The purpose of this manual, which contains 183 lessons, is to present a method for teaching English to all non-English-speaking students entering school for the first time. Each lesson is divided into four major sections: "Review," "Teach," "Suggested Procedures," and "Enrichment Activities." Patterns, vocabulary, and sounds to be introduced, reviewed, or re-emphasized are listed in the "Teach" section. Pattern sentences needed for comprehension of the materials taught and for day-to-day living in the school community are listed. The review patterns are those which have been presented in previous lessons and which can be used with the new patterns presented in the lesson. Basic instructions for using the manual are included in the preface; appendixes present information on vocabulary and a sequential list of sentence patterns. (Author/SK)
MANUAL OF SENTENCE PATTERNS for
TEACHING ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

Revised, 1966
Office of the Superintendent

November 1, 1966

Many teachers entering into their profession come with excellent preparation for the English-speaking child. However, few come prepared to teach children of ethnic and language backgrounds different from their own. This manual is an attempt to help these beginning teachers and experienced teachers meet this unique challenge of the non-English speaking child with some degree of competence.

This volume is not intended to be all inclusive, but is to be used as a point of departure for teaching language skills to non-English speaking children whether they be of English or Indian culture.

The staff of Gallup-McKinley County Schools are to be commended for this endeavor in helping boys and girls.

W. B. FitzSimmons
Superintendent
The purpose of this MANUAL is to present a useful and complete method for teaching English to all non-English speaking students entering school for the first time.

Each lesson is divided into four major sections:

I. Review
II. Teach
III. Suggested Procedures
IV. Enrichment Activities

The review section lists the patterns to be reviewed.

Patterns to be presented, vocabulary to be introduced and sounds to be introduced, reviewed or re-emphasized are listed in the section titled Teach.

The patterns listed under Comprehension are those sentences needed only for the comprehension of the materials taught and for day-to-day living in the school community.

The review patterns are those which have been presented in previous lessons and which can easily and profitably be used with the new patterns presented in the lesson. The teacher must determine which additional patterns need practice and prepare other exercises for this practice.

The new patterns presented differ with each lesson. Some lessons do contain patterns already listed as new patterns, but each time the utterance is listed it is used in a different situation. This has been done in an effort to familiarize the pupils with the structure of the English language.

Each pattern which is listed under teach is the utterance which the teacher uses as a model. The teacher, as he or she models the sentence, provides the correct intonation for the pupils to model or reproduce. English has four notes or levels of intonation. The pupils are led to listen and produce these levels at the appropriate places in the sentence.

Intonation is the framework for sounds in the language and must be taught as a unit with words and sounds. The pupil must be made aware of the "tune" or intonation of the language the first time he speaks it. This part of the language must become a habit, too.

In most of the sentences to be introduced the teacher will find blanks: ___________; underlined words, or words in parenthesis. The blanks indicate that vocabulary chosen by the teacher or from previous lessons should be incorporated into that utterance.
The underlined words are only examples; these words should also be changed to meet the needs of the lesson. The parenthesis indicates a choice of words, but the pattern will be taught using each word found in the parenthesis. The parenthesis also indicates words which may or may not fit the situation; the teacher can judge the appropriateness of each word and teach the usage of each with the youngster's needs in mind.

The sounds which have been isolated are based on the pronunciation requirements of the lesson. The teacher must listen for mispronunciations as the pupils repeat the model utterance, then the teacher may isolate the sound and give practice in its pronunciation. The complete pattern is then repeated to test whether or not the pupil can correctly pronounce the sound within the structures. Each sound will not be perfected at the time it is first introduced, for this reason the same sounds occur often in the lessons. Each pupil repeats the difficult sound, the word, then the total pattern.

The comprehension patterns should be understood by the pupil, but do not need to be reproduced by him.

The basic principles of instruction for teaching a second language are:

A. Listening to a correct model
B. Speaking with a group
C. Speaking individually

These three principles are incorporated in the Suggested Procedures for each lesson. In addition each lesson has one and usually two exercises for the use of the language by an individual in a meaningful situation. One exercise is primarily for the use of the patterns to be reviewed. The second exercise is designed to give each pupil meaningful individual practice. In some lessons these two exercises have been incorporated into one for more systematic review. Each class may perfect the patterns at their own rate. The materials in the MANUAL must be taught in sequence, but it is not necessary to teach one lesson per day. The rate at which these lessons are mastered depends entirely upon the pupils.

The children's creative abilities are used to make the lessons more meaningful. Listed under "Enrichment Activities" are some projects the pupils can create to use with the lesson. This section is limited only by the children's and the teacher's imagination.

Each of these lessons can be made more meaningful through the use of flat pictures, filmstrips, field trips, picture books, and music. Some sources of enrichment materials have been listed. The teacher can make use of many other sources. The enrichment activities chosen should be simple, easy to understand, and meaningful.
Neither the language period nor the classroom is the only place where language must be taught. The time the pupils spend on the playground is one other opportunity for continuous practice of the language. Each time a pupil attempts to use the language, he should be encouraged to communicate in English and helped to speak correctly.

Much emphasis must be placed on the ability to listen. A language can be reproduced by a pupil only after he has heard it. For this reason a pupil must learn to listen not only to the lesson, but to every sound which occurs in his listening range.

Each classroom teacher must allow time for the pupils to listen to records, stories, piano, etc. The teacher's voice is the best "tool" for teaching this essential habit. Reading stories and poems to the children is a good way to enforce listening.

This listening ability of a child will improve as he is made aware of such sounds as the furnace starting and stopping, footsteps, birds singing, doors opening, etc. Every day there are thousands of sounds through which a young listener can develop an awareness of various sounds and thus develop better listening habits. It must also be emphasized that young people cannot play and visit and listen at the same time.

Other listening activities which can be used in the classroom are: Paper tearing, books closing, pencil writing, coloring, painting, etc. Later the pupils can be asked to identify the voice of other members of the class by listening only. These are only a few of the materials and activities which can be used to teach listening. Each teacher must find those materials which she can use most effectively in her situation.

Each pupil must hear an utterance, repeat the utterance with a group, individually, and then use it in a meaningful situation. All pronunciation and intonation errors must be corrected as soon as they occur. A new habit is being formed; it must be the correct habit.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This MANUAL was developed as the result of an experimental project at Tohatchi Public School with the cooperation of all Pre-first grade teachers in the Gallup-McKinley County School system during the 1962-63 school year.

Unit I
Greetings
LESSON 1

Teach:

Patterns:

Good morning.
Good morning.
Good afternoon.

Vocabulary:

good morning afternoon

*Sounds:

Final d - good:
Tongue against the upper tooth ridge. Voiced.

Final ng - morning

ft - afternoon: f is unvoiced; with the teeth against the lower lip, air is blown out; then the tongue is placed on the tooth ridge and a soft t is produced.

t - afternoon

Final n - afternoon:
Tongue on tooth ridge.

Comprehension Patterns:

Sit down.
Stand in line.
Get in line.
May I go to the restroom?

Suggested Procedures:

A. Approach: The teacher greets each child with greeting in child's native tongue. Allow the child to look around the room, and become acquainted with surroundings for 30 to 45 minutes or more. Have restrooms nearby so children can look in.

B. Teacher sits down in chair in front of circle of chairs. Help the pupils find a place to sit.
Teacher-Class: Good morning.
(Repeat 8 times)
½ Class repeat at a time with the teacher: Good morning.
Four or five children repeat at a time until the whole class has repeated the greeting.
Each child greets his neighbor: Good morning.
Continue until all the class has been greeted and has responded.

C. Drill on sounds: Final d in good.
Final ng in morning.

D. This section is best taught in the afternoon.
Teacher-Class: Good afternoon.
(Repeat 8 times.)

E. Half of class repeat: Good afternoon.
(Repeat 8 times for each ½ class.)

F. Four or five pupils repeat in unison. Each pupil greets his neighbor. Continue until all have responded.

*These sounds must not be isolated until an error occurs and then the individual must be corrected. Then model so the class will produce the sounds, then the word, then the pattern. It is important that the sound be used in the pattern after correction is made.

*Sounds: - Continued

Example: A child says: Goo'mornie'.
Teacher: Good
Pupil: Goo'
Teacher: See my tongue. It hits up here. (On dental ridge) You do it.
Teacher: d
Pupil: d
Teacher: good (Emphasize final d)
Pupil: good
Teacher: Good morning.
Pupil: Good Mornie' (Isolate the final ng sound and have the pupil hold his throat for the glottal sound closure.)

Repeat the procedure for correcting mornie'.

Listening Activities:

Listen to simple songs, stories, or poems on record.

Enrichment Activities:

A. Music: "Good Morning" Page 3
OUR SINGING WORLD, FIRST GRADE BOOK, Ginn and Co., New York.
LESSON 2

Review:

Good morning.
Good afternoon.

Teach:

Patterns:
Hello. Hi.

Vocabulary:
hello
hi

Sounds:
Same as Lesson 1.

st - restroom
Both sounds are voiceless.
The tongue is on both sides of the tooth ridge, air is expelled for s. The t is formed when the tongue touches the ridge behind the front tooth then released. Children must say both sounds, then put them together st, st, stop, restroom.

Comprehension Patterns:
Go to the restroom.

Suggested Procedures:

A. Greet each child as he enters the room in the morning.
   Good morning!
   Have him answer you.

B. Greet each child as he enters the room in the afternoon.
   Good afternoon!
   Have him answer.

C. When the children are in the circle:
   Teacher: Say, Good morning.
   (Directed at the first pupil in the circle)
   Continue procedure until all pupils have greeted the teacher.

D. Repeat procedure in the afternoon until all pupils have greeted the teacher with "Good afternoon".

E. Teacher-Class: Hello (Repeat 8 times)
   1/2 Class: Hello.
   1/2 Class: Hi.
   (Repeat 8 times. Change pattern for each side and repeat 8 times.)

F. Have a child come to the front of the room.
   Class greets the pupil: Hi.
   Pupil: Hello.
   (Repeat this exercise 8 times.)
   Repeat around the circle until all pupils have stood before the class and answered the greeting.

G. Each pupil greets his neighbor.
Enrichment Activities:

A. Listening:

1. Simple songs, stories or poems in English.

2. Nursery rhymes of your choice.

B. Music:

1. "Good Morning" Page 6
