This Spanish as a Second Language program aims to immerse first-year high school Spanish students in the Mexican language and culture of today. The 600-word vocabulary and grammar are equivalent to a half-year study in class periods of 40-50 minutes daily, five days a week. Cultural topics include greetings, the Mexican house, education, racial composition of Mexico, weekend activities, shopping, geographical regions and Indian civilizations of Mexico. The filmstrips are made up of vividly colored photographs; a variety of voices, and some music are featured in the recordings.

Track 1 of each tape contains recorded material in English and Spanish for each filmstrip with audible and inaudible signals for advancing frames.

Track 2 contains student practice exercises for the classroom or a language laboratory.

This reading series is designed as a text suitable for filling the void of materials expressive of the Mexican American child’s home culture. Parallel editions (Spanish and English) result in bilinguality or can be used singly; the contents and illustrations are multicultural. Stories are presented in developmental sequence. The Teacher’s Guide presents a Suggested approach to instruction, and Questions the teacher may use with students (presented in both Spanish and English). Also included in the Guide are a List of Selected References on Beginning Reading for Teachers, and an evaluative Checklist of Skills for the Teacher.

Level One—Myself . . . Yo. Thirteen simple stories range from eight to eighteen lines (three pages). A full-page illustration faces each page of text, and is a part of the story. Stories include: “Myself”,” “Dogs”, “Halloween Night”, “When I Was Little”, and others.

Level Two—My Friends . . . Mis Amigos. Seven stories about Jaimito’s friends, who are of various ages. Vocabulary and length increases to six pages, each facing a full-page illustration. “Elena y su Novio”, “Tres Niños”, “Un domingo por la mañana” are among the stories.

Level Three—My Family . . . Mi Familia. These five stories deal slightly more with the daily ways of the Mexican American, and are tinged with the fantasy and pathos so common to third grade children: “The Last Fish”, “A Home for Juan”, “Mother Knows Best”. The last story is illustrated with two-tone photographs rather than the drawings which so far characterize the series.

Level Four—Happy Days . . . Días Felices. The four stories at this level delve more than at previous levels into the essential benefits of bilingual multiculturalism and, as previous stories, these strengthen a good self-image in children of either ethnic background. The stories are: "La Medicina para Mama", "Gabriela Celebra el 4 de julio", "Una Licuadora para Abuelita", and "El Doble Cumpleaños".

Level Five—Names and Places . . . Nombres y Lugares. The meanings of names are discussed in "Dandelion, I Love You, Too"; the making of tamales for Christmas in "Shucks, Sí—Foil, No", a young Mexican girl moving to California in "From Mexico City to Los Angeles", and a Mexican American boy visiting Mexico with his parents in "Land of the Pyramids". Photographic illustration.

Level Six—Customs Across the Border . . . Costumbres del Otro Lado de la Frontera. Four stories—"Un Americano Muy Especial", "Navidad, Navidad", "El Arbol de Chito", and "La Llorona"—deal in various conflicts experienced by children in bicultural situations, suggesting through the stories possible resolutions to such dilemmas.

Teacher’s Manual: Three Sample Teaching Units.

The purpose of this bulletin is to present for the native speaker of Spanish a program which recognizes the linguistic skills he already possesses. Emphasis is placed on total language proficiency and appreciation for the Hispanic heritage of the native speaker. The bulletin provides specific guidelines concerning specialized classes, selection of teachers, objectives, methods and approaches, teaching techniques, materials, and equipment. Appendices include a bibliography, topics for cultural content, pronunciation exercises, and a list of symbols for phonemic transcription. While not a complete course of study, an outline of basic language elements to be mastered in the first two levels of instruction and sample teaching units are included.

FIVE CHILDREN / FIVE FAMILIES: A Cultural Awareness Sound Filmstrip Program for Early Childhood

Scholastic Early Childhood Center, Ann Morris, editorial director; Photography by Ken Heyman. Scholastic Book Services, 904 Sylvan Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey 07632. c.1972. Each Unit: five 60-frame filmstrips (7 minutes each) with accompanying 7-inch LP records, a display poster, and Teacher’s Guide. Cassette option available. $49.50 for each Unit. English: Preschool, First and Second Grade.

Unit One: Five Children includes: “Cowboy”, “Mira Mira Marisol”, “Happy Birthday Howard”, “Fisherman’s Son”, and “Sara’s Letter.”

Unit Two: Five Families includes “Together”, “Yah-a-tay”, “Circus Family”, “Piñata”, and “Chinatown”.

This audio-visual program is intended to expose young children to a variety of American people and places. While the emphasis is on cultural diversity, common denominators include mealtimes, bedtimes, school, play, parties, families, and homes. Full-color photographs and appropriately selected music lend individuality to the cultural background; visual techniques illuminate an Indian prayer, a child’s dream of becoming a circus performer, or a breaking piñata. Frames are paced to hold the preschooler’s attention. Although the narrators speak foreign words with an English inflection, the children's voices are mostly authentic.

Les Français Comme Ils Sont. André Fertey, Annick Flannery, Wolfgang Kraft. Produced and distributed by EMC Corporation, 180 E. 6th Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101. c.1973. $88.00, 30 day approval. French: High School. Includes six filmstrips, six tapes (cassette or reel-to-reel), six Student Activity booklets and a Teacher's Guide. Additional Student Activity booklets $.75 ea. ($.60 ea. in quantities of 20 or more). Additional Teacher's Guide—$2.50; Replacement filmstrips or tapes $7.50.

This sound filmstrip series centers on groups of French people of all ages at school, shopping, and traveling. Scenery and geography provide a taste of France today and give cultural background. The color photography is clear and its subject matter varied and of interest to students. A basic vocabulary of 500 words suits the program to a beginning class of high school French students. Student Activity booklets provide exercises on perforated sheets for dialogue, pronunciation, spoken and written French, culture, games, grammar and vocabulary.

The tapes have audible and inaudible signals to advance the filmstrip frames. Each tape presents the dialogue in both French and English for use with the filmstrip, then provides repetition, substitution or transformation drills for use in the classroom or language laboratory. Generally, a single masculine narrator is heard, and there is little music or sound effects.
Ideas y Actividades de Arte para la Clase Bicultural.
English title: Ideas and Art Activities for a Bicultural Classroom.
This resource guide provides visual aids, art and craft ideas, stories, patterns, songs, and games to facilitate the introduction of the Mexican culture into the classroom. Materials include Activities for a Listening Post; Puppets and Bulletin Board Patterns (La Cucarachita, Poster Ideas, Regional Costumes of Mexico); and Games, Songs, and Dances. Flannelboard stories are told in Spanish and English: “La China Poblana”, “Legend of La China Poblana and El Charro”, “Moon God of the Mayas”, “Story of César Chávez”, “Cuauhtémoc”, and “Benito Juárez”; some may need simplification to allow for the free flow of pieces onto and off the board. Full-size puppet patterns are illustrated with instructions; however, scripts for puppet shows are not included in the book. Words (without music) are provided for songs to be sung during the games.

Mexican American Profiles... Perfiles Mexicoamericanos.
Designed as a text, useful for independent reading or as part of a library’s biography collection. Questions for discussion or thought follow each of the 26 three-to-four-page biographical sketches. Among others, the following persons are included: Romana Bañuelos, Vikki Carr, Ernesto Galarza, “Corky” González, Dolores Huerta, Roberto Mondragón, Jim Plunkett, Anthony Quinn, George Sánchez, Danny Villanueva. Included in the back are an index to the profiles by state of origin, and readable guides to further reading and sources of information for the students.

Directed to a native speaker of English, this study with recordings presents Spanish morphology systematically. The author has collected derivatives and compounds throughout much of Latin America. A discussion of inflectional affixation (nominal, adjectival, verbal, and pre-nominal) is presented first, followed by a discussion of modificative suffixes, transformative prefixes and suffixes, multiple affixation, parasyntesis, compounding, borrowed compounds, and acronyms. Narration by a masculine voice is clear; oral lectures and exercises correlated with this text are suited to home study or a language laboratory.
Pinocchio. (Multi-media), Carlo Collodi; illustrated by Eva Irrera. Produced and distributed by Hudson Photographic Industries, Irvington-on-Hudson, New York 10533. c.1973. 4 color filmstrips, average 48 frames, 9.1/2 minutes; 4 records or cassettes; Teacher’s Guide and Script. Complete sets: $60.00 with records, $64.00 with Cassette Tapes. Spanish or English Narrations: Grades 1-4.

This simplified, complete reproduction of Pinocchio preserves much of the original language of Collodi’s story. The full color, cartoon-style visuals are appealing to children; the single feminine voice narration is clear and well-paced. The four-part story lends itself to four presentations of 10 minutes each. Scripts for both Spanish and English versions can be related in second and third grade bilingual programs in the areas of storytelling, language arts, and folklore.

This documentary sourcebook, a collection of manuscripts by 18 authors, is intended as a classroom text in a wide range of classes; e.g. urban sociology, ethnic relations, minority groups in the U.S., etc. The book is divided into four parts: Part I (The Island Background) provides a politico-economic-cultural kaleidoscope of island life and is intended as background information to understand mainland experiences. Part II (The Migration) brings together the data for a correct appraisal of the phenomenon, including return migration. Part III (Life on the Mainland: Conflict and Acculturation) furnishes multi-dimensional perspectives of the mainland experience. Part IV (Education on the Mainland) explores the experience in schools with respect to problems and achievements of bilingual programs.

Just over 750 titles of reports, studies and other related materials are presented in six categories. Most items are annotated, descriptively rather than evaluatively. Classified categories are: General Bibliographies; The Island Experience; The Migration to the Mainland; The Mainland Experience; The Mainland Experience: Education; and The Mainland Experience: The Social Context. A lengthy introduction presents an overview of the situation which presents itself to the Puerto Rican American, especially in relation to his education and resulting preparation for daily life and a successful future on the U.S. mainland.

LA RAZA. Multi-Media Productions and Southwest Council of La Raza. Distributor: Multi-Media Productions, Inc., P.O. Box 5097, Stanford, California 94305. c.1969. Complete set, $235.00; The Mexican Heritage, $60.00, The Pioneer Heritage, $40.00, Conflict of Cultures, $60.00, The Awakening, $80.00. English and Spanish Versions: JHS-HS.
Replacement fee for a damaged filmstrip or record is $6.98.

La Raza is a 12-lesson audio-visual course divided into 4 modules which may be presented as a whole or fitted by sections into the existing curriculum. Two 50 to 65-frame filmstrips accompany each LP record; playing time averages 18 minutes for each lesson. Narration is in either English or Spanish. Records have audible and inaudible signals for advancing frames, and little musical accompaniment. The presentation is open-ended and factual. It encourages the instructor and students to draw conclusions from suggested discussion topics presented in the teacher's manual. Some familiarity with the subject matter is required of the instructor.

The color visuals which make up the filmstrips make an interesting historical collection for a library or classroom; paintings, drawings, photographs, maps and old photographs are reproduced.

The Barrio and its traditions, familial relationships and rules, are presented with exceptional clarity and pride by Ms. Flores. This exposition is of interest and benefit to Anglo readers; such material is also invaluable in building the self-concept of Mexican American youth in this bicultural society. Themes treated in Part I include Mexican Greetings, The Man of the House, The Mexican Car and Its Boy, A Mexican Young Lady, and Godparents in the Barrio.

Part II is entitled “Thoughts From the Barrio”, and covers such themes as Respect, The Permission, Grandparents, My Goddaughter, and Our Garden.

A simply presented approach to understanding and enhancing the development of positive self-concept in children. While this booklet is not designed specifically for bilingual, bicultural programs, its usefulness lies in the subject matter and its high level of readability for teachers, aides, or parents. Stages of self-concept development from birth and toddlerhood through school years, and into adulthood are treated realistically and clearly. Line drawings are interspersed.

Originally produced as a television course by the British Broadcasting Corporation; each episode is dramatized on tape with full sound effects using native Spanish speakers (European pronunciation). Discotheques, hotels, cafés, bars, garages, and a police station form the modern big-city milieu of the dramatizations. Conversational Spanish is emphasized with a minimum of grammar. Some of the scenes, such as a gangland-style killing and police line-up, are sure to hold student interest. Actors recite lines clearly against lively background noises which convey atmosphere without being distracting.
