employment of women.

A total picture of working women is provided by statistics concerning their number, age, family status, work patterns, earnings, types of occupations and race.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Develop a list of questions concerning facts about the employment of women, and locate answers in current publications and statistical references. Report findings to class.

2. Work in committees to construct tables, graphs, or other illustrations to show the characteristics of women in the labor force and to compare with previous years.

3. Discuss where and why statistics of this kind are used.

Comprehends factors which influence homemakers' decisions regarding employment.
(C-2.0 Comprehension)

CONTENTS

Women's motivations for seeking employment vary throughout their life cycle.

Women may seek employment as a result of increased financial needs of the family which may be temporary or permanent.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Write definition of "life cycle" and "motivation." Discuss how these terms are related to the employment of women. Make generalizations based on discussion.
Women may wish to become gainfully employed as a means of improving the family's standard of living.

Women may become employed because their interests and salable skills meet the requirements of the available jobs.

Attitudes and expectations of husband and/or wife may motivate women to seek employment.

Women may obtain a job because it provides them with feelings of personal satisfaction.

Women may wish to be gainfully employed because they feel they can make a contribution to society.

Women may not enjoy performing certain household tasks, thus they may wish to seek a job in order to employ someone to perform the tasks.

Women may desire to hold a job because it provides a feeling of independence or personal accomplishment.

EVALUATION: Note individual reports on questioning of employed homemakers and observe students' reactions to minute dramas. Appraise responses to the discussion questions to discover depth of students' insight.
OBJECTIVES

Comprehends factors which influence a girl's vocational plans. (C-2.00 Comprehension)

Is alert to the advantages of developing salable skills. (A-1.3 Controlled or selected attention)

CONTENT

Usually girls do not plan ahead as far as boys because many girls see their future as greatly influenced by marriage and the plans of their husbands.

Though marriage is a major goal for many girls, deeper consideration is being given to the development of vocational skills which will serve them before and after marriage.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Invite a panel of recent high school graduates to discuss:
   Planning for the future is more important for boys than for girls.
   If a girl prepares to be a good homemaker, she does not need to be concerned about training for a job.

2. Participate in a round table discussion of the advantage of possessing a salable skill, although one may not be employed outside the home.

EVALUATION: Note students' reactions to panel discussion. Note student contributions to round table discussion on advantages of possessing a salable skill.

OBJECTIVES

Knows cultural changes which have encouraged the employment of women. (C-1.22 Knowledge of trends and sequences)

CONTENT

Cultural changes have encouraged employment of women when economic and social conditions are favorable.

Present conditions of society have influenced the employment status of women.

The family has shifted from a producing unit to a consuming unit.

There is a trend toward early marriage and parenthood.

Outside agencies have assumed responsibility to care for children at an earlier age.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Examine social studies books to identify cultural influences which are changing women's lives.

2. Collect articles and clippings describing socioeconomic changes. Construct a bulletin board showing how changes have affected employment of women. Suggested titles: "Times Change," "Emancipation of Women," "Why Women are at Work."

3. Discuss in buzz groups the following:
   Why are there increasing job opportunities? educational opportunities? Give examples.
Development of labor-saving equipment and products has made housekeeping easier.

There are increased opportunities for education and training.

Prosperity has created additional job opportunities.

TEACHING AIDS

Books

Social study textbooks.

EVALUATION: Observe students' contributions in buzz sections. Quiz students briefly on specific cultural changes which have brought about employment of women to determine their knowledge of trends.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to recognize the relationship between the changing status of women and greater freedom and equality. (C-4.20 Analysis of relationships)

Forms judgment as to the responsibility of women for changing their occupational status. (A-4.1 Conceptualization of a value)

CONTENT

The changing status of women is resulting in greater freedom and equality in vocational opportunities.

More jobs are being opened to women.

Pay scales and salaries are becoming less discriminating.

Less restrictive dress codes are being adopted.

Opportunities for advancement on the job are increasing.

In the twentieth century, women's demands and the practice of increased equality have resulted in changes in laws, attitudes, and values pertaining to women.

What are some of the problems resulting from the increased life span? How does longer life relate to the employment of women?

What has happened to the standard of living in the United States, and how does it affect the employment of women?

What changes have occurred in the home which make it easier for women to work?

Give examples of the opinion of people in different generations as to the desirability of women working.

Report conclusions to class.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Determine the meaning of "status."

2. Arrange a panel of class members and/or others to discuss the questions:

   What rights are women entitled to have in a democracy?

   What is meant by "freedom," "equality"?

   How does the status of women today differ from the status of women when grandmother was an adolescent?

   What can women do today that they could not do 50 years ago?

3. Collect clippings from newspapers and magazines on women's rights. Discuss the clippings in class.
TEACHING AIDS

Book

EVALUATION: Observe students' reactions to discussion on rights and status of women. Examine the articles collected and appraise the students' ability to identify articles relating to rights of women. Collect papers and check responses as to ways women can improve their real status.

OBJECTIVES

Knows that any one woman may assume different roles as she progresses from stage to stage in the life cycle. (C-1.22 Knowledge of trends and sequences)

Can visualize assuming many different roles. (A-4.1 Conceptualization of a value)

CONTENT

One's role concept is influenced by the expectations and approval of others.

An individual functions in a variety of roles and may assume more than one role at a time.

Most women today assume multiple roles.

When homemakers work outside the home, they assume an additional role as wage earner.

The employment of women has resulted in less difference between roles of men and women in the family.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Discuss the meaning of a person's "roles."

2. Look at pictures of a little girl, teenager, mother of young children, mother of teenagers, middle-age woman and an elderly woman. Write brief descriptions of selves at stages portrayed by each picture.

3. List the variety of responsibilities which women have. Relate these to women's various roles.

4. Select and display on bulletin board pictures which illustrate the variety of roles assumed by women: wage earner, wife, mother, cook, nurse.

6. Divide into groups and pretend to be: brothers, sisters, mothers, fathers. Each group lists roles on board and then compares roles. Identify similarities among roles.
EVALUATION: Appraise students' view of their roles by reading their descriptions of themselves as a person at various stages of life. Rate students on their ability to perceive themselves. Observe the students' ability to project the future roles of women. Note their perceptions of roles of different family members.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the contribution of home economics in preparing women for varied roles. (C-2.00 Comprehension)

Appreciates the advantages of home economics in aiding one to live a useful and satisfying life. (A-1.2 Willingness to receive)

CONTENT

Home economics is a unique field of study in that it offers preparation for the varied roles which women assume.

Home economics educates for establishing a satisfying personal and family life, provides knowledge and skills for wage earning, offers training at all levels of aspiration, helps in managing work at home and on the job, and provides for creative and leisure-time activities.

EVALUATION: Note students' participation in panel discussion.
OBJECTIVES

Knows that there are numerous jobs requiring home economics knowledges and skills. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)
Is aware that knowledges and skills used in maintaining a home are similar to those needed in various occupations. (A-1.1 Awareness)
Is familiar with a variety of home economics-related occupations requiring varying levels of vocational, technical and professional preparation. (C-1.23 Knowledge of classifications and categories)

CONTENT

Knowledge of related occupations aids individuals interested in home economics in making tentative vocational decisions.

Many occupations require knowledges and skills which are needed and used in homemaking. Some examples are:
- Assistant in children's home.
- Alteration lady in department store.
- Waitress.
- Assistant or salesclerk.
- Aide in nursing home.

See Appendix for a more complete list.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. List home economics knowledges and skills used by homemakers.
2. Identify jobs using home economics knowledges and skills which can be performed outside of the home for pay.
3. Conduct a symposium in which resource persons in home economics-related occupations explain the nature of their work, duties, reasons for selecting work, advantages.
4. Collect and display newspaper items and/or magazine articles concerning home economics-related occupations.
5. View films on specific occupations related to home economics which require varying levels of vocational, technical and professional preparation.
6. Identify varying levels of preparation needed for different levels of jobs selected to study as projects.

EVALUATION: Check students' ability to identify jobs which require home economics knowledges and skills. Observe the students' reactions to symposium. Note interest in newspaper items and magazine articles concerning home economics-related occupations. Score individual projects using an objective rating device. Confer with students individually to discuss their projects and their educational plans.
OBJECTIVES

Recognizes home economics-related job opportunities in own community. (C-4.20

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that a group of related occupations within a field makes up a job cluster. (C-2.4.0 Comprehension)
Is aware of job clusters in the areas of home economics. (A-1.1 Awareness) Is able to evaluate an occupation objectively. (C-6.10 Judgments in terms of internal evidence)

CONTENT

Preparation for a group of occupations within a field is referred to as a cluster concept, e.g., one prepares for a cluster of jobs which require similar knowledge and skills.

Preparation for a group of occupations within a field rather than a specific job helps one to adjust to rapid changes in manpower needs created by advances in science and technology.

The field of home economics has many areas of study which include a variety of job clusters.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Take field trips to a variety of businesses which employ persons in jobs related to home economics.
   Summarize duties and skills connected with each occupation.

2. Identify locations of other jobs related to the areas of study.

EVALUATION: Observe students' reactions to the presentations of resource persons. Check students' evaluations of jobs studied for their project.

Occupations related to home economics have been identified and classified for study. Teachers may wish to add to the list as they discover other occupations that have not been included. No attempt has been made to define specific occupations by job titles and code numbers found in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles.* However, it may be helpful to check Volume I of the D.O.T. to ascertain exact titles and descriptions of jobs selected by students for investigation. Certain occupations, in different locations, vary as to the level of education needed. Therefore, it may be necessary to reclassify some of the job titles according to local requirements.

Vocation Orientation Unit, Grade 10

Is my role "whatever will be?"
Or will the future be planned by me?

Planned Adulthood is one concept developed in the Grade 10 unit on vocational decision making.

A unit plan, "Looking Forward to Marriage and/or a Job or Career," has been developed for Grade 10 to complete the sequence of pre-employment offerings--"Developing Qualities for Friendships and Employability" (Grade 7) and "Occupations Related to Home Economics" (Grade 8). Decisions for offering this unit in the tenth grade (rather than in the ninth grade) were based on the contention that, by this time, most girls have passed through a stage of intense self-centered concern and are becoming more altruistic and realistic about themselves in relation to the world. This tenth grade unit has been selected for publication because of the demand for curriculum materials on early orientation of young adolescents to their future adult roles.

Overview

The underlying concept in this unit is the process of management--planning the use of resources to achieve goals. In order for the teen-ager to achieve goals, decisions must be made. Decision making is an important aspect of preparing for her present and future roles, among which might be family member, friend, student, citizen--and eventually homemaker, mother, professional worker, or skilled service worker. Such decisions are influenced by social and economic conditions and by trends in contemporary living.

Although a few elements of content are reviews of material included in the earlier vocational units, the teacher may wish to repeat other aspects of the previous studies, such as the development of personal qualities (Grade 7, Unit III). Emphasis of certain areas may be achieved, at the discretion of the teacher, by deleting some learning experiences and expanding others. Additional teaching aids may be located in the references for Grade 7, Unit III and Grade 8, Unit III.

As with other pre-vocational unit plans, this unit is structured according to five aspects: (1) objectives, (2) content, (3) learning experiences, (4) teaching aids or resources, and (5) means of evaluation. Levels of expected behavior, classified in accordance with taxonomies of educational objectives, are indicated in parentheses following each objective and learning experience. This is done primarily to encourage high levels of learning and to promote consistency between learning experiences and the behaviors these activities are expected to bring forth. Frames of reference may also require clarification: learning experiences are expressed in terms of student activities, evaluation experiences in terms of teacher activities.

Major Objectives

Comprehends personal, work, family, and citizen roles in the lives of women.

Is aware of the need to look ahead to adulthood in preparation for future roles.

Understands the relationship of socio-economic developments to trends in contemporary society.

Is able to identify and appraise available resources in preparation for various adult roles.

Is aware of the need for planning the use of resources to attain goals.
Unit I. Looking Forward to Marriage and/or a Job or Career

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the areas in which adults are expected to assume responsibility in contemporary American society. (C-2.00 Comprehension)
Forms judgments about assuming responsibilities expected of adults. (A-4.1 Conceptualization of a Value)
Is able to recognize responsibilities of the adult and to categorize responsibilities into broad areas of responsibility. (C-4.2 Analysis of Relationships)

CONTENT

The broad areas of adult responsibility are:

a. Personal
b. Occupational
c. Marriage and family
d. Citizenship

An examination of one's self in light of personal responsibilities expected of him aids one in preparing for personal responsibilities as an adult.

Planning is essential in preparing for occupational responsibilities of adult living.

Preparation for marriage and maintenance of a family aids one in assuming responsibilities in future adult life.

Development of certain acceptable qualities prepares one for the role as a citizen in a changing society.

To the extent that a young person understands the nature of adult responsibilities, he can make realistic preparation for adult roles.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Divide into small groups and locate pictures representing each area of adult responsibility. Use these on a sectioned bulletin board. Suggested titles: "Duties of Adults," "Coming of Age in Our Society," "Privileges Bring Responsibilities." (C-2.00 Comprehension and C-2.10 Translation)

2. Explore in buzz groups the responsibilities of adult women and report findings to class. (A-1.1 Awareness)

3. Discuss and group the responsibilities according to the broad areas of adult responsibility. (C-4.00 Analysis of Relationships)

4. Invite homemakers to discuss with class factors which contribute to success in their marriage. (C-1.00 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

5. Interview women in different occupations to discover some of the responsibilities that they have on the job. Report findings to class. (C-2.20 Interpretation and A-1.1 Awareness)

6. Listen to resource person speak on "Woman as a Citizen." (C-1.00 Knowledge of Specific Facts and A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

7. Invite students from other countries to tell about "Women's Responsibilities in Other Lands." (C-1.00 Knowledge of Specific Facts)
8. Write short papers on related topics: "How Adults can be Good Citizens," "Voting, a Privilege or a Responsibility?" "Feelings about Being on My Own," "My Obligation to Myself," "What a Teenager Needs to Know about Adult Responsibility." (C-2.20 Interpretation and A-4.11 Conceptualization of a Value)

EVALUATION

- Students participate in contest in making bulletin board display related to the unit of learning.
- Teacher observes students' responses in discussion for indications of understanding the nature of adult responsibilities.
- Teacher appraises written assignments for depth of comprehension.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the socio-economic developments which have created changes in today's adult living. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

Is willing to examine socio-economic developments which have influenced adult living in our rapidly changing society. (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

CONTENT

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Interrelated and complex socio-economic developments have brought changes in living.

1. Interview elderly persons in the community to gain information on socio-economic changes in society which affect contemporary living. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

Industrialization has contributed to these changes in many ways.

2. Discuss in class results of the interview. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

a. Much commercial and industrial expansion has resulted.
b. Specialization has increased.
c. Urbanized and suburban areas have developed.
d. Communication and transportation facilities have greatly improved.
e. Prosperity and affluence have increased for many, but not for all.

Scientific and technological changes have played a major part in social and economical advancement.

3. List and define the socio-economic developments which have created changes in living. Use current magazines, newspapers, and social studies references as sources of information. (C-1.22 Knowledge of Trends and Sequences)

a. Knowledge has expanded.
b. Human and material resources have been exploited.
c. Educational opportunities have greatly expanded.

4. Listen to resource person speak on "Social and Economic Development Causing Changes." (C-1.2 Willingness to Receive)
d. Medical advances have reduced health hazards and illnesses.

e. Obsolescence of jobs, skills, and products has taken place throughout the country.

5. Select one socio-economic change and illustrate in writing, pictures, or diagram how it has affected the personal lives of families. Bulletin boards may result.

- Determine students' grasp of social and economic conditions and ability to reach warranted conclusions by noting participation in groups and by checking assigned work.

OBJECTIVES

Is alert to trends in contemporary living resulting from social and economic changes in society. (C-1.22 Knowledge of Trends and Sequences)

Is willing to investigate the causes and effects of trends on teenager's preparations for adult living. (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

Is able to understand relationship of social and economic developments to trends in contemporary society. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

---

CONTENT

Trends in contemporary living have resulted from social and economic changes in society.

Population trends are toward population explosion, population control, and an increase in proportion of the aging and young in the population.

Labor force trends include an increase in size of labor force, proportion of women working, proportion of married women in the labor force, and demand for skilled, trained workers.

Greater geographic job and social mobility have occurred.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Define a trend.

2. Committees engage in the following activities:

   a. Search for news items or articles regarding current trends in living. Display materials and report findings. Discuss meaning of these for family life. (C-1.22 Knowledge of Trends and Sequences) Trends in personal and family life are:

a. Earlier marriages, earlier parenthood.
b. Lowered household production.
c. Increased family consumption.
d. Higher standard of living.
e. Faster pace of living.
f. Increased use of labor-saving equipment and products.
g. Easier credit.
h. Greater dependence on public services.

Shorter work week, more leisure time, and earlier retirement are trends in contemporary living.

An emerging trend is a movement toward greater and more equal opportunity for all which is indicated by:

a. New public attitudes (family planning, housing).
b. Increased and broadened benefits as a result of social legislation (social security, federal aid).
c. Expanded educational opportunities.
d. Greater freedom of choice.

Social and economic developments relate to trends in contemporary living.

Trends in contemporary living inter-relate and influence broad areas of adult responsibility.

a. Personal
b. Family
c. Occupation
d. Citizen

A knowledge of the characteristics and trends in contemporary living enables one to plan ahead and make adjustments to changes in society.

b. Question middle-aged (or older) adults on trends. "How does life of today's young homemaker differ from your early adult experiences?" "What trends do you not view as improvements?" Summarize changes which have taken place within a generation and report adults' views to class. (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)
c. Write a script involving a family conversation which illustrates current trends in living. Tape record and present in class. Have class members identify trends. (C-1.22 Knowledge of Trends and Sequences)

3. Search magazines and newspapers for items relating to shorter work week, leisure time, and early retirement. Clip articles and mark in red important ideas. Make a bulletin board display. (C-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

4. Listen to a resource person speak on "The Movement toward a Greater and More Equal Opportunity for All." (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

5. Develop reports on recent special legislation. (For more able student.) List major social and economic developments on blackboard; brainstorm to compose a list of trends which relate to each social and economic development. (C-1.22 Knowledge of Trends and Sequences and C-2.20 Interpretation)

6. Discuss areas of choice today with respect to:

a. education
b. politics
c. religion
d. individual goals
(C-2.00 Comprehension)
EVALUATION

Check individuals in committee work to determine extent of their knowledge of trends.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that trends in contemporary living are accompanied by problems in adult areas of responsibility. (C-2.00 Comprehension)
Is willing to examine the adult problems as they relate to the effects on each area of adult responsibility. (A-1.12 Willingness to Receive)

CONTENT

New problems arise for adults as changes occur in society.
Problems in adult areas of responsibility result from social and economic developments.
Problems which have resulted from recent socio-economic developments are:

a. Increased wants.
b. Increased mental illness
c. Increased divorce.
d. Increased juvenile delinquency and crime.
e. Unemployment of unskilled workers.
f. Increased competition for jobs.
g. Difficulties in management of time, money, and energy.
h. Shifted responsibilities.
i. Altered and confused roles.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the characteristics of women in the labor force and understands how these affect her status and life as an adult. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Is aware of changes in the status and characteristics of women in the labor force. (A-1.1 Awareness)

CONTENT

Knowledge of changes in status and characteristics of women in the population aids in understanding the current roles of women.

The characteristics of working women may be examined through statistics concerning the number in the labor force, proportion of total population, age, family status, types of occupations, work patterns, and income.

Women's status is subject to change among the following classifications:

a. Single person, with or without dependents.
b. Married person, with or without dependents.
c. Widow, with or without dependents.
d. Divorced or separated person, with or without dependents.

A woman's status with respect to management and parenthood affects her work life.

Becomes acquainted with various adjustments which must be made by different families when the homemaker is employed outside the home. (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

CONTENT

When one is aware of future occupational trends, he is more able to prepare himself and plan realistically.

The prospects for the employment of women in tomorrow's society are very promising.

a. The percentage of women in the labor force has greatly increased.
b. Discrimination because of sex and race has lessened.
c. The work week has shortened.
d. Provision has been made for periodic retraining to adjust to labor demands for highly skilled workers.
e. Service-type occupations in which many women are employed have expanded.
f. Periods of employment have lengthened.

decisions concerned with combining marriage and employment or community service are influenced by many factors.

a. Present and future economic needs.
b. Individual needs of family members.
c. Care of children during working hours.
d. Management of household responsibilities.
e. Attitudes of husband and family.
f. Personal rewards of work or volunteer service.
g. Availability of jobs, transportation, household services.
h. Earning power.
i. Family values.
j. Stage in family life cycle.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Read from sources listed, then write paragraph on facts studied concerning future prospects in the employment of women. Summarize and discuss in class. (C-2.30 Extrapolation)

2. Construct a bulletin board illustrating occupational prospects for women. Suggested titles: "Crystal Ball," "Outlook for the 70's," "Feminine Forecast." (C-2.10 Translation)

3. Write brief descriptions, based on personal knowledge, of a case in which a homemaker decided to remain at home rather than seek outside work. Identify the influencing factors. (C-2.2 Interpretation)

4. Divide into two groups and prepare information for, and participate in, debate on, "Woman's place is in the home." (C-2.20 Interpretation)

5. Interview women in the community performing dual roles, to discover factors affecting decisions to combine marriage with employment. From this a list can be formulated. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

6. Present minute dramas (may be written by committees) of situations in which family members consider the desirability of the homemaker seeking employment or volunteering for service. (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

EVALUATION

Check statements during debate to ascertain students' ability to make inferences from facts gathered. Reactions in responses and rebuttal will give clues to the extent of their understanding of the problem. Have members of class respond to checklist on the performance of each group in the debate.

OBJECTIVES

Knows the advantages of education for women's place in a changing society.
(C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)
Recalls generalizations about importance of general and vocational education.
(C-1.31 Knowledge of Generalizations)
Sees the necessity and has appreciation for general and wage-earning education to enable women to function in today's society. (A-1.12 Willingness to Receive and A-3.3 Commitment)

CONTENT

Our complex society necessitates continuous education in order for an individual to function effectively.

General education for women may develop abilities for responsible citizenship, contribute to the enrichment of family life, widen horizons for personal development, and improve the qualifications for employment.

As society becomes more highly technical and mechanized, greater need for wage-earning preparation for women develops. The benefits which may accrue from such preparation include the following:

a. Providing abilities for the support of self and/or others.
b. Helping when supplementary family income is needed.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Read a reference on women's education--importance, kinds, benefits. (A-1.1 Awareness)
2. Present statistics which compare earnings with level of education attained. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)
3. Conduct a panel discussion on topics related to the importance of education: "Why we need more education than our grandmothers," "The purposes of school subjects," "Handicaps of being illiterate," "How people can be encouraged to remain in school." (A-3.3 Commitment)
c. Adding security during family emergencies.
d. Providing a means of contributing to society.
e. Aiding in achieving personal satisfaction.

EVALUATION

Determine the extent of commitment to education by careful observation of reactions in discussion.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends personal aspirations and values* as they relate to probable expectations. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Appraises personal aspirations in light of realistic examination of future prospects. (C-6.20 Judgment in Terms of External Criteria)

CONTENT

When one examines his aspirations and values in relation to probable expectations, he is more able to direct his efforts realistically.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Review the definition and meanings of terms: goals, values, aspirations, expectations, motives, drives, purposes. (C-1.11 Knowledge of Terminology)

* Concept of value is developed in Grade 7 Outline, "Developing Qualities for Friendships and Employability," Illinois Teacher, 1967-68, 11, 271-296.
In the evaluation of personal goals, certain conditions are involved: recognition of aspirations, identification of values, realistic examination of future prospects.

TEACHING AIDS

Books

EVALUATION

Check students' essays to examine their expressed aspirations. Review papers to discover how they perceive their values. Examine comments to determine how realistic their expectations are.

OBJECTIVES

Appraise available resources in preparation for adult living. (C-6.20 Judgments in Terms of External Criteria)

Is willing to examine available resources in preparation for adult living. (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

CONTENT

Appraisal of available resources contributes to preparation for adult living.

Finances, personal qualities, other people, educational, employment, and volunteer service opportunities are some kinds of resources which help people to achieve their life goals.

Types of educational opportunities available are high school, college, vocational and technical schools, company and government training programs, adult courses and independent study.

Some occupational opportunities are located in industries, commercial establishments, institutions, and private homes.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Discuss the following expressions:
   a. "Success in life is measured by one's paycheck."
   b. "The time of the self-made man is gone."
   c. "It's not what you are, but whom you know that counts."
   (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

2. Explore ways in which students can finance their education. (C-1.20 Knowledge of Ways and Means of Dealing with Specifics)

3. Participate in panel discussion on "Opportunities for Education, Employment, and Volunteer Services." One panel to be made up of class members with a moderator; the other of selected resource Opportunities for volunteer services are: church groups, school organizations, women's clubs, charities and welfare agencies, hospitals, rest homes, children's homes, political organizations, community, government and development committees, and others.

EVALUATION

Test students on ability to appraise resources. (See Appendix.) Observe attitudes expressed by individuals towards money, work, and opportunity in order to help them in counseling and guidance. Check essay test to ascertain criteria used and to assess ability to make judgments of available resources.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to make a tentative plan for attainment of goals for the future. (C-5.20 Production of a Plan)
Realizes the importance of planning the use of resources to attain goals. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value)

CONTENT

Planning the use of available resources aids in attaining goals, and involves making decisions in various areas of living.

Major life decisions which influence personal goal achievement are those related to: educational pursuits, persons, such as guidance counselor, employment agency representative, and chairman of a local volunteer group. Summarize information. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

4. Formulate a list of local agencies, groups, and institutions. Select one for investigation concerning opportunities for volunteer service. Discuss findings and community needs. Write a news article. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

5. Determine the volunteer activities of class members. Question students about their satisfaction and rewards in serving others. (A-1.1 Awareness)

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Read assignments on future planning, then answer questions based on readings:
   a. Why should we "steer" rather than drift into the future?
   b. What can people do to prepare for the unpredictable events getting married or remaining single, and vocational and avocational choices.

EVALUATION

Evaluate answers to study questions to discover extent of understanding. Observe students' ability to distinguish factors which affect housing selection in their analysis of the case situations. Check students' skill in organizing their plans.

OBJECTIVES

Understands factors to consider in determining choices of living accommodations. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

Acquires information about transportation, group affiliations, and work credentials. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

Applies information by planning the uses of resources to attain goals. (C-5.20 Production of a Plan or Proposed Set of Operations and A-3.00 Application)

CONTENT

To attain the goal of appropriate living accommodations one needs to evaluate factors as:

- sharing housing with others,
- type and quality of housing needed,
- location of housing,
- cost of housing, and
- household services and furnishings required.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Present a case situation concerning an employed graduate faced with a housing problem. Class members suggest factors to consider in selecting living accommodations. Discuss advantages and disadvantages of alternatives. (C-4.10 Analysis of Elements)
To choose the appropriate mode of transportation one may consider: the use of public facilities, sharing with others, and buying a car for which arrangement for insurance and upkeep must be made.

One's group affiliations may enhance or deter attainment of one's goals.

Choice of affiliations involves considering the purposes of various groups--social, religious, fraternal, service, special interest, professional organizations--in terms of one's values.

Work credentials may be a resource in attaining the goal of securing a job.

Work credentials include social security number, birth certificate, work permit, diploma, degree, certificate, license, professional or union membership, papers concerning naturalization, security clearance, military service, and resume of qualifications.

TEACHING AIDS

Books

EVALUATION

Record individual contributions in the investigation of transportation costs and in the survey of group affiliations. Examine work in planning and compiling credentials to check ability to apply learning and to integrate operations.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the use of job leads, interviews, and writing skill in securing a job. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Is alert to the function of these factors in attaining goals. (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)
Personal contacts with friends, relatives, school counselors, and placement officers are sources of leads for jobs.

Bulletin boards at school, counseling services, agencies, organizations, institutions, volunteer bureaus, businesses and industrial concerns can give leads for jobs and service opportunities.

Classified ads and articles in newspapers, trade, professional, and other publications can provide job leads.

Community and state employment offices and other agencies, private employment agencies, and letters of inquiry are also means of discovering job leads.

Skill in business writing aids in securing employment.

A knowledge of the procedures and techniques of interviewing contributes to one's preparation for employment.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

1. Divide into groups and choose a job and a volunteer activity, suitable for part-time work, to investigate. Through committee work, make plans and carry out the location of leads. Report findings and sources of information. (Follow through with application if there are students interested in securing part-time work.) (C-2.20 Interpretation) (C-5.20 Production of a Plan)

2. Discuss characteristics of good business letters or have a business or English teacher talk on letter writing. (C-1.24 Knowledge of Criteria)

3. Complete sample application forms. Have students write letters of inquiry and/or application and submit them to a respected person for criticism. Revise and rewrite. (C-3.00 Application)

4. Invite a school official or employer to discuss questions concerning interviews:
   a. How are arrangements for interviews made?
   b. What practices constitute "business ethics"?
   c. How does one dress for an interview?
   d. How does appearance affect getting a job?
   e. How do people show their attitudes?
   f. What are some tips for successful interviews?

(A-1.3 Controlled or Selected attention) (C-2.20 Interpretation)

5. Role play job interviews (with the above resource person, if possible). (C-3.00 Application)
6. Complete future plans, summarizing tips for finding job leads and for interviewing for employment. Include points on letter writing and sample letter. (C-5.20 Production of a Plan)

EVALUATION

Observe committee activities to discover ability to plan for finding job leads. Check application forms; appraise original and revised letters for evidence of writing capability. Note skill displayed in job interviews. Examine completed plans according to objective standards to ascertain students' ability to produce a plan.

The care and guidance of children is a concern of society.

Human growth has certain basic needs which must be satisfied through interaction with the environment.

All children progress toward maturity according to basic laws and patterns of growth and development, but individual differences exist in the rate of growth and development.

Understanding the principles of development provides a basis for guiding a child's development.

Cooperation in guidance, supervision, and observation by all concerned facilitates a child's growth toward maturity.

A person's employability is enhanced through developing attitudes, understandings, work habits, and skills needed by a child-care worker.

Objectives

Becomes familiar with opportunities for employment in relation to kind and level of education and/or training required (C-1.23 Knowledge of Classifications and Categories).

Appreciates the importance of child development programs (A-3.3 Commitment).

Recognizes child care and guidance as an important responsibility of society (C-4.20 Analysis of Relationship).

Content

Parents have moral obligations and legal responsibilities for the welfare of their children. As societies change, family functions for the welfare of children tend to change.

In some situations, family functions are assumed by agencies serving as family substitutes.

The environment provided by the family or its substitute influences the child's physical, mental, emotional, and social development.

Legal regulations control certain agencies and institutions which have assumed functions previously performed by families.

Learning Experience

1. Survey working mothers of preschool and elementary school children to determine where children receive care while parents are at work (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts).

2. Interview representatives from child-care agencies for information regarding employment opportunities, parent responsibilities, and agency responsibilities (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts).

3. Organize employment opportunities according to educational and/or training requirements (C-1.23 Knowledge of Classification and Categories).

4. Analyze similarities and differences of employment opportunities at various agencies (C-4.20 Analysis of Relationships).
The care and guidance of children is a fundamental concern of society.

5. Summarize the contribution of child-care agencies to the development of children and to society (C-1.25 Knowledge of Methodology).

PREPARATION FOR EMPLOYMENT IN THE AREA OF CHILD DEVELOPMENT

Overview

This course, "Preparation for Employment in the Area of Child Development," is planned as a one-year course for Grade 11 or 12 in a cooperative work-study program. It is one of the options to follow the sequence of preemployment offerings, "Developing Qualities of Friendship and Employability" (Grade 7), "Occupations Related to Home Economics" (Grade 8), and "Looking Forward to Marriage and/or a Job or Career" (Grade 10). If the students enrolled in this course have not completed all of the preemployment study, the teacher will need to select from the earlier units objectives, learning experiences, and content which are most pertinent in preparing students for employability.

The content of this course includes the child development concepts needed for employment. Students may or may not have previous experiences of working with children in a play group or some other supervised play situation. If the class members have previous education and/or training in child development the teacher will need to consider this in selecting the content and the emphases for the course.

This course is developed to be taught concurrently with on-the-job training experiences, but this does not preclude parts of it being taught prior to students being placed in training stations in the community. The course concentrates on the development of three- and four-year-old children, but it may be modified or expanded to include whatever age groups are present in local training stations.

A cooperative work-study program also includes the general commonalities of all areas of vocational education. Since these are developed elsewhere they are not included in this outline; however, the teacher will need to select and include those commonalities necessary to meet the needs of the students in the class.

Major Objectives

Is aware of the employment opportunities in the care and guidance of children and understands the possibilities, limitations, and responsibilities of such employment.

Understands, accepts, and develops respect for personal strengths and limitations as a child-care employee.

Understands the principles of growth and development of young children.

Applies principles of growth and development in directing activities of young children.

Is familiar with a planned program of learning experiences that offers young children appropriate cognitive stimulation and opportunity for physical, emotional, and social development.

Understands a child-care employee's role in the care and guidance of children.
Objectives

Comprehends the personal qualities which contribute to success as an employee in the area of child development (C-2.0 Comprehension).

Is willing to examine objectively and to improve self in terms of qualities contributing to successful employment in the area of child development (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond).

Has appreciation for the personal qualities contributing to successful employment in child development (A-3.3 Commitment).

Content

Characteristics of physical, social, emotional, and mental development contribute to employability. (See outline for specific examples.)

Learning Experience

1. Brainstorm qualities class members would desire in a person to whom they would entrust a younger brother or sister (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts).

2. Invite panel of mothers and those who employ persons to care for children to discuss personal qualities they expect in a child-care worker (A-1.1 Awareness and C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts).

3. Develop check list of "Qualities of a Child-Care Worker" (C-1.2 Knowledge of Ways and Means of Dealing with Specifics).

4. Discuss each quality in terms of:
   a. What is meant by ___________?
   b. Why is it important for the person who cares for children?
   c. How can one develop this quality? Improve it? Maintain it?
   d. How will the quality be used in the role of a child-care worker? (C-2.10 Translation).

5. Rate self on check list and identify one or two qualities of work to develop or improve (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond).
6. Role-play realistic occupational situations involving personal qualities. Identify the qualities expressed by the employee and explore the effect on the employer, other employees, parents, and children (C-2.2 Interpretation, A-1.13 Controlled or Selected Attention).

Teaching Aids

Books

Pamphlets

State of Illinois, Department of Children and Family Services, Program Guides for Day-Care Centers, "Some Qualities of a Good Teacher."

Evaluation

7. Teacher check self-ratings on check list and compare with observed behavior. Discuss with each student.

8. Student periodically reevaluate status on personal qualities check list.

Objectives

Understands the role of heredity and environment in the growth* process (C-2.2 Interpretation).

Comprehends the aspects of growth and development (C-2.2 Interpretation).

Accepts the importance of understanding the principles of growth and development and to applying them in the guidance of children (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value).

*Growth and growth process, in this curriculum plan, refer to the total development process and not to physical growth alone.
Heredity and environment are co-factors in the growth process.

The basic pattern or blueprint of human growth is determined by the laws of heredity.

The growth process occurs through the interaction of the organism and its environment.

Growth is both quantitative and qualitative.

Growth proceeds from general to specific responses.

The tempo of growth is not even.

Development tends to be in sequential order with each stage linked to earlier, less mature stages.

Each child passes through the characteristic stages of development at his own rate.

Both rate and pattern of growth are affected by conditions within and without the body.

Sequence is more important than the age at which the specific characteristics of development appear since individuals differ in their rate and pattern of development.

Aspects of growth are physical, mental (intellectual), emotional, and social.

The aspects of growth develop at different rates and are interrelated.

Physical development refers to body growth, change in proportions, and increase in coordination or manipulative ability.

Physical development is affected by diet, rest, clothing, state of cleanliness, exercise, shelter, and the extent to which basic social, emotional, and mental needs are met.

1. Recall or read references on how heredity and environment influence growth (C-1.31 Knowledge of Principles and Generalization).

2. View and discuss film, "Principles of Development" for basic laws and patterns of growth (C-2.0 Comprehension).

3. Divide into groups and list other examples of growth according to these patterns (C-2.2 Interpretation).

4. Observe several children of the same age and note how their development is alike and different (C-4.2 Analysis of Relationships).

5. Explore teaching aids to find common characteristics (norms) of each aspect of development of children at ages 2, 3, 4, and 5 (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts).

6. View films, "The Terrible Twos and the Trusting Threes" and the "Frustrating Fours and Fascinating Fives," for examples of differences in each aspect of development and variations in child-care procedures at the four age levels (A-1.1 Awareness and C-2.0 Comprehension).
Children, ages 2 to 5, are characterized by: rapid physical and mental growth, but at decreasing rates; changes in body proportions; perfection of basic motor skills; acquisition of some fine motor skills; and coordination of motor skills.

Mental development is the acquisition of knowledge and understandings and the ability to make application of them.

Young children learn by example; imitation, and experimentation.

Children, ages 2 to 5, are characterized by: language development in terms of ability, articulation, and vocabulary; great curiosity about environment; extensive activity (short attention space); and a beginning understanding of abstractions.

As a child develops mentally, he is increasingly able to cope with new situations.

Emotional development is an increase in the ability to recognize and understand one's feelings and to deal with them in constructive ways.

A child's emotional patterns are affected by heredity, environment level of intellectual abilities, and physical skills.

A child's emotions are spontaneous and short-lived.

Until socially acceptable emotional responses are learned, emotions are expressed directly.

If a child's basic needs of love, recognition, belonging, and achievement are fulfilled he is more likely to be emotionally secure.

Social development refers to the ability to interact with others.

Social development is learned through experiences with others.
Children progress from self-interest and self-concern to involvement with family members to relationships with peers.

Pattern of development and behavior of the preschool years provide the foundations for adult physical, mental, emotional, and social characteristics.

7. Cite examples of adult behavior and speculate on bases in childhood experiences (C-2.30 Extrapolation).

Evaluation

8. Divide class into four groups each to select pictures, examples, and other means of describing an age group of children.

Objectives

Comprehends the theories which are the bases for the principles and methods of guidance (C-2.0 Comprehension).

Recognizes the importance of guidance in the development of children (A-3.1 Acceptance of a Value).

Wants to be able to guide the behavior of children in ways which enable them to maintain self-respect and move forward in all aspects of development (A-2.2 Willigness to Respond).

Applies principles and methods of guidance as a means of improving environment to facilitate the development of children (C-3.0 Application).

Content

Guidance helps a child develop self-control and self-reliance within the framework of society's expectations.

Learning Experience

1. Define guidance and give illustrations of a person guiding a child (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts).
To the extent that an individual's needs are met as they occur, he is free to move toward his full potential of development toward maturity.*

Positive guidance gives direction to behavior and arouses less resistance in the child.

Guidance procedures appropriate to the age and maturity of the child facilitate development.

Clearly defined and consistently maintained limits contribute to a sense of security and direction.

Guidance is enhanced through affection, respect for the child as an individual, help with difficult tasks, and approval for those things well done.

Direct and indirect methods of guidance are used to guide behavior.

Indirect methods include arranging schedule for activity, choosing equipment of type which affects behavior, and manipulating surroundings.

Direct methods may be physical and/or verbal.

Both verbal and nonverbal communications convey meaning (voice, actions, attitudes).

*Maturity involves:
1. Ability to perceive self and the world realistically.
2. Acceptance and understanding of self and others.
3. Unity of personality.
4. Responsibility for own behavior.

Activities which encourage longer plan contribute toward increasing a child's attention span.

Alternating periods of active and quiet activities contributes toward meeting the needs of children.

Uninterrupted activities, so long as there is progress, child is safe, and toys and equipment are cared for, contribute to development.

As a child grows and develops toward maturity, he progresses through the solitary, parallel, and group stages of activity.

A child engages in many different types of activities which contribute to various aspects of development.

Opportunities for free activity enables a child to develop and explore his own interests.

Provision for free activity requires variety in and several choices among material, equipment and environment.

6. Look at pictures of children engaged in solitary, parallel, and cooperative activity and discuss the characteristics of each stage (C-4.00 Analysis).

7. Observe children at various stages of activity and determine the stage of each (C-4.00 Analysis).

8. Committees engage in the following activities:
   a. Choose one of the following types of activity--free, imitative, creative, literature, or music.
   b. Become "expert" in the activity for this age group by conferring with a resource person (e.g.--free activity--physical education teacher; imitative activity--drama teacher; creative activity--art teacher; literature--librarian or English teacher; music--music teacher) and completing research in all available sources.
   c. Teach the class about the activity. Include:
      (1) How does this activity contribute to development?
      (2) What are the basic principles or fundamentals of this activity?
Children, through imitation, for example, as they practice society's masculine and feminine roles. Encouragement of imagination enhances the ability to see beyond the obvious in a situation and the development of empathy with others. Having materials to organize and manipulate contributes to the expression of creativity. Freedom to explore, express, and test faster creativity in activity. Children learn creativity by working on their own rather than copying models. Emphasis on neatness, tidiness, and correctness hinders the expression of creativity. Knowledge of children's literature and methods of presentation involving stories and poetry enhances the experiences with music available to children. Excursions contribute to a child's awareness of the world. A habit is a regular, routine way of satisfying urges, desires or wants. Habits result from repeated actions. (C-1.11 Knowledge of Terminology.)

9. Differentiate between habit and routine. List reasons for and values of routines. (C-2.00 Comprehension; A-3.1 Acceptance of Value.)

10. Read in references concerning habits and routines. List reasons for and values of routines. (C-2.00 Comprehension.)

(3) What equipment and materials are needed for this activity?

(C-3.00 Application; 5.00 Synthesis)

(4) What are some guidelines for evaluating the success of this activity?

(d) Demonstrate and provide opportunity for the class to try out some of the methods or techniques unique to this activity.

(5) What are some ways to introduce this activity?

(6) What preplanning and preparation is needed?

Encourage imagination, for example, as they practice society's masculine and feminine roles.

Attention to health routines facilitates physical well-being.

Recognizing and reporting early signs of illness promotes physical health of all children.

As children grow toward maturity they acquire a concern for their own health and safety.

Knowledge of the interests and abilities of a child enables one to provide experiences which are advantageous to learning.

The type and stage of activity in which a child engages is related to his level of development.

17. Interview an employee of a child-care facility to determine policies and procedures for safety and emergencies (C-5.00 Synthesis).

18. Invite nurse or doctor to discuss with class:
   a. Childhood diseases—symptoms and treatment; immunization.
   b. Responsibilities of child-care facility for health.

19. Write a paragraph on the "responsibilities of a child-care worker for the health and safety of children" (C-5.10 Production of a Unique Communication).

20. Develop generalizations expressing the relationship of activity, development of child and the role of a child-care worker (C-5.30 Derivation of a Set of Abstract Relations).

Unit I. Orientation To Food Service Work

I. Nature of Gainful Employment Program

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the nature of the occupational program, specifically the food services occupational program. (C-1.32 Knowledge of Theories and Structure.)

Aware of the value of participating in the occupational program. (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)

CONTENT

An understanding of the nature of the employment program helps to orient one toward preparation for wage earning.

The program depends upon the interrelationship between the students, home, school, community and food service establishments.

The program brings together the employer and the school in an effort to develop students as skilled wage-earners in food service.

a. The program provides for classroom instruction correlated with experiences on the job.

b. The program enables a student to make an intelligent choice in regard to his life's work.

c. The program aids in establishing effective work habits and attitudes.

d. The program provides an opportunity to secure full-time employment after completing high school.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Listen to a coordinator explain the vocational programs in the high school, including information about the jobs for which one might prepare in the program. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

Listen to a panel discussion by students enrolled in different aspects of the school vocational program. Some topics for discussion might be:

--various work schedules and their advantages in relation to other activities which must be fitted into the daily schedule, as academic, sports, dating, family, and leisure.

--various tasks performed on the job and the type of behavior required as mental, physical or emotional.

--new learnings about the operation of business

--new learnings which have been most beneficial to students (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)

Write a short essay on "What the vocational program has to offer me" (C-1.32 Knowledge of Theories and Structure) (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)

EVALUATION:

Give a pretest to determine understanding of the vocational program. Observe student's reaction to discussion on different aspects of the vocational program.
OBJECTIVES

Comprehends how the occupational program may contribute to the youth of the community, the community, the school program and to the businesses. (C-1.32 Knowledge of Theories and Structure)
Aware of the value of the occupational program to the youth of the community, the community, the school program and businesses. (3.0 Valuing)

CONTENT

The occupational program may contribute to the development of the youth of the community by:

--providing an opportunity for development of personal characteristics for employability.

--providing students with an opportunity to develop salable skills.

--providing a chance to gain knowledge needed in food service occupations through classroom instruction correlated with experience on the job.

--enabling students to obtain employment in the food-service field with an organized play of training with supervision.

--enabling students to earn credit toward graduation.

--better preparing students to secure full-time employment after completing high school.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Survey different age members of your community to ascertain ways they think a food service occupational program will aid the youth of the community as well as contribute to the total community. Report findings to the class. (C-1.20 Knowledge of ways and means of dealing with specifics)

EVALUATION:

Ask students to hand in results of survey. Note comprehensiveness of survey.
The occupational program may contribute to the community by:

--encouraging youth to remain in school and profit from more education.

--encouraging youth to remain in community and to develop a feeling of community responsibility.

--encouraging the community to provide sources of employment that are challenging and satisfying to their youth.

--providing a source for maintaining a closer relationship among school, business, and parents of the community.

EVALUATION:

Note depth and quality of student's questions prepared for panel discussion.

The occupational program may contribute to the school program by:

--enabling the school to meet better the training needs of the community.

--providing a channel for closer cooperation with community.

--providing an opportunity for a closer correlation between the job and the world of work.

--broadening the curriculum.

--providing an area of interest for students and therefore encouraging the student to remain in school rather than dropping out.

EVALUATION:

Note willingness to participate in conducting interview as well as quality of the report.

Prepare questions for a panel discussion by involved leaders from a community that has had a successful occupational program. (C1.2 Knowledge of Ways and Means of Dealing with Specifics)

Invite an advisory committee member to speak on "Contributions and Occupational Program has to Offer to a Community" (a-1.3 Controlled or Selected Attention)

Interview teachers and administrators in the school to ascertain how they perceive the occupational program might contribute to the school. Report findings to clear. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)
The occupational program may contribute to the development of business by:

--providing an opportunity to become acquainted with prospective employees of the community.

--providing the employer with a chance to become involved with the school program.

--providing a source of trained and capable employees.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to develop ways of promoting the food service occupational program (C-5.20 Production of a plan or proposed set of operations).

Is willing to promote the food service occupational program (A-2.2 Willingness to respond).

CONTENT

Promotion of a food service occupational program is necessary in order to obtain maximum benefits from it.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Listen to a panel of local businessmen discuss "The present and future value of a local occupational program to local businesses." (A-1.3 Controlled or Selected attention) (C-1.32 Knowledge of Theories and Structure)

Prepare a news release which explains the nature of the food service occupational program and the values of the program to youth, school, community and business. (C-2.20 Interpretation) (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

Arrange to speak at service and/or civic clubs to explain the food-service occupational program. (C-5.20 Proposed Set of Operations) (A-2.2 Willingness to Respond)

Arrange for graduates of the program who have success stories to prepare a news release or to present their story at service and/or civic clubs. (C-5.20 Proposed Set of Operations)

Prepare a film or slides of students receiving on-the-job training. Show film at school assemblies or service or civic groups. (C-5.00 Synthesis)

EVALUATION:

Students prepare a rating scale to use in evaluating news releases. Use rating scale to select the 5 most effective news releases. Select one with highest rating to be submitted to local newspaper. Note student's willingness to speak at civic and/or service clubs.
OBJECTIVES

Knows agreements aid in meeting expectations of employee as well as employer. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

Familiarizes self with work agreements and student agreements. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond.)

CONTENT

Student employees expectations from employers are outlined in a training plan or work agreement as:

--daily time schedule or work schedule arrangements or plans for holidays.
--statement of beginning wage and standards for raises or promotions.
--provisions for uniforms and their maintenance.
--how and when student employee will be evaluated.

Students responsibilities are outlined in student agreements as:

--regular and prompt attendance in school and on the job.
--notifying coordinator and employer in the case of absence.
--making notes of experiences on job.
--willingness to gain new experiences on the job.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Study a copy of your program's work agreement and student agreement. (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

If agreements do not exist--develop them as class projects. (C-5.00 Synthesis)

Take several copies to local businessmen to obtain their reactions. Evaluate suggestions of businessmen and make appropriate changes. (C-6.00 Evaluation)

OBJECTIVES

Knows sources of information about laws, regulations and requirements related to employment (C-1.12 Knowledge of Specific Facts)

Appreciates the purpose of laws, regulations and requirements related to employment (A-1.2 Willingness to Receive)

CONTENT

Knowledge of laws, regulations, and requirements in relation to possible job opportunities aids one in preparing for future employment.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Discuss section of laws pertinent to your age group. (C-1.2 Knowledge of Specific Facts)
Labor laws and regulations deal with wage and salary standards, social security; workmen's compensation; unemployment insurance; working hours; legal rights of employees.

Federal legislation requires health examinations of employees to insure protection of the general public as well as the individual. Health permits are issued if the health examination is satisfactory. Health examination and permits may be obtained at the local health department.

The labor unions have rules and regulations which operate in some food service occupations.

There are a number of sources of information about legal provisions, as:

--employers
--employment agencies
--labor unions
--school counselors

II. The Food Industry

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends role of food industry in the economy (C-2.0 Comprehension).
Is Aware of the effect of the food industry on the well being of people and the economy of the country. (A-1.1 Awareness)

CONTENT

The food industry has a direct effect upon the well-being of people and the economy of the country and the world:

- serves needs of public
- influences health of nation
- provides jobs for many workers

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

In buzz groups discuss the importance of food service for the welfare of the community:
- school lunch programs
- food service in hospitals and other institutions
- social functions
- individuals who eat out

Report findings to class.

Locate information concerning the contributions of food services to the local economy and to local people.

Discuss the responsibility of the U.S. in meeting world health problems through contributing to the world food supply. Read and summarize current articles on world food problems.

EVALUATION

Teacher appraise accuracy of student's interpretation of contributions of food service to local economy and role of food service in meeting world health problems.

--------------------------------------------------------------------------------

OBJECTIVES

Appreciates the growth and development of the food industry. (A-1.2 Willingness to receive.)
Comprehends the range of the undertakings of the food industry. (C-2.0 Comprehension)

CONTENT

Familiarity with the history, growth and trends in food services enhance one's appreciation of the diverse opportunities available.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Read and discuss chapter 1 and 2 of People, Food and Science.

Compare the food industry of the U.S. with that of other countries.

EVALUATION

Note depth and quality of reports on growth and importance of the food industry.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the relation of conditions of society to the need for food service education programs. (C-2.3 Extrapolation)
Is aware that conditions of our society influence trends in the food service industry. (A-1.1 Awareness)

CONTENT

There are conditions of society and related needs which have promoted the need for a food service education program and which reflect the present growth and trends of the food service industry.

a. An increase in service occupations provides an almost unlimited number of job opportunities in an increasing number of establishments: hospitals, coffee shops, soda fountains, counter service restaurants, and table service restaurants.

b. An increase in automation in the food service industry has resulted in jobs which have become more specialized, thus requiring workers with more specialized training and continued education.

c. An increase in the number of women gainfully employed has reduced time available to prepare meals, thus encouraging the family to:
   --eat out more often
   --use more pre-prepared foods

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Check the want ad section of the newspaper to get a tally of service occupations available. Compare with number of unskilled labor positions available.

Tour a food processing plant. Ask the guide to indicate the number of workers required to do the work of some of the machines.

Collect newspaper clippings which have implications for the future in food service industry.
d. Changes in public eating habits have resulted in new and different types of food service operations, i.e., drive-ins, carryouts, vending and catering.

Use yellow page section of telephone directory to count number of drive-ins, vending, etc., in operation.

e. An increase in family income has provided more money for eating out and purchasing pre-prepared foods.

Make a survey form for "Family Eating Habits." Use form to survey the class. Summarize eating habits of today's families.

f. An increase in the amount of income left after necessities will provide extra money for travel. Thus, there will be a need for expanding hotels and food service accommodations. The expanded accommodations will require additional food service personnel.

Listen to a speaker from a travel and/or tourist bureau discuss "Travel Expectations of the Next Decade."

g. An increase in population has influenced the present and future demand for food services and need for food service personnel.

Invite sociology or social studies teacher to speak on "Expected Population Explosion."

h. An increase in a segment of the population which comprises the 75 years and older group has affected the food industry.

One of their greatest diversions is going out for a meal. (Expanded service.)

This necessitates offering foods which are suitable for their special needs.

Some of these people may be interested in a part-time job to supplement their retirement benefits and/or for pleasure.

EVALUATION:

Note the ability of the student to identify conditions of our society which have implications for the future of the food service industry.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that there are many interrelated and interdependent aspects of the food industry. (C-2.2.20 Interpretation)

Is aware of the various aspects of the food industry. (A-1.1 Awareness)
There are many interrelated and interdependent aspects of the food industry. These include research, production, processing, distribution, and service.

Some job opportunities in the various aspects of the food industry might be:

Research -
- Laboratory Tester
- Quality Control Tester
- Chemical Analyst
- Research Technician

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the need for and the values of work simplification. (C-2.30 Extrapolation)

Is aware that work simplification techniques contribute to effective use of time and energy and harmonious work relations. (A-1.1 Awareness)

CONTENT

Using principles of work simplification reduces fatigue, conserves time and energy, and thereby benefits both the employee and the employer.

Work simplification techniques in food service operation might involve: planning a sequence of duties; using trays; storing supplies and equipment near area of use; placing equipment at point of first use, etc.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Watch a demonstration of a specific task employing techniques or work simplification. Identify work simplification techniques used in the demonstration.

Divide into groups. One group try work simplification techniques and the other use the ordinary techniques. Compare groups on time and efficiency.

EVALUATION

Each student test self on the job to identify techniques of work simplification which can be established as a part of their work habits.
OBJECTIVES

Comprehends that job success is related to customer satisfaction. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Desires to learn to serve different types of customers successfully. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value)

CONTENT

The quality of one's relationship with his customer's influences his success and happiness on the job.

Your success is reflected in satisfied customers.

Special attention may be required for some customers, as:

a. Elderly
b. Handicapped
c. Infants, toddlers and children
d. Ill

Elderly
- be patient
- assist with wraps and seating
- speak clearly and increase volume if necessary
- be prompt in serving food

Handicapped
- do not fill glasses too full
- remove items from table which may be easily dislodged
- assist with serving foods
- suggest foods easy to eat (not spaghetti)
- assist with reading menu if needed
- do not be overly helpful
- assist with restroom facilities if needed

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Role play:
1. What to do when the customer asks, "What's good today?"
2. How to handle customer complaints.
3. Greeting guests.
4. Helping a child order.

Visit various establishments to observe differences in employee-customer relationships and effects on customer satisfaction.

Discuss how satisfied customers influence a food service worker's success.

Role play a situation where the customer is always right.

Film: "Fun of Being Thoughtful."

Role play serving customers with special needs.

Invite the director of a nursing home to discuss special needs of the elderly and ways of meeting needs.

Listen to a representative from a rehabilitation center discuss, "Tips on Handling Handicapped Customers."
Customers with infants
- seat in booths if possible so baby can be laid down.
- seat away from drafts or open windows, doors, air conditioner vents.
- seat away from the main customer cluster so baby's crying will not interfere with conversation.
- offer to fill bottles with milk, juice or water—or to warm bottle.
- offer extra napkins if needed for baby.
- notice the infants—even babies like attention and it definitely pleases the parents.

Toddlers
- move table implements out of reach as salt, pepper, sugar, catsup, forks, knives, if not used by toddler.
- serve small servings.
- offer highchair, clean chair if necessary. Assist with mechanics of the highchair.
- offer crackers as nibblers while waiting to serve.
- use plastic glasses or cups.
- do not overfill glasses or cups.
- place toddlers near wall so will not be distracted.

Ill
- suggest a liquid diet or some soft diet.
- assist with locating a physician if he is needed.
- assist with locating restroom facilities, if needed.

Invite mothers of infants, toddlers, and children to discuss courtesies in food service establishments which make "eating out" an enjoyable family activity.

EVALUATION:

Student states ways in which job success in food industry relates to customer satisfaction. Or, she recognizes these in case situations on test. Anecdotal records concerning student reactions to customers with special needs.
Unit II. Organization and Management of Food Services

I. Operation and Functions of Divisions

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends the operations in the divisions of a food service enterprise. (C-2.00 Comprehension)
Senses the importance of each part of the food service operation to the total enterprise. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value)

CONTENT

An understanding of the interrelated operations and functions of the various divisions in food services enables a worker to relate his individual contribution to the total enterprise.

Divisions in the organizational structure of food establishments include:

a. administration
b. purchasing
c. receiving
d. storage
e. preparation
f. menu planning
g. service
h. maintenance
i. merchandising & sales
j. record-keeping, cost control

The success of any food service enterprise is dependent upon the combined skills and teamwork of employees.

EVALUATION

Student identifies operations in the divisions of food service enterprise.
II. Management processes in Food Establishments

OBJECTIVES

Is able to analyze a job in terms of the abilities and skills required. (C-4.00 Analysis)

Gains satisfaction from analyzing food service jobs. (A-2.3 Satisfaction in response)

Is interested in learning management processes. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Job content analysis is a method of determining the nature and sequence of separate tasks involved in an occupation.

Analysis of a job included determining job title and alternate titles, case number, job description, and job specifications.

TEACHING AID

The way workers use their time and energy influences their effectiveness on the job.

Reference

Modern Living Management, pp. 77-92.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Demonstrate how to analyze a job.

Have students choose job to analyze. Include: Job title & alternates Case number Job description Job specifications Observe in a food service establishment and prepare a time schedule of the operations. Identify which workers are not making effective use of time and energy. Discover ways to make more effective use of time and energy.

EVALUATION:

Check student's analysis to determine his grasp of how to examine a job. Listen to students' comments concerning job analysis and management practices observed.
OBJECTIVE

Is skillful in applying management processes in food service work. (C-3.00 Application)

CONTENT

When workers control food loss and waste, they increase profits of the food service enterprise.

Record keeping is an aid in food cost control, particularly in areas of:

a. ordering food
b. determining cost of menu
c. keeping a perpetual inventory

The use of an inventory record system aids in cost control, which involves checking for correct quantity and quality of food on hand as well as keeping a perpetual inventory.

Proper storage of food and supplies reduces spoilage and damage.

Selection and arrangement of equipment affect the efficiency of food service operations.

Maintenance of order is an integral part of food production and service and is related positively to efficiency, safety and sanitation.

EVALUATION

Reports of student's on-the-job experiences in food service management procedures.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to apply principles of food protection and preservation. (C-3.00 Application)

CONTENT

Food spoilage caused by the action of enzymes, bacteria, yeast and molds, is controlled by precautions in handling, preserving, and storing.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Discussion by food purchasers in local food service establishments about "Pro's and Con's of Using Seasonal Foods."

Ask to assume responsibility of the perpetual inventory task for a few days.

Students read Foods Book, pp. 206-207.

Discuss proper storage of various foods.
Periodicals:

EVALUATION

Discuss chart from The Professional Chef, "To Get the Best From Your Refrigeration," p. 7.

Read and discuss p. 206-208 of Your Foods Book.

Discuss specific procedures in cooking and food preservation which protect against harmful micro-organisms.

Pencil and paper test on principles of food protection and preservation. Observation of students on the job to determine their ability to apply these principles.
Unit III. Safety and Sanitation

I. Accidents

OBJECTIVES

Is able to recognize hazards and to prevent accidents on the job. (C-3.00 Application)
Is alert to ways of preventing accidents on the job. (A-1.3 Controlled or selected attention)

CONTENT

Falls, burns, and cuts are typical accidents in food establishments. Accidents are costly to management and to individual workers, due to additional expenses, impaired health, and loss of income.

A knowledge of first aid procedures helps workers to meet emergencies and deal with accidents.

Precautions are necessary for maintaining safety in work areas. Safe working practices help to protect workers against injury.

When a worker is familiar with causes of fires, he can direct his efforts toward fire prevention.

When both employers and employees are aware of their responsibilities for accident prevention, loss and injury are reduced.

View Film: "Kitchen Safety."

Read section on "Safety" pp. 10-12, The Professional Chef.

Ask local insurance companies to relate case situations to illustrate losses due to accidents.

Buzz groups discuss safety improvements needed in kitchens of home economics room.

Visit a food service establishment; note safety practices observed and those that are not observed. Discuss observations in class.

Discuss types of fires and proper methods for extinguishing fires.

TEACHING AIDS

Film, "Kitchen Safety," McGraw-Hill Film Company

EVALUATION

Students demonstrate ability to recognize safety hazards on the job—"Safety hazard hunt" might be a possibility.

Anecdotal records regarding safe practices on the job.
II. Food Contaminants and Methods of Control

OBJECTIVES

Knows infections, diseases, and poisonings caused by food contaminants. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)
Is interested in how to prevent food contamination. (A-2.2 Willingness to receive)

CONTENT

Tape worm, trichinosis, diphtheria, botulism, septic sore throat, dysentery, salmonella, and typhoid fever are some infections and diseases which may result from intake of contaminated foods. Poisonings may result from sodium flouride, acids, arsenic and cyanide and staphylococcus bacteria.

Pamphlets

"Bacterial Food Poisoning" Tourist and Resort Institute, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan, 1957.

Film

EVALUATION

Pencil and paper test items over food contaminants and prevention of food contamination.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Reports on each of the diseases and infections.
Define food poisoning.
Use pictures whenever possible, as with tapeworms.
View and discuss film on Salmonella.
Clip articles describing cases of food contamination from magazines or newspapers.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to apply health principles in the prevention of infections, poisonings and diseases. (C-3.00 Application)
Realizes the importance of applying health principles to prevent infections, and diseases. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value)
Infectious diseases and poisonings transferred by food to humans are caused by bacteria, vermin and chemicals.

The application of health principles in food handling prevents the spread of infections, poisonings and disease.

References

Pamphlets:

Food protection in eating establishments requires continuous efforts at rodent and insect control.

Book

The Professional Chef, p. 6-7.

EVALUATION

Pencil and paper test items on principles related to food processing and service and the prevention of infections, poisonings, and diseases. Observe students on job for evidence of their applying these principles.

OBJECTIVES

Comprehend why personal sanitary practices of worker are required by the food industry. (C-3.00 Application)

Desires to follow sanitary practices in grooming and personal hygiene. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value)
The appearance of employees affects public confidence in the cleanliness of the food establishment.

Appropriate clothing, as well as properly fitted clothing will increase one's self confidence and contribute to safety in working with foods.

Rigid standards of personal hygiene are required by the food industry as keeping uniforms and clothing immaculately clean; protecting hair, with hair-nets or caps, avoiding use of nail polish. Workers are obliged to protect the public by their own health care and by regular physical check-ups and tests.

Personal cleanliness of each worker promotes high standards of sanitation and hygiene.

Book: The Professional Chef

EVALUATION

Test items over personal sanitary practices in the food industry. Observe students on the job for evidences of following personal sanitary practices.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to carry out sanitary food handling procedures. (P-4.00 Mechanism) Desires to carry out sanitary food handling procedures. (A-2.1 Acquiescence in responding)

CONTENT

Sanitary food handling involves knowledge of principles and skill in procedures for:

a. storage of dishes and supplies
b. protection of food from dehydration, deterioration, contamination, and spoilage
c. humidity and temperature control preservation of food
d. serving of food

The standards of sanitation maintained affects the reputation of the establishment.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Prepare a list of personal habits of cleanliness important when handling food to ensure sanitary conditions.

Each student evaluate self using the Professional Chef's check list of 50 factors which can create a poor appearance.

Select and discuss pictures of unsafe practices in dress and hairstyles.

Visit different types of food service establishments to observe appearance of employees. Discuss observations in class.

Employer to discuss, "Importance of Personal Appearance in Food Service Business."

Select and discuss pictures of appropriate dress hairstyle, etc.

Test items over personal sanitary practices in the food industry. Observe students on the job for evidences of following personal sanitary practices.

Use a check list to evaluate sanitary food handling procedures used by you and others in your training station. Identify ways to improve poor practices and attempt to make improvements.

Make posters or signs to call attention to safe and sanitary practices.

Make a check list to use for a daily sanitation check.

Role play situations to show customer's reactions to low standards of sanitation in a food service establishment.
Film

"Kitchen Habits" 16 mm., color, 12 min.

Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Atlanta, Georgia. (Free)

Recall experiences with poor sanitation, as greasy silverware, lipstick on glassware, food on plate, hair in food, etc.

EVALUATION

Test items over sanitary food handling procedures. Observe students on job for evidences of their observing sanitary food handling practices.

OBJECTIVES

Is able to carry out sanitary cleanup procedures. (C-3.00 Application and P-4.00 Mechanism)
Seeks to use sanitary cleanup procedures. (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value)

CONTENT

Sanitary cleanup and dishwashing involves knowledge of principles and skill in techniques related to:

a. table clearing
b. care of work area
c. housekeeping procedures
d. scraping and rinsing of dishes
e. garbage disposal
f. hand dishwashing
g. use of detergents and disinfectants
h. regulation of water temperature

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Ask the school cafeteria manager to demonstrate cleanup techniques. Arrange for students to assist with various cleanup activities.

View films: "Table and Counter Top Sanitation," and "Dishwashing Techniques."

References

Films

EVALUATION

Test items over sanitary cleanup procedures. Observe students on the job for evidences of their practicing sanitary cleanup procedures.
OBJECTIVES

Knows the agencies responsible for enforcing legal regulations dealing with food industry. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)

Realizes the importance of having and enforcing legal regulations. (A-1.13 Controlled or selected attention)

CONTENT

There are local, state, and federal regulations concerning food and food handlers that are directed toward protecting public health, as U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, state and local health departments, National Institute of Health, World Health Organization, National Research Council, and the Food and Drug Administration.

Harris and Withers, People, Food and Science, Chapter 4, pp. 44-55.

The Federal Trade Commission is concerned with trying to eliminate sales trickery from the food industry.

The Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act protects the public against adulterated or misbranded food by:

a. food quality standards
b. labeling requirements
c. meat inspections, etc.

Book

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Invite a member of local Department of Public Health to speak on topic: "The Need for Protection of Public Health."

Formulate a list of agencies which promote sanitary food practices.

Read text, People, Food, and Science, pp. 44-55.

Read "The Federal Trade Commission" in Food 1959 Yearbook of Agriculture. Then explore slogans such as:

"Richer in milk minerals than most expensive spreads."

Discuss the truth or fallacy in the slogan.

Define adulterated.

Collect labels and discuss how they inform the public.

Read and discuss, "The Pure Food Law" in Food.

EVALUATION

Test items on agencies responsible for enforcing legal regulations dealing with food industry. Comments made in class discussions on these legal regulations.
Unit IV. Serving of Food

OBJECTIVE

Understanding of procedures and methods for serving food in different types of establishments. (C-1.25 Knowledge of methodology)

CONTENT

Procedures and methods of serving food vary in different types of establishments.

An understanding of dining room operation is essential for workers connected with serving food to people.

Dining room operation requires knowledge and skill in handling:

- Side service station
- Trays
- Table appointments
- Table settings
- Serving systems
- Clearing procedure
- Customer rapport
- Business skills

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Read about styles of meal service and methods of serving in Meal Management.

Reference:

Kinder, Meal Management

EVALUATION

Test items over procedures and methods in food service. Observe students serving food on the job.

OBJECTIVE

Skill in tasks performed by a waitress. (P-5.20 Automatic performance)

CONTENT

Waitressing involves skill and knowledge in:

1. The handling of silver, glass, and dishes; setting a standard cover
2. Arranging table accessories
3. Taking an order

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Outline skills and knowledge needed by waitresses in various types of food service establishments.

Discuss the skills and knowledge needed in the establishments where establishing rapport with customers is directly related to the success of a waiter, waitress, or hostess.
4. Assembling, placing an order for serving

5. Stacking dishes on a tray

6. Carrying a large tray

7. Using trays for serving

8. Clearing table

EVALUATION

Observation of student performing duties of waitress in in-class or on-the-job situation.
Unit V. Menu Planning

OBJECTIVES

Knows the terminology of food service. (C-1.11 Knowledge of terminology)

Comprehends that knowledge of terminology and trade language enhances job performance. (C-2.0 Comprehension)

Shows willingness to learn terminology and trade language. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

A knowledge of terminology and format is essential in order to interpret or write menus.

Satisfaction in eating is increased when menus are planned taking into account local food preferences.

Knowledge of terminology used in food service occupations enhances job performance.

"Trade language" may be used in the food service industry to describe menu terms; ingredients; method of preparation; utensils and equipment; and work operations.

Menu planning involves combining foods to form a satisfying meal. The menu is the basis for planning the day's production and purchasing. Menu items are assigned to work stations depending on preparation involved.

Terminology Reference

The Professional Chef, pp. 341-345.

Film

"Cooking Terms and What They Mean," Young America Films, Inc.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Brainstorm to develop list of unusual terms encountered on the job.

View film: "Cooking Terms and What They Mean." Summarize the film.

Divide into two groups and participate in a "definition match." (The students give the definition when term is named or vice versa), the game operates similarly to a spelling match.

Role play situations in which knowledge of trade language is necessary, such as: answering customers questions about menu writing customer order.

Bring menus to class from local restaurants. Interpret reasons for combining the foods or selection of these foods.
EVALUATION

Students demonstrate knowledge of the terminology of food service in on-the-job training situation.
Test items over terms used in food service.
Unit VI. Quantity Food Preparation

I. Standardized Recipes in Relation to Quality Products

OBJECTIVES

Is able to follow quantity recipes and make adjustments in ingredients. (C-3.00 Application)
Is willing to learn principles involved in adjusting recipes. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)
Knows sources of quantity food recipes. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)

CONTENT

Quantity recipes may differ from family-size recipes with respect to methods of measuring and preparing ingredients.

Knowledge of terms and techniques used in quantity food preparation contributes to ability to prepare foods in quantity.

Filmstrip: "Cooking Terms and What They Mean," Young America Films, Young America, Inc., New York, New York.

Knowledge of weights, measures, and their abbreviations used in recipes helps one to interpret and follow recipes.

Accurate measurements contribute to quality products and reduce waste.

Filmstrip: "Cooking--Measuring." Young America Films, Inc.

Knowing can sizes and dipper and ladle equivalents facilitates food preparation and reduces waste.

Knowing reliable sources of quantity recipes facilitates preparation of quality foods.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Teacher may show how recipes for family-size and large quantity preparation of the same product differ.

View filmstrip, "Cooking Terms and What They Mean."

Demonstrate techniques (as applied to quantity food preparation):

dice
chop blend cream whip beat

Demonstrate various measures, as:

1 c. brown sugar
1 c. white granulated sugar
1 c. milk
1/2 c. fat

Demonstrate measuring by weight.

View filmstrip, "Cooking--Measuring."

Use charts on bulletin board display on abbreviations which may be used in recipes.

Make display of different can sizes.

Read leaflet, "Using Canned Goods."

Read in Harris and Withers on "Canned Goods," p. 179

Teacher lectures on sources of reliable quantity recipes.
EVALUATION

Students demonstrate ability to follow recipes and make recipe adjustments in training situation or in classroom. Given a menu, students find recipes and determine size of canned goods to buy to avoid having leftovers.

OBJECTIVE

Knowledge of equivalent measures and substitutions for ingredients. (C-1.12 Knowledge of specific facts)

CONTENT

Knowledge of equivalent measures and appropriate substitutions for ingredients enables one to make adjustments in recipes.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Use Cote, p. 420, or use recipe books to find substitutions for regular ingredient. Make a master list of ingredients and possible substitutions.

Prepare products using substitute ingredients, and regular ingredients. Compare quality of products.

Participate in an Equivalent Match Game. (As leader gives unit of measure the player gives equivalent unit measure.)

EVALUATION

Test items on equivalent measures and substitutions. Student performance in Equivalent Match Game.
II. Selection of Foods and Ingredients

OBJECTIVES

Is able to judge quality of foods and ingredients. (C-6.20 Judgments in terms of external criteria)

Understand factors related to quality of food products. (C-2.00 Comprehension)

Is interested in judging quality of foods and ingredients. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

The ability to judge quality and compare products contributes to high standards in food preparation.

The quality of a product is related to the relative proportions of ingredients. Knowledge of these proportions is an aid in food preparation.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Discussion of general qualities desirable in various food products, with actual food examples. For example:

- crisp-done cooked vegetables
- fresh and crisp salad greens, etc.

Set up criteria for basic foods.

Discuss differences in standards held desirable in different parts of the country.

Teacher lecture on value bases for criteria for quality foods: nutrition; aesthetic factors as appearance, texture, flavor; sanitation, etc.

Practice multiplying and dividing recipes.

Read p. 13, Professional Chef for examples of converted recipes.

Reference

Harris and Withers, Your Foods Book, p. 64-65.

Study chart in Your Foods Book on "Quantities to Serve 20."

EVALUATION

Comments of students regarding quality of foods and ingredients. Practical test on judging of food products.

Test items and general criteria for certain basic food items.

OBJECTIVE

Knows convenience forms of foods for quantity preparation, and their uses. (C-3.00 Application)
The use of convenience forms of foods and ingredients contributes to saving of time, energy and sometimes money.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

- Identify convenience foods which are new on market as of past year.
- Identify and examine cookbooks with a main emphasis on use of convenience foods.
- Explore various uses of five convenience foods.
- Compare difference in time and necessary steps required in making product with convenience forms and the regular forms.

EVALUATION

Practical test involving planning for quality preparation using convenience forms of food.

OBJECTIVE

Understands uses of spices, herbs, and seasonings in quantity food preparation. (C-3.00 Application)

CONTENT

Spices, herbs, and seasoning affect the palatability of foods.

Knowing how to use them contributes to cooking skill.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

- Study spice chart on page 419, Cote.
- Discuss use of spices, herbs, and seasonings in relation to various quantity foods prepared.

EVALUATION

Observe students' use of various seasonings in food preparation in classroom or on job.
III. Temperature in Relation to Quality Products

OBJECTIVE

Understands temperature control in relation to quality products. (C-1.31 Knowledge of principles and generalizations)

CONTENT

Cooking and baking temperatures affect the quality of prepared foods.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Compare quality of products which result when temperatures are increased and decreased.

EVALUATION

Observe students use of temperature controls in food preparation. Pencil and paper test item on the related principle.

IV. Methods of combining ingredients as related to quality products

OBJECTIVES

Is able to use appropriate methods and equipment in combining ingredients. (P-4.00 Mechanism)

Wants to use proper methods of combining ingredients. (A-1.2 Willingness to receive)

CONTENT

The way in which ingredients are combined influences the final product.

Skilled kitchen workers are responsible for applying mixing principles in the selection and use of mixing equipment.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Include experiences in the following in quantity of food preparation:

- creaming
- folding
- whipping
- cutting
- dicing

EVALUATION

Observe students application of techniques of combining ingredients in classroom or on-the-job situations.
V. Use and Care of Equipment

OBJECTIVES

Is skillful in operation of kitchen and dining room equipment. (P-5.1 Resolution of uncertainty)
Voluntarily uses and cares for equipment. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Knowledge of name and use of equipment increases efficient operation.

Multiple uses of equipment increases value of equipment.

The use of and care given to equipment affects its efficiency in operation.

In the development of occupational skill food workers learn to use and care for a variety of equipment, such as:

- safety devices
- deep fat fryer
- grill
- steamer
- stack ovens
- trunnion
- commercial mixer and blenders
- coffee makers
- dishwasher
- ranges
- griddles, skillets, pots, and pans
- small utensils
- cutlery
- salad maker, peelers, food chopper, slicers, meat saws
- toaster
- special counter equipment
- steam tables
- sink, diswasher, conveyor, subveyors, tray trucks (heat tray vaults)
- can openers
- measuring equipment
- broilers
- cabinet cookers
- pancake dispenser
- vischer cooker (used for quick preparation of frozen vegetables)

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Visit large quantity food preparation center. Have manager show equipment and explain uses and care.

Visit quantity foods equipment store, become familiar with latest pieces of equipment, and determine whether expensive in terms of:

- construction
- jobs they do
- frequency of use

Collect trade journals, manufacturer's leaflets, catalogs to locate new types of equipment.

Discuss advantage of purchasing new equipment as replacement for present equipment.

EVALUATION

Pre-test on identification and use of equipment. Regular check to see whether students are caring for equipment properly.
VI. Principles and Methods of Quantity Food Preparation

BEVERAGES

OBJECTIVES

- Comprehends principles involved in beverage making. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
- Knows criteria for evaluating beverages. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
- Is able to prepare a variety of beverages. (C-3.0 Application)
- Voluntarily applies principles involved in beverage preparation. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Coffee is a typical beverage. The flavor of coffee is affected by the variety of beans, the grind, the composition of water used, the cleanliness of coffee maker, the material and type of coffee maker, and the proportions of coffee and water.

The reputation of the food service establishment is influenced by the quality of beverage served.

There is a large variety of beverages as coffee, hot or iced tea, milk, cocoa, carbonated beverages, sodas and milkshakes, and fruit drinks.

The method of preparation depends on the type of beverage. Some basic steps in making a quality beverage product include using clean equipment, fresh ingredients following manufacturer instructions in using equipment, and using proper measuring equipment, and methods.

The use of instant mixes and convenience products have made beverage preparation more efficient.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

- Read and discuss coffee making, p. 16, The Professional Chef.
- Identify which local establishments prepare which type of tastiest beverage.
- List the variety of beverages. Make a master list to include other forms of main beverages. For example with coffee there is café au lait, café noir, French coffee, Turkish coffee.
- Make a scrapbook to include recipes for various types of beverages.
- Students experiment with preparing large and small quantities of various beverages.
- Reports on successes and failures in preparing beverages in training stations. Ask how failures were remedied.
- Visit various establishments--as dairy stands, coffee shoppes, drive-ins--to observe procedures and equipment used in preparing beverages.
- Practice using beverage making equipment at your training station. Report experience to class.
- Reports on instant beverage mixes or other convenience ingredients used in training stations to hasten beverage preparation.
The accepted rule for the serving of beverages in the U.S. is to serve hot beverages hot and cold beverages cold.

References:

The Professional Chef, p. 16.

Your Foods Book, Harris and Withers, pp. 26-29.

EVALUATION

Test items on principles of quantity beverage preparation and criteria for beverages.
Observation of students' applications of principles in training stations or classroom situations.

SAUCES AND GRAVIES

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles involved in preparing sauces and gravies. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Knows criteria for evaluating sauces and gravies. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare a variety of sauces and gravies. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies principles involved in making sauces and gravies. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Knowing how to prepare basic sauces is fundamental to making certain soups, gravies and food combinations.

Sauces add nutritive value to food as well as enhancing flavor and appearance of food.

The two main categories of sauces are warm and cold sauces.

The leading sauces are Brown (Espagnole), Cream (Bechamel), Tomato, Chicken or fish (Velorite) and Hollandaise.

A thickening agent (called Roux) is used in making sauces, soups and gravies.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Discuss uses of sauces. Use references to supplement list of uses of sauces. (Check index of Harris and Withers p. 498 for use of sauces and sauce recipes.)

Make a bulletin board illustrating uses of sauces to enhance appearance; identify nutritive values.

Group sauces on bulletin board into appropriate warm or cold category.

Collect menus from specialty food service establishment. Compare on extent of use of sauces.

Experiment with making popular sauces. For recipes see pages 282-291 of The Professional Chef.
The consistency (thick, medium or thin) of the sauce depends on its use. Discuss products used as Roux as flour, cornstarch, and fat, butter, margarine, meat drippings, etc.

Experience with different thickening agents for sauces.

Read "Pointers on Sauces" p. 124, Your Foods Book.

Distinguish between gravy and sauces.

Experiment with making the main types of gravies. Demonstrate quality product as to color, flavor and consistency.

Experiment with altering seasoning, temperature, time, and cooking procedures. Compare difference in quality of product.

References:

Your Foods Book, Harris and Withers, p. 124.

EVALUATION

Test items on principles of quantity preparation of sauces and gravies. Observation of students' application of principles in training stations or classroom situations.

SOUPS

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles involved in making soup. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Knows criteria for evaluating soups. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare a variety of soups. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies principles involved in soup making. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Stock is the basis for all soups, sauces and some gravies.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Define stock. Visit a food service establishment which has "home made" soup as a specialty. Note the source and handling of stock.
Soups are generally considered to be an appetizer. Define appetizers. View film: "Soups, Sauces, Entrees--The Modern Way."

Soups are of two main types, clear soups and thick soups. Visit grocery store and list soups in stock. Check menus at training station for additional soups.

Film: "Soups, Sauces, Entrees--The Modern Way."

Define garnishes. Experiment with using various garnishes with soups. Be creative; try to discover a new garnish. Make a list of tips for using garnishes, as add croutons at time of serving to maintain crispness and a fresh appearance.

Discuss considerations in determining amount of soup to prepare for various quantity food service situations.

EVALUATION

Test items on generalizations related to preparation and use of soups. Observation of students' skills in preparing soups.

Comprehends principles involved in making appetizers. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Knows criteria for evaluating appetizers. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare a variety of appetizers. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies knowledge in making appetizers. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

There are five basic types of appetizers: cocktails, salads, hors d'oeuvres, canapes, and relishes.

A quality product should reflect proper temperature, fresh appearance, good flavor, attractive amount of garnish, and pleasing texture.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Review meaning of appetizer. Divide into groups and each group use cookbooks and other references to find examples of each of five types of appetizers.

Invite a local person whose specialty is making appetizers to demonstrate her techniques.

Clip magazine and make a collection of ideas for decorating appetizers.
EVALUATION

Test items on types of appetizers, uses, and criteria. Observation of student's application of knowledge of appetizers in classroom or training station.

SALADS AND SALAD DRESSINGS

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles in making salads and salad dressings (C-2.20 Interpretation).
Knows criteria for evaluating salads and salad dressings. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare a variety of salads and dressings. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies principles involved in making salads and dressings. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

The standards for judging a quality salad include:
- Attractive appearance
- Appetizing flavor
- Proper temperature
- Pleasing texture
- Ease of eating

The appeal of a salad is directly related to its appearance. Texture, combination of ingredients, serving temperature and the quality of the dressing all affect satisfaction in eating salads.

There are variety of types of salads, as:
- Gelatin salads
- Vegetable salads
- Fruit salads
- Protein salads, containing cheese, meat, eggs

Salad may be used (served) in a variety of ways, as:
- Appetizers
- Dessert
- Accompaniment
- Main course

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Film: "Salad Preparation," 16mm., 14 min., color. Department of Institution Management, Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York 13210.

Interview customers as to why they selected a specific salad from the menu.

Make at least one type of salad in your training station if possible. Report results to class.

Buzz groups to discover and list examples of ways salads may be used.

Check menus at training stations to note the uses of salads at that particular food service establishment.

Read "Techniques for Successful Salads," The Professional Chef, p. 207.
Salad making usually involves four basic parts, as:

- Base
- Body
- Dressing
- Garnish

Special techniques are essential to a quality product during preparation and after preparation of the salad.

There are many varieties of salad greens and their care and handling is very important. Crispness is a primary quality desired in salad greens.

Salad Dressings

A salad dressing that is pleasing in flavor, color and texture in relation to a particular salad is essential to a quality salad product.

Dressings are of three basic types:

- French
- Mayonnaise
- Cooked

Reference:

- The Professional Chef, p. 235.

Visit a grocery fresh vegetable department to compare differences in salad greens and to note which greens are in season at this time of the year. Collect pictures of different types of salad greens. Have a salad relay. Divide into two groups and as show pictures see which group can identify the greens in the shortest time. The members of each group will rotate.

Salad Dressings

- French
- Mayonnaise
- Cooked

Reference:

- The Professional Chef, p. 235.

Discuss the three types of dressings, their preparation, uses, and criteria for a quality product.

Make a display of each of the three dressings.

Make a tally of selected dressings for a week to identify the favorite dressings offered by your training station.

Discuss factors to consider to determining the amount of salad and dressings to prepare for various situations.
EVALUATION

Test items on principles of salad and salad dressing preparation, uses of salads, and criteria for quality products. Observation of students' skills in preparing salads and salad dressings.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles in preparing vegetables and fruits. (C-2.2 Interpretation) Knows criteria for evaluating vegetable and fruit preparation. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria) Is able to prepare fruits and vegetables in a variety of ways. (C-3.0 Application) Voluntarily applies principles in preparing vegetable and fruit dishes. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Careful selection and proper storage of vegetables and fruits prior to time of preparation will aid in achieving quality products.

Knowledge of preparation procedures will aid in maintaining a pleasing appearance and preserving the nutritive value.

Vegetables and fruits cooked in their skins retain more food value than those cooked by other methods because vitamins and minerals tend to be concentrated directly under the skin.

Quick cooking in a small amount of water preserves appearance, quality and nutritive value of fruit and vegetables. Some loss in color, flavor, and vitamins occurs when vegetables and fruits are kept over a period of time and reheated.

Rapid loss of vitamins occurs when sliced vegetables and fruits are kept at room temperature and exposed to air and light.

Storage and preparation vary for fresh, frozen, pre-prepared and dehydrated fruits and vegetables.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Conduct a survey at your training station to determine the kinds of processed products used (fresh, frozen, etc.) and how techniques of storage and preparation vary. Report results to class.

Teacher or chef demonstrate large quantity preparation of various fruits and vegetables, with emphasis on the principles of preparation. Apply principles of preparation in classroom or training station situation.

Evaluate advantages of each type of processed food, for various types of food service establishments.

Discuss factors to consider in determining the quantity of vegetables and fruit to prepare for various situations.

EVALUATION
Written and practical tests on application of principles of vegetable and fruit preparation.
Test over criteria for quality vegetable and fruit products.
Observation of students' skills in preparing fruits and vegetables in classroom or training station situations.

EGGS

OBJECTIVES
Comprehends principles in egg cookery. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Knows criteria for evaluating egg products. (1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare eggs in a variety of ways. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies principles in egg cookery. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT
Eggs are marketed in various forms for use in food establishments, as.

Shell
Frozen
Dried

There are various ways in which eggs can be prepared:

Soft or hard cooked in the shell
Poached
Shirred
Pan fried Scrambled
Omelet

When a worker knows different methods of preparations, he is better able to satisfy customers.

Special care in purchasing, storing, and preparing is necessary with eggs and egg products.

Low cooking temperature produces tender eggs.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES
Teacher show various forms of eggs and demonstrate uses through preparation of various egg products.

Provide laboratory experiences in preparation of egg dishes.
Mixtures containing milk and eggs are excellent media for the growth of bacteria and require immediate cooking or refrigeration.

A quality egg product has:
- Pleasing color
- Tenderness
- Pleasing flavor
- Pleasing shape and is garnished appropriately

Develop score card for evaluating egg products.

Reference:
Harris and Withers, Your Foods Book, p. 229.

Discuss considerations in determining the quantity of an egg dish to prepare for various situations.

EVALUATION

Written and practical tests on application of principles of vegetable and fruit preparation.
Test over criteria for quality egg products.
Observation of students' skills in preparing egg products.

MEAT, FISH, SEAFOOD AND POULTRY

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles in preparing meat, fish, seafood and poultry. (S.80 Interpretation)
Knows criteria for evaluation of meat, fish, seafood, and poultry preparation. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare meat, fish, seafood and poultry in a variety of ways. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies principles in meat cookery. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Since the flesh of animals, poultry, and fish is similar, principles of meat cooking may be applied to all.

The tenderness of meat is related to its structure, composition, and part of the animal it comes from, and it influences the choice of cooking methods.

There are various ways of cooking meat, fish, and poultry by dry heat, moist heat, and with fat.

Teacher or chef give demonstration of various methods of meat cookery.

Practice various cooking methods for different types of meat.

Teacher or chef give demonstration of various methods of meat cookery.

Practice various cooking methods for different types of meat.
A skilled cook is able to produce quality products by braising, boiling, stewing, broiling, roasting, pan-frying and deep fat frying.

Care and storage of meat, fish, poultry, seafood, prior to preparation period varies for fresh and frozen products.

Mastery of carving techniques enables a worker to provide attractive and uniform servings of meat and poultry.

Familiarity with meat, fish and poultry cuts facilitates the selection of appropriate cooking procedures.

Familiarity with grades of meat and poultry facilitates the selection of appropriate cooking procedures.

The length of cooking time as well as the cooking temperature are important in obtaining a quality fish or seafood product.

Stuffings and dressings for poultry, fish, and meat may serve to enhance flavors, appearance, and texture of the dish.

DESSERTS

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles involved in preparing various types of desserts. (C-2.20 Interpretation)

Knows criteria for evaluating various desserts. (1.24 Knowledge of criteria)

Is able to prepare a variety of desserts. (C-3.0 Application)

Voluntarily uses principles of preparing desserts. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Baked goods may be categorized as desserts. Candies, puddings, frozen desserts, gelatin desserts, and fruits also are included in the category of desserts.

There are many kinds of baked goods which are prepared in food establishments. These include different types of quick breads, yeast breads, cakes, cookies, and pastries.

Baked goods are judged by their appearance, flavor, texture, and tenderness. Producing standard products depends upon methods of combining ingredients as well as quality and proportions of ingredients and baking temperatures. Hence the quality of the product is directly related to the skill of the baker.

Techniques of mixing and baking employed affect the quality of the baked product.

Frostings on baked products enhance taste and appearance of the product.

There are two main types of frostings: cooked and uncooked.

Following certain procedures in preparing a product for frosting contributes to an attractive product:

- Cooling baked goods before removing from pan.
- Brushing away crumbs, etc.

LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Demonstration by baker of products with talk on judging baked goods.

Observe experienced bakers at work in quantity food service establishments.

Cake decorator demonstrates how to ornament baked goods.

Film: "Ornamenting and Decorating Fancy Cakes."

Survey your training station to determine the degree pre-prepared and convenience foods are used. Compare number with desserts made "from scratch."

Interview workers involved in preparation of desserts to obtain their likes and dislikes with respect to pre-prepared and convenience desserts.
Standards of a quality frosting product include:

Attractive color
Pleasing texture (creamy, moist, no sugar crystal)
Stable shape

The number and kinds of desserts served depend upon the type of operation.

Offering a variety of desserts contribute to continued food appeal and sales.

Pre-prepared and convenience desserts have reduced the time and energy required for preparation of desserts.

Frozen desserts include:

- Ice cream
- Sherbet
- Parfait
- Mousse, etc.

Most frozen desserts served in restaurants are based on pre-prepared forms of ice cream or similar products.

EVALUATION

Test over desserts—forms, principles, and criteria for evaluating.
Demonstration of ability to prepare various basic desserts in classroom or training station.
SANDWICHES

OBJECTIVES

Comprehends principles involved in making sandwiches. (C-2.20 Interpretation)
Knows criteria for evaluating sandwiches. (C-1.24 Knowledge of criteria)
Is able to prepare variety of sandwiches. (C-3.0 Application)
Voluntarily applies principles in sandwich making. (A-2.2 Willingness to respond)

CONTENT

Different kinds of breads, fillings and shapes lend variety to sandwiches.

Sandwiches may be prepared a variety of ways, as:

Grilled Toasted
Club Finger Rolled

Spreads, slices of foods as cheese, tomato, etc., and salads may be used as fillings.

Garnishes, care after preparation, and arrangement on the plate affect the appeal of sandwiches.

Time and energy are saved in preparing sandwiches when similar tasks are done together.

Objectives

Is alert to situations in which legal aspects and responsibility may be an important factor for the customer, employee and/or business (A-1.30 Controlled or selected attention).

Is able to apply general knowledge of legal aspects of employment to individualized cases (C-3.00 Application).

Content

Being aware of aspects of a training station or vocational goal which may have legal repercussions may save a great amount of financial and legal entanglement to all concerned.

Promotions may be granted upon qualities of awareness in crucial decision making situations.

Employers are alert for prospective employees who have a sense of legal responsibility.

Learning Experiences

1. Study court cases which deal with the legality of a situation involving customer, employee and/or business. Discuss alternatives to the decision made, as well as reasons for the decision made.

2. What are the implications of the law as they affect the customer, employee, business? Discuss.

3. Study government regulations regarding fabrics, consumer buying, price index, standardization (such as patterns), etc.

Teaching Aids

Books

Wilhelms and Heimerl, Consumer Economics.

Evaluation

List five laws affecting clothing-related business and/or industry. Discuss each regarding the implications for employee and consumer.

Objectives

Evaluates and judges a person's size and/or measurements by examination (C-5.00 Synthesis).

Interprets communication regarding a description of a third person with respect to coloring, size, etc. (C-2.20 Interpretation).

Evaluates and estimates alterations required in garment or pattern (C-4.20 Analysis of relationships).
Ability to be perceptive in judging sizes is an asset in salesmanship.

1. Divide into small groups. Ask students to estimate the other's size. Compare to actual sizes of students. Discuss discrepancies.

2. Show several pictures of ill-fitting garments and ask that the students verbally describe alterations necessary.

3. Have students bring to class a garment which does not fit. Have the class describe alterations, then alter the clothing.

4. Evaluate the quality of alterations using polaroid camera (before vs. after).

5. Divide into two's. Each pair then describes to each other from memory a third person for the purpose of buying a particular garment for the third party. The one describing evaluates how closely the other comes to assisting in estimating the size, etc., of the third person.

Teaching Aids

Standardized pattern charts.

Pictures of ill-fitting garments.

Camera.

Charts

"How to determine your proper pattern size," Butterick and Vogue.

Evaluation

Evaluate the quality of alterations using camera (before vs. after) as one measure of change.

Objective

Is able to apply mathematical concepts to occupational tasks involving figures, money, measurements, etc. (C-3.00 Application).
Content

Many clothing-related occupations necessitate knowledge and application of mathematical concepts.

Exacting measuring techniques and ability to handle figures and money, such as making change, increase profit to the employer and customer.

Learning Experiences

1. Solve mathematical problems which might occur in clothing-related occupations:
   b. Alteration of a pattern or garment.
   c. Matching fabric, pattern, and figure (increased yardage due to design structure).
   d. Making change.
   e. Pricing portions of a yard of fabric and tax charts.
   g. Studying the sizing of garments.

2. Employment in clothing-related occupations using mathematical concepts.

Teaching Aids

Material to match (plaid, stripes, etc.).

Play money and real cash register.

Fabric price chart.

Tax chart.

Old patterns.

Charts

Curtain and drapery yardage charts (see Teaching Aids).

Evaluation

Written test over mathematical concepts applied to responsibilities and tasks in clothing-related occupations.

Objective

Knowledge that societal changes affect attitudes toward textiles and clothing (C-2.20 Interpretation).

Content

Trends in society are reflected in our attitudes toward textiles and clothing.

Learning Experiences

1. Students select magazine pictures of trends in society today and discuss how the trend is reflected in clothing or fabric featured in the example.
Content  Learning Experiences

2. Individual students or small groups research a portion of history to define the trends and roles of persons of that particular era. Discuss these influences upon the mode of fashion.

Teaching Aids

Old magazines.

Filmstrips

Historical Highlights and Contemporary Clothes, McCall's.
Season's Fashions, Sears, Roebuck and Company.

Books

Lester and Kerr, Historical Costume.

Evaluation

Relate trends in fashion and clothing in various historical periods.
Draw comparisons of past historical clothing trends with those of the 20th century.

Objectives

Distinguishes between fad and fashion in clothing and textiles (C-2.20 Interpretation).

Values the positive aspects of fads and fashion (A-3.1 Acceptance of a value).

Forms judgments about the role of each in society and implications for the clothing and textile industry, as well as the consumer (C-4.00 Analysis).

Content  Learning Experiences

Ability to distinguish between fad and fashion enhances one's ability to make wise decisions when discussing or buying clothes or textiles.

1. Ask students to define, in their own words, fad and fashion.

2. Discuss the distinguishing characteristics of each.

Changes in demands placed upon society influences leisure time and occupational-type clothing.

3. Draw implications for employees who deal with these two concepts on the job.

4. Find examples of each among those present in the classroom that day. Discuss.
Content-learning-experiences

5. Students may debate the issue of fad and fashion as it applies to various age groups, socioeconomic classes, and/or peer groups.

Teaching Aids

Pictorial

Examples of fad and fashion presently in Vogue.

Filmstrips

Season's Fashions, Sears, Roebuck and Company.

Evaluation

Students choose a current fashion from a preselected list and discuss its implications for society and society's effect on it.
Objectives

Knows the principles of design and color (C-1.31, Knowledge of principles and generalizations) and terminology used (C-1.11, Knowledge of terminology).

Translates the principles of design and color into the specific occupational questions encountered on a job (C-3.00, Application).

Applies the principles of design and color to particular and concrete situations in clothing-related occupations (C-3.00, Application).

Analyzes a garment, design, fabric and knows the principles of design and color involved (C-4.30, Analysis of organizational principles).

Synthesizes aspects of pattern, clothing, fabric and textiles into a completed coordinated outfit (C-5.00, Synthesis).

Effectively communicates to customers essential information regarding the principles of design and color as applicable to an existing situation (C-5.10, Production of a unique communication).

Appraises the use of the principles (C-6.00, Evaluation).

Content

Understanding of and ability to apply principles of design and color may contribute toward preparation in clothing-related occupations.

Effective use of the psychological aspects of design and color contributes toward becoming an effective sales person.

Learning Experiences

1. Study principles of design and color.

2. Use pictures, slides, graphic examples of fabric, clothing, patterns, furniture, curtains for discussion of the application and effectiveness of the principles of design and color.

3. Students bring in examples or pictures of clothing fads. Discuss fads in relationship to design.

4. Using several lengths of material, ask that students drape a model, applying principles of design.

5. Employment in clothing-related occupation using these concepts.

6. Analyze pictorial examples of fabrics, clothing, textiles. Discuss the contributing principles of design and color.

7. Evaluate a particular ensemble for a:
   - short, stocky person
   - tall, slender person
   - young teenager
   - women with large hips
   - and other particular problems

- Fredericks Company (Color Wheel).

Evaluation
State the principles of design and color.
Analyze garments and outfits in terms of application of the principles of design and color.
Plan an outfit applying the principles.
Tell class how principles were applied.

Objectives
Is familiar with characteristics of textiles (C-1.12, Knowledge of specific facts).
Becomes aware of recent trends in textiles (C-1.12, Knowledge of specific facts).
Applies knowledge of textiles in selection of fabrics, clothing, patterns, and sewing techniques necessary in many clothing-related occupations (C-3.00, Application)

Content
Knowledge of textiles assists the employee in being an effective salesman and contributes to customer satisfaction.

Learning Experiences
1. Review fabric and textile samples by identifying characteristics of each.
Research in clothing and textile results in continually adding to and replacing natural and man-made fibers.

Knowledge of the latest textile research can enable the employee more effectively to represent his merchandise.

Fabric and garment labels aid in determining characteristics one may expect of the fabric or garment.

Analyze patterns and determine suitable fabric. Give reasons.

Analyze fabrics and state possible uses or find suitable patterns. Give reasons.

Objectives

Knows terms associated with sewing (C-1.11, Knowledge of terminology).

Applies clothing construction techniques to sewing tasks which may be found in clothing-related occupations (C-3.00, Application).

Possesses skill in operation of sewing equipment (P-4.00, Mechanism).

Content

Application of garment construction techniques may be useful in most clothing related occupations.

Skill in the operation of sewing equipment can broaden one's on-the-job skills.

Employability in a clothing-related occupation may be increased through knowledge and skill of sewing construction techniques.

Alterations is a highly technical skill built upon standard sewing construction skills.

Being able to identify fitting and styling problems and to have the skill necessary to make alterations is important for some clothing-related occupations.

Learning Experiences

1. Study an application of construction techniques on a simulated job project.
2. Observe industrial sewing machinery in operation in a factory.
3. Operate sewing equipment in class.
4. Study pattern, guide sheet, pattern envelope as construction aids.
5. Students remodel an ill-fitting or out-of-date garment.
6. Visit a sewing center to become further acquainted with use of attachments through demonstration.
7. Employment in a clothing-related occupation using construction knowledge and skill.

Evaluation

Test over sewing terminology.

Practical tests over use of sewing equipment and sewing techniques.

Take "before" and "after" snapshots of altered garment. Students can devise an evaluation instrument to apply to project.

Objectives

Becomes aware of power machinery used in industrial sewing (C-2.00, Comprehension).

Develops some skill in operating power machinery used in industrial sewing (P-4: Mechanism).

Content

Having an acquaintance and some skill in using power sewing equipment may enhance one's chances of securing employment in clothing-related occupations.

Learning Experiences

1. Experiment on power sewing equipment after adequate instruction, including demonstrations. (If departmental equipment is not available, some agreement with industry may be possible in order that students have some exposure to equipment.)

Evaluation
Written exam covering tailoring terms and techniques.
Performance in tailoring operations.

Objectives
Is aware of clothing care techniques of dry cleaning, laundry processes, storage (C-2.00, Comprehension).

Is aware of stain removal techniques or sources of information for such (C-3.00, Application) and (C-1.12, Knowledge of specific facts).

Examines a variety of stain removal techniques (C-3.00, Application).

Values effective use of stain removal techniques (A-3.0 Valuing).

Content
The care given clothing affects the appearance, longevity, and wearability of a garment.

Techniques used in clothing care have a direct effect upon the garment's appearance.

Removing stains immediately with the most effective method contributes to the lifetime of the garment.

Clothing care results in savings in money, time, and energy.

Type of clothing care is determined by the fiber, finish, and construction.

Skill in the maintenance of clothing offers additional opportunity for wage earning.

Learning Experiences
1. Visit dry cleaners in operation, have operator give a description of the processes.
2. Visit commercial laundry and a self-service dry cleaning establishment, including a tour with full information about the processes involved.
3. Study and discuss stain removal.
4. Experiment with common stains and the best methods for removing. Use home and industry techniques.
5. Compare laundry and dry cleaning establishments for methods used, cost, convenience, quality of work, amount of time involved.
6. Employment in a laundry or dry-cleaning firm.

Teaching Aids

Books
Commercial stain removers.
Equipment and clothing stains to experiment upon in lab.

Charts

Purex Corporation, Ltd. (Stain Removal).
Lever Brothers Company (Stain Removal).

Evaluation

Discuss the contributions of each.
Commercial laundry and dry cleaners.
Self-service laundry and dry cleaners.

Demonstrate stain removal techniques.

Performance on the job in laundry or dry-cleaning establishment.

Objectives

Develops skill in operation of pressing equipment (P-5.00, Complex overt response)

Applies effective pressing techniques to garments (C-3.00, Application)

Content

Application of effective pressing results in increased customer satisfaction.

Pressing techniques are related to fabric and construction of garment.

Learning Experiences

1. Visit dry cleaners, or garment factory. Observe pressing technique used.

2. Observe a demonstration of pressing by a resource person, such as a dry-cleaner's presser.

3. Experiment with pressing techniques on various fabrics to determine the effect of the pressing technique on the fabric.

4. Employment in a business or home using pressing equipment.

Teaching Aids

Pressing equipment

Pamphlets

Advance Pattern Company, Inc.

Evaluation

Evaluate a poorly pressed garment, painting out improvements needed and ways to accomplish improved results.

Performance in pressing operations on the job.
Objectives

Develops techniques in handling storage and packing of clothing (P-4.0, Mechanism).

Content

Organization in clothing storage may enhance the attractiveness and lifetime of garments.

Learning Experiences

1. Gather garments and accessories which are commonly used in travel. Pack and repack in a suitcase. Evaluate effective packing procedures.

2. Discuss seasonal storage of clothing.

3. Have dry cleaner show how seasonal clothing is stored in his establishment.

4. Compare home storage as contrasted to commercial storage (cost, convenience).

5. Employment in occupation using these skills.

Teaching Aids

Suitcase.

Clothes which might be packed for travel.

Products used in seasonal storage of clothing (moth balls, crystals, etc.).

Evaluation

Each student packs the suitcase. Let set overnight. Evaluate the unpacked clothing for wrinkles.

Discuss the role of fabric finishes, packing techniques as part of the evaluation process.

Performance in clothing storage operations on the job.

Objective

Knowledge of trade and professional organizations (C-1.12, Knowledge of specific facts).

Content

Trade and professional organizations contribute to high standards in the profession and the advancement of the field.

Learning Experiences

1. Study purposes of the following organizations:
   - American Association of Textiles Chemists and Colorists
Content

Learning Experiences

American Home Laundry Manufacturer's Association
American Institute of Interior Design
American Laundry Institute
National Cotton Council of America
National Dry Cleaning Institute
American Home Economic Association
Consumer's Research Institute
Unions (Labor)

Teaching Aides

Books

Peterson. American Labor Unions.

Evaluation

Debate the pros and cons of Unions and local employee's organization.

Compare contributions to the field of clothing and textiles of various professional organizations listed.

Objective

Acceptance of ethical practices in clothing field (A-3.0, Valuing).

Content

Ethical practices contribute both to professional reputation and to personal growth and an acceptable self-concept.

Learning Experiences

1. Employer with excellent reputation for ethical standards and practices discusses the ethics of the clothing occupations with students.

Evaluation

Performance on the job with respect to ethical practices.

Objectives

Is aware of additional training or schooling beyond that required for entry-level positions and where this additional training may lead (C-2.30, Extrapolation).

Is aware of possibilities for expansion of clothing-related occupations in the coming decades (C-2.30, Extrapolation).

Content

Being aware of training requirements beyond what is required for entry-level positions contributes toward the overall planning toward an occupational or career goal.

Learning Experiences

1. Survey industry, business, educational facilities for formal training required for progressing beyond entry-level positions.
Learning Experiences

2. Visit industry and business where such training experiences exist.

4. Invite parents for conference and/or class session with speaker to expand their knowledge of the fields opening up which their child may choose as a career.
