This handbook offers suggestions to guide students in the skills of using media to make a maximum contribution to their intellectual and personal development. The ideas presented can be useful for media specialists and teachers in any grade or subject area. The teacher has the responsibility to: (1) be acquainted with the media center's resources, (2) recognize and identify the need for instruction on media, (3) teach according to his competency, (4) plan many opportunities for students to use skills after they are taught, (5) involve students in planning and evaluation, (6) provide for varying ability levels, (7) call on the media specialist for assistance and materials when needed, and (8) promote his own growth in the skill of guiding students in the use of the media center. The media specialist has the responsibility to: (1) make the center accessible, flexibly administered and attractive; (2) be well-informed about the school curriculum, student interests and related media skills and experiences; (3) identify needs; (4) plan for experiences with teachers; (5) provide teaching materials for media experiences; (6) teach lessons as needed; (7) provide individual instruction; and (8) grow professionally and stimulate the increase of knowledge and use of media. FOREWORD

Today the drive toward intellectual excellence and individualization of instruction demands that materials be not only centralized but also diversified and increased in quantity and quality so that teachers have at their fingertips the resources of a true media center.

It is now obvious that viable, dynamic programs require a much more sustained and integrated use of these materials in the media center. In the School District of Greenville County, in order to implement the objectives of our total educational program, we believe that we must direct our efforts toward helping each child develop, according to his ability, a competence in and habit of using many types of materials. These materials must be used not in an isolated fashion, but as an integral part of all learning. To form an ongoing pattern of inquiry, critical thinking, and rational behavior each child must have many experiences with those materials, both print and non-print, most suitable for the development of his unique capabilities. Involved in this process are ingenious, creative teachers, programs and methods which stimulate each child, a media center with its wide variety of relevant materials, and a media specialist who provides guidance.

In this environment, as the child progresses through school, his understanding of the world around him will be vitalized and broadened, and he will build a habit of self-directed learning and continuing personal development. As a result, we believe he will be more adequately equipped to live effectively and usefully as an American citizen in a world of change and challenge.

PREFACE

This handbook offers suggestions from teachers, supervisors, and media specialists* to guide students in the skills of using media to make a maximum contribution to their intellectual and personal development.

The ideas presented here can be useful for media specialists and teachers in any grade or subject area. The various experiences are introduced to individuals or groups in any grade where readiness is indicated. Many activities can be developed to stimulate student interest and to build readiness. Much review and reteaching may be necessary in various grades after the initial introduction. Repetition in later grades may also be advisable because of the increased depth of teaching.

Care should be taken to teach skills and provide experiences as a part of or outgrowth of the regular classroom program. The learning when integrated with other instruction is meaningful and purposeful.

The teacher has a responsibility:

To be acquainted with the resources of the media center.*
To recognize and identify the need for instruction or media.
To teach according to his competency.
To plan many opportunities for students to use skills after they are taught.
To involve students in planning and evaluation.
To provide for varying ability levels.
To call on the media specialist for assistance and teaching materials when needed.
To promote his own growth in the skill of guiding students in the use of the media center.
The media specialist has the responsibility:

To make the media center an easily accessible, flexibly administered, and physically attractive resource.

To be well-informed about the school curriculum, student interests, and the related media skills and experiences.

To identify needs that are observed as classes use the media center.

To plan continuously with teachers for individual, small group, and class experiences as they are needed.

To provide teaching materials for media experiences.

To teach lessons as needed.

To provide much individual instruction.

To seek to grow professionally and to provide stimulation for the school staff to increase their knowledge and use of media.

*Note: The terms "media center" and "library" are used interchangeably to refer to the centralized, organized collection of printed and audio-visual materials.

The terms "media specialist" and "librarian" are used interchangeably to refer to professional personnel who administer the media center and who offer a wide range of services to teachers and students.

INSTRUCTIONAL NEEDS AND RELATED MEDIA EXPERIENCES

During the process of instruction in any subject area the teacher will identify certain student needs. At that time the chart below may be consulted to indicate which related skills and experiences should be planned. For example, when students need recent information, lessons should be planned on the use of the Periodical Indexes, World Almanac and other yearbooks. Also, according to the chart, critical reading and note-taking may be taught in connection with locating current material.

SUGGESTIONS FOR INSTRUCTORS
THE CROSS-MEDIA APPROACH TO LEARNING

A cross-media approach to learning enriches the curriculum and provides for individual differences. Collections of the following materials should be available in every media center:

Reference books
Other books for enrichment
Periodicals
Pamphlets
Programed materials
Filmstrips
Recordings, disc and tape
Mounted pictures
Films—16 mm, and 8 mm single concept loop films
Maps, charts, posters, study prints
Transparencies
Realia
Models, dioramas
Teacher-made visual aids
Kits

ROLE OF THE MEDIA SPECIALIST

IN THE AREA OF SERVICES IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE MEDIA SPECIALIST TO:

Develop curriculum related collections of materials.

Centralize all materials in the library and catalog them.

Plan closely with teachers for library or class activities involving the use of all types of materials.

Give instruction on the most effective use of audio-visual as well as printed materials.

Help teachers and students develop discrimination in the selection of the best medium for a particular purpose.

Encourage small groups and individuals to come to the library to use various materials.

Capitalize on the motivation provided by the use of films, TV, filmstrips, recordings, etc. by having available sufficient copies of related books. Take collections of these to classrooms and discuss them with students.

Direct teachers' attention to articles in professional periodicals on the use of varied materials.
ROLE OF THE MEDIA SPECIALIST (Con't.)

IN THE AREA OF SERVICES IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE MEDIA SPECIALIST TO: (Con't.)

Provide approved lists of materials for teachers to use in selecting additions to the collections.

Assist teachers in the preparation of instructional materials.

Provide for the gifted and slow learner as well as the average.

Assist students in using critically, analyzing carefully, and organizing properly the information which they secure from many different sources.

Provide supplementary reading lists and bibliographies.

Secure teachers' manuals for educational TV programs.

Post notices of educative commercial TV programs and reading lists.

Keep informed concerning new media and equipment which becomes available.

Participate in the evaluation of the library's services and materials.

IN THE AREA OF FACILITIES AND PERSONNEL IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE MEDIA SPECIALIST TO:

Secure adequate storage facilities and files.

Maintain flexibility in library regulations and procedures.

Develop a listening and viewing area. Provide individual and small group filmstrips viewers, record players and tape records with head-sets for use in the library as well as providing equipment for classroom use.

Secure a copying machine, typewriter, and equipment for construction of materials for the use of teachers and students.

Request study carrels or individual stations wired for use of electronic equipment.

Demonstrate the need for a larger media center to accommodate increased use.

Request adequate conference rooms for small group work.

IN THE AREA OF FACILITIES AND PERSONNEL IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE MEDIA SPECIALIST TO: (Con't.)

Arrange an efficient charging system for materials and equipment so that they are easily and quickly located and borrowed.

Request and justify the additional personnel, specialized librarians, AV technicians, clerks, for expanded services.

ROLE OF THE TEACHER

IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE TEACHER TO:

Have a definite purpose for using any medium, for example, to:

- Introduce a new topic.
- Give an overview of a unit of work.
- Furnish information on some particular subject.
- Serve as a summary.
- Provide for the slow or gifted students.
- Arouse interest and stimulate the imagination.
- Add depth and vitality to instruction.
- Aid problem-solving and investigation.
- Teach skills.
- Promote the formulation of basic concepts.

Give careful attention to the choice of the medium best suited for the purpose in mind.

Pre-plan with the media specialist for the use of all materials.

All materials should be examined, previewed, or audited in advance of class use. It is suggested that students be allowed to assist in the process.

Plans should be made to encourage students to read related materials when audio-visual materials are being used.

Opportunities should be provided for student discussion, as a part of pre-planning, and pertinent questions and areas of specific interest called to the attention of the group.

Provide, if desirable, opportunity during the presentation for questions, discussions, and comments. If films are being used, group discussion may take place while the film is shown a second time with the sound turned off.
ROLE OF THE TEACHER (Con't.)

IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE TEACHER TO: (Con't.)

Conduct a class discussion following the presentation. This may be centered around the following questions:

Have questions been answered?
Have new questions been introduced?
What Projects might grow out of this?
Is a repeat presentation desired?

Evaluate the effectiveness of each type of material.

Did the use lead to further investigation, arouse curiosity, promote critical thinking?
Did the use contribute to learning?
Was the material effective for the purpose for which it was used?
Did the use stimulate general participation in discussions?

ROLE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR

IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE ADMINISTRATOR TO:

Provide leadership to encourage a cross-media approach to learning.

Make available adequate personnel to administer the varied collection of materials.

Provide files and facilities for storage.

Provide the necessary equipment and maintenance.

Secure adequate continuing financial support.

Plan for the school staff in-service education activities on affective use of many types of materials.

Evaluate the total program with the staff at various intervals.
BUILDING LIFE-TIME READING HABITS

KNOW YOUR STUDENTS
Find their interests. Have each write a paragraph on their activities outside school, the kind of television shows and picture shows they like, what they do in their spare time. Have them list one book that they liked very much. See page 12 for suggested questionnaire to identify interests.

FIND YOUR STUDENTS' READING LEVELS
Arrangements can be made to have tests given. Maybe some students need help with reading skills. If this is established, then steps should be taken to provide help.

START WITH YOUR STUDENTS WHERE THEY ARE
Have your librarian bring to your class a collection of books on the reading levels and interests of your group. Have her make a talk about these books. Let students check out right there any of the books they would like to read. If students like this introduction to books, have it repeated.

HELP STUDENTS WIDEN THEIR INTERESTS
Students need help in "building bridges" to interests, perhaps related to current ones, which will broaden their outlook and enrich their lives. It is invaluable to know a book to suggest when some spark of interest is observed. Reading, television, picture shows, travel, or speakers may kindle an interest.

HELP STUDENTS FIND THEIR OWN WAY IN READING
Take your class to the library often and give them ample time to browse, sample, and select the books they want, with you and the librarian helping them. Help students plan their individual goals in reading.

BIBLIO THERAPY
Suggest "the right book for the right student at the right time" to help him accept and adjust to personal or environmental conditions. To know that other boys and girls have similar problems and to read how they faced them may have some therapeutic value. Find out about suitable books for this purpose in Reading Ladders for Human Relations edited by Muriel Crosby. Also ask your librarian for suggestions.

KNOW BOOKS FOR HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS
Read as many as you can. Be familiar with lists of approved books. You can't "sell" reading to students unless you know their books.
KNOW BOOKS FOR HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS (Con't.)

The following lists are excellent and may usually be found in the library:

National Council of Teachers of English, Your Reading: Book List for Junior High Schools, Chicago, ALA, 1966, $.75.

Roos, Jean, Patterns in Reading, 2nd ed., Chicago, ALA, 1961, $2.25.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF RECOMMENDATIONS

Invite students from other classes to visit your class and talk about their reading. Invite students, from your class and other classes, who have pursued a certain hobby to talk to your class about the books they have read in connection with their hobbies.

DISCUSS WITH YOUR CLASS "BUILDING YOUR PERSONAL LIBRARY" See page 109.

Have your librarian make a talk on this topic. Be sure that information is given concerning the excellent titles in paperback editions that are now available.

BOOK DISCUSSIONS

It is generally accepted that requiring students to make formal reports on all their reading does not develop a love or habit of reading. Schedule some voluntary informal discussions about books. This is one way to identify those who don't like to read and who are not reading. You and the librarian can work with these in individual conferences.

Try to avoid the term "book reports." For many students it has an unpleasant connotation. Goals should be re-examined and "book reporting" practices evaluated.

Aim toward variety in book discussions. Suggest creative ways for students to share their reading. See page 55.
PROVIDE READING TIME

Many students do not have time to read at home. Schedule a time periodically when everyone (teacher included) reads the book of his choice. This gives students practice in reading during leisure time.

SURROUND STUDENTS WITH BOOKS

Always have in your classroom a collection of library books which appeal to your students. Change this collection often. At various times call attention to different books and suggest that certain students would find them interesting. Sometimes make a point of hunting for a book which you know one of your students would like, and recommend it to him.

SHARE YOUR READING

Talk with your students about the books you are reading and relate various unusual incidents or significant pieces of information you've discovered.

AN INTEREST INVENTORY USEFUL IN READING GUIDANCE

15. What subjects do you like to read about?

16. What person (in real life or in history) do you want to be like?

Nancy Larrick's list of questions for survey of individual interests quoted in: Individualized Reading Instruction by Roland West, Kennikat Press, 1964. (Some minor changes have been made.)
READING, VIEWING, LISTENING, AND PERSONAL GUIDANCE FOR GROUPS

ROLE PLAYING

Use a familiar story. Read several times.

Let students volunteer for different parts. If no volunteers, ask for suggestions as to how a character would act or look.

Let students originate interpretations. Don't tell them what to do. Show appreciation of the efforts of each one.

Show that you're enthusiastic and having fun.

Sometimes use a story that lends itself to group participation so that the shy student will join in.

Let students suggest props.

STORY HOURS OR PICTURE BOOK HOURS

Be familiar with story, prepare illustrative material, and plan ways of presentation.

Remember the short attention span of the younger student. Select story carefully.

Gather students close around you. Be enthusiastic. Show students that you're having a good time.

Relate story to students' experiences before you read or tell it.

Allow time for students to react to the story and to talk about it after you have finished.

Encourage upper grade students to read or tell stories to primary grade students. Be sure the story has been reviewed first and that it is told or read clearly and well.

Take time to show the book's illustrations as you read. Talk about them. Compare the different styles, colors, designs, media and the degree to which the pictures help tell the story. Let students tell what they like about them.

Realia offer effective illustrative material.

Consider the use of a continued story for older students.

Use recordings and filmstrips related to stories.
STORY HOURS OR PICTURE BOOK HOURS

Be sure to include fairy tales, folk tales, myths.

Show illustrations on transparencies or on a flannel board.

Use hand puppets to introduce book characters.

ACTIVITIES WITH RECORDINGS

Review recording before using it.

Discuss good listening skills. Let students make suggestions.

Limit other distractions

Decide what to listen for:
- Directions
- Sequence of thought
- Details
- Main ideas
- Rhythms
- Descriptive phrases or story
- Instruments used
- Repetition and themes

Play part of recording. "What did you hear?"

Be considerate of your neighbors.

Provide opportunities for individuals and small groups to listen to recordings.

Relate recording to students' experiences.

Always talk about related books.

Use recording as background for a story or poetry.

Let students sing along with music, or say poetry with the narrator.

Let students react to music:
- "How does this music make you feel?"
- "What is this music saying?"
- "What rhythms express the music?"

Show picture book as record is being played.

Encourage students to evaluate the recording on the following criteria:
- Clear sound
- Proper length
- Pleasing narration
- Good technical qualities
- Adequate content
SHARING READING EXPERIENCES

Let students talk informally about their reading:
"The best book I've read."
"The last book I read. What I like about it."
"The book character I like best."

Encourage reactions other than just the plot of the story:
Have you ever known anyone like that?
What would you have done?
Would you like to have a friend like that?
What part did you like the best?
Did he (or she) do the right thing?

Tell students about a book you have read and enjoyed.

Encourage creative reactions to books. Encourage students to:
Draw a picture or sequence of pictures that tell the story.
Act out a scene.
Write a poem.
Write a skit for puppets.
Select other titles for the book and give reasons for the selection.
Write another ending for the story.

Stress care in handling books.

Encourage students to speak clearly and interestingly.

Let students find some information in the library about the authors of the books they've read.

Stress the courtesy and skill of listening to each other as they share reading experiences.

See Sharing Book Experiences on page 54.

POETRY ACTIVITIES

Select poems on the students' level.

Repeat favorites.

Let students participate voluntarily as you read a poem. All may say a poem together or different groups say different lines.

Ask students for favorites to be read.

Let students read favorites.

Use poetry in connection with a filmstrip.
POETRY ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Encourage students to make for themselves an anthology of poems they like best.

Tell something about the poet.

Introduce limericks. Guide the class in writing a limerick and encourage individuals to write them.

Use poetry which suggests a book. For example, for the book Whistle for Willie by Ezra Jack Keats.

Use the following poem:

"I want to learn to whistle
I've always wanted to
I fix my mouth to do it
The whistle won't come through."

Relate poem to students' experiences.

Use related recordings.

Teach listening skills.

Encourage creative interpretation of poetry - Art work
Dramatics
Rhythms

Read poetry carefully and enthusiastically.

ACTIVITIES WITH FILMSTRIPS

Always preview.

Show filmstrip slowly.

Show part of filmstrip. Ask, "How do you think it should end?"
Use only a part of a filmstrip to illustrate or to emphasize a point.

Let students have time to react. Let them talk or plan art work or dramatics.

Show filmstrip. Talk about related books.

Let the class develop good viewing standards according to their maturity level. Have them practice these as filmstrips are shown. Let students make suggestions.
Identify a purpose for viewing.
Provide an environment which is comfortable and free from distractions.
Concentrate in understanding what is being seen.
ACTIVITIES WITH FILMSTRIPS (Con't.)

Suggestions for Good Viewing Standards (Con't.)
Have an alert, interested attitude.
Distinguish between the true and make-believe.
Locate central idea and subordinate idea of what is being seen.
Summarize mentally.

Suggest that class verify what has been seen by consulting various sources of information.

Develop good viewing habits by showing a frame - turning it off - asking, "What did you see?"

Provide opportunities for individuals and small groups to look at filmstrips of their choice.

Encourage students to evaluate the filmstrip on the following criteria:
Clear and pleasing pictures
Satisfactory captions
Good technical qualities
Proper length
Adequate content

Read story before showing filmstrip. Let students tell the story.
USING NON-PRINT MEDIA

VALUES

Information is presented effectively and vividly.

The characteristics of these media arouse and sustain interest.

A high degree of motivation is provided.

The vocabulary is enlarged and strengthened.

Reading is stimulated.

Opinions and attitudes may be modified.

A contribution is made to thinking and problem solving.

Skills are taught effectively.

Stimulates some children to learn from A-V materials who have difficulty learning from printed materials.

Learning acquired from A-V is retained for a significantly longer time.

Audio-Visual materials offer a much more real life experience than words which are symbolic. Result is greater learning in a shorter time with more retention.

TEACHER PREPARATION

Select the medium best suited for the purpose.

Decide whether it is to be presented to the whole class or reserved for individual or small group use.

Preview and/or audition and take notes on important points covered.

Decide how to build student interest.

Use discussion guide if available.

Plan any necessary preliminary activities.

Plan introduction.

Note technical terms, key words which need explanation.

Devise leading questions.
TEACHER PREPARATION (Con't.)

Plan further activities: Invite resource person to class; plan trip; write letters, etc.

Note points to be emphasized.

Gather related materials you want to have on hand.

Decide responsibilities for certain students or committees.

Decide questions for discussion or for testing comprehension or appreciation.

DEVELOPING STUDENT READINESS

Discuss what is already known about subject.

Give interesting background information.

Introduce key words or technical terms.

Develop with class a list of questions which may be answered.

Ask individual students to look for certain information.

Indicate if there will be a follow-up or maybe an objective test.

Plan with the class any other follow-up activities.

Develop with the class standards of good listening and viewing skills.

PRESENTATION

Arrange comfortable, desirable physical and emotional setting.

Sometimes arrange for a student or committee to introduce the presentation.

Relate presentation to past experience and learning of students.

Present first with no student participation.

Present a second time if necessary for certain purposes. For example:
  Intermediate grade and secondary pupils take notes, verify answers to questions.
  Elementary pupils read captions of filmstrips silently and then different ones are asked to read aloud.
  High school students evaluate concepts presented.
PRESENTATION (Con't.)

Ask leading questions before or during presentation.

Introduce other related materials - flat pictures, transparencies or books to assist in developing basic ideas.

Stop at various points to emphasize items or raise questions.

FOLLOW-UP

Have a class discussion to decide whether questions have been answered and whether new questions have been raised.

Record the answers found to questions.

Encourage free discussion of ideas presented. Expose impressions and ideas of each student to the critical thought of the class.

Urge students to ask each other questions.

Inaugurate projects growing out of presentation, individual or group work, trips, use of community resources, related units of work, etc.

Have pupils write the main points presented.

Sometimes give objective test on content.

Promote creative activity, drawing, stories, poems, puppet plays, clay modeling, etc.

May repeat showing in a few days:
- Show only a part of film.
- Show without the sound while teacher or student explains the action.

If a skill has been presented, have students practice it immediately.

Assign additional research on some of the topics presented or on unanswered questions.

TEACHER-STUDENT EVALUATION

Was it worthwhile? List strong and weak points.

Was it used at proper place in unit?

Authentic?

Well-organized?
STUDENT-TEACHER EVALUATION (Con't.)

Suitable for age group?

Good technical quality?

Up-to-date?

Pupil reaction? Were they challenged and stimulated?
VALUES OF POETRY EXPERIENCES

Students become sensitive to that which is fine and lovely.
They show a quickened imagination and an enriched vocabulary.
They become more relaxed.
They enjoy a happy, satisfying group experience.
Attention spans increase.
Their oral reading improves and the shy or slow child is able to participate.

GENERAL SUGGESTIONS

Read aloud poetry to self before reading to group.
Read poetry aloud to group, then read again after brief discussion.
Give careful thought to sound values of words and give consonants their full values in roundness or crispness.
Emphasize natural rhythm, but not meter words more than syllables.
Be sure students understand any unusual words.
Evoke correct emotional response of child to help him understand meaning of poetry by means of pictures and music. Young children will react favorably to the rhythm of poetry.
Keep atmosphere informal, happy, and comfortable, remembering that the appreciation of poetry is principally an emotional experience and is largely dependent upon the mood of the teacher and the mood of the students.
Start where students are in relation to poetry experiences. Most young children like nonsense poems and Mother Goose rhymes.
Consider subjects uppermost in school activities or in child's interests, e.g. holidays, the rain, circus, etc.
Give students an opportunity to speak poetry aloud themselves.
ACTIVITIES FOR STUDENTS

Use poems in finger plays. They afford a quiet-time activity. This helps give practice in speech, as well as develop better muscular co-ordination. All students can participate at the same time.

It is suggested that the children write their own poems for choral speaking.

Poems may be dramatized.

Tunes can be made up to go along with poems.

After hearing poems, students may add lines to the poems or make up their own poems.

Some poems are noted for their word pictures. Students will delight in sketching or painting their impressions of them. Some poems suggest a mural idea to go along with it.

Some poems suggest rhythmic activities in the way of galloping, swaying, or rocking, skipping, dancing, or marching. One part of the class could repeat the poem in a rhythmic fashion while another group goes through the motions suggested by the poem.

Limericks often stimulate pupils to write original verses of their own. It may also be the beginning of creative writing for many pupils.

READ-ALOUD BOOKS TOO GOOD TO MISS

These are some of the best books for reading aloud to your class. Do not feel limited to the books suggested for your grade. If any of the others seem better suited to the interests and needs of your class, use them. These books will be more meaningful to your class if they are motivated by activities in the classroom or experiences in the lives of your students. Frequently a teacher or librarian can interest students in other good books, also, which might otherwise be overlooked.

It is desirable to have in the library duplicate copies of many of these read-aloud books so that teachers may always have available the books which will be meaningful to their students. Consult Reading Aloud to Children, Children's Services Division, ALA, Chicago, 1967, single copy free.

LESSON GUIDELINES
PARTS OF A BOOK

GOALS

Students learn the principal parts of a book.
They become acquainted with the value of these aids.
Their work in research and independent study is facilitated.
They make the best selection to meet their own needs.
They become aware of and appreciate quality publications in format and content.

PART I

Title page - containing
  Title - name of the book
  Author - person or persons who wrote the book
  Illustrator - person responsible for pictures or photographs
  Publisher - company who produced the book and place of publication

Back of title page (verso) - copyright date, owner of copyright, and place of printing

Dedication - statement of whom the author wishes to honor by publication of his work

Preface - statement of purpose of the book and usually credit to others for assistance

Introduction - statement relating to the setting of the book

Table of contents - outline of the chapters, sometimes containing brief outline of subject matter

List of maps or illustrations - listing and page numbers of the maps or illustrations contained in the book

PART II

Body of the book
  Contents - author's presentation of his material
  Notes - additional information usually placed at bottom of page to explain references or to clarify meanings
  Bibliography - list of sources sometimes at end of each chapter
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

PART III
Bibliography - list of sources at end of book
Index - alphabetic listing of all subjects, names and places mentioned in the book
Appendix - additional material at end of book
Glossary - an alphabetic pronouncing list of names and terms

PART IV
Format - binding, quality of paper, print, illustrations

What is a book? (Tape recording), The Making of a Book, Audio-visual Center, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, $1.15 plus blank tape.

SUGGESTED ACTIVITIES

Each student examines a library book or a textbook as each part of the book is discussed. Students are asked to give the author, title, etc. of their book as the particular part is discussed.

Each student makes a cover and title page for his library notebook--with himself as editor, his school and state as place of publication.

The whole class compiles an anthology--perhaps one for the holidays of the world. Use groups of students for writers, illustrators, editors, publishers.

Use the opaque projector to show an example of each of the special features of a book--showing that some features won't be found in every book and that they might vary from book to book.
SUGGESTED ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Develop a bulletin board showing the reproductions of parts of a book made by the class. The class could determine the format and caption of the bulletin board.

Each student makes up a title page and dedication for a book.

Have a student write a brief composition on how to obtain a copyright in the United States and share his report with the class.

Have a group of students take a composition or magazine article of reasonable length and put it into book form, as if for publication. It must have a title page, a table of contents, and index, and notes if necessary.

Choose 5 topics from a book which doesn't already have an index and list them with exact pages in index form.

Ask students to bring books from home and compare bindings of these with the more durable library bindings.

Have students compare illustrations in several books. Make a list of desirable qualities of illustrations.

Have students select a book that has an index and answer the following questions about the book:
- How many chapters are there in the book?
- On which page does the index begin?
- How is the index arranged?
- Is your topic included in the book? (Topics to be given to students by the teacher or librarian) On which pages?
- What is the date of the information contained in the book?
- What is the author's full name?
- What is the complete title of the book?
- Does the book contain a dedication?
- On which page can you find a bibliography?
- What is it called?
- What four points should you remember about taking care of this book?
DEVELOPMENT OF SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY IN THE MEDIA CENTER

GOALS

Students develop good citizenship in the use of a public facility.
They show respect for public property and for the rights of others.
The proper methods of borrowing materials from the library are learned.

MEANING OF THE WORD LIBRARY OR MEDIA CENTER
Formerly only books were stocked. Now libraries circulate many kinds of materials: pictures, filmstrips, recordings, magazines, tapes, transparencies, pamphlets as well as books.

HOW BOOKS AND OTHER MATERIALS WERE ACQUIRED (TAX MONEY), AND TO WHOM THEY BELONG

NUMBER OF PEOPLE USING THE LIBRARY - NECESSITY FOR TIME LIMIT ON LOAN OF BOOKS AND OTHER MATERIALS

NECESSITY FOR KEEPING RECORD OF EACH PIECE OF MATERIAL BORROWED

WHERE TO GO IN THE LIBRARY TO BORROW OR TO RETURN MATERIALS

CHARGING SYSTEM
Date due and borrower's name on book card
Date due on slip in book

RESPECT FOR RIGHTS OF OTHERS
Books and other materials must be returned on time.
Books and other materials must be paid for if lost or damaged.
Everyone must be courteous and quiet in the library. Explain why.

RESPECT FOR BOOKS, EQUIPMENT, AND OTHER LIBRARY MATERIALS
A new book must be opened correctly.
Hands must be clean when handling books.
Objects must not be put into books.
Pages or pictures must not be marked.
Pages must be turned carefully.
Use a piece of paper as bookmark instead of turning down corners of pages.
Books must be kept in a safe place at home, away from babies and pets.
Books must be protected from rain and mud when carrying to and from school.
Show the librarian any pages that are torn, marked or loose.
Use care in handling filmstrips, recordings, and transparencies to avoid damage. (Handle recordings by edges)

RESPECT FOR BOOKS, EQUIPMENT, AND OTHER LIBRARY MATERIALS (Con't.)
Magazines must be used carefully to avoid tearing.
Tables, chairs, and floors must be kept free from marks and cuts.
Value of books, encyclopedias, magazines in dollars and cents should be stressed.
Everyone should feel responsible for a generally attractive, orderly appearance of the library.

ARRANGEMENT OF BOOKS ON SHELVES
Good stories are shelved alphabetically by authors.
Books of information are shelved by numbers, each subject having a different number.
Each book has a certain place on the shelf and must be put back; there if taken off to be examined.
E on the back of books indicates the books for younger readers.
B on the back of books indicates biographies.
F on the back of books indicates fiction (Define).
SC on the back of books indicates Story Collection.
R on the back of books indicates Reference books.

ARRANGEMENT OF NON-PRINT MATERIALS
EXPLAIN ARRANGEMENT USED IN YOUR LIBRARY.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Several books of fiction and non-fiction borrowed from the library.
Colored construction paper cut into strips to represent spines of books - Write on each the name of a story book or book of information.
Bright new books that have been well cared for Catalogs giving prices of materials to help children realize their value.
Filmstrips and transparencies from library.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Show students where the date due is recorded on slip and where name is written on book card.
Have students arrange books in classroom in the proper order and show how one is "lost" by being carelessly put in the wrong place.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Discuss the contrast between abused books and well cared for books.

Discuss reasons for the care of books.

Add library words to the vocabulary and spelling lessons: library, librarian, fiction, non-fiction, media center, etc.

Conduct quiz program on care of books.

Have students arrange construction paper strips representing book spines so that all fiction and all non-fiction are grouped together.

Make arrangements to take your class to the public library or to the branch of the public library that serves you. It is suggested that the last month of the first grade is a good time for this visit since children may get their first library card at that time. Follow up the visit with discussions, stories, paintings, etc.

Let students paint poster or cartoon illustrating how to care for books.

Let each student make his own bookmark.
  With rules
  With quotations

Dramatize correct behavior in the library.

Borrow from library filmstrip on care of books.

Emphasize to students that library citizenship, i.e. care of books and regard for other patron's needs should be carried over into any library situation.

Help class develop standards of good library citizenship.

Let students demonstrate proper care of filmstrips, transparencies, and recordings.
CRITICAL READING AND THINKING

GOALS

Students develop the habit of evaluating facts and ideas.

The skill of forming generalizations is acquired.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

DEFINITION: Critical reading or thinking means that you are trying to make a careful judgment of something in respect to some standard. It does not mean fault finding.

NECESSITY OF CLEAR STATEMENT OF PROBLEM OR TOPIC BEFORE READING OR LISTENING TO SPEAKER.

THE IMPORTANCE OF NOT ACCEPTING EVERY PRINTED OR SPOKEN STATEMENT AS TRUE.

THE SELECTION OF FACTS RELEVANT TO THE STUDENT'S PURPOSE.

EVALUATION OF FACTUAL STATEMENTS

Investigation of authority and date of publication of source of information.

EVALUATION OF INFORMATION ABOUT CONTROVERSIAL SUBJECTS

The author or speaker

Determine the side of the issue he favors.
Determine his motives. Is he trying to influence people to accept his opinions?
Investigate his competence, background, and qualification. Find out if his sources are listed or quoted and whether they are reliable.

The author's or speaker's presentation

Is it slanted or are both sides presented fully?
Evaluate the relevance of the facts. Are some pertinent facts omitted and others not relevant included?
Is evidence offered to support statements?
Is the information recent?
Evaluate the information offered. Is it fact or opinion?
Opinion is colored by the author's background, culture or beliefs.

Techniques used by the author or speaker

Use of words with an implied meaning which is different from the actual meaning of the words. Distinguish between denotation (actual meaning) and connotation (a suggested or implied meaning).
Name-calling (appealing to our hate or fear)

Broad, glittering generalities (truth, freedom)
Using scapegoats (blaming someone else, or some other policy or group)
Emotional loaded words (our flag, our country, mother)
Testimonials (endorsed by some prominent group or persons)
Band-Wagon exhortation (follow the crowd)
"Plain folks" (speaker or author poses as just plain folks)
"Stacking the cards" (Tries to direct the attention of the audience to one thing and distract from another)
Sensationalism (Use of material calculated to arouse emotions)
Taking things out of context
False Analysis
Over-simplification
Guilt by association
Use of a stereotype (anything conforming to a fixed or general pattern and undistinguished by individual marks)
Use of a cliche' (a trite phrase that has lost precise meaning)
Transfer device (Tells about something we like or admire and then tells about the product or idea he is trying to sell)

FORMULATION OF GENERALIZATIONS
Discarding of irrelevant facts
Clear statement of evaluated facts
Sources of facts indicated
Estimate of adequate number of facts
Integration of information with past knowledge and experiences
Consideration of student's possible bias or prejudice
Arrangement of facts in right relationships
Clear statement of generalization or conclusion
Consideration of possible alternate generalizations

APPLICATION OF GENERALIZATIONS
Suitability for student's purpose
Consideration of necessity for further investigation
Ability of students to accept in spite of prejudice
Use of generalizations in other situations
Consideration of generalizations in relation to wider field

SUGGESTED MATERIALS
Periodical articles and advertisements
Textbooks
Transparency listing both sides of an issue
Library books
Cartoons projected by overhead projector
Radio programs
Tape recordings of advertisements
Television programs
Prepared posters and duplicated sheets
Newspaper articles, editorials, and headlines
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

(These activities should be integrated with the regular instructional program using topics which are being studied and ones suited to the grade level of the student.)

INTRODUCTORY ACTIVITIES

For the youngest students, an effective device is a gaily colored poster or transparency of a parrot, with a discussion about the necessity of independent thinking rather than acceptance without questioning of material read or heard, and given back to the teacher in "parrot fashion."

A similar device for grade-school students consists of an object lesson with a sponge, preferably in animal or human shape. The "sponge reader" absorbs quite a bit of material, (water) but when it is given back in answer to questioning, the material has not been changed in any way. Therefore, the sponge-type reader leaves much to be desired. This can be elicited from children with a little direction.

DETERMINING RELIABILITY OF SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Have students read selections on the same topic in two or more textbooks, select the main ideas and compare them.

Compare newspaper articles or editorials in different newspapers that discuss the same topic.

List on chalkboard or project a transparency giving the arguments on both sides of an issue. Check published materials for accuracy.

Assign an investigation of the background of the authors of two books on the same subject.

Have the copyright dates of two science books checked and then evaluate the information included on the same topic.

DISTINGUISHING FACT FROM OPINION

Display five advertisements with the opaque projector and have students list five facts and five opinions about each.

Have each student list ten facts and ten opinions about himself.

Have him do the same for someone else he knows well.

Record advertisements on the tape recorder; then play the tapes to the class and have the class tell techniques used to sell the products.

Have students write a list of statements which are facts and another list which are opinions. (Columbia is the capital of South Carolina—fact) (Columbia is the best place in South Carolina to live—opinion)

DETECTING BIAS AND PREJUDICE

Ask students to search for the following in TV or radio speeches, periodical articles, or newspaper headlines and list as many as they can; emotion-loaded words, testimonial, glittering generalities, name-calling, band-wagon exhortation.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

DETECTING BIAS AND PREJUDICE (Con't.)
Select current history materials from the library and then determine (1) whether they represent a cross section of political and economic opinion (2) whether they are readable and fair (3) whether they present a varied viewpoint and factual editorial competence.
Select headlines from the newspapers and news magazines. Ask students to identify those that do not express opinion or contain bias.
Have students select letters from "Letters to the Editor" and use them to illustrate prejudice and emotional bias or objective writing.

DRAWING CONCLUSIONS AND MAKING INFERENCES
Show some cartoons with the opaque projector and ask the students to interpret the meaning of each.
Show some illustrated advertisements with the opaque projector and have the students decide what type of person they are geared to.
Give students practice in using context clues to discover character and identify setting and time.
Have students make inferences concerning fairness or justness of the character's motives in the story.
Have students decide if the action in a story is plausible.

LISTENING AND VIEWING SKILLS

GOALS

Students develop purposeful, responsive, critical and appreciative listening and viewing.

They form appropriate listening and viewing skills for various purposes.

Teachers and students cooperatively develop standards of good listening and viewing.

VALUE OF DEVELOPING GOOD LISTENING AND VIEWING SKILLS

Social conversations
Telephone conversations
Class discussions and reports
Announcements and directions
Dramatic activities
Radio and Television
Musical activities
Stories and poems
Speakers
Assembly programs
Films and filmstrips
Individual viewers
Headphones - Individual listening
Trips

CLEAR IDENTIFICATION OF STUDENTS' PURPOSE

ADVANCE PREPARATION FOR MEANINGFUL LISTENING AND VIEWING
Necessity of disciplined attention

ELEMENTS OF A GOOD LISTENING AND VIEWING ATMOSPHERE

Comfortable environmental conditions
Healthy emotional climate
Freedom from distractions

TYPES OF LISTENING AND VIEWING

Passive
Listening to radio while studying
Daydreaming while listening and viewing
Uncomprehending listening and viewing
Viewing without a purpose

Appreciative
Enjoying the development of a story
Listening for tuneful words and pleasing rhythms
Visualizing descriptive and dramatic passages
Reacting to the mood set by story, music, film or filmstrip

TYPES OF LISTENING AND VIEWING (Con't.)

Appreciative (Con't.)
- Appreciating speaker's style and appearance
- Being aware of favorable effects of voice, posture or gestures
- Noting how character is developed by dialogue or scenes
- Awareness of good design and color

Informative
- Listening and looking for the answer to a specific question
- Listening to follow directions
- Listening and looking so as to reproduce what is said or seen
- Following sequence in story, play, or lecture
- Listening and looking for main ideas
- Listening and looking for details
- Interpreting new words through context of what is heard

Critical
- Developing standards for high quality listening and viewing
- Distinguishing between the true and make believe
- Discriminating between fact and opinion
- Listening for evidence which supports a speaker's statement
- Comparing two musical selections dealing with the same theme
- Comparing the qualities of two filmstrips on the same subject
- Detecting prejudice and bias in statements, illustrative content, or scenes
- Evaluating propaganda by a check against observable or known facts
- Recognizing sales-pressure techniques
- Understanding the purpose of the presentation
- Making inferences from speaker's statement
- Relating the information from speakers, films, television, or filmstrips to previous knowledge and experience
- Drawing conclusions

Characteristics of good listener or viewer:
- Has interested, alert attitude
- Concentrates on understanding what is heard or seen
- Controls emotions
- Recognizes his own prejudices as well as prejudices in presentations
- Locates central idea and subordinate ideas
- Identifies sequence of ideas
- Summarizes mentally
- At appropriate time asks for explanation of facts not clear
- Integrates with previous knowledge and experiences
- Delays reaction until message understood
- Evaluates
- Forms opinions
- Relays information to others when called upon

Russell, David H. and Elizabeth F., Listening Aids Through the Grades, (190 Listening Activities), New York, Teachers College Press, Teachers College, Columbia University, 1959, $1.50.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Listening and viewing skills should not be developed in separate lessons. Activities in the regular instructional program and school day may be utilized in the following suggestions:

Formulate cooperatively with class, standards of effective listening and viewing.

Let class select certain features to listen and look for in television, radio programs, filmstrips, films, and tape recordings.

Have the class keep a record of their listening and viewing activities for one day.

Read poetry and have the class listen for rhyming words or word pictures.

Test how accurately students listen to announcements or directions. "What did he say?" How did he say it? Was the statement clear?

Have students listen for certain sounds in the environment, or look for certain things. Develop vocabulary as students describe the sounds they hear and the things they see.

Appoint a listener to make a critical analysis of listening during class discussions, debates, and presentations. This will encourage students to listen closely and to analyze critically.

Ask students to select the main ideas in class reports.

Have students identify instruments, rhythm, and mood in musical selections.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

After class has examined illustrative charts or posters have them describe what they saw.

After showing a filmstrip ask students to describe some features.

Let students evaluate voices in recordings, radio, television, or class reports as to: clearness of tone, careful enunciation, correct pronunciation, quality of tone.

Let students evaluate voices of classmates by using tape recorder.

Ask students to analyze critically the opposing views of television speakers on various issues.

Read descriptions of places or people. Ask students to write a description of what they heard.

Let students share individual listening and viewing activities.

Describe a landscape and have students draw it from memory.

Help class develop standards for listening and viewing.

Play the same recording of a musical selection or poem twice. Ask students to list the new elements discovered in the second listening.

Read a paragraph, suggest two inferences to be drawn from the information. Ask students to select the better inference.

Make a habit of giving directions only once. Expect students to listen attentively. If directions have to be repeated, ask a student to do it.

Let the class practice telling chain stories.

Discuss with the class before an assembly program the kind of listening and viewing skills that are required.

Cut off the recordings of a speech before the end. Ask students to state what the conclusion will be.

Ask the class to make summaries of television panel discussions. Discuss listening skills beforehand.

Let students evaluate the clearness, conciseness, and appropriateness of announcements.

Divide the class into groups and give each group a certain feature to listen and look for in the presentation of a topic by a speaker or in a film.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Have students retell parts of stories they enjoyed hearing or saw on television.

Let the class draw pictures or express creatively in some other way what a recording or filmstrip made them see or think.

Let students choose the parts to be read by a choral group after listening to different students read the selection.

Have students identify the source of sounds as some members of the class stand behind a screen and pour water, saw wood, turn an egg beater, etc.

Let each student outline his listening and viewing needs.

Let a student tell an experience story to the class. The class members listen carefully so as to ask for further details. Then the student retells the story.

After the class has seen students present a dramatic skit, ask them to write their interpretation of what they saw.

Let those students who have seen the same television program write a summary in class. Have these read for comparison.

Let students describe what they saw on a trip.

Show picture books and have children write stories.

GOALS

Students demonstrate a continuing pleasure in reading.

They appreciate literature of enduring value.

They develop better listening habits.

They show a desire to keep personal reading records and to build personal libraries.

They develop critical thinking.

New avenues of reading interest are opened up.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

PREPARE BEFORE SHARING

Select story or book interesting to listeners and persons sharing.

Know book being shared so that it can be read or told in an interesting manner.

Find out something about author. Consult Junior Book of Authors, More Junior Authors, Living Authors, Who's Who in America and other biographical reference books.

Plan good audience situations - students and teachers should listen.

One who is sharing should be in a location easily seen by all.

SPEAK SO THAT ALL CAN HEAR.

BE ENTHUSIASTIC.

SHOW PICTURES IN BOOKS, OR DEVELOP ILLUSTRATIVE MATERIAL.

BE CREATIVE.

Use posters, transparencies, filmstrips, records, flannel boards, etc.

PERSONAL READING RECORDS KEPT AND SHARED WITH OTHERS CAN SOMETIMES STIR INTEREST.

ALLOW TIME FOR DISCUSSION.

The teacher may suggest some of the following questions for discussion:

Have you ever seen anything like this happen? When?

Has anything like this ever happened to you? What did you do about it?

How are you like the boys or girls in the story?

How do you like the boy or girl in the story? Would you like to have this person for a friend?

Would you like to live with this family?
Do you know anyone like this person?
Do you think people really do these things? Why?
What feelings did the story arouse in you? Anger? Excitement?
Fear? Pity?
What did you learn from the book that you didn't know before?
Did the book suggest other subjects you'd like to read about?
(Questions' from Blueprints for Better Reading by Florence Damon Cleary, New York, H. W. Wilson, Company, 1957.)

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Costumes
Puppets
Mobiles
Dioramas
Collages
Posters
Painted pictures
Book jackets
Flannel boards
Chalkboards
Tapes
Filmstrips
Recordings
Transparencies

SUGGESTED WAYS TO SHARE BOOKS

IMAGINARY DIARY written by one character.
IMAGINARY LETTER written by one character to another.
SUGGESTED WAYS TO SHARE BOOKS (Cont.)

CONVERSATION that might take place between the characters in two different books.

TRANSPARENCIES made by student to illustrate his books.

HEADLINED NEWSPAPER REPORT of some event in the book.

FILMSTRIP OR MOUNTED PICTURES to illustrate a talk.

OVERHEAD PROJECTOR used to show illustrations from a book while student talks about it.

SKIT, WITH COSTUMES, illustrating some dramatic part of the book.

POSTERS illustrating characters, map of county, or locale, or some scene in book - These should be accompanied by analytical talk.

IMAGINARY NEWS CORRESPONDENT TELEVISION REPORT

ILLUSTRATED BOOK REVIEW - A brief synopsis illustrated with pictures.

A TELEVISION QUIZ PROGRAM - Pupil giving report interviewed by other students.

A TABLEAUX representing scenes from a book.

A SALES-TALK TECHNIQUE - Student given a designated length of time in which to make his classmates want to read the book which he has just read.

A SALES-TALK TECHNIQUE - Student given a designated length of time in which to make his classmates want to read the book which he has just read.

IMAGINARY TELEPHONE CONVERSATION during which the plot of the book is described.

IMAGINARY CONVERSATION between two historical characters during which part of the content of the book read is revealed.

A TALK based on one or more of the following questions:

If such an experience happened to me, what would I have done?

Do I know anyone like the people in the story?

Would I like to be like the book character?

Have I ever seen anything like this happen?

A DIORAMA representing various book events.

PANEL DISCUSSIONS - Several books of the same kind (biography, historical novel, etc.) or on the same subject (sports, American Revolution, etc.) discussed by a group, followed by questions from the class.
SUGGESTED WAYS TO SHARE BOOKS (Cont'd.)

GENERAL CLASS DISCUSSIONS of various books concerning the same interest; i.e., books about sports which might include fiction, biography, and informational biography, play, poetry, essays, etc.

DEBATE on a topic such as "Resolved that the reading of travel books is more broadening to the mind than the reading of biography," with students giving examples from books they have read.

PUPPETRY - Hand puppets made by the student dramatize the action of the story.

READING OF BEST-LIKED CHAPTERS and pages by students who also give a brief summary of the preceding part of the book.

FIVE-MINUTE TALKS given by each student about a book he has read, in an effort to get the class members to vote for his book for Book-of-the-Month selection.

A LETTER written to the author, stating why the book was enjoyed and suggesting improvements.

A DISCUSSION OF THE BOOK followed by a description of what could happen after the story ends.

A WRITTEN ADVERTISEMENT stressing the good features of the book.

"LIFE" STORY - Imagine Life Magazine doing a feature story on the book, and describe the photographs they would take and write captions for each.

LETTER - Write a letter to a foreign student, discussing why the book is or is not representative of American life.

ANALYSIS BY A MAN OF THE FUTURE - In a time capsule or in the ruins on the planet Earth, some man of the future finds the book and writes a paper on what it reveals of life of an earlier time.

A LETTER WRITTEN IN THE ROLE OF A BOOK CHARACTER - Example: The hero of Lost Horizon writes a letter about his final return to Shangri-La, explaining his purposes and his hopes for the future.

THE SCHOLARLY CRITICAL PAPER - Honors classes may combine research on "what the critics and authorities think of the author" with critical opinion on "what I think about those of his books which I have read."

ROUND-TABLE DISCUSSION UNDER A STUDENT CHAIRMAN - Four of five students read the same book. Part of a period is given before the day of a report for each group to confer on questions for discussions.
SUGGESTED WAYS TO SHARE BOOKS (Con't.)

GROUP PERFORMANCE IN THE STYLE OF "THIS IS YOUR LIFE." This procedure lends itself to reports on biographies.

REPORTER AT THE SCENE - While it's happening, a crucial scene from the book is described on the spot by a TV or radio reporter.

THE TRIAL OF A MAJOR CHARACTER - Defendant, prosecuting attorney, defense attorney, and witnesses may participate in the case. The charge should preferably be one of acting unethically, unfairly, or even unwisely, rather than one of breaking a law.

THE AUTHOR MEETS THE CRITICS. Three, four, or five students may form a group. A student posing as Charles Dickens may defend his Tale of Two Cities against critics as they ask questions.

QUIZ PROGRAM - Use this when the class has read only one book, or when several groups have each read a single book. A quizmaster asks questions of two teams, each composed of half the class of group.

USE OF TAPE RECORDER - Students tape a description of their books and these are used for individual or group listening.

MONOLOGUE - "I am John Ridd, and I appear in a book that Blackmore wrote about Lorna Doone and me. I'm the kind of person who .........."

COUNSELING BY EXPERTS - A character explains his crucial problem to three social workers who specialize in guidance, family counseling, and psychological rehabilitation. They ask questions and offer advice. Note that the "social workers" need not have read the book.

OUTLINE OF A TV OR MOTION-PICTURE VERSION - This may be oral or written, including major scenes, sets, casting, and other aspects. Students enjoy telling "how I would dramatize this book if I were a TV or motion-picture producer."

MOVIE TRAILER OR PREVIEW OF COMING ATTRACTIONS - Each student clips magazine or newspaper pictures - or sketches his own - showing scenes similar to those of significant moments in his book. He displays the pictures in organized sequence and supplies a commentary on the action and characterization.

TWENTY QUESTIONS - Most successful when subject is familiar to class. The reviewer chooses a fact from his book and the class must guess it in twenty questions which the reviewer may answer only "yes" or "no."

SIMULATED INTERVIEW WITH AUTHOR - One pupil poses as author, another as interviewer.

OPAQUE PROJECTOR - Use book or original illustrations.
SUGGESTED WAYS TO SHARE BOOKS (Con't.)

ORIGINAL POEM - It might be about the main character.

MAPS - Useful for tracing a route, indicating episodes, or landmarks

PANTOMIME - Presents characters in action - Audience participation might include guessing what they're doing. One student might tell a story while others act out the scenes.

FLANNEL BOARD - For elementary pupils - A synopsis might be woven around a few figures placed on simple background.

CHALK-BOARD SKETCH - For the artistically talented - He might sketch as he talked about the book.

NOTE: Some of the above ideas were gathered from articles in English Journal, Clearing House, High Points, Wilson Library Bulletin, and Elementary English.
GENERAL ENCYCLOPEDIAS

GOALS

Students demonstrate efficient use of encyclopedias as an immediate source of reliable factual information.

They learn the skill of using different encyclopedias for different purposes.

SETS OF ENCYCLOPEDIAS TO BE EXAMINED

- Americana
- Encyclopedia Britannica
- Britannica Junior
- Compton's
- Collier's
- Golden Book Encyclopedia
- Merit Students Encyclopedia
- New Book of Knowledge
- Lincoln Library of Essential Information
- Columbia Encyclopedia
- One-volume encyclopedias: Lincoln Library of Essential Information

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

DEFINITION OF WORDS "ENCYCLOPEDIA" AND "CYCOPEDIA"

DIFFERENCE IN ENCYCLOPEDIAS:

Arrangement
Authoritiveness
Scope
Cross-references
Indexes
Yearbooks
Bibliographies
Up-to-dateness
Read and study guide
Visual Materials

SUGGESTED MATERIALS:

Books and art properties of different encyclopedias with merit awards (e.g., Tallents for Children and Schoolcraft Awards) and sets of encyclopedias from library.
SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Information Unlimited (Tape Recording), Information on different encyclopedias, Audio-visual Center, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, $1.15 plus blank tape.

One Volume Encyclopedias, (Filmstrip), Young American, 330 West 42nd Street, New York 36, New York, 39 fr, color $6.00, guide.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

The teacher should remember the child's need for a variety of experiences in using books. In teaching the use of encyclopedias, always keep in mind their relation to other books as a source of information.

Use free material supplied by encyclopedia publishers.

Have a committee find the same topic in each yearbook and report to class giving comparison of the information found in each.

Drill on alphabetical skills.

Copy on the chalkboard the guide letters on the spines of the encyclopedia volumes. Give the class a list of topics and ask them to find the correct volume to consult.

Write a number of topics found in different volumes on the chalkboard. Have students look up topics in different encyclopedias and compare according to how information is found and amount given in each.

Have students work in pairs and find the related topics on a subject in several encyclopedias. Compare information found.

Have several students look up a subject, find the cross reference, copy it on the chalkboard, and with the help of the class find information desired.

Give students practice in selecting the key word in use of finding information on a topic. For example: When did Will Rogers live? What did Elias Howe invent? What two metals are used in making nickel?
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Teach technique of gathering, organizing, and summarizing information so that students do not simply copy material verbatim. See Note-Taking, page 74.

Teach students the proper way to list an encyclopedia reference in a bibliography. Author (if given); title of article, in quotes; name of encyclopedia, underlined; edition (year, volume, pages)

The skills of reference must be taught through constant and planned guidance in their use. Students should be involved in the planning and learning experiences.
DICTIONARIES

GOALS

Students become acquainted with the various dictionaries with which they come in contact at school, at home, in libraries, etc.

They familiarize themselves with the types of information that may be obtained from dictionaries.

They develop skills in learning how and when to use dictionaries.

They become more skillful in determining in which part of the dictionary (beginning, middle, or end) words are located.

They learn the main parts of a dictionary entry.

They use the pronunciation key as a guide to strengthen ability to attack unfamiliar words.

They enjoy learning to increase their vocabularies by frequent uses of the dictionary.

They develop skill in adapting the illustrative sentence or phrase following the definition to their particular need in looking up the meaning of a word.

They become acquainted with the special features offered in the various dictionaries.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

A SELECTION SHOULD BE MADE FROM THE FOLLOWING TOPICS DEPENDING ON THE TYPE OF DICTIONARY BEING STUDIED—ABRIDGED OR UNABRIDGED:

1. Arrangement of words—alphabetical or in order of frequency
2. Guide words—thumb index
3. Special features
4. Spelling
5. Pronunciation
   a. Phonetic spelling
   b. Diacritical marks
   c. Accent marks
   d. Syllables
   e. Key words
6. Parts of speech
7. Plural forms
8. Verb forms
9. Definitions
10. Synonyms and antonyms
11. Capitalization
12. Abbreviations
13. Illustrations
14. Gazetteer information
15. Proper names
16. Foreign words and phrases
17. English usage—generally accepted, colloquial, obsolete, slang
18. Derivation of words
19. Quotations
SUGGESTED MATERIALS

FILMS:

Fun From the Dictionary, Leroy E. Hurte Productions, Los Angeles, California, 1961, 15 minutes, Sd., b and w - $110; color $175., guide.

Look It Up! Dictionary Habits, Coronet, Chicago, 1952, 11 minutes, Sd., b and w - $60., color $120.

We Discover the Dictionary, Coronet, Chicago, 1964, 11 minutes, Sd., b and w - $60., color $120.

FILMSTRIPS:

Learning to Use the Dictionary, 8 filmstrips, Pacific Productions, San Francisco, 1959, color $40. set, $6.00 each, guide.

Meet Your Friend, the Dictionary, (Your Lesson Plan Filmstrip series), Curriculum Materials Corporation, Philadelphia, 1959, 52 Fr, color, $6.00.

Using a Dictionary, (New Webster Language Filmstrips), Webster Publishing Company, 1960, 28 Fr, $4.50 color.

What Is the Word?, 12 filmstrips, Houghton Mifflin, Boston, Massachusetts, color, $39. set, $3.75 each.

Your Dictionary and How to Use It, 6 filmstrips, Society for Visual Education, Chicago, 1952, color $28.50 set, $5.00 each.

The Dictionary, Pt. 1 & 2 (School Library Services), McGraw-Hill, New York, $8.50 each.
SUGGESTED MATERIALS (Con't.)

TRANSPARENCIES:

How to Use a Library, 41 transparencies, Library Science Project-aid transparencies, General Aniline and Film Corp., New York, 1965, color, complete set $155. Individual transparencies vary from $2.75 to $7.00 each.

Learning 'Look-it-up' skills with a Dictionary, 4 transparencies, Field Enterprises Educational Corporation, Chicago.

BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS:

Library Skills, Teaching Library Use Through Games and Devices, California, Fearon Publisher, 1958, p. 74, $2.00.

Welken, Marion L., Library Skills, Book Four, Minneapolis, Minnesota, T. S. Denison Company, set of 5 books in series, $25.00.

OTHER AIDS:

Go Dictionary, Scott Foresman, Chicago, 1963, color, free, labels, dictionary travel poster.

Charts showing how syllables and pronunciations are indicated.

Lists of new words obtained from classroom experiences.

Flash cards available on storage shelves in the library, set of 15 unabridged dictionaries to be used for group work.

Study guides and sample unabridged dictionary pages from G. & C. M. Merriam Company, 47 Federal Street, Springfield, Massachusetts.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Have students make a picture dictionary for each new social studies, science, or math activity. Entries can be posted on the bulletin board — picture, word, and definition. After discussing them they can be transferred to a booklet having a page or spread for each letter.

Use flash cards, charts, and posters to teach syllabication, abbreviations, plurals, capitalization, etc.

Have students reserve a section in their notebooks in which they record new, interesting, useful words. They may also record words with which they have difficulties in spelling, comprehension, etc.

Give students frequent experiences in arranging words in alphabetical order. The words can sometimes be selected from units of study.

Integrating dictionary study with spelling, have the students write opposite each spelling word the phonetic spelling, the diacritical marks, the accent marks, and the syllables. Let the students pronounce each word in syllables, then the whole word.

Prepare a list of sentences. Underline a word in each sentence. Have students write the definition for the underlined word, choosing the best definition depending on how the word is used in the sentence.

Have students keep a list of new words and abbreviations obtained from their newspaper and magazine reading. Let them consult the dictionary for definitions and pronunciations. Allow the students to practice using these words in oral and written exercises.

Using the overhead projector, let a student write a word on the roll and have another student write a synonym or antonym opposite it.

Show filmstrips dealing with dictionary study and have students read and discuss each frame, with the assistance and guidance of the teacher and/or librarian.

Using the tape recorder, the teacher can read a story or poem to the class. A group can later listen to the tape and make a list of all unfamiliar words in the recording. They will then consult their dictionaries for meanings and spellings and report their findings to the whole class. Use a word search on the tape.

Assign a list of foreign words and phrases and have students find definitions.
ILLUSTRATIONS

GOALS

An appreciation of illustrations of high quality is acquired.

Students become familiar with the work of leading illustrators.

CHARACTERISTICS OF ILLUSTRATIONS OF HIGH QUALITY

- They interpret and enrich the text.
- They are placed adjacent to the text they illustrate.
- They show imaginative insight.
- They have gaiety and humor.
- The quality of color and line is pleasing.
- They are not too cluttered with detail. This is especially important in illustrations for the younger reader.
- They show evidence of research to ensure accuracy and authenticity of time, place, costume and action.
- They tell the story in a picture book, and in other books they help carry the story forward.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Library Books

- The Biggest Bear
- White Snow, Bright Snow
- The Big Snow
- Chanticleer
- Finders Keepers

Filmstrips of Caldecott books, available from Weston Woods

- Some suggestions:
  - Make Way for Ducklings
  - The Biggest Bear
  - White Snow, Bright Snow
  - The Big Snow
  - Chanticleer
  - Finders Keepers
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Let children compare similar illustrations. Tell what they like about them and why.

Show illustrations as a story is read and point out characteristics. Let children relate the pictures to their own experiences.

Let children compare illustrations by two artists who have illustrated the same type of book, e.g., two biographies, two books of fairy stories, etc. Let students express their preference and give reasons.

Devote one period to a discussion of colors in illustrations. Have on hand several books for children to examine.

Discuss with children several books with illustrations showing much action. Point out the different ways action is expressed.

Discuss and show several books whose illustrations are characterized by a great deal of detail or by humor.

Discuss the mood created by various kinds of illustrations. Ask, "How does this make you feel?"

Encourage children to use Junior Book of Authors in the library to find information on the lives of famous illustrators.

Identify different illustrators with their illustrations and help children become sensitive to their individual styles.

Report on the life of a Caldecott winner. Show the class the winning book and other books illustrated by this artist.

Find out how many Caldecott Medal winners are author-illustrators. Does the card catalog may help you find these?

Show filmstrips of Caldecott books. Records may be used along with these. Some filmstrip lists are included below:

- [Filmstrip Title]

TAKING NOTES

GOALS

Students gather information in an efficient way from their reading and from speakers.

They read critically and organize ideas secured from their reading and from speakers.

TWO KINDS OF NOTE-TAKING:
Taking brief notes to follow and reproduce the author's or speaker's thoughts.
Rewriting, in reader's words, information and ideas gleaned from reading.

GOOD NOTE-TAKING IS DIRECTLY RELATED TO THE FOLLOWING:
Ability to use indexes, table of contents, etc.
Advanced reading skill
Ability to recognize main thought of a paragraph
Ability to skim rapidly over reading material and to locate material needed
Ability to paraphrase material read

MATERIALS NEEDED FOR TAKING NOTES
3x5 or 4x6 cardboard file cards
Pen
Box or folder for the orderly storing of cards (shoe box)

EACH BIBLIOGRAPHY CARD SHOULD INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING DATA:
Name (s) of the author (s)
Title
Name of series (if any)
Volume number (if in a set)
Name of publisher
City of publication
Number of the edition (when not the first)
Pages read
Library where found and call number

Only one side of card should be used.
Cards should be numbered consecutively at the top of each card.
Use a separate card for each reference.

Example: Bibliography card

</tr>
<tr>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EACH NOTE CARD SHOULD INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING:

All notes should be taken in ink. Pencil soon smudges and becomes illegible.

Topic should be placed at the top of card.

EACH NOTE CARD SHOULD INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING: (Con't.)

Record of the author of the work consulted should be made at the top of the card with the corresponding number of the bibliography card.
The important facts and ideas should be thought through and notes taken.
As you research you will find references to other sources. Make a "to read" card, one for each source, and note all the bibliographical data available. On the top of this card write "to read" in large letters in pencil. Once source has been read and notes taken erase this notation.

Constitutions, standard abbreviations, abbreviations of your own invention, and mathematical signs should be used freely.

Only facts and ideas, not the author's words, should be jotted down unless quotation marks are used. Be careful not to change a writer's meaning.

Occasionally you may want to quote a particular passage directly. Quotation marks should be used. See book illustration.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Filmstrips
Reference books
Textbooks
Films
Radio and television programs
Transparencies of paragraphs

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Divide class into groups. Let each group, using copies of the same book, read the same paragraph. Let different students tell, in their own words, the main idea in the paragraph. Gradually lengthen reading to a page, two pages, then a chapter, having students list main ideas.

Have students take accurate, helpful notes using three sources and then give report using notes.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Let some students try to locate the material represented by the notes other students have taken.

After notes have been taken on a chapter the teacher asks questions on the main facts to check accuracy of note-taking.

Have students take notes in class while teacher supervises and corrects. Students may compare notes and select the best.

Divide class into groups. Ask each person in each group to listen to a particular radio or television program (special report or newscast) and take careful notes. The group will then get together in class, combine their notes and report to the class on what was said on the program. Class movies may also be used for this exercise.

Give students many opportunities to take notes from individual or group reports.
"Millions have rejected Communism. The reasons that these millions have fled Communism are a ringing indictment of its failures. In some cases, the reason was the low standard of living. In others, it was the lack of opportunity. Some people could not stand the restrictions on where and how they were to earn their living. Some left so that they could worship freely in accordance with their religious beliefs. With still others, it was to regain the right to think, act, and express themselves freely. Many objected to having the State rear and educate their children. Millions have fled from cruelties and inequities they experience under Communism."

It is impossible to select any specific date as the beginning of the modern Socialist movement. Even the French Revolution did not give rise to a fully developed Socialist movement. However, it did lay the groundwork for the long drawn-out struggles which were to erupt in Europe during the Nineteenth Century. In this sense, the French Revolution in 1789 may be said to mark the beginning of modern Socialism.

1. Beginning Socialism - no specific date

2. There was no specific date for beginning of French Revolution.

3. French Revolution laid the ground work for long drawn-out social

4. French Revolution did not give rise to a fully developed Socialist movement.

(Notes: 1. Beginning Socialism - no specific date 2. There was no specific date for beginning of French Revolution. 3. French Revolution laid the ground work for long drawn-out social struggle. 4. French Revolution did not give rise to a fully developed Socialist movement.)
OUTLINING

GOALS

Students learn to communicate more effectively by organizing material logically and compactly before composing a report or theme.

They use the correct forms of outlining.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

For most writing or reporting, a plan is needed to show where one is headed and how one expects to get there. This plan is called an outline. The outline is the skeleton or framework of the "body" of the paper, report or such. The outline precedes the paper.

SUGGESTED PROCEDURE:

1. List ideas you plan to use on paper. You might use topics you have listed on note cards.
2. Group related ideas under headings. This is to develop plan into a few large divisions.
3. Arrange in proper sequence (according to time or order of importance).

TYPES:

Horizontal: This type of organization is called an idea line by one authority. It is a horizontal line separated by vertical lines into sections. The major ideas are placed at the top of each section; the minor ideas under each related major topic.

Vertical: Topic—one in which the various items are only topics, not complete sentences. Use simple language and make the meaning clear. Do not try to get every single idea into the outline. No punctuation is used after topics.

Sentence—ideas expressed in complete sentences and punctuated in conventional manner. Sentences and topics are not combined in the same outline.

RULES FOR FORM IN MAKING OUTLINES:

Place the title above the outline.

Use Roman numerals for the main topics. Subtopics are given capital letters, then Arabic numerals, then small letters, then Arabic numerals in parentheses, etc.

There must always be, under any topic, more than one subtopic. (If you have a 1., you must have a 2. If there is none, combine the information you wanted to put in 1. into the main topic above it.)

A subtopic must be closely related to topic above it.

Indent subtopics.

Begin each topic with a capital letter.

Example of topic outline:

I. Life history of a termite
   A. Relation to other insects
   B. The subterranean, and the dry and damp wood termite
   C. The cycle of its life

II. Distribution throughout the world
   A. Termites in the United States
      1. Distribution
      2. Food
   B. Interesting termites in other countries

Example of sentence outline:

I. The termite, erroneously called the white ant, lives a highly socialized life, the purpose of which is eating.
   A. The nearest relative of the termite is the cockroach, the nearness being a matter of several million years.
   B. Termites fall into two main classes: The subterranean termite and the dry or damp wood termite.
   C. From an egg, termites hatch into soldiers, workers, or reproductive adults, each type with its predestined work.

II. Termites are to be found in almost every part of the world.
   A. There are fifty-four species in the United States.
      1. Termites are found in all the states except two.
      2. American termites eat deadwood tissue and convert it to soil.
   B. There are many interesting termites in other countries.

Transparencies Illustrating Outline forms
Textbooks and Reference books

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Give students many experiences in outlining chapters.

Have students outline all reports, oral or written.

Have students read paragraphs and select main topics and subtopics.

Use the following activity:
A piece of poster board is cut with slits to fit strips of cardboard. These strips are all of equal length. On each strip, one sentence of the outline is lettered. The strips are presented to the class in a scrambled form. Students select the main statements and subordinate statements, place them in the proper order, fitting them into the slits. The following sketch illustrates the correct outline.

I. The New England Indians taught the English many facts about food.
   A. The Indians taught the Settlers how to hunt and fish.
      1. They had lessons in trapping animals.
      2. The White Men learned the best place to fish.
   B. Indians also taught the Pilgrims about squash, pumpkin and corn.
      1. They learned how to dry pumpkin for winter use.
      2. They learned how to grind corn.
MAKING BIBLIOGRAPHIES

GOALS

Students record in an orderly manner the references consulted during research.

Differences of form in recording various types of references is recognized.

DEFINITION

A bibliography is a selected list of writings related to a given subject, an alphabetical listing of sources consulted during research. It is placed at the end of the research paper.

FORM

There are several acceptable methods of arranging the items in a bibliographic entry. The examples listed below are arranged according to one method.

Examples of entries for books: List author (last name first), title of book (underlined), place of publication, publisher, and date. If only part of a book was used (a chapter or a few pages), add the page reference. Add state when needed to identify city.

For a book by one author:

For a book by one author followed by another book by the same author:

For a book by two authors:

FORM (Con't.)
(Note: If the authors are too numerous to mention, the name of only the first may be listed, plus "and others.")

For a book with no author's name:

For a book that is edited:

For a book in a series:

Examples of entries for magazine articles: List author (if known), title of article (enclosed in quotation marks), name of the magazine (underlined), volume, page, and date.

For a signed magazine article:

For an unsigned magazine article:

Examples of entries for encyclopedia articles: List author (if given), subject or title of article (enclosed in quotation marks), name of encyclopedia (underlined), edition, volume, and pages.

For a signed encyclopedia article:

For an unsigned encyclopedia article:

BOOKS

Lipson, Shirley and Abrams, Anne W., The Style Manual, Columbus, Ohio, Ohio State University, 1965. Order from: Publication Office, Ohio State University, 242 W. 18th Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, 43210. Price: $.25.

FILMSTRIPS

Using the Library for Research, Essential Education, Huntsville, Texas, $6.00 color.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Have students select subjects, such as hobbies, sports, holidays, countries or cities, and make a bibliography including as many different types of sources as possible.

Have students compile a bibliography of the works of their favorite authors.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Divide the class into groups of five and have each group choose a topic currently being studied in a class. Each group will then make a bibliography, with one person using each of the following sources:

(a) Card Catalog
(b) Reference books other than encyclopedias
(c) Encyclopedias
(d) Pamphlet file
(e) Reader's Guide

Each entry should be recorded on a 3x5 index card so that the chairman of each group could easily make a complete bibliography.

Give each student a magazine or a pamphlet and ask him to record an entry in the proper form.

Encourage students to make a habit of keeping a bibliography during any research.

Make a colored poster illustrating each type of reference, using a different color for each reference type.

Make a transparency for each reference type.

Give class jumbled references and have them arrange them in the right order. For example:

The Encyclopedia Britannica, vol. 11, has an article entitled "Horns" from page 749 to 751. This is the 1957 edition published by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc. in Chicago.
ARRANGEMENT OF LIBRARY BOOKS

GOALS

Students develop an understanding of a library's system of arranging books.

They learn to use libraries confidently.

They exhibit independence in locating books.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

TWO MAIN CLASSES OF BOOKS: Fiction and Non-Fiction

ARRANGEMENT OF FICTION—alphabetically by author

ARRANGEMENT OF NON-FICTION:

Dewey Decimal System of Classification
Library of Congress System of Classification

MEANING OF "CALL NUMBERS"

SYMBOLS USED:

E - Easy books
B - Individual biography
SC - Story collection
R - Special reference collection
F - Fiction
Other symbols—F - Faculty collection
S - South Carolina collection

ARRANGEMENT OF CALL NUMBERS—numerically by classification number and alphabetically by first letter of author's last name

SHELF LABELS—assist in locating books

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Flash cards
Large printed diagrams
English textbook
Using the Library, (filmstrip), Encyclopedia Britannica Films, Wilmette, Illinois
SUGGESTED MATERIALS (Con't.)

Transparencies and printed originals
   Library Science: The Dewey Decimal System, (printed original), 3-M Company, St. Paul, Minnesota, Cat. No. 150.

Spines from book jackets

Study Prints

Library collections

Stencils

Short strips

Tape recordings
   Dewey Decimal System of Classification, Charles Burke, Westport,
   Connecticut, 15 minutes, $7.00.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Scramble list of classification numbers and fiction authors and titles and have class put them in order. (See Practice Exercise on page 92.)

Spell words used in instruction.

Have an "author and title" response to roll call, giving classification number.

Copy a list of fiction books with no alphabetical arrangement on board and ask students to rewrite it in order in which they would be shelved.

Assign call numbers to list of descriptive non-fiction titles and/or to spines of book jackets.

Arrange these correctly.

Have students draw a diagram of the library showing where various kinds of books are.

Have a classification table duplicated and give a copy to each student.
   (See page 90.)

Ask different students what they would like to know about the arrangement of library books. Show the filmstrips and ask each to look for the information he needs to answer his question.

Show examples of what you are demonstrating by use of transparencies.
   Cut strips of colored construction paper to resemble book spines.
   Letter each with a call number. Let half the class hold these and arrange themselves in the right order in front of the class.
   The other students correct errors.
HOW THE BOOKS IN A LIBRARY ARE CLASSIFIED

FICTION IS ARRANGED ALPHABETICALLY BY AUTHORS.

NON-FICTION IS ARRANGED NUMERICALLY, EACH SUBJECT BEING ASSIGNED A DIFFERENT NUMBER. THE TEN CLASSES OF NUMBERS ARE AS FOLLOWS:

000-099 GENERAL WORKS: This includes 020 for books on library work, 030 for Encyclopedias, etc.

100-199 PHILOSOPHY, PSYCHOLOGY (Personal problems): This includes 137 Personality, 170 Behavior, etc.

200-299 RELIGION: In this class 220 is the number for the Bible and 290 is the number used for books of Mythology, etc.

300-399 SOCIAL SCIENCES: In this class 330 is the number for books on Economics, 353 for books on Government, 395 for Etiquette, 398 for Folklore and Fairy Tales, etc.

400-499 LANGUAGE: This includes 420 for English language dictionaries and grammar books and 440 for French textbooks, etc.

500-599 PURE SCIENCE: In this class is 500 for books on General Science, 510 Mathematics, 520 Astronomy, 540 Chemistry, 570 Biology, 590 Animals, etc.

600-699 APPLIED SCIENCE: This includes 608 for books on Inventions, 621.3 for Radio and Television, 629.1 for Aviation, 640 for Home Economics, 646 for Clothing, and 680 for Manual Training, etc.

700-799 FINE ARTS: This includes 730 for Sculpture, 770 for Photography, 778 Motion Pictures, 780 Music, 790 Amusements and Sports, etc.

800-899 LITERATURE: This includes 811 American Poetry, 821 English Poetry, 822 English Drama, etc.

900-999 HISTORY, TRAVEL, BIOGRAPHY: In this class is 917 for geography and travel in the United States, 914 Europe, 918 South America, 920 Collective Biography, 930 Ancient History, 942 English History, 944 French History, 970.1 History of American Indians, 973 United States History, etc.
LIBRARY OF CONGRESS SYSTEM USED IN LARGE UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

A  General Works

R  Medicine

(A complete outline of the Library of Congress Classification is available in the Professional Library.)
PRACTICE EXERCISE

Cut card board into 3" x 12" pieces and print each of the following Dewey classification numbers on one piece. Jumble the cards and give one to each student, in half of the class, who will in turn place himself in the correct position in line. The rest of the class checks for any errors.

These classification numbers may also be given to a class in mixed order and students may be given the experience of writing them in correct order.

AUTHOR NAMES

Write your first, middle and last name:

Some day you may be an author.

In the library card catalog your name will look like this:

Write these authors’ names with the last name first.

Don't forget the comma.

Circle the author letter.

Marion Renick
Robert Lawson
Laura Ingalls Wilder
Walter Brooks
Lois Lenski
Beverly Cleary
Marguerite Henry
Margaret Wise Brown
Robert McClung
Clarence W. Anderson
Hugh Lofting

ARRANGING A LIST OF FICTION BOOKS

Fiction is arranged on the shelf in alphabetical order by the author's last name.

Underline the author's last name.

Arrange the book titles in alphabetical order by the author's last name.

Middle Sister by Miriam Mason
Here Comes Kristie by Emma Brock
Twig by Elizabeth Orton Jones
Mary Poppins by P. L. Travers
Coal Camp Girl by Lois Lenski
Call It Courage by Armstrong Sperry
The Long Winter by Laura Ingalls Wilder
Katie John by Mary Calhoun
Blaze and the Gypsies by C. W. Anderson
Matchlock Gun by Walter Edmonds
ARRANGEMENT OF NON-FICTION BOOKS

Non-fiction books have numbers on the spine.

Arrange these numbers on the make-believe books as they are arranged on the shelf in our library.

550 530 590 510 500
520 598 560 580 570

Arrange the books on the science shelf below.

M N W B Z
500 580 530 520 590
J M A F S
Find on your library shelves any three books numbered alike (641, 595, 821, 750, or 930) and write their titles here:

a.

c.

Now examine the titles and if necessary the table of contents of the books to determine what they are about and indicate here what the general subject of all three is:

List here five particular class numbers which you will memorize because it is likely that you will use them frequently:

<thead>
<tr>

GOALS

Students learn the use of the library's index, the card catalog.

They develop facility in locating information through the use of the card catalog.

The different kinds of cards in the card catalog are recognized.

They understand the meaning of all printing on catalog cards.

GUIDE CARDS

ALPHABETICAL ARRANGEMENT OF CARDS

THE THREE KINDS OF CARDS: author, title and subject

1. Author card - Author's name is on the first line with the last name written first

2. Title card - Title of the book is on the first line; only the first word and proper names are capitalized

3. Subject card - Subject headings are on the first line with all letters in upper case

INFORMATION ON CARDS:

1. Call number (Discuss in detail)

2. Author (Include joint author and illustrator)

3. Title

4. Publisher

5. Date of publication (Stress importance of noting recency of dates especially in such areas as science and history)

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Alphabetize lists of words

Review "index" as used in Language Arts textbooks.

Purchase enough sets of H. W. Wilson printed catalog cards of the same title so that each child in a class may use one. Explain each card in the set, (A good title to purchase is Duvoisin, And There Was America, because it has an author card, title card and two subject cards which require a cross reference card).

Have pupils make an author card, a title card, and subject cards for one of their textbooks.

Pass out card catalog trays for students to examine and study.

Let students (in small groups) select book jackets of books they'd like to read, look in the card catalog to find where to locate the books and then find the books on the shelves. (A variation of this may be used as relay teams).

Study subject headings in the tracing on catalog cards and note their relationship to the title.

Encourage teachers to follow-up library instructions in the use of the card catalog by providing experiences in alphabetizing and numerical sequence.

Encourage teachers to direct students to the card catalog often for assignments and to find information on personal interests.
The card catalog practice exercise

In the card catalog pictured above, in which drawer would you find the following? (Give the number of the drawer)

Tell also what kind of card it is by writing "S C" for subject cards; "T C" for title cards; and "A C" for author cards.

SAMPLE TEST

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT USING THE CARD CATALOG?

Instructions: Read the directions on the test sheet carefully, and follow them exactly. For each test question, mark your choice for the correct answer on the answer sheet only. Place an X before the letter which is the same as the one appearing before the best answer to the question on the test sheet. There is only one correct answer for each question.

Question

1. The main purpose of the call number is to
   A. call for the book
   B. tell where the book belongs in the library
   C. provide a code number for the librarian
   D. tell when the book is out

2. Books of fiction are arranged alphabetically on the shelves according to
   A. title
   B. color
   C. author
   D. size

3. Biographies are shelved alphabetically according to
   A. title
   B. person written about
   C. author
   D. size

4. The classification number on a book is the symbol of
   A. the subject
   B. the title
   C. the price
   D. the author
   E. the grade

5. To look up a book call The Story of Men, Ants and Elephants in the card catalog, look under
   A. The
   B. Story
   C. Men
   D. Ants
   E. Elephants

6. The card catalog gives 925 as the call number for Microbe Hunters. The D
   "D" in this number stands for the first letter of
   A. the publisher
   B. the subject
   C. the author's last name
   D. the type of literature
HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT USING THE CARD CATALOG? (Con't.)

7. If a catalog card has the top line printed in capital (or red) letters, that means the book is
   A. about that subject
   B. by that person
   C. known by that title
   D. published by that company

Directions: Questions 8 through 12. The next five questions have call numbers of five books. In what order would you find them on a library shelf? Work out the answers for the whole group together: mark the "A" answer for the one which would come first on the shelf, the "B" for the next and the "C" for the next, and so on.

Directions: Questions 13 through 15. Answer the following three questions from the sample catalog card:

591.5 WHALES
A Andrews, Roy Chapman 1884 -
All about whales. Random House 1954

13. This card represents
   A. an author card
   B. a subject card
   C. a title card
   D. a book about Random House

14. The book was published in
   A. 591.5
   B. 1884
   C. 1954
   D. date is not given
15. The title of the book is:
   A. Whales
   B. Andrews, Roy Chapman
   C. All about Whales
   D. Random House

16. To find everything the library has about Christmas, look under:
   A. CHRISTMAS
   B. HOLIDAYS
   C. CHRISTMAS STORIES
   D. all of these headings

17. To find a biography of Lewis Carroll, look under:
   A. Lewis
   B. CARROLL
   C. Carroll
   D. BIOGRAPHY

DEVELOPING PERSONAL LIBRARIES

GOALS

Students understand the value of owning books.
They begin to develop personal libraries.
They show discrimination in the choice of books.

ADVANTAGES OF PERSONAL BOOK COLLECTION
For ready reference for information
For easy access to best loved books for re-reading
For much information on hobbies or special interests
For a collection of beautiful books which are always treasured

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING BOOKS FOR OWNERSHIP (This should be worked out by the class.) Examples:
Evaluation of books
Durable, attractive format
Illustrations which interpret the text
For informational books—content which covers the subject, is clearly written, and authoritative.
For books of fiction—content which exhibits good literary style and a plot which holds the interest
Criteria for ownership
Before purchasing a book, it is good to examine or read it.
Select books that you wish to read and reread.
Buy books on a variety of subjects and ones that will stimulate you to read others.
Your library should reflect your personality and interests.

BOOK SELECTION TOOLS: (Copies in professional library)

Elementary School Library Collection, edited by Mary Gaver, Bro-Dart, Newark, New Jersey, 1967.
Lists of books for South Carolina Elementary and High School Libraries issued by the South Carolina State Department of Education.
National Council of Teachers of English book lists

Book reviewing periodicals:

Booklist
Horn Book
School Library Journal
Bulletin of the Center of Children's Book
Saturday Review
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

EXPLANATION OF EDITION SUCH AS LIMITED AND DELUXE

BASIC REFERENCE COLLECTION FOR HOME LIBRARY
- Bible (preferably with a dictionary and concordance)
- Dictionary (a good high school or college dictionary, good to have thumb index)
- An encyclopedia (There are several recommended one-volume encyclopedias.)
- An up-to-date almanac—such as World Almanac, Information Please, or Reader's Digest Almanac (These are published yearly to give up-to-date statistics.)
- World Atlas
- Book of quotations
- A collection of poetry
- Book of etiquette
- Home medical book
- Encyclopedia of World History
- Complete works of William Shakespeare

SOURCES OF PURCHASE FOR FICTION AND SPECIALIZED READING ON OWN INTERESTS
- Book Clubs: Junior Literary Guild, Teen Age Book Club, Heritage Book Club: Young Readers of America
- Local Bookstores

PAPERBACK BOOKS
- Pocket Books, Inc., 1 West 39 Street, New York, New York, 10018.
- Readers' Choice, 33 West 42nd Street, New York 36, New York.

MIMEOGRAPHED LIST OF BASIC REFERENCE COLLECTION FOR HOME LIBRARY

SAMPLES OF REFERENCE BOOKS FROM THE LIBRARY

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Examination of book reviews in periodicals and book selection tools

Student development of criteria for selecting books

Display of some unusual books

Ordering of paperback books by students

Talks given by students about books they own

Visit to local bookstore

A local author invited to talk to class

A bulletin board display on personal libraries

Talk by librarian on how to select books
GOALS

Students develop an understanding of the type of information contained in yearbooks.

They acquire the skill of using yearbooks.

SOUTH AMERICAN HANDBOOK
Scope
A guide to the countries and resources of Latin American, inclusive of South and Central America, Mexico, and Cuba.
Arrangement
Alphabetical by country
Index in front

SOUTH CAROLINA LEGISLATIVE MANUAL
Scope
Biographies of members; rules and committees; special legislative data; classified information covering all government departments, state, local, and federal including a history of the state house and symbols.
Arrangement
Topical
Index near the back

WORLD ALMANAC
Scope
Factual information of world today
Statistics on current events
Historical facts, dates, statistics
Prominent people
Sports records
Abridged zip code list
Major events of preceding year
Arrangement
Published annually in January
Contents and index in front

STATESMAN'S YEARBOOK
Scope
Concise, reliable manual of descriptive, statistical information about the governments of the world.
Arrangement
Published annually (English) in August
British Empire first United States second
All other countries follow alphabetically

Statistical information
Supplement to Encyclopedias
Arrangement
Alphabetically arranged

INFORMATION PLEASE ALMANAC
Scope
Basic reference and history emphasizing highlights of the year
Arrangement
Published annually in November

READER'S DIGEST ALMANAC AND YEARBOOK
Scope
An illustrated yearbook including statistics and highlighting developments in the United States and the world, and covering such subjects as outer space, United Nations, science, medicine and prizes.
Arrangement
First published in 1966
Table of Contents in the front
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

SCIENCE YEAR: THE WORLD BOOK SCIENCE ANNUAL

Scope
The annuals consist of signed articles by experts describing the latest achievements in science and technology, with pertinent bibliographies.

Arrangement
Published annually (First published in 1965)
Second section—brief articles, alphabetically arranged by subject.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Back issues and current copies of yearbooks for examination and use in classroom.

Comprehensive test on type of information in each yearbook.

Transparencies

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Give a test asking "Which reference book contains the following information" and listing the various types found in the yearbooks.

Let students work in groups to answer a set of questions whose answers are found in the yearbooks. Have them indicate briefly the source of the answer.

Have groups locate yearbooks in library and examine them. (Each group has one person give a report)

Make statistical charts and graphs using yearbooks as reference.

Show filmstrip Almanac and Yearbooks, with follow up class discussion and/or test.

Explain the yearbooks while using transparencies with overhead projector.

Divide the class into groups and have each group study one yearbook and develop a tape recording describing the content and use of the book. The tapes may be used for individual or group listening.

A video tape may be made of these reports and used in other classes.

Have students give brief description of each yearbook, scope of material, and arrangement. Use chart form on page 127.
PERIODICAL INDEXES

GOALS

Students locate current information in periodicals efficiently.

They become acquainted with the valuable reference material in periodicals.

They understand the meaning of the information given in the periodical index.

DEFINITION OF "PERIODICAL"

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ABRIDGED READERS' GUIDE TO PERIODICAL LITERATURE AND THE READERS' GUIDE TO PERIODICAL LITERATURE

"INDEX TO CHILDREN'S MAGAZINES"—often used in elementary schools

LIST OF MAGAZINES INDEXED: KEY TO ABBREVIATIONS USED

EXPLANATION OF ITEMS IN A PERIODICAL INDEX REFERENCE

CROSS REFERENCES

CUMULATIVE PLAN OF PUBLICATION

POLICY IN YOUR LIBRARY CONCERNING USE OF PERIODICALS

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

DISCARDED COPIES OF READERS' GUIDE

PAMPHLETS FROM THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY CONTAINING SAMPLE SHEETS (one for each one in class) These will be supplied by the librarian.

PERIODICALS AND READERS' GUIDE TAPE RECORDING, 15 minutes, Charles Burke, Box 47, Westport, Connecticut, $7.00.

FLASH CARDS

FILMSTRIPS FROM LIBRARY

TRANSPARENCIES
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

HAVE STUDENTS:

Make cards containing entries.

Spell words used in the lesson.

Find articles on assigned subjects.

Locate portraits of people.

Locate pictures on assigned subjects.

Give short talk on the use of the Index.

Evaluate material on the same subject in two periodicals.

Using the correct form, write the reference for an article in a periodical as it would appear in the Index.

Select from a number of topics the key-word in each to be consulted in the Index.

Identify the following abbreviations:

D, Je, il, por, pop, sci, rev, tabs, Jy

Find the address of one of the listed periodicals and subscription price.

Make a list of the magazines in your library which are indexed in the Readers' Guide. Give their abbreviations.

Explain all items in a subject entry.
ATLASES, GAZETEERS, MAPS, AND GLOBES

GOALS

Students become familiar with reference books which supply geographic information.

They build a geographic vocabulary.

They learn how to find information from maps and globes.

They develop concepts of scale, time zones, direction, map orientation, symbolization, and projection.

ATLASES

Adams, James Truslow, Atlas of American History

Encyclopedia Britannica World Atlas

Goode's World Atlas

Rand McNally Classroom Atlas

Rand McNally Cosmopolitan World Atlas

Shepard, Historical Atlas

World Book Atlas

GAZETEERS

Columbia Lippincott Gazetteer of the World

New Century Cyclopedias of Names

Webster's Geographical Dictionary

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

DEFINITIONS

Atlas -- book of maps

Gazeteer -- information about any geographic name -- cities, countries, geographical features

SCOPE OF ATLASES

SCOPE OF ATLAS

Encyclopedia Britannica World Atlas--World distributions and world political geography, political-physical maps, geographical summaries, geographical comparisons, glossary, index to political-physical maps. Includes bibliographies.

Goode's World Atlas--Surface, climate, vegetation, soils, economic resources, trade means of communication, race languages and religions.

Rand McNally Classroom Atlas--Full colored up-to-date maps with up-to-date political information.

Rand McNally Cosmopolitan World Atlas--World political maps, natural resources, predominant economics, outstanding facts about all countries, world air distances tables, world steamship distances tables, principal discoveries and explorations, historical gazetteer, selected United States information table.

Shepard, Historical Atlas--covers world history from 2100 BC to 1955 AD.

World Book Atlas--Divided into eleven major parts with world travel guide. This volume contains physical, political and historical maps, star charts, railroad, highway and airline maps and some statistics for cities of the world of the United States and Canada. Designed to complement the World Book Encyclopedia and planned for student use.

SCOPE OF GAZETEERS

Columbia Lippincott Gazeteer of the World--An up-to-date geographical dictionary of the world, listing some 130,000 names of places and geographic features. Pronunciation and spellings are given, as well as much additional information such as population, location, altitude, trade, industry, natural resources, history, and cultural institutions.

New Century Cyclopedia of Names--Brief articles on over 100,000 names, including places, historical events, literary works, and characters, works of art, mythological and legendary persons and places, as well as biographical articles. Living persons are included in this useful work.

Webster's Geographical Dictionary--Includes more than 40,000 geographical proper names from Biblical times through ancient Greece and Rome, medieval Europe to the modern world. Also contains a table of foreign language equivalents of English geographical terms.

ARRANGEMENT:

For both world atlas and gazetteer, the general arrangement is:

- Atlas--Arranged by geographic division. Some atlases have a complete index; in others each map has its own index. It is important to teach the use of the indexes.
- Gazetteer--Arranged alphabetically by geographic names.

MAP AND GLOBE CONCEPTS

Primary Grades
The shape of the earth is round.
The world we live in is very large.
Land and water bodies vary in size and shape.
Physical and man-made features have names.
The earth rotates on its axis.
Day and night are caused by the rotation of the earth.
Legends are necessary in the interpretation of maps.
Symbols and colors are used on maps to give information.

Intermediate Grades
Legends and scale of miles may vary from map to map.
The globe map is distorted when transferred to a flat map.
There is an infinite number of hemispheres.
Parallels of latitude are a factor in climate.
The world is divided into time zones.
Different kinds of maps give different information—rainfall, population, climate, weather, transportation, etc.
Geography is concerned with man, the physical world, and the distribution of cities, mountains, rivers, oceans, etc.
Scale relates a distance on the ground to a distance on the map. It may be used to measure the distance between any two points on the earth's surface.
North-South lines and East-West lines (grid system) on the globe provides the means of locating places on the globe.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

FILMS
Maps are Fun, 2nd ed., Coronet, Chicago, 11 minutes, black and white $60.00, color $120.00, 1963.

Using Maps—Measuring Distance, Encyclopedia Britannica, Chicago, 11 minutes, black and white $60.00, color $120.00, 1962.

FILMSTRIPS
Learning to Use Maps, Encyclopedia Britannica, Chicago, Illinois, No. 8520, set of 6 films $30.00, each $6.00.
Reading Direction on Maps
Measuring Distances on Maps
Locating Places on Maps
Reading Physical Maps
Reading Political or Economic Maps
Studying An Area Through Maps
Introduction to Use of the Globe, Maps and Atlas, Library Filmstrip Center, Wichita, Kansas, 13 Minutes, $5.00 color.
Using the Globe, Museum Extension Service, New York, 37 fr, $5.00 color.
Gazetteer and Atlases, McGraw-Hill, New York, $7.00 color.
SUGGESTED MATERIALS (Con't.)

TRANSPARENCIES
The Language of Maps, Encyclopedia Britannica, Chicago, Illinois, $50.00, 4 units:
- Parallels and Medians
- Reading Topographic Symbols
- Identifying Cultural Features
- Mapping a Small Area
Regional Map Reading Series, Instructo, Paoli, Pennsylvania, No. 850-B, series of seven transparencies, $14.50.
Maps and Globes, Instructo, Paoli, Pennsylvania, No. 850-1, $3.95.
Outline Maps, Instructo, Paoli, Pennsylvania, No. 850-7 to 15, $10.95.

BOOKS
"Traces history of the globes and its relations to geology, geography, time, weather, forecasting, communications, and space exploration." -
Marsh, Susan, All About Maps and Map Making, New York, Random House, 1963, $1.95, (Gr. 5-7).
(Let's-read-and-find-out science book.) Introduces different kinds of maps and tells how to read and draw maps.
Tannenbaum, Beulah, Understanding Maps, Charting the Land, Sea, and Sky, New York, McGraw-Hill, 1957, $3.00, (Gr. 7-12).
"Discusses the need for maps, problems in map making and instruments and methods employed." -

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES
Use the globe to have students name and locate the major land masses of the northern hemisphere, the eastern hemisphere. After they have named and located Eurasia use the globe to find the latitudinal and longitudinal extent of this vast continent. Do this first in degrees, then use both scale and mathematical formula to convert to miles.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Cont'd.)

On a project map, draw with colored chalk the parallels of 35° to 70° North Latitude. Compare the areas in Europe and in North America bounded by these two lines. Draw in parallel 50° North Latitude. How many large cities in Canada are north of this line? In Europe?

Select a country in Europe that interests you most. Write your own geographical story about it, using the many facts you can learn from your maps.

Have pupils print the name of each European Nation on large desk outline maps of Europe. Determine how many European countries are smaller than Rhode Island? Are there any the size of California? Any larger than Alaska? The United States map will need to be on the same scale for this exercise.

Have students locate places they have found mentioned in the news. An outline world map may be drawn on the board and, during current events discussion, the names of places or countries may be added to the map.

Geographic terms should be part of every student's vocabulary. Encourage the development of such a specialized vocabulary list.

Suggested practice activities for developing skills in the use of geographic materials:
- Call our geographic names and have students locate them on maps in their desk atlases and find information about them in gazeteers.
- Let each student have a turn in calling out the name of a place. Each of the other students try to be the first to locate the place on a map.
- List geographic names on board and ask students to select one and locate it in four different books containing gazeteer information. Have them write a statement comparing the information given in each. This may be done during library periods.

Use highway maps on a class basis.

Draw a map from school to student's house.

Examine various kinds of maps and learn to choose the best map for the purpose.

Use maps and globes to explain the geographical setting of historical events.

Let students practice interpreting legends on different kinds of maps. Divide the class into two groups. Have each group work at finding distances between various cities. Make it a contest and see which group finishes first.

Have an activity involving time zones. E.g. If it is 3 P.M. in South Carolina, what time is it in Paris, France?
MAGAZINES AND NEWSPAPERS

GOALS

Students become knowledgeable about different kinds of magazines and newspapers.

Critical evaluative skills are practiced.

The reluctant readers use magazines as a bridge to more and better reading.

Departments and information in magazines and newspapers are located with ease.

Introduce magazines and newspapers available in the classroom and library, mentioning main interests covered in each.

Explain possible uses of periodicals in both classroom and library.

Review use of the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, calling attention to the fact that not all magazines are listed in Readers' Guide. (Or you may use Index to Children's Magazines.)

Show students the arrangement of current issues in the library, and how back issues are stored. Explain that college and public libraries have bound volumes of back issues or keep these on micro-film. The college paperback apart, the magazine is mainly paperback.

Explain how to locate leading articles, regular departments, editorials, and subscription information in both magazines and newspapers, by using table of contents and other guides. As a general guide, and editorial and news columns are usually at the front. Science fiction magazines, women's fiction magazines, and comic book magazines.

Stress proper handling of paper-backed materials.

Demonstrate how to use microfilm reader.

Explain routine for using material in library or for borrowing.

List types: Poplar and slick magazines, quality magazines, women's magazines, news magazines, magazines of criticism and opinion, picture magazines, fashion magazines, digest magazines, pulp fiction magazines, movie fan magazines, confession magazines, comic book magazines.

Describe skills needed to use magazines and newspapers: Location and use of indexes, placement of departments, reading skills needed such as skimming, critical reading, etc. See page 44 for Critical Reading teaching suggestions.
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

Review magazine and newspaper advertising. The majority of income is realized from advertising.

Discuss how news is gathered.

Investigate how news magazines and newspapers present news. Do they present all sides of a question? What bias do they have? Is total content well-balanced? Is the most space given to the most significant news?

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Different types of magazines and newspapers, both local and national, some from school sources, some brought by students from home.

Enough copies of back issues of Periodical Index for class to use.

Bound volumes of magazines, if available.

Cartridges or rolls of microfilm and microfilm reader.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Ask each student to list two or three of his favorite magazines and give reasons for his preference.

Have small groups of students examine different types of magazines, comparing format: such things as advertising, pictures, quality of paper, physical features, readability, and field of interest.

Let the whole class discuss the purpose of different types of magazines such as news magazines, fashion, story of activity, scientific, mechanical, or magazines of special appeal, such as home-making, automobile or travel, girl scouts, or crafts.

Ask each student to describe one magazine and tell briefly what he thinks is the special purpose of that magazine.

Ask each student to check off of a list the magazines he reads regularly.

Divide class into small groups and ask each group to study and compare one feature of a high quality magazine with a similar feature in an inferior magazine.

Let several students take turns in preparing signed bulletin board displays which give lists of articles they recommend to their fellow students.

Take a day now and then for in-class reading.
Encourage students to study advertisements critically. Advertising claims may be checked against other sources.

Cut out the cartoon on the editorial page of the same newspaper over a period of a month. Have the students analyze these to see if they reflect an editorial policy of the newspaper. They may also be asked to decide what knowledge is necessary on the part of the reader to get meaning from the cartoon.

Ask students to read those parts of the paper they do not ordinarily read. Do this for several consecutive days. Have them discuss this activity.

Compare the handling of some controversial story by two different newspapers or magazines. Try to determine why differences (if noted) existed. Consider the policies of the two papers, their geographic locations, etc. for possible explanations.

Ask students to bring with them from home an issue of the daily paper of the day before. Use this for practice in skimming to locate various parts of the paper or to locate specific parts within stories. This may also be used for analyzing the stories.

Select some important news story of a continuing nature, such as a bond issue, political race, or court case. Ask students to predict the outcome. Have them support their predictions.

Have students draw a cartoon on some topic of national interest with appropriate caption. These may be projected on the overhead projector for class evaluation.
GOALS

Students become acquainted with library sources of information about outstanding people.

Students develop facility in the use of these reference books.

LIST OF BOOKS USED

- Dictionary of American Biography
- Who's Who in America
- Who's Who
- Current Biography
- Twentieth Century Authors
- Junior Book of Authors; More Junior Authors
- American Authors: 1600-1900
- British Authors of the Nineteenth Century
- Webster's Biographical Dictionary
- British Authors before 1800
- American Authors and Books - 1460 to present day
- Cyclopedia of World Authors
- Great Authors of America
- Who's Who in the Theatre

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION.

- Scope
  - The teacher should emphasize the importance of understanding famous people and their contributions.

- Special features
  - Students should be encouraged to use reference books to gain knowledge about famous people.

- Arrangement
  - Students should be encouraged to use reference books to gain knowledge about famous people.
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

Differences in biographical books

Dictionary of American Biography - lives of Americans no longer living. Excellent bibliographies, no illustrations; alphabetically arranged. Supplements issued. Index volume is an analysis of other eleven volumes.

Who's Who In America - contains 32,000 life sketches of living people in America; new edition every two years. Information is very condensed; abbreviations used to save space; key to these abbreviations in front. Geographical index in front.

Who's Who - published annually; contains information about living men and women of prominence, especially English men and women. This presents mere facts.

Current Biography - issued monthly, with annual cumulations; interesting sketches of people prominent in news. In each annual volume there is an index of the sketches which have appeared since 1950. The index in the 1950 volume lists all the sketches published since 1940. Annual volume has classification by profession and a necrology for the year.

Twentieth Century Authors - contains biographies of 1850 authors of all countries, illustrated by more than 1700 portraits. Each biographical sketch is followed by list of principal works of the author. Alphabetically arranged. Pronunciation in index.

Junior Book of Authors - written especially for young people; contains about 250 biographies and portraits of authors and illustrators of children's books. More Junior Authors - Authors, 1933-63.

American Authors: 1600-1900 - A biographical dictionary of American literature. It contains biographies of authors of both major and minor significance who participated in the making of our literary history from the time of the first English settlement at Jamestown in 1607 to the close of the 19th century.

British Authors of the Nineteenth Century - contains readable accounts of the lives of major and minor British authors of the 19th century concerning whom students and amateurs of English literature are likely at any time to desire information.

Webster's Biographical Dictionary - a dictionary of names with pronunciations and concise biographies of noted men and women of all countries.

British Authors Before 1800 - contains biographies of some 650 authors, both major and minor significance, from the dawn of English literature.
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

Differences in biographical books (Con't.)

American Authors and Books - 1640 to the Present day
- Short biographies, facts and dates about American Literature.

Cyclopedia of World Authors - 1958
- Biographies of 753 world-famous authors, from Homer to James Gould Cozzens. Very good coverage.

Great Artists of America - 1963
- Life stories of 15 painters, tracing art from its beginnings to the present.

Who's Who in the Theatre - 1961
- An encyclopedia of the stage. This has been brought up to date, along with the theatrical obituary, and a listing of long runs in London and New York.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Biographical reference books borrowed from library

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Choose a famous person. Look up the name in all biographical books and give report on the kind and amount of information found in each.

Let two students work as a team and choose a biographical reference book to examine and report to the class. Have the following information located about each book: publisher, date of publication, scope, arrangement and special features.

The following form may be used:

GOALS

Students become aware of the basic themes underlying the social interaction of mankind.

They are able to interpret many literary allusions based on folklore.

They develop an appreciation of the culture, ideals, and customs of people in other countries.

They become aware of the universality of the human condition.

VARIOUS TYPES OF FOLKLORE

- Folk tales
- Myths
- Fables
- Legends
- Fairy Tales
- Folk Music
- Folk Dances

DEFINITIONS

Folklore in general--"all the customs, beliefs, and traditions that people have handed down orally from generation to generation." Included also are proverbs, riddles, wise sayings and superstitions.

Folk tales--a type of prose narrative, anonymous in origin, frequently with several versions, usually of ancient or medieval origin though there are some recent examples.

Myths--simple tales devised to explain natural phenomena which deal chiefly with the lives of gods and their relationships with men.

Fables--short folk tales, often about animals, which teach a lesson.

Legends--stories, originally in written form, often with some basis in fact, which expound the glories of a hero or a saint.

Fairy Tales--folk tales in which animals are given human characteristics, supernatural beings are depicted, and inanimate objects are personified.

Tall Tales--folk tales which exaggerate the qualities of the hero.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Suggest that the class draw a map and locate on it with illustrations the various folk heroes or legends.

Have each member of the class write a tall tale.

Have the class draw the constellations, name them, and learn something about the mythological figures.

Let each student write a story about the gods and goddesses.

Let each student study the life of a folk hero.

Suggest that students identify examples of metaphor, simile, and personification in the myths.

Let students devise figures of speech similar to the following, "She was the Venus of the party"; "His vanity is his Achilles heel."

Have students make a list of traits of the gods and goddesses and select their favorite.

Invite folk singers to perform for the class.

Let students learn folk dances and folk songs.

Suggest that some students find variations of the same fairy tale or folk tale in the collections of stories of different countries.
GOALS

Students develop skills in presenting factual materials.

They learn to present reports in a variety of ways.

They acquire the art of public speaking.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

IDENTIFYING PURPOSE

- What do I already know about the subject?
- What do I need to know?
- What subjects is it related to?
- What are probable subject headings I will use?
- How will I limit the subject?
- How long should I speak?

LOCATING MATERIALS

- Card Catalog
- Subject indexes, periodical index
- Magazines and newspapers
- Government agencies and museums
- Personal interviews
- Pamphlet file
- Filmstrip file
- Picture file
- Special reference books
- Transparency file

ORGANIZING MATERIAL

Note-taking, see page 74.
Outline, see page 80.
Preparing notes to use while presenting the report

HAVING VARIETY IN PRESENTATION

- Pictures, slides, or filmstrips
- Posters, charts, maps
- Dioramas, models, exhibits
- Puppets
- Transparencies
- Tape recordings
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

WORKING FOR MORE EFFECTIVE REPORTS

Use an introduction which catches the attention of your audience.
Stand still without shifting from side to side.
Control nervous habits with head or hands.
Have a strong conclusion which summarizes or drives home your main point.
Use clear and distinct speech.
Find new and interesting words.
Speak to your audience.
Make your display visible.
Explain your topic clearly.
Have your report well organized.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

How to Prepare a Class Report, (film), Coronet, Chicago, 1953, 10 minutes, b and w $60., color $120.

Using the Library to Improve Class Reports, (3 filmstrips), Guidance Filmstrips, Houston, Texas, color $18.

Tape recordings of speeches
TV programs featuring speeches
Collections of famous speeches

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Use recordings of speeches and have class identify effective qualities.
Develop a check list for evaluating oral reports.
Share best class reports with other groups.
Develop one topic in several different ways.
Tape-record the presentations and use tapes for self-evaluation.
Ask the class to listen to a certain TV speech which has been publicized and to evaluate it.
Have the class write various introductions for the same topic.
Have a video-tape made for evaluation purposes.

GOALS

Students become familiar with a wide range of reference sources in various fields.

They become adept at using these books effectively for specific purposes.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

The reference collection differs in each library. However, all libraries should have some of the standard titles in the groups of books listed below. As students need to use these books, they should be critically examined on the following basis using form on page 127.

- Publisher
- Date(s) of publication
- Scope
- Arrangement—Indexes
- Special features

SUBJECTS COVERED BY REFERENCE BOOKS TO BE EXAMINED:

- Annual events, see Almanacs and Yearbooks, page 112
- Mythology
- Parliamentary procedure
- Holidays
- Etiquette
- Foreign language dictionaries (where needed)
- General science
- Mathematics
- General nature study
- Stamp collecting
- Coin collecting
- Identification handbooks (Birds, butterflies, rocks, insects, trees, shells, fish, etc.)
- Family medical guide
- First aid and safety
- Art and artists
- Music and musicians
- Operas
- Sports encyclopedias
- Games
- Indexes to poetry, plays, short stories
- Collections of poetry
- Quotations
SUBJECTS COVERED BY REFERENCE BOOKS TO BE EXAMINED: (Con't.)

History of literature
Flags
World history
Biographies (See Biographical Reference Books, page 125.)
Atlases (See Atlases, Gazeteers, Maps, and Globes, page 117.)

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Copies of the books
Mimeographed completion tests on books studied

Introduction to General and Specialized Reference Books, (tape recording),
Charles Burke, Westport, Connecticut, 15 minutes, $7.00.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Most of these titles require only brief instruction which should be given when the class needs the type of information included in each book. A simple test which covers the scope of each book is the best way to be sure each student knows how to use it. The librarian will be glad to help make these tests. Students may work on these tests during their library periods along with other library activities.
GOALS

Students learn the steps in the preparation of a theme or written report.

They use the correct form for the finished product.

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION

IDENTIFICATION OF THE PURPOSE OF THE THEME OR REPORT

Analyze the questions:

What do I already know?
What do I want to know?

Classify the question:

What is it about?
What subject is it related to?

Consider subject area:

What are the probable subject headings?
How will I limit the subject?

LOCATING MATERIALS

Textbooks
Encyclopedias
Books located through use of card catalog
General reference books such as World Almanac
Periodical articles located through Reader's Guide Newspapers
Pamphlet file
Picture file
Filmstrips, films, records, tapes, transparencies, single concept films, microfilms Television
Maps
Charts
Museums
Business and industry
Community resource file

TAKING NOTES, see page 74.

WRITING THE PAPER

Follow outline:

Use notes, which are arranged in order of outline. Select all or part of notes.

Write rough draft, using dictionary or thesaurus.

Revise, considering variety in style.

Write finished product.

QUOTATION OF MATERIAL
Give credit for exact words used by enclosing them in quotation marks.
Use only when effective and necessary.

MAKING A FIRST DRAFT
Revise the tentative outline.
Allow space in margins and between lines for corrections and alterations.
Follow your outline and watch your continuity.

Footnotes
Use for:
- Every direct quotation
- Every opinion borrowed from another writer
- For controversial information
- For facts not generally known
- For every opinion borrowed from another writer

Be sure the material is written in your own words.
Reread and revise what you have written.

MAKING A FINAL DRAFT
Reread first draft.
Are grammar and punctuation accurate?
Did you follow your outline?
Are all sources fully credited?
Does it progress logically?
Copy, making needed corrections.
Choose title and record on first page.
Number every page after the first.
Proofread.

FOOTNOTES
Use same order as bibliographical entry except that author's name is not inverted.
Place an Arabic numeral immediately after and a little above the material referred to.
Place the same number before the footnote at the bottom of the page, also a little above the footnote.
Do not use periods after these numbers.
Sample form:

When you prepare a footnote for a source to which you have referred in the footnote just above, use "Ibid.," and page reference.
If you have referred to the source at some time previously, but not in the immediately preceding footnote, write "op. cit.," author's name and page reference.
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Cont’d.)

MAKING THE BIBLIOGRAPHY, see page 83.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Turabian, Kate L., A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Chicago, University of Chicago, 1955.

(This source seems to be used by more teachers than any other, and was used in this section of the Handbook.)

Writing A Report, (film), Coronet, Chicago, 11 minutes, black and white, $60.; color $120., 1962.

Finding Facts and Figures, (filmstrips), (Advanced English Series), Filmstrip House, New York, 32 fr, color $5.00.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

Divide the class into groups, all working on the same topic. Have each group evaluate the material available from one source, e.g., encyclopedias, pamphlet file, card catalog, Reader's Guide, etc. Duplicate the following two pages, distribute to students and discuss the form. In the final group activity, arrange the written analysis as a formal report.
CHAPTER I

GENERAL TEACHING METHODS

There is a flood of periodical material today on newer teaching practices, most of which is based on the premise that varying methods must be employed to meet varying student needs. Sixteen of these articles are summarized here. They are organized in the following manner:

1. Grouping within the classroom
2. Team teaching
3. Individual instruction
4. Methods suggested for specific areas
   - Social studies
   - Mathematics
   - Foreign languages
   - Science
   - Evaluation

Louise E. Hock discusses grouping within the classroom in her article, "What, Why and How of Classroom Grouping for Effective Learning," which is by far the most exhaustive and practical. She feels that grouping answers not only the "how" of teaching, but also the "what". Since teachers must group to teach particulars, these isolated particulars become the "lesson plan" for certain children. She states an important consideration in grouping. "Grouping, as I have tried to present it, brings into focus the ways in which teachers can show children their specific disability without feelings of inferiority."\(^1\)

\(^2\)Ibid., p. 421.
Morrison also feels this is important. In addition, he mentions the need to consider not only general but also specific differing abilities, to be sure that grouping is practical under present conditions, and to plan for more effective teaching as an outcome.\(^3\) To this Hock adds the objective of developing individuals capable of living and working with others.

Morrison lists four kinds of groups: special needs groups, small group work, interest groups, and self-chosen groups. Hock's designations are: buzz groups, job groups, and study-work committees. Both agree on the advisability of using many variations and combinations of these groupings and of making a practice of regrouping frequently for various activities.

Hock offers the following guides for grouping:

1. Group only when it is appropriate for certain types of teaching.
2. Make grouping methods appropriate for the age group.
3. A class must learn the grouping skill through planning, practice, and evaluation.
4. Plan a slow evolving of this skill.
5. The teacher's role consists of patient planning and guidance as she confers often with all groups.

Hock believes that "the teacher who uses groups and committees to further the education of her charges is placing the responsibility for learning where it primarily belongs—in the hands of the students."\(^4\)

These methods of classroom grouping are significant for the school library in the following ways:

OTHER LIBRARY SERVICES AVAILABLE TO STUDENTS

GOALS

Students become aware and develop some understanding of the services offered by libraries other than the school library.

Students are encouraged to take advantage of these services.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

Collection
This is the world's largest library with unlimited resources for research in a collection of over 54,000,000 items and many special collections. Legislative Reference Service serves as a major information and research center for congress. Library provides books in raised type and "talking books" records for the blind.

Services
Library of Congress will lend certain books to other libraries for use by people engaged in serious research but will lend only unusual books not available in local or regional libraries. Photoduplication of materials in the collection is available at a moderate cost.

SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

Collection
The board has a collection of materials which includes, exhibits of children's books, professional library literature, films on library service and books for interlibrary loan.

Services
The State Library Board will lend books to the individual by interlibrary loan through a request to the local public library. Other services include, grants-in aid, professional reference service, preparation of bibliographies, services to the blind, scholarships for graduate library training and the intern program.

COLLEGE LIBRARIES

Clemson University offers no services to elementary or high school students.

Furman University
In rare cases a high school student may use the Furman library for research on unusual subjects such as a topic of South Carolina history where material is limited and not available in any other area library. The student must present a signed request from the teacher making the assignment and the school librarian.
COLLEGE LIBRARIES (Con't.)
Bob Jones University
High school students may use the reference section as well as books from the stacks for advanced projects. These must be used in the university reading room and may not be checked out.

SPECIAL LIBRARIES
GREENVILLE TECHNICAL EDUCATION CENTER
Collection
The library has a collection of over 8000 volumes in the fields of technology and industry, technical journals and indexes.
Services
Students and adults may use the resources of the library. Materials may be checked out of the library only by students who are enrolled in the school. An individual may borrow material through the school librarian. Photoduplication of materials is provided for a small fee.

MEDICAL LIBRARY-GENERAL HOSPITAL
Collection
Contains medical and technical books and journals
Loans
The materials may be borrowed by doctors, internes, and nursing staff connected with the General Hospital.

FIBER INDUSTRIES
Collection
This small collection of 300 books, numerous periodicals and technical reports is available only to individuals connected with the industry.
Loans
Loans are not made to high school students.

GREENVILLE COUNTY LIBRARY
"The public school is responsible for education through planned instruction of the children, the young people, and the adults of the community; and for provision of the library materials and services required by the instructional program. The public library is responsible for contributing to personal enrichment and providing opportunity for self education beyond that provided by schools through the provision of library materials and services to all the people of the community including children and young people."
GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION AND DISCUSSION (Con't.)

GREENVILLE COUNTY LIBRARY (Con't.)

Cooperation between these two major community educational institutions is essential to the welfare of the community and must be activated by the institution most able at the time to proceed.1

Collection
The Greenville County library includes 189,575 books, a number of mounted pictures and a few Art reproductions.

Services
A Bookmobile Service on a county wide basis is provided for the various communities.
A Story Hour is provided weekly in the Children's reading room of the main library from September to May.
The Summer Reading Club is sponsored to encourage children's reading during the summer.
Movies - A new service initiated in March, 1968, provides free movies from September to May. The showing dates are listed in the cultural activities calendar distributed by the library. The titles are of general interest and are free to all age groups.
Music Listening hours are sometimes held and are announced at the Main Library through posters.
Lectures and Travelogues are presented by "Friends of the Library." The speakers usually include at least one author. The Travelogues which include slides may supplement social studies classes.
Book Programs for young people are planned periodically.
A monthly Cultural Activities Calendar is compiled by the library and is available on request.

Loans
Students may borrow an unlimited number of books from the Bookmobile, the main library, or any branch library. A limited number of mounted pictures may also be borrowed. Special requests for certain books or subjects may be filled by the Bookmobile.

SUGGESTED MATERIALS

Library of Congress Publications in Print
Revised annually, 37 pp. Extensive list of low priced bulletins on a variety of subjects of interest to upper elementary and secondary school teachers and students.

Some Facts About the Library of Congress, 6 pp., 1966
Size, number of publications, functions, and other information concerning the Library of Congress

1Prepared by NEA - ALA Joint Committee, October 30, 1967.
SUGGESTED MATERIALS (Con't.)

- The Library of Congress by Gene Gurney, 1966; also The United States Government.
- Shelves of Treasures (Tape Recording), Indiana University, Audio-Visual Center.
- Indiana School of the Sky, (The World at your Fingertips Series), Indiana University, Audio-Visual Center, Bloomington, Indiana, 12 minutes, 7 1/2 ips, $1.15 plus blank. Discusses the differences between libraries in the United States and in foreign countries; also the different cataloging systems used.
- Interlibrary Loan - The Library of Congress Reference Department, Loan Division, one sheet giving details of interlibrary loan.
- Annual Reports of the South Carolina State Library Board in sufficient number to allow a class to investigate the many and varied services of this agency.
- Cultural Activity Calendars, Greenville County Library - A date calendar of all activities for the current month.

SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES

- Secure the film, The Greatest Treasure, Prepared by the United States Information Agency, Washington, D. C. which is available for loan to schools and institutions.
- Compare Library of Congress Classification Schedule with Dewey Decimal Classification System for organization of materials.
- Arrange for a class to visit the library at the Greenville Technical Education Center.
- Compare or contrast, in brief essay form, the services of the Library of Congress and the State Library Board.
- Plan a class visit to a free movie at the Greenville Library.
SUGGESTED CLASS ACTIVITIES (Con't.)

Plan a class visit to a Travelogue sponsored by Friends of the Library. This might correlate with a social studies unit.

Arrange for primary classes to visit the Story Hour as a group.

Plan a program during May to stimulate interest in the Summer Reading Club. Contact Miss Mary Cox, Greenville County Library or your local school librarian for information on this project.
