Learning has been referred to by many contemporary educators as a noun; but it is a verb experience--full of action and involvement, doing and being. At least it should be--and that kind of involved learning is what this course of study is all about.

The Quinmester Visual Arts Education Curriculum construct is a long range developmental effort directed towards providing a general education for learners in the aesthetically related art education field. To accomplish this goal, instructional courses of study have been developed basically for teachers by teachers. Many Dade art specialists in various arts media have been recruited by the Art Office to write over 75 new and innovative courses of study in the area of art education. Educational specialists from the four corners of this land, along with aestheticians, social critics, and behavioral scientists have hailed the philosophy of the overall art curriculum construct undertaken by the Division of Instruction to be consistent with the latest national trends in art education, and to be an exemplary example of "success" oriented curricula designed to provide intense involvement in aesthetics and creative arts through group and individualized participation on the part of the learner.

All courses of study produced have been constructed with one major goal in mind: to provide a broad framework of goals and objectives; content; instructional procedures and strategies; and suggested learning activities. Many of the technically oriented courses of study list a variety of "Work Sheets" designed to assist the learner with specific and highly technical studio procedures delineated in a manner so that art specialists (teachers) can use them "as is," or utilize the source information as a basis for producing "Learning Activities Packages." The appendix may include other pertinent materials needed for today's contemporary art curriculum, e.g., vocabulary, resources for both learner and teacher, etc.

Constructive criticisms or recommendations relating to this publication are invited; please send to: Art Education Office, Room 300, Lindsey Hopkins, A-1.

I. COURSE TITLE
COSTUME DESIGN

II. COURSE NUMBERS
6697.01 - Art Education
6766.16 - Home and Family Education

III. COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course provides experiences in the design and development of costumes for a dramatic production. The student will design and create costumes for use in dramatic productions. A multicurricula course planned in cooperation with Drama and Home and Family Education.

IV. RATIONALE
The experiences in this course are designed to make the student more aware of the fact that a costume is not just a garment to wear but is a definite expression of the action, the mood, the philosophy and, in fact, the entire aim of presentation of the production. Costume design is not an accident, nor is it an arbitrary expression of the designer's imagination. It is an expression of specifics, both historical and fictional, which are presented in the play.

The student cannot use his own inventive faculties successfully in costume design if he has only a superficial knowledge of the times or the setting, or the specific action or even the surrealistic aura of the play.

V. COURSE ENROLLMENT GUIDELINES
A. An elective course for grades 7-12
B. No prerequisite for enrollment

VI. BEHAVIORAL OBJECTIVES
A. Upon completion of this course the student will be able to demonstrate the following competencies:

1. Given an overview of the development of Western Civilization, the student will explain how Costume is an expression of the people, the times and the culture of the society.

   a. The student will make drawings and paintings of costumes of different periods in history.

   b. The student will investigate the area of accessories, and reasons for their design, not only for specific purposes, but also as artistic coverings and general enhancement of the human figure. He will make a study of this and make plates of drawings with inks and paints.
2. Given the knowledge of motifs peculiar to certain cultures, the student will give examples of how religion, ethics and customs influenced the designs and decorations of clothing.
   a. The student will make drawing and paintings of these motifs and will attempt to translate them into modern costume design.

3. Having been instructed in the manner of presenting the human figure in simple contours with minimal action, the student will be able to design costumes and present them on the figure.
   a. He will illustrate effective proportion.
   b. He will differentiate between the drawing of the male figure for costume and the female figure, and compare to that of the child.
   c. He will illustrate how to display the costume to its best advantage.

4. As a culmination of activities for his project, the student will design a costume for a specific part in a production.
   a. He will consult with the writer, producer, stage designer, and director of the play.
   b. He will consider lighting when designing the costume, especially in regard to the colors used.
   c. He will make plates (paintings) of the character with the costume in several views, mostly front views and profile.

VII. COURSE CONTENT

A. A study of the history of civilization, and how it affected the dress and costumes of the people of the times

B. Drawing of a proportioned adult human figure, both male and female, and that of a child, well-balanced and capable of displaying and demonstrating the costume

1. Drawing from the model

2. Drawing from photographs of the human figure

3. Learning simple ways to describe the human figure in front view and profile

C. Clothing the human figure and knowing how to accentuate one of the limbs in order to emphasize the action of the costume

1. May be done in pencil, charcoal, crayon, pastels, paint or ink. The clothing should fit the figure and convey the impression the writer intended.

2. Render the completed drawing in colors that are suitable to the action and mood of the play, as well as the scene and period.

D. Render cloth, metals and various other materials using water color or ink. Use both transparent and opaque media and different techniques for specific presentation.
1. Painting and drawing drapery and folds
2. Showing texture and pattern
3. Showing costumes in different types of lighting for special effects

E. Study and make charts of various ornamental motifs both historical and imaginary
   1. These should be executed in both transparent and opaque watercolor or gouache

F. Design a costume for a character in a play and present it in an artistic manner to be understood by the writers, producers, actors and all those involved in the production
   1. Present the design in the proper lighting under which it will be presented on the stage
   2. Consider and design head dress, and all accessories important to the character

VIII. COURSE PROCEDURES, STRATEGIES AND SUGGESTED LEARNING ACTIVITIES TO FACILITATE THE ACHIEVEMENT OF OBJECTIVES

A. Films of plays
   1. Historical
   2. Comedy
   3. Tragedy
   4. Fantasy
   5. Modern-Abstract

B. Plays shown on television
   After viewing each, write a brief comment about the type of costumes that might have been designed differently.

C. Trips to the theater
   1. Local productions in the neighborhood
   2. Coconut Grove theater
   3. The Cinema

D. Trip to the Wax Museum
E. Use of India Ink
   1. Using drawing and lettering pens
   2. Using lettering brushes
   3. Running gray washes and varying the intensity of the grays

F. Use of water color as wash or as an opaque medium
   1. Varying its intensity and hue
   2. Achieving texture by manipulating the medium

G. The meaning and use of gouache

H. Drawing simple basic figure capable of displaying the costume
   1. Male
   2. Female
   3. Child
   4. Figure should show action in order to display the costume

I. Execute a design in full color
   1. Use historical reference, e.g., Greek fret or Egyptian acanthus leaf, etc.
   2. Create and execute, in full color, an original motif or design

J. Stencil a design

K. Prepare a notebook with pictures of characters out of plays cut out of newspaper and magazines
   1. Write appropriate comments under each character
   2. Make suggestions on the costume and investigate other possibilities for costuming
   3. Create small pencil thumb-nail sketches showing changes which could be made

L. Produce a collage of bits of cloth, beads, ornaments of any kind to show design and the use of textures

M. Create a painting of a clothed actor using reference material

N. Develop an original costume design for a character from a play
1. Draw the figure front view
2. Draw the figure side view
3. Draw the figure three-fourths view
4. Draw the figure with different color backgrounds which will influence the color of the clothes

Q. Create paintings in grays and full color of accessories including hair fashions, shoes, etc.

P. Drawing the human figure
1. Draw in contour. Use three dimensional effects only if there has been a previous course in life drawing.
2. Balance the human figure and teach the students to extend an arm or a leg, to give the figure a lifelike appearance and a more realistic display of the costume.
3. Draw the head simply and freely turning it on its axis. Show it as an egg-shaped form and demonstrate how easily it can be drawn in any position.
4. Explain the proportions of the figure and how to draw the features of the face in proportion.
5. Use various media such as pencil, charcoal, pastel, paint or ink. Using a brush for "drawing" gives freedom of expression to the figure.
6. Students can pose for each other.
7. Students may draw from photographs—never "copying" but using the pictures as guides and always making the drawings different sizes, colors, etc.

Q. Painting
1. Use tempera or water-color. They may be used either as washes or as an opaque media.
2. Use both round and flat brushes. Lettering brushes are good to use and easy to manipulate.
3. Have small brushes available for motifs and decorative work. Good firm water color brushes are needed.
4. Students should work on tilted drawing board.
5. Render designs in black and white and in color. Try them against different backgrounds.
6. Try painting a design and then using pen and ink to outline it and accent with India Inks.

B. Costume Construction (optional)

If this course is an interdisciplinary effort with Home and Family Education, the following activities may be included:

1. Practice making half-scale models in muslin of some of the costume designs using either flat pattern or draping techniques. (The courses of study, Creative Fashions II and III, may be used as references.)

2. Construct one original costume.

IX. RESOURCES
