The publication contains 400 titles of 16mm films, filmstrips, tapes, recordings and slides pertaining to guidance. These audio-visual materials are classified according to the following categories: (1) family life; (2) personal-social development; (3) careers; (4) personal-social problems; and (5) education. Family life focuses on family, and the role of the individual parent and/or child in contributing to family living. Personal-social development contains a listing of films which deal with the development of growing children and adolescents. In the Careers category, the materials deal with the world of work. Personal-social problems emphasize problems of the individual and society, and possible solutions. The final category, education, includes these topics: changing educational needs, role of teachers, school financing, tools in teaching, special education, discipline and learning. The audio-visual aids are further subdivided according to age groups which include: (1) primary-elementary; (2) junior-senior; (3) senior college-adult; and (4) college adult. Available evaluations of the listed films are reproduced. Also included in this annotated bibliography are cost, length, year produced and color qualities of each listing. (Author/MC)

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We would like to thank everyone who contributed time or materials toward our compilation. We owe a great debt of gratitude to the Educational Film Library Association for permission to reprint film evaluations by association members and to the Vocational Guidance Quarterly for permission to reprint their film evaluations. We feel that these evaluations give a unique and helpful dimension to the publication.

We are especially grateful to the following: Arnold Luce, Director, Robert Anderson and Mary Spelios of the Audio-Visual Unit of the Minnesota Department of Education; Ruth Ersted, State Supervisor of School Libraries, and her school library staff of the Minnesota Department of Education; and the staff of the Film Library of the Minnesota Department of Public Welfare.

For their invaluable assistance we wish to thank Erwin Welke, Former Director; Willard D. Phillipson, Director; William J. Price, Assistant Director; and Donald Monson, Librarian, and their Audio-Visual Extension Service staff of the University of Minnesota; and Dr. Donald Tucker of Northeastern University.

We are also grateful to the Arts and Audio-Visual Services of the Saint Paul Public Library, to the Visual Aids Department of the Minneapolis Public Library and to the Minneapolis Public Schools' Audio-Visual Department.

We wish to thank the Audio-Visual Departments of the Armed Services in both Minneapolis and St. Paul. We are grateful to the White Bear Lake Public Schools for use of their material and to all of the other agencies and film companies for their cooperation.

INTRODUCTION

AN ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY AND A DIRECTORY

This publication contains approximately 4,000 titles of 16mm films, filmstrips, tapes, recordings and slides related to guidance, most of these available from one or more of the thirty-six identified sources in Minnesota.

Guidance, which is concerned with the total development of personality, very naturally cuts across many lines. This explains in part the five major categories in which the audio-visual materials have been placed. These categories include: FAMILY LIFE; PERSONAL-SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT; CAREERS; PERSONAL-SOCIAL PROBLEMS, and EDUCATION.

The audio-visual aids are also classified according to age groups for recommended use. These groups or levels include: PRIMARY-ELEMENTARY (PE); JUNIOR-SENIOR (JS); SENIOR-COLLEGE-ADULT (SCA); and COLLEGE-ADULT (CA). Many films can be used at more than one level, however, and are so noted in the table of contents. The recommended age group is in boldface type.

In order to provide additional information about the value of a film, permission was received from the Educational Film Library Association (EFLA) to reproduce the reviews of the films by the evaluators where available. In cases where EFLA evaluations were available they are noted with an asterisk (*) in the table of contents and are reproduced in full under the appropriate category.

USING THE GUIDE

If the user is familiar with a title, it may be located by scanning the alphabetical listing in the table of contents. Following the title is age group, category, EFLA review (if available) and page number.

If the user wishes to check the audio-visual materials available on a specific subject, one may scan the titles under the category related to the subject where material is desired. This should be done for all audio-visual listings — films — filmstrips — tapes — recordings — and slides. It is recommended that two or three categories be checked since films under one category could in many cases have been placed under another. This was particularly true of films under Family Life and Personal-Social listings.

Once a film has been selected as related to the topic of interest, it is necessary also to check in the table of contents or in the listing itself to see if the film is recommended for the audience for which the film is intended. Many times a film may be used with more than one age group and is so noted.

In cases where EFLA reviews are listed, additional information is provided to help the user make a decision regarding the selection of appropriate materials.

DESCRIPTION OF CATEGORIES

Personal-Social Development

This group of materials consists of films dealing with the development of growing children and adolescents. Topics include: conscience, citizenship, emotions, body growth, dating, group discussion, communications, human relations, leisure, and decision-making.

Family-Life

These materials focus on the family in general and on the role of the individual, parents and/or child, in contributing to wholesome family living.

Careers

Audio-Visual materials found here are concerned with the world of work: occupations; fields of work such as science, art, etc.; and other aids, (training in selling, for example) reveal information about the work role the individual would be expected to play in that specific occupation. Some general materials concerned with job seeking and the job interview are also included in this group.

Personal-Social Problems

The emphasis in this group is upon the nature of problems of the individual and society, and on approaches to treatment. Topics here include these: alcoholism, crime, delinquency, civil rights, housing, human relations and mental illness.

Education

This is a broad general group of materials dealing with many phases of the field of education. Typical topics include these: changing educational needs, role of teachers, school financing, tools in teaching, special education, discipline and learning.

A NOTE ABOUT THE MINNESOTA SOURCES:

In order to acquire a film or tape from one of the sources, it is necessary to comply with the rules and procedures which have been established by the various agencies and institutions. The specific policies of the larger agencies are noted on pp. vii-xiv. These procedures include information regarding booking, paying the fees, ordering and returning the materials.
THE CLASSROOM FILM IN GUIDANCE & COUNSELING

ARNOLD LUCE

The sound motion picture film is one of the most effective teaching tools that man has invented. It can convey ideas, influence attitudes, stimulate emotions, teach skills and give general information better than any other single medium which we have developed so far in education. Any one or all of these attributes can operate only when the film is used at the right time, in the right place and is accompanied by good preparation for its use, as well as effective follow-up teaching.

The effective teaching film allows the learner a maximum of personal identification with the situation recorded in sound and motion. The experience it re-creates may be only slightly removed from actual first-hand observation or participation. Teachers are becoming more and more aware of the true contribution of the teaching-film in improving instruction.

Selection:

The most effective way to select films is to preview them and determine if the content is suitable to convey the idea which it is desired to teach. There are hundreds of films in the area of guidance and counseling but perhaps only a select few which would be appropriate to use in teaching a certain concept to a given age group. There is no substitute for previewing.

When previewing a film, notes should be taken on subject matter content, quality of production, relevancy of subject matter, vocabulary of the narration and specific uses of the film. Teaching guides, or study manuals which accompany the film (upon request) are most useful in getting advance information on the film’s contents and its teaching value.

Preparation of Students:

Much of the film’s potential effectiveness is found in the way it is introduced into the classroom. The teacher can help to arouse an interest in seeing the film by stimulating questions which he knows can be answered by the film. A definite purpose for using the film should be established in the minds of the students.

Showing of the Film:

This should take place in a classroom learning situation, not a movie theater. Physical conditions such as seating arrangement, light control, temperature, and good projection, should all be favorable.

Follow-up:

As soon as the showing is completed, it should be determined whether or not the objectives have been met; that is, have the questions about the subject matter of the film been answered. If there are still unanswered questions, then the film should be run again. Discussion should follow the showing of the film to give the students the opportunity to develop ideas brought out by the film. Related reading and written reports are discussed at this time.

The motion picture can give an understanding of relationships of things, ideas, and events and can make meaning emerge where there was no meaning before.

RULES AND PROCEDURES FOR BORROWING AUDIO-VISUAL MATERIALS FROM SELECTED SOURCES

AUDIO-VISUAL EXTENSION SERVICE
UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

GENERAL INFORMATION

These films are presented to help meet the educational and training needs of business, education, industry and religion. We encourage that consideration be given for selection and utilization of titles from this collection to accommodate community programs.

Purposes of the Department of Audio-Visual Extension

The educational resources of the University of Minnesota deposited in this library have been selected on the basis of their potential contribution to the major purposes of extension education. These purposes are: (1) to provide a sound collection of films, tapes, and other resources for business, industry, schools and religion, (2) to meet the needs of adult groups within the state for information, discussion and appreciation in their continuing education programs, (3) to provide educational resources for junior colleges, colleges and university instructional and research uses, and (4) to provide educational institutions with a large resource of educational materials for curricular and student activities. The materials deposited in this resource center have been selected on the basis of their potential contribution to the appreciation, information and skills that are sought by users.

Comprehensiveness is recognized as a valuable criterion in judging the adequacy and quality of the resource collection. Particular effort has been made by the staff to select educational material to meet this criterion. Materials in a wide range of content areas, approaches, treatments and types are represented. Continued selection and growth of the resource center will improve its comprehensive nature and quality. Continued growth and expansion will improve the contribution the resources may make to the needs of the user. Special effort is made to include films and tapes in a wide range so that the materials may serve the proper maturation level, subject level, methodology and other approaches to instruction.

In an effort to evaluate the collection's adequacy in meeting its stated purposes, the staff of the Department of Audio-Visual Extension invites users' reactions and suggestions concerning the educational resources listed in the catalog and the manner in which they have been presented.

Highly scientific and professional films have been added to the library's collection recently. An effort will be made to add more specialized material to meet the needs of continuing education for adult groups in the future. To be successful in meeting the needs resulting from changes in modern science, interaction with potential users in relation to needs is necessary and welcomed.

Who May Use the Services of the Department of Audio-Visual Extension

Educational material resources listed in this bulletin may be used by an institution or organization in accordance with the service policies stated in this bulletin. Materials have been made available to contribute toward the needs of individual learning necessary in business, education, industry and religion.

Persons who represent churches, business, labor unions, personnel and training directors, hospitals, nurses training, etc., are invited to review the materials held in this collection for use in their programs.

Professional Services

The Department of Audio-Visual Extension has made an effort to expand professional services available to the people within the University of Minnesota's community service area. School administrators, directors of audio-visual activities, teachers, directors of personnel and training, industrial training groups, nurses, and other professional groups are invited to solicit assistance in the selection, utilization and administration of programs utilizing an audio-visual approach from this organization.

The Department of Audio-Visual Extension publishes an Audio-Visual Journal containing information about new materials available within the department's educational resource collection as well as other new information and trends in educational media and materials. The staff of this department will plan and conduct in-service audio-visual conferences and workshops for any group in the state upon an invitation from the administrative officer of the institution or system. Arrangements for this service may be made by contacting the director of the department.

Call Number

Each film in this catalog has a call number (e.g. 4F0368). It is important, for rapid processing, that you include this number in your order.

Grade Classification of Films

Although many films can be used for different purposes at different grade levels, symbols have been placed at the end of the description of the film to indicate recommended grade level at which the film can be used most effectively.

Caring for Films

Service to all borrowers is better when some basic rules are followed in utilization. These rules if followed will also result in providing a longer life for educational resource materials. They are as follows:

1. Use only trained efficient operators and keep projectors in good clean condition.
2. Use the leader when threading the projector. Check the projector to insure that it is properly threaded. Be alert when you begin to run the projector.

3. If the picture is not projecting properly, stop the projector immediately, make necessary adjustments and then proceed. If the problem still exists, stop, then call for help.

4. If the film breaks, do not use scotch tape, pins, paper clips, or staples to repair it. Overlay the ends on the take-up reel and continue the showing. If proper splicing equipment is available and the damage is restricted to one or two frames the user may make necessary splices.

5. Never use a rental film for practice. If practice film footage is needed the service will supply it on request without additional charge.

6. Stay with your projection equipment at all times during showing. With proper caution films need never be damaged beyond normal wear.

7. Keep your projection equipment clean. Before your film is threaded, the aperture plate, pressure plate and sprockets must be clean to prevent the accumulation of dirt and other particles such as emulsion in the film channel and around the sprocket teeth. A strip of cloth and a solvent is excellent for this purpose. The accumulation of dirt causes scratches on the film.

Following the seven basic rules cited above, the general condition of educational material distributed from this collection will retain its general technical quality. Your cooperation is solicited.

For All Schools

Order Forms: Standard order forms are available upon request. They save time and order processing by our staff. However, letter and telephone orders are accepted and will receive fair and prompt attention. Remember—always show call number on order form.

Returning Materials: Delayed return of materials disrupts programs, creates ill will with the next scheduled user and results in extra expense for this facility in distributing materials. This may be avoided if you will routinely return films no later than the morning following the last use date. Return and/or due dates are indicated on your confirmation and packing slip. A penalty charge will be made for late returns.

Preview Facilities: If desired, previewing of material from the collection may be accomplished by visiting this department. To insure availability of the facility it is best to reserve it in advance as well as the films or other material you wish to preview.

Materials Description: The materials in the catalog are described and listed alphabetically. Color prints are identified by the word color. Black and white prints do not have an indication. Silent films are indicated as such. Maturation level is shown at the end of the description for each listing. A subject index is provided for easy reference.

SERVICE POLICIES

RULES AND REGULATIONS

In order to provide economical, efficient, and equitable audio and visual service, it is important that the user become acquainted with the service policies of the Audio-Visual Extension Service. The borrower of materials must agree to follow the rules, directions, and restrictions as stated in the bulletin for ordering, using, handling and returning films, tapes, etc. and to pay accumulated charges upon receipt of invoice as follows:

1. To pay the RENTAL FEE or HANDLING CHARGE indicated in the bulletin for each film booked unless cancellation is received at least three (3) days prior to shipping date. There is NO RENTAL CHARGE FOR TRANSPORTATION TIME to and from the borrower.

2. To pay ADDITIONAL RENTAL CHARGE FOR EXTRA USE beyond the basic booking period (one-five calendar days) at the rate of one-half (½) the basic rental fee for each extra day's use. Special rates for booking longer than three days are available. Permission for extended schedule must be acquired in advance. All films will be booked for three consecutive days unless a longer period is requested.

3. To pay TRANSPORTATION COST BOTH WAYS. (Generally Library Materials Rate)

4. To pay for LOSS OR DAMAGE to materials on loan while in the possession of user and loss in transit back to the center.

5. To pay a DAMAGE INSURANCE and COMPUTER SCHEDULING FEE. The user will be charged fifteen cents per film title used. This amount is added to the rental at the time of billing. This fee takes care of damage which might occur when the film is in the user's possession. All films whose damage consists of (25) twenty-five feet or more will be paid for by the user. This charge will be in addition to the regular damage fee. The following charges will be made: 10 to 20 cents per foot for a black and white print and 25 to 55 cents per foot for a color print. This is the cost for replacement footage. Notification of excessive damage as defined above will be made after inspection and the replacement footage charge will appear on the customer's next monthly invoice. All cancellations will be charged this fee to cover computer service.

6. To pay LATE RETURN FEE at the regular rental rate (basic fee) for each day a film is kept longer than the period for which it was originally booked.

7. To return films promptly, not later than the morning following the final scheduled showing date, or to obtain permission by prepaid wire or telephone call to keep films longer if additional use is necessary.

8. To abide by the following basic RESTRICTIONS:
   a. NOT to loan to other groups, organization, or individuals without permission from the Director, Department of Audio-Visual Extension.
   b. Not to charge admission for showing films.
   c. Not to charge directly or indirectly for films DISTRIBUTED BY TEACHING FILM CUSTODIANS and agree to show each film as produced in its entirety.
   d. Not to use any films on television without the producer's clearance. The University of Minnesota does not assume television clearance responsibility.

9. To return all films on original reels, in same can and shipping container in which they were received.

10. METHOD OF PAYMENT—all checks must be made payable to the UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA. Stamps in any amount will not be accepted for payment. Payment is due on receipt of University invoice.

11. OVERDUE RETURN SHIPMENTS: The University reserves the right to make collect long distance telephone calls or to send collect telegrams regarding the return of films that are overdue. Refusal to accept collect telegrams or telephone calls may result in loss of borrowing privileges. In any case, charges will be added to next invoice.

12. CANCELLATIONS OF CHARGES

   a. No cancellations of charges will be made for films booked after shipment has left the service. No cancellations of charges will be made for films which have been ordered to be picked up at the service if the user fails to call for them unless the service is notified in advance. School officials should consult their calendars for SCHOOL HOLIDAYS. Charges will not be cancelled for films booked and shipped for use on such days.

   b. Charges will not be cancelled if the post office or express company fails to deliver on time when sufficient time was allowed for the films to arrive at their destination. Date on metered stamp indicates the way the materials were sent.

MINNEAPOLIS PUBLIC LIBRARY

Visual Aids Department

Rules for Borrowing 16mm Films — Effective July 1, 1966

Collection

16mm educational films, sound and silent, with running time from 10 minutes to an hour, are available for loan.

Films are circulated only from the Visual Aids Department, and must be returned directly to the Visual Aids Department. They may not be returned through the Minneapolis or Hennepin County branch libraries.

Registration

Borrowers must register in person in the Visual Aids Department for the borrowing of films before reservations may be made. The person registering must have his own Minneapolis Public Library card. A person listed on a firm card as one entitled to borrow films for firm or organization use may register and borrow films on that card. While loans are made to individuals listed on firm cards, the card holder is held responsible for the materials charged on the card.

Parents or guardians must countersign in person for minors under 16. Parents or guardians must sign the form 'Parent's Acknowledgment of Responsibility' for minors between the ages of 16 and 21.

Reservations

ONLY REGISTERED FILM BORROWERS MAY RESERVE FILMS. Films are reserved for the day on which they are to be borrowed—not for the day on which they are to be used. They may be reserved for overnight (single booking) or for two nights (double booking). They are due back on the next day the Library is open. Films should be reserved well in advance of use.

Patrons are requested to make reservations before 8:30 p.m. on Monday through Thursday, and before 5 p.m. on Friday, for material to be borrowed on the day the reservation is made. Material to be borrowed on Saturday must be reserved before 5 p.m. on Friday. NO RESERVATIONS MAY BE MADE ON SATURDAY FOR THAT DAY OR FOR ANY FUTURE DAY.

Film Pickup

Films already reserved may be called for on: Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. In checking out films, the Library card of the registered film borrower who has reserved the films must be used.

Use of Films

Borrowers of films must provide their own qualified projectionists and a 16mm projector. Care should be taken to use a projector that will not injure the film. DO NOT USE SOUND FILM ON A SILENT PROJECTOR. Do not mend broken film with cellophane or other adhesive tapes. All films are inspected before lending. It is expected that they will be returned in good condition.

Films MUST NOT BE REWOUND after the last time shown. The Visual Aids Department provides the necessary spare 'pick-up' reels. Care should be taken to use the right size 'pick-up' reel and to return films in their correct cans.

Service Charges and Fines

A service charge is made, payable in advance, of 25c per reel for each sound films, and 25c for one or two silent films, for either a single or a double booking. There is an additional charge of $3.00 per program of 90 minutes, or fraction thereof, for films borrowed on a NON-RESIDENT LIBRARY CARD. To insure the return of films for future bookings, a fine of 50c is charged for each overdue film returned before 10 a.m. on the day that it is due, with the fine increasing 25c an hour, or fraction thereof, until the film is returned to the Visual Aids Department. If a reserved film is not called for, or if the reservation is not cancelled the day before the reservation date, the service charge of 25c per reel for each sound film, or 25c for one or two silent films, is made.

Borrowers are responsible for damage beyond simple breaks and will be charged for the cost of repair and replacement.

Please cooperate with us in the observance of these rules, which are necessary in making our service available to our many users. Failure to cooperate may result in the withdrawal of the privilege of borrowing from the Visual Aids Department.

MINNEAPOLIS PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Instructional motion pictures which are available only from the Film Library of the Minneapolis Public Schools may be borrowed for classroom instructional use—but may not be used on open or closed circuit television—subject to prior booking commitments within the Minneapolis Public School system.

Audio-Visual Department

Minneapolis Board of Education
THE SAINT PAUL PUBLIC LIBRARY

The first requirement for taking 16mm film from the Saint Paul Public Library is the possession of an adult Saint Paul Public Library card. To obtain the free 5-year card one must (1) live, (2) work, (3) go to school, or (4) own property within the city limits of St. Paul. If you do not fulfill any of these four requirements, you may obtain a non-resident pay card, for which there is a fee of $5.00 a year.

In addition to ownership of an adult Saint Paul Public Library card, 16 mm film borrowers sign a film service agreement in person at the Film Desk in Arts and Audio-Visual Services at the Central Library.

Our 16mm films are picked up one day in Arts and Audio-Visual Services and returned there the next day, during the hours the Library is open. We do not have a mailing service.

The 16mm catalog is free to registered borrowers, 25c to others.

We lend for use in St. Paul Public Schools, only if the films are not owned by the St. Paul Department of Education.

There is a charge of $3.00 per program of one hour or fraction thereof, payable in advance, for film to be used in schools or colleges outside the city limits of St. Paul.

- Easter — Three weeks preceding and including Easter

Booking Procedures
Reservations may be made by letter or phone as far in advance as possible. Please give alternate titles and dates. When possible, materials will be sent out from five to six days ahead of the showing date.

Late Orders
Extra postage will be charged against your account for late orders requiring special handling, special delivery, first class, or bus delivery.

Late Return
It is expected that all materials will be brought in or mailed the day following their use. If not back in the library five days after the reservation date, an additional fee of 50c per day will be charged. In case a long distance phone call is required, your account will be charged for the call.

Projector
A Motion Picture Projector is available for use only at the Protestant Center. Rental fee is $2.00. $5.00 will be charged if the librarian is asked to operate the machine. Bookings should be made with the Audio-Visual Librarian.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Our 16mm sound films are available to schools and organizations at a rental fee of $3.00 per film. The approximate running time for each is between 24 and 28 minutes. They may be rented for a period of two days. If the film is not returned within that time, an additional fee will be charged.

When ordering films please give two dates, preferred and alternate, as the schedule during the school year is heavy.
INSTRUCTIONS FOR USING THE TAPES FOR TEACHING SERVICE

1. Our catalog is being published to list programs which have been added to the tape library since the 1957 Tapes For Teaching catalog (red) and the 1961 Supplement (white) were published. Be sure to destroy the above named catalogs as they are no longer useful because of the change of code numbers. Many new programs have been added to the library and those programs are listed in this catalog.

2. Your Audio-Visual Director or Coordinator will assist you in making up your order.

3. Tape should be mailed in a fiber mailing case. These cases are available from your audio-visual dealer.

4. Enclose with the tape a self-addressed label bearing the correct return postage. The postage for audio-visual materials is 4 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound. Be sure to mark your package of tape "LIBRARY RATE" when using this special postal rate for mailing audio-visual educational materials.

5. Enclose your order in a stamped first-class envelope, enclose or attach it securely to the mailing case to comply with the U.S. postal regulations, or mail separately.

6. Mail tape prepaid to:

   TAPES FOR TEACHING
   Department of Education
   Centennial Building
   St. Paul, Minnesota 55101

7. Use this order form to make it easy for processing and filing of your order:

   NAME OF SCHOOL AND LOCATION
   SPEED OF RECORDER (7½ or 3¾ i.p.s.)
   NUMBER OF TAPES SENT AMOUNT OF RETURN POSTAGE ENCLOSED

     COMPLETE CODE NUMBER OF PROGRAMS WANTED:

     ORDERED BY:

8. We do single track recording only.

9. Be sure to send enough tape to record the programs requested:

   Minutes  Speed of Playback  Tape Required
   15  3¾ in/sec.  ½ — 600 ft. feel (5 inch)
   30  3¾ in/sec.  1 — 600 ft. reel

   DOUBLE THE AMOUNT OF TAPE NEEDED FOR 7½ INCHES PER SECOND SPEED

10. Do not send in broken reels or tape as we cannot repair them. Broken tape should be spliced only with special magnetic splicing tape. Do not use gummed tape for splicing as it catches on the head of the recording machine and causes a poor reproduction of the program materials.

11. Allow at least 5 days for your request to reach us and be returned. Inquiries concerning this material and service should be addressed to Arnold E. Luce, Audio-Visual Supervisor, Department of Education, Centennial Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101. Telephone 221-6114.

CARE OF TAPE AND EQUIPMENT

1. Keep reels full to assure sufficient tape for a full 15 or 30 minutes of recording time.

2. Mend all broken tape with special splicing tape. Never use adhesive or cellophane to splice recording tape as this will damage the record heads or give poor quality on recording or playback. We do not repair tape.

3. Make splices on shiny side of tape according to instructions of manufacturer.

4. Do not use cracked or broken reels, as they will damage your tape.

5. Always keep tape in the cardboard boxes and store in a cool, dry place.

6. Keep recording, playback and erase heads clean. Use carbon tetrachloride and an ordinary pipe cleaner to remove dust, lint and oxide from the heads.

7. Make certain that the pressure pads are present and holding the tape against the recording head.

8. When recording, check the indicator light or meter to make certain that the microphone is properly plugged in and operating.

9. When recording a voice, place the microphone 12 to 16 inches from the speaker's mouth and at an angle for best results.

UNDERSTANDING CHILDREN'S PLAY
11 min.
Shows how adults can understand and help children through observation of their use of toys and play materials. The film opens with a panorama of a nursery school, showing a rich variety of materials and how they may be made easily accessible to children. The narration stresses that by watching and listening to children at play, adults can gain a better understanding of children and find ways of helping the child to mature in his own way. THE LITTERBUG
Donald Duck portrays this scourge of cities, beaches, and countryside. Walt Disney uses the effective medium of animation to tell the story of the two boys, one a litterbug and the other a non-litterbug. Disney shows what a litterbug does and then goes on to show the advantages of being a non-litterbug. The story is told in an entertaining manner and the lesson is learned.

NAVAJO INDIANS

1 reel
In this production can be seen glimpses of Navajo Indian life which few white people know about. High on the Rocky Mountain Plateau, a Navajo girl, while watching her sheep and goats, sees her future husband. The girl later attends a dance where, in accordance with custom, the girls ask the boys to dance. Following this, the work of weavers and gardeners are presented. Silversmithing, home building, and cooking likewise are treated. A native wedding, together with Navajo conversation and songs, makes this film an unusual experience.

SPUD'S SUMMER: INTERRACIAL UNDERSTANDING
This film recounts the feelings and experiences of a six-year-old boy from Harlem making his first visit to the country. Spud, the lad who narrates the film, moves—trustful and confiding—from the sordid tragedy of slum life in a New York City ghetto to the wholesome domesticity of farm life in Chester County, Pennsylvania. Expressing his feelings about the farm and the city, Spud unconsciously reveals how his world broadens and his ideals change. Thus, without preaching and without interference from adults, the film delves so deeply into the mind and heart of one child that it reveals the dignity and worth of all children. Spud moves so naturally in the innocence of boyhood that he arouses our love and, unknowingly, presents the strongest possible argument for overcoming race prejudice. Gradually they learn that in spite of the slight differences which caused them to be fearful and suspicious of each other, they are really very similar. They have a common origin and are both animated by the same power—the hands are both animated by the same power—the hands of the toymaker. They become friends and work together.

Uses: To help children and adults overcome the barriers of racial prejudice and see the benefits of universal brotherhood. Age Level: primary, elementary, junior and senior high, adult Technical: Sound—good; Photography—excellent Comment: Manipulation of puppets very effective. Film treats a challenging problem in a simple yet emotionally satisfying and logical way. Can be used to illustrate hand puppets as a teaching aid.

VALUES: TELLING THE TRUTH

Telling the truth is something a person can be neutrally aware of, or feel a strong sense of commitment. Specific values are graphically illustrated as Rod, Julian and John walk home from school together. They spot a cement mixer and a man building a walk by pressing stones into the cement. Some are left over. When boys and stones get together, what's the target? The final choice is Mrs. Jensen's window. Rod and Julian run. John stays and tells the truth, aware of his commitment. TRUCK FARM, THE Synopsis: After a view of the vegetables in a grocery store, a truck farm where the vegetables are produced is visited. The film is designed to portray in human terms the role of the typical American farm family. The story is built around the perplexing, unpredictable—but inevitably gratifying—activities of modern rural youth. It is a fast-moving, happy type of movie with just the right number of anxious moments to suit its realistic setting in the life of a typical American farm family. The story is built around the three youngsters of the family—all of 4-H age—and their irrepresible spirit, their trials, and their anxieties as they compete for a share in activity honors. It's a very human story that thrills by its very simplicity. The picture is certain to create interest in 4-H and FHA groups.

Synopsis: Three children playing house try to re-enact a typical day. David, the father, goes off to work but returns soon. So they try to figure out where daddies work all day. Then we see David's father drive to work as a construction worker driving an earthmoving machine. Ruth's father takes the bus to his office, where he checks his mail, dictates letters, telephones customers in selling his product. Patricia's father walks to his office, where he works as an artist doing commercial art work.
Uses: To increase children's understanding of the adult world Age Level: primary

plan to marry. It is immediately apparent that although Judy and Jim claim to love each other, they do not really know one another and the image each has of himself is completely unrealistic. As the dating progresses, it becomes evident that Judy and Jim differ somewhat in the values they hold. Slowly the couple begin to see these differences for what they are. The film ends with the couple beginning to see themselves and each other realistically in terms of marriage. (McG)

EVERYDAY COURAGE AND COMMON SENSE
(1½ reels, 13½ min.)
Collaborator: Joseph L. Norton, Ph.D., Professor of Education, State University of New York at Albany.

Firefighters parachuting into a flaming forest and a boy going off a high dive illustrate physical courage. But courage is also needed in everyday activities where social acceptance, self-esteem, morals and personal values are at stake. In a variety of situations involving intermediate-aged pupils, we are reminded of the many experiences in our lives which require courage, tempered by common sense. $65.00 B & W, $130.00 Color. Subject Area: Adolescent Development; Adolescent Art
Evaluator: Hempstead, New York, Public Schools; Festival Jurors, 1965
Synopsis: Exhibits the creative art work of underprivileged children in a Harlem junior high school, showing what can be accomplished under constructive guidance.
Uses: To show how art reflects the artist’s reaction to his environment; for teachers in depressed area schools, to restore morale and purpose.
Age Level: Junior high through adult
Technical: Sound—good (both evaluators); Photography—good (both eval.)
Comment: Purpose is confusing; apparently, producer wants to tell us that there is much in human values among the children of Harlem that can be and must be nurtured. Given limited resources, film is fair and unprofessional—Hempestad. Making no pretense of being a good film technically, it is a moving film exhibiting a sincere and personal approach. Reflects sensitive understanding of children in an art situation, Beautiful art work.

Subject Area: Social ethics
Evaluator: Hempstead Public Schools, New York
Synopsis: Film brings up question of whether an honest judgment is better than diplomatic double-talk to avoid hurting someone’s feelings. Question arises in a discussion of the acting ability of a popular but untalented student in a leading role in a school play. Editor of the school paper defends his right to print an objective review of her performance but other students think she should be let down gently.
Uses: To provoke a discussion on the place of “honest truth” in dealing with fellow students.
Age Level: Junior and senior high

Two sisters, just out of high school, get jobs and decide it's time to buy a car. Dad offers to help with the down payment, but they must shop around for the best buy and the best method of financing the purchase. After finding the right car, they investigate the cost of financing through a bank, a small loan company, and their father's credit union. They learn the advantages and disadvantages of each financing arrangement, especially facts about add-on interest, interest computed on a sliding scale, and true annual interest (simple interest). They compare the maximum each agency will loan, interest rates and how they are computed, true annual interest rates, and total dollar cost. Armed with information, the girls ponder their decision. While they do, the film is stopped and the class tries to decide which course of action they should follow. As the film resumes, the girls realize that none of the possible solutions is wise. JOURNEY TO NOWHERE

The United Church Committee on Indian Work is happy to report that the WCCO-TV film, "Journey to Nowhere", is now available for public showing. The film tells the story of the Indian leaving the reservation and coming into the city to find a new way of life. A number of the Indian people are interviewed by a reporter and reveal the difficulties encountered during this transition period. The film points out that the hope for the future lies with the children and youth as they seek this new way of life in education and training. The music for the film is furnished by a young Indian, Barry Blackhawk. An introduction is given by Bishop Philip F. McNairy and the Rev. Gradus C. Aalberts, Chairman and Executive Director, respectively, of the committee responsible for this work with American Indian families in the Twin Cities. The film is especially adapted for church, civic and school groups. It is 16 mm., sound, black and white, 25 minutes.

No charge is made for the rental of the film, but a free will offering is requested.

LIVING WORK OF ALBERT SCHWEITZER
44 min., color
The film, the last film of Dr. Albert Schweitzer and his hospital village at Lamborene, Gabon, West Africa, taken shortly before his death, begins with Dr. Schweitzer moving down the Ogowe River in his boat. The viewer shares with Dr. Schweitzer his life at the hospital, the practical application of his philosophy of Reverence for Life. There are vivid and colorful scenes of hospital life—the leper village. The documentary was photographed by Erica Anderson, author of several books about Dr. Schweitzer, and photographer of the 1958 Oscar award-winning film, "Albert Schweitzer". The script was prepared by Dr. Schweitzer's daughter, Rena Schweitzer-Eckert, who worked as a laboratory technician at the jungle hospital during her father's lifetime and was appointed by him to assume administration of the hospital at his death. No other medium illuminates so clearly the life and spirit of one of the greatest men of our time. Erica Anderson, Inc. Release

THE MAGIC BOW
A Sioux Indian legend provides the basis for this stop-action puppet film. The primary purpose is to provide an introduction to childhood maturity and responsibility. The story is of an Indian boy who steals away from the village to hunt and thereby prove his manhood. As he is standing over a small deer he has killed, an old chief comes to tell him the legend of the magic bow. In the story, an Indian lad abuses the gift of a magic bow by killing so many animals that the earth runs crimson. As a consequence of his deeds, the spirit of the forest takes the boy's bow and arrows and hurl's them into the sky where they remain a shameful reminder for all time. By the end of the story the chief has taught the boy an important lesson: a youth becomes a man when he acts like a man, when he can accept the responsibilities of a man. EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Social ethics
Evaluator: Hempstead Schools, New York
Synopsis: Designed to promote discussion on question of whether an elected representative of a group may legitimately support a measure disliked by the majority of those who voted for him. High school students disapprove their student council representative's support of a measure to curtail extracurricular activities. He defends his action by pointing out that class members did not participate in discussions of the measure.
Uses: To stimulate discussion on the duties of an elected representative and voting members of a society.
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: Presents a very true to life high school situation and does it in a natural manner. Shows that the majority of the people are apt to be apathetic about government except when their toes are trod upon.

(1968) Journal Films
Film produced by Walter Schwimmer, Inc. in 1964 to honor Dr. King on the occasion of his selection for the Nobel Peace Prize. The film provides an intimate look at the man, his philosophies and his teaching. The most dynamic section is Dr. King's own interpretation of the philosophy of non-violence; his thoughts on the future path of the civil rights movement; the role of organized religion in bringing about social change; and his personal feelings about death. Dr. King addresses himself to the possibility of his violent death and re-affirms his belief in non-violence as the only means to accomplish social justice. (1) Journal Films

NEGRO AMERICAN
This animated film is a brief history of the Negro in the United States from the time they were involuntarily uprooted from their homes in Africa and sold into slavery until the present. The accomplishments of many Negro Americans, including Frederick Douglass, George Washington Carver, and Booker T. Washington, are presented. The contributions of the Negro to our wars, territorial expansion, and government are shown in other sequences which illustrate the struggles that have been a part of their movement toward political and economic equality. In spite of the frequent lack of educational opportunity and motivation, the Negro has become an integral part of American life. The picture offers more education as one solution to their problems and presents a dramatic background of information for spirited discussions about the Negroes' past, present, and future. In this modern parable Norman McLaren uses his "pixillation" technique, utilizing the principles of animating drawings or puppets to animate live actors. The story is simple: two men, friendly neighbors for years, come to blows over a flower which grows on their boundary. The dispute grows until homes, property, and men are destroyed. Synthetical music and sound effects effectively replace dialogue. A thought-provoking tale applicable to many local, national, and international issues. OUR IMMIGRANT HERITAGE
32 min., color
This film shows the arrival in the United States of a young man as an immigrant, while the narrator points out the courage required to leave behind all familiar places and people and the natural grouping of immigrants with similar backgrounds. The history of immigration in America is traced. The film gives reasons for each group's immigration, their areas of settlement, their most common type of work, and some of their contributions to American culture. Activities of anti-immigrant societies and general public discrimination against each group of newcomers are explored, including the social problems of the Negro as a non-voluntary immigrant and the difficulty of assimilation because of skin color. Music, folk culture, and physical differences are revealed by many sequences showing immigrant groups performing in formal or informal situations. A wide variety of visual techniques include live action, reenactment, paintings and lithographs, pictorial maps, photographs, and contemporary film footage. (Mc2)

PLAIN WHITE ENVELOPE

19 min., color, 1965

The purpose of this film is to provide a springboard to discussion of cheating and dishonesty. The film illustrates that students know that other people, even their parents and friends, are sometimes dishonest in small ways. A problem is set up so that a student faces the problem of cheating. A section of blank film occurs in the film just before the problem is resolved so that a discussion may be held before seeing the conclusion of the film. (FA)

QUEST FOR FREEDOM
16 min., color
The story of man's unending quest for freedom is told through animation, making inventive use of art treasures of the past. The spirited chronicle highlights the pre-history struggle for freedom from hunger and danger. Athens as the birthplace of democracy; the Roman contribution of justice; how freedom was submerged by feudalism in the Middle Ages and how it slowly emerged with the rise of a middle class; the rebirth of freedom during the Renaissance. The major documents which safeguard freedom in the modern world; contemporary milestones in the quest for freedom. The film translates abstract concepts into vivid, tangible, concrete visual terms. The barriers to freedom presented by natural environment are differentiated from man-made barriers. The essential guarantees of personal and political freedom are explained. The film illuminates two central ideas: (1) freedom and learning are inseparable; (2) freedom is a universal goal sought by many peoples in the past and yet to be achieved by many in the future. (American Adventure Series)
(1½ reels) 13 min., 1955
Dr. Ganus' open salutation to his class in this final film of the series: "We are discussing today one of the most precious gifts on earth—American citizenship." He makes the point that the American citizenship is a combination of privileges and responsibilities, and that the responsibility must be developed by each new generation, else the heritage of freedom will die. Eight great obligations of citizenship are discussed: (1) understand the American way of life and what makes it tick; (2) understand Communism; (3) understand Socialism; (4) understand propaganda techniques used by both the Communists and the Socialists; (5) take an interest in your public schools and the private and public-finance colleges; (6) become active in government; (7) strive constantly for spiritual growth; (8) dedicate a part of your everyday life to bringing these obligations of citizenship to the attention of other people.

RETAIL CREDIT BUYING
10 min., Color
Just out of high school, two sisters get their first real jobs, open several charge accounts, and go on a buying spree. Within a few weeks they have bills everywhere and are several hundred dollars in debt. (With a charge plate, it was all so easy!) Father steps in to help and both girls realize that spending must be controlled and that charge accounts and other retail credit must be used wisely. Lu and Sam learn how much it really costs to buy on credit, how to compute credit charges, and what additional items could have been purchased with the money paid in interest charges (this really hurts). They see why a good credit rating is important and how it is established. They come to see that money can work for you, in a savings account earning interest. This is a motivational film that focuses on the problems and hazards of overspending. The treatment is light and appealing. Teenagers can identify with the situations and the characters and will be led to a serious consideration of the use of credit in our affluent society.

Subject Area: Conservation: Soil
Evaluator: Indiana University
Synopsis: Explains how poor farming and ranching practices have destroyed the grasslands in the southwestern United States, creating a man-made desert in less than 100 years. Describes how scientists are trying to reverse the damage through organized programs of land reclamation.
Uses: To show how man can misuse and waste valuable land; to show the importance of a balance between plants and animals; to show scientific reclamation techniques.
Age Level: Intermediate and junior high
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: Although the farming and ranching sequences are somewhat superficial and speedy, the total concept is very good as is emphasis on reclaiming techniques. Not many films of this nature geared for upper elementary.

Federal Land Bank (local or national) or Information Service, Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C. 20578
Subject Area: Today's agricultural business
Evaluators: George Washington University, Washington, D. C. 20578
Synopsis: "Providers of Plenty" is a lengthy discussion between a male college student and the father of one of his classmates. The father, who is a farmer, points out to his guest the improvements that have been made in farming in recent years through research, automation, and labor saving devices. There are some scenes around the farm and farm house, plus a long sequence on the advances in agriculture through research.
Age-grade Level: elementary, junior high, senior high, college, rural youth groups Technical: Structure — fair; Picture quality — excellent; Sound quality — good.
Comment: This is an attractive color presentation but it misses the mark as an occupational film. The story is very distracting and adds little to the film. The point of most of the conversation is clearly to convince the visiting college student (and others) that there is a worthwhile future in agriculture for those who process adequate training and ability. Synopsis: Film traces man's conquest of the air from the Wright brother's first flight at Kitty Hawk to the development of man-carrying rockets. Carefully achieves a high degree of realism. Eddie Rickenbacker describes the highlights of his own career in aviation while other historically important episodes include scenes of Lindberg's flight across the Atlantic, Igor Sikorsky's first helicopter, the burning of the Hindenburg, and jet fighter planes.
Uses: To show the development of air transportation; to describe the daily life of a wheat farmer and his family in a typical midwestern area. Shows how the soil is prepared, how winter wheat is planted, and other activities such as milling cows, attending a 4-H Club meetings, hiring and

ARCHITECTURE, YOUR CAREER IN

Your Career Series
Putting first things first, this film surveys the interests and aptitudes that mark the potential student of architecture in his early months of high school. It suggests studies for him at high school level, then follows his progress through graduation and on into the first five years of college. It explains how general courses taken in the first two years of college help prepare the student for three years of professional training at the college's accredited school of architecture. Here, we see the student progressing in courses on architectural design, architectural drawings and renderings, on the complicated calculations of stress and strain in judging the strength of materials for a specific application. The film explains what the aspiring architect may expect during his three-year apprentice period with a licensed firm. The challenges and rewards of the profession are summed up in closing sequences showing the architect, now fully licensed, during various phases of his career in his chosen field. As he grows in experience and accomplishment, his rewards are the buildings which are recognized as the creation of his design and which attest to his architectural ability.

EYE OF AN ARTIST
20 min., color

Man continuously searches for beauty and finds it in different places, in different forms and through different means. This film shows an effort to find beauty in nature. Here the artist searches among the uncommon elements of the common place to find inspiration for his work. The film attempts to record some of the artist's subjective experiences with landscape material. It focuses upon his first explorations, his evaluations and organizations, his "first seeing" which is a part of the creative process.

LEONARDO DA VINCI AND HIS ART

This extraordinary film traces the life story of the great Renaissance man and the enormous influence of his ideas and innovations on the intellectual history of the world — as a painter, sculptor, architect, musician, engineer, and scientist. Filmed on location in Italy and France, the motion picture shows two of Leonardo's great, but ill-starred works of art — the immense fresco, "The Battle of Anghiari", and the giant sculptured horse, the Sforza monument. The sights, the sounds and the greatest figures of Renaissance Europe live again through superb camera artistry. The eminent actor, Frederic March, speaks the words of Leonardo da Vinci. Winner: "Television Broadcast of the Year" Award by the Italian Executives of America, Inc., and "Emmy" Award from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

COTTON PRODUCTION

The story of the making of cotton cloth is pictured from the picking of the soft, ripe, fluffy cotton boll in southern fields to the packing and shipping of the finished cloth as it comes from the looms of a modern mill. The picking of cotton by hand in the customary manner is contrasted with the work of a modern mechanical picker. The cotton is shown being ginned and baled, shipped to the mill, where it is carded, spun into yarn and woven into cloth. The operation of each of the machines that contribute an important part to this process is vividly portrayed in clear, accurate photography. Close views of carding and spinning machines and the great power looms in motion reveal the intricacy, speed and precision of modern large-scale spinning and weaving. (EBF) G.J.S.A.

COUNSELOR'S DAY
10 min.
This film presents an overall survey of the counselor's job. Paul Draper is a good counselor, sincerely interested in his work. In dealing with students who need special counseling, Draper organized his methods in accordance with the student's emotional needs. To do this, he prepares for the interview by referring to the cumulative file for the student; here he finds facts about health, school activities, marks, etc. Aptitude tests give him valuable data on the student. Work experience and school success are other indicators of interest and ability. Draper then calls a case conference at which all the teachers meet to discuss the student's total problem. They analyze the facts, pool their ideas, and together work out a plan designed to guide the student through his difficulty. To give his counseling greater perspective, Draper teaches his own class and acts as advisor to a hobby club. He is active in the Boy Scouts, talks to local business and civic groups, and shares his experiences with others through writing. LIVING MACHINE, THE 510.78
29 min., 1963
Produced by the National Film Board of Canada.
"What is a man that a machine is not?" asks the narrator in this provocative film on the rapidly advancing progress in electronics technology. Here is a story of machines which perform feats which emulate the human brain in calculating, remembering and prognosticating. The film illustrates the intelligence of machines by following a game of checkers in which an IBM computer challenges a New York checkers champion. This is an excellent film to stimulate discussions. It should be used primarily for staff programs or be carefully integrated into an education program. AFL-CIO Rental $7.50.

Modern Talking Pictures, Inc., 1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10036
Subject Area: Dietetics...
Evaluation Committee: Central Junior High School, White Bear Lake, Minnesota.
Synopsis: The film discusses developments in nutrition from the early days of the cave dwellers through the scientific discovery of nutritional causes of diseases. It describes the development of dietetics in hospitals and other institutions, formation of the professional organization, and the present status of the profession. The film is narrated with music and sound effects and places major emphasis on animation and unusual color effects.
Age Level: Junior High School, Senior High School, College.
Technical: Structure — good; Picture — good; Sound — good. Comments: The editing is fairly well done with the opening sequences particularly effective. However, there is too much animation, and more of the film could be dramatized. The animation effect seems to be designed for younger students, but the information presented is for the more mature person. As a career film, it needs less emphasis on health and origins of the field of work and more on the preparation and reward aspects of the profession itself.

YOUR CAREER IN ELEMENTARY EDUCATION 27 min.
For the high school student contemplating a career in elementary teaching, there is no aptitude more important than ability to know and understand people. As seen in this film, the girl who will make a good elementary teacher is a good student. She must have ability to learn easily herself if she expects to teach others. In high school, she is shown applying this ability to liberal arts courses, especially English, mathematics, and social sciences, music and art. These are the studies which prepare the future elementary teacher for college, where she continues to receive an even broader education in liberal arts courses that give a perspective of human growth and development. History, the physical and biological sciences, physical education and additional courses in art and music give her a broad background for teaching. College scenes in the film show how these courses are combined with studies in education which give training in teaching methods, school law, elementary school curriculum and others. The film illustrates practice teaching before showing what the graduate may expect in looking for her first job. It shows that good elementary teachers win the esteem and affection of their communities wherever they may work. (MLA)

AERONAUTICAL ENGINEER, YOUR CAREER AS AN
Your Career Series, 30 min., color
As seen in this study of career planning, the future aeronautical engineer in high school is likely to show his most important aptitudes in mathematics and the sciences that pose analytical problems. He readily learns to express facts in mathematical language. His natural inclination is to distrust his own conclusions until they are proven by actual demonstration or mathematical formula. He is the boy who turns to the hobby that poses a problem of a mathematical or mechanical nature. This film advises students interested in the career of an aeronautical engineer to prepare for entrance to a college of engineering but to put off making a definite choice as to a particular branch of the field until later. It emphasizes the importance of high school courses in mathematics and physics but does not neglect to remind students that engineers need English and foreign languages as well. At a typical college or university it illustrates the kind of material presented in a freshman's general engineering courses, following this with the more specific and technical studies in aeronautics taken in later courses. Scenes from industry show how the aeronautical engineer works with others to develop new designs for aircrafts, and how he enjoys being part of a creative team in an important industry. (MLA)

FIRE RESCUE COMPANIES
24 min., color
This film shows the work of both the rescue car and the truck (hook and ladder) rendering aid in common emergencies not connected with fires. It illustrates the type of mishap in which a fire department generally provides the quickest and best first aid available. The picture stresses the importance of public and private knowledge of the correct way to obtain such assistance without delay. The film is built around three types of emergencies which frequently involve rescue companies: 1. a heart attack, 2. people who have gotten themselves into dangerous positions, and 3. the collapse of an earth work excavation where a workman has been buried. The grave danger children face when digging caves and tunnels is closely tied in with the rescue of the workman from his collapsed trench. (TEF)

FRESH OUT OF THE WATER

The film shows commercial varieties of fish underwater, plus capture, processing, retailing, cooking, serving, and the steps taken by modern industry to preserve the nutritional value of fishery products. (Fishery Motion Pictures leaflet 438, Fish and Wildlife)

Beginning with an underwater sequence, the film first shows the catching of fish, emphasizing the cleanliness of the fishing boats and the extreme care which is given fish from the moment of taking. The film then moves to a brief but comprehensive picture of what takes place before fish reach the consumer—the icing, filleting, canning and other processing, the transporting and the marketing. Then it shows two steps so important after the product is in the consumer's hands—the proper preparation of the food and, finally, serving it in an attractive manner. BOSS DIDN'T SAY GOOD MORNING

10 min.

A story about the psychological effect a boss's failure to say good morning has on an employee: Jones is happy; he is loyal and takes pride in his work. We see him leaving home in a happy mood. At the office, however, the boss comes in, passes him without a greeting. This alarms Jones who thinks it is an expression of dissatisfaction with his work. He is given an important sales order to rush to the factory, but is such in a state that he puts it absent-mindedly into his pocket. At home he is unhappy and unreasonable with his family. He spends a sleepless night, and Sunday, which is usually a happy day for the family, is grim. He finds the order in his pocket; decides to resign. He writes a letter to the boss, gives it to his son to mail. He goes off by himself to his golf club where he meets the boss. The boss asks about the order and is glad to hear he hasn't sent it in because the credit of the purchaser was found to be bad. Recommended for discussion for social studies in the junior and senior high school. (TFC)

“MINNEAPOLIS STORY, THE”
This is a 25 minute color-sound film utilizing modern photography’s techniques to transform historic still pictures into seemingly “live” action. (90 South 6th St., Minneapolis)
It was produced for the Farmers & Mechanics Savings Bank by Martin Bovey Films with the assistance of the Minnesota Historical Society, Hennepin County Historical Society and the Minneapolis Public Library. The most significant scenes in the city’s colorful history are pieced together from thousands of rare pictures. The film, the first such historical document ever done in Minneapolis, fills an educational and cultural need.
The Farmers and Mechanics Savings Bank is proud to have been able to make this contribution toward the enrichment of our community’s heritage. Prints of “The Minneapolis Story” may be borrowed for showing by schools, business firms, clubs, churches and civic groups, and other interested organizations. There is no charge.

EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Vocational guidance
Evaluators: Wheaton College, Illinois; Gary Public Schools, Indiana
Synopsis: Several high school students apply for jobs with a firm, thereby pointing out the qualities which make for job success. The young people demonstrate both how to get a job and how to make a success of one. Personality, appearance, courtesy, speech habits, the ability to accept criticism and to get along with others, and love of good tools are needed.
Uses: For vocational guidance and business classes; for general assembly programs; for personality development discussions
Age Level: junior and senior high, college Technical: Sound — exc-Gary, good-Wheaton; Photography — exc-Gary, good-Wheaton
Comment: Gary — A positive and realistic approach through-out. Both boys and girls are involved in the job situations. Wheaton — oversimplifies the problems by stressing superficial aspects of personality rather than basic attitudes toward self and others. Best for general personality qualities.

PRINTING, YOUR CAREER IN (Your Career Series)
30 min.
Opening scenes here give perspective to an industry famous for craftsmanship as a way of life. A typical high school student becomes interested in the industry from working with a printer to turn out his school paper. He learns the importance of English, particularly correct spelling, grammar and punctuation, in a printer’s work. He finds the skills in artistic which develop accuracy and speed are those used by printers in calculating type for the printed page. Through his friendship with the printer, he is able to see the importance of high school courses in art and photography in relation to printing. The film briefly defines the six separate but related skilled trades in this industry before focusing on the compositor’s job as representing a basic industry skill. It describes on-the-job training, correspondence courses and night classes by which the apprentice earns jourman status over a six-year period. He learns to use printer’s tools, to make the right choice of type for the job and set it to the correct measure. He develops a sense of page layout and the ability to harmonize various elements on the printed page. The jourmane printer is fortunate in having a high degree of job security as he progresses toward supervisory position then sales and service representative and top management jobs in his company. (MLA)

Produced by AFL-CIO in cooperation with International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers
How unions and management can cooperate to establish more job opportunities for the disabled is the subject of this film. Portraying a meeting between a union representative, a personnel manager and a rehabilitation consultant, the film depicts the steps necessary to match the abilities of the handicapped worker to the job. The rehabilitation consultant points out what that special care is taken in placing the handicapped workers, analyzing job content and the worker’s ability, the disabled worker presents no special problem or unusual risk.
In a closing statement, President George Meany says the AFL-CIO is committed to equal job opportunities for all and he appeals to employers to judge handicapped workers on the basis of their ability, not their disability. AFL-CIO, Rental

MENTAL HEALTH CAREERS
20 min., 16mm, b&w
An informative film for high school youth entitled, "Mental Health Careers" has been produced by the Minnesota Department of Public Welfare. The film provides a preview of the various careers in fields relating to mental health.
The high school girl who is the heroine in the film, when assigned to write a paper on the mental health professions can think only of the psychiatrist and the psychologist, and she doesn't know precisely what they do. Her father, however, sends her out to talk to a judge, from whom she learns about others in the community who help people with emotional problems—juvenile probation officers and county social workers, for example. As she continues her research, she learns that many other people such as school counselors help solve people's problems. The latter part of the film is devoted to the girl's investigation of the work of a Minnesota mental health clinic team as well as the work of the many professional (and non-professionals) at a Minnesota state hospital. In an informative yet unpretentious way, this film covers a wide range of jobs and manages to make them all look interesting and challenging to youth.

The journalist is first and foremost a craftsman who knows how to communicate with other people. He has a natural feeling for words, a flair for the dramatic and natural curiosity about the affairs of man. His educational background is a broad one in liberal arts, for he must understand the world around him to report the daily events taking place in it. For this reason, high school students are advised here to prepare for college and for journalism, with studies that include languages, science, social studies and the mechanics of getting words down on paper—typing. The film shows the extension of liberal arts education given students in their first two years of college with courses in English, history, science, social studies and psychology. Professional journalism courses are divided into editorial, public relations or advertising sequences, depending upon the specific area of journalism in which the student wants to specialize. In all three areas, clarity in writing, accuracy in reporting and attention to detail in editing mark the student headed for success. The film’s concluding scenes illustrate typical beginning jobs in news reporting and point out the different specialized jobs by which men of journalism grow in stature, reputation and competence as respected members of their communities. Labor

Automation: The Next Revolution 29 min., 1965, rental $3.00 (AFL-CIO)

Produced by WCBS-TV

This documentary looks at the impact of automation on workers and the problems it creates in our society. Two labor leaders who have faced problems of automation in contract negotiations are featured. Bertram Powers, President of ITU Local 6 in New York, talks about problems of computers in the printing industry. Harry Van Arsdale, President of Local 3 IBEW, stresses the need to think in terms of human values. He talks of the need for a shorter workweek. Unskilled workers, the first to be hurt as automation chews its way up the skill ladder, express their sense of despair. Civil rights: leader Bayard Rustin urges Negro and white workers to join in pushing for job-creating programs. (AFL-CIO)

Awesome Servant, The 55 min., 1961, (service charge $7.50)

Produced by ABC-TV

The impact of automation on workers and the communities in which they live is explored by this probing documentary. Unlike "Automation: Weal or Woe," which explains the evolution of automation, this film largely deals with unemployment and the severe problems of the worker displaced by automation. The national dimensions of the problem are indicated by interviews with Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg, Rep. Elmer Rood, Chairman of the House Labor Subcommittee on Unemployment and the Impact of Automation, corporation executives and union leaders. This is excellent. (AFL-CIO)

BROTHER JOHN

10 min., 1947
Produced by United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America.

Uses an empty chair at a union meeting to draw attention of union members to the many activities of the UAW education program and what it means to the individual union member. The film points out that even the best contract will not protect workers against today’s economic problems — he needs to use his political arm. Rental $3.00 (AFL-CIO)

CHALLENGE OF CHANGE

20 min., 1963, rental $3.00
Produced by the U.S. Department of Labor.

Tracing the history of the Labor Department from its inception in 1913 when it possessed a small staff of 15 in the Women’s Bureau, 94 in the Bureau of Labor Statistics and a horse and a buggy, this film charts the concurrent economic development of the nation and the expansion of the Labor Department. From its earlier concern with the problems of child labor and protection of women, the Department has expanded to the broad area of manpower training under MDTA and surveying depressed areas to determine their eligibility for ARA aid.

HEART OF THE UNION

45 min., 1953.
Produced by the International Association of Machinists.

The wrong and the right ways of running a union meeting are graphically depicted in this film. The first half shows all the wrong ways of conducting union’s meeting— the hall is dirty and messy, the officers arrive late, the secretary mumbles so no one can understand the minutes, and the presiding officer is unable to keep the meeting in hand. The second half shows the same union meeting in a spruced up hall with the officers opening the meeting promptly and conducting it properly with all members given an opportunity to state their points of view under correct parliamentary procedures. Particularly useful for union officers. (AFL-CIO) Rental $3.00

LET’S ARBITRATE

35 min., 1961, rental $3.00
Produced by American Arbitration Association.

This is a training film which will be useful in preparing union officers to participate in arbitration cases. It can also be helpful in educating shop stewards and union members who have not had previous experience with arbitration. Procedures and the presentation of facts in arbitration cases are illustrated by the portrayal of an actual case in which an employee with seniority and ability to do the job bids on a job which the company refuses to give him because of his absentee record. Although this film presents a somewhat formal procedure with lawyers representing both the company and union, it is a much shorter film than the previous AAA film “Arbitration In Action” and, therefore, allows more time for discussion. SHOP STEWARD, THE

Produced by the National Film Board of Canada.

In this film you watch a good shop steward in action. His responsibilities to the members of the union, his problems in handling grievances — these are dramatically shown through the story of Johnny Walachuk, newly elected steward for a local of the United Steelworkers of America. The film opens with Johnny Walachuk’s election as shop steward. Then you see him take on the responsibilities of the job. As he says, you can work in a place for fifty years and not see the things you notice as soon as they make you a shop steward. You follow him as he works on three grievances.  (AFL-CIO) Rental $3.00

28 min., b&W, 1961
The purposes of this film are to give a better understanding of the complicated structure of the American system of government of the formal processes that make our system work and of the nature of the policy-making process in particular. This is a case study of the Housing Act of 1959, traced from its genesis, through hearings, veto, passage of a smaller bill, veto, passage by a still smaller bill and final approval by the President. The complex process is illustrated and at the same time the interplay among conflicting forces that shaped the result is emphasized. (McC)

LAw, YOUR CAREER IN Your Career Series
30 min., color

This career evaluation describes the man of law as the voice of our government and its people in the cause of justice and social order. It recognizes the high school student with potential for the profession as a boy with a great capacity for reading, a love for words and respect for the truth. He begins charting his course toward law school by taking all high school courses required for college. The film singles out English for special attention to emphasize the importance of language skills in giving the lawyer presence of mind and quiet self-confidence. It suggests that typing be taken as an elective subject to help give the student capacity for quick, accurate and legible expression. Once the student enters college for his pre-law course, his immediate objective is acquisition of a critical understanding of human values and institutions. Philosophy, the humanities, economics, political science and history are his subjects. In law school, professional study of torts, contracts, property rights, crime and other aspects of the law is shown in a practical example of a fictional trial case conducted by students. In illustrating various opportunities for specializing in specific areas of law, the film describes the lawyer’s duties as those “that challenge the highest powers of man’s intellect and the noblest qualities of the human heart.” (MLA)

CAREERS IN LIBRARIES
25 min., B&W, $75.00, 1967
Division of Pupil Personnel and Counseling, School District of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
Subject Area: Library work
Synopsis: The film describes and depicts the various aspects of library work. The importance of librarians to the society is emphasized as is the necessity for working with people as well as books and records. The different types of libraries with their uses are discussed. The different skills employed and the training needed by librarians are also explained.
Age-grade level: Junior high school, senior high school Technical: Structure — good; Picture quality — fair; Sound quality — good.
Comment: The major setting of the film is a question and answer panel in which a librarian and a prospective librarian answer the questions of the two adolescents. The questions are those which might generally be asked by students in secondary school. The discussion is usually relevant and consumes a major portion of the film. There seem to be too few scenes of actual work.

GREAT WEATHER MYSTERY, THE

Explains what weather is, how it is predicted and what can be done to control it. We see how the United States Weather Bureau's National Meteorological Center in Suitland, Md., and the Weather Bureau's New York office make their forecasts of national and local weather. In Dublin, New Hampshire, the publisher of the famed Farmer's Almanac predicts the weather by studying the height of hornets' nests or the thickness of the winter coat of animals. Scenes are shown of probes in the upper atmosphere for weather information by Tiros satellites, U-2 high altitude meteorological planes, the supersonic F-106, and the Air Force's Robin 1, a balloon which rises to 250,000 feet. Some of the basic research on weather being conducted at the Loomis School in Connecticut and at Yellowstone National Park are included in the film. A CBS News "20th Century" Production. METEOROLOGIST, YOUR CAREER AS A

30 min., color

(Your Career Series)

Important decisions in business, industry, agriculture and the armed forces often depend upon what happens to the weather. That's why there's a rewarding future awaiting the boy or girl who selects this field for a career. As seen in this film, the high school student should prepare for college-level study in meteorology with special attention to mathematics, physics, chemistry, and geography. The film shows the advanced college-level education given in these subjects before a student is ready for actual course work in meteorology. Laboratory scenes reveal the complicated experiments by which weather can be measured. Students learn how to measure humidity, take accurate barometric readings and construct weather maps. Wind speeds, visibility, pressure and temperature changes are quickly charted in practice forecasts of what the weather will be. This is the same work by which the meteorologist provides a valuable public service after earning his college degree. The film illustrates how he specializes in weather forecasting, in climatology, hydrology, teaching and research and in private meteorology for the benefit of companies and industries. In an age of jet streams, rockets and guided missiles, the weatherman's role assumes increasing importance in the welfare and safety of the country. (MLA)

REASER OF THE EARTH

Subject Area: Mining; economics; social documentary
Evaluator: Flint, Michigan, Public Library
Synopsis: A miner making his way to work near Sudbury, Ontario, leaves for work while the narrator describes his neighbors and their community status. We learn his feelings about his job, education, and desires for his family. As he arrives at work we are introduced to the mine and its functions. He talks about how things used to be in the mining town compared to now.

Uses: To show change in status and economic level of miners, etc.

Age Level: Junior high, senior high, adult Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good; Structure — good Comments: Sympathetically told story with an idealistic approach. The contrast between now and when he started in the mines is very great. The several jumps in sequence from the monochrome world in the mine to the bright color of day may jar some. Might be cut to improve.
Rating: Very good

SILVER

Subject Area: Mining; economics; social documentary
Evaluator: Churchill-Wexler Film Production, 801 N. Seward St., Los Angeles
Synopsis: This film shows the minting of silver-bearing ores and the mechanical, metallurgical, and chemical methods used in producing silver — a metal in transition from its historical uses in ornaments and as a medium of exchange to its modern role as an industrial raw material.

Uses: To show geography students how changes in the earth's crust occur; to show science students how mineral deposits in the earth are formed.

Age Level: Elementary, junior high
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: Makes excellent use of animation to show the changes in the earth and mineral deposits which could not be shown with live photography. A very good introductory film; it covers many aspects of the earth's surface and formation.

There are many and varied types of nursing and this film shows nurses at work in many of these different jobs. Nurses are shown at work in operating rooms, as X-ray helpers, the work of school nurses, various visiting bureaus. There are jobs to be had in hospitals of large industrial plants calling for more than average training; also the more highly trained nurse can find work in the field of pediatrics. A thorough knowledge of the various kinds of therapy permits a nurse to receive better pay and to work under better conditions. The narration explains the advantages of nursing and goes into detailed analysis of the qualifications and requirements necessary to be successful in the field of nursing. (MahVG)

OCEANOGRAPHY CHALLENGES OF THE OCEANS
(Oceanography)
The physical aspects of the ocean are examined, including the variety of currents in the ocean, the relationship of the dynamics of the ocean to weather and climate, and the composition of ocean waters. The life cycle in the oceans is sketched. Topography and composition of ocean bottoms is delineated, and the structure and content of the sediments are portrayed. The use of seismology, using underwater explosions, to examine what the bottom the sea is made of and what lies beneath the bottom is explained. (McG)

MAN AND THE SEA

“They that go down to the sea in ships do business in great waters.” Daily, the business conducted on, in, and under these waters itself becomes greater. While some exploitation of the oceans takes place today, the seas remain the last terrestrial frontier. In a thoroughly researched and most competently produced film, marine science is explained in terms of a panoply of specialties from liquid breathing to currents. Dr. Johannes Kylstrøm of Duke University, for example, explains how two years of concentrated research could solve the problem of liquid breathing, i.e., human respiration under water.

PEOPLE AND POLITICS
28 min., 1962
Produced by AFL-CIO
This film touches on all the important areas which motivate unions to develop political action programs. Not only does it explain why labor got into politics and how collective bargaining gains can be lost at the ballot box, it shows how elections are lost by apathy. What COPE means in terms of translating labor’s goals into realities is explained as we see how grass roots organizations function on the precipent level. In addition to stimulating interest and activity in politics, the film can be useful in training workers in the techniques of voter registration, canvassing, planning campaigns and getting out the vote.

PSYCHIATRIC NURSING: THE NURSE-PATIENT RELATIONSHIP

40 min.
The film portrays a nurse starting work on a ward of large state mental hospital. It shows how a nurse approaches patients under some of the varying circumstances of her work. It illustrates some of the ways in which she works with and seeks help from the nursing supervisor and the ward physician.

The film is intended to show the constructive aspects of the nurse-patient relationship; the viewer will notice that the nurse, like other nurses, is not perfect. She makes errors but these are corrected by working with her experienced colleagues. The film is a device for helping to consider and examine the work role of the nurse in psychiatric facilities, in relation to the work roles of the nursing supervisor and the psychiatrist. (DFI)

HOTEL MANAGEMENT, YOUR CAREER IN
30 min., color
(Your Career Series)
Who's the high school student most likely to succeed as a hotel manager? Often he's the one fellow students admire for competent leadership. His important high school studies include

English, mathematics, foreign languages and art. This film explains why these courses are important preparation for his career. It recommends four years of college as a hotel administration major. It proves the value of higher education in this field by pointing out that four years of college are valued at 12 years of on-the-job training. In tracing the college program in hotel administration, the movie reveals the broad range of knowledge acquired from the humanities and courses in business administration. Professional courses in hotel management provide technical training in food handling, housekeeping and other aspects of running a hotel or motel. Concluding scenes show the many opportunities at various management levels of hotel, restaurant, club and hospital administration which are open to the trained manager with ability. The film warns that hours of work in this field are long. It offsets the demands of hard work with rewards that include the respect of employees, the patronage of guests, and a unique standing in the business community. It points out that the industry is one likely to grow and prosper as the country's population increases. (MLA)

Jam Handy, 2821 E. Grand Blvd., Detroit 11, Mich.
EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Salesmanship
Evaluator: Ferris Institute, Michigan; Indiana University
Synopsis: Ben Franklin gives his rules for salesmanship. Shows how as a young man, a poor speaker who did not get along with people, he formulated rules of salesmanship by which he sold his town on community street cleaning, a public library and a fire department; how he later sold belief in America to the French government, and Americans on signing the Declaration of Independence. There is a restatement of the rules at the end of the film.
Uses To acquaint students with Franklin's views on good salesmanship

10 min.
This picture gives us the story of a Negro slave-boy who received an education and became a scientist. Night raiders steal the boy from a land-owner named Carver. Carver trail's them and trades his horse for the boy who is sickly and considered of small value. Because of the little slave's interest in study, Carver educates him, gives him his own name. After being graduated from Iowa State College the young scientist is assigned to the cotton crisis in the South. He solves it by introducing the idea of rotating peanut and cotton crops. When this results in an oversupply of peanuts, he determines to seek new uses. There are now about 140 products made from the peanut, including oil, wallboard, shaving cream, ice cream cones, axle grease, meat sauce, and quinine. Tuskegee Institute has erected a statue to Carver. Highly recommended for social studies, agriculture, and general science. (TFC)

SECRETARY, YOUR CAREER AS (Your Career Series) 30 min., color
The future secretary in this film is a thoughtful, orderly person who displays confidence and initiative by the time she is ready for high school. She is the girl who can organize herself and others to get things done. She is a well-balanced person who mixes well with other students in sports and social activities as well as in school. She may already show the characteristics of the tact and diplomacy which mark the good secretary. Girls heading for a secretarial career are urged by this film to make early plans for their high school training in business. By showing the various classroom work in typing shorthand, bookkeeping, business law, and arithmetic, the film points out that the modern high school offers more complete training for a job in the secretarial field than in any other. It shows how the high school graduate may go directly to work without further immediate training and gives examples of experiences the beginner may expect on her first job. It emphasizes the need for advanced study throughout the secretary’s career to broaden her knowledge of such subjects as finance and taxation, and pave the way toward better jobs and greater responsibility.
Throughout her career the secretary is recognized for the discretion, trust, loyalty and intelligence to which her employer so often refers when he says “I don’t know how we’d get along without you.” (MLA)

Subject Area: Space exploration
Evaluator: Indiana University
Synopsis: Discusses the theory of rocketry through the third law of Newton. Animated mock-ups and graphs are used to cover action and reaction. Shows actual firing of V-2 rockets and other military missiles, and some of the problems, particularly those inherent in the use of dry and liquid fuels. Uses footage taken from a V-2 rocket above the White Sands Proving Grounds in New Mexico.
Uses For study of the basic theory of rocketry and introduction to the third Newtonian law in general science and physics classes
Age Level: elementary, junior-senior high
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: The title is misleading as none of the footage is concerned with outer space as such. Entire film is built around the theory of rocketry and space flight. Excellent use of animation and models.
Rating: Good

uses of textiles — in apparel, for the home, for industry. Think Often called “the shortest distance from raw material to fin-wonder, then, that so many production engineers have so often said “How else would you make it?” This film gives an es-specially clear picture of the die casting process and its place in the metals fabricating industries. Many interesting examples from actual production show the kind of problems that die casting can handle. The film explains die casting uses of dif-

the advantages and disadvantages of other ways of working metals — automatic screw machine, sand casting, forging,

Subject Areas: Welding
Synopsis: This film depicts welders, both in training and on the job. Welding is seen being performed in factories, shipyards, aircraft maintenance shops, and on the site of a large construction project. Several methods of welding, utilizing conventional and automatic equipment are shown.
Age-Grade Level: Senior High School, Adult
Technical: Structure—good; Picture quality—good; Sound—fair.
Comment: While the film provides a good overview of welding, there are several areas in which it could have been more complete. (1) The dubbed in sound, while aiding authenticity, sometimes makes the narration difficult to understand; (2) the term MOTA is used without explanation, and unqualified support for MOTA programs is given; (3) the running time of 7 minutes is too short; (4) avocational aspects of the welders' lives are left untouched; and (5) fails to show women in light welding jobs in factory production lines.

THE CITIES: A DILEMMA IN BLACK AND WHITE

One of the major symptoms of America's urban decay is the ghetto. Narrated by News Correspondent Walter Cronkite, the restoration of the inner-city is studied in depth. One of the country's most ambitious restoration projects is seen in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. It is America's second largest ghetto, covering four square miles and housing some 400,000 people. The effort made by the two races to solve urban decay is graphically presented. DEFINING DEMOCRACY
18 min., 1954
In deciding where a community rates on the democracy-despotism scale, it is important to search first for two signs of democracy—shared respect and shared power. Shared respect implies that a community respects the dignity of the individual. Restricted respect is a characteristic sign of despotism. Power is concentrated in a community where decision-making is handled by a few individuals. A community is democratic when its citizens share in the making of important decisions through free, secret elections. Economic balance and enlightenment are also necessary if democracy is to thrive.

Evaluator: Newark, New Jersey, Public Schools
Synopsis: Frank Sinatra comes across a group of youngsters who show belligerent antagonism toward a boy of another religion. He talks to them of the necessity for accepting people of all creeds and recognizing their value as individuals, and sings Earl Robinson's song.
Uses: Promote intercultural understanding; build good will in community groups.
Age Level: elementary, junior-senior high
Technical: Sound — excellent; Photography — excellent
Comment: A well chosen cast, of children, plus Frank Sinatra's appeal, is presented in an easily understood film where the obvious lesson, understanding and tolerance among people, is purposeful and should lead to good discussion. The situation is a bit artificial.

EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Social studies, American history
Evaluator: Aberdeen, S.D., City Schools; Indiana University
Synopsis: Summarizes the various waves of immigration to the U.S. from the early colonial period to the present. The English became the dominant group in early days, and from their laws and government came our constitution. African slaves were brought first in 1619. Europeans and Chinese came until various restrictive laws slowed immigration. Recently refugees have come, as immigration continues to contribute to America.
Uses: To show that immigration has been a continuous process in American history; to show contributions from groups from various countries
Age Level: upper elementary, junior and senior high Technical: Sound — Abden-excellent; Ind-good. Photography — Ab-excel; Ind-good Comment: Aberdeen — One of the best on this subject. Color not essential. Indiana — presents too simplified and compartmentalized a picture of immigration. Does little to show the contributions of the different groups to social and political thought.

INCIDENT ON WILSON STREET
Newspapers in many cities have recently reported frequent attacks on teachers by pupils. This film shows individual and group reaction to an in-school "incident" when a young student suddenly strikes out at her teacher. Because of the classroom crisis: A 10-year-old child is revealed as a person frustrated by her surroundings; a father is seen enraged by what he believes classmates are doing to his child; a young teacher feels she cannot keep the child in her class. Classmates are shown expressing a surprising amount of concern and understanding; and the principal and another teacher are revealed as dedicated and determined educators willing to grapple with an uncomfortable and potentially destructive situation. As it reveals the reaction of teachers, pupils, and parent to the crisis which has suddenly involved them all, "Incident on Wilson Street" defines learning in a very real sense, and tells how it is fully achieved. Synopsis: A sixteen-year-old boy reluctantly attends his older brother's engagement party. He finds it dull and disagreeable, and tries to leave. When this fails, he begins to drink, in disobedience to his father, and passes out. His brother, whom he has idolized, finally realizes that the boy is broken-hearted and resentful over losing him.

Uses: To help parents, teachers and youth workers deal with teen-age emotional problems; to promote mature attitudes; to stimulate discussion of teen-age drinking

Age Level: Junior-senior high, adult

Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good

Comment: Concerned with adolescence in middle class setting; little value in discussions of alcoholism or with lower income groups. Should provoke discussion, but tedious and over-all theme unclear. Too many problems raised without focus. Considering sponsorship, disappointing.

MAKE WAY FOR YOUTH

Twenty minute 60 mm sound film produced in Hollywood for the Wisconsin Division of Children and Youth. Melvin Douglas as narrator. Setting is an average midwestern community. Theme: Two boy gangs clash and in the fighting one of the boys falls in front of a passing truck and is killed. He is the local editor's son. The editor realizes that ill feeling in the community was of long standing and other instances of religious and racial tension are recalled. His editorial arouses the interest of a small group of adults led by the Recreation Board secretary. They decide to assist the youth in developing their own center. Many problems are encountered by the young people, but with patience and understanding and mutual cooperation between young people and adults these problems are surmounted. The community thus, as a result, becomes a better place to live both for the youth and adults. Recommended for civic groups P.T.A. and others interested in community planning for youth.

Produced by Brandon Films, Inc.
The backbone of the voter registration campaigns in the South is the determination of those people who persevere in the arduous and dangerous task of convincing non-voters that they have a personal stake in registering and that it's worth the risk. Sponsored by the United Church Board for Homeland Ministries, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and the Committee for Racial Justice, this film was made in Savannah, Georgia. It shows responsible Negroes using many techniques to get their neighbors registered. AFL-CIO rental $3.00

RIGHT TO LEGAL COUNSEL
Gideon vs. Wainright is a dramatic telling of the 1963 Supreme Court decision that ruled that indigent defendants, accused of serious crimes, must be offered the assignment of counsel. In making this decision, the Supreme Court overruled the Betts vs. Brady decision. When tried, with adequate legal representation, Gideon was found innocent. The film presents a vivid demonstration of the citizen's use of the 5th, 6th and 14th amendments to the Bill of Rights. Produced by Vignette Films.

STREETS OF GREENWOOD, THE 20 min., 1964
Produced by Brandon Films, Inc.
Greenwood is a town in the heart of the Mississippi Delta where walking up the Court house steps to register to vote is considered an act of defiance. The penalty may be economic reprisal, a beating, or death. Knowing this full well, many Negroes lay their life on the line daily in their determination to register and vote and encourages others to do so. The Mayor of Greenwood repeats the tired, bankrupt theory that this is a town that never had any trouble until the outside agitators came along and it would be a peaceful place again if they would only go away. Bob Moses, the leader of the voter registration drive, tells quite a different story. Negroes relate their determination to keep on going back to the court house to register no matter how many times they are rejected and threatened, even if it means death. AFL-CIO rental $3.00

SUPERFLUOUS PEOPLE 55 min., 1962
Produced by WCBS-TV
Filmed in New York City, this documentary slices through the many inter-related problems which engulf the poor, the uneducated, members of minority groups, the young and the aged in every big city across the nation. Starting with the abandoned children in city institutions, the film proceeds to survey problems of the teenage dropout, the unemployed, delinquency, older persons displaced by urban renewal, people on relief, and in slums. The stark presentation of the problems of a segment of American life which most of us do not often see strikes at the social conscience of the viewer. Problems are presented through interviews with no attempt to suggest answers but with a strong suggestion that more should be expected of an affluent society. This leaves the discussion leader free to direct the discussion toward any one or combination of problems which may be relevant to his group, or to discuss the overall social responsibility of the labor movement for the "Superfluous People." TO FIND A HOME
28 min., b&w, 1963
Produced by University of Wisconsin
The problems encountered by a Negro couple in a northern city when they set out to find a larger apartment are depicted in this film. Paul Reed is a TV repairman who can pay up to $135 a month for an apartment. Time after time, he phones to make an appointment to see an apartment only to find white rental agents disconcerted when they discover he is a Negro, and concocting evasive stories that the apartment has just been rented. Some people are more direct, saying they wish they could rent to him but people in the community might complain and they don't want any trouble with their neighbors. The usual myths about the devaluation of property, danger of intermarriage and so on are voiced by the landlords. The despair and humiliation resulting from continuous rejection begin to destroy Paul Reed's self-respect. This film can set the stage for a discussion of discrimination in the community as it closes with the Reeds once again approaching an apartment with a "For Rent" sign. As they knock at the door, the narrator asks the audience: "What would you do?" (AFL-CIO)

EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Alcoholism
Evaluator: Akron Public Library
Synopsis: Philip Stapp's cartoon, giving the impartial evidence of the effects of alcohol on mind and body. People drink because drinking is socially acceptable and helps escape from tensions and conflicts. Drinking to be sociable can lead to habitual drinking that becomes a necessity. The alcoholic ends up in jail or in a hospital. To overcome the habit, men need help of a social worker or Alcoholics Anonymous. Closes by asking whether alcohol will control us, or we will control alcohol.
Uses: For education of school, community, and health groups

WILLIE CATCHES ON
Even before he is ten years old, Willie sees that some people are treated differently than others. Without direct instruction he knows that there are people who "belong" and people who do not. Willie's parents are not unkind to the Chinese laundryman or the Negro porter or the Jewish children up the street, yet the impression becomes firmly fixed in Willie's mind that these people are "different." When Willie goes to high school and college, the seeds of prejudice, not deliberately sown by any adult, begin to sprout in unmistakable, though polite, acts of tolerance. During his summer job at a fashionable resort he doesn't question the fact that he has privileges denied his Negro colleague. Willie has developed a sure sense of "discrimination" and is easily able to adjust to his "two-faced" world. Produced by the National Film Board of Canada.

YOU CAN'T RUN AWAY
30 min.
When Lucas Beauchamp, a Negro, is arrested for the murder of a white man, even his lawyer assumes him to be guilty, and the townspeople tacitly condone plans of the victim's kinfolk to take Lucas from jail and lynch him. But Charles Mallison Jr., the lawyer's nephew, listens to Lucas' story, being "too young to be cluttered," and he convinces his uncle of the Negro's innocence. The boy, the lawyer, and an upright, fearless sheriff then bring the real murderer, a brother of the victim to justice. The mob in front of the jail quickly departs as though running away from something, as the lawyer tells the boy that it will be all right as long as someone like himself faces up to his responsibilities. OTHER FACE OF DIXIE (Series CBS reports—look up and live)
28 min., 1962
This film is a vivid presentation of four southern cities, Clinton, Little Rock, Norfolk, and Atlanta, that only a few years ago had made headlines with their varying degrees of resistance to school integration. The integration progress and achievement, and the contrast between the old hate and the new cooperative spirit among students, presents a striking and encouraging picture. The testimony of southern teachers who had lived through the strain and strife of recent years and now see the privilege of learning restored to youngsters regardless of their color is a human document of uncommon inspirational impact. 21 min., b&w, 1951
U.S. Army; Dis-United World Films, Government Dept., 1445 Park Ave., N.Y.
EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Teaching methods
Synopsis: A class of high school students learn about the government and administration of their community, not from textbooks but from actual observation of town government in action. They sit in on the town council meetings, on court sessions, and on meetings between citizens and town officials.
Uses: As a methods instruction tool for teachers' colleges and in-service training projects; for community interest groups and civics classes.
Age Levels: junior and senior high, college, adult
Technical: Sound—good; Photography—good
Comment: Use of a high school student as the narrator tends to limit use to a classroom although subject matter and methods illustrated are applicable to adults interested in improving local government. Good motivation for school government classes.

STUDENT, THE
Academic as fantasyland? For too many students this is the case. The Student captures the spirit of ennui that pervades so many classrooms today. It serves as a plea for humanity in education by pointing out that some things are more important than the droning lectures that plague many students. The value of the film lies primarily in its stimulation of dialogue between the student-teacher audience. The story tells of one boy who escapes the drudgery of a class by slipping into daydreams and eventual sleep thus missing another day in the educational process, a film by Albert James Ihde, Jr. Contemporary Films. YOUR JUNIOR HIGH DAYS
12 min., b&w $70.00, color $140.00, McG
In making the transition from elementary school to junior high, the student finds that he must make certain changes in attitude and thinking. The areas in which the boy or girl of junior high age is most likely to need help — learning to adjust to many different kinds of people and situations, to face competition, to develop a self-reliance never required before, and to accept responsibility — are all discussed in this valuable motion picture. It emphasizes the fact that all seventh graders face common problems and that their school, through its trained staff and its various activities, offers students the opportunity to acquire the knowledge and self-discipline necessary for the development of mature personalities.

IMPORTANT OF MOTHER, THE

The influence of the mother on the development of a monkey and what human beings can learn from the study of this relationship. It discusses Dr. Harlowe’s experiments and results in his study of the behavior of monkies. The social bond is the means of survival for many species. The all important foundation on which a monkey’s social relationships seem to be based is its first social relation, with its mother. What is “maternal instinct”? How does the mother have an unrelenting influence on the child's developing personality, determining the balance between gratifying and stressful experience? How does the success or failure of the first social relationship affect the potential of all future relationships? What happens if an infant monkey is removed from its mother at birth and does not have this first lesson in forming social relations? Care-eliciting behavior, the development of play and curiosity, the development of sexual relationships and love. Can mother substitutes be found?

ONE LOVE — CONFLICTING FAITHS
Synopsis: The story of a Protestant-Roman Catholic marriage. A Roman Catholic boy and a Protestant girl fall in love and marry without their parents' knowledge. When the elders are informed, the boy's family is stunned and adamant in demanding marriage by their priest. The girl's mother and father are equally surprised and hopeful of a church wedding. This area of conflict and misunderstanding between the two faiths is joined by the problems of home life, child-raising, and religious practices when the two abide under a single roof. No set of solutions is offered; rather, the situation is dramatized for documentary purposes. (Tra)

FAMILY LIFE / SENIOR • COLLEGE • ADULT

Subject Area: Sociology; family relations

Evaluators: Wheaton College, Ohio; Chicago City Junior Col.

Synopsis: The family of 1880’s was a closely-knit religious, economic, and social unit in which work and recreation were shared by all. This pattern was changed by the industrial revolution and growth of cities. Children and elderly people have fewer duties, more leisure now. A man’s and a woman’s work are not so clearly differentiated. Despite individualism in recreation and other activities, need for family life still exists.

Uses: To depict economic, social, political roles of members of family; to point out changes in these roles, in family and society

Technical: Sound — good-Wheaton, fair-Chicago; Photography — fair

Comment: Wheaton-Persistence of role of family, despite individualism, is questionable statement. Situations are not typical as implied. Poor acting. Chicago-Analysis is superficial and acting amateur.

EFLA Evaluation

Subject Area: Family relations

Evaluator: Western Psychiatric Institute, Pittsburgh

Synopsis: The life of a Negro family in Georgia. Despite low economic level, the parents and four children are a close-knit unit. The mother gives up her job because care of children by their aunt proves unsatisfactory. Family problems are handled smoothly until the father is seriously injured. Leaves open the question of what will happen to family.

Uses: To stimulate discussion of family life; to show influence of parental attitudes on children; to improve race relations

Age Level: senior high, college, adult

Technical: Sound — good; good-Wheaton, fair-Chicago; Photography — good

Comment: Sensitive, unbiased. Southern Negro cultural patterns are intrinsic, but problems are potential situations in any American family. Thought-provoking. Good discussion leader will add to informational value.

PSYCHOLOGICAL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE SEXES (Series: Marriage and family living)

14 min., color, 1965

The film dramatizes the way in which a young girl and boy, Jane and Jim, react to similar situations. Their diverse reactions exemplify some typical psychological differences between the sexes. The following differences are emphasized in the film: (A) A girl’s tendency is to approach a personal and intimate situation indirectly whereas the boy uses action and a direct approach. (B) A girl is prone to personalize comments or generalizations about people while a boy is not apt to relate generalizations to himself at all. (C) A girl is much more likely to try to impress others by her appearance. (D) A girl is more sensitive in regard to “what others might think” about her. Finally, by projecting into the future, the film shows Jane and Jim married. In this sequence, previously dramatized differences are seen to cause misunderstandings between a husband and wife.

EFLA Evaluation

Subject Area: Family life

Evaluator: American Friends Service Committee, Philadelphia

Synopsis: Two families in Puerto Rico, one a happy one in which the father and mother love each other and their children, the other one in which there are too many children, no understanding between the parents, and neglected and unhappy children, are contrasted to show the importance of well-adjusted, tolerant, loving parents in the development of happy, productive children. Strong comparison made between children and trees, both of which should be planted far enough apart and in a number that can be properly cared for, thus raising question of birth control.

Uses: Adult education, parents' groups, classes in family life

Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good

Comments: Stresses universality of human needs, though "happy" family could have had more serious problems and family relations seem over-simplified. Might be interesting for rural groups.

Subject Area: Child development, Family life

Evaluator: Teachers College, Columbia University

Synopsis: A portrait of a family of five children in which conflicts arise. An animated diagram points out the increasing complexity of relationships among members of a growing family. Ways for working off hostilities and developing respect for individuals and mutual relations are shown. Stresses that even under good conditions, rivalry is present.

Uses: For parent discussion groups; for classes in child psychology; to stimulate discussions by adolescents

Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good

Comments: Sound content, good choice of incidents, helpful diagram. The film is somewhat stilted, attitude of father unrealistic, and solutions often pat and inadequate. Useful for discussion purposes.

Subject Area: Family sociology

Evaluator: Brockport State Teachers College, N.Y.; Peoria Public Library

Synopsis: A series of incidents in the life of a 28-year old farm boy, culminating in his decision to leave the farm because he feels no financial security or responsibility there. Flashbacks of farm scenes with a dominating father show growth of this pattern. The seriousness of the situation changes parents' attitude and they give son a share in the farm.

Uses: To depict a child's need for parental encouragement and a share of family responsibilities; to point out the problem of migrating farm youth.

Age Level: senior high, college, adult

Technical: Sound — ex-BSTC, fair-Peoria; Photography — ex-BSTC, good-Peoria

Comments: Brockport-Acting and commentary fine. Great emotional carry over. Solution well chosen and important for all people. Problems of migrating farm boys to cities not fully explored. Peoria-Strong human appeal with well-paced plot. Mood good. Probably most interesting for rural groups.

benign Jupiter and his wife Juno. (WPP)

Approaches the universal problem of improving the attitude of man toward man. It drives home the story of "courtesy is contagious" through a blend of fantasy and reality. It reveals the everyday experiences of an ordinary man who learns how to become "wisely selfish" through a miracle worked by a benign Jupiter and his wife Juno. (WPP)

BORN TO BE FREE (the evolution of rights)

How long was it before Man, walking down those endless corridors of time, first on all fours, then on two feet, came to believe that all men are created equal? Where, in the long millennia that led from fin to reptile foot to furry paw did social behavior and self awareness first begin? A wasp is born into its place in life. So is an ant — but ants are capable of learning. Birds can recognize each other, and develop a pecking order based on individual differences. Monkeys will permit an individual to live outside the group. But only man dreams of social behavior and self awareness first begin? A wasp is born into its place in life. pathetic cooperation within the context of personal integrity. Applying this to the contemporary artist, Odets reveals how acclaim, popularity, and the resultant "bandwagon psychology" produced by our news media, can induce an artist to accept his public image, consequently destroying the actual source of his creativity. Truly creative art is a source of self-discovery, an outward expression of an inner state of being, Odets reflects. The danger today is not in writing "occasional pieces" for monetary gain, but rather in confusing public status with internal growth. (MLA)

CONSUMER EDUCATION: INSTALLMENT BUYING

10 min., color
Two sisters, just out of high school, get jobs and decide it's time to buy a car. Dad offers to help with the down payment, but they must shop around for the best buy and the best method of financing the purchase. After finding the right car, they investigate the cost of financing through a bank, a small loan company, and their father's credit union. They learn the advantages and disadvantages of each financing arrangement, especially facts about add-on interest, interest computed on a sliding scale, and true annual interest (simple interest). They compare the maximum each agency will loan, interest rates and how they are computed, true annual interest rates, and total dollar cost. Armed with information, the girls ponder their decision. While they do, the film is stopped and the class tries to decide which course of action they should follow. As the film resumes, the girls realize that none of the possible solutions is wise. They decide to postpone buying the car and use other available transportation until they have saved more money for a larger down payment. Bailey Films ($120.00)

THE CRITICAL TIME

The importance of brief critical periods in permanently directing the pattern of future development. What do investigations with animals tell us about how enriched or deprived environments affect the potential of the brain? The ability to learn? Is there a direct relationship between nutrition and intelligence? Between stress in early life and the ability to adapt later on? Can the experience of the mother affect the personality of the unborn child? Do the effects of early experience, both prenatal and postnatal, become so deeply rooted in the biological structure that they usually persist throughout life? How does one critical time affect another? Might increased understanding of the critical times in the first few moments and first few years of life bring a greater awareness of the yet unreleased vitality of all mankind?

High school students demonstrate how they discovered ways to find opportunities for giving community service through Red Cross, Emulating Christopher Columbus, they boldly planned, experimented, and discovered for themselves and, in some instances, helped their elders discover unused capacities of teenagers. The film is good for showing to high school groups to encourage discussion on social responsibility. It also has the advantage of stimulating adult audiences to explore opportunities for service by young people. The leaflet Leader's Guide (ARC 1492), which accompanies the film, will help in planning effective showings for a variety of audiences. The guide states the purposes of the film and shows how to help achieve them through audience participation and follow-up action. Suggested questions for discussion, a synopsis identifying discoveries in the film, ideas for TV use and a bibliography are included.

HOSTILE ENVIRONMENT, THE (man can what he must)
What are we learning by studying earthly animals that can help man adapt to changes in his environment, physical and social, and to guard him against the hazards of space? Can we learn anything from the way a giraffe pumps blood up that long neck to nourish his brain? Why do rats, put in a tank to swim for their lives, swim much longer when given a little help? Because they have hope? Can man learn to endure the confinement of space flights which may last for a year? Can we foretell and protect ourselves against weightlessness by studying the effect on plants and frog embryos? Can we find ways to relax tensions by studying monkeys who develop ulcers when forced to make decisions? Life on earth has a long history of survival. "What will be man's fate as he plunges into the great void of space and dares the violence of solar flares," asks Dr. Eiseley. "No being on earth has ever attempted such a journey."

The mind of man may grow from the day of his conception until the day he dies — but how? The brain provides merely the possibility of being a man, particularly the possibility for acquiring language, the tool for thinking. But how is the precise and intricate circuitry established? Are men and animals born with built in wiring patterns for stimulus and response — or are conscious mental, psychic forces the crowning achievement of some five hundred million years or more of evolution? (Series: American economy: college of the air)

28 min., b&w

The economic systems discussed in this film—capitalism, socialism, and communism—represent something of a continuum when measured by the test of how many of the economic decisions are made in market-places and how many are made by central planning mechanisms. The concept of the continuum is of limited usefulness when measuring these systems by the degree of freedom left to the individual in his political and private life. (MCCER)

LET'S SHOOT THE DEVIL

30 min., b&w

This is a western in mime which takes a sharp look at the Puritan morality demonstrated in the classic TV "Western." By re-enacting the virtually stereotyped plot of the "Western" the extremes of good and bad are contrasted, and the false morality so strongly demonstrated is explained. Good is represented by the "good guy" who is always able to rise above temptation to engage in violence. Evil is represented by a "bad guy" who is in fact the devil. He generally falls victim to each of the temptations. The plot is imaginative, humorously pointed, and very easy to follow. (CAlF)

In this filmed dialogue Dr. Mead discusses her "modified optimism" for the survival of the human species—even with its potential for complete self-annihilation. With her refreshing historical perspective of man's social development, she points out man's selfless quest throughout the ages to protect those things he cherishes—from the primitive's awareness of family ties to our sophisticated concept of social ideals. Thus, human values become contingent upon what motivates men for the actualizing.

NATIONAL SECURITY VERSUS INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS—Lt. Raudulovich versus the Air Force
30 min.
(Edward R. Murrow's "See It Now")
In this film, Edward R. Murrow examines the difference between a loyalty and a security risk; emphasizes the importance of the relationship between the individual and the state; and highlights a case in which these issues were involved. The case reviewed is that of Milo Raudulovich, an Air Force Reserve Officer, who a security review board felt was a risk. There were no charges against him, only against his father and sister, who alleged Communist affiliations. In a series of interviews, Raudulovich, his friends, family, lawyer, etc., give their opinions on the case—all of which point up the difficulties involved in protecting national security and the rights of the individual at the same time. ART AND SEEING 2 reels, 22 min.
The artist's working material is derived or selected from a common property, the environment. One of the artist's major needs is to be aware of and to see the world around him. The motion picture camera makes it possible to hold and examine surfaces, textures, and patterns in clear detail. In this film we shall examine a number of areas and activities that are familiar to all of us. Through the camera's eye, we will seek out of the natural order, the design, as well as the infinite variety in the world we see every day. An examination is made of specific design elements: textures, patterns, shapes, and their changes in tones or values. These elements are organized by means of movement, suggested directions, changes in size, repeats, closed and open space, contrasts and harmonics, as well as the natural environmental relationships in the situations photographed. Highlights of the film: American labor has understandably been concerned over the impact of technological change on the quantity and quality of labor required in the productive process. The impact of automation on the labor force accounts for some of the recent emphasis upon work rules and job security in collective bargaining. In spite of the efforts of labor and management in specific situations, automation may contribute to persistent unemployment in particular areas. New programs of the Federal and local governments to redevelop depressed areas and retain manpower may help in minimizing the employment effects of automation. (MCEE)

IT'S YOUR DECISION Part I

26 min., Grades: S.C.A.

A good film for high school seniors or other individuals interested in starting a business of his own. Part I, shows how money enters into the operations of a business; that customers are "hard to get and easy to lose," how management must wrestle with the triple problem of pleasing the customers, the employees, and the stockholders; and that the earnings of a business must be sufficient to keep it strong and resistant to temporary emergencies.

IT'S YOUR DECISION Part II

15 min., Grades: S.C.A.

This film, in continuation of IT'S YOUR DECISION, Part I, presents questions to stimulate discussion on some of the basic problems of running a business. Through free and open discussion you can gain a better understanding of what makes business tick . . . you can reach your own conclusions as to the best ways to solve the many problems in which we all have such a vital stake. The Moderator in this film has been asked to stimulate discussion and keep the session rolling. No answers have been prepared. The meeting in Part II, will be what you make it. What conclusions should you reach? It's Your Decision!

COMMUNICATION

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION (Series: United States government)
15 min., b&w
In this film Newton N. Minow, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, describes briefly the physical properties of the air-wave spectrum and the limited quantities of this "natural resource." He also explains why some control of the use of this spectrum is necessary. The problem of a fair distribution of time and spectrum-space availability is examined—a problem compounded by the constant discovery of new communication facilities. Mr. Minow also describes the function of each of the four bureaus of the Commission.
The Safety and Special Radio Services Bureau is concerned with the protection of human life. The Field Engineering and Monitoring Bureau inspects, monitors, investigates and insures compliance with FCC rules governing the physical use of frequencies. The Common Carrier Bureau supervises telephone, telegraph and cable service. The Broadcast Bureau... regulates radio and television broadcasts. Space-age demands on the FCC are also discussed in this film. Mr. Minow concludes by stating, “Even now, we are stepping off into space to speed our links with the entire world. These new demands create a steady challenge for the Commission and its staff. We intend to meet those challenges with the same standards we require of FCC licenses: service, in the public interest.”

In this film, the question "will machines ever run man?" is considered and commented on by Mr. Eckert, Dr. Nagel and Dr. DeCarlo. The central conclusion: although the computer is the machine most like man himself, it is not the machine but the man who determines what is to be done. (IndU)

EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Economics, resources
Evaluator: The Conservation Foundation, New York City
Synopsis: Discussion of economics. Includes material relating to U.S. economic practices. Demonstrates what goods must be produced, how to produce them, and for whom. Illustrates three basic economic theories, the third of which is a compromise between the other two.
Uses: Introduction to economics
Age Levels: high school, college, adult
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: The most simple, lucid, and direct kinescope we have ever seen. Its clarity is exceeded only by the obvious improvement in kinescope technique. Every element is well above average. Highly recommended for students of economics and also for environmental scientists.

END IS JUST THE BEGINNING—#159
(Series: American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
Economics is an unfolding science. The American economy has changed greatly over a short space of time. Where will we go from here? The economist can only say on the basis of all that he knows that the end is nowhere in sight and that we have the resources and the know-how to make all the past mere prologue. Whether we do in fact use those resources and that know-how wisely will be intimately related to our ability to go on learning the facts of economic life and to face our ever-changing problem with objectivity and open minds. (MCEE)

GOALS AND GROWTH (Series: Money talks)
30 min.
Dr. John R. Coleman, Professor of Economics at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, examines gross national product and other indices used to measure our economy. These yardsticks show how we are meeting our major goals — continued growth, stable prices, full employment. He suggests how we are meeting our major goals, and his major interest is in the present point, our major interest is in increasing the gross national product (the summing up of the goods and services produced in a given time). Dr. Coleman explains how we must achieve continued or accelerated growth in the GNP, and shows the importance of the question of choice, especially in the context of economic freedom. (CARI)

HOW IMPORTANT IS MONEY?—#41
(Series: American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
Money has played a central role in American politics as well as in economics — from the Revolution down to the present day with its concern over gold outflows. The economist who studies the data presented must dig beneath them to ask which is cause and which is effect in such parallel movements. The film emphasizes the key role that the money supply has played in generating changes in gross national product and in the price level. (MCEE)

PEOPLE: THE QUALITY #14
(Series: The American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
Human resources for growth are at least as much a matter of the quality of the people as of the quantity. The economic function of a nation's educational system is to build human capital by increasing the capacity for using innate abilities to productive ends. One measure of the scale of the job ahead is apparent from looking at the projections of college enrollments for 1975. Americans have enjoyed a high standard of good health. There has been a tradition of exalting the virtues of hard work, frugality, self-improvement and self-confidence. (MCEE)

PEOPLE: THE QUANTITY #13
(Series: The American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
Population is of critical interest to the economist because of the roles that people play both as consumers and potential producers. Age groups, not in the labor force, are today expanding more rapidly than the labor force. United States and world population growths are presented. (MCEE)

PROSPECTS FOR RAPID GROWTH—#142, THE (Series: The American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
Economic development requires that a nation's leaders desire progress and that they are prepared to build the economic, political, legal, and social institutions necessary to translate that desire into action. The developing economy may face in a particularly stark form the kinds of choices that characterize all economic systems. Growth plans have typically involved larger roles for government than is true in the United States. (MCEE)

PUBLIC APPROACHES TO SECURITY—#101
(Series: The American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
Governmental programs to enhance the economic security of the aged, unemployed, handicapped, ill, and destitute have taken deep roots in the American soil, especially since the depression years of the 1930's. The present system of unemployment compensation benefits is chosen for concentrated attention here because it raises such a host of interesting economic issues. (MCEE)

WORLD OF ECONOMICS—#1
(Series: The American economy: college of the air)
28 min., b&w
The world of economics is all around us — economic institutions and phenomena lend themselves to orderly study. A keynote of the American economy is decentralized decision making by citizens, and the ability of those citizens to preserve and to improve what is best in their economic system which is tied to their ability to understand that system. The camera takes Pittsburgh and abundant symbols of economic activity and problems meet the eye. At each stop of the camera, new economic questions are asked. (MCEE)

28 min., sound, b&w, NEA, 1959
The film dramatically points up the deep satisfactions of teaching, the lovely magic when a small face lights up with comprehension, or a boy who hates school suddenly finds there's an important spot waiting for him in the school band or Kilowatt Club... shows the wide range of opportunities in teaching (where there are no employment worries) and the welcome, statistics on rising teacher salaries. It points out that it isn't just "anyone" who can teach. Teaching, says the film, must tap the best and the most promising of youth, and then their skills must be refined and sharpened in an exacting period of preparation... narrated by NBC newsmen, Stuart Finley. Segments in it shown from "Skippy & the 3 R's," "Mike Makes His Mark," and "Not by Chance." (MCEE)

Today the American flag flies over outposts in more than a hundred foreign countries. Under our Constitution, the President is responsible for foreign policy. It is the job of the Secretary of State to carry it out as the President's deputy and advisor. This film documents the makeup and functions of the U. S. Department of State. Beginning with an organizational breakdown, the film then illustrates the grinding of State's wheels during negotiations with Mexico on the construction of a crucial tracking station at Guayamas for our first manned-orbital flight. Behind this agreement were 16 months of meetings, discussions and negotiations involving officers and agencies at many levels on both sides of the Rio Grande. The film also describes the work of our Foreign Service offices, including the issuance of visas and passports and the protection of American citizens here and abroad. The intricate area of treaties and treaty-making is discussed by Dean Rusk, the Secretary of State. Mr. Rusk closes the film by observing that each U. S. citizen has his own responsibility for the foreign affairs of our country. He urges each citizen to "live in such a way as to demonstrate to the rest of the world what we mean by democracy, social progress, and the rights of individual man." (McG)

UPTON SINCLAIR—MLA (Series: Sum and substance)
30 min., b&w
In this filmed dialogue, Mr. Sinclair recalls his campaigns to achieve industrial democracy and in particular, his relatively brief but highly dramatic contact with the industrial empire of Henry Ford. Throughout all that he recounts, there is made particularly distinct his passion for social justice and an incredible zest for living. In his summation of what had come to have substantial meaning for him, he says, "... Nature has been, and can be, so cruel to us that surely we should busy ourselves not to commit cruelties against one another." (MLA)

Subject Area: Vocations; Journalism
Evaluator: Dartmouth College; Indiana University
Synopsis: Presents various aspects of journalism as a possible choice of career, and emphasizes thorough preparation as a basic requirement for success. Split stages allow the camera to swing from a narrator to the scenes, which depict misconceptions and more objective treatments of various newspaper jobs. Shows reporter in his total working situation.

Uses: For vocational advice; for high school newspaper staffs Age Level: senior high; college — Indiana
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: The story technique is somewhat intriguing but the presentation suffers from amateur acting.—Dartmouth.

The general tone of the film would scare more students away from journalism than it would attract. The visuals tend to indicate that too much is required. —Indiana.

MAN IN THE MIDDLE: THE STATE LEGISLATOR

(Parts 1-2)
55 min., McG., $250.00
NBC "White Paper" Series
This film explores the role of today's state lawmaker who is often caught up in conflicting pressure from governors, party leaders, lobbyists and constituents. The film attempts to answer the question of whether State Legislators, as originally conceived, can deal effectively with complex modern problems. This film is unique in that it uses the technique of self-examination in an area that is rarely documented. State Legislators themselves discuss the sources of the pressures exerted upon them. One highlight of the film is an unusual speech on the floor of the House of Representatives of Minnesota, when a member discusses a subject normally considered taboo — State Legislator's low pay and their resulting financial problems; major part of this program was filmed in the state capitol in St. Paul, Minnesota.

GOALS OF UNIONS — #107
(American economy: college of the air)
28 min.
Historically, trade union leaders saw the function of their organizations primarily in terms of direct impact upon employers. The goals of unionism within the employment relationship must be understood both as economic aims and an effective system for handling grievances. With the growth in unionism, many leaders have become equally interested in, and concerned about, the place of the union in the economy as a whole. (MCCE)

How Local 100 was formed. The sudden dismissal of an employee makes the others realize their lack of job security. Discussion leads to the organizing of a trade union. The film relates the steps that followed — the approach to the national union, the assistance given by an organizer from union headquarters, and the signing up of the workers which resulted in Local 100 being declared the legal bargaining authority. We see, too, how collective bargaining was carried on to obtain a contract providing job security and improved conditions. The earliest labor unions in the United States were organized primarily among the skilled trades and typically vanished with severe depressions. However, the American Federation of Labor, a federation of labor unions founded in 1886, grew and endured. In the twentieth century the large industries used mass-production techniques and large quantities of semi-skilled and unskilled labor, not easily organized on a craft basis. Crown Film Unit; Dist-British Information Services, 30 Rockefeller Pl. N.Y. 20
Subject Area: Nursing. Vocational guidance Evaluators: Brockport State Teachers College, N. Y.
Synopsis: The story of how a woman became a nurse following an automobile accident in which her husband died. Various psychological causes, such as escape from personal grief and guilt feelings, which led to her decision are indicated. Two or three typical types of nurses are portrayed in typical learning, training and practicing situations.
Uses: To depict the career of nursing for vocational guidance courses; for teacher training health programs.
Age Level: Senior high, college
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: Great emphasis was placed on the psychological reasons for choosing nursing as a career. Personal characteristics, skills and attitudes depicted slowly. Too long and slow to accomplish objectives.

The Military Nurse
14 min., color, free, 1963
Distributed by any military recruiting station
Subject Area: Career in the field of nursing Evaluators: Montgomery County, Maryland Public Schools
Synopsis: The film is basically designed as a recruiting film for a military nursing career. It includes all branches of the Armed Forces and gives an orientation to the entire field of military nursing. The film stresses the fact that the Armed Forces are continually trying to keep up with modern advances in medicine.
Age-Grade Level: Senior high school, college, adult Technical: Structure — excellent; Picture quality — excellent; Sound — excellent Comment: The film is very well done, but it tends to glamorize the occupation by not showing the more unpleasant and routine tasks. The film is especially suitable for nursing students or for persons interested in training in this field.
Rating: in NVGA Guidelines: Highly recommended

SCIENCE

BEGINNINGS, THE
How did life begin? Did tremendous bolts of lightning, flashing for millions on millions of years across a bleak and barren primitive planet furnish the energy to set the complex chemistry of life in motion? Were the proteins — without which no living thing exists — forged and formed in the enormous heat of titanic volcanic eruption? Were those elements which somehow came together to begin the process of life waiting on the wings of infinity — always there? Is life a part of an Immense Design? The frontiers of research into the building blocks of life on earth and in the universe. New discoveries in the laboratories of Dr. Cyril Ponnamperuma at Ames, Dr. Sidney Fox at the University of Florida, and at Monsanto are leading us closer to the secret. GERALD HEARD
(Series: Sum and substance)
30 min., b&w
Gerald Heard, philosopher, historian and scientist, has authored numerous penetrating books and also has written award winning mystery stories under a pseudonym. In this film dialogue he traces the development of men's awareness from primitive consciousness to abstract intelligence and, finally, the subsequent rise of "self" consciousness. He discusses the modern mind in terms of finally understanding its own process and its unique ability to both perceive and analyze at the same time. Thus, he feels, we are arriving at a knowledge of the very essence of the creative process. This "integral" thought demands of us both an intellectual curiosity and a willingness to participate fully in life. It asks of the student both an open mind and a gentle heart. (MLA)

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL PROBLEMS

ACTION AGAINST THE LAW
(An excerpt from the Lawless)
30 min.
This is a story of a town and of some of its people, who in the grip of blind anger forget their American heritage of tolerance and decency, and become the lawless. Introductory sequences establish the atmosphere of tension existing between the people of Marta and the fruit pickers, whom they call "Cholos," on "the other side of the tracks." A group of town boys invade a fruit pickers' dance, and a fight ensues. An excitable reporter exaggerates the story. In fleeing the fight, a young fruit picker startles a girl, causing her to fall and injure herself. A "sob sister" expands this incident into a case of criminal assault.
A posse captures the youth. When a level-headed editor attempts to sift the facts in the interest of justice, irresponsible townspeople decide to storm the jail and lynch the youth. Only the quick action of the sheriff and the editor averts a terrible miscarriage of justice. (TFC)

AMERICAN ALCOHOLIC, THE
The word alcoholic often brings to mind a caricature of an unshaven Skid Row transient. Who would think a member of the family next door, an average middle-class American, would be one of the six million alcoholics in our country? In fact, about 70% of all alcoholics do live in respectable neighborhoods, pay taxes, raise families, and have life styles which would never betray their problem. In this study of middleclass alcoholism, a number of these men and women tell of their difficulty with drinking problems and the struggle to overcome them. Produced by NBC News.

One of our nation's most hideous crimes is studied in this film which is directed to parents and teachers. The film stresses the importance of alerting children about molesters and shows how a molester education program can be successfully and safely taught. The film is based upon an actual case in which two young girls were murdered by a convicted molester. Police films show the search and recovery of the girls' bodies to drive home the consequences of neglecting to educate children about this subject. A strong story line emphasizes that most sex crimes against children could be prevented if the youngsters had been taught certain basic precautions. The film shows in detail how rules of safety and good conduct can be adapted for molester education. (HSF)

CONSTITUTION AND THE RIGHT TO VOTE, THE
Produced by the Center for Mass Communication of Columbia University Press.
This film, shot in Houston, Tex., is based on two cases in which the "white primary" was challenged: Grovey vs. Townsend and Smith vs. Allwright. The film traces the steps by which the aggrieved party took his case into the courts and was eventually upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. This film could be useful not only for a discussion on how Negroes are gaining the right to vote in the South because of the Supreme Court decision but to promote a discussion of the Civil Rights law passed in the 85th Congress. Prod-NBC; dist-Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation, 425 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611
EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Criminology
Evaluator: Santa Monica, California, Unified School District
Synopsis: Documentary based on NBC's TERROR IN THE STREETS. Contrasts crime in a wealthy apartment house in NYC with that in a Negro section in Harlem. Cub drivers give their impressions that crime is on the rise. Statistics gathered by FBI in 1963 indicate that there has not been an increase in crime in the cities. There is difference between violent crimes and money (robbery) crimes. Experts give their opinions.
Uses: Sociology, U.S. history and government.
Age Level: Senior high through adult Technical: Sound and photography — good; Structure — very good Comment: Good analysis of the facts, putting crime in its perspective. Historical references good. Thoroughly done; should be very useful.

DANGEROUS YEARS
27 min., b&w, 1967
"The dangerous years" refers to the middle and late teen-age when a young person may turn from pranks to crime. The film attempts to impress upon the viewer the extent of juvenile crime in the U.S. In interviews police officers and judges discuss the scope of the crimes and some of the reasons behind them. A particularly effective sequence examines the life of a man of 25, who, since the age of 17, has made his living by stealing. After a brief look at inadequate courtroom and parole facilities, the film presents 3 exciting, experimental programs for rehabilitation and prevention being tried in various parts of the country that offer new ideas in law enforcement. No actors are used in this thoroughly believable film which is only slightly marred by uninspiring pleas for civic action by the sponsoring company. It is recommended for use with community affairs groups and those citizens and officials concerned with crime and law enforcement. — Booklist and Subscription Books Bulletin 1968.

Subject Area: Alcoholism; mental health
Evaluator: Teachers College, Columbia University
Synopsis: Depressed after one of his extended drinking sprees, David and his wife accept a friend's advice to consult a doctor. Tracying his "disease" to its beginnings, we discover how, as a shy, young man, David overcame his timidity by drinking. Frustrations in his job and other circumstances strengthen the habit. The doctor points out that the case is not hopeless, but, like any disease, will require long effort and patience.
Uses: To increase understanding of the problems of alcoholism in young adult and church groups, and mental hygiene classes
Age Level: senior high, college, adult
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — excellent Comment: Does not try to simplify a very complex problem or offer any pat solution. Well acted with restrained emotion, it communicates the ideas effectively. Doctor was vague in spots; no definite suggestions.

DEPRESSED AREAS—#123
(Series: American economy; college of the air)
28 min., b&w
The common characteristic of the depressed areas is that they have suffered a substantial drop in the number of jobs available to the local populace. Job opportunities may be lost in an area because of movement or abandonment of productive facilities. Our present policy toward depressed areas combines efforts to bring new jobs to the men with efforts to send the men to new jobs. A mining town in West Virginia where there is now much less mining activity shows the meaning of "depressed area" and its impact on the people involved. What does one do when there is no work? What do people in and around this situation see in the future. (MCE)

DROPOUT
29 min., b&w, 1961
Landers Film Reviews: May, 1962
Subject: Social Studies
Age Level: Senior high, college, adult
Summary: The film stresses the hidden causes of dropouts in the family life, in the community, and in our educational system. It suggests possible remedies, defines the social, economic, and educational losses suffered by the community that does not successfully come to grips with this serious national problem. The film shows some of the pressures that make a child quit school and stresses the point that dropouts do not happen over night. The film also stresses the terrible waste of youth from dropouts.

Comments: The film treats the subject in a straight-forward fashion, and although it does not place the blame on any one area of responsibility, it does discuss the home, the school, and the economic conditions which, when combined, do cause dropouts. The film should arouse concern and good discussion in parent and teacher groups and other community groups. It is excellent and highly recommended. (IFB)

EPILEPTIC SEIZURE PATTERNS
25 min., color

The purposes of this film are to demonstrate a variety of types of epileptic seizures and to show and compare normal electroencephalograph tracings with several epileptic types. Historical and geographical aspects of epilepsy are shown through original artwork as an introduction. A normal man is shown being wired to an electro-encephalograph (EEG), and his EEG tracings are recorded, and the patterns are explained. Various types of epileptic seizures are depicted by motion picture sequences of actual patients: 1. Grand mal, 2 Petit mal, 3. Automatism, 4. Myoclonic, 5. Psychomotor, 6. Mixed adverse-grand mal. Electroencephalograph tracings are simultaneously exhibited for most of the examples through the use of the "split-frame" technique. Synchronous sound accompanies some of the samples in order to give audio as well as visual characteristics of the seizures shown. (IndU)

Kate Shepherd and Morris Priebatsch, technical advisers Dwight Ferguson, consultant. Produced, written, and directed by Nicholas C. Read. Sponsor: Mississippi State Department of Welfare with the cooperation of the Children's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Potomac Films, Inc. Various aspects of juvenile delinquency are dramatically presented. The film illustrates the function of the juvenile court, the work of child-welfare agencies, and especially the role of the social worker. Possible relationships between juvenile delinquency and socioeconomic conditions are also suggested. Different film sequences show two boys in their relation to their home environment, in their delinquent behavior, and in various situations resulting from court decisions and from social welfare activities. The film emphasizes the importance of a causal approach to delinquency; the need for a better understanding of child behavior, and the role being played by various social-welfare agencies, as symbolized by the child-welfare worker. The film could be used profitably in general and social psychology classes for analysis and interpretation of juvenile delinquency and its sociocultural aspects.

OPPORTUNITY TO HEAR
28 min., color
This film acquaints the audience with the problem of hearing loss in children. It shows some of the behavioral problems which can result from hearing loss; and the importance of early detection, medical follow-up, counseling, and special educational and remedial procedure. An introductory sequence relates the concepts "children" and "hearing loss." The narrator, an otologist, emphasizes early detection by showing two infants being tested. Next behavioral problems which may result from hearing loss are illustrated. Poor speech, poor scholarship, disobedience, day dreaming, aggression or withdrawal — general lack of communication. One of the major problems of a hard-of-hearing child is that his handicap does not show. (UofF)

POINT OF RETURN
24 min., b&w $135.00, IFB
Introducing this film, Dr. Karl Menninger points out that suicide can be reduced only through understanding of the problem and appreciation of its seriousness. The story recounts chronologically the events of a day culminating with a suicide attempt. Discussing this case-history, Dr. Howard Rome, Dr. Edwin S. Shneidman, Dr. Floyd S. Cornellison, and Mrs. Mary Hall agree that cases resulting in death frequently follow a pattern. By flashing back to selected sequences of the story, the panel comments on the important incidents of suicide, its effects on the survivors, and the need for preventive programs. The tendency of suicide-minded persons to cry out for help while planning self-destruction, and the usual behavioral changes, are discussed. Pointing out that there must be more thinking and discussion about suicide, the panel rejects the premise that no one has the right to interfere in another’s life, but insists that it is an obligation. TALKING SENSE: DO YOU KNOW HOW TO MAKE A STATEMENT A FACT?

3 reels, 30 min.

This film is one of a series which promotes more effective spoken communication by analyzing and illustrating the factors that lead to misunderstanding and trouble when people talk together. Dr. Lee discusses the differences between statements of fact and statements of inference. He emphasizes the importance and consequences of being aware of these differences. Numerous illustrations are given, with a detailed explanation of how facts can be distinguished from inferences. Dr. Lee shows that when a person is not aware that there is a difference between fact and inference, he may act as if inference were fact. This often leads to arrogant behavior and causes friction in human relations.

WILLIAM FAULKNER'S MISSISSIPPI
49 min.
Using the knowledge, wisdom, humor, and language of Faulkner against the background of today's rural Mississippi, this film brings to life the social transformation that is taking place there. Faulkner's own words explain his heritage of Confederate history and mythology, how the curse first of slavery and then of the caste system brought on the deterioration of a proud people and the destruction of much of nature's bounty. Subject Area: Christopher movement
Evaluators: Minneapolis Public Library, Kalamazoo Public Library
Synopsis: Father Keller explains the purposes of the Christophers to a group of Hollywood personalities in the home of Jack Benny. He says that the fields of education, government, labor relations, and creative endeavor will never be any better than the people in them, and that even a few sincere Christophers can change these fields for the better.
Uses: To explain the Christopher movement; for career clinics, church groups, and political and labor groups seeking to raise standards.
Technical: Sound — exc-Kal, good-Minn.; Photography — exc-Kal, good-Minn.
Comment: Minneapolis-Style is convincing and emphasizes sincerity of those concerned with issues discussed. Preachy in spots. Nothing to indicate connection with Roman Catholic Church. Kalamazoo-No action and all dialogue but personality of Father Keller keeps film from being boring.

YOU'RE NO GOOD
28 min., b&w, 1966
The purpose of this film is to initiate and stimulate discussions with potential school dropouts and delinquent youths about antisocial behavior — what it is and what can be done about it. Presented are a series of episodes that reflect the attitudes, emotions and actions of Eddie McGee — a fatherless and confused 18-year-old school dropout. Eddie steals a motorcycle, and after a period of great anxiety, decides to give himself up to the police. (McG)

BETTER SCHOOLS FOR A BETTER AMERICA
14 min., 1961, Rental $3.00
Produced by AFL-CIO for the TV Series, "Americans at Work."
This film traces the history of the labor movement's fight for free public education throughout the history of our nation.
From the 1820's when the Workingmen's Party made free public education a major plank of its platform to the turn of the century when the AFL called for state laws making school attendance compulsory, the trade union movement has demonstrated its belief that education is the bulwark of democracy.
The film also documents the current school problems — the shortage of classrooms, unsafe school buildings, low salaries for teachers, overcrowded classrooms, high school students deprieved of a college education because of lack of money.

HAROLD TAYLOR

(Series: Sum and substance)

30 min., b&w

Today, the administrative and public relations demands upon our college presidents prohibit them from sharing in the very intellectual life they are responsible for developing. Thus, Harold Taylor, educator and philosopher, resigned in 1959 as president of Sarah Lawrence College in order to pursue his interest in philosophy. In this filmed dialogue, Dr. Taylor suggests the relationship between philosophy and experience, or, as he prefers it, "ideas and action," and relates his discoveries to our schools. Dr. Taylor feels that of paramount value is "the capacity to react sensitively to life itself; without this there is nothing." It is the foundation upon which all education — in and out of school — should exist. Dr. Taylor concisely touches upon such problems as that of the teacher and student as organization men, "objective" teaching, the influence of the State on its educational institutions; but throughout his keen appraisals of the modern scene there is apparent his deep concern for the quality of man's personal values which alone can give meaning to the student of life.

SKIPPY AND THE 3 R'S
30 min.
This film is a detailed and accurate account of how children learn the 3 R's. But, more important, it shows that children learn the basic tools naturally and easily. It shows that the 3 R's are tools to help children understand and work and live satisfyingly in the world about them. This film will do much to dispel the fears of many parents concerning the progress of their children in learning the fundamentals — reading, writing, and arithmetic. It shows that today's teachers have a plan of instruction which is based on scientific knowledge and skill.

McGraw-Hill
EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Speech
Evaluator: Hempstead Public Schools, New York
Synopsis: Bill Smith makes a speech to a luncheon club but the talk fails flat. Bill goes to his college professor to find out why. His professor emphasizes the importance of planning a speech, getting the attention of the audience, organizing the contents, bringing in facts and cases or reasons, and offering a conclusion or suggested action. Various examples of these pointers are given.
Uses: To stress the importance of planning and organizing a speech and to explain the basic steps involved.
Age Level: Senior high, college, adult
Technical: Sound — good; Photography — good
Comment: The steps in planning a speech are well explained and demonstrated. A planned speech is a more interesting one, will keep the speaker on his subject, and will make him a better speaker.

WHAT IS EDUCATION? AN OXFORD DIALOGUE
12 min., color, $135.00
At Oxford University, some of Britain's foremost educators discuss the philosophy and implications of the question: "What is education?" One educator comments: "Education is really stretching the person . . . " to help him face social, intellectual and moral situations. Another asks if education is "teaching the individual or mere mass instruction?" The interesting reflections and comments of these educators provide not only a thought-provoking dialogue but also stimulate the viewer to examine his own conception of "education." Educators in this discussion include: Alan Bullock, Master, St. Catherine's College, Oxford; Enid Starkey, Oxford Don; Maurice Shock, Estates Burser, University College, Oxford; Lord James of Rusholme, Vice-Chancellor, York University; Sir John Maud, Master, University College, Oxford. "YOU" IN THE UNION, THE
25 min., color
In this film two college freshmen face the problem of deciding how to use their time in college to the best advantage. The story that unfolds is both challenging and informative. Their frustrations, their heartaches, their laughs and joys in adjusting to college life are brought to the screen with memorable impact. This film portrays clearly the function of the college union, explaining its part in the overall college program. It also graphically outlines the role of the union board of governors and its student committees. How the college union helps to bring together the academic, social, recreational, and cultural life of the campus is effectively dramatized.

This film stresses the importance of preventive medicine among children through the regular and continual health supervision of a physician. A direct personal approach — without preaching — makes the film unusually suited for those directly concerned with this problem — especially parents. Also outlined is the frequency with which children of different ages should visit a physician. Produced by the Smart Family Foundation.

MARRIAGE TODAY
25 min.
This film shows two couples who are making their marriage work. The keystone of their marriages is the companionship, physical and psychological, which they offer each other. Personalities may differ, their work may differ, but true love has deeper roots. They have perspective.

PARENT TO CHILD ABOUT SEX
31 min., color
This film is a frank discussion, intended for parents, of how to develop healthy attitudes towards sex in their children. It shows parents answering questions concerning sex asked by children, teenagers discussing their problems of growing up, and doctors talking with children and teenagers about physical and psychological aspects of sex. The film warns parents of the danger of improper or inadequate sex education.

PLAY AND PERSONALITY 45 minutes
This film is a record, over a period of ten months, of the play of a group of pre-school children. The mothers of these children were being treated in the hospital by psychotherapy for severe neurotic problems. The children themselves were living in the hospital with their mothers. The film is particularly concerned with the stories of two boys aged two and four years. It attempts to show how these two boys' anxieties about themselves and their parents were revealed in play, and how the nature of these anxieties seems to be related to the mothers' own difficulties. In this film patterns of behavior that are concerned primarily with response to threatening, dangerous, emergency situations are discussed in detail. The various types of emergency emotional responses are described and examples given of their influence upon the behavioral pattern or adaptive maneuvers that the individual picks to meet emergency situations in the environment. The importance of this type of response to the survival of the individual, and the causal relationship of emergency responses to disturbed behavior and symptom formation is discussed. (U of M)

Distributed by Stuart Reynolds Production, 9465 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Subject Area: Problems of perception and projection

Evaluators: Montgomery County, Maryland Public Schools

Synopsis: The Eye of the Beholder is an interdisciplinary film covering just twelve hours in the life of Michael Gerard, the artist. After a brief introduction visually pointing out the discrepancy between reality and perception, the film depicts five widely varying views of five acquaintances' perception of Michael. At this point, the film may be stopped for discussion. The final half of the film shows how Michael views himself and how varied the acquaintances' fragmented impressions are from his 'impressions of himself. This film cuts across so many disciplines that it could be used in several professional and occupational areas.

Age-grade levels: Senior high school.

COLLEGE • ADULT / PERSONAL-SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

Comment: This is an informative, entertaining, and stimulating film that would illicit top-notch discussions among high school students. It is excellent for pointing out the lack of validity of pre-conceived ideas or pre-judgment of an individual. It is not a classical occupational film but it does show the kinds of interrelationships which are valid for all occupations.

Synopsis: Arnold Toynbee and James Beveridge present a study of four religions — Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, and Christianity — showing where they differ and where they agree.

Uses: Increase understanding of four great religions.

Age Level: senior high, college, adult

Technical: Sound — fair to excellent; Photography — good to excellent

Comment: Comprehensive, giving excellent capsules of the four religions. Toynbee's speech difficult to understand. Would be most beneficial to students who have done studies of the religions previously. Very useful for promoting a better understanding among our religions. Idea is only fairly well developed.

LITTLE BIT MORE, A
13 min., 30 sec. 16 mm; sound; b&w, Stock No. 321567
With a glow of pride, Ralph Bellamy narrates a story about people whose lives have special meaning. He asks you to go with him as he visits neighbors who contribute something special to the lives of others. Beyond doing their own jobs well, they are all volunteers in service to their community, each doing "a little bit more." Throughout the years, help to others has often meant the difference between life or death. Amy Jenkins, a Red Cross Motor Service volunteer, discovers that this help still is given today when her neighbor, Betty Bishop, becomes seriously ill and is rushed to the hospital. One call for assistance starts other calls that bring more than sympathy. They bring an end to tears and worry for the Bishops. Use of this film on television and in the community will stimulate others to serve in one of the many Red Cross volunteer services depicted. This film was made possible as a public service by the Becton-Dickinson Foundation for the Advancement of Scientific Knowledge. (ARC)

The purpose of this film is to show how small groups can learn to work together effectively, to present discussion—to stimulate situations about dynamics of group work and to show some common pitfalls in small-group activity. The film shows a nurse's staff meeting—a relatively unfamiliar situation is presented so that attention may be focused on process and personalities rather than on content. The observer can concentrate on the ways in which the participants work together and react to each other. The film is therefore useful to any study group as a mirror for looking at its own techniques. The principles and problems here demonstrated apply to all groups. (TCCU)

The Athletic Institute has produced a fascinating new film in cooperation with the National Conference on Physical Education. "READINESS — THE FOURTH R" is a color film designed to interpret to lay publics the values and outcomes of physical education, including athletics, in our schools and colleges. Throughout a child's life, he or she constantly hears of "Reading," "Riting," and "Rithmetic." Now the Athletic Institute adds a "Fourth R" to the school curriculum — "Readiness." By the term "Readiness," we mean the quality of being ready physically, emotionally and mentally for anything.

Within the format of the film are such outstanding features as: Astronaut John Glenn, athletics at Michigan State University, elementary school classwork and various physical education classes. To survive in the space age curriculum, The Athletic Institute feels that "Readiness — The Fourth R" is an essential. The running time of this sound color film is 16 minutes. CITY PLANNING

BUILDING BETTER CITIES
3 reels, color
The scientific and technical advances of America have brought new products, new comforts and conveniences. They have also created problems for our communities—things like traffic, congestion, creeping slum areas, and the proper utilization of valuable land in our cities and towns. This film outlines the causes and effects of the possible solutions to the problems faced by American communities. This film is useful in stimulating community understanding of—and action on—urban problems.

COMPUTERS AND HUMAN BEHAVIOR
(Computers and Human Mental Processes), Focus on Behavior Series, 30 min.
This program explores some of the research being conducted at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, with electronic digital computers, in an effort to evolve new theories about human mental processes. Dr. Bert Green, professor of psychology, demonstrates his computer experiments with perception of motion and depth. Dr. Herbert Simon, with the help of the computer, presents his theory of how human beings memorize. And Dr. Allan Newell shows how the computer was responsible for creating a new theory about human problem solving.

3 reels, 29 min.
Through animation, the initial section of this film pictures the basic elements in a modern continuous, self-adjusting control system. “Feed-back” is shown to be essential. A thermostat is used as a simple example. Then, control systems built around a computer are discussed. For illustration, John McCarthy of the Wyman Gordon Company, a medium sized industrial plant, shows computer installation at the plant and how his firm uses the computer to keep track of and integrate information on everything from inventory to payroll. A computer is shown controlling and operating the tooling of delicate machine parts at the Numerical Machining Corporation in Cleveland. Various other computer systems are shown in doing specific work.

Subject Area: Business machines; film technique
Evaluator: New Brunswick, N.J., Public Library
Synopsis: An animated presentation concerning man’s need to widen and strengthen his knowledge by collecting, storing, and correlating data. His success in controlling his environment depends to a great extent upon accurate prediction in initiating a causal sequence. Today’s complex machines depend on man to analyze and reduce problems to the statistical form which machines can handle with top performance.
Uses: To inform the business man in what computers can and cannot do; for discussion of automation; for study of photographic techniques
Age Level: college, adult
Technical: Sound — excellent; Photography — excellent
Comment: Its technique obscures its theme. While the drawings are imaginative and fascinating they diffuse the producer’s purpose. As an art film it is excellent, but is too vague as a view of computer’s role.

LOGIC BY MACHINE (Computer and the Mind of Man)
3 reels
This film serves as an introduction to the series and the subject of electronic computers. Dr. Hamming discusses how speed and cost, and effort favor the computer over the laboratory approach. Dr. Magel talks about the relationship of man and machine and the relationship of the symbolic world of mathematics to the real world of objects and events. Although they cannot think, computers and related data processing systems are shown to be almost fantastic machines with which to calculate, remember, and compare.

Comment: Indicates that the loss of pride, prestige, and sat-is-many different scenes, and the narration is sometimes difficult to understand, but it does bring out the importance of the individual and his ideas of self-realization.

CHANGING ATTITUDES THROUGH COMMUNICATION
(Series: Berlo communication)
29 min., color
The manager's job involves more than making decisions. Since decisions require change in the organizational system, he must also develop a strategy for change. However, the introduction of change often arouses resistance. Dr. Berlo explains that rejection, distortion, and avoidance are major ways of resisting change which the manager must anticipate and correct — through effective communication. (BNA)

COMMUNICATING MANAGEMENT'S POINT OF VIEW
(Series: Berlo communication)
24 min., color
Some managers don't like to think of themselves as persuaders.
They prefer to believe that they just give subordinates information — and they make up their own minds. But, says Dr. Berlo, persuasion is a vital part of the manager's job — affecting and changing people’s beliefs and attitudes and behavior. It is therefore necessary that managers become skilled in this aspect of communication techniques. Through dramatic examples, the film demonstrates the principal ingredients of effective persuasion: empathy and credibility. The manager must see the world from the other man's point of view. And he must have established a reputation for competence, dependability, and drive. Effective communication involves skill, concludes Dr. Berlo, but it also involves a basic faith in people. (BNA)

COMMUNICATION FEEDBACK
(Series: Berlo communication)
24 min., color
The manager works through other people. He communicates with them to get results and he has to observe and weigh their responses (feedback) to know how well he's doing, says Dr. Berlo. Feedback can be ignored or misunderstood, causing communication breakdown. In order to attain the four principal objectives of management — communication, attention, understanding, acceptance, and action — the manager must always watch for feedback and correct his communication accordingly. Dramatizations show non-use and mis-use of feedback: a typical staff conference, a confused secretary, a resentful employee. The manager has to be able to "read" people in order to predict and affect their behavior. He must interpret feedback with care, because people often mean something different from what they say. Effective communication means getting results by affecting behavior, not passing messages back and forth, or holding unnecessary meetings, or preparing unnecessary reports. But effective communication is impossible if feedback is ignored, distorted, avoided, or simply not perceived. (BNA)

CASE OF THE MISSING MAGNETS, THE (Modern Management Films)
1/2 reels, color
Motivating Employees for Better Productivity — For interest and variety, this film is a take-off on TV “private eye” programs. The story tells how a supervisor takes a bunch of gold-bricking, sloppy employees and turns them into a functioning, heads-up team. While presenting many points for supervisory discussion of the difference between high-producing and low-producing departments, the film challenges every supervisor who sees it to ask himself this crucial question: “What kind of a team would I be working with me?” Complete discussion plan accompanies the film. HIDDEN GRIEVANCE, THE (Plant Supervisors' Problems Series)
10 min., color $125.00, b&w $65.00, McG.
Recognizing, handling, and preventing employee grievances. The purpose of this film is to show that the main cause of a grievance is not necessarily the one advanced by the employee. Surface symptoms and complaints may be offered because they are more readily listened to or less easily refuted. But unrest and discontent will prevail until the real grievance breaks out in an open manner. And unless a supervisor is sensitive to grievance symptoms and tries to get at underlying causes, the grievance will not be settled properly. (McG)

The purpose of this film is to raise a discussion about just what cooperation involves. The film depicts a supervisor informing his clerical group that they must finish certain work before they leave. Because of his delay in completing this material the group must work overtime and miss their company-bowling night. He leaves early. At another occasion they are asked to work overtime and the supervisor gets no volunteers. They feel that they are not treated fairly. CHILDREN WITHOUT 30 min., b&w, 1964
The film explains how a school in an economically sub-standard urban area attempts to solve the educational problems of culturally deprived children. Filmed at Franklin School, Detroit, it dramatizes the experience of one little girl who attends such a school. (Lib. of Congress)

Purposes: to document the desperate conditions under which children in the inner city grow up, and the efforts of education to break the cycle.
Review: The tragedy of the culturally deprived children of today's inner city is poignantly portrayed. The film defines the social and economic forces which have driven uneducated and untrained rural families into the city slums, the degrading conditions under which these families live, and the role of the school in reaching children whose parents do not recognize the value of education. In documentary style, the film traces the specific action taken by the Franklin School in Detroit, Michigan, to reach these children and their parents through love and understanding, creative teaching methods, special remedial reading and speech therapy classes, a special problems counsellor, and a school community agent.
Comment: This is an emotionally and intellectually compelling film for college, education and sociology classrooms and for all adult audiences. It was nominated for a Landers Associates Award of Merit, 1964. (Landers Film Reviews, Sept. 1965)

CLINICAL TYPES OF MENTAL DEFICIENCY

(Rev. Ed., Formerly "Feebleminded")

32 min., 4 reels

This is a revised edition of the film formerly titled "The Feebleminded." The film is intended for students of pathology and psychology, public health and social workers, and other whose work brings them in contact with mental deficients and who would benefit by the ability to recognize such cases. New introductory footage, improved main titles and subtitles throughout the film have been added and new end footage has been prepared. In addition, the revised edition includes a new narration embodying the best current thinking in the diagnosis, treatment and prognosis relating to the types of mental deficiency covered in the film. The introduction summarizes briefly the brain conditions causing mental deficiency. A sequence on performance testing demonstrates the classification of mental deficients into morons, imbeciles, and idiots. The body of the film describes the eight major pathological groups of mental deficiency, and typical cases illustrate each type. In such groups as cerebral palsy, encephalograms are used to help explain the pathology.

Comment: The problem of the "middle child" is sensitively handled, leaving the solution open to the viewer. This film is a good film for parents to see because of its high degree of empathy. The only criticism is that it is somewhat drawn-out. Should be effective for discussion.

Subject Area: Psychiatry; art
Evaluator: Harvard Medical School
Synopsis: Aloyse is a chronic schizophrenic patient in Switzerland who at 77 is still expressing herself through stylized symbolic paintings. Her illness began during young adulthood, and she has remained institutionalized since. Showing some artistic development in the pictures after her early efforts, the film points out details of her work which relate to her illness: her delusions and sexual preoccupations are expressed in her paintings but not at all in her behavior.
Uses: Art students: encourage expression; Mental health professionals
Age Level: College, adult
Technical: Sound-good; Photography-very good; Structure-fair
Comment: Delightful paintings in a fascinating, although long, film. Fails to focus on either art or psychosis, putting the lady somewhat on display.

The film exposes the “block-busters” real estate agents who besiege all the neighbors of a new Negro resident, urging them to sell now before the value of your house goes down. It is a daring drama about a Negro family who has moved into an all-white northern suburban community. It is a southern white housewife, and not her northern husband, who displays courage and understanding when some of their neighbors are panicked into selling their homes. (CFI)

This film argues that welfare aid is a material and a moral problem. Americans have always given freely to needy citizens, but have lost sight of the vital humanitarian reasons that should lie behind such giving. Interviews filmed on the streets of New York and in the slum area homes reveal mental attitudes of these "superfluous people". In addition the film presents the thoughts of social workers, clergymen, authors, educators and city planners who are concerned with society's neglect of these people.

BROADER CONCEPT OF METHOD—PART II

13 min., 1¾ reels

Teacher and Pupils Planning and Working Together—This film demonstrates how pupils and teachers may plan and work together. It starts by presenting a frank picture of the conventional teacher-dominated subject-centered, lesson-bearing method which emphasizes "tricks of the trade" and rigid lesson plans. Shown are typical effects of this method upon student attitudes, responses, and learning. Next the film shows some relaxing of this procedure to admit some pupil interest and of formal recitation and the informal group discussion type of class session which concludes it. In the latter part, under unobtrusive teacher guidance, pupils are permitted to share in the planning of their work. In the class shown, the sharing of planning and freedom of discussion lead to an idea for a class project. Development of this project with a delineation of the values therein is presented in Part II. (McG)

10 min., color $120.00, 1952
Frank Bach, Central Washington College; Dis-Bailey Films
EFLA Evaluation
Subject Area: Teaching Methods, Art
Evaluators: Dallas Independent Schools, Salinas Public Schools, Calif.
Synopsis: Cartoons introduce theme that individual differences in children must be respected and encouraged if art education is to have any value. A four point procedure for art lessons is suggested: motivation, orientation (planning), creation, and display. Actual classroom situation illustrates this type of teaching and cartoons summarize theme at end.
Uses: For in-service and student teachers; for PTA programs
Technical: Sound—excellent; Photography—good-Dallas, fair-Salinas
Comment: Dallas-Cartoons illustrate the folly of trying to dictate an art project and of squelching all individuality. Individual differences are respected and provided for with a variety of materials. Salinas-Live photography was poor. Strong argument against prevalent fill-in-between-the-minographed-lines technique of art instruction.

CHOOSING A CLASSROOM FILM
20 min., color $200.00, b&w $105.00, McG
This film illustrates the selectivity which teachers should apply in choosing films for classroom use. It points out the unique advantages of various types of educational films and their photographic techniques. It emphasizes the fact that a film should be chosen to meet the teacher's goals for the class and help complete the behavior changes desired in the student. A wide selection of recently produced films is used to help illustrate these concepts. Illustrations are shown of the ways in which film techniques can help overcome barriers to learning. Photomicrography makes possible the enlarging of almost invisible objects. Time-lapse photography makes it possible to show the growth cycle of a plant. The past is re-created and brought to life by dramatic portrayals. Animation shows processes that are difficult or impossible to see otherwise. The drama of past or current happenings can be created and preserved for future study as often as it is necessary.

COLEMAN REPORT, THE:
EQUALITY OF EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY
55 min., b&w, cleared for TV
The Coleman Report, prepared for the U.S. Office of Education and released in 1966, revised conceptions of ways to achieve quality education for disadvantaged children. Dr. James Coleman’s findings indicate that quality education is not only a matter of new schools with the latest equipment. Rather, it rests on a new concept of integration — integration along economic class lines. The study shows that only when the disadvantaged child is placed in the same classroom with middle-class children will he learn to perform at the top of his ability to meet the demands of middle-class America. Daniel P. Moynihan, sociologist and author of a study on the Negro American family, and Dr. Thomas Pettigrew of Harvard University discuss the Coleman Report and its ramifications, based on a joint Harvard-MIT seminar which evaluated the findings. Subject Area: Education; community action
Evaluator: Board of Education, Frederick County, Maryland
Synopsis: The background and development of a cooperative community nursery school. Problems of finance, buildings, equipment, cooperation of mothers and fathers are examined. Activities of the children are shown while the objectives and procedures of the nursery school are discussed by the participating parents.
Uses: With community groups; to give background information on a nursery.
Technical: Sound, photography and structure are good.
Comment: Both the pros and cons of parents participating in a cooperative nursery school are given. The film seems to present a true picture. It is good for adult groups with an interest in establishing a school, but it is not useful for child development study in a school.

Subject Area: Educational psychology
Evaluator: Teachers College, Columbia University
Synopsis: Schedules of conditioning through reinforcement are illustrated with pigeons in Skinner apparatus and their applications to human behavior are indicated. Demonstrates the effects of: 1) fixed rate reinforcement which results in a high work output; 2) variable interval resulting in the falling off of output; 3) variable interval reinforcement which causes continuous output at a high rate and persist after reinforcement discontinues.
Uses: To illustrate Skinner’s technique to experimental psychology classes; courses in learning theory and general introduction to psychology
Age Level: college, adult
Technical: Sound—good; Photography—good
Comment: Excellent demonstration of the Skinner apparatus and technique. Stretches the theories to school learning. Analyses with human behavior are often contrived. Highly specialized in one learning theory. Clear summary.

CREATING INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS
15 min., color
This film shows that creation of instructional materials in the classroom contributes significantly to the student's learning experience. During a reading lesson in a primary grade, the teacher guides the students into the presentation of a real play which is ultimately presented before a parent audience. During a junior high science class project on food spoilage, the students invite a restaurant owner to speak to them about his problems on controlling food spoilage. They go on a field trip, take photographs, and prepare a display illustrating their findings. In a high school social studies class, students studying about Thomas Jefferson bring their own slides of Monticello, edit a tape recording of a TV sound track, write essays and prepare maps and a bulletin board. Throughout all of these and other creative activities. The teacher helps his students form their own intellectual conclusions. (McG)

FAIR CHANCE FOR TOMMY 10 min.
Presents an example of how partially seeing children can take part in regular school activities. Shows Tommy’s need for adjustment, followed by more detailed scenes of the varieties of equipment and material used in a resource or special class room. Depicts the close cooperation between the regular and the special teacher and shows Tommy as an active, interested member of the school scene, because his school system has provided him with a “fair chance.” (National Society for Prevention of Blindness, Inc., 1957)

HOW TO USE CLASSROOM FILMS

15 min., color $200.00, b&w $100.00, McG.

This film demonstrates the creative responsibility of the teacher throughout the five basic steps in using a classroom film: Selecting the film; Preparing for its use; Developing class readiness; Showing the film; Managing follow-up activities. Each step is clearly dramatized in actual classroom situations where students are seen gaining maximum educational value from films because of the teacher’s thoughtful and creative approach in using them for curriculum support. Also demonstrated are techniques recommended for the effective use of the educational films in the classroom.

This is the case study of a child who is different—different from his classmates and from his older, socially-adapted brother whose reputation is a constant reminder of his own shortcomings. Roy is shy, a slow, deliberate learner, and his teacher’s well-mean efforts to cast him in his brother’s role bring successive defeats and frustrations. When Miss Hart remembers to reward Roy with praise for his modest contributions to the class group, then he begins to taste success— to sense that because he is different he is not wrong. Individual differences, this film points out, must be met in terms of individual interests and capabilities.

MAINTAINING CLASSROOM DISCIPLINE

15 min., McG, $9.00

This film analyzes common problems met by teachers in the control of class conduct and attitude. Contrasting methods of handling a class are demonstrated. First, the camera shows a classroom where school work is neither instructive nor pleasant for anyone. Typical kinds of pupil misbehavior are shown. The film analyzes this first part showing that here the trouble was largely due to deficiencies on the part of the teacher. The film shows that the impact of the teacher's personality upon the students has an important effect on the class's general progress and behavior. Finally, the film goes back to the starting point and shows how the same class, studying the same material could have been handled successfully by the same teacher. From this study of contrasting class situations, basic principles are established for guiding a class into productive learning. (McG) 1949

PROBLEM OF PUPIL ADJUSTMENT—PART I (THE DROP-OUT)
2 reels
Steve Martin should be graduating with his high school class today, but instead, he quit school after his freshman year and since then he has drifted from one mediocre job to another. He is only one of the "drop-outs," one of the nearly fifty per cent of all high school freshmen who quit school before they are graduated. Classes were dull repetitions of textbook material, or presented pointless, useless problems that Steve would never come up against in his out-of-school life. Dullness and monotony — those are Steve's chief memories of high school days. A life adjustment program, with class subjects related to the interests of boys and girls might be the answer for Steve and those other "drop-outs" in our schools today. (McG)

SECTION SIXTEEN

The first memories of Billie's childhood were of dusty roads, in houses. Billie wondered: How do you become "real people?" and felt that her family was not real, not like people who live in places. She had no real home or an open car, a tent pitched for sleeping. She had no real childhood or a place to call her own. A hobo gave her the answer. School, he explained, made the difference. TO BUILD A SCHOOL HOUSE
20 min.
To review the origins of our present school building plans and present ideas resulting from the research of the Educational Facilities, a project of the Ford Foundation, are the purposes of this film. In less than 40 years we must re-do what has taken 500 years previously. The film reviews the traditional system of American education and presents the changes needed to go from the four wall "box" school as originated in Quincy, Massachusetts. The usefulness of the "box" school is questioned in the light of the needs of today and the future. School buildings to meet modern needs are shown. That schools in each community must meet local needs is a repeated theme. (EFLI)

WE USE WORD POWER
11 min., color
Sections of an existing elementary classroom film are used to illustrate how words can change the impact of the visual image. Parts of the film are done in four different narration styles, that of a travelogue, the industrial film, the educational film jam-packed with narration and that of the original film. The approach is satirical. There may be a kernel or two of pure truth, however lurking in the satire. (CFP)

USING ANALYTICAL TOOLS
15 min.
This film demonstrates how the counselor applies various counseling tools and techniques in handling a typical student problem. Lloyd Thompson is an average high school boy of 16. Because he has fallen behind in his work, his teacher advises a counseling interview. The counselor has been briefed on Lloyd's behavior. Before the interview he goes over his file for a complete check on the facts. These analytical tools provide the basic information which enables the counselor and student to take the first step in the counseling process — identifying and analyzing the problem. The counselor knows that one interview is not a reliable basis for judgment. There will have to be more conferences so that Lloyd can work out his problem. (McG)

Techniques for developing a sense of self-esteem, teaching concept formation and language efficiency are demonstrated in a pre-kindergarten class supervised by the Institute. These techniques bridge the gap between the ghetto and the “all-white world” presented by most teaching materials, a world to which the slum child cannot relate. Contrasting scenes filmed in a traditional classroom graphically illustrate how middle-class teaching methods can doom the disadvantaged child to failure while the Institute's methods enrich his experiences, preparing him for further learning. YOU AND YOUR CLASSROOM
This open-ended film was designed to stimulate objective discussion as to possible solutions for typical problems of behavior that are common to elementary classrooms. A need was established for a film on general discipline situations in elementary schools and was designed to aid in the improvement of classroom control. Fourteen individual problem scenes are enacted in an actual classroom but no solutions are suggested. Instead, after each episode, the film says, “Stop the film and discuss.” Produced by the Audio-Visual Department of the Los Angeles City Schools.

CONCORDIA SEX EDUCATION series
Published by Concordia, 1967

4 col efs, K-H/Ptr/L/T
I Wonder, I Wonder (for Kindergarten through Third Grade) answers children's many questions when a mother gives birth to twins. Honest, matter-of-fact and practical, the natural approach to sex is very helpful.

Wonderfully Made (for Fourth through Sixth Grade) gives accurate knowledge of the biological function of sex and helps pre-teens form Christian attitudes toward these facts at an age when they are learning about sex from other children. It helps them to anticipate physical, emotional, and other changes.

Take the High Road (Junior Highs) offers a wholesome view of Christian manhood and womanhood at an age when sexes are beginning to be attracted to each other, and when sexual powers are beginning to mature.

Parent's Guide to Christian Conversation About Sex (Parents and Teachers) goes beyond mere biological facts of reproduction to the concern with developing positive Christian attitudes toward sex in their children. The guide includes suggestions for planning and conducting parents' "talk" sessions. Highly recommended. (VI C3; VII D)

405250 — SIGHTS AND SOUNDS FILMSTRIP SERIES
This is the perfect filmstrip series to educate, fascinate and delight all youngsters of pre-primary and primary grades, as well as culturally-deprived, hearing-impaired, and brain damaged children. These six SOUND filmstrips are constructed so that children learn to make accurate audio-visual discriminations and to identify sounds and sights, even though they may be unfamiliar with them because of their geographic or economic conditions. Each filmstrip has captioned and uncaptioned stories, review sections, and each record may be used in any number of combinations with the captioned and uncaptioned portions and review sections of the filmstrips to produce many different uses, depending on the needs of the teacher and the learning level of the students. These filmstrips and records are ideal also for use in Headstart and reading-readiness programs because of their interesting, attention-getting story lines and the way they expand the limited experiences of many youngsters. (Originally created for the U.S. Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare). (Average length 41 frames.)

404190 — THE SKYLINE SERIES
Here is a film strip series that focuses on the daily problems and experiences of culturally disadvantaged children living in urban area. The stories are realistic and the situations are ones that all children can identify with. And, because the problems of growing up are shared by children everywhere, these filmstrips speak meaningfully to all children in all walks of life. In addition to expanding the cultural horizons of many children, these filmstrips can be used in reading incentive and Headstart programs due to their easy-to-read captions and simplified vocabulary; with average and above-average readers because of their interesting subject matter; and with poor readers because they include visual aids to help students who have difficulty comprehending a written text. (Average length 38 frames.)

194. WE'RE GROWING UP
A basic guidance filmstrip series to help encourage school begin-ners to develop healthier personality traits. The positive approach builds better language facility, encourages self-expression, and reinforces the child's attitude regarding early experiences at school. Appealing and clear-cut stories demonstrate the need and observation of safety rules, good manners, good health habits, and pride of achievement, understanding personal feelings and emotions. The series is ideal for early childhood education, especially in showing youngsters how to adjust to work and play situations. There are songs to learn and sing—one song to a record—giving the teacher an opportu-nity to encourage sing-along sessions.

COMMUNITY WORKERS (SET PSB)

This series offers young children the exciting experience of seeing, on the job, many kinds of workers who help make their community a good place in which to live. Each film shows a particular worker (or group of workers) performing tasks in the community environment. Each offers young viewers an opportunity both to identify with familiar activities and to become acquainted with some perhaps unfamiliar to them. All are in color and approximately 4 minutes in length.

PSB-1. The Doctor. A young, healthy boy is observed undergoing a routine physical examination. His eyes, ears, nose and throat are checked. The physician feels his abdomen and listens with a stethoscope to his heart. Then the youngster is given an oral vaccine on a cube of sugar.

PSB-2. The Dentist. This is a child's first visit to a dentist. The nurse greets the child and her mother in a warm and friendly manner, then takes the child into the dentist's office. The dentist makes the child feel at ease by permitting her to use his equipment under his personal supervision. After the examination is completed, he gives the child a book and a toothbrush. The dentist demonstrates the right way to brush one's teeth.

PSB-3. The School Nurse. The nurse has many functions in a school. We see her bandaging a bruised child, giving eye tests and hearing tests, and assisting a visiting doctor in the routine physical examination of a group of youngsters.

PSB-4. The Public Librarian. The services offered in a public library are demonstrated through a child's first visit. He is welcomed by a librarian who helps him in his application for a library card. Another librarian instructs him in the use of the card catalog and helps him to select a book. The visit in the children's section of a comfortable and colorful public library concludes with a Story Hour during which another librarian reads a story to an entranced audience of young listeners.

PSB-5. The Postman. Two brothers go to the post office to mail a letter. They buy a stamp, paste it on the letter, and drop the letter in the mail slot. The letter is on its way. As the route is followed, the jobs of different post office employees, from the sorting of mail to the delivery of the letter, are shown.

PSB-6. Sanitation Workers. The concern for the health of a community is presented through the efforts of one of the Sanitation Department's divisions—the one responsible for the collection and disposal of rubbish. Routes of rubbish collection trucks are followed in commercial and residential sections, so that one can see these sanitation workers on the job. One also has the opportunity to note how business people and home dwellers can help the sanitation workers. The story concludes with the activity at the disposal plant (incinerator), with which many children are unfamiliar.

PSB-7. The Policeman. A father is shown waving good-bye to his wife. He is next observed entering a police station. This particular father is a policeman. It is very reassuring for a young child to know that this important authority figure has a family like his own. In the next scene, the policeman, in uniform, receives his orders for the day from the captain. During his day, he is seen driving his patrol car, reporting to the station house by police phone, directing traffic, and checking on stores in the neighborhood to be sure they are properly secured for the night.

PSB-8. The Fireman. Two children are greeted by the Fire Chief at the entrance of the firehouse. They see the various tasks that firemen perform, including the servicing and operation of fire trucks. They meet the fireman on desk duty. During this time, a fire alarm sounds. Not only do they follow the relay of the alarm, but they see a fireman, awakened, get ready for his job, slide down the pole, and finally mount a truck. The trucks pull out headed for the fire.

COUNTRY COMMUNITY, THE

Filmstrip Series No. 7740 (Color)

A Rural Village
The American Farmer
School in the Country Living on a Farm
The New Fire Engine
A County Fair

The filmstrip titles suggest the various aspects of rural life which are brought to life in this series. The village, the new consolidated school, and the store and shop owners who double as village officials give the tempo and flavor of the country community. In contrast, the farm has become highly mechanized and specialized, as shown in a visit to a dairy farm. The chores, interests, and social life of a typical farm boy provide youngsters with a taste of what life in a rural community is really like.

OUR COMMUNITY — Series No. 1430
Selected for Showing at the American Film Festival
This series of eight color filmstrips presents a comparative view of the three basic kinds of communities. The rural community, the town and the city are specifically portrayed to develop an understanding of what it is like to live in a particular type of community. The child is thus able to make a comparison of his own community living with that in the other communities. Sources of food and clothing, types of houses, types and backgrounds of people, and varieties of work in the various communities are presented. A clear-cut emphasis on citizenship makes the series valuable in teaching principles of living to students at home and in their various communities. An emphasis on citizenship provides practice in reading skills and further opportunity to broaden the intellectual horizons of the students. (K/P)

This Is Our Town
How Our Town Began
How Our Town Grew

Living in Our Town
Working in Our Town
The Future of Our Town

Lively color drawings tell the story of a small town growing into a busy dairy, manufacturing, and shopping complex. An appealing story line involving typical youngsters and their families lends continuity to action photographs of present-day merchants, dairy and factory employees, government officials, and other workers busy at the diverse jobs which make up an interdependent society. This series makes an excellent introduction to basic economic, social, and political concepts designed to stimulate youngsters to further exploration of the dynamics of the town community.

THE WORK PEOPLE DO (SET H-14)
923. People Who Work for Our Health. A primary overview of the people who are involved in health and sanitation, and the specific jobs each accomplishes. Children learn basic facts about guarding health, their own and others.

959. The Tugboat Has a Job. Examining the daily work of the tugboat and its crew gives children insight into the importance of transportation. This filmstrip answers many questions about watercraft.

962. People We Meet When We Travel. A description of an automobile trip introduces a child to many people who offer services to the traveler. Other means of transportation, and the people who use them, are shown, and the value of good highways is stressed.

971. The Skyscraper. A fascinating study of the “growth” of a modern industrial edifice, and the men who work to make it. The reasons for growing upward, instead of outward, in a modern metropolis are explained.

986. People Whose Work Is Important to Us. Children develop respect for those who do the tasks that need doing in the everyday world. A better evaluation of work, and an appreciation of the importance of seemingly menial work are developed.

989. The Airplane Does Many Jobs. Through this filmstrip, children are led to understand the importance of air transport in their lives. The airplane is shown as a machine that man has developed to improve transportation and communication. Set of 6 Filmstrips $33.00; each filmstrip $6.00 (PSP)

198: THINK, LISTEN, AND SAY
Since undeveloped listening skills can seriously impair learning, increasing a child's ability to listen is becoming a major responsibility of teachers. Authorities agree that this condition is more widespread than ever before. Think, Listen and Say is an audio-visual kit answering the need for self-directed listening lessons to improve communication skills of young students. This is a carefully planned developmental listening skills kit of sound filmstrips—combined with student activity books—to improve listening ability where it is needed most: 1) at the primary level, 2) the culturally disadvantaged, 3) the mentally retarded and slow learning, 4) handicapped children with language deficiencies. This set of audio-visual materials is designed to help and improve auditory discrimination, aural comprehension, and visual perception. Assembling the research material and perfecting techniques to teach listening required extensive field study. Many children live in a world of many sounds—in the family, what they hear at school plus the scrambled stimuli of TV, and are not always prepared to cope with the multiplicity of conflicting impressions. Their hearing equipment may be perfectly normal, yet they are unable to become good listeners. Oftentimes they simply have developed the habit of "tuning out" and obliterating the world of sound impressions that has succeeded in confusing them. Think, Listen, and Say emphasizes the three R's of listening...the ability to Recognize, Retain, and Recall...and presents the material in progressive stages to stretch the child's potential listening ability. Additional activities for constructing some of the items in the stories are included. This Listening Skills Program contains eight colorfully illustrated filmstrips with complete sound narration on four records. (K/P)

203: THE "BE KIND" STORIES
A filmstrip series fashioned to help develop young, growing imaginations, with an emphasis on the constant need to express more kindness in our daily life. This series is designed to encourage vocabulary and self-expression through the retelling of stories in a child's own words. To help captivate the attention of young pupils, four cuddly animals act out and demonstrate lessons of kindness and appreciation in a most captivating fashion. The sing-along portions are sure to win over countless new followers as they respond to the constructive guidance messages contained within each episode. Included in the Be Kind Stories learning kit are 20 coloring books—one for each child in the class. The Be Kind coloring book features key scenes from the stories shown in the filmstrip. Thus the lessons in the stories are remembered and reinforced as the child colors each picture as an enjoyable classroom activity.

AND THEY LIVED HAPPILY EVER AFTER?
D204 Understanding Teenage Marriage
To a teenager, the idea of marriage at an early age is appearing more and more attractive—the average age of couples at the time of marriage is dropping every year. Fully 35% of all marriages this year will be teenage marriages and, if present rates continue, half of these will end in divorce within 5 years. Why? And They Lived Happily Ever After? explores the underlying causes of early marriage, and provides perspective by answering important questions for your teenagers like: How do you know when you are emotionally and psychologically mature enough for marriage? What about finishing school? Financial support? Responsibilities of a job? Early parenthood? Your relationship with in-laws and friends? Combining the dynamic involvement technique of live interviews with married teenagers, and the authoritative—yet compassionate—statements of psychologists, educators, and family relations specialists, this Sound Filmstrip will help implant firmly in the minds of your teenagers the fact that the odds are probably against a successful outcome in a teenage marriage, and that it takes a great deal of effort, compromise, determination and maturity if such a marriage is to be a lasting one.

LOVE, MARRIAGE AND FAMILY

Author: Lester A. Kirk, Ph.D., Professor of Family Life, Oregon State University.

Program helps students view love realistically—as a basic human emotion pervading many kinds of relationships. Students consider warmth, affection, recognition and support as vital parts of love, their importance to relationships between friends of the same sex, relatives and immediate family members. Your class then explores the many aspects of love in marriage and the creation of a family: physical love and its evolution with maturity, the importance of shared experiences and problems, increased fulfillment and satisfaction through mutual confidence, emotional security and personal serenity.
JUNIOR-SENIOR

Program concludes with a consideration of love between parents and children and between brothers and sisters.

THE ACCOMPLISHED GENERATION

Program focuses on positive, creative contributions to society made by young people who refuse to join the "alienated 5 percent." Dramatic case histories show that true individuality, social and political commitment, artistic involvement and achievement usually have little to do with rejecting the conventions of society. Your class meets deeply committed boys and girls from different ethnic, regional and economic backgrounds. They tell why they channel their energy and intelligence toward achievement in varied fields. These young people describe factors which have helped them accomplish their individual goals, such as the role of friends, teachers and parents as well as exposure to information through school and mass media. With each candid interview, your students see more clearly how they themselves can work confidently and effectively to improve society.

ALASKA: FRONTIER STATE (Color)

Filmstrip Series No. 9480

Alaska: Discovery and Development

Alaska: The Land and its Resources

Alaska: The People and their Way of Life

Alaska: Commerce and Industry

The student is introduced to the past and present of the 49th state through the media of photographs, illustrations and maps, including old, rare Alaskan news photos and political cartoons. Aerial pictures dramatize the geographical contrasts of Alaska: an Aleutian volcano and the largest glacier, the only fjords, and the highest mountain in North America. Visuals show the four racial stocks comprising Alaska's population, and a pictorial analysis presents the state's economic development from gold and fishing to future possibilities. (Filmstrips average 47 projection frames each.) Collaborator: Ivar Skarland, Ph.D., University of Alaska. Each filmstrip $5.00; Series of 4 boxed $24.00 EBF

THE ALIENATED GENERATION — E-250

Your students probe the phenomenon of alienation from society as an historical and contemporary social issue. They gain insights into the Lost Generation of the 20's and the Beats of the 50's. And they confront the current Hippie Movement in terms of the society which produced it. What is the relationship between affluence and rebellion? Is "tuning out" a valid answer to war, racial injustice and materialism? What are the roles of sex, drugs and non-violence in the Hippie experience? What alternate ways are there to protect our individuality in a mass production, mass media society? Program leads students into candid discussion of these and related questions, brings them an important step closer to finding their own answers. (GA)

ATITUDES — A LOOK AND A LISTEN Series

4 col sf # JH-SH
Produced by Family Filmstrips, 1962.

Music For The Right Foot (Resolving Conflicts) 50 fr., 10 min. illustrates the problems which teenagers have in learning to live together harmoniously. When Johnny uses his guitar at a fireside bull session to demonstrate how people get off on the wrong foot and to discover Christian ways of making harmony.

Our Eyes Play Tricks (Prejudice) 48 fr. 8 min. pictures four teenagers having fun with optical illusions. They realize that their eyes can also trick them into forming un-Christian pre-judgments of people, based on color or national origin.

Seeing Red In A Green World (Resisting Authority) 49 fr. 10 min. examines teen-age reactions to authority, notably parental, and discusses the need for increasing acceptance of responsibility.

What Do You Expect? (Expecting the Best) 48 fr. 9 min. makes a comparison as to what young people can do with their lives, through a picture of contrasting everyday experiences. It challenges them to a choice, shows them how to better themselves, and helps them cultivate the habit of expecting the best from themselves, from others, and from life itself.

BABYSITTING: THE JOB — THE KIDS

Program covers virtually everything young babysitters should know for a sound basic approach to their job. Experienced boy and girl sitters discuss getting work, handling fees, emergencies, having the right phone numbers handy, deciding when to call, feeding children, bedtime, strangers at the door, in case of fire, police situations, drawing the line at sitting for "extra" children, special "don'ts" like leaving children in bathroom alone. Parents explain what they want most from sitters: promptness, interest in children, accurate reporting, neatness, general thoughtfulness. Program demonstrates basic rules for babysitters: don't try being the parent, give affection freely, be firm, treat children as individuals, don't sit for child you don't like.

CHOOSING A COLLEGE — D-148
Colleges are different because students are different, a simple fact all-too-often overlooked by both students and their parents. Choosing a College will help your students establish the basic criteria for intelligent college selection . . . places social, geographic, academic, and financial considerations in perspective. This program is designed to stimulate the student's self-evaluation as well, and his thoughts about the differences between colleges: old, new, large, small . . . facilities . . . faculty . . . departmental emphasis. Choosing a College also suggests that neither imaging one's best friend nor fulfilling parental expectations is likely to produce a good "match" between student and college. A fundamental orientation to college planning for any level.

CITIZEN, THE

724. The Citizen and His Court. Building a respect for justice and law, this filmstrip teaches the processes and machinery by which justice is dispensed in a democratic society. Criminal trial is traced.
736. Your Bill of Rights. Few subjects are more important to young and old alike, than the rights guaranteed by the first ten amendments to the constitution. A statement of this fact, and the historical context in which the Bill of Rights was written and accepted, occupy this filmstrip.
743. How Foreigners Become Citizens. The prosperity and freedom enjoyed by Americans are shown as inducements to others to come to this country. Means and methods of Americanization and naturalization are graphically demonstrated.
791. Your American Citizenship. The rights conferred by citizenship carry with them the responsibilities of citizenship. Citizens must learn to appreciate and respect both. The open society that we enjoy is contrasted to more restricted life encountered elsewhere, to kindle an understanding of the individual's importance in our society.

799. You and Your Government. Children are led to understand how a body of men can govern without restricting the rights and development of the individual. The function of government in a free society is contrasted to that in a restricted society.

UNDERSTANDING THE SCHOOL SYSTEM AND THE COMMUNITY
American Film Festival Blue Ribbon Award
THE CLASSROOM REVOLUTION — D-167
(Researched and written by Terry Ferrer and based on the series of articles by the same name, reprinted and distributed nationally by the Ford Foundation.)
This award-winning sound filmstrip program explores many of the new curriculum developments in the sciences, the "New Math", closed-circuit TV, audio-lingual techniques . . . even architectural advances to improve the environment of learning. It investigates the "classroom revolution" at all levels within the school system — elementary, junior high, and high school. The Classroom Revolution is designed specifically for use by School Administrators to: acquaint School Board members with new developments in educational programs, create a receptive climate in the community to changes in teaching methods and materials, gain local support to budget for new programs in your school, expose the community to developments in facilities and techniques in other school systems, stimulate the interest and gain the support of the teaching staff prior to the implementation of such new programs.

THE COLLEGE DROPOUT:
SIX OUT OF EVERY TEN — D-152
The College Drop-out will inject your students directly into the tumultuous college years that lie ahead. This program was developed with the cooperation of leading college administrators, and written by a college drop-out — now a nationally-known journalist for The New York Times. Dramatic photography and the impact of personal accounts by several Drop-Outs will acquaint your college-bound students with many of the factors leading to the common Freshman year question "What am I doing here?" Better than half those who do drop out will do so in their very first year. The College Drop-Out explores many of the Freshman year pressures: difficult courses, emotional distress, homesickness, social problems, financial difficulties, poor study habits . . . even boredom. This sight and sound program points out just how universal most of these "uniquely personal" problems really are . . . probes the "identity crisis" and military service as escapes from college responsibilities, "Sophomore Slump," and other common reasons for deciding "college is not for me."

THE COOPERATIVE WAY TO A COLLEGE EDUCATION

A Case History on Work/Study Programs

In recent years much of American industry — the General Electric, the DuPonts, the Westinghouses — has joined hands with many of the engineering and technical schools to give students practical experience and the opportunity to help finance their education. This sound filmstrip examines the Cooperative Program, in which students alternate between classrooms and industrial plant and laboratory. Full color, live-situation photography dramatizes the values — both educational and financial — to be derived from the Cooperative Plan.

DARE TO BE DIFFERENT

Helps students establish criteria for conforming to group standards, social norms, family direction. Emphasizes the individual's responsibility for major decisions, the nature of personal integrity, frequent choices we must make between conflicting group norms. Program discusses the powerful forces representing tradition and conformity in American society: the immigrant ideal of "assimilation," large corporations dedicated to speed and efficiency, unions based on mass cooperation. Then, students probe "true" and "false" expressions of individuality: total personal nonconformity, rebellion for the sake of rebellion, willingness to sacrifice for strongly-held beliefs. Program ends with response-provoking thoughts on how to draw the line between rejection and creative evaluation of the ideas and customs we live by.

DEVELOPING SOCIAL MATURITY
Grades 7 . . . 10
During a group discussion about popularity, the light begins to dawn on Susie—there's a difference between wanting to be liked and actually developing the attitudes and interests that lead to self-respect and acceptance by one's classmates. Susie is motivated to action, and happier social relations open up for her. If the school population can learn to understand show-offs like Tommy, everybody benefits. His mishap and the helpful attitudes of some more socially mature friends form a basis for discussion on student activities, loyalty and responsibility, regard for school property, and other aspects of social maturity. THE EXPLOITED GENERATION — E-238
The Exploited Generation hasn't dropped out; doesn't live in an under-developed country; isn't an ethnic minority — it's sitting in your classroom. To you they're students, but to many American corporations and their advertising agencies they're a 20 billion dollar market. How advertisers, market research firms and media cooperate to exploit the "Youth Market" is examined in poignant detail in a new full-color Sound Filmstrip. Exclusive interviews with advertising executives show how the target is pinpointed; the ad created — with just the right degree of eroticism and status appeal. The program investigates how market research determines which product, in which package, advertised in which media will capture the attention and dollars of young Americans. TV commercials, pop magazine advertising, market surveys, the trend to conformity among media-minded youngsters are sternly analyzed in a penetrating study of the Exploited Generation.

FAILURE: A STEP TOWARDS GROWTH — D-192
By Abraham Lass, Principal, Abraham Lincoln H.S.

Failure is a universal experience; every youngster is going to have to face it some day. It may be losing face with "the gang," it may be a report card that is guaranteed to cause more than raised eyebrows at home, it may be getting the cold shoulder from a guy that a gal thinks is pretty special. Whatever the form, it is all too often an extremely traumatic experience for the teenager... resulting in intense insecurity. This 2-part sound filmstrip program has been developed on the premise that failure need not be a destructive experience at Facing failure, learning from it can and should be a maturing experience. In presenting this material, Dr. Lass talks straight to your students, with a unique blend of toughness and sympathy that comes from understanding their problems. The program suggests how to look for causes of failure, how to begin to make the best of a bad situation, when to decide to bear down harder or try again later, or when to give up. If failure stems from trying to be a fullback at 98 pounds, it is pulling him from a true course in life.

A pre-confirmation retreat is shown, and world outreach activities. Various interpretations of communion and baptism are shown.

This sound filmstrip program may help prevent the all-too common early disillusionment and maladjustment that can seriously impair freshmen's success. The program suggests how to look

E-2 Golden Rule, The, Age Level 10-15 years. Jane takes pride in snubbing new people in her school. When her mother, an army officer, is moved to a new location, Jane goes to a new school and is treated in a friendly manner which proves to her how wrong she previously behaved.

E-3 Squaring Yourself, Age Level 10-15 years. During a Sunday School class, it was decided to raise enough money to send a boy from the slums to camp for the summer. Joe did not have enough money to give and took a dollar from his kitchen at home. Joe's mother blamed the grocery boy for the theft. After a few days, Joe apologized to the grocery boy in his mother's presence and made restitution by earning a dollar.

E-4 An Acted Lie, Age Level 10-15 years. Jealousy between Charles and Eric, pitchers on the class ball team, caused Charles to withhold information from Eric so that Eric would be late for the game. He excused himself by thinking that he had not said anything and therefore he didn't lie. Eric took it on time with the help of the coach and Charles realized that he had been guilty of an "acted lie."

E-5 Perspective, Age Level 16 Young Adults. Kathy and Bill are young married people who are letting little things upset their marriage. Their minister takes them to see the Empire State Building. From the top of this building they see the area below in "perspective" and realize what is lacking in their marriage.

E-6 Vacation Trip, A, Age Level 14-18 years. George and June and their parents always took vacation trips together. On one of these trips they are familiarized with the idea of "cultivating." They passed two farms, one which had been cultivated, and one which had not, and they saw the difference. They met a young man who referred to his athletic training as "cultivating." After their vacations, they both realized that they had to work for their aim in life to be successful.

E-7 Consequences, Age Level 14-18 years. The young people of Colcord were permitted to use Mr. Coughlin's farm for picnics. One day, two boys new to the group chased a calf and the calf ran into snubbing new people in her school. When her mother, an army officer, is moved to a new location, Jane goes to a new school and is treated in a friendly manner which proves to her how wrong she previously behaved.

E-8 Getting Even, Age Level 14-18 years. Ed wanted Tom to do his work for him one day, but Tom had already made other plans. To get even, Ed drained all the gas from the car that Tom was going to use that day. The following Saturday, when it was Tom's turn to do the chores, he gave Ed a ticket to a ball game. Tom's kindness hurt Ed's conscience and he owned up to what he had done. EGH

E-9 How Big Is Love? Age Level 10-15 and Young Adults. The Peters' were expecting a new baby and the two boys in the family seemed to resent an addition. Incidents in the lives of both boys, however, proved to them that a new baby brother or sister would be a wonderful thing and that there would be plenty of love for all.

E-10 No One Will Know The Difference, Age Level 12-16 years. Harry, as a small boy, began cheating in various ways at ball games and in school. This habit persisted and when he was older and working, he again resorted to cheating to impress his boss. Did he get the promotion?

E-11 Courage, Age Level 10-16 years. Carl and Andy, two fatherless brothers, a ave a run-in with a street gang who have taken Andy's ball. Carl, the older brother, refuses to fight for the ball. Andy loves his idol but later when Carl discovers this same gang has assaulted a little girl, he brings the leader in to answer for his deed.
JUNIOR-SENIOR

E-12 Reliability Zero. Age level 12-16 years. Tom was an excellent student and skillful in sports but very unreliable. Tom and Walter, one of his friends, had each applied for a camp counselor job. Their minister had to make a recommendation on all qualities, and even though Tom was superior to Walter in everything else, Walter got the job because Tom had the reputation of being unreliable.

E-13 Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother. Age Level 12-16 years. Peter was ashamed of his parents' foreign customs and when he received an invitation for them for parents night, he tore it up. The principal, knowing what good Americans they were asked them to be the highlight of the "I Am an American Day" program. Peter then realizes that clothes and dialect are not as important as character.

E-14 Stewardship. Age Level 10-15 years. The Sunday school class was given a room to use but they had to clean it up and keep it in good condition. The teacher showed them how they could exchange 2 hours of their lives into money for helping others. They also learned that the handling of an allowance involved stewardship.

E-15 He Lost His Head: Age Level 12-16 years. Mark and his sister Louise go through the museum with their school class where they learn about an Indian idol that is punished when the people don't get what they want. Mark has a bad temper and to break the habit, his sister recalls the story about the idol whenever Mark gets angry. When one day Mark's temper causes a broken leg for his dog, he learns his lesson.

E-16 A Big Decision. Age Level 14-18 years. Don and Lynn had great success with their new racing boat. In the final race which would decide top place, Don rubbed one of the buoys. No one saw the foul, but Don decided he was disqualified and dropped out of the race. He had to make the big decision just as he was in the lead towards the finish line.

GETTING INTO COLLEGE IF YOU'RE AN AVERAGE STUDENT — D-179

Not everybody can be in the top 10-20% of his class. Yet, with many of the country's private colleges and universities becoming more and more competitive, the "average" must often look to less well-known institutions for an education. Thousands of solid B and C students are simply finding doors closed to them. At the same time, a great variety of excellent institutions — often large universities, junior colleges, and even new and small but relatively unknown 4 year liberal arts colleges — stand ready to provide these youngsters with a quality education. Getting Into College if You're an Average Student will help make your students aware of the many realistic educational opportunities available... colleges where they will make a better adjustment among boys and girls of similar capability. And as both a student and a parent orientation program it will help relieve you of much of the traditional pressure to "get Johnny into an Ivy League college."

7-2: GETTING TO KNOW ME

The intent of this set is to provide the adolescent with an insight into himself that will enable him to cope with his day-to-day living. Each filmstrip assists the adolescent to become aware of his various developmental aspects as a part of the whole person growing. As discussion of the material in this set takes place in small groups or the classroom, the individual will be led to a far better understanding of himself. This will lead to a lessening of fear and a deepening of self respect. The filmstrips and records may be used with adolescent groups in courses in Family Living, Psychology and Guidance. The highlight topics lead to class participation with these studies. The extensive teacher's manual includes guide questions for review material, a suggested reading list as well as a suggested activities list. (J)

HIGH SCHOOL COURSE SELECTION AND YOUR CAREER — D-216

By Dr. John G. Odgers, Director, and David W. Winefordner, Division of Guidance and Testing, Ohio State Dept. of Ed. Hundreds of thousands of high school juniors and seniors face confusion and frustration every year from restrictions on future educational or career planning choices... all too often the result of poor course selection in the junior high and early high school years. This program is designed as an early unit in group guidance, to provide both students and their parents with a basic introduction to course planning. The sound filmstrip first establishes a series of practical relationships between educational choice and career planning. It goes on to explore basic concepts: understanding of oneself and others, including development of a positive attitude toward individual differences; understanding of the world of work; educational opportunities, including courses of study available, required courses, electives, and extra-curricular activities. The program also deals with study skills and attitudes and stresses the importance of decision-making based on the concepts presented. It also emphasizes the importance of maintaining readiness for change, based on the concepts of alternatives, levels of development and aspiration, and of matching choices with changing opportunities.

THIS HONORABLE COURT: The Supreme Court of the United States — E-714 (American Film Fest. Blue Ribbon Award 1967)

Part I traces the history and major decisions of the Supreme Court from its founding in 1790 through 1966. Students hear Alexander Hamilton define the functions of the Court; understand the formative contributions of Chief Justices John Jay and John Marshall; the power of judicial review, the legal and status of the contract. Students witness the changing role of the court—the return of state's rights under Chief Justice Taney; the Warren Court's vigorous interpretations in such areas as Civil Rights, re-apportionment, rights of the accused. Part II examines Supreme Court procedures. Students hear Justice Byron White explain how the Court functions on a day-to-day basis. Listen to the words of Chief Justice Holmes and Hughes. Against this background of tradition and working detail, students gain deeper understanding of the Court's current impact on American life. Teacher's manual includes chronology, suggested projects, vocabulary and graded classroom questions in addition to content summary, script, instructions and introductory roles. Produced in cooperation with The Associated Press.

HOW TO READ A COLLEGE CATALOG — D-149

The college catalog is at once an encyclopedia of information on the subject institution and its academic program and a continuing source of frustration to your students and parents. How to Read a College Catalog provides a basic frame of reference in the search for, and interpretation of, college information—packed with helpful tips on extracting valuable information while avoiding irrelevant verbiage... offers a sound basis for comparing academic programs of a variety of colleges. And the program can be used by you as a glossary of college terms, clarifying "advanced placement"... "probation"... "credit hours"... "distribution requirements"... "early decision plans"... and many more. How to Read a College Catalog also waves a red flag on: "Do full professors or graduate students teach freshman courses?"... "Are there special laboratory fees for the physical and biological sciences?"... "Do courses you would like to take have requirements you cannot meet?" This program will save you many precious hours spent in interpreting individual college catalogs to both students and parents.

IT HAPPENS EVERY DAY — 60 fr, col, fs

Produced by the National Council of Churches, 1957.

The first section of this filmstrip uses symbolic artwork to point beyond racial similarities and differences to the common denominator of humanity, "the real you." Stated and visualized is the thesis that when we recognize that everyone is created and loved by God, we have a viewpoint from which to understand better the meaning of individual differences, sin, Christian faith and love, and responsibility in everyday living. The second half uses stylized live photography to present a trio of situations commonly faced by young people that involve racial relations, and a solution for each is suggested. Highly recommended as a discussion stimulator.

7-3: IT'S YOUR FUTURE

A set of four sound filmstrips relating long-range attainment objectives to better-directed study methods... a timely message that strikes home and leaves an indelible impression on potential student dropouts... a dramatic visual presentation prompting the "drifters" to do something — NOW — before it's too late. (3/5) A four-part filmstrip series with a recorded narration that reaches out and activates interest levels throughout the entire class. Written by Bernard F. Wetzel of Allen-town College, Pennsylvania, an authority on the subject with twenty-five years of seasoned high school teaching experience. It's Your Future offers constructive guidance in helping students avoid two of the most worrisome pitfalls: 1. Indifference regarding the importance of an education. 2. Faulty methods of study. This series motivates interest among class members most inclined to be indifferent and unappreciative... (a timely documentary almost certain to provoke awareness and personal responsibility).

LEARNING TO LOVE OUR NEIGHBORS Kit
Produced by Family Filmstrip, 1962, 4 col, sfx
How It Feels to Be a Stranger, 38 fr/7 min., depicts three juniors who move into new situations — new city, new neighborhood and new school. They experience being newcomers and realize the importance of showing Christian friendliness to strangers.
Different — Yet Alike, 39 fr/ 7 min., outlines the basic races of people in the world, showing their differences and likenesses. It points out contributions by members of various groups, such as Pasteur, da Vinci, Landsteiner, and Rachmaninoff and emphasizes that God has given special talents and abilities to every person, regardless of race, to be used to the glory of God.
Seeing Persons in People, 43 fr/8 min., shows a young girl who finds it difficult to perform at a music recital until she realizes the audience consists of individual persons instead of a mass of people. This is followed by several episodes in which people are viewed as individuals in various situations. Jesus’ story of the Good Samaritan is used to show the importance of treating each person as a unique individual, created and loved by God.

OUR DEMOCRATIC HERITAGE (SET G-27)
820. Milestones of Liberty—Great Documents. Traces the history of the American heritage of liberty and freedom with emphasis on the growth of self-government and individual freedom in England and in the English colonies in America. Shows how the struggle for “rights of Englishmen” involved the colonists in a revolution, discusses the significance of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights, and notes the progress in recent years to expand freedoms and rights to all citizens.
837. The Formation of Our Nation—The Constitution. Portrays the events and conditions that led to the calling of the Philadelphia Convention and presents some of the leading personalities of the convention, revealing the wide background of experience that the Founding Fathers brought to bear on the problems which confronted them. How the framers of the Constitution worked, what major issues they had to resolve, the struggle for ratification, and the inauguration of the new government are each treated in turn.

OUR 49TH AND 50TH STATES (SET G-2)
756. Alaska.—Our 49th State. Misconceptions about Alaska date back to the epithets from the days of its purchase—“Seward’s Folly” . . . “Seward’s Icebox”. This filmstrip presents an accurate picture of Alaska as a land of contrasts, and as a valuable asset to our country.
765. Hawaii.—Our 50th State. The progress of Hawaii from its discovery by Captain James Cook, through its monarchial, colonial, territorial and statehood periods is traced. In a background environment of great beauty, this filmstrip shows the industrial, economic and geographic factors which have shaped the Hawaiian Islands.
Set of 2 filmstrips $11.00; each filmstrip $6.00. (PSP)

OUR GOVERNMENT (SET G-7)
733. The President’s Cabinet. The filmstrip presents an overview of the government departments which are headed by cabinet officers, and of the manner in which cabinet members, as a body, inform and advise the president. Details of the work of each department are shown.
738. How We Elect Our President. Selection and election of a Chief Executive in a democratic society is a fascinating study. This filmstrip uses factual information and interesting side-lights to convey information and awaken an interest in the American political process.
751. How We Govern Our Cities. In fictional Center City, a mayoralty election takes place. From this point, the filmstrip explores the various services and activities of a typical municipal government in a democratic society.
763. How Our Cities Enforce the Law. Urban growth brings with it problems of law enforcement. This filmstrip shows how a large, well-trained police organization contributes to the well-being of all citizens.
816. Mr. President. The role of the Presidency in the United States is shown. The student learns to appreciate the importance of the office throughout the world as well as at home. An historic survey of the development of the office leads to an understanding of the “biggest job in the world”.

PREPARATION FOR MARRIAGE series (5 b&w, sfs)
Produced by the Methodist Church (TV, Radio and Film Commission), 1954.

Junior High Friendship, 49 fr., drops in on a junior high youth fellowship meeting as its leader and a panel explore questions of friendships at this age level. They discuss desirable qualities, how friendships are made, how to ask for and accept or decline dates, and comparative merits of dating versus going with the group.

How About a Date? 53 fr., uses a narrator to introduce problems on the subject. Questions are raised on asking for a date, what to do on one, positive and negative aspects of going steady, the importance of having many friendships, petting, and compatibility of religious backgrounds.

Is This the One for Me? 53 fr., finds Helen thinking herself in love with Freddie though his drinking habits worry her. Ultimately, she decides not to marry him since she cannot respect him. But her growing interest in another boy develops from increasing awareness of his trustworthiness, emotional maturity, and social adjustment.

The Meaning of Engagement, 49 fr., follows an engaged couple as they prepare for their marriage. It covers advice on the length of engagement, whether or not marriage should occur before, during, or after military service, how college education should be affected, and the values in pastoral counseling prior to the ceremony.

Helping Youth Prepare for Marriage, 69 fr., joins father, mother, brother, big sis and little sis, and grandmother as they return from the third daughter’s wedding. Grandmother recalls the pitfalls of her girl’s elopement; father answers his son’s questions of marriage; and mother blends a mixture of psychology and Christian principle in advising the older girl against going out with questionable company. These incidents seek to illustrate the basic need of children for the comprehensive love and counsel in a Christian home.

“Friendships” is recommended as an instructive discussion stimulator with junior highs. Its narrative captures the hurried conversational pattern of the age level and offers positive pointers. It presents a variety of practical problems and effectively encourages dating those of similar religious backgrounds.

“The Comprehensive Love and Counsel in a Christian Home,” the seven parts of a series of seven filmstrips, has been produced by the Methodist Church (TV, Radio and Film Commission). The beauty of FROM THE BEGINNING TO THE FUTURE is presented through interpretative drawings and photos. Each filmstrip is over 50 frames long and has its own Guide. The series is highly recommended as an instructive filmstrip and an excellent tool for visiting youth groups in the town.

THE SECOND TIME AROUND: WHO SHOULD TRANSFER, WHEN, AND WHY — D-159
Over 50% of all students who transfer colleges do so in their freshman year. While most students go off to college fully intending to finish what and where they start, tens of thousands of young Americans every year move from one institution to another. The result — a boom in college transfers. Perhaps surprisingly, one third of all students complete their education at a college other than the one at which they began. THE SECOND TIME AROUND serves to “normalize” the reasons for transferring, equipping your students with a frame of reference should they be confronted with the transfer decision. As a result, traumatic, spur-of-the-moment, “sorry later” decisions are averted. THE SECOND TIME AROUND brings this often emotional decision-making process to life in vivid color and live sound. This program is neither a case for nor against transferring. It places the change of schools in perspective . . . examines the prevailing criteria for acceptance as a transfer student . . . valid and invalid reasons for considering a transfer. The program also suggests sources of counseling during the college year.

SEEING TREES AND CLOUDS (Captioned Filmstrip Set)
A new experience for art students at any age level! Trees and clouds are shown in the composition they make in nature, by themselves and in combination with other things. In this beautiful collection of photographs, taken all over the world, every aspect of composition using trees and clouds is covered. Simple captions point out the details. Each frame may be left on the screen long enough for complete study. The producers have tested these strips in classrooms with great success, finding that they stimulate the sense of composition and encourage students to open their eyes to the beauty of the world around them. Produced by Elizabeth P. Morris, Art Consultant for the Monarchello Unified School District, and Agnes Schubert, Head of Art Department for the San Gabriel High School, California. Four color filmstrips (average 40 frames) $24.00; 1 full-color filmstrip; 1 12" lp record; 69 fr/14½ min. $18.00 Library of Congress FIA 66-3122. (GA)

SELECTING YOUR “SECOND CHOICE” COLLEGE: REDUCING MULTIPLE APPLICATIONS — D-158
A unique treatment of an often sensitive counseling problem. Applications for admission to four-year colleges have risen sharply in the past two years. At many of the more competitive colleges the crush is worse. For the qualified student who has always thought in terms of the Ivy League and its companion women’s colleges, rejection is a real possibility. And the increasing pressure extends throughout the college ranks. SELECTING YOUR “SECOND CHOICE” COLLEGE seeks to prepare the student psychologically for alternative selections, before acceptance notices are in the mail . . . suggests criteria on which to base objective “second choice” decisions . . . examines factors that might be passed over without a second careful look . . . stresses overstimulation and making a carefully considered and acceptable “safety” selection.

SEX AND LOVE FOR CHRISTIAN TEENS, set, 2 col., sfs
Produced by Family Filmstrips, 1966. Recommended. MCC
What You Think About Sex (Attitudes), 46 fr. Acknowledges that teen-age young people have sexual feelings and desires which are normal and part of God’s plan. Advertising images of sex are contrasted with the concept of sex as part of whole person. Closing emphasis is on the importance of viewing the total self, respect and the need for each person’s taking responsibility in working out mature feelings and attitudes toward members of the opposite sex.

What You Do About Sex, (Behavior), Examines sexual be-behavior in the light of Christian teaching that people are whole persons and relate to one another on various levels of attachment and responsibility. It suggests that the boy-girl relationship is a progressive series of steps from beginning dating, going steady, engagement and marriage and that certain com-mittments and levels of conduct are appropriate for each stage.
Sharing one’s self completely and freely is done only in marriage.

SEX EDUCATION U.S.A. (American Film Festival Honors)
Author: James Lincoln Collier; Narrated by Chet Huntley
A full-color Sound Filmstrip designed to build parent-community understanding and acceptance of elementary and secondary school sex education. Local groups will see aspects of sex education projects and curricula in: the Anaheim Union High School District, Anaheim, California; the Germantown Friends School, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and the Walker-Jones Elementary School, Washington, D.C. They gain insight into what is taught, how classes are conducted and courses structured, how sex education is developed from grades K through 12, how teachers are oriented. They learn the value of class participation and discussion, teaching aids, carefully defined vocabulary, question and answer techniques. Parents see how sex education can begin in the school and the community, and understand their role in instituting and supporting sex education programs. Prepared in consultation with a Special Committee of SIECUS, Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S.

SEXUAL VALUES IN SOCIETY
Author: Richard Hettlinger, Prof. of Religion, Kenyon College Students see the values we live by as products of our culture and consider some values common to most cultures. They see how values formed through parent identification are inevitably questioned by youngsters confronted with alternatives as they approach maturity. Classes examine the relationship between individual values and social responsibility. They recognize the unique characteristics of sexual values; understand confusion caused by lack of open discussion and frequent adult hypocrisy.
Then, students probe the rejection of conventional sexual values. In live interviews, young people discuss such questions as: Why do so many youngsters feel the need to experiment with sex? What is in the relationship between sex and dating?
Why is the conventional view of premarital chastity unacceptable to many teenagers?

SHOULD YOU GO TO COLLEGE? — D-175

This is the first and perhaps most important question facing students today; the answer will suggest the nature of much of the counseling a student will receive during high school. This program explores colleges, various vocational specialties and the training required, technical institutes, and a variety of jobs that require no specialized preparation. Should be used early in first year group guidance sessions as a foundation for intelligent planning.

SOMEBODY’S CHEATING! — D-205

Cheating has been around for a long time. And it exists all about us today, not only in the classroom but also in the adult world as well. Cheating isn’t the sort of thing you end with lectures, either, because the act is so easy to rationalize. Indeed most “cheaters” don’t actually arrive at a positive decision to cheat because, when faced with an opportunity to cheat, they seldom consider the alternative—they just cheat! SOME-BODY’S CHEATING is designed specifically to force youngsters to make real, and perhaps difficult, decisions when confronted with the opportunity to cheat. Actual live discussions among teenage boys and girls, dramatized by full-color candid photography, will involve your group in animated discussion about the many aspects of cheating: What is cheating? Is it ever o.k.? Is there a difference between cheating on friends and cheating on parents? What should be done about it in your group? What about adults cheating? What are the moral, legal and social implications of cheating? Does cheating ever bring peer-group rejection? These questions and more are raised and debated in live interviews with a wide variety of teenage youngsters. You’ll find your own boys and girls equally involved in discussion once the lights go on.

The introductory filmstrip "HOW DO YOU RATE?" is designed to inspire all students into analyzing their lesson study habits and inaugurating positive measures for improvement. By being receptive to new ideas regarding study techniques and habits and inaugurating positive measures for improvement, the student familiar with a few or all of these techniques will approach his writing assignment with confidence. This series succeeds in prompting greater insight and confidence on the student's part since each episode incorporates material that may effectively reach the grade levels, 7-12. Displayed in the series are interesting abstract drawings that help symbolize the writing concepts being presented. These drawings dramatize symbolically the material which is explained verbally by the narration. A timely unit assisting the student in forming better writing procedures for the semesters ahead (J/S High).

TESTING: ITS PLACE IN EDUCATION TODAY — D-173
(Based on the book by Henry Chauncey, President, Educational Testing Service, and John Dobbins)
No single phenomenon of education is the subject of greater controversy today than testing. Educators themselves disagree on how much testing is "too much", and how effective standardized tests are in comparing students from different backgrounds. College admissions officers debate the value of "subjective" versus "objective" test results in predicting college performance. This informative 2-part sound filmstrip program is designed to shed light on many of the misunderstood areas of testing. TESTING: ITS PLACE IN EDUCATION TODAY is based on the book of the same name by Henry Chauncey, President of the country's largest testing organization, Educational Testing Service, and John Dobbins, also of ETS. This program analyzes just what tests can and cannot do, how they have evolved over the years to meet the changing needs of education, the difference between standardized and teacher-made tests, and much more. Dr. Chauncey himself speaks about the future of testing and its implications for your students. An orientation for your school officials, teachers, counselors and parents.

TESTING, TESTING, TESTING — D-207
If there is a single area of scholastic endeavor that frustrates, intimidates and panics more students than any other, it is test-taking. This Sound Filmstrip program will help your students approach any test with more confidence — whether it be a short quiz, an hour exam, a mid-term, a final, or a national standardized test. Material includes six "cardinal rules" for test taking. Discusses preparation, how to read questions carefully, answer easy questions first, use only the "educated" guess. Emphasizes writing clearly and going back over answers once you are done, if possible. Included is sound advice on just how to prepare for different types of examinations, how to avoid pitfalls, why one should not be upset by those who finish early, how to relax and how to organize essay questions and handle multiple choice test. TESTING, TESTING, TESTing also gives professional testmaker's advice on sensible short cuts in answering multiple choice exams, giving partial answers on tough sensible essay questions, and more. Ideal for group early guidance on study habits and academic performance.

THINK OF OTHERS FIRST — D-189
(Some practical guidelines to social interaction) Consideration for others, manners, and etiquette can be regarded as a series of rules — do's and don'ts — to be overlooked when convenient — or they can be regarded as a highly practical catalyst for social interaction. This unusual sound filmstrip program approaches manners and thoughtfulness as a highly evolved system by which man deals with his fellow man under conditions of basic equality and mutual respect.
In this context, the material explores manners and etiquette at home, in school, and in outside social situations. It emphasizes the fact that practicing good manners should be "second nature" and that having good manners is easier than having bad ones. THINK OF OTHERS FIRST presents both good and bad manners and asks your students to define which is which in a given situation. This material is designed expressly for student participation following presentation.

188. TOBACCO, ALCOHOL AND NARCOTICS
This filmstrip is designed to make children aware of the problems of smoking, drinking and using narcotics. It presents information about the chemical content of burning tobacco and the harmful physical effects of cigarettes, alcohol and narcotics. The difficulties people have in trying to overcome harmful habits are explained. An understanding of the steps being taken by federal and local authorities to solve these problems is developed. $6.00 (PSP)

THE TUNED-OUT GENERATION
Prod. by Guidance Associates. 2 col, sfs
This material is designed to stimulate discussion and deepen understanding and concern of the teenagers of the importance of communication, and of the older generation to understand and communicate with the teenagers. The opinions and feelings of many types of parents are expressed, their problems of communication and understanding the teenagers, the common concerns of both generations. Along with the comments are some remarkable pictures of teenagers in all sorts of moods, activities, with and without their parents. Excellent guide. Highly recommended. (GA)

USING THE LIBRARY (Color) F/S Series No. 9840
Your Library: A World of Books
The Card Catalog
The Classification of Books
Using the Dictionary
Using the Encyclopedia
Using Special Reference Books

This series shows youngsters how a library works and how to use it to its fullest advantage. Real-life photographs of children using their school library demonstrate the steps in consulting various reference tools. Children follow Paul as he looks up "Weather" in the encyclopedia, first consulting the Index and then the see-also references directing him to related subjects. This unique filmstrip series presents an invaluable tool to enrich the learning discovery process. (Filmstrips average 47 projection frames each.)

VALUES FROM TEENAGERS: THE CHOICE IS YOURS
D-180
Today's teenager is faced with daily conflicts in the social interpretation of right and wrong. Indiscretions by public of-icals dot the headlines, while myriad half-truths are woven throughout business and personal lives. This unique 2-part sound filmstrip program talks directly to teenagers, in their own language. It deals with problems of immediate concern:
What to do about sex. Cheating. Drinking. And, ultimately, what kind of person to become. What kind of values to embrace. Live interviews highlight the reaction of youngsters to "The Bomb", civil rights, the struggle over Southeast Asia, and many other vital issues. Values from Teenagers confronts head on the teenage problem of conformity, and its troubling pressures on adolescents. It takes a strong position that the individual still has freedom of choice, still has the responsibility for his own decisions and actions. An excellent program for group guidance.

THE ROLE OF THE COUNSELOR IN THE SECONDARY SCHOOL — D-168

(Produced in cooperation with APGA and written by Carl O. Peets, past-President, ASCA)

Here, for the first time, is an imaginative, stimulating presentation on just what role the guidance counselor plays in the educational spectrum. It is designed not only for parent and teaching staff audiences, but also for professional development within the guidance staff. A special APGA professional committee, chaired by Carl O. Peets, former ASCA president and coordinated by Dr. Carl McDaniels (then APGA Director of Professional Services and now Associate Professor of Education at George Washington University), carefully researched and developed the material for this informative and concise sound filmstrip. The program provides insights into the coun-

YOUR FUTURE IN ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

Program examines personal qualities which make good teachers and strongly emphasizes the intangible rewards of teaching. An undergraduate describes her liberal arts-based curriculum, courses in education and student teaching. Your group learns three basic principles of teaching: clarity, patience and responsibility. Students examine central objectives of Early Childhood Education, development of subject areas and learning skills. They see clearly the demand for new teachers, opportunities open to them, advantages and challenges of urban, inner-city, suburban and rural teaching. Program also examines improving salaries, tenure and other benefits, post-graduate work in key specialties, consultant work in many areas of elementary education. Ideal for use with Future Teachers of America organizations. (American Film Festival Honors) 79 fr., 15 min.

ENGINEERING

CAREERS IN MATERIALS ENGINEERING: THE AEROSPACE AGE — D-235

The program begins by looking forward to the “Quasar Age” and the fantastic metals it may offer us. Then, students see the importance of metallurgy in present space projects: Saturn/Apollo and the Interplanetary Nova vehicle, in fuels and stress-bearing parts, wiring, refraction. They explore metallurgy as related to consumer goods production, view patterns of international cooperation in metallurgy. Finally, students learn about careers now opening in the three main branches of metallurgy: Extraction (finding and mining metals), Research (developing new alloys, compounds and materials) and Industrial (creating new applications for space projects and electronics). Comment by James Boyd, former Director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines and Dr. J. H. Holloman, Asst. Secretary of Commerce for Science and Technology.

COLLEGE EDUCATION IN ENGINEERING AND APPLIED SCIENCE, A — D-139

4-year college program

An essential educational experience for every student seriously considering an engineering or scientific career. This sight and sound program clearly explains the difference between science and engineering . . . the qualities and aptitudes most often found in a successful engineer . . . new changes in the curriculum which are now taking place at most engineering colleges. Spells out specifically what industry looks for when it hires an engineer, and what kinds of work engineers will perform on the job. A College Education in Engineering and Applied Science has been designed specifically to acquaint students with engineering as a profession, and with the great demands for engineers now and in the decade ahead. The program underlines the importance of having a liberal as well as a professional education, and examines the types of job responsibilities engineers can expect when they graduate from college. Produced in consultation with the Columbia University School of Engineering and Applied Science and the General Electric Company.

YOUR FUTURE IN ENGINEERING TECHNOLOGY — D-156
The 2-year associate degree program
Your Future in Engineering Technology brings a wide range of challenging responsibilities to life for students as a direct complement to your counseling program. Your students will be able to explore actual jobs in aero-space, electronic communications, chemical and industrial engineering, and power generation, then discuss with you those specialties that stimulate interest. Through no other medium but the sound filmstrip can the student be injected into such a variety of different jobs so effectively. In addition to presenting a variety of technologist roles, this program discusses the terminal and transfer programs of the many 2-year technical institutes... states qualifications for acceptance (often the high school record is less important than the student's motivation and aptitude)... describes curriculum... explains the Associate Degree.

CHOOSING YOUR CAREER — D-219
Despite all of the occupational resources available to young men and women today to help them make intelligent career decisions, the jobs of our nation are often filled by people who make the wrong choice for the wrong reason . . . or for no reason at all. Frequently, this is the result of a mismatching of individual personality and job “environment.” Choosing Your Career examines six primary job “environments”—artistic, conventional, enterprising, intellectual, realistic, and social—in terms of the personality type dominant in each, and helps students relate their own personality characteristics to job families in which they are most apt to be successful. The program points out that job satisfaction, stability and accomplishment depend upon this relationship between one's basic personality and the environment (composed largely of other people) in which one works. Included are guidelines on using part-time and summer employment to confirm interest in specific jobs or job families, and what place tests have in occupational planning. This program is designed to be used as an introduction to the major occupational files and kits being used in guidance today, including Science Research Associates, Chronicle Guidance Publications, Inc. and Careers. 2 full-color filmstrips 2 12" 1p records $35.00 GA

ECONOMIC LIFE II
827. Unlimited Wants — Limited Resources. An introduction to economics which explains some basic ideas, indicates how the American economy operates, explores current trends, and examines ways of closing the gap between unlimited wants and limited resources in the United States and other parts of the world.

832. The Flow of Goods and Services. The economic interdependence of various segments of society is treated in depth to highlight its significance in the production and the distribution of goods and services, and the processes in production, transportation, and marketing on a national and international scale provide for the continuity of the flow of goods and services.

834. The Tax Collector. Taxes collected by the local, the state, and the national government provide the American people with essential government services. After establishing this understanding, various taxes are studied, e.g., income taxes, excise taxes, customs, inheritance, gifts, social security, real estate, property, and sales. Rising taxes on the three governmental levels are compared.

GETTING AND KEEPING YOUR FIRST JOB — D-183
All too often the teenager seeking work for the first time follow- ing graduation from high school thinks only of getting that first job . . . and not much about what he must do to keep it. This sound filmstrip program places both job “getting” and job “keeping” in proper perspective for your students. Part I suggests to youngsters criteria for evaluating job opportunities and for relating basic interests and skills to job categories. Part II explores: the relationship between the new employee and fellow workers, and between employee and superiors . . . what constitutes job performance . . . attendance and the importance of being on time . . . making suggestions . . . grievances, and much more. Most important, your students will have a clearer understanding of the fact that job success comes to those who give something extra to their work, rather than trying to get by with as little effort as possible. An excellent program for any discussion of vocational planning.

PREPARING FOR THE JOBS OF THE 70'S — E-213 Part I shows how future job trends are being formed now by social and technological developments: Space exploration, the computer, the population explosion, undersea farming, new products and services. Your students see and hear scores of exciting jobs described in detail; many by bright, enthusiastic young people already trained for the future and doing its guidance counselors can offer valuable help in this area. Then, the concept of vocational education is introduced, and your groups confront the idea of specialized high school learning in the classroom, shop, lab or actual job situation. Part II investigates in detail five major areas of vocational education:

home economics, trade and industry, agriculture, distribution, business and office. Model interviews point out to students the availability and effectiveness of such training. Teacher's manual features questions for classroom discussion in addition to introductory notes.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW BEFORE YOU GO TO WORK — D-220

If the job search is intimidating for the new high school graduate, the prospect of reporting for the first day's work can be downright nerve-racking. This sound filmstrip is designed to dispel much of the uncertainty confronting your youngsters, while preparing them to make their first formal work experience a rewarding one. The program explores the basic economic theory of labor, indicates just what an employer expects of a new employee, and provides practical information on labor unions and closed shops, minimum wage laws, unemployment and disability insurance, approved health and safety habits, taxes, social security, group life insurance and much more. Material includes accepted practices in handling personality conflicts, making suggestions, asking for a raise, and information on company regulations, on-job training, the economic differences between quitting and being fired, and what to do if a particular job has proved to be a bad choice. Every youngster heading directly for the world of work should see this program.

YOUR JOB INTERVIEW — D-187

For the high school senior, the first job interview may present an almost insurmountable psychological barrier to employment. Your Job Interview attempts to place your students on a sound footing before they enter the first employment or personnel office. It will shed light on typical questions about: fringe benefits; job function; holiday and vacation pay policies; "union" and "open" shops; the immediate supervisor as opposed to the personnel officer; working conditions; overtime policies ... and at what point in the interview it is appropriate to raise such issues. Your Job Interview reinforces the point that the interview offers an opportunity for the applicant to get answers to many of his own questions. Most important, it shows how the employer uses the job interview technique to evaluate each job applicant.

SO YOU WANT TO BE A NURSE!

Voc. Films, Dist. by Henk Newenhouse, Inc., 1967
72 frames/12 min., color

Filmstrip purpose: The filmstrip is one of a series of audio-visual devices designed to stimulate thinking on the part of young people about career planning and choice. The filmstrip and the accompanying recording are developed to be motivational as well as informational. The filmstrip begins by examining some of the qualities necessary to become a registered nurse. A liking for people, interest in science, and average or above academic ability are among the qualities illustrated. To examine your interest in a nursing career, the filmstrip recommends starting by talking with your parents, your family doctor and friends. Part-time employment as an aid or volunteer work at a hospital is suggested as very elementary exposure to the world of a nurse. Pictures of other specialized areas and opportunities such as: nurse in private practice, nurse in doctor's office, governmental applications in health agencies, clinics, schools, and the armed forces show the range of opportunities in nursing. The procedure for entering nursing follows an established program. Four years of college with a degree, a two-year course in nursing at a junior college, or an approved nursing school operated by some hospital are some of the means of obtaining qualifications for meeting registration requirements. Next the filmstrip moves into the more specialized branches of the nursing profession, such as surgical or obstetrical work. It is very pointedly shown that opportunities exist for both men and women. Illustrates opportunities and gives suggestions for further information.

YOUR FUTURE IN NURSING — D-153
The Diploma School
Prepared in consultation with the National League for Nursing, this filmstrip uses the case study to dramatize the joy, the inspiration, the excitement, the disappointment, the importance, and the challenge nurses find in their career. In the light of the pathetic shortage of trained, dedicated nurses, this filmstrip program is a "must" for your counseling program and your community. Your Future in Nursing is not only career oriented, but also training oriented. It explores the diploma nursing program, with its training centered in the teaching hospitals. Many a young woman enters nursing with a "sugar-coated" misconception of the profession, having little or no understanding of how she actually becomes a nurse. This program graphically involves the student in Future Nurses Clubs; explores costs, curriculum, accommodations, training duties, and requirements for admission. Most important, this filmstrip suggests the kinds of young women most likely to enjoy a career in nursing, and the personality characteristics most desirable in the prospective nursing student.

PEACE CORPS IN ACTION, THE
Five highly dramatic color programs take your students to Asia, Africa, South America. They examine the life styles, economics and living conditions of developing peoples; investigate the politics, ethnic and geographic problems of young nations. Students share the daily routine of primitive villagers, urban slum dwellers, tribesmen and destitute peasants. They see a need greater than many ever imagined, and recognize the true dimensions of poverty and ignorance throughout the world. President John F. Kennedy calls for volunteers . . . and your class meets many of those who responded. Dozens of Peace Corps members tell about themselves and their work, their motives for joining, their specific skills and objectives, Volunteer qualifications and training are outlined. Before long, youngsters sense the personal satisfaction which rewards Peace Corpsmen. These programs are recommended for use in civics to illustrate American response to world need; as people-centered Area Studies aids; as highly factual Economics materials and, in some cases, as Vocational Guidance programs.

American Government in Action: Portrait of a Governor — E-448

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York tells your students about the functions of state government: Its responsibilities in areas of transportation, crime, finance, welfare. He describes his relationship with the State Legislature, Federal and local administrations. Your class meets the Governor campaigning for an important transportation bond issue, traveling throughout the state to gather information, conferring on programs and policies. Students hear his personal views on the nature of our Federal system and gain a memorable portrait of the man and the daily conduct of his office.

American Government in Action: Portrait of a Mayor — E-475

In candid interviews, Mayor John V. Lindsay describes the problems of governing New York City: Dealing with the crime and drug problems, education in the urban complex, the flight of middle class families to the suburbs. Students join Mayor Lindsay at a City Board of Estimate meeting, a City Council meeting, in conference with Police Commissioner Leary, in Washington and Albany seeking funds to assist in the operation of city government. They understand the problems of coordinating city functions and agencies, reconciling the demands of city workers’ unions with the city’s limited finances. And throughout, your students gain a forceful picture of the daily activities of a big city mayor and those who help him govern.

- Abraham Lincoln
- Andrew Jackson
- Daniel Webster
- John C. Calhoun
- Lafayette
- John Quincy Adams

The influence of six men during the growth of the young United States in the shaping of its policies is depicted in this series through photographs filmed in actual historic locations. The bitter controversy of states rights vs. national power, still so relevant today, is dramatized in the lives of Jackson, Lincoln, Calhoun, and Webster. Biography and history are combined in these filmstrips to give the student of U.S. history a meaningful context for the political events and issues of the age. Vice Presidency, The: In Action and Evolution — E-414

Produced with the cooperation of the Office of the Vice President of the United States and featuring exclusive interviews and commentary by Vice President Humphrey.

Part I begins with the adoption in 1967 of the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, governing the orderly transfer of responsibility from a disabled President to the Vice President. Students trace the problem of presidential succession from the death of President Harrison through the Acts of 1896 and 1947. They further examine key legislation pertaining to the Vice Presidency, particularly the 12th Amendment which provides for the direct election of the Vice President. Part II emphasizes the role of the Vice President today as special presidential aide. Students learn how recent Vice Presidents have contributed to their office and to the nation in areas of diplomacy, civil rights and poverty legislation, space programs, national security, youth programs, the Peace Corps. Mr. Humphrey personally describes a typical working day. Then, after a brief biographical study, Vice President Humphrey returns to discuss his relationship to the President in terms of personal loyalty and national duty. Teacher’s Manual features discussion and review section (based on political cartoons and charts at the end of Part II). Questions for classroom discussion, suggested projects and curriculum correlation chart in addition to script, instructions and introductory notes.

JACK IN THE PULPIT

Produced by the United Church of Canada, 1964. 104 fr col sfs Color artwork shows the "many faces" of "Jack in the pulpit," as the pastor appears to his parishioners. This is followed by a well organized, accurate development of the people's concept of the pastor and the primary work of a pastor in presenting the Word of God. Shows not only the role of the pastor, but also emphasizes the place of everyone in the congregation in the world of the church. Good for motivation in choice of Christian vocation. Recommended for inspiration and discussion.

FOUR WHO QUIT — D-222
Here is one of the most unusual—and powerful—guidance programs we've ever developed. Four subjects—all school dropouts in their mid-teens—were carefully selected from among dozens originally interviewed: rural, and urban, Negro and white, male and female. An editor was assigned to "live" with each for as long as a month, gaining his confidence and recording his "story." The result: a group guidance workshop of four poignant case studies, dramatized with in-the-field photography and actual live taped voices. Four Who Quit will help you explore first-hand the hopes, the motivations, the uncertainties that affect each of these four in making his dropout decision... and the stark reality of the world he plunged into—unprepared emotionally, educationally and financially.
Each talks frankly about his reasons for quitting school and about what he found "on the outside."

used in the study of slavery and the Civil War. It can be presented to show that Negro leaders played a significant part in the fight to end slavery in the United States and in other reform movements. In the earlier grades, where a biographical approach to American studies is frequently employed, this filmstrip may be used to introduce or enrich a unit on Americans who have contributed to social reform. ($6.00) PSP

I NEVER LOOKED AT IT THAT WAY BEFORE — D-195
What do smoking, drinking, experimenting with sex and dope have in common in the life of a teenager? They are all outlets for the pent-up energies, the need for some sort of self-expression, that many young boys and girls develop. The causes are many. They may stem from a basic striving for recognition and acceptance, for social "leadership", or from an ill-defined feeling of resentment toward authority, or an "I'll show them" attitude. From a desire to emulate the very adults who, while indulging themselves, would suppress such acts by their children. This powerful program is designed to turn the young-

Produced by Friendship Press
A process filmstrip, the material not only tells a story and provides information, but its purpose is for the viewers to participate in discussion at various places in the filmstrip where the record is marked with grooves to stop the sound. Part I provides a profile of our unequal society. Part II adds information and ends with the question, "What can the white man do about the situation?" Part III (optional) consists of voices of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Governor Otto Kerner of Illinois, Whitney Young, Jr., Director of the National Urban League, and author James Baldwin. Part IV (the other side of the record) contains more materials from the four men quoted in Part III, with locked grooves between each excerpt to allow for more discussion. (IX A 3, IX B 3, V B 7)

LIBERTY STREET—ONE WAY?—E-215
De facto segregation and the mechanics of racial inequity are shown at work in the lives of two men—friends but not neighbors in the enlightened town of Plainfield. First, students are introduced to Matt and Ray, Firemen First Class, friends and equals in every definable way. Then Matt's family, visit his home, hear how he built a decent comfortable life. From Matt's house at one end of Liberty Street, your class travels to Ray's apartment on the other. In a low-keyed narrative, students see with painful clarity how just being a Negro has excluded the Ray family from the property, the freedom of movement and opportunity, the educational benefits for his children—which his white friend enjoys. Candid, believable story leads student and adult groups to discuss ways they can help combat racial injustice on the local level. Teacher's Manual features suggestions and questions for discussion in addition to script, content summary, introduction and detailed instructions.

RUMOR CLINIC
Produced by the Anti-Defamation League, 1948 (revised 1962). Each of the filmstrip's three frames pictures a different incident for observation. For each picture, one member of the viewing group is to scan it while others do not. This "reporter" reports to the group member next to him what he has seen. This person, in turn, repeats what was told to him, and so on down the line. The report according to the last person told is compared with the actual scene projected for the entire group. An excellent guide explains in detail the experimentation. It demonstrates effectively the great degree of inaccuracy in personal observation and communication.

TELL IT LIKE IT IS! Series

Alcohol: Fun or Folly? In a direct question-and-answer approach the myths of popular misconception and the falsehoods of liquor advertising are exploded. Each truth is nailed down with a humorous cartoon. The Department of the Navy has purchased a limited copyright on this book, and has already printed over 30,000 copies. The matching filmstrip is 56 frames; the recorded narration is 10 minutes. The book filmstrip, script and recording can be purchased separately for $10.95.

Smoking . . . or Health? Based on the report, "Smoking and Health," by the Advisory Committee to the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service. It summarizes the report's alarming facts and presents them in simple, understandable language, picture graphs and comic cartoons. The matching color filmstrip is 56 frames; recorded narration is 10 minutes. This set can be purchased separately for $10.95. Book, filmstrip and record.

Glue-Sniffing: Big Trouble in a Tube. The message, style and cartoon illustrations are pointed toward the teenagers and pre-teens—those most likely to be enticed by the dangerous temptations of glue-sniffing. This will attract their attention, hold it, and make a lasting impression of the seriousness of this current "kick." The accompanying color filmstrip is 46 frames; the recorded narration is 8½ minutes long. This glue-sniffing set may be bought separately for $10.95. Book, filmstrip and record.

LSD: Trip or Trap? Facts from some of the latest research on LSD and other hallucinogenic drugs. A summary of the euphoria claims of "mind expansion" and "spiritual discovery" made by the "turned on" generation. This brand new book and its companion filmstrip has been commended by an official of the Federal Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Drug Abuse. The 47 frame color filmstrip and 10 minute recorded narration and book can be bought separate from the "Tell It Like It Is" series for only $10.95. Book, filmstrip and record.

TO SMOKE OR NOT TO SMOKE

Produced by the American Cancer Society, 1961.

Designed chiefly for use by teachers in junior and senior high schools in courses in health education, this describes the keen interest of high school students in the questions of whether or not to smoke. Shows the growing seriousness of lung cancer and the relationships between smoking and lung cancer. Effect of injurious substances in cigarettes on the normal function of the lungs is described, and the importance of early detection of lung cancer, and importance of individual decision not to take up smoking, or to stop smoking. Follow-up quiz and helpful guide included.

TOBACCO AND ALCOHOL: THE $50,000 HABIT

Smoking and drinking. Statistics indicate that the vast majority of teenagers have tried both. And they probably didn't like the taste of either, the first time. But, for one reason or another—primarily peer-group pressure—most teenagers continue until they develop a habit which can cost each of them.
$50,000 during their lifetime... if they live long enough. This sound filmstrip is structured to dramatize the real dangers inherent in smoking and drinking. And Tobacco and Alcohol is unique in its form—a sound filmstrip play, complete with four characters and a narrator. Your youngsters will become deeply involved in a roundtable group discussion as they actually identify with or reject characters on the screen. As characters raise the questions most common to teenagers—about the social pressures, automobile accidents, lung cancer, the difficulties of breaking a habit, parental criticism—the narrator interjects the cold, irrefutable statistics, speaking for the U.S. Surgeon General and other authorities... a compelling group guidance program.

TUNED-OUT GENERATION, THE — D-202

If there is a single major cause of teenage unrest today, it is the sense of frustration at the lack of communication between these youngsters and their parents. And each day our mass media reinforce the concept of the "youth subculture," helping to widen the gulf between the generations. The Tuned-Out Generation takes dead aim at this idea of separateness by focusing not on the ways the generations differ, but rather on the ways they are alike. Much of the sound filmstrip program is built on actual live interviews with dozens of adults, who speak without inhibition about their own attitudes toward teenagers. Your students will react to them all... the parent who has really tuned out on his son's needs and problems... the mother who has made a point of learning about her son's world—only to have him reject her familiarity... the father who recognizes the example he sets will guide his children... the parent who sees his child's idealism as a stimulus to his own... the frank statement of frustration by adults, in turn, at their frequent inability to communicate better with their children. Structured to help both teenagers and adults gain new insights into, and compassion for, the "other" generation, this program will stimulate a re-examination of the "communications gap."

HOW TO SUCEED IN HIGH SCHOOL... BY TRYING

Author: Abraham Lass, Principal, Abraham Lincoln H.S., N.Y.

Successful adjustment to high school calls first for an understanding of the ways in which the high school experience differs from earlier school experiences. Even more important, it calls for an attitudinal change on the part of the student to permit him to meet new challenges and handle increased personal responsibility. It emphasizes how to get the most out of the high school years, including teacher and counselor contact, studying, classroom participation, extra-curricular activities and developing friendships. Most important, material relates the importance of a high school education to future opportunity.
JUNIOR-SENIOR

While the program does explore the newness of the high school experience — new environment, new teachers, new friends, new methods — it focuses primarily on the individual's responsibility in attempting to prepare for the years ahead.

HUNG UP ON HOMEWORK?

Narrated by Chet Huntley

Students, teachers and guidance counselor discuss the value of homework, ways to do it more effectively and benefit more from assignments. Narrative and candid interviews first analyze key questions: What is homework's contribution to learning? What is the function of daily review? Is parental pressure harmful or counter-productive? How is homework cheating harmful? What is a "reasonable" amount of homework? Then the program describes practical ways to improve study habits for homework: shows how to form a plan of action, create proper study environment, review work, use study halls, learn from mistakes.

INDIVIDUAL COLLEGE ADMISSIONS

In conjunction with a nationwide effort to raise the aspirational level of a broad segment of our teenage population (Upward Bound, Higher Horizons, Project Aerie, Project Uplift, to name a few), Guidance Associates has been asked to make its large number of individual College Admissions Filmstrip programs available on a pre-packaged library basis. Through viewing any cross-section of the college and university programs listed below, it is felt that much of the "mystery" surrounding college can be dispelled in the minds of disadvantaged youngsters, and that a college education can be established as a realistic and attainable goal. In addition, these programs continue to be of great value in giving college-bound high school youngsters a means of exploring the subjective aspects of any of the colleges represented. All sound filmstrip programs qualify for purchase under ESEA and NDEA.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

DARE TO BE DIFFERENT
Helps students discuss conformity in their daily lives and in adult society . . . relate conformity to their personal feelings about individuality and self-respect. In Part I, students examine social and moral strengths they derive from sharing common ideas, styles and loyalties. Then they see life situations where "fitting-in" requires ethical compromise, where conflict occurs between adult and peer norms. Program suggests "conformists" base actions on outside pressure while individuality means ability to act on the merits of each situation in accord with personal conviction. Part II probes conformist traditions in America: the immigrant ideal of assimilation, the tendency of business to hire "average people," status-oriented materialism. Students meet many who have resisted these pressures, see key differences between the total rebellion of hippies and the creative individuality of artists and other imaginative workers. Program concludes by relating these social themes to choices students make daily — between enriching and diminishing themselves.

THE ECUMENICAL BIT — 1967
This filmstrip is meant to serve as an introduction to ecumenics, to engage interest and support of Christians in the work of reuniting the scattered flock of Christ. The narration stresses the cause of ecumenism, lists practical ways in which Catholic, Protestant, and Orthodox lay people can promote unity at the neighborhood and parish levels. Interesting original artwork and a provocative subject provide a spring board for discussion and motivation to inter-church ecumenical conversations.

MAN AND HIS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM Man's Origins
Man Learns To Communicate Man, Builder of Cities Man's Commerce

Man the Lawmaker Man the Laborer Man's Governments
Man's Search for Liberty

Made possible through a grant to the University of Chicago by the Fund for Adult Education, this series of filmstrips is equally effective for use by adult discussion groups and by high school and college world history classes. Color drawings with appropriate captions tell the story of man's unending struggle through the ages for intellectual as well as physical freedom. The filmstrips provide incentive for discussion and additional research in one of the great fields of modern thinking. A pamphlet of eight supplementary essays accompanies each set of filmstrips purchased. They are also available in larger quantities at a nominal cost for individual student use.

Man and His Fight for Freedom (8200) (H-C-A)

(These filmstrips average 45 frames each.) (EBF)

MASCULINITY AND FEMINITY
Author: Richard Hettlinger, Prof. of Religion, Kenyon College
Students examine physical factors which contribute to role definition; view sexual roles as expressed in various cultures; probe basic American attitudes toward masculinity and femininity and problems caused when these attitudes are exaggerated or over-simplified. Program suggests a more flexible approach to sexual roles, encourages recognition of individual capacities through an understanding of sexual distinctions. Students relate role factors to male and female sexual response. They investigate the varying sexual expectations of young men and women; difficulties in communication between the sexes; problems which arise when each partner seeks a different emotional and physical response from the other. Emphasis is on understanding sexuality as far more varied and complex than simple physical contact.

WORLD'S GREAT RELIGIONS series
Produced by Life Filmstrips, 1956. 5 col., fs
Buddhism, 70 fr. The doctrines expressed by Prince Siddharta Guatama — Buddha, the Enlightened One — some twenty-five centuries ago are depicted along with their influence on Asia's millions today. Included in the visualization are rites of initiation for Burmese boys, the past and present scenes prominent in the religion's history, and the variations of the Mahayana and Hinayana forms of the faith.

BEHIND THE COUNTER
A COLLEGIATE EDUCATION IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION — D-181
A case history developed at Babson Institute
While more and more of our high school graduates are going on to college, business and industry are finding it increasingly difficult to recruit trainable management talent. Many of our top college graduates are attracted to complete graduate school and enter the professions, or enter the public service. The result: more and better job opportunities in industry than ever existed before. Your Future in Business Administration explores the modern corporation and the management skills required to run it. Discusses the nature of Business Administration education and the broad experience the modern executive is expected to develop in the fields of marketing, distribution, finance, personnel management, production, communications, and much more.

3-3: FRESH PERSPECTIVES IN COMPOSITION
A classroom-proved filmstrip series to help aspiring high school writers improve their imaginations and abilities in composition. The objectives of this timely filmstrip series are clearly defined: (1) to help the English teacher present a living, inspiring class in writing and (2) provide the necessary “idea” ingredients that will prompt students to cultivate their sense of originality.
3-3A. Developing Concrete Details: Introducing the students to four basic stand by helpers, similes, metaphors, specific words, and additional details.
3-3B. Revising the Composition: Errors in proofreading, the importance of revising the manuscript after the “cooling-off period.” w/recording
3-3C. Journal-Keeping for Writers: Suggestions for journal-keeping, famous journals of Thoreau and Anne Frank, finding suitable entries. w/recording CHRISTIANITY, 88 fr. Giving the first two-fifths of its frames to historical backgrounds, the material devotes its remainder to contemporary expressions of Christian belief and life in America. Introductory scenes of Christ's birth, life, and death are drawn from Renaissance art. The place of the cross and Apostle's Creed are noted as well as Peter and Paul's foundational work for the church. Succeeding incidents are outlined with a relative minimum of attention to the Reformation.

CONFUCIANISM and TAOISM, 64 fr. This, the shortest in the series, deals with the two Chinese-originated religions still alive in world proportions. The significant contributions of each "founder" are set in relationship to the precepts employed by each in the syntheses which became known by these labels. Hinduism, 77 fr. Dwelling almost entirely on philosophic aspects of the religion, the filmstrip describes its gods, teachings on renunciation and the place of animals, rituals of death, and caste system. Popular Hinduism is not prominent in the presentation, nor are its meaning as a family faith. Further, recent changes in beliefs and practices are somewhat neglected. Islam, 79 fr. The beginnings and spread of Muslim faith carry due emphasis on the Koran as well as creed and practice. Fasts, rituals, leaders, and pilgrimages are touched upon as is a concluding mention of Islam's missionary character. Judaism, 75 fr. The survey of this religion covers first the origins, then discusses the three contemporary branches of the original: orthodox, conservative, and reformed. Important aspects — festivals, scriptures, rituals, theology, etc. — are organized and treated in this topical manner.

AUTOMATION: PROMISE OR THREAT? — E-149
Students trace the historic development of automation from the Industrial Revolution. They see detailed examples of computer applications in industry, manufacture and service. They look ahead to an even more automated future of “money cards,” sophisticated teaching machines, “instant” medical diagnoses, lightning-swift production. Internationally known management consultant John Diebold discusses social implications of automation: Effect on privacy and life styles. Mr. Diebold and others analyze impact of automation on employment, discusses the positions of labor and management, point to job trends we can expect in coming years. Mr. Diebold summarizes his program with the advice: “I think the main thing to learn today is how to learn.” Teacher's Manual features graded instructions, outside projects, vocabulary and bibliography in addition to content summary, introductory notes and full instructions. Produced in cooperation with The Associated Press.

THE ALIENATED GENERATION
Contrasts the often glamorized mass-media view of hippies with the down-to-earth realities of their daily lives
Part I fills your classroom with the sounds, faces and life styles of San Francisco's Haight Ashbury district... as high-impact color photos and music taped on location create multi-sensory awareness of the hippie world. Part II pinpoints key facts about hippies: many are young people from affluent homes, most have attended college. Hippies tell you their students why they gave up on society. Program describes common patterns of alienation: lack of communication at home, disgust at social ills: war, poverty, racism. Part III examines day-to-day life in Haight Ashbury as it exemplifies hippie communities throughout the country. Students see the significance of communal living, "free" food and clothes, drugs, interpersonal relations. Then, hippies themselves explain why many young people find only sorrow and disillusionment in "the Haight." Program emphasizes the great hazards of dropping out on education and passing up training for the future. Program features exclusive interviews with: New York Disc Jockey Gary Stevens, George Johnston, Promotion Director of Seventeen Magazine, Samuel Grafton, Publisher of Youth Report.

HOW THINGS HIDE PEOPLE
Prod. by Friendship Press, 1966. 76 fr., col., sfs Explores some of the problems faced by the middle-income person as he tries to understand and cope with the reality of poverty in his social circle.

THE POPULATION EXPLOSION
Produced in cooperation with The Associated Press. Based on the program "The People Problem" Program features exclusive interviews with Alan F. Guttmacher, President, Planned Parenthood Association, and Bernard Berelson, President of the Population Council. Students confront the problems of overpopulation in developed as well as underdeveloped countries. These problems include shortages of food, housing, and goods and services of all kinds. The concept of "space poverty" and the threat it poses to mental health are examined. Your class learns how modern medicine and the rapid rise in the birth rate contribute to the population explosion. Programs initiated by the United Nations and the U.S. Government to help alleviate the problem resulting from overpopulation are considered.

EDUCATION

CHOOSING A COLLEGE

Helps students plan a basic "countdown" for making initial college selections, investigating colleges and matching them to personal needs and interests. Students see ways to distinguish primary from secondary criteria. They recognize the danger of basing plans on those of friends or unwise parental pressure. Program discusses scholarships, explains who should seek out vigorous intellectual challenges, stresses the importance of considering departmental and faculty strength rather than "prestige" in evaluating colleges. Finally, students review common points which may influence their decisions: college size, geographic location, urban, suburban or rural setting, coeducation, social structure, costs, athletics, other facilities.

THE COLLEGE DROPOUT: SIX OUT OF EVERY TEN

Anticipates and explains social, emotional and academic reasons often influencing the decision to drop out. Students gain realistic perspective on homesickness, financial readjustment, study problems and other common experiences. Dropouts describe their own dissatisfaction with college life, teachers, curricula. Program suggests criteria for recognizing legitimate dropout decisions. Case histories demonstrate joint responsibilities of student, institution, college advisors and parents in potential and actual dropout situations. Finally, program discusses the many ways dropping out of college limits future opportunities.

THE COOPERATIVE WAY TO A COLLEGE EDUCATION

Program outlines the objectives and structural organization of five-year work-study programs; explains how they are set up for individual students after freshman year, indicates the wide range of corporate and government agencies which participate. Students learn of the opportunities available, small class size, individual attention on the job and in class, close work with program coordinators, higher academic averages among cooperative students. They see career advancement and stability benefits available to coop students, consider money earned during the work-study period, the value of continuing practice in human relations. Case histories highlight the advantages of a cooperative college education.

FRESHMAN YEAR AT COLLEGE

Program identifies and explores major areas of adjustment for most college freshmen. Students consider the loss of privacy a roommate may represent, personal accommodation which may be necessary, the opportunity to learn from another person's point of view. Program alerts students to intellectual challenges which may disturb their deepest convictions amid the give and take of all-night bull sessions. They appreciate the emphasis college puts on ideas rather than straight facts, understand grading involves less rote recall than in high school, realize the importance of essay expression and class performance. Students also consider adjustments they have to make to social organization on campus, the need for better study habits and skills; new relationships with faculty members.

GETTING INTO COLLEGE IF YOU'RE AN AVERAGE STUDENT

Program shows average students the wide opportunities for college acceptance available to them. Part I points out factors colleges consider which aren't shown on academic transcripts. Students examine motivational changes which cause "late bloomers" to flower in college. They hear of admissions policies favoring hard workers, and of others searching out bright under-achievers. Part II surveys the more than 2,000 four-year colleges and other training programs. Students look in depth at what many are admissions-hungry, that one third accept virtually all applicants and that over 40,000 freshmen seats go empty each fall. "C" students get tips on finding the right college and actual dropout situations. Finally, program discusses the many ways dropping out of college limits future opportunities.

HOW TO READ A COLLEGE CATALOG

Saves time for student and counselor by detailing ways to extract key information. Students review the variety of catalog types and formats. They see how to find and compute costs, spot key words in the admissions and introductory sections, examine registration procedures, and understand the meaning and importance of courses, departmental prerequisites, course exceptions, lectures and seminars, honors and independent study programs, grading systems, course credits, ways to match courses to individual needs. Program features detailed advice on using scholarship information, reading rosters, gathering data on athletics, social life, cultural and extra-curricular activities, student government.

I WISH I'D KNOWN THAT BEFORE I WENT TO COLLEGE

American Film Festival Honors

Based on the widely acclaimed “College Student’s Handbook” by Bill Wilson, Dean of Admissions, Amherst College and Abraham Lass, Principal of Abraham Lincoln H.S., N.Y.

The authors personally confront your students with the realities of college life as opposed to common misconceptions; analyze valid vs. invalid reasons for going to college. Through case histories, they prepare students to deal with post-orientation week letdown; feelings of social and academic inadequacy; post-Christmas “depression,” roommate problems, “transferitis,” marriage. Most important, the program probes personal motivations which often lead to premature or unwise transfers: family necessity, undergraduate over-emphasis on secondary activities such as athletics. Narrative also explains general transfer policies of many colleges and universities, outlines some basic transfer procedures.

AN OVERVIEW OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Part I describes the technical or "para-professional" job level, examines technicians' roles in engineering, food processing, food service, agricultural supply, farm marketing, industrial production and distribution, chemical, electrical and metallurgical research, civil service, health and medicine, data processing, accounting, advertising, child development. Emphasizes the growing importance of technical work, relates technical training to the impact of automation, discusses chances for advancement from technical to professional responsibilities. Part II gives detailed information on vocational education programs which prepare students for technical jobs. Introduces undersea availability and advantages of technical careers for students of many backgrounds.

INDIVIDUAL COLLEGE ADMISSIONS

In conjunction with a nationwide effort to raise the aspirational level of a broad segment of our teenage population, Guidance Associates has been asked to make its large number of individual College Admissions Sound Filmstrip programs available on a pre-packaged basis. Through viewing any cross-section of the college and university programs listed below, it is felt that much of the "mystery" surrounding college can be dispelled in the minds of disadvantaged youngsters, and that a college education can be established as a realistic and attainable goal. In addition, these programs continue to be of great value in giving college-bound high school youngsters a means of exploring the subjective aspects of any of the colleges represented.

Each Sound Filmstrip consists of approximately 80-100 full-color fr., narrated by a 15-20 min. lp record, $12.00 ea. In cassettes, $14.00 ea.
SELCTING YOUR "SECOND CHOICE" COLLEGE: REDUCING MULTIPLE APPLICATIONS
Case histories underscore the importance of investigating and selecting alternative college choices carefully, basing all college applications on self-awareness. Program suggests ways to alter minor criteria to find colleges which satisfy student's primary needs and interests. Students see methods for handling multiple acceptance situations. They examine the role of parents and counselors in formulating applications strategy.

And they learn of help offered by the College Admissions Center of Evanston, Illinois. Program emphasizes that students attending "second choice" colleges are, more often than not, highly satisfied.

SHOULD YOU GO TO COLLEGE?
Narrated by an experienced guidance counselor, program emphasizes the availability of college education to students with varying grades, career ambitions and financial resources. Students consider the wide range of state, church-related and liberal arts colleges, urban universities, technical institutes and community colleges. Two parallel case histories demonstrate how a college education may demand early sacrifice but bring personal and financial rewards usually beyond the reach of those without college training. Program reviews tuition-free college education, loans, part-time employment which make financing possible, "second chance" admission policies which stress motivation over previous performance.

WHEN YOU VISIT A COLLEGE
Program stresses the importance of planning college visits in advance, making appointments for interviews and guided tours. Students see the advantages of taking parents along; visiting colleges while in session; sitting in on a humanities class; eating in the dining room with students. They gain pointers on how to use the college newspaper and bulletin boards to get key information; how to size up the town situation; evaluate departments and professors; get candid information from student guides; check out lab, athletic and other facilities, develop insights about the college from inspecting its library. Students also learn how to make best use of their admissions interview; ask important questions and give honest, straightforward answers.

WHO SHOULD GO TO A COMMUNITY COLLEGE?
Details the academic, financial and geographic advantages offered by hundreds of America's "Opportunity Colleges." Program shows how the two-year Associate Degree provides training for technical and semi-professional jobs. Students note the success of Community College graduates in going on to complete four-year college. Program traces the history of community colleges; surveys the many types now functioning; explains their emphasis on local control and local needs; points out our recent expansion of facilities resulting from increased local and state support. Emphasis on upgrading career and education planning of students from varied backgrounds.

WHO SHOULD GO TO A LIBERAL ARTS COLLEGE?
By visiting hypothetical Corinth College, students get a vivid sense of small college life, understand the purposes of a liberal arts education. They consider key curriculum features: emphasis on survey and required courses. They understand the value of close student-faculty contact. Students see social life at this type college, its campus and facilities, class structure and size, dormitory life, college-town relations, extra-curricular activities, historical development of Corinth and colleges it represents, the value of a Liberal Arts Diploma in post-graduate education, earning a living, building a creative, meaningful life.

WHO SHOULD GO TO AN URBAN UNIVERSITY?
Students visit Jefferson University to examine the quality of big city education. They see the advantages of contact with a broad cross-section of students and teachers. They understand the objectives of the basic two-year course in humanities followed by two years with more elective courses. They hear of opportunities to participate in serious scholarship. Students probe the interdependence of university, city and state as demonstrated in post-graduate work by law, engineering and education students. Program reviews permissive social regulations typical of urban universities; the roles of fraternities, cultural activities, athletics, tuition and other costs; extra-curricular activities.

YOU AND YOUR COLLEGE ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS
Narrated by Chet Huntley
Program clearly explains why College Boards and ACTs are needed, how they are created and scored, how they are used by colleges and how your students can best prepare to take them successfully. Students also learn of free introductory booklets available such as the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. They understand the functions and relative importance of verbal and mathematical aptitude tests, subject achievement tests. Prepared with CEEB and ETS, program suggests ways test scores can be used by student and counselor for individual planning, and places major emphasis on effective ways to prepare for college entrance examinations.

YOU'RE MORE THAN A SCORE
Narrated by Harry Reasoner
Program gives students a complete explanation of the American College Testing system. Part I introduces students to the four types of ACT tests: Math, English, Social Science and Natural Science. Students learn how and where these tests are constructed, what they measure, why they are necessary. Part II explains how and when students can take ACT tests, shows how test information is computerized and recorded on cards for student, high school and college choices. Individual case history helps demonstrate ways admissions officers use ACT data; to match the student's abilities and interest against college curriculum and activities, predict each student's general chances for success. Students also review ACT's value in helping them plan courses, select majors, think about future careers.

396083: ART AND THE GROWING CHILD
A sound filmstrip, in color, in which actual paintings made by children are used to illustrate how the emotional and intellectual development of a child is reflected in his painting and how an interpretation of his artistic work helps an adult to understand a child. The filmstrip is accompanied by a double-face, 33⅓ rpm record, one side of which has been prepared for parents, teachers and other adults who have contact with children and who are responsible for their growth and development. The other side is designed to awaken and stimulate children's interest in art. (58 fr.) L.C.FiA 56-2398
Price: Set of filmstrip and record $15.00 (MCG)

AS THEY GROW/ELEMENTARY GUIDANCE:
NEW DIMENSIONS IN MEETING PUPIL NEEDS—D-191
Developed in cooperation with the Ohio State Department of Education, Division of Guidance and Testing — Dr. John G. Odgers, Director. Consultant: Dr. George E. Hill, Distinguished Professor, Ohio University; Chairman, National Committee on Counselor Education Standards.
One of the most important documentaries ever developed for the guidance field, this sound filmstrip on the nature of the elementary guidance program has become the touchstone for discussion of the evolving nature of the elementary program. The material is designed to provide insights into twelve established elementary guidance projects in a cross-section of communities. Treatment of the material takes into account the embryonic state of "elementary guidance" itself, and attempts to provide some meaningful guidelines for local application.
Dr. Hill has helped weave theoretical threads throughout the predominantly case-study, live-situation content of this 2-part program. Emphasis is placed on the developmental aspects of elementary guidance, acknowledging the stage-by-stage maturing of the child. The program explores the role of the counselor per se, and as a member of the pupil personnel team. It also discusses the elementary counselor as he: interprets test data for teachers, counsels youngsters, refers pupils to others on the school staff, maintains and updates cumulative records, develops outside resources, lays the foundation for occupational planning. This program is designed for Coordinators of Pupil Personnel Services and Guidance, School Principals and Administrators, and Elementary School Counseling Staffs. It is ideal for interpreting elementary guidance to PTA's and other parent groups, thus developing support for this important new pupil service.
2 full-color filmstrips; 2 12" lp records; Part I: 52 fr/11 min.; Part II: 62 fr/14 min. $35.00; L.C.FiA 66-3098. (GA)

197 NONGRADED EDUCATION FOR THE MODERN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL
A filmstrip series to introduce and explore the concepts that are inherent in the philosophy of nongraded education. The various theories of nongraded education for the in-service education of the professional teaching staff are discussed in depth. The entire controversy regarding nongraded education is reviewed regarding: the objectives, advantages and disadvantages of homogenous grouping, the situations that arise within the ungraded school, solving the problems of orientation, and appraising factors controlling the best plan for a nongraded instructional program. This timely and informative series will very soon be utilized by administrators, teachers, parent organizations, PTA's and other meetings, and for the enlightenment of the schools' non-teaching staff.

197A Nongraded Education: An Overview. A general introduction to the purposes of Nongraded Education. The main points are established for discussion immediately following the presentation.

197B The Question of Grouping for Nongraded Education. A description of one grouping procedure best suited for local conditions. This filmstrip is intended primarily to serve as an instrument for the in-service education of the professional teaching staff.

197C Within the Ungraded School. Activities within the classroom. Eliminating "graded thinking" on the part of the teacher. Emphasizing the fact that every school experience contributes toward total student development.
COLLEGE • ADULT

197D  Effecting the Change to a Nongraded Program. Recommended procedures regarding the initial period. By carefully selecting a plan for transition, a district can avoid pitfalls which can otherwise harm good intentions.

MINNESOTA TRENDS SERIES 15 min.
SS107 The Changing Use of Minnesota Farm Land. An interview with Leverett P. Hoag, research fellow in geography. Corn, oats, and soybeans, have increased greatly since 1940. Wheat and barley have decreased in acreage. Trends for future crop production and specialization.

SS108 Getting Started in Farming. Future Farmers and 4H Clubs have assisted boys in getting started to become partners with their fathers in farming. In 1935, the average farm was 161 acres. In 1950, the number of farms decreased but acreage increased to 185. An increase in technical skills and managerial ability are highly important today.

SS109 The Outlook for the Small Town. There are about 700 towns under 5,000 population. Rapid transportation and mass communications have changed living habits in small towns. New industries and branches are located in small towns. It is suggested that small towns organize a study group to ascertain their human and material resources.

SS110 The Trade and Industry of Our Small Cities. Cities of 10,000 to 30,000 are here considered. Austin’s per capita income is nearly twice that of Bemidji but their per capita sales are 13th in the list of 15 small cities. Mankato is the leading city in per capita sales because of a large trading area. Development of tannite and vacationing will affect the growth of some of these cities.

COMMERCIAL BUSINESS SERIES (Dutch Uncle Talks)
A series of talks by Ralph Hinman, Manager of the Better Business Bureau Inc. of Wichita, Kansas. Mr. Hinman "turns the searchlight on the questionable and the doubtful, and the floodlight on your path to safety and satisfaction in your daily business-of-living transactions." These talks point out many actual cases of illegitimate business deals which robbed people of their savings. The stories he tells may help young people develop an inquiring habit of mind and point the way to high ethical standards. 15 min.

CB1 The Human Nature of Business. Introductory program for this series. "Our business system is not perfect. It cannot be because it is so very human. There is a side of human nature which runs to extremes unless held in check by spiritual, moral, or material considerations."

CB2 Self Regulation in Business. Government and Local Controls which protect the public's interest; including your Better Business Bureau.

CB3 The Post Office Box That Wasn't There. Correspondence School Enrollments may be legal contracts, and chain letters are illegal.

CB4 Dutch Uncle Talk. Beware of fraudulent schemes by mail for selling held packages, "free lot deals", —fishing and hunting property. Also, the itinerant silver plating expert; used cars that have been soaked with salt water, and itinerant photographers.

CB5 Dutch Uncle Talk. Punchboards can be very costly to all but the operator in-the-know. Furnace repair men operating for a company long out of existence can cause great inconvenience. Do not be drawn into a deal by a stranger. The Christmas lay-away plan is a legal sale. "Guaranteed" means nothing unless the company is willing and able to do something about their product.

CB6 Dutch Uncle Talk. Beware of concerns which sell a service alleged to help you win those big juicy national contests.

CB10 Dutch Uncle Talk. Bait advertising such as rebuilt sewing machines or vacuum sweepers of well-known names at unusually low prices to get you to pay high prices for shoddy merchandise, is another racket to be on guard against. Beware of insurance policies offered by companies operating in states other than your own.

CB11 Dutch Uncle Talk. The merchandise display rack costs the unwary person much more than it is worth. Be on the lookout for unordered packages. Refuse to accept them. Destroy your last year's auto license plates or you may be accused of car theft.

CB12 Dutch Uncle Talk. Are you planning to sell your business through a broker? If so, be sure that the broker is honest. "I'm trying to earn money enough for an operation on my eye."—the frequent pitch of magazine agents. This is a deliberate attempt to play on your sympathy and is not endorsed by reliable magazine concerns. Surveys have proven the fact that the words
"wholesale" and "discount" are used for the sole pur-purpose of making you think their prices are lower.

CB13 Business and the Church. The debt that the institution of business owes to the institution of the church.
The spiritual concept of doing right for right's sake. Old human nature is stubborn and will steadfastly resist any change that seems to affect the pocketbook adversely; but whether men recognize the source or not, it has been the spiritual power of the church that has given us the earthly values of plain business honesty and confidence which are the basis of all worthwhile business, not to mention the golden rule.

CD51 (12') When Children Ask Questions. Some of the things parents can do when their children bombard them with questions that need answers.

CD52 (16') But Mom—You're Old Fashioned!

CD53 (12') How Shall I Choose My Mate? Points out, through discussion of an actual case, some general points to consider in choosing a mate.

CD54 (11') Speaking of Bad Language. Gives reasons why children and adolescents use bad language.

CD55 (9') Pets in the House. What kinds are suitable for different age levels, and the kinds of learning which pets can bring to children.

CD56 (9') Children Need Freedom of Activity. How parents can provide opportunities for children to run around and work off their great quantities of energy.

CD57 (9') Happy Vacation. Helpful suggestions on making school vacation less hectic for mothers and more fun for the children.

CD58 (10') On Being at the Top of the Class. Another way of looking at competition for school grades—de-emphasizing competition and stressing cooperation.

CD59 (9') It's Human to Get Frightened. Offers a better understanding of "fear" and how it affects our lives; amazingly enough, it is something we can't live without.

CD60 (10') Backsliding to Babyhood. Reasons why a child may revert to doing things you long since thought he had outgrown.

CD67 (11') Helping Your Child Accept His Age. Stresses the fact that children must grow at their own speed, and not be molded into miniature adults. Some of the problems of the different stages of growth are also discussed.

CD68 (110') Children's Books. Some guides for the selection of children's books with practical "how-to-go-about-it" ideas on how to find the right book for niece, nephew, son, or daughter.

CD69 (9') Housing and Personality. Discusses some of the factors of housing that have a direct bearing on wholesome personality. The needs of children and older people are developed.
CD64 (9') Paving the Way to the Hospital. How parents can help slay the dragons of the unknown world. . . . and prepare their youngsters for the first trip to the hospital.

CD65 (19') Quarreling Children. Discusses why brothers and sisters may be expected to have differences of opinion and suggest ways in which quarreling can be kept to a minimum.

CD66 (30') Courtship and Marriage. Analysis of some of the reasons why people marry and an attempt to explain why some married people become disillusioned about each other. Suggestions to make every marriage improve through the years.

CD69 (15') Socio-Economic Influences Upon Children's Learning. Shows effects of different cultural levels on learning process.

CD70 (15') Development of Healthy Personality. Starts with a new-born baby, and goes through childhood in stages.

CD72 (15') Contribution of the School to Healthy Personality. Parents and teachers cannot force behavior upon a sense of security and feeling of acceptance and respect.

CD73 (15') Differences in Family Incomes and Their Effect in Later Life. One fourth of our families with children live on incomes of less than $2,000. Children of low income groups are deprived of the normal care and support valuable for healthy development.

CD-1. Discipline. How does knowing what to expect of a child at different ages help in discipline? How important are praise and rewards, different ways of making requests, attitudes and consistency of adults, and understanding the child's feelings?

CD-2. Discipline of Pre-School Age Children. Discipline serves many different functions, perhaps the most important of which is the building of inner controls on the part of the child. This discussion considers goals of discipline, approaches to getting along with the child to avoid excessive limiting and irritability, and recognition of parents' feelings in the disciplinary process.

CD-5. Books and Literary Experiences for Young Children. The three panel members discuss some of the factors involved in the evaluating and selecting of children's books and other literary experiences. They consider the range of available books of fantasy and fiction as well as sources of specific factual information.

CD-7. Stories for Children. What are the difference in story preferences at various age levels? What are the values of story telling? How can good stories be selected?

CD-8. Toys for Pre-School Children. Historical, developmental and emotional aspects of toys and play are discussed. It is important to provide toys that meet the child's needs at each stage of his development. There are suggestions of toys suitable to the pre-school child as well as principles helpful to adults in selecting toys and helping children get the maximum benefit from them.

CD-9. Toys for Children. What are helpful suggestions in the purchase of toys? What factors in toy construction should be considered? How does the choice of toys affect the development of the child? How can parents select toys wisely?

(PAROLE SERIES) — 30 min. in length
A Measure of Freedom (Problems and Methods and People).
This series of ten programs was contributed by the University of Minnesota and the Minnesota State Board of Parole. They describe the work being done, and the progress made in developing a better parole system in Minnesota penal institutions.

SSPS-1. Problems of a Parolee. In securing employment and readjustment to living in society again. Difference between parole and probation. Presentence investigations illustrated.

SSPS-2. The Parole Board's First Hearing at Six Months. The hearing is an exploratory one, to decide how long he must serve before the next hearing and special help he should receive, which gives the Parole Board an opportunity to become better acquainted with the applicant.

SSPS-3. Orientation for New Inmates. Questions and answers about life in the St. Cloud Reformatory and about what can happen to their families while they are confined. Other questions about schooling in the reformatory are answered.

SSPS-4. Recording of an Actual 1st Parole Board Hearing.
At the end of six months of an inmate's sentence to St. Cloud reformatory. Review of this case by the Board and their recommendations for this person's future.

SSPS-5. General Rules and Regulations. Of Parole from Minnnesota institutions. Seven cases discussed.

SSPS-6. Supervision of Parolees. The problems involved as related by the parole agent.

SSPS-7. Parole Violations. Two reports of violations and the recommendations of treatment.

SSPS-9. Probation and How Easily it Becomes Violated. Drinking contributes to violation in this case.

SSPS-10. Summary of Series. Facts which indicate the future of parole system and objectives of criminal law. The basic objective of punishment is to protect society from criminal tendencies of the individual.

(YOU AND EDUCATION)

PE29 The Other Parent. A new teacher learns that there are two sides to the career of teaching—the good and the bad. She decides on her future after much head-holding and heart-searching.

PE30 Mightier Than the Sword. A grade school textbook explaining the tariff system sets off a family argument. This, in turn, precipitates a community study of the books being used in its public schools.

PE31 The House That Talk Built. A mother—disturbed because her child, along with others, is suffering from overcrowded schools—decides to do something about it. Her actions lead to the formation of a citizens’ committee and finally, the erection of a new school.

PE32 Challenge to Academic Freedom. The freedom a teacher needs to teach and a child to learn is threatened when one conscientious teacher is attacked for discussing communism in class.

PE33 The Negro and the Public Schools. The long search by Americans for the fair solution to the problem of segregated schools is traced, with the Supreme Court’s history-making decision as a backdrop.

PE34 The New Member. A garage owner is appointed to the school board by a mayor who feels he owes him a political debt. Unwilling to be the mayor’s rubber stamp, the new member proves to be a true public servant.

PE35 Bond Issue for Cross River. Seven persons in Cross River are affected by a proposal for a new school building. Some of them help defeat it. Unconvinced, one woman among them sparks a citizens’ committee and it is this committee which finds out the “why” behind so many “No’s” and submits a more acceptable solution.

PE36 The Battle of the Valley. Three towns linked by a highway consolidate their schools, then find there are some serious roadblocks to harmony, particularly local pride. But a local newspaper editorial plants the idea of how this can be resolved for the good of everybody.

PE37 Goals of Education. A young man, disturbed because his fiancee is set on teaching school, overhears her discuss educational goals with his family. He comes to understand how exciting and challenging a career in education can be.

PE38 Jimmy vs. the Curriculum. Seven-year-old Jimmy was known as “Dopey.” When his family moves to another town, Jimmy and his parents discover that when the curriculum doesn’t stand still, neither do the students.

PE39 School Finance. George Simmons has his heart set on seeing a night ball game. When his wife vetoes the game and brings him instead to a school finance meeting, George finds school statistics more exciting than batting averages.

PE40 A Committee for Lakeville. A local lawyer is dubious about the local school board’s work. Instead of groaning, he takes the plunge, forms a citizens’ committee and helps the board do a better job.

FAMILY LIFE EDUCATION — Dating and Sex Behavior — Adolescence
In no area of interest do feelings become so strong as in questions of dating and sex behavior. These records are designed to provide an overall background and guide to the demands now felt so urgently in the family and in school programs on sex education. The three-record set is divided by age group to allow for areas specifically tailored to the needs of each level.

From an outline of physical sexual development and an introduction into the subject of dating at the lowest age level to aspects of the sex drive and standards for the upper adolescent group. Dr. F. Robert Wake, Associate Professor of Psychology at Carleton University in Ottawa, explains and answers questions which are very definitely on the minds of youth.

Set of 3 records: Code 613450; L.C.R67-3902 $15.00; Record A (11-13 year olds): Code 613451 $5.95; Record B (14-15 year olds): Code 613452 $5.95; Record C (16 years and up): Code 613453 $5.95; Teacher’s Guide: Code 613454 $.50 McG

BILL GOVE SALES DEVELOPMENT, THE Series
Mr. Bill Gove, a noted national sales training authority and successful salesman, has authored this series of recordings emphasizing human relationships in salesmanship. Mr. John Driemen, also an authority on sales training and an educator emphasizing human relationships in salesmanship, has designed the program. This course has been used by, and produced by, salesmen to help others develop their salesmanship. The whole series of six parts is useful in giving general principles of selling, as well as very specific applications of these principles.

DT-1201, DR-1201 Easy to Buy From. This is a tried and practical program which will show the student that salesmanship is a relationship between two or more people. It stresses that sales training must develop an awareness within the salesman of himself, of his customers, and of the society in which he lives. The units in the series consist of (1) general principles of selling, (2) the importance of a relaxed attitude, (3) the value of giving of one's self, (4) how to deal with objections, and selling as a joint enterprise, (5) the consummation of a sale, and (6) a review and summary of the program, emphasizing planning and self-analysis. The accompanying Guide gives suggestions for teaching with the units, questions for discussion, and a script of the various episodes used for illustrative purposes on the recordings.

CO-OP SALESMAINSHP IS PERSONAL DR-1206
Salesmen in cooperative stores face most of the same types of problems and situations that other retailers face, except that the people who buy usually feel a "family" relationship to the store. This training course shows how salesmen can meet and handle these more "personal" relationships. This is a program which has been tried and used successfully for retail selling of this type. The discussion and examples given are applicable to many familiar retail situations and further guidance is given through the dramatized recordings. The program is similar in format to the previous one, but all the examples are different ones and are dealing with "personal" relations. Included in the complete package are five 7" LP records and a Guide with suggestions for discussion and a script of the recorded material.

RETAIL SALESMAINSHP, THE Series
These recordings have been developed in cooperation with men in retailing and consultants to management, with a view to stimulating and informing personnel involved in retail salesmanship. All the recordings give practical, step-by-step sequences, easy to follow and remember. Examples are given of "wrong" and "right" ways to approach a sale.

DR-1207 The Customer Well Sold Is The Customer You Hold. This program was developed for use in conjunction with The Dayton Company, Minneapolis, Minnesota (retail sales department store), and has been successfully used by many retail stores. The materials are in three parts: Part I includes, as an aid to the teacher, a special Group Discussion Leadership Manual with a "7" LP demonstration record illustrating the techniques of group discussion used by the managers of retail department stores. Part II is a dramatized seven unit-meeting course to be conducted by the teacher offering the essential steps of professional retail salesmanship. It consists of a Meeting Guide and four 7" LP illustrative records for the seven meetings. The recordings present realistic, dramatic sales situations for class analysis and discussion. Some of the subjects of the recordings are openers, how to use sales terms, buying signals, suggestion selling. Part III is the Sales Personnel Notebook, a comprehensive review of the sales steps and discussions, to be distributed to the students at the close of the study of the program.

BANKING

DR-2200 The Face at the Window Is the Face of the Bank. Here, in dramatized form, one learns of the role of the bank teller in a successful selling role. The recording allows the listener to understand some of the ways in which the bank teller must realize how he can react positively to the bank customer. This program was developed in cooperation with the First National Bank of St. Paul and Dr. C. Gilbert Wrenn, psychological consultant. The set consists of (1) a Group Discussion Leader's Handbook (the teacher being the bank manager); (2) a Guide for the various recordings giving questions for discussion, a suggested presentation of the program, and a script of the recording; (3) one 12" LP record; and (4) a Bank Teller's Notebook with specific information for the teller.
