A twelfth grade quinmester course designed to give the student an objective overview of the development of Communism vis-à-vis Americanism (Democracy) is outlined in this guide. The course focuses on what each way of life represents and their respective positions in world politics. Included are case studies in communist expansion, the communist involvement in the developing areas, and United States response to deter the spread of Communism. Strategies for coexistence of the two systems are explored, and student suggestions on ways to improve the quality of Americanism are encouraged. The guide itself is divided into a broad goals section, a content outline, objectives and learning activities, and materials for teacher and student. Learning activities are organized around the course goals, and include small and large group discussions, individual research projects, reports, and out-of-class projects. A variety of media are employed, including books and pamphlets, films and filmstrips. Related documents are: SO 002 708 through SO 002 718, SO 002 768 through SO 002 792, and SO 002 947 through SO 002 970. (Author/AWW)

DIVISION OF INSTRUCTION 1971
INTRODUCTION

This course of study was written as a part of a total effort to revise curriculum to fit the quinnmester administrative organization of schools. The materials and information in this guide are meant to be neither all-inclusive nor prescriptive; but rather, an aide to teachers as they plan instructional programs, taking into account student needs and characteristics, available resources, and other factors.

The major intent of this publication is to provide a broad framework of goals and objectives, content, teaching strategies, class activities, and materials all related to a described course of study. Teachers may then accept the model framework in total or draw ideas from it to incorporate into their lessons.

The guide is divided into 1) a broad goals section, 2) a content outline, 3) objectives and learning activities, and 4) materials. The first section provides descriptive and goal-oriented information for the teacher; "indicators of success" refers to suggested prerequisite or corequisite experiences. The content outline illustrates, in general terms, the scope and major subdivisions of the course. The objectives and learning activities section, hopefully, provides a total picture of the concept or main idea and specific behavioral objectives for a set of given learning activities. The materials section of the guide lists resources in four categories: essential textual or other material; alternate classroom materials to use in place of or in addition to the aforementioned; supplementary teacher resources; and supplementary student resources. The appendix may include other material appropriate for a specific course: e.g., pretests, readings, vocabulary, etc.

Anyone having recommendations relating to this publication is urged to write them down and send to: Social Studies Office, Room 306, Lindsey Hopkins, A-1.

| I. WHAT IS AMERICANISM? | The student will identify Americanism (Democracy) and what it represents to him personally. | 1. The class should begin with a discussion on what each student believes Americanism or Democracy represents. Some basic questions to be considered are suggested:
   a. What are some of the freedoms guaranteed by the United States Constitution?
   b. What examples of this freedom can you cite?
   c. What instances can you think of in which these freedoms were not honored?
   d. What can you do as a citizen to insure these freedoms?
   e. When does freedom become anarchy?
   f. What opportunities exist for you personally to contribute to the quality of Americanism?
2. Various students should describe life in the United States to other students who will ask questions from the standpoint of foreign youth, unfamiliar with the United States.
3. If a class set is available, students should read "Some Current American Domestic Concerns," in Democracy and Communism by Richard V. Allen, et. al., pp. 191-224. Discussion questions included.
4. Show the films in sequence America the Beautiful and Civil Rights Movement: Mississippi Summer Project. These are two very different views of the United States. What would be your reaction if you were an African or a citizen of one of the developing nations? How has this type of situation been exploited by the Communists? |

| III. HOW DID COMMUNISM DEVELOP IN THE USSR? | The student will gather data to show that historical, climatic and geographical factors have shaped Russian life and society. | 1. There are a number of films with which the teacher might introduce this topic. See resource material. For discussion purposes the filmstrip The Russian Revolution is excellent. Follow up:
   a. What features of Russian life under the Czars are still evident in Russia today?
   b. What were some of the major influences of the development of Russia?
  2. An excellent background survey of Russian history is to be found in Russia by Hyman Kublin, pp. 1-140. If a class set is available have the students read these chapters.
  3. Students should be encouraged to visit a Russian Orthodox Church and report to the class on the icons and architecture.
  4. To demonstrate the influence of climate on Russian history, ask a student to read excerpts from War and Peace, describing the Napoleonic invasion if Russia.
  5. Discuss the effects of famine, bitter winters, authoritarian governments, continual warfare, etc. on a nation's outlook. Ask: What, if any, is the relationship between the individuality and health of a nation and economic and social security?
  6. Have students research and report orally on Russian personalities such as Lenin, Pushkin, Herzen, Turgenev, Tolstoy, etc. Is there a Russian character? How would you describe it? |

What's an individual?
Absurd - no good.
'One man, even the most important of all',
can't lift a ten-yard log of wood,
to say nothing of a house ten stories tall.
A Party means millions of arms, brains, yes linked and acting together.
In a Party we'll rear our projects to the skies,
upholding and helping one another.
The Party's the compass, that keeps us on course
the backbone of the whole working class.
The Party embodies the morality of our cause,
our faith that will never fail, or pass.
Yesterday an underling,
Today, whole empires I'm uncharting
the brain, the strength;
The Glory of its class,
That's what it is,
our Party.
"PREDICTION" 1830

A year will come for Russia, a dark year
When Royalty no more his crown will wear,
The rabble who loved him once will forget,
For Blood and Death will richest feast be set;
The fallen law no more will shield the weak,
And maid and guiltless child in vain will seek
For justice. Plague will ride
Where stinking corpses fill the countryside,
And flapping rags from cottages demand
Help none can give, while Famine rules the land.
Dawn on they streams will shed a crimson light;
That day will be revealed the Man of Might Whom thou wilt know. And thou wilt understand Wherefore a naked blade is in his hand.
Bitter will be thy lot; tears flood thine eyes,
And he will laugh at all thy tears and sighs.

Lermontov
