A Unit of Study for Inner City School Children: A Team Teaching Approach to Teaching Reading Through Literature.

The purpose of this study was to develop a reading program that would allow for individual differences and that would attempt to develop in each child a desire to read and to improve his reading ability. Twenty-nine first-grade students and 30 third-grade students who were adjudged to be slow learners were selected from a school located in a deprived urban area. Children's objectives and teachers' objectives were written for the production of a play. A look-say beginning approach was used, involving basic skills from linguistics, language-experience, programmed series, words in color, and some elements from the kinesthetic approach. Follow-up activities in different areas of literature were proposed that would allow the students to practice skills acquired during the first six weeks of the unit. The contents of this unit of study include (1) objectives, (2) initiating activities, (3) developmental activities, and (4) culminating activities.

CHAPTER I

OVERVIEW

Objective

The object of this study was to develop a reading program that would allow for individual differences and develop in each child a desire to read and/or improve his reading ability. It was decided to produce and present a play as an immediate reward for the children and as a behavioral objective for the team, then follow up immediately with a different area of literature which would allow the children an opportunity to practice skills acquired during the first six weeks of the unit. Also, it would allow the team the opportunity to retest informally by observing and questioning for interest development, growth in oral language skills, and independent, individual or group work activities. The long-range objective was to develop programs that would inspire children to want to read and to improve their reading.

Environment

This study took place in an elementary school in a deprived area of North Philadelphia.
Pupils adjudged to be slow learners were chosen: twenty-nine from a first grade class and thirty from a third grade class.

Three teachers were involved: one teacher, female and black, with a M.A. in Reading and over fourteen years of classroom experience; one teacher, female and white, with a P.A. in Elementary Education and less than three years of classroom experience; and a student teacher, male, black, and a veteran. See appendix.

In the morning the first grade was taught by Elaine Carty and the third grade by Jeanette Quinn. In the afternoon the student teacher, Wesley Holmes, joined these two teachers for team teaching.
CHAPTER II

OBJECTIVES

Children's Objectives

1. To give a viable chance for children to speak clearly and develop oral skills.

2. To introduce in first grade the vocabulary and skills they will be needing in second and third grades.

3. To develop large and small group situations, thereby promoting harmonious group interaction.

4. To develop a student team teaching situation involving more capable students of either grade.

5. To develop an interest in recreational reading.

6. To work with literature and recreational reading in order to promote impromptu thinking.

7. To utilize creative dramatics in order to encourage free flow of expression in the delivery of the child's individual parts.

8. To develop a desire within the children to work with all teachers within the team, regardless of ethnic or religious backgrounds.

9. To help children become aware of the importance of their holidays and other people's holidays within their community.
10. To create a working relationship between school and society.

11. To open avenues for the promotion of silent reading skills.

Teachers' Objectives

1. To develop within the teacher the awareness of the different (religious) backgrounds of the children.

2. To develop the ability to listen to the social interaction of children as they proceed through the development of the six-week unit.

3. To move children up and into higher levels of achievement.

4. To evaluate the team after the unit is completed.

5. To discover if this procedure would be an improved method for the introduction and/or improvement of reading study skills.

6. To expose, introduce, and instruct newer teachers to the team teaching method in a realistic setting. This setting is quite different from university theory.

7. To increase our ability to differentiate between developmental and remedial readers.
CHAPTER III

INITIATING ACTIVITIES

Steps of Organization

Because of the numerous avenues open to the classroom teacher for beginning a unit of study, it was decided to initiate this unit for the team through the selection of the play and by pre-testing the children. See Chart 1. It was initiated for the children by actually reading the parts. This took approximately four days. After following this procedure, it was then determined that certain tasks needed to be performed.

1. Conducting of sensitivity sessions in order to divide duties among the team, such as capabilities and willingness to perform specific duties.

2. Grouping of levels, flexibly organized:
   a. Interest groups.
   b. Skills groups.
   c. Total class.
   d. Boys and girls.
   e. Art--Mr. Holmes
      Dance--Miss Quinn
      Elocution--Miss Carty.
Chart 1--Pre-test of Levels of Instruction Within Grades 1 and 3
3. The unit material was broken into subjects and lesson plans were formulated.

4. Resource people were called upon:
   - Mrs. Stumm—Librarian
   - Mrs. Anderson—Art
   - Mrs. Huskins—Secretary
   - Mrs. Funderburk—Aide
   - Mrs. Counter—Aide
   - Mrs. Schwartz—Music
   - Mrs. Sharkey—Speech

5. Notes were sent home to parents asking for help with the costumes.

6. Distribution of the parts to the children.

7. Rules of the teachers were decided upon.

8. Supplies were obtained.

9. Correlation of subjects for development of teacher’s plans.

   Correlation of Subject Matter

   Language Arts

   Reading:

   1. Children will read the words of the play, Songs, and poems. (See vocabulary list in Appendix.)

   2. Rhyming elements in the vocabulary will be stressed.

   3. Because of the many books involved in the unit, the children will become familiar with the table of contents and title pages.
The students, elves, will have opportunities to read many books on poetry during group work in the library corner. After reading and looking through these books they will share their favorite poems with the class.

Phonics:

1. Children will learn the names of the letters in the alphabet and their sounds.
2. The elements of phonics will be drawn from the content: poems, songs, and play.

English:

1. Speaking Clearly—elocution skills, choral speaking, diction.
2. Children will learn the new words and meanings introduced by the poems and play. See vocabulary in Appendix.

Spelling:

1. Spelling words will be drawn from the materials of the play, songs, and poems. See vocabulary in Appendix.

Handwriting:

1. The children will have exercises in handwriting—invitations, titles, writing poems, and thank-you notes.

Listening:
1. Listening skills will be developed as the children hear stories read or told by the librarian.

Speaking:
1. Discussion is a very important part of Language Arts and used throughout the entire unit. Many discussions about what we are learning and doing will take place.
2. Speaking skills will be developed.

Social Studies:
1. Many poems established important concepts in history for the children. Black history was stressed.
2. Many materials lend themselves to map study skills and the study of land formations.
3. Many of the materials involved every-day experiences of important social interaction.
4. Children were instructed on the cultures of people, their customs, traditions and other beliefs, whether different or the same.
5. Children were informed of their holidays and the traditions surrounding them.
6. Children experienced the use of the language of other people.

7. Children learn about different time periods in history.

Social Sciences:

1. By teaching about the culture of other people and then showing how it has integrated with the culture of the United States, the teacher is prompting a better understanding of a culture other than our own. This is very important in teaching children and teachers to get along with and understand other races and creeds.

Math:

1. Counting skills were used to instruct children to play the xylophone, to count lines of poetry, to count how many in a particular group, and count the months and put them in order.

2. Important math vocabulary concepts will be developed in the production of the play and poetry sessions—big-little, before-after-between, higher-lower, larger-smaller, young-old, fat-thin, taller-shorter.
3. Ordinal numerals will be taught and developed.
4. Measurement will be exercised through designing costumes in preparation for the play and designing displays to announce the play and poetry hour.

Physical Education:
1. Rhythmic exercises were used in preparation for dances in the play.
2. Drills and games were used to reinforce listening skills and following directions.

Health:
1. Many of the poems instructed the children in good health habits.
2. The children were directed to appreciate their environment and the factors affecting ecology.
3. They were also taught fire safety rules.

Science:
1. Children were instructed in the ways the change of seasons affect their lives—weather, animal life, plant life, and activities.
2. Children were guided through poetry to appreciate their environment and to find means to preserve it.
3. Lessons were prescribed on graffiti so they would begin to realize its destructive nature themselves.

Music:

1. Music was taught as an important art to man.
2. The difference between music and noise was illustrated.
3. Sounds of different instruments was taught.
4. The children were instructed to play the xylophone.
5. Music was used in the production of the play—for creative movement, rhythmic exercise, interpretive dancing, ballet, and songs.
6. Songs are poems put to music; songs were used in the poetry hour.

Art:

1. Elements of paper sculpture were used in order to illustrate specific poems.
2. Poems were illustrated on experience chart paper by individual children.
3. All the children illustrated their individual poetry work.
4. A frieze for the backdrop of the play was done.
5. Illustrations of poems were done on construction paper using different media—assorted chalk, water colors, tempera, and finger paint—to decorate the performance areas and to advertise the upcoming play and poetry hour.

6. Group work on collages. Still life was done abstractly to foster free expression.

7. Children used opportunities to decorate bulletin boards in preparation for the play and poetry hour.

8. Costumes were made for the play.

9. Props were made for the play and literature hour.
CHAPTER IV

DEVELOPMENTAL ACTIVITIES

The following organizational steps were seen as initiating activities for the teachers of the team and began by involving the team:

1. Making forms to fit the constant evaluation and appraisal of the unit, and grouping practices about to be embarked on.
2. Continuous evaluation of teacher's methods of dealing with the group.
3. Organizational meetings of the team as needed for team planning were developed during the hours of 12 - 12:50 p.m. and 3 - 4:30 p.m.
4. It was decided that team planning was needed for programming subject matter and re-evaluating group structure according to interest, skills and objectives, achievement, and activities.

Organizational Steps Before Presentation of the Play

1. Selection of appropriate children for the parts.
2. Check previous schedules of steps of organization.

3. Writing out masters for:
   a. play
   b. songs
   c. poems
   d. program

4. Practices were scheduled which enhanced regularly scheduled lessons.

5. Requests to principal for:
   a. materials
   b. setting up chairs for parents
   c. date and time to schedule program
   d. room number in which parents and team teachers could work on costumes
   e. when the gym was available for practices

6. Meeting with parents to schedule the making of costumes.

7. Notes to teachers in adjoining rooms:
   a. utilization of their rooms for team teaching
   b. arrangement of their rooms to house guests:
      (1) faculty
      (2) portal school
      (3) custodial staff
      (4) aides
      (5) parents
      (6) children

8. Contact librarian for:
   a. microphone
   b. record player
   c. tape recorder
   d. bibliography:
(1) children's
(2) teachers'
e. all audio visual aids

9. Programs were designed so that it was a constructive coloring lesson when children returned to their rooms after the play. See Appendix.

10. Notes were sent home and copies of the play to children who were not "Christian." See Appendix.

a. Black Jews
b. Muslims
c. Jehovah's Witnesses
d. Seventh Day Adventists

11. A classroom was designed as a stage:

a. tickets of admission were distributed
b. ushers were assigned to distribute programs
c. seating arrangements were diagrammed for classes and areas allocated for them and guests.

Organization for Poetry Hour

1. Select theme and outline of program. See Appendix.

2. Planning with the Librarian:

a. to arrange for a date and time
b. to select books of poetry
c. to decorate library
d. to aid in rehearsals

3. Selection of the poetry.

5. Decorating the library.

6. Lesson plans.

7. Instruction of subject matter.

8. Rehearse for presentation--9 - 10:00 a.m.
   Friday mornings.

Phonetic and Structural Analysis Skill Chart

Pre-Reading

1. Auditory Discrimination

   The pupil:

   a. Listens to and identifies common sounds.
   b. Listens for rhymes and rhyming words.
   c. Hears likeness and differences in the beginning of words.

2. Visual Discrimination

   The pupil:

   a. Recognizes likeness and differences in geometric forms, letters, words.
   b. Has visual recognition of letters of the alphabet.
   c. Begins to acquire an initial sight vocabulary.

3. Word Recognition Skills--Pre-Primer

   The pupil:

   a. Learns the entire sight vocabulary of whatever pre-primers or beginning materials are being used.
b. Uses the following word analysis elements:
   (1) Single consonants in initial positions
   (2) Final consonants
   (3) Initial consonant digraphs:
       (a) ch
       (b) sh
       (c) th
   (4) Plural forms: -s as in toys, dogs
   (5) Inflectional endings _s as in comes, ed as in jumped

c. Begins to handle alphabetic sequence.
d. Makes new words from known words by applying the above phonic elements.

Primer

The pupil understands and uses the following word analysis elements.

a. Final consonant digraphs including ng.
b. Vowels--short and long
c. Two and three consonant blends.
d. Inflectional endings, example--ing as in going.
e. Compound words, example--grandmother.
f. Contractions, example--I'll.
g. Possessives, example--Ann's.

4. Level Four: Book 1

The pupil retains all skills gained in the previous levels.

Word Recognition Skills

The pupil uses the following word analysis elements:

a. Consonants in all positions.
b. Digraphs in all positions.
c. All two- and three-letter consonant blends.
d. Diphthongs oy, oi, and ow.
e. Short and long vowels.
f. Open and closed syllables as help in syllabication.
g. Simple vowel digraphs, for example,
   (1) oa as in goat
   (2) ai as in rain
   (3) ea as in each.
h. Plural es as in dresses, churches, boxes.
i. Irregular plurals, for example,
   (1) f changing to v in leaves
   (2) men, children.
j. Variant ed as in caged, or as an extra syllable in handed.
k. Syllabication.

5. Level Five: Book 2

The pupil retains all skills of previous levels.

Word Recognition Skills

The pupil uses the following word analysis elements:

a. Single consonants in all positions.
b. Consonant digraphs in all positions.
c. All two- and three-letter consonant blends.
d. Long and short vowels.
e. "Hard" and "soft" c and g.
f. Vowel digraphs such as
   (1) ie as in lie, believe
   (2) ea as in break, bread
   (3) ai as in rain.
g. Vowel diphthong ou as in cloud, foul.
h. Vowel affected by r, l, and w.
i. Higher level compound words, contractions, possessives, inflectional endings, plurals, root words, prefixes and suffixes, syllabication.

6. Level Six: Book 2

Word analysis elements:

a. All previously specified elements.
b. Higher level compound words.
c. Higher level prefixes and suffixes.
d. Higher level contractions.
e. Comparative and Superlative endings.
f. More complex syllabication.

7. Level Seven

The pupils retain all skills of previous levels.

Word Recognition Skills

a. Change y to i when adding es, ed, ly, ful, er, est.
b. Variant spellings of similarly pronounced word element, such as,

   (1) tion, sion, cion
   (2) cious, tious, xious
   (3) teous, as in "righteous"
   (4) tial, cial as in "partial."

c. Variant pronunciations of similarly spelled word elements, such as,

   (1) ough as in cough, rough, through, though
   (2) ow as in know, now
   (3) ou as in soul, pour, houl, would

d. Other variant spelling silent consonants, such as,

   (1) b as in doubt, lamb
   (2) c as in scene, scissors
   (3) d as in bridge
   (4) g as in sign, gaw
   (5) h as in where, what
   (6) k as in knife, know
(7) l as in could, talk
(8) ñ as in autumn, hymn
(9) ñ as in pshaw, pneumonia
(10) t as in often, listen
(11) ŋ as in write, wrap.

e. Unusual spelling, such as,
(1) f as in laugh, Philadelphia
(2) k as in pack, biscuit, chemistry, liquor
(3) sh as in ocean, special, sure, tissue
(4) t as in asked, stopped, looked
(5) v as in Stephen
(6) w as in choir, quick
(7) z as in use, has, scissors.

8. Level Eight: Book 3

Pupil retains all skills of previous level.

Word Recognition

The pupil understands and uses the following word analysis elements:

a. Major diacritical marks.
b. Phonetic respelling.
c. Primary and secondary accents.
d. Higher level affixes.
e. Higher level abbreviations.
f. Increasingly complex polysyllabic words.
g. Guide words in dictionary.

Speaking Skills

1. Use loud sounds to convey meaning: Play the arrow game. Read a story about a trip to the zoo. Stop at each animal until the children have made the animal sound. They make the sound as loud or as soft as the arrow indicates. This is practice in modulating the voice in preparation for their speaking parts in the play.
2. Emphasize the core of the idea being presented:
   How was Santa's sit-itus cured?
   What does "Eight are the Lights" mean?
   Re: "Eight are the Lights" in Appendix.

3. Getting meaning of new spoken words from pictures and context:
   Re: "Garden Year" in Appendix.
   Many new, descriptive words are used to describe the months which can be understood through context, eg., primrose. Re: "Jingle Bells" in Appendix.
   Many words are used which can be understood through context: eg., dashing. Re: Rudolph--shiney, in Appendix.

4. Classifying ideas:
   Who in the play are toys? What are people?

5. Observe sequence of ideas:
   Name people in the play in order.
   In "The Garden Year" how do we line up to recite? Why? (in order of the months).

6. Choral speaking:
   "Eight are the Lights."

7. Interpret the thought of the author:
   Choral speech "Eight are the Lights."
   The valor of the Jewish people, their history, the holiday of Hanukku.
8. Understanding that a sentence expresses a complete thought in light of the way poetry is written.

Recite "Eight are the Lights."

Read with the correct tempo, pause, inflection and pitch variation to convey the spirit the people felt in this great achievement they gained over the Egyptians.

Re: Rudolph. There are different moods expressed in this song which need a variation in pitch and tempo.

Listening Skills

1. Listen to Music:
   A lively version of "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" is played. The children discuss the meaning of the words and repeat the song and word patterns they have heard.

2. Enjoy poems as read or told by teachers or pupils:
   Read "The Garden Year" by Sara Coleridge. Listen for the rhyming pattern. Discuss why certain words were used for certain seasons.

3. Listen for correct speech sounds:
   Speech improvement is involved in all oral language activities. Children improve their speech primarily by imitation and the teacher's own voice and speech present a good model. The teacher reads the narrator's parts. Children appointed then read their parts. The rest of the children listen for the correct speech sounds. Everyone is reinforced, child reciting and the criticizing child. The teacher is present for guidance.

4. Associate meanings with listening experience:
Children come to understand and listen to stories and poetry. Read "Eight are the Lights" by Ilo Orleans. Children are exposed to the tradition of another religion and some of the words used to express its history.

5. Construct visual images while listening:
Play "Jingle Bells." Children create a snow scene with black paper and chalk.

6. Listen in order to answer questions:
Read the play "Santa Sat and Sat and Sat."
Direct children to listen for the meaning of the title and what the outcome is.

7. Understanding that vivid descriptive words and action words develop sensory impressions:
Read the words to "Jingle Bells" and play the music. The words dashing and jingle create a vivid and lively feeling to the music. Also, the description of laughing all the way. Ask children for the words that describe and what picture they get from the words.

8. Distinguishing between fact and fancy:
   Listen to the content of the play "Santa Sat and Sat and Sat."
   Ask these questions: "Can trees really dance?" "Can reindeer sing?" "Can children play bells?"

9. Listen to and draw logical questions referring to the play:
   Where did Santa go when he got up?

10. Listen to draw inferences:
    Did the reindeer play games with Rudolph after he lead Santa's sleigh? Referring to "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

11. Listen to make judgments:
    Referring to "Rudolph," why did Santa ask Rudolph to guide his sleigh?

12. Listen for generalizations:
    What season does "Jingle Bells" take place in?

13. Listen to follow directions to teach the dance of the wooden soldiers:
    The children must listen to follow directions.

14. Listen to perceive time and place relationships:
    In accord with the poem, "Garden Year," if this were the season of spring, how would you be dressed?
    Different from now or the same?
15. Understand meaning from context clues:
   Referring to the month of April from the "Garden Year," April brings the primrose sweet, gathers daisies at our feet. What does primrose mean?

16. Interpreting facts and feelings from what the speaker has said:
   Re: "Rudolph," Rudolph with your nose so bright, won't you guide my sleigh tonight? How did Rudolph feel?

17. Understanding that spoken words have multiple meanings:
   Eight are the Lights.
   What things create lights—candles, bulbs, sun.

18. Listen to perceive cause and effect relationships:
   Re: Rudolph—why did Rudolph lead Santa's sleigh? Re: Play—what made Santa finally get up?

19. Listen for sequence of events:
   Mix up the events in Rudolph and have the children unscramble and put them in order.

20. Add to listening vocabulary through the use of contextual clues.

Lesson Plans—Grades 1 and 3

For the daily grouping practice in the morning, first graders whose level of instruction were Pre-Primer and Enrichment went to third grade class for one hour.
(9:00 - 10:00 a.m.) daily; third graders whose levels of instruction were Oral Language Development, Readiness I, and Readiness II went to first grade class for one hour (9:00 - 10:00 a.m.) daily.

All activities suggested for faster workers or taken from experience chart stories were listed at the end of the day on a separate chart. Children who found themselves with free time were to complete any of the listed activities.

Scheduling for poetry hour practice was 9:30 - 10:00 a.m. in the Library.

The following pages are the lesson plans for one week. Elaine Carty taught twenty-nine first grade pupils, Jeannette Quinn taught thirty third grade pupils, and Wesley Holmes, the student teacher, came only in the afternoons.
(Sample plans for week of December 4, 1972.)

MONDAY

Carty

9:00-9:30 a.m.  Reading

Oral language experience story.
Motivate: picture of snow.
Scene: go over picture.
Write children's words, being sure to elicit
- December
- Christmas
- Red
- Snow

9:30-10:00 a.m.  Phonics

Initial consonants of words: December, Christmas, red, green, snow. Indicate that it sometimes takes two letters to make a sound.

Activity—have five children set in chairs in front of room, read out a word starting with consonant sounds—dog, Christmas, ring, grouch. Class raises hands if these words begin with sounds in above words.

10:00-10:15 a.m.  Recess

10:20-10:45 a.m.  Math

Combine with music teaching xylophones, counting from 1 to 8. Spelling number words. Prepare for ordinal numbers (first through eighth).

Quinn

9:00-9:30 a.m.  Spelling

Introduce new words and place in weekly spelling book.
Pass out seasonal pictures to class. Elicit
- December
- Christmas
- naughty
- toys
- set
- red
- watched
- green
- ice
- snow

For fast children: Create a winter scene using the spelling words (concepts) and allow four or five to tell the class about his or her picture.

9:30-10:00 a.m.  Phonics

Have children listen for beginning sounds and say them orally as the teacher calls the word. Check to see if they hear when two letters are making one sound—ch, gr, sn. Call different words and have children write the sounds they hear on paper. (Use vocabulary words listed) check papers.

10:00-10:15 a.m.  Recess

10:20-10:35 a.m.  Language Chart

Develop a language experience story with activity at end for faster workers. Pull words from play, itself, describing and
MONDAY (Continued)

10:50-11:00 a.m. Relief Exercises

"Dance of Toy Soldiers"—rhythmic moving and reinforce counting to eight.

11:00-11:30 a.m. Spelling

CHAPTER V

CULMINATING ACTIVITIES

Conclusions

There are three basic culminating activities utilized in this unit: the Christmas play, the museum trip, and the poetry hour.

Therefore, the team has listed the organizational steps as they saw them in order to culminate the unit in each of the following areas:

1. Evaluate children on an interest, skills and achievement inventory.

2. Pool together learning from activities on organization of the play in order to:
   a. Prepare for a trip to the Academy of Natural Sciences (a lesson on seasons).
   b. Prepare for the culminating activity of a February Poetry Hour, with interpretive dance and song. This will encourage recreational reading and evaluate skills taught in the play.

3. Introduce other aspects of literature, style
4. Make up an inventory to show growth and indicate where more intensive programming is needed.

5. Design a program where the children who have achieved the skills will be enriched.

6. Formulate a program of remediation for reinforcement of the necessary skills for the children who have not achieved them.

Evaluation

The basic philosophy which permeated this unit was first, to use any motivational materials correlated with basic skills and subject matter as prescribed by the school system; second, to show that these materials could be used at any grade level in any grade; and third, to form an interest-based reading program by which children could learn and would learn to read.

Therefore, this unit has been developed as a means through which teachers could use their creativity and ability to use what is available: the interest of the children, the surroundings of the school and/or the materials available in a school, to form a functional interest-based reading program.
Chart 2--Post-test of Levels of Instruction Within Grades 1 and 3
The team believed this unit was designed as an eclectic approach to reading.

A look-say beginning was used, involving basic skills from linguistics, language-experience, programmed series, words in color, and some elements from Fernald. (See Cooper in Bibliography for Poetry Hour.)

This is believed to be an approach which could be utilized by one teacher in a traditional setting or a team of teachers in an open classroom situation.

VOCABULARY

Many words are common to nearly every basal reading series. Such words as house, play, jump, like, I, may, see, we, etc., were incorporated in the materials selected.

These words were introduced through simple story forms, experience chart stories, and the reading and writing of the songs and poems utilized in this unit.

This vocabulary is necessary to any broad-based reading program. The children could then move comfortably from this unit of work into any reading series utilized within any given school situation.

The entire vocabulary is not listed; however, the poems for the Poetry Hour contain a wealth of pre-primer, primer, and first-year words.

November--Dane
December--Ralph

Narrators--Gladys, Veronica, James B., Wayne, Teresa, John, Terry, Diane, and Brack.
NARRATOR--Once upon a time a dreadful thing happened at the North Pole. Santa Claus became afflicted with a most serious disease. He had worked hard all year getting the toys ready for Christmas. It was almost time for him to leave on his appointed rounds. The elves were bustling about when, suddenly, Santa walked over to his rocking chair and sat down. Why? What was happening? You guessed it. He was having an attack of "sit-itus."

He just sat there.

The elves looked at him curiously. Of course it is very nice to sit--occasionally or even quite often. But, when Santa Claus decided to do nothing on Christmas Eve but sit, well, that was just too much!

Mrs. Claus was the first to become alarmed. She called the elves together. They all agreed that something must be done. But what? After all, Santa was the one to give the orders. It was he who made the list, and checked it twice. It was he who decided who was naughty or nice. They couldn't possibly order him to get up and deliver the Christmas presents to all the boys and girls. No, he must get up of his own free will. He must want to stop this continuous sitting!

Elves went scurrying all over the North Pole to tell of Santa's plight. Everyone in Santa Land thought they had the answer. The elves were the first to try. Perhaps if Santa saw them working very hard, he would be seized with an overwhelming desire to join them.

ELVES--"Hi Ho, Hi Ho." (4)

NARRATOR--Evidently Santa found his chair much too comfortable, or else he didn't realize what the elves had in mind. As he watched them work, he thought, "I have a good group of elves. I can relax. They will take good care of everything!" Instead of jumping up and working, he continued to sit.

Several Christmas trees had an idea. If they could only coax him into the winter wonderland. Yes, they must inspire him with an overwhelming desire to be out in the glorious land of ice and snow!
TREES--(Do a simple, circle type dance ending with the children standing to form a tree. "O Tannenbaum.")

NARRATOR--Perhaps Santa's love of ice and snow was not strong enough; for, alas and alack, he still sat. All their coaxing had done no good. They might just as well go to sleep. There would be no Christmas for they were sure no one could perform the impossible task of curing Santa's "sit-itus."

Mrs. Claus called in all the toys. If they could make Santa laugh hard, so very hard, why, he just might fall off the chair and then he wouldn't be sitting any more!

TOYS--(a gymnastic routine to "Dance of the Toy Soldiers.)

NARRATOR--As you have probably guessed, Santa didn't laugh hard enough. They must really think of something funnier to do. So, they all ran off to think.

News of Santa's misfortune reached the reindeer stable. The reindeer knew how much he always enjoyed his yearly rounds. So they too tried to coax Santa from his chair.

REINDEER--(Sing and act out "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.")

NARRATOR--The poor reindeer had come at the wrong time. Their singing had failed to rouse Santa. He was taking a nap and didn't even know they were there. What a shame!

When Santa woke from his snooze, the bells decided to take things into their own hands. They remembered how much Santa loved all the excitement and noise of Christmas. That just might be the answer. They would make such a delightful din that when Santa heard them and saw what great fun they were having, he would surely wish to join them.

BELLS--("Jingle Bells" and xylophone playing.)

NARRATOR--Santa enjoyed all the merriment. He even tapped his feet a little to the music. Yes, it was fun to see the bells enjoying themselves but the thought never occurred to him to join them. No, he just sat!
Some of the elves had gone to distant lands in search of a cure for Santa's "sit-itus." They returned with boys and girls from many lands. The elves felt sure that the children could convince Santa that Christmas should not come to an abrupt end.

CHILDREN OF MANY LANDS--(A choral speaking "Eight Are The Lights.")

NARRATOR--Santa considered visiting the children. He thought seriously of calling his elves to prepare for the trip. He even discussed his plans with Mrs. Claus. Naturally she was overjoyed. But suddenly he changed his mind! He remembered how many boys and girls had been naughty this year. Why should he leave his comfortable chair to visit them? Not Santa! He was content to continue sitting.

The candles heard of Santa's affliction. They had just celebrated the Festival of Lights. They thought if Santa could see a little of their dance, he might be inspired.

CANDLES--(Dance the hora, "Drydle.")

NARRATOR--Their trip was a failure. Santa was very happy to see them. He thought it a grand idea to have the candles visit him. He told them they were welcome at the North Pole any time. He was happy to hear they were celebrating Hanukkah. But he still sat!

Just then another group entered.

TWELVE MONTHS OF THE YEAR.

NARRATOR--Did their plan work? Oh, you don't know what their plan was? Well, they were sure they could get Santa into the spirit of Christmas giving. Surely with twelve days to put him in the mood--but, no, he just sat!

Just then the elves returned with letters from the children of Spring Garden School. Do you think Spring Garden children persuaded Santa to get up?

ELVES--(Read letters previously written.)

SANTA--(After the last letter, gets up and gets ready to leave.)

ALL--Santa's "sit-itus" is cured! Hooray! Hooray! Hooray! Entire group leaves singing. . .

JINGLE BELLS

Dashing through the snow on a one horse open sleigh,
    O'er the fields we go laughing all the way,
Bells on bob-tail ring, making spirits bright,
    What fun it is to ride and sing a sleighing song tonight.

Jingle bells! Jingle bells!
    Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride in a
    One horse open sleigh!
Jingle bells! Jingle bells!
    Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride in a
    One horse open sleigh! Hey!
APPENDIX E

RUDOLPH, THE RED-NOSED REINDEER

Rudolph the red-nosed reindeer had a very shiny nose,
   And if you ever saw it, you would even say it glows.
All of the other reindeer used to laugh and call him names
   They never let poor Rudolph join in any reindeer games.
Then one foggy Christmas eve Santa came to say,
   "Rudolph with your nose so bright, won't you guide my sleigh tonight?"
Then how the reindeer loved him and they shouted out with glee,
Rudolph the re-nosed reindeer, you'll go down in history.

THE GARDEN YEAR

by

Sara Coleridge

January brings the snow,
    Makes our feet and fingers glow.
February brings the rain,
    Thaws the frozen lake again.
March brings breezes loud and shrill,
    To stir the dancing daffodil.
April brings the primrose sweet,
    Scatters daisies at our feet.
May brings flocks of pretty lambs,
    Skipping by their fleecy dams.
June brings tulips, lilies, roses,
    Fills the children's hands with posies.
Hot July brings cooling showers,
    Apricots and gilly-flowers.
August brings the sheaves of corn,
    Then the harvest home is borne.
Warm September brings the fruits,
    Sportsmen then begin to shoot.
Fresh October brings the pheasant,
    Then to gather nuts is pleasant.
Dull November brings the blast,
    Then the leaves are whirling fast.
Chill December brings the sleet,
    Blazing fire and Christmas treat.
EIGHT ARE THE LIGHTS
by
Ilo Orleans

Eight are the lights of Hanukka
We light for a week and a day.
We kindle the lights, and bless the Lord,
And sing a song and pray.

Eight are the lights of Hanukka,
For justice and mercy and love,
For charity, courage and honor and peace,
And faith in Heaven above.

Eight are the lights of Hanukka,
To keep ever bright Memories
Of the valiant soul and the fighting heart
And the hope of the Maccabees!
