The second of three syllabuses for a three-year Russian course designed for students in secondary school outlines general objectives of the program and lessons 16 through 30. The approach to the second year course emphasizes language development through the use of the dialogue, vocabulary expansion, and structure drills. Principal objectives include vocabulary acquisition of 700 to 900 words and 120 idioms and common expressions, emphasis on learning the imperfective aspect of Russian verbs, and cultural aspects of Russian life. For the companion documents see FL 002 206 and FL 002 208. (RF)

Means of Acquiring the Skills

Listening and Speaking

The basic activities during this stage are:

2. Dialogue adaption: practice with the phrases, idioms and sentences of the current basic dialogue and previously learned items of vocabulary and structure, allowing the student increasing freedom and control. Directed dialogue (the student, told to ask or answer a question or to make a statement, still using his basic material moves farther along toward the free use of new elements in combination with those already learned).

3. Structure drills: isolating certain speech patterns and drilling them by various techniques until the student has them under complete and automatic control. The following kinds of drills to be used: repetition, restatement, expansion.

4. The effectiveness of the memorization and drills activities described above is multiplied many times by the use of good recorded materials and language laboratory will be properly integrated with class procedure. These audio-lingual skills will be kept active all through the Russian language learning experience, for speech is the most essential aspect of living language.

Reading

From the beginning, the student will read only what he has already learned to understand and say. There are certain "rules" to be observed during this stage:
1. The student reads only what he has already learned through ears and tongue. This material he can read and understand without recourse to English equivalents. The student's early reading is carefully controlled; he can read directly in the foreign language without translating into English. Systematic translation from Russian into English is to be avoided as much as possible.

2. The material which has been read will be discussed. Reading comprehension will be exercised by repetition of most of the words of the question. The teacher asks (in the foreign language) and the student replies in full rather than minimal answers. Paraphrase—changing from the first person to the third person, from present to past, etc.

3. The text to be read should be suited to the intellectual maturity of the students.

4. Reading in class and extensive reading which will be assigned in class and the text should be analyzed and explained.

Authenticity of Reading Matter

In reading material students will learn the similarities as well as the significant differences between his culture and the Russian. The readings will also be chosen on the economic and social life of Russia. Some of this reading can be correlated with work in other classes, particularly art, music, and social science.

Writing

Russian writing will be started with the letters and letter elements. At the first stage the student will write only what he has already learned to understand, speak, and read. Secondly, the student learns straight copying of a Russian text. After this he learns dictations, guided composition on an assigned topic, and free composition.
Grammar

In grammar the students should be informed of the reasons why he can profit from an abstract statement and a generalization but teacher should avoid extremes: One is to give the rules instead of the language, and the other is to refuse the students any generalization.
Objectives for the Second Year Russian

1. To develop a basic vocabulary of 700-900 words and approximately 120 idioms and common expressions.

2. To improve conversation in Russian through oral reports in supplementary reading which would be done by the students individually.

3. Continuation of basic grammar with emphasis on the imperfective aspect of Russian verbs.

4. To develop ability to understand simple Russian sentences and to express themselves in different situations.

5. To write correctly dictations and short letters.

6. To increase knowledge of the life and customs of Russian people. Material will be given from the Russian history and from the Russian literature.
Materials to be used in the Second Year of Russian

8. Maxim Gorky - realist who served as a bridge between the old Russian culture and the new Soviet ideas.
The Textbook - Essentials of Russian by A. Gronicka and H. Bates-Yakobson

The textbook is divided into thirty lessons preceded by two introductory units which set for the Russian printed and written letters and give their approximate phonetic values. Each lesson is divided into seven closely interrelated parts:

I. Common Expressions and Idioms
II. Reading Exercise
III. Vocabulary
IV. Grammar
V. Questions
VI. Grammar Exercises
VII. Translation into Russian

The two introductory lessons contain a brief analysis of the Russian sound system.

The Reading Exercises

The Reading Exercises are the core around which each lesson is organized. They contain all the new grammar and vocabulary introduced in each lesson. A basic principle of the text is to introduce the student to all new material first in the context of the Reading Exercise; and only when it has been read and generally understood, have him turn to the explanation and systematic treatment of the material given in the grammar section and the vocabulary. The Reading Exercises are carefully graded and lead the student from the simple dialogue of the first lesson to selection from the works of N. Nekrassov and L. Tolstoi.

The Common Expressions

The common expressions and idioms should be memorized and applied in short conversations between students.
The Vocabulary

The vocabulary of any one lesson is repeated in subsequent ones.

The Grammar Sections

Grammar discussion develops out of the analysis of the Reading Exercise. The translation sentences from English into Russian also are taken from the Reading Exercise.
Russian Reader

The Russian reader is chosen for the students who know the most commonly used Russian words and the basic rules of grammar.

The lessons are arranged as follows:

First, there is a conversation (persons indicated by the numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4); the appropriate vocabulary follows; it is succeeded by a story based on the preceding conversation, with additional vocabulary as needed.

The purpose of this arrangement is to teach the students how to tie separate sentences into a story just as they have learned to tie words into a sentence. These stories also provide for repeating words given in the conversation. Finally, they offer reading material on simple everyday subjects, serving a need perhaps not heretofore adequately met.

A typical lesson procedure might be: at the beginning of the oral practice period students are assigned to recite the conversation and the story. While they are given three or five minutes for a quick review, the teacher asks the remainder of the class questions pertaining to the text, then calls for the assigned recitations; thereafter another student may ask similar questions.

The conversations and the stories have been short. The increase in their lengths from Lesson 1 to Lesson 33 is very gradual.
