This resources booklet represents the contribution of 28 participants involved in a library institute held at the University of Oklahoma in July of 1970. A special effort was made to make the booklet practical for the librarian serving the Indian American. It is noted that curriculum in the schools is a total environment involving a relationship between the teacher, the learner, the materials, and the librarian. The group felt it was their concern that this relationship adequately meet its responsibility to the Indian student. This booklet is offered to help the librarian meet this challenge by becoming aware of special needs and by offering culturally relevant materials and extended services. The booklet also includes suggestions and recommendations in other related areas for the purpose of improving human relations.
RESOURCES AND PROCEDURES FOR IMPROVING THE INDIAN AMERICAN USE OF LIBRARIES

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It was a welcomed opportunity for the School of Library Science of the University of Oklahoma to participate in the planning and execution of the recently completed Institute on the Improvement of Indian American Use of Libraries. This was particularly true and significant in view of the successful similar Institute which was conducted during the previous summer, in July, 1969. The continuity of the program was recognized to be a major factor in the second year's attainment of the objectives of the program.

Comments freely offered by the individual participants and an analysis of the latter's respective evaluations of the Institute lead the Director of the Library School to commend the United States Office of Education for its role in having approved the program. Recognition is also due and eagerly offered to the Institute's Directors and staff for the quality and effectiveness of their combined efforts.

This period of transition presents problems for the school-age Indian. He is generally torn between two generations, when grandparents have often raised the child, while pressure is placed upon the student to abandon their teaching for a more conformative way of life.

The realization of the need for education and the desire for it is often late in dawning in the Indian student. Perhaps the non-realization of the need for education is the primary problem among Indian students today. Or maybe they've been told somewhere along the way, that they can't learn or will never be college material, thereby crushing any ambition that might have been.

It is the responsibility of every education-oriented professional person to encourage academic achievement: in Indian students. The librarian is in such a key position. If the librarian, who is by nature also a teacher, is aware of the Indian, his academic, social, economic and sometimes personal problems, these problems may be subjugated by his determined effort to excel. He must first be so inspired: He must be understood! He must be motivated!

The total needs of today's American Indian, unless already to silly acculturated, will continue to be very nearly the same for at least one more generation, depending upon his locale. Many tribes are advancing socially, economically and academically more rapidly than other tribes and more than is nationally recognized.

The ultimate aim of the non-Indian for the Indian, seems to be that of total acceptance of middle-class living standards, mores and acquisition of possessions and education. Time is dispelling the century-old viewpoint that Indian students just can't attain the normal education requirements. Society is requiring that they be allowed to do so, without the accompanying historic stigma.

The Indian student today seems to have views wholly unto himself; attention-getting gimmicks, nor entirely different from the universal radicals on today's university campuses; however, non-violent. There is a need in most observed cases for internal, personal self-satisfaction, due to the realization of historical incidents of injustice and probable personal experience of prejudice. They are recognizing the importance of being, first, self-important, then Indian-important and rightly so.

The librarian can be the sparking power that makes an entire staff aware of Indian customs, beliefs, current problems and social handicaps which serve as a deterrent to his school progress or support to his potential drop-out. This is a wide scope of information to be sought out in the librarian's limited free time. Fortunate are those who can, in the course of a three weeks institute, be exposed to presentation of problems and their possible solution in the form of lectures, audio-visuals and printed materials. Fortunate are those who can observe by field trip, a panoramic view of Indian history and ancient life, enriching their background knowledge in a way which might have been physically impossible for some. Fortunate are those students whose librarians return to their work with an awareness of the beautiful Indian heritage and a determination to alleviate some problems which have undermined his progress. Fortunate are those who will be able to gain satisfaction of improving educational standards of America's first citizens by extending supportive assistance through meaningful library service.

"Importance of American Indian Use of the Library"
FOREWORD

This "Resource" booklet represents the contributions of 28 participants involved in a Library Institute held at the University of Oklahoma, July 13-31, 1970. We recognize the inadequacies of this booklet and offer our apologies for them; however, we believe that this is at least a beginning toward something that needs to be done. It is hoped that it can be revised, up-dated and improved at some future date. Until then, we submit our suggestions for your use.

Effort has been made to make this booklet practical, helpful and useful to the librarian serving the Indian American. The problems of social institutions, such as school systems and public libraries, in relating in a meaningful way to minority (culturally different) groups are recognized. In the school system, the problem is compounded by inadequate teacher training, and irrelevant curricular materials. It is to help the librarian meet this challenge by becoming aware of special needs, by acquiring culturally relevant materials and through extended services that we offer this booklet.

Our social systems, e.g., the public school and the public library, are complex organizations involving integration of people, media, concepts, methods and management. Curriculum in our schools is a total environment involving a relationship between the teacher, the learner, the materials and the librarian. It is our concern that this relationship adequately meet its responsibility to the Indian student. Too often this statement made by Darrell Willey has been true: "It appears that minority groups, who consistently do poorly in school and who are subtly discriminated against by the present system of education may internalize their feelings of inferiority and come to feel that their failure is deserved." As librarians we recognize the important potentialities of the library and the librarian in this relationship. Therefore, we hope our efforts in putting together this booklet will encourage and assist librarians in meeting the needs of the Indian American.

IDENTIFYING LIBRARY NEEDS

COMMITTEE MEMBERS:

Sister Teresa Rigel, Chairman
Geraldine Schultz, Recorder
Helen Muncrief, Member

This group suggests the following needs for consideration.

I. Library materials
   A. Materials that present an accurate picture of Indians.
   B. Materials, particularly books, written by Indians about Indians.
   C. Materials of the high-interest, low-level vocabulary type-for example, Good Reading for Poor Reading, rev. ed., by George Spache; Garccrd, 1968.
   D. In addition to the daily newspapers in the area, Indian newspapers are needed. These are The Cherokee Nation News, The Navajo Times, Akwesasne Notes, and/or others.
   E. A wide selection of periodicals with some that emphasize Indian interests-for example: Smoke Signals, Powwow Trails, or The Sentinel.
   F. Records and tapes of Indian music, poetry, prose, and talks by local Indian people.
   G. Colorful slides and filmstrip of Indian art, dress, and culture.
   H. Up-to-date pamphlets and clippings relating information about Indians should be in the vertical file.

II. Library environment
   A. Personnel
      1. Enthusiastic librarian
         a. has awareness of specific need of Indian students.
         b. is aware of cultural differences.
      2. Indian student library assistants
         a. assist students, especially in orientation.
         b. suggest subjects for book selection.
      3. Indian librarian aids (adult)
         a. help the librarian and the students relate to one another.
         b. assist in setting up cultural display.
   B. Physical factors
      1. Attractive and appealing facilities
         a. Frequent use of Indian material on bulletin board.
         b. Occasional display of Indian books.
         c. Exhibits of Indian arts and crafts by students, craftsmen in the community, and contemporary artists.
      2. Comfortable atmosphere
         a. Permit cooperative study.
         b. Freedom for all students to move about quietly.
RECOMMENDATIONS FOR IMPROVING HUMAN RELATIONS THROUGH THE SCHOOL LIBRARY

COMMITTEE MEMBERS:
Mildred Hargrove, Chairman
Kathryn Hardy, Recorder
Winemo Amauty, Member
Clara Barris, Member

RECOMMENDATIONS

The purpose of these recommendations is to encourage the Indian student to make better use of the library by improving human relations within these groups: school personnel, parents, students, and the community.

I. School personnel involvement
   A. Acquaint personnel with special needs of Indian students
      1. Through faculty meetings
      2. Through curriculum planning
      3. Through disseminating appropriate materials, such as bibliographies
      4. Through indirect approach to administrators and teachers
   B. Initiate activities to help develop interest in Indians
      1. Emphasize Indian heritage during American Education Week (See Special Programs section of this booklet.)
      2. Emphasize American Indian Day
   C. Recommend that teaching aides be of Indian background or extraction
   D. Encourage development of Indian culture and history courses
   E. Have suggestions for integrating Indian viewpoint and values into curriculum

II. Parent involvement
   A. Parent’s Day
      1. Symposium on Indian concerns
         a. Indian parents
         b. Non-Indian parents
         c. Government workers
         d. Indian leaders
         e. Businessmen
         f. School board
         g. Teachers and administrators
      2. Class visitations
      3. Demonstrations by Indian parents of traditional Indian skills
B. Adult Education classes
C. Use of the library
   1. List books of Indian interest on the adult interest level
   2. Use a librarian column in school paper
      a. Book reviews by students and librarians
      b. Periodical reviews by students and librarians
D. Family night at the library

III. Student involvement
   A. Creative activities
      1. Art displays
      2. Bulletin board preparation
      3. Indian Culture Day
         a. Costume contest
         b. Arts and crafts’ contest
         c. Indian sports contests
         d. Legend writing or telling contests
         e. Mock council meeting
         f. Indian dinner
   B. Book reviews
   C. Participation in library clubs
   D. Panel discussions about books, cultures, etc.
   E. Interchange of programs between schools
   F. Use of Indian students for work in the library
   G. Encouragement of Indian representation on student council
   H. Participation of Indian students in evaluation and selection of books, especially books especially books concerning Indians
   I. Set up and maintain a vertical file on Indian materials
   J. Set up and maintain a picture file of Indian art and leaders

IV. Community involvement
   A. Set up resource file for community use
      1. List of available Indian speakers for programs
      2. Bibliographies of Indian materials
      3. Local history material
   B. Use civic organizations
      1. Present programs using Indian students
      2. Sponsor activities
         a. Indian Arts Festival
         b. Girls’ State and Boys’ State - use Indians as participants
   C. Conduct community-wide Indian Culture Day
   D. Use radio and television facilities to publicize library activities concerning Indian interests
   E. Develop a cooperative program between the school library and the public library
   F. Offer assistance to set up libraries and volunteer work for Indian Center
   G. Open libraries at night when possible and when needed
V. Librarian personal involvement

A. Recognize persons by speaking to them and calling them by name
B. Take time to be helpful
C. Update rules and regulations of the library
D. Help the Indian student to develop a positive self-image through the understanding of his uniqueness and cultural heritage
E. Create an atmosphere conducive to study or relaxation
F. Learn reading levels of students if possible
G. Accept the Indian student as an individual, not a stereotype
H. Learn some Indian words of the tribe in your locale
I. Use humor wisely
J. Be informed about local Indian customs, superstitions, living habits, and current events
MOTIVATING LIBRARY USE

COMMITTEE MEMBERS:

Marylou McNeely, Chairman
Cora Dunconson, Recorder
Edith Cribbs, Member
Wilda Haley, Member
Yvonne Lynn, Member

No matter how complete or elaborate our library facilities may be, no library is any better than the use made of it. We would like to suggest some means by which Indian students may be encouraged to make better use of library services.

Enthusiasm is a prime motivational factor, and an enthusiastic librarian can work wonders in making both the students and the staff want to use the library. As teachers and librarians for Indian youth, we cannot hope to work successfully with these students unless we understand some basic psychological concepts. We have included these in order that the teacher may become cognizant of them and use them to motivate students to greater achievement. Also we must have books and other materials which will appeal to the Indian student; hence, we have listed some bibliographies from which such materials may be ordered. No matter how much appropriate material we have, however, if we cannot get the students interested in using them we have failed. Therefore we deem a good, continuing orientation program to be invaluable. Not only must the students become familiar with all the facets of the library services, but also the faculty must become acquainted with and make use of these services. If the faculty and students are not actively involved in the library, they are not really using the library. Use is also facilitated by the actual physical appearance of the library. We have suggested some means by which we can visually encourage people to want to use our facilities.

Our goals as librarians should include: to help make the Indian student feel that he is an important part of the school system; that he has something to contribute to the school that no one else can contribute, and to foster a desire to learn not only about his own culture but also about cultures of other peoples, and to experience the joy of learning for both pleasure and information.
TIPS FOR TEACHING INDIAN STUDENTS EFFECTIVELY

1. Never criticize destructively—be constructive. Accent the positive. Success breeds success just as failure breeds more failure.
2. Praise in private, not before the whole class.
3. Recognize the child who thinks in another language and allow him sufficient time to translate both the question and the answer from his native tongue to English.
4. Establish individual goals which are within his grasp for each child. Use positive reinforcement for desired behaviors immediately.
5. Let him reinforce his own learning by his success in reaching each goal, no matter how short the step it takes to reach that goal. Frustration will lower efficiency.
6. Many different experiences must be provided to assault all the senses as no two children learn in exactly the same manner. Activity is basic to learning. The known experiences of a student should serve as a springboard for all new learning. Self determined goals are more effective than teacher directed activities. Use many methods. Remember behavior is caused.
7. Establish and maintain a warm climate where each child is recognized as a worthy individual; reject none as unworthy or hopeless. Each child has intrinsic worth. Each is unique.
8. With Indians a sense of time is very slow to develop and this must be realized and allowed for. Pressure here will NOT work.
9. A moderately structured class is more comfortable to most disadvantaged students than either a strictly structured or a permissive atmosphere.
10. Shut up and let the students learn from one another— you just set the stage—a climate for achievement.
11. Children tend to see themselves as others see them—good, smart, talented, etc., or the opposite.
12. English idioms are foreign to Indian students. Be careful how you say what you say. Use explicit directions and give instructions one at a time. Don’t assume the child knows the meaning of all the words you use. Indians traditionally do not ask questions even if they don’t understand.
13. Help the child build a positive self image with pride in his culture. Become familiar with the local tribe(s)’ culture, i.e., subsistence, housing, clothing, crafts, social organizations, political system, religion and mythology, language and values; and respect them as valuable contributions to the class.
14. An effective teacher must understand the children she teaches, and she cannot acquire this knowledge without considerable effort on her part.
15. Success in school depends upon success in reading.
16. Indian students are not customarily asked for their opinions. Develop this slowly.
17. Smile—be friendly but not pushy. Respect the child’s right to privacy.
18. Respect their tradition of the lowered head as an indication of respect.
19. Become informed as to family relationships. Biological, social, and extended families are quite different entities.
20. Be consistent in your treatment of your students.
21. Understand that the Indian culture is non-competitive.
22. Be aware of value differences and don’t try to inflict your values upon him. Give him a choice. Many Indian children are reared in a culture far different from the teacher’s. Let him choose the best of each and respect his choices.

TIPS FOR LIBRARIANS

MOTIVATING THE STUDENT

I. ORIENTATION

A. Introduction

The Librarian searches for "essentials" in developing the library program for the student. The library becomes a media center which includes books, films, filmstrips, microfilm, records, periodicals, art prints, transparencies, models, kits, globes and maps. The materials are organized, cataloged, shelved, filed or displayed and made accessible to the user.

To enhance the effectiveness of this program, activities performed by the library staff relate the media to the needs of its learners. The staff is challenged to find for each student the media that motivates his desire to learn.

Orientation of students in varied activities, with the use of different media, provides means of motivation. How and when the program is implemented depends on the flexibility of the curriculum, the planning of teachers, the school calendar, and the librarian's schedule. It is advisable, however, that all students visit the library early in the school year.

B. Suggested Activities

1. Orientation is given to new students in class groups by instruction given in the classroom followed by a tour of the library.

2. Library Handbook, available to each student, includes information relevant to library use.

   a. Library hours
   b. Plan and objectives
   c. Arrangement of books
   d. Classification of materials
   e. Policies and procedures
   f. Reference books
   g. Periodicals and newspapers
   h. Special collections
   i. Lost books
   j. Student help
3. Instruction in the use of the handbook involves several activities going on at the same time in the media center. Small groups progress to the different activities presented by different school personnel.
   a. Librarian
   b. Audio-visual specialist
   c. Classroom teacher.
   d. Students (Indian)

4. Map of the library is available to all students. (Transparencies with colored overlays are used to show plan and arrangement.)

5. Provision for group guidance in reading is made.
   a. Discussion groups for young people
   b. Teacher-conference
   c. Recreational reading

6. Individual guidance in reading is provided.
   a. Assistance in locating reading materials
   b. Assistance in selection of reading materials
   c. Instruction in using encyclopedias by company representatives in educational divisions

7. Author-autograph parties are held in the library.

8. Extended hours of library service are available to high school students, depending on need. (Notice posted)

II. BOOKS AND MATERIALS

Many Indian students become discouraged about using the library because of reading difficulties or a shortage of books about subjects which interest them. The library can, at least partially, overcome these problems by securing a plentiful supply of high interest-low level vocabulary books and materials about Indians. Below are listed bibliographies which should prove helpful in these areas:

The American Indian: some recommended titles for secondary schools, No. 31, Oklahoma State Department of Education, Library Resources Division, June, 1969. (Free)

MOTIVATING THE FACULTY

The classroom teacher makes the final decision about what is actually taught in the classroom. In order that the teacher may be able to make full use of the library as a resource center for learning, it is mandatory that he be knowledgeable of all its resources. The librarian may serve to orient the faculty to these resources by:

1. Preparing a brief guide for use of the library for the teachers.
2. Giving teachers a copy of the student handbook.
3. Providing in-service training for new teachers to acquaint them with the library services. (also acquaint the other teachers with any new innovations.)
4. Encouraging teacher visits to the library by having teachers meetings there, by having the coffee pot ready, etc.
5. Showing by word and action that the librarian is interested and ready to make available the library resources. (opening the library before and after school and during the noon period.)
6. Inviting people who are knowledgeable of Indian customs and culture (BIA and others) to talk to faculty about Indian culture.
7. Encouraging family night at the library and encourage faculty to attend.
8. Providing a continuous program of “selling” the library.
   a. Circulate a monthly newsletter (oftener if necessary) listing the newly arrived materials.
10. Having Indian collection (books, pictures, artifacts, etc.)
11. Making definite effort to build the materials by and about Indians.

HINTS FOR INTEGRATING INDIAN HISTORY AND CULTURE INTO THE CURRICULUM

COMMITTEE MEMBERS:

Sister Cecilia Ward, Chairman
Sheila Alexander, Recorder
Louis Rawlings, Member
Sister Mauro Dally, Member

Purposes and Objectives:

--to help solve problems and alleviate tensions through education about the communication with ethnic groups

--to improve the self-image of Indian students and help teachers and others with Indian children to understand them more fully and to promote happier relations between human beings.

--to assist teachers and students in attaining greater understanding of the ways of thinking among the Indian peoples within their culture.

--to provide sufficient background information and bibliographies to help teachers at all grade levels to become better acquainted with the Indian and to stimulate independent reading and study

Introduction:

1. What is a "hogan"?
2. Who was one of the first great Indian athletes?
3. What is the purpose of the totem pole?
4. Who was the great Indian humanitarian commentator?
5. Why do the Apaches do the "Devil Dance"?
6. For what is Sequoyah remembered?

If you haven't done well on this quiz, don't toss it off to poor memory!

Everyone forgets facts, but you can't forget facts you haven't been taught. The American Indian has been deprived of his heritage, his history, and his heroes. And, equally tragic, the "white" American has been deprived of knowledge about the understanding of the Indian race and its past. The need to integrate the curriculum is therefore urgent!

One does not have to write an Indian history. It has been written and even more important is being rewritten for all grade levels and for all ability levels. An example of this and an illustration of the need for teachers to learn and teach history of a local tribe is the Uintah School district at Vernal, Utah. They have written a text on Ute Indians and it is taught in the public school. (A copy may be obtained by writing and enclosing $4.00 plus postage.) Also, Indian history is available in hardcover books, paperbacks, filmstrips, recordings, movies, and programmed courses.
One does not have to devise new curriculum guides. However, in order to integrate Indian history and culture into the curriculum, one should:

1. Have effective, competent, and sympathetic workers introducing content of Indian history into the curriculum.

2. Consult local tribal leaders and youth and invite them to take an active part in developing the curriculum.

3. The administrator, the teacher, the librarian, and the instructional materials specialist need to discuss their present program and its needs regarding the inclusion of materials about Indians and make a supplementary list available together with print and non-print materials on hand.

4. Correct distortion in present American history textbooks. (One might profit by reading TEXT-BOOKS AND THE AMERICAN INDIAN by the American Indian Historical Society, Rupert Costo, editor, as most history books do not tell the Indian side of the Indians' contribution to the history of the United States. This book gives a criteria for evaluation, but one must be alert to the negative viewpoint.)

5. Fill in the Indian "vacuum" in areas other than history: for example, in reading, literature, art, music, science, and in the school library.

By pinpointing the myths and holes that exist in current texts, problems can be diagnosed and answers prescribed. Praise the good, fill in the gaps, and show how the subtle powers of ignorance can lend to prejudice.

The demand for more information about the Indians' contribution to American history is a legitimate demand. Enlightened school leadership will ultimately channel the forces of social change into constructive.

Programs developed to assimilate the American Indian into the Anglo community have failed perhaps through misunderstanding and misdirection. Therefore, the nation's public school system must shoulder the major share of the responsibility for rectifying this situation. The task is not as tough as it may seem.

Suggested resources and activities to enrich the curriculum:

RESOURCES:

- Indian centered magazines
- Indian centered newspapers
- Others: books, maps, bulletin boards, etc.

ARTS & CRAFTS:

- Coloring books
- Traditional clothing and costumes
- Bead work
- Leather work
- Clay models
- Indian dioramas
- Student made scrapbooks
- Others
AUDIO-VISUAL MEDIA:

- Make and produce own films and slides pertaining to Indian history and culture
- Send blank tapes to other Indian tribes to obtain first hand recordings
- Oral history
- Make use of programs on educational television
- Prepare multi-media kits
- Produce video-tapes

PUPIL ACTIVITIES:

- Study local tribal governments, reservation government, and customs of local tribes
- Act out plays, skits, and role playing which may be written and directed by pupils
- Learn how to evaluate material about Indians
- Field trips and visits to museums and other historical spots
- Student written biographies of local Indian people
- Graveyard history and archeological field research
- Pen pals with students on reservations
- Publish newsletters for exchange of ideas
- Play Indian games and learn Indian dances
- List Indians' present day achievements
- Compile Indian contributions such as names, food, places, etc.

FURTHER SUGGESTIONS:

- Indian aide to work in schools
- Organize a native American club
- Show the Indian community what is being done in the schools and get them involved
- Be informed of and attend tribal events: dances, pow wows, ballgames, etc.
- Invite authors of Indian materials and resource people of the community to speak (e.g. BIA officials, tribal representatives, etc.)
- Make use of resource centers and materials such as the Instructional Service Center, P. O. Box 66, Brigham City, Utah 84302

SETTING UP AND IMPLEMENTING A HUMAN RESOURCES FILE

I. Factors to be considered

A. Economic conditions of community
B. Social conditions
C. Educational background
D. Specific interests of community
E. Cultural differences

II. Information to be included in file

A. Names of specific organizations to be contacted
B. Name, address, occupation, and special talents of Indian artists, authors, poets, and etc.
C. Time of availability
D. Cultural background

III. Suggestions for developing special programs from human resources file

A. Display Indian art, handiwork and culture—especially those of local artists, who could be invited to speak to students.
B. Form an Indian Club and allow members of it to contact special speakers.
   1. Publicize these programs in advance
   2. Make tapes, pictures and slides of speakers to be kept in file
C. Hold open house with Indian displays and special program numbers such as dances and music.
D. Ask speakers from different vocations to speak to students about special careers
E. Hold seminars on Indian values, attitudes, etc.
F. Have an Indian culture program to help the non-Indian in the community understand and appreciate Indian people.
G. Plan field trips to places of special interest about Indians
H. Cooperate with Art Department on displays of ancient and modern Indian art, paintings, sketchings, sculpturing, etc.
I. Proc aim an Indian Day annually for the community with radio, television and newspaper coverage of special Indian oriented events such as dances, foods, etc.

X. Media center where students can listen and look for pleasure

XI. Book marks

XII. Publications
A bound collection of compositions by Indian students to be kept permanently in the library. This project might be sponsored by the Library Club or the Indian Club.

NOTE: Although many suggestions are made here for bulletin boards and displays, librarians should keep in mind that some of our traditional methods of trying to reach Indian students have not always worked. Look for materials and methods which are fresh and different. Pay particular attention to local Indian culture. Try letting your Indian students reach you, instead of trying so hard to reach them.
BOOK FAIRS

Purpose: To promote, through reading, interest in Indian culture and history as a part of the library services to students.

I. Solving problems involved in setting up a book fair

A. Sell the administration and faculty on the value of a book fair for and about Indians
B. Contact publisher who has books pertaining to Indians (For example: University of Oklahoma Press)
C. Set date for fair at most convenient time for involving the majority of students

II. Publicity is an important part of promoting book fairs

A. Use bulletin boards to give pertinent fact and to draw attention to fair
   1. Date of fair
   2. Type of fair
B. Write articles and ads in student newspaper
C. Announce in superintendent and/or principal's bulletin
D. Give skits on books about Indians in assembly programs
E. Talk (or let students talk) to civic groups & Indian groups

III. Display books in library (Extend for at least one week)

A. Arrange table displays of books by a particular author, or books about a particular tribe, customs, myths, etc.
B. Give short, enthusiastic book talks about special books

IV. Contact and use Indian organizations in the community

A. Interest adults by having street book fairs at convenient downtown places
B. Sell and take orders for paperbacks as well as for hardbacks if they are available in the books selected for the fair
C. Involve as many people, students, teachers, parents, as well as library personnel in book fairs for success
D. Encourage Indian Club at School or other Indian organization to sponsor the book fair as a profit making venture.
BOOK TALKS

Purpose: to create interest in reading Indian books by all students. This may be done by three main groups in the school.

I. Librarian
   A. Review a book he has read, such as Navajos Have Five Fingers, and explain origin of title and a little Navajo history, background, culture, legends leading to the talk.
   B. Select materials to develop pride in Indian children.
   C. Follow guidelines in evaluating books about American Indians as in the areas of Indian identification, values, stereotypes or human beings. Books used should fit curriculum, show both sides, and be based on the authority of a qualified author. If in doubt about a certain book, have it reviewed by or evaluated by a historian, person of Indian heritage, or one who is sympathetic with the Indian's heritage. Choose books to review according to age of the student group affected.
   D. Be alert to present day achievements of Indians--sports figures, actors, tribal officials, authors, artists, and in all phases of American life.

II. Teachers
   A. Have book lists prepared to hand out when covering certain units. If teacher does not care to review books himself, librarian or assistants can be available. Use indirect approaches to reach teachers.
   B. Encourage class projects from books, as posters or plays of book scenes, etc.

III. Library assistants or Club
   A. Put on a special program to a class or any group, telling about Indian books they have read. The Club can act out certain scenes in stories or colorful characters. Prepare costumes and use Indian regalia in these demonstrations.
   B. For younger classes, tell the beautiful Indian legends or draw posters to illustrate.
   C. Talks or scenes may be videotaped to show them to other schools or to P-TA programs.
   D. Encourage the student to express himself and involve him in letting him choose his own book to review or depict. "Give the student something to do, not something to learn, because doing demands thinking and learning is the result"-John Dewey.

The talked-about books will be shelved together in a special section in the library and will be accessible to all with the librarian nearby to give guidance if needed. They may also be used in displays and the art class might be interested in making art objects about the stories, characters, or legends. Library assistants or Club can be responsible for making illustrated book jackets or book marks.

Depending upon what is available in the library or media center, slides, films, pictures, filmstrips, etc. can be used at different times to supplement the book talks and create more interest in the American Indian and his heritage as found through the world of books. Even the books may be preserved by making a recording when a book is reviewed and this will stimulate other readers.

Preface

The local situation is a critical consideration when dealing with Indian people. A detached, objective viewpoint and general suggestions are all that can be expected of a work of this type. We ask you, the reader, not to take our suggestions as gospel. We desire only to stimulate thoughts and create an atmosphere for a healthy attitude. You must, at all costs, design a program relative to your own situation.

Avoid, like the plague, stereotyping. All Indians do not wear beads and feathers, or dance, or wave blankets. Know the Indian of your area, both as an individual and culturally. You may be surprised what your friend (not your "patron") can teach you if you have ears to hear and eyes to see.
I. OBJECTIVES

A. Improving attitude and awareness of librarians
B. Motivating users--Indians
   1. By building a local history collection
   2. Keeping a vertical file of news clippings
   3. Providing relevant periodicals and newspapers
   4. Providing other relevant books and materials
C. Giving adequate library service
   1. Developing collections--Indian literature
   2. Collecting and developing oral and media material
   3. Making materials easily accessible and available
   4. Centralizing facilities
   5. Providing meeting room
D. Determining the needs and interest in your community
   1. Providing material for different levels of maturity and interest
   2. Using library experiences to develop use of other library resources in community
E. Staffing
   1. Developing awareness of attitudes, through increased knowledge and personnel training
   2. Familiarize with local history as well as current trends of the library
   3. Provide sufficient number of library personnel to perform desirable duties
   4. Seek aware, dynamic and enthusiastic staff
F. Budgeting
   1. Consider special needs of various groups
   2. Develop special collection suitable for minority groups
   3. Seek adequate space for extended programs
G. Aim for ALA standards for public library
H. Book selection policy
   1. Devise a systematic collection development plan
   2. Provide materials of good quality
   3. Do continuous re-evaluation
I. Know library laws and developments
   1. ALA
   2. State organizations
   3. Local policies
J. Provide non-book media
K. Plan cooperative programs with school, library and media center
II. PROGRAM

A. PUBLIC LIBRARY CHECKLIST

A public library belongs to a network of libraries serving the public throughout the world. No public library by itself can adequately provide materials sufficient in number to satisfy all the needs of its patrons. It must therefore depend on other libraries in the network and must itself be depended upon by them in serving the public’s needs.

Prerequisite to satisfactorily fulfilling a public library’s function of serving the public is an adequate organization for economical and efficient operation.

The accompanying checklist for your library will help indicate to what level it participates in public library services.

Three blanks appear after each of ten statements in the checklist. In blank 1, a symbol will represent your estimate of how well your library fulfills the statement’s meaning in theory or principle; in blank 2, how well it fulfills the statement’s meaning in fact or practice; in blank 3, how well it fulfills the statement’s meaning in regard to the needs of Indian people.

In the blanks, insert symbols ranging from 0 to 10, from “non-existent” to “ultimate level of achievement.” Symbols between 1 and 10 enable you to evaluate your library with respect to the extremes as necessary.

An honestly marked checklist total of any one set of blanks can be read as a percentage, the percentage of theoretical, actual, or Indian people’s service your library gives according to your estimate. Also, statements to which you assigned a low symbol identify areas which can be improved. Those to which you assigned a high number are to your library’s credit and should be maintained or improved.

I. The people’s library—what “public” library means—by its very nature does not discriminate in its service to the public, either among race, color, creed, culture, religion, political persuasion, social status, and citizenship, or among local, state, national, and international boundaries. What is public belongs to the people and cannot rightfully be denied any one person or segment of the public. Regulations governing use of public library materials assure its availability to all and are carefully framed so that usage is not denied to the public.

II. Fundamental to the public library’s mission are library policy, governance, administration, physical plant, and operations. All are intersensitive and respond to public stimulus.
III. Public library policy is dictated by the public and promulgated by the library's governing body with the assistance of the manager (librarian, director), who is responsible to the governing body for administration, physical plant, and operations.

IV. A public library's policy statement is a written document including the Library Bill Of Rights and the Right To read. It conforms to law and to one or more library codes and is amended as needed to include omissions and to revise statements according to changes in law and codes. The library policy statement is always readily available for public perusal.

V. An effective statement of public library policy assures an operation adequately meeting the requirements of all the public within the library's local boundaries of service and, in addition, such intra- and inter- state, national and international public requirements as are legally and economically possible.

VI. The public library governing board is an instrument of the public and therefore develops library policy only after consulting all segments of the public, thoroughly studying applicable laws and codes, and hearing the recommendations of its public library manager.

VII. Public library policy precedes administration, physical plant, and operations and dictates procedure to the library manager.

VIII. Administration, physical plant, and operations are the ultimate responsibility of the public library manager, but he delegates responsibility as the situation requires, according to administrative policy. Administrative policy develops from library policy and encompasses these elements among others:
A. Personnel
   1. Professional, para-professional, clerical, and service (Equal opportunity employer?)
   2. Written job descriptions
   3. Wages and wage scales
   4. Fringe benefits
   5. Retirement
   6. Promotions and terminations
   7. Professional memberships paid by library
   8. Orientation

B. Finance
   1. Budget
   2. Accounting
   3. Auditing

C. Planning
   1. Growth
   2. Expansion
   3. Extension

D. Annual Report

IX. Physical plant houses the public library function and contributes to library service. The manager's responsibility involves the following among others:

A. Buildings and their equipment
   1. Maintenance
      a. Custodial service and supplies
      b. Electrical, cooling, and heating services
      c. Repair and replacement
   2. Remodeling
   3. Renovation
   4. Additions

B. Grounds
   1. Maintenance
   2. Landscaping
C. Automotive (cars, trucks, tractors, media machines, etc.)
   1. Maintenance
   2. Repair, remodeling, renovation, replacement
   3. Additions

X. Operations, the management area toward which library policy is directed and for which administration and physical plant exist, include the following among others:

A. Print and non-print media collection
   1. Maintenance
   2. Repair
   3. Replacement
   4. Selection
   5. Duplication
   6. Acquisitions and preparation
   7. Cataloging and classification
   8. General and special bibliographies
   9. Circulation
   10. Inter-library cooperation
   11. Withdrawals

B. Public Meetings
   1. Library sponsored
   2. Non-library sponsored

C. Promotion
   1. Bulletin boards
   2. Displays
   3. Advertising
   4. Civic cooperation and participation
   5. Professional cooperation and participation

D. Hours and days of operation
   1. Daytime seven days a week
   2. Evenings except Saturday and Sunday
E. Additional services
1. Lectures
2. Resource personnel
3. Film programs and series
4. Concerts
5. Exhibits
6. Classes and workshops
7. Reference service
8. Child care (baby sitting)
9. Consulting
10. Field trips
11. Demonstrations

EXTENDED SERVICE

1. OUTSIDE LIBRARY, AS BOOKMOBILE (MEDIA MACHINE)

PREFACE:

1. Know the Indians in your area and let the Indians in your area know you
2. Get Indians involved and get involved with Indians

INITIAL STEPS FOR LIBRARIAN:

1. Be as well known on the reservation as in the community
2. Involve City Manager in your planning and program
3. Consult Library Board about program for service to Indians
4. Orientation of Library staff
5. Librarian in charge of program to spend sufficient time planning and organizing Indian program
6. Work for community support for program
7. Consult State Library and see how it can serve with you on Indian service

PROGRAM:

Bookmobile (Media Machine) to service Indian community during week
1. Employment of a Indian or Spanish-American paraprofessional to service Bookmobile at the reservation
2. Employment of a Neighborhood Youth Corp page of Indian nationality
3. Book collection to consist of 2000 to 6000 volumes
   a. Emphasis on Indian books, both History and tribal history
   b. Emphasis on a Children’s collection pertinent to Indians
   c. Paperback collection to check out and to give away
   d. Special interest books on subjects such as alcoholism, sports, cars, poverty, education, crafts, and medicine
   e. Emphasis on Spanish books
4. Emphasis on media materials such as films, filmstrips, slides, projector and screen, phonograph, tape recorders (print materials may not be relevant to a non reading community)
5. Story hour on the reservation. Emphasis on Indian stories told by Indians
6. Emphasis on free materials such as NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC, ARIZONA HIGHWAYS to give away (invite patrons to donate these)
7. Free supply of bookmarks, classic comics, comic books, and Literature in comic book format
8. Community pamphlets and announcements to hand out
9. Circulating Indian periodicals
10. Games and puzzles for children to check out
11. Pamphlets on Indians, arts, and crafts
12. Have bibliographies available to interests of Indians
13. A Bulletin Board display on Bookmobile done by the Indians you serve
14. Reference question box for Indian patrons
15. A knowledgeable staff member knowing “survival” information needed by the Indian community
16. Two way radio in Bookmobile for reference; encourage use by Indian patrons on their own
FOLLOW-UP PROGRAM:

1. Adjust ALL library rules for the Indian patrons such as fines and non-resident fees
2. Plan a long range program for the community library and the Indians that the library serves
3. Work on State Library Association and see if the Association can have a special sub-committee dealing with library service for Indians
4. Contact agencies such as local university to see if they can assist as consultants in the program
5. Compile a file of community resource people
6. Plan to have a rotating book collection of 500 to 1000 books at a local meeting place on the reservation

EXTENDED SERVICES

2. INSIDE THE LIBRARY

a. Build collection of Indian materials
   1. Books about Indians
   2. Books by Indians
   3. Magazines and newspapers of special interest to the Indians
   4. Books about Indian Arts and Crafts and Artifacts, as painting, pottery, basketry, beadwork, sculpture, etc.
   5. Indian Music - develop a collection of Indian music records and tapes - to preserve for historical collection and to circulate.
   6. Oral history - develop an oral history collection of tapes through interviews, speeches, etc. These should be available for use so the older Indians and others can listen to them. Also valuable resource material for the writer and historian. (There should be duplicate copies - one at least as a permanent collection.)
   7. Evaluate general book collection and non-book materials with the needs of the Indians in mind, and develop along needs.
   8. Develop a collection of Indian arts and crafts.

b. Recognition of Indian Heritage Week
   Special events and programs planned for Indians and others in recognition of Indian Heritage. These events could include dance programs, choral groups, etc. as well as:
   1. Displays of Indian Arts and Crafts.
   2. Demonstrations of Indian Arts and Crafts, as painting, featherwork, basketry, dancing, sculpture, wood carving, etc. Whatever is pertinent to your community.
   3. Displays of books by Indians, and other contemporary literature by Indians in your community.
   4. Special Story Hours for Indian Children (this could be a continuing program) Adult Reading Hour, Book Reviews, book talks... both on Indian literature and other literature and other literature of interest to the Indians.

c. Develop a reading "improvement" program.

d. Have a discussion group on Indian Literature.

e. Have a course in Indian language or languages.

f. Make meeting rooms available for Indian organizations.

g. Library Staff Development
   1. Library staff should become better informed about the Indians in the community, where located, how many, churches, cultural problems, etc. to be better able to relate to and help serve the individual when they come to the library.
   2. Library Staff should learn about the various organizations of Indians and those serving Indians in the community and the function of each organization, such as Human Relations Commissions, Community Action Program, U. S. Public Health Service, Bureau of Indian Affairs, State Commission of Indian Affairs, Oklahomans for Indian Opportunity (or like group in your state) etc.
3. Library Staff should become involved in community affairs regarding Indians. Join groups when permitted or from friendships for contacts with other groups. In this way we can learn, help and also promote the library program so that we are involving the Indian community with the library. (If at all possible released time should be given for this.)

4. Library Staff should become better informed on various phases of community life and needs in order to give better service. Such things as social problems that confront people - special needs as where to go for help - for alcoholism, drug problems, medical care, vocational information, how to find a job, educational problems, legal aid - any other agency that can give this special assistance to Indian patron.
III. People to People Relationships - Communications

FOR THE COMMUNITY TO BE INVOLVED IN THE LIBRARY
THE LIBRARY MUST BE INVOLVED IN THE COMMUNITY

The usual library approach to service may not be sufficient to serve Indian communities in a meaningful way. To effectively service the Indian patron, we must first know the Indian. This does not mean a text book survey. We must get outside the library walls and become a part of the Indian community (but not in a "pushy" way). The middle class background of the librarian may prove to be a very difficult barrier to breach in this area, but to provide effective service we must be able to relate in a meaningful fashion. Communication is crucial to service with Indians. How many Indians have you spoken to socially today? Are you invited to Indian homes as a friend? Have you had your Indian friends to your home?

A great lesson is available in the successes of Don Roberts in Venice, California (Lib. Journ. Jan 15 '68, pp 259-266). His was not a totally Indian community, but there are meaningful guidelines to be gained from his methods.

We should take heed from the red voice as echoed in Our Brothers Keeper (p. 154) "... Non-Indian employees lack the capacity or desire to understand why the Indian's behavior and points of view differ from their own. They do not communicate with Indians on a social plane."

To work meaningfully, communication is a critical must. The kind of interactive relationship required does not initially crystallize within the walls of the library proper. It must begin with human understanding and individual interaction outside the library - IN THE COMMUNITY.
