The manual, to be used by the itinerant resource teacher, presents teaching objectives and proficiency levels for the development of communication, living, and social skills of visually handicapped students in kindergarten through grade 12. Communication skills are enumerated (number is indicated in parentheses) for totally blind students in areas of reading and writing braille (15), handwriting (five), math tools (10), and reading raised-line maps (nine); and for both the blind and partially sighted in the areas of use and care of typewriters (19), and tape recorders and cassettes (15). Described are enroute objectives intended to develop proficiency of both blind and partially sighted students in the areas of personal grooming habits (18), environmental skills (seven), good housekeeping techniques (five), and travel techniques for blind (17) and for partially sighted (12) students. Such social skills as taking responsibility for classroom duties, and participating in school programs and field trips are delineated for both blind and partially sighted students. Evaluation for both categories of students is said to involve teacher observation and student performance. (MC)

Miss Mary Riordan, Itinerant Resource Teacher for Visually Limited
FORWARD

The unique role of an itinerant resource teacher for visually limited students in the regular classroom and the need for defining the specific educational goals led me to formulate a written document clearly stating those major goals of the program.

The statement of these objectives is the first step toward a diagnostic-prescriptive-evaluative model for teaching students with congenital or accidental visual problems.

I hope that this project will be helpful to other teachers of visually limited students as they work toward attaining these kinds of objectives. Further, I hope the project will be informative to all involved in education and to the community which will absorb the students into society as adults.

If the net result of this work will mean improved programs for the visually limited, then the time and effort spent has been worthwhile.

I wish to express my thanks to Mr. Dave Sieswerda, Director of Special Education, for his encouragement, interest, and understanding in this endeavor.

Mary Riordan
