DESIGNED TO MEASURE CHILDREN'S SKILL AT RECOVERING THE DEEP STRUCTURE RELATIONSHIPS OF SENTENCES, THE TEST CONTAINS TWENTY-FIVE GROUPS OF THREE SENTENCES AND DIRECTS THE CHILDREN TO CIRCLE THE SENTENCE WHICH HAS A DIFFERENT MEANING WITHIN EACH GROUP. MEANS AND STANDARD DEVIATIONS ARE LISTED BY SEX, AND CONTENT VALIDITY IS ESTABLISHED FOR THE TEST BY STATING SIX ASSUMPTIONS ON WHICH THE ABILITY TO RECOVER DEEP STRUCTURE RESTS AND BY DISCUSSING EACH ASSUMPTION WITH REGARD TO THE TEST. RELIABILITY WAS ESTABLISHED BY THE KUDER-RICHARDSON 20, WHICH RESULTED IN A COEFFICIENT OF .7964. Measures for Research and Evaluation in the English Language Arts

TRIP is an acronym which signifies an effort to abstract and make readily available measures for research and evaluation in the English language arts. These measures relate to language development, listening, literature, reading, standard English as a second language or dialect, teacher competencies, or writing. In order to make these instruments more readily available, the ERIC Clearinghouse on Reading and Communication Skills has supported the TRIP committee sponsored by the Committee on Research of the National Council of Teachers of English and has processed the material into the ERIC system. The ERIC Clearinghouse accession numbers that encompass most of these documents are CS40320 -CS403325.

Title: "Deep Structure Recovery Test (D.S.R.T.)"
Author: Herbert D. Simons
Age Range: Intermediate

Description of the Instrument:

Purpose: This test is designed to measure children's skill at recovering the deep structure relationships of sentences.
Date of Construction: 1969

Physical Description: One aspect of what is understood in reading comprehension is the structural relationships of sentences. For example, in the sentences:

(a) John is eager to please
(b) John is easy to please

The reader must understand that in (a) John is the one doing the pleasing and the person that is pleased is unspecified, while in (b) the reader must understand that it is John who is pleased and the person doing the pleasing is unspecified. This information - the underlying structural relationships, i.e. the logical subject and logical object of the sentence - is necessary to understand a sentence. There are twenty-five items in the test and the children are directed to circle the sentence which has a different meaning.
(a) The boy hit the girl.
(b) The girl was hit by the boy.
(c) The boy was hit by the girl.

Validity, Reliability, and Normative Data:

The test was administered to 87 grade five pupils - 42 boys and 45 girls. Means and standard deviations are listed by sex. Content validity is established for the test by stating six assumptions on which the ability to recover deep structure rests and by discussing each assumption with regard to the test. Correlations between the D.S.R.T. and Cloze tests resulted in a correlation coefficient of .732. A correlation coefficient of .476 was obtained between the D.S.R.T. and the Metropolitan Achievement Test: Reading. Reliability was established by the Kuder - Richardson 20 which resulted in a coefficient of .7964.
