The suggested first, second, and third-year social studies program described in this outline provides opportunities for teachers to involve public school students in Lincoln, Nebraska, in exploring the plurality of our society, and specifically the positive aspects, contributions, uniqueness and dignity of ethnic minority groups in the United States. The outline and materials involve students in value clarification, explanation of feelings, conflict resolution, group experience, decision making, generalizing, hypothesizing, concept formation and application. Goal statements for the entire K-12 social studies program are listed and terms used in the program outline are clarified. The outline presents the rationale, goals, and materials for the first three years of the social studies program on their respective topics of Self, Family, and Neighborhood. The knowledge, attitudinal, and skills aspects of the rationale, goals, and materials at each level are delineated. The materials sections contain simple, basic bibliographies requiring supplementation by teachers in the areas of media, field trips, and community resources. An appendix of skills applied in social studies relates a skill development sequence by naming skills and the levels at which they are introduced, developed, or extended. (Author/KSM)

Social Studies, a broad multidisciplinary study of mankind's relationships with the social and physical world, is playing an increasingly important role in society's attempt to solve its problems. Where once, only the pure scientist was regarded as the savior of the world, now the social scientist is being called upon to provide solutions to society's problems. Mankind created and is deeply involved in a scientific, technological world. While men once thought technology could solve all his ills, he found that as many problems were created as were solved. A great number of these problems were social. Social problems require social answers.

As a result of this, then, a major concern of contemporary social studies does not only deal with the conditions under which mankind prepares itself for living and functioning meaningfully in a highly technical society, but also, and perhaps more importantly, with preparing itself for living and functioning meaningfully in a multi-cultured, human society. The essence of such preparation must take as a basic tenant that social studies should promote understanding, acceptance, appreciation and the respect for the value and inherent worth of all living and non-living (natural resources, etc.) elements of the world.

The promotion of this basic human study begins with the first year in school—it should continue throughout the school years.

The suggested first, second, and third year social studies program described in this outline is based on this human study. The goals listed, whether they be knowledge, affective, or skill focus on an exploration of people—regardless of (although it may not be specifically stated) race, culture, color, creed or religion. The outline clearly provides opportunities for teachers to involve students in exploring the plurality of our society, and specifically studying in a meaningful way, the positive aspects, contributions, uniqueness and dignity of ethnic minority groups in the United States. Understanding and valuing differences in people is an underlying feature of this outline.

The outline and the materials suggested to facilitate it involve students in value clarification, explanation of feelings, conflict resolutions, group experiences, decision making exercises, generalizing, hypothesizing, concept formation and application and other activities which attempt to lay a foundation for faith in people. The justification for this type of a program and materials over others available lies in the statement at the beginning of this introduction. Students must be helped to firmly believe that the "Hope of Mankind Lies in Mankind."

SOCIAL STUDIES GOALS

The following statements are goals for the social studies program—the first year through the thirteenth (K-12). The program listed herein will help to facilitate these goals.

MAKE DECISIONS BY THINKING CRITICALLY AND RATIONALLY

The processes of decision-making and the skills of critical thinking are learned behaviors. If we look at today's world and at the prospects for a more complex and rapidly changing world in the future, this goal becomes tremendously important. Education and the social studies must attempt to produce rational-thinking decision-makers who see the functional aspect of these behaviors. This goal reflects the responsibility of each social studies teacher to make a concentrated effort to build student proficiency in using these processes and skills.

APPROACH AN UNDERSTANDING OF HUMAN SOCIETIES BY FOCUSING ON MAJOR SOCIAL STUDIES CONCEPTS

The focus of this goal is mankind.

It is an important charge of every social studies student to search for the causes of human... behavior. Social scientists have attempted to understand mankind and his behavior by gathering massive amounts of data which they have cataloged into concepts and generalizations.

BE A LIFE-LONG LEARNER

To achieve this goal, students must be equipped with the necessary attitudes and learning skills.

FUNCTION EFFECTIVELY AS A CITIZEN IN A SOCIETY

The school system, as one of the major socializing institutions in our society, has great responsibility in shaping the child's frame of reference with regard to citizenship. It is the intent of this goal that the schools, working with other institutions, strive to produce a citizen who is willing and able to work through the democratic process to achieve the goals that are desirable for our society.

This goal has been written to include three aspects of citizenship: (1) knowledge of, (2) attitudes about, and (3) commitment to, an effective citizen. It would be very difficult to develop the ideas surrounding such a complex term as "citizen" and not involve all three of the above areas.

It should also be stated that other things are needed for effective citizenship also. Many factors interacting simultaneously tend to produce constructive citizens. For example, the other four goals stated in this listing as well as the major concerns of the other curriculum areas play a very important role in developing citizens.

INTERACT SUCCESSFULLY WITH OTHER PEOPLE

Many of the problems we face as a society stem from our feelings about ourselves and our inability to interact with other people. School should be a place where students can experience, and gain confidence in this important area. If people as a whole cannot interact or communicate effectively, the result could be fatal to a democratic society. Social studies teachers should structure learning activities which use social studies content to develop these kinds of skills.

A ramification of this goal involves the values of students and society. It should be emphasized that the intent here is to encourage and guide the student to examine his own value system and the values of others in a rational manner.

In this examination, it should be the goal of the teacher to help the student remove ethnocentrism from his/her frame of reference and to guide the student toward the position of being able to reject/disagree with another person's ideas, without rejecting the person.

CLARIFICATION OF TERMS

1. CURRICULUM OUTLINE - This publication is a curriculum outline and is not to be confused with a curriculum guide. An outline gives general directions for this case, for the first three years of the social studies program. A guide gives specific day by day directions for example as in the teachers guide of a particular book.

   The scope and sequence of a program is important to identify so as to provide logical progression in all areas-knowledge, skills and attitudes, feelings and values-and to eliminate gross repetition for the children.

2. TEACHER STRATEGIES - In order for children to attain many of the goals listed herein, the teacher will want to utilize certain teaching strategies. Teaching strategies consist of the planning and implementation of a particular sequence of learning activities to reach a certain goal. For field Teaching Strategies.
EMERGENT ISSUES IN SOCIAL STUDIES

BASICS. McREL and other in-service programs will help the teacher gain expertise in working with teacher strategies.

3. GENERALIZATIONS — Generalizations are those major ideas about people and their environment which interrelates experiences, facts, and concepts. The knowledge goals listed herein are stated as generalizations.

4. CONCEPT — From contemporary educational writings, a concept is defined as a one word or short phrase description of a class or group of data.

5. SIMILARITIES AND DIFFERENCES — Social studies has always been about the business of exploring similarities and differences, but unfortunately, differences have been stressed more than similarities. This results in increased ethnocentrism. In working with these two concepts, it is hoped that the teacher would discuss them as "similarities and reasons for differences," and give equal weight to both.

6. SOCIAL SCIENCE DISCIPLINES — The knowledge goals listed in this Outline are drawn from the disciplines of the Social Sciences. They are History, Geography, Economics, Social Psychology, Political Science, Anthropology and Sociology.

7. CULTURAL AWARENESS — This outline does not present a stereotype of Self, Family or Neighborhood. It is important for teachers to present a variety of cultural and ethnic group life styles when dealing with the suggested topics in this outline. Children must be helped to see that this nation and world are pluralistic and that pluralism is valid, and, in fact, desirable.

8. SPECIAL DAYS, WEEKS, EVENTS — The special days, weeks and events of various cultural groups in the U.S. should be an integral part of the ongoing class activities throughout the school year.

The program suggested herein provides adequate depth and breadth for a comprehensive social studies program. However, it is realized that individual teachers will have a desire to emphasize emergent issues in education and our society. Therefore, it is suggested that issues such as those listed below be emphasized throughout the program by developing and implementing inquiry units. Some contemporary emergent issues include:

1. CAREER AWARENESS — An examination of people and their enjoyment and selection of careers.

2. CITIZENSHIP AWARENESS — The questioning and exploration of what good citizenship is in our society as well as other societies.

3. ECOLOGY AWARENESS — An examination of man's use, abuse and preservation of his physical and social environment.

4. CULTURAL AWARENESS — Exploring the culture, history and contributions of the ethnic minority groups in the United States.

5. VALUE AWARENESS — An examination of people and the values they hold. Through value clarification techniques, explore the values held by self as well as the values of others.
FIRST YEAR (KINDERGARTEN)

GOALS AND MATERIALS
The first year of social studies instruction introduces the child to all program components of the K-12 social studies program. Many of the basic understandings that will be built upon as the child progresses through school begins in the first year. The topic is "Self" and using this topic as a tool, knowledge, skills and attitudes, feelings, and values are developed.

Nurturing the development of a positive self concept is the prime purpose for introducing the social studies program to the child with the topic of "Self." In doing so, the child is helped to expand his views of and his relations with other individuals. Lessening of the ego and ethnocentric frames of reference, a goal for all education, would begin with such a study.

In this first year, the child is introduced to a concept in each of the seven social studies disciplines and asked to consider it with respect to him/herself (the Individual), compared to other people (Similarities and Differences), and what effect people have on other people (Interdependence). The concepts for the first year are as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Discipline</th>
<th>Pol. Science</th>
<th>Sociology</th>
<th>Economics</th>
<th>Geography</th>
<th>History</th>
<th>Anthropology</th>
<th>Social Psychology</th>

The concepts listed above were chosen for their contemporary significance and social utility.

From an early age, children should be helped to explore and clarify their attitudes, values and feelings toward themselves and society of which they are a part. This is a very important area of a child's life experience since the values held will determine how knowledge is used. Hopefully, by using various affective processes, the child will be helped to deal responsibly and rationally with human problems. Several inservice programs offered by the system at this time will help the teacher gain expertise in value clarification, exploration of feelings, and conflict resolution.

In the early years of school, children should be introduced to and helped to apply those skills which are utilized in social studies instruction. Application of skills is the key phrase when referring to social studies skills, since most of the skills that are used in social studies are introduced in other areas.

Appendix A on page 16 of this outline, entitled "Skills Applied in Social Studies," suggests when skills should be introduced, developed systematically and retaught maintained and extended. This should serve the teacher as a tentative guideline to year placement of skills instruction. It, of course, can not be interpreted exactly as written, since different children bring different abilities to the classroom.

In reading the skill goals listed on page 6 for Year One or the chart in Appendix A the teacher's attention is called to the Thinking Skills. Social studies is one area where children can be helped to use and develop the thinking skills necessary for every area of instruction. The teacher can gain expertise in helping children develop thinking abilities by participating in any of the following inservice programs - Basic, Taba, McREL.

SUGGESTED FIRST YEAR GOALS FOLLOW ON THE NEXT TWO PAGES.
KNOWLEDGE GOALS

1. KNOW THAT PEOPLE ARE INDIVIDUALS.

   Sub Goals

   Understand that:

   PS A. People have rights and responsibilities.
   S B. People have the ability to learn.
   E C. People are consumers and contributors to goods and services produced.
   G D. People have an environment that has location and physical features.
   H E. People are continually changing in a constantly changing environment.
   A F. People have unique characteristics.
   SP G. People have emotional wants and needs.

2. KNOW THAT PEOPLE ARE SIMILAR AND DIFFERENT.

   Sub Goals

   Understand that:

   PS A. the rights and responsibilities of one person are similar to and different from the rights and responsibilities of another person for various reasons.
   S B. what one person learns is similar to and different from what others learn.
   E C. what one person is able to produce and consume is similar to and different from what other people are able to produce and consume.
   G D. the physical features and location of one person's environment is similar to and different from another person's environmental location and physical features.
   H E. the effects of change on one person are similar to and different from the effects of change on others.
   A F. the characteristics of one person are similar to and different from the characteristics of others.
   SP G. the emotional needs and wants of one person are similar to and different from the emotional needs and wants of others.

3. KNOW THAT PEOPLE ARE INTERDEPENDENT.

   Sub Goals

   Understand that:

   PS A. the rights and responsibilities of one person affect and are affected by the rights and responsibilities of another person.
   S B. what one person learns affects and is affected by what other people learn.
   E C. what one person consumes and produces affects and is affected by what other people produce and consume.
   G D. one part of the environment affects and is affected by other parts of the environment.
   H E. change affects and is affected by other changes.
   A F. diversity in people separates and unites.
   SP G. the emotional needs of one person affect and are affected by the emotional needs of others.

ATTITUDES, FEELINGS AND VALUES GOALS

1. EXPLORE FEELINGS OF SELF AND OTHERS.

   Sub Goals

   a. Identify how individuals feel when placed in different emotional situations.
b. Infer personal and others’ feelings in similar situations.
c. Generalize about feelings of people in general.

2. MAKE DECISIONS ABOUT INTERPERSONAL PROBLEMS.

Sub Goals
a. Consider problem situation involving interpersonal conflict.
b. Analyze what protagonists should do.
c. Compare similar situations in individual lives.
d. Evaluate whether what was done in each situation was “good” or “bad” and why.

3. ANALYZE VALUES

Sub Goals
a. Recall certain behaviors
b. Infer values involved.
c. Explain how those values differ (if at all) from the values of other people in analogous situations.

SKILL GOALS*

(Skills shared with other disciplines)
1. Locate information.
2. Organize information.
3. Evaluate information.
4. Acquire information through reading.
5. Acquire information through listening and observing.
6. Communicate orally and in writing.
7. Interpret pictures, charts, graphs and tables.
8. Work with others. (Note Appendix B.)

(Skills which are a major responsibility of social studies)
1. Read social studies material.
2. Apply decision making skills to social issues.
3. Understand time and chronology
4. Interpret maps and globes.
5. Apply thinking skills

*A complete listing of these skills showing detailed description and year placement of each skill can be found in Appendix A. Not all of the above skills will be applied during the first year.
The following materials are a beginning bibliography for year one. A bibliography must continually grow. Materials will be added periodically. Check with the social studies consultant for the most recent list.

SECOND YEAR (FIRST GRADE)

GOALS AND MATERIALS
RATIONALE

The Second Year of social studies instruction continues what was introduced in the First Year and introduces some new items in the skills and knowledge areas. Close communication between the First and Second Year teachers is paramount since the program listed for these Years interrelates closely. The topic is “Family” and using this topic as a tool, knowledge, skills and attitudes, feelings and values are developed.

KNOWLEDGE

The Family, an institution of all mankind, is studied in the early years of a child's education to provide an expanded frame of reference regarding the social, political, and economic aspects of it. Different family forms and the roles family members assume are all considered to show the uniqueness of Families.

The students are introduced to a concept in each of the social studies disciplines and asked to consider them with respect to him/her (the Individual), compared to other people (Similarities and Differences), and what effect people have on other people (Interdependence). The concepts for the Second year are as follows:

<table>

The teacher can gain expertise in helping children develop thinking abilities by participating in any of the following inservice programs - Basic. Taba, McKEL.

THIRD YEAR (SECOND GRADE)

GOALS AND MATERIALS
RATIONALE

The social studies program for year three continues the program components from years one and two and adds new content and some new skills work. Once again, as with the first two years, close communication between and among teachers of years one, two, and three, is very important. The success of the program for the students relies heavily on this communication.

The topic for year three is Neighborhood, and using this topic as a tool, knowledge, skills and attitudes, feelings and values are developed and explored.

KNOWLEDGE

The neighborhood is an important element of society and an integral part of a young child's environment because of its immediacy. A study of the expanding functions of the neighborhood will help the child understand what is not obvious to him/her.

The influences of the neighborhood on the child are considered since it helps to shape her/his frame of reference.

The students are introduced to a concept in each of the social studies disciplines and asked to consider it with respect to him/herself (the Individual), compared to other people (Similarities and Differences) and what effect people have on other people (Interdependence). The concepts for the Third Year are as follows:

   c. Explain how those values differ (if at all) from the values of other people in analogous situations.

SKILL GOALS*

(Skills shared with other disciplines)

1. Locate information.
2. Organize information.
3. Evaluate information.
4. Acquire information through reading.
5. Acquire information through listening and observing.
6. Communicate orally and in writing.
7. Interpret pictures, charts, graphs and tables.
8. Work with others. (Note Appendix B.)

(Skills which are a major responsibility of social studies)

1. Read social studies material.
2. Apply decision making skills to social issues.
3. Understand time and chronology.
4. Interpret maps and globes.
5. Apply thinking skills.

*A complete listing of these skills showing detailed description and year placement of each skill can be found in Appendix A. Not all of the above skills would be applied during the third year.
SUGGESTED MATERIALS
THIRD YEAR -- "NEIGHBORHOOD"

The following materials are a beginning bibliography for year three. A bibliography must continually grow. Materials will be added periodically. Check with the social studies consultant for the most recent list.

d. Some author cards give more information than the title or subject card.

e. Information such as publisher, date of publication, number of pages and of illustrations, and usually some annotation are provided.

f. The Dewey Decimal System is a key to finding books.

F. Gather facts from field trips and interviews

1. Identify the purpose of the field trip or interview
2. Plan procedures, rules of behavior, questions to be asked, things to look for.
3. Take increasingly greater initiative in the actual conduct of the field trip or interview.
4. Evaluate the planning and execution of the field trip or interview.
5. Find acceptable way to open and close an interview.
6. Express appreciation for courtesies extended during the field trip or interview.
7. Record, summarize, and evaluate information gained.

G. Be selective in using audiovisual materials

(See Acquiring information through listening and observing; and Interpreting pictures, charts, graphs, tables; Part One, Sections V, VII.)

II. Use maps and globes in developing geographic skills
(See Interpreting maps and globes, Part Two, Section III.)

II. Organize information

A. Make an outline of topics to be investigated and seek material about each major point, using more than one source.

</table>
8. Exchange ideas through discussion, either as leader or participant

9. Respect limitations of time and the right of others to be heard

B. Write with clarity and exactness

1. Collect, evaluate, and organize information around a clearly defined topic (see Sections I-V above)

2. Write independently, avoiding copying from references

3. Give credit for quoted material

4. Use standard English

5. Include a bibliography to show source of information

6. Include footnotes when necessary

7. Apply the skills being developed in printing, writing, spelling, punctuating, capitalizing, and arranging written work

8. Proofread and revise

VII. Interpret pictures, charts, graphs, tables

A. Interpret pictorial materials

1. Recognize these materials as sources of information

2. Distinguish between types of pictorial material, recognize the advantages of each, and recognize the need for objectivity in interpretation

3. Note and describe the content of the material, both general and specific

4. Interpret by applying related information, and use the material as one basis for drawing conclusions

B. Interpret cartoons

1. Recognize these materials as expressing a point of view and interpret the view expressed

2. Note and interpret the common symbols used in cartoons

C. Study charts

1. Understand the steps in development indicated

10. Use different map projections to learn how the pattern of meridians and that of parallels differ.

11. Construct simple maps which are properly oriented as to direction.

B. Locate places on maps and globes

1. Recognize the home city and state on a map of the United States and on a globe.

2. Recognize land and water masses on a globe and on a variety of maps—physical-political, chalkboard, weather, etc.

3. Identify on a globe and on a map of the world, the equator, tropics, circles, continents, oceans, large islands.

4. Use a highway map for locating places by number-and-key system; plan a trip using distance, direction, and locations.

5. Relate low latitudes to the equator and high latitudes to the polar areas.

6. Interpret abbreviations commonly found on maps.

7. Use map vocabulary and key accurately.

8. Use longitude and latitude in locating places on wall maps.

9. Use an atlas to locate places.

10. Identify the time zones of the United States and relate them to longitude.

11. Understand the reason for the International Date Line, and compute time problems of international travel.

12. Consult two or more maps to gather information about the same area.

13. Recognize location of major cities of the world with respect to their physical setting.

14. Trace routes of travel by different means of transportation.

15. Develop a visual image of major countries, land forms, and other map patterns studied.

16. Read maps of various types which show elevation.

D. Interpret map symbols and visualize what they represent

1. Understand that real objects can be represented by pictures or symbols on a map.
2. Learn to use legends on different kinds of maps.
3. Identify the symbols used for water features to learn the source, month, direction of flow, depth, and ocean currents.
4. Study color contour and visual relief maps and visualize the nature of the areas shown.
5. Interpret the elevation of the land from the flow of rivers.
6. Interpret dots, lines, colors, and other symbols used in addition to pictorial symbols.
7. Use all parts of a world atlas.

E. Compare maps and draw inferences

1. Read into a map the relationships suggested by the data shown, as the factors which determine the location of cities.
2. Compare two maps of the same area, combine the data shown on them, and draw conclusions based on the data.
3. Recognize that there are many kinds of maps for many uses, and learn to choose the best map for the purpose at hand.
4. Understand the differences in different map projections and recognize the distortions involved in any representation of the earth other than the globe.
5. Use maps and the globe to explain the geographic setting of historical and current events.
6. Read a variety of special-purpose maps and draw inferences on the basis of data obtained from them and from other sources.
7. Infer man's activities or way of living from physical detail and from latitude.

IV. Understand time and chronology

A. Develop an understanding of the time system and the calendar

1. Learn to tell time by the clock.
2. Use names of the days of the week in order.

B. Develop an understanding of events as part of a chronological series of events and an understanding of the differences in duration of various periods of time

1. Recognize sequence and chronology in personal experiences, as the school day, weekly schedule, etc. ................................................................. LP.................................................. EI J
2. Learn to arrange personal experiences in order. .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
3. Comprehend sequence and order as expressed in first, second, third, etc. ................. EP.................................................. LP J
4. Learn to think of the separation of an event from the present in arithmetical terms. .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
5. Learn to figure the length of time between two given dates .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
6. Understand differences in duration of various historical periods ................................. EP.................................................. LP J
7. Understand and make simple time lines ................................................................. EP.................................................. LP J
8. Use a few cluster date-events to establish time relationships among historic events .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
9. Learn to relate the past to the present in the study of change and continuity in human affairs .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
10. Learn to formulate generalizations and conclusions about time in studying the development of human affairs .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J

V. Apply thinking skills

1. Observe-notice one or more attributes of objects, pictures, etc. .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
2. Recall specific data from something observed or experienced previously ........................ EP.................................................. LP J
3. Notice differences, identify one or more differences in attributes of two or more objects, pictures, events, etc. .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
4. Notice similarities, identify one or more similar attributes of two or more objects, pictures, events, etc. .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
5. Order objects or events according to given attributes or criteria, e.g., “Which of these is the biggest?” “Which is smallest?” “Which are middle-sized?” etc. .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
6. Group, put together several objects, pictures, etc., based on one or more common attributes or other relationships .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
7. Label, give a name to an item or a relationship among a group of items .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
8. Classify, include items in a given class, i.e., with others called by the same name .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
9. Test concepts, differentiate between critical and optional attributes, e.g. “If this orange were peeled, would it still be an orange?” .................................................... EP.................................................. LP J
