ABSTRACT

BD 091 795

The purpose of this directory is to increase the awareness of the public and of people in the communication field of that field's diversity and its interrelatedness. The contents include the following: "Associations," which lists current information about each organization and is coded to indicate the type of organization; "Association Heeting Calendar," which lists national meetings of the organizations listed in the first section; "Research Centers," which lists communication centers and their investigators, subject coverage, publications, directors, and missions; "Other Research Organizations," which lists organizations that have been conducting research into some aspect of human communication; "Research Data Sources," "Research Glossaries," and "Bducation Information Sources," which provide in most cases a title, a description, a source abbreviation, a type code, price data, and an explanatory note; "Education Source Table," which lists nineteen communication specialties and shows the level of degree or certificate programs offered in various colleges and universities in the United States and Canada; "Subject Index"; "Organization Index"; "People Index"; "Title Index": and "Acronym List." ABBREVIATIONS

In the Research Data Sources, Research Glossaries, Career Information Sources, and Education Information Sources sections of this Directory three types of abbreviations are used. All three are clustered at the end of each entry after the item's title and and descriptive material.

The first is an acronym for the organization through which the item is available – sometimes the originating organization, sometimes a secondary distribution agency such as NTIS or ERIC. Those acronyms are listed alphabetically on the gray-edged pages at the back of the Directory along with the full name of the supplying organization and the address to which you should write to obtain the material.

The second is a code letter indicating what type of thing that item is. Those abbreviations are listed below under the heading "Type Codes". When a type code is followed by a number, the number indicates how many times a year the item is issued.

Abbreviations of the third kind relate to the price of the item. The prices indicated are for single copies unless they are followed by "/y" (per year), in which case the price given is for a year's subscription. The abbreviations used to specify price structure are listed below under the heading "Price Codes".

PREFACE

This Directory is being published to increase the awareness of the public and of people in the communication field of that field's diversity and its interrelatedness. The publishers hope that use of this Directory will promote communication research, encourage young people to enter careers in the communication field, and result in broader interassociation and intercenter contacts and cooperation than have been possible in the past.

The usefulness of this Directory is, of course, a direct function of its accuracy and completeness. We have tried to make it as complete and as accurate as permitted by the information supplied to us. Many associations and centers have more abbreviated listings than we would like because of lack of information. The editor will very much appreciate being sent more complete information by any association or center or by any organization that should be listed in the Directory for use in the next edition. He will also appreciate having errors and omissions in this edition drawn to his attention.

This Directory is the successor to the Directory of Communication Organizations 1970-71, which was published in November 1970. The Council expects to reissue this Directory periodically, but not annually. The date of the next edition has not yet been established.

> V. M. Root, Editor for Council of Communication Societies, Publisher P. O. Box 1074 Silver Spring, Maryland 20910

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The editor wishes to express his sincere appreciation to all the organizations and individuals who contributed information for this Directory and to the many individuals who contributed to its preparation, typesetting, proofreading, and layout.

Associations

In the following listing we have included as much current information about each organization as we have been able to obtain. The letter in square brackets following the name of some of the associations indicates the type of organization it is. [A] means an accrediting agency; [C] means a for-profit corporation; [1] means an organization composed of institutions or other organizations; [P] means a professional association; [S] means a public or educational service organization; [T] means a trade association; [U] means a trade union. Many of the associations listed do not carry such an indicator because the editor did not have sufficient information to determine the organization's type with a reasonable degree of confidence. We recognize that the type categories are not necessarily mutually exclusive, and indeed in a few cases two type classes have been applied to the same organization.

ACKGROUND: In September 1895 two Belgian scientists founded he Institut International de Bibliographie, which was devoted primarily o generating a card file of the world's publications output. To bring reaningful organization to this file the workers at the Institut developed he Universal Decimal Classification (UDC) system that is now widely sed in the world's libraries. The Institut also initiated the use of microilm for document reproduction purposes. In 1931, in response to the idespread use of the term "documentation", the Institut changed its ame to Institut International de Documentation. In 1938, in recogniion of the increasing contributions of organizations in other countries, he name was again changed to Fédération Internationale de Documenation. PURPOSES: In general terms, the purpose of FID is to help find ays for man to deal effectively with the world output of scientific and rchnical information and with the new technologies for its processing, torage, and dissemination. FID's primary general emphasis, therefore, is p promote, organize and facilitate international cooperation in the docuventation field. More specific directions of FID effort change as world eeds change. Most recently work has been directed toward the study of theoretical foundation for documentation and information science, in-Amation retrieval systems, linguistic problems in scientific information 'ork, national, regional, and international systems and networks, and the aining of documentation specialists and users. ACTIVITIES: FID colborates with more than 50 international organizations the world over in romotion of international cooperation in the documentation field; it rves as a consultant to the United Nations; it maintains about 30 active iternational committees that carry out its program. At present, the main ID committees are working in these areas: research on the theoretical asis of information, classification research, development of the UDC, eory of machine techniques and systems, operational machine techniues and systems, linguistics in documentation, information for industry, education and training, and needs of developing countries. STRUCTURE: The FID is composed of National Members (from 50 countries) and International Members, who collectively constitute the general assembly, FID's ultimate policy-making body. The policies enunciated by the General Assembly are implemented by the FID's Council and Executive Committee, who also provide guidance to the FID's committees and General Secretariat. Information organizations in many developing countries are FID Associates, and hundreds of individual experts and specialized institutes are FID Affiliates. PUBLICATIONS: FID publishes a monthly FID News Bulletin and has in total some 150 publications available including such items as proceedings of FID conferences; full, medium, and abridged editions of the UDC in 20 languages with semiannual extensions; manuals on documentation practice: international directories of information services; international bibliographies in documentation fields; and special reports on studies in specific problem areas. MEETINGS: FID holds an annual conference, usually in September or October. In the 1960's alternate conferences were held at The Hague,

Dr. Wilson Riles, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Sacramento, Ca. BACKGROUND: National Public Radio is America's only noncommercial, interconnected radio network. It is financed by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (which see). It produces some programs, but coordinates these network-produced programs with programs from member stations to decentralize public affairs and special interest programming to assure first-hand coverage at the point of origin. PURPOSE: To provide the public with a broad-based, authentic, multicultural, noncommercial source of news, features, and entertainment. ACTIVITIES: Coordinates program distribution among the member stations of its network, produces NPR programs that are made available to network stations. An example of NPR programming is its daily analytical examination of the day's major news events in its "All Things Considered". It also covers Congressional Hearings, events at the National Press Club, and other Washington news happenings. In its music, art, and drama presentations, which involve ideas, values, and philosophies, NPR's programming is carefully designed to contain elements of interest to all cultures, minorities, and communities. MEMBERSHIP: NPR has 135 member stations in 42 states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia. Membership is by solution, not by individual. BACKGROUND, Public Broadcasting Service is a private nonprofit corporation chartered in 1969 at the request of the public television stations. It is the coordinating network for noncommercial public television. It is supported primarily by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (which see), by the Ford Foundation, and by contributions from the public. PURPOSES: To select, schedule, and promote national television programs and to distribute them to the nation's 238 public (or educational) television stations. ACTIVITIES: PBS selects the best available programs from local stations, state and regional networks, national production centers, and overseas producers, but is prohibited by its charter from producing its own programs. Once programs are selected, PBS schedules them and distributes them live to the interconnected stations within the continental U.S. and by video tape to such overseas locations as Puerto Rico, Guam, and Hawaii. MEMBERSHIP: PBS was created at the instigation of and belongs to the 148 public television licencees who operate some 238 transmitting stations. The members of the PBS network are listed below with their channel numbers:

Treasurer: Martin Sonenberg, Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, New York, NY 10021. (212) 979-3000 Ext. 2407.

BACKGROUND: Founded in 1963. PURPOSES: To seek out, inform, and enlist scientists of all disciplines in public information programs and to promote their growth and proliferation. PRINCIPLES: The public. education activities of SIPI are governed by these three principles that the information presented is unencumbered by political or moral judgments, that the information is developed and presented with traditional scientific accuracy and objectively with due note of divergent studies and interpretations, and that the information is presented in clear, nontechnical terms and is made freely available to all. ACTIVITIES: Work is done by local science information committees and special national task forces; the results of the committee and task-force studies are published in the SIPI journal, Environment, in SIPI environmental workbooks, and in occasional comprehensive reports on specific social problems. Also holds scientific workshops and public education conferences and maintains a science information library, LOCAL COMMITTRES: Many of these committees arose spontaneously in their communities in response to the public's expressed need for scientific information. They now operate as SIPI affiliates under SIPI principles. They offer some or all of these services: a speaker's bureau, the presentation of expert testimony before legislative committees, assistance in preparation of magazine articles and radio and television programs, basic science courses for legislators, lectures, newsletters, university adult-education courses, research reports, libraries, and providing information to citizen groups. Committees now exist or are in the process of forming in the following localities: Boulder (Co.), St. Louis (Mo.), Evanston (II.), Grand Rapids (Mi.), Minneapolis (Mn.), Monterey (Ca.), Nashville (Tn.), New York (NY) (for typical activities, see entry for New York Scientists' Committee for Public Information), Berkeley (Ca.), Rochester (NY), Stanford (Ca.), Staten Island (NY), Westchester (NY), Missoula (Mt.), Madison (Wi.), Fresno (Ca.), Ithaca (NY), Long Beach (Ca.), Los Angeles (Ca.), Philadelphia (Pa.), and Santa Barbara (Ca.). PUBLICATIONS: Environment is a periodical published ten times a year with a circulation of 25,000 copies. It provides a detailed monthly survey of the effects of various technologies on human beings and the environment. Its articles are based on the most recent research findings and are often the first public exploration of emerging problem areas. Environment is published for SIPI by the St. Louis Committee for Environmental Information. Subscriptions may be ordered from Environment, P. O. Box 755, Bridgeton, Mo. 63044. The price is $10 for 1 year, $18.50 for 2 years, or $27 for 3 years. Student subscriptions are $7.50 per year. Foreign subscriptions are $12 per year. SIPI has also published a series of Environmental Workbooks in which the basic facts relating to specific environmental problems are presented in nontechnical form. These include workbooks on air pollution, electric power, environmental education, weapons technology, hunger, nuclear explosives, pesticides, and water pollution. Single copies are available at $1 each or all eight books for $5. Quantity discounts are available. SIPI Report is a quarterly newsletter that presents news of the Institute and its affiliated committees. MEMBERSHIP GRADES AND ANNUAL DUES: Member: open to professional scientists by invitation only. Associate Member: open to any interested person, $25 (Contributing, $50), (Supporting, $100). Sponsoring or Institutional Associate: $1000. MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS: Associate Members receive Environment, the SIPI Report, and reduced rates on other SIPI publications. SPEAKERS: The Institute or its affiliated committees will try to suggest knowledgeable speakers upon request.

Articles deal with such subjects as: technical publications management; use of computers in publication production and retrieval; use of film, video-tape, and other media to convey technical information; the education of technical writers, editors, and illustrators; the preparation of technical illustrations and oral presentations; and other related topics. Articles may range in length from 500 to 3000 words and may be accompanied by three or four illustrations. (In exceptional cases longer articles may be considered.) Contributed articles are always welcome; each will be read by the journal's Review Committee, and publication plans will depend upon the Committee's collective judgment. Articles should be submitted in original and two carbon copies typewritten double or triple spaced on heavy white bond paper. Each sheet should have a margin of at least one inch on all sides. The pages should be numbered consecutively and illustrations should be cited in the text. Articles should be submitted to the Editor: Mr. A. Stanley Higgins, Westinghouse Electric Corporation, Westinghouse Research Laboratories, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15235. Advertising correspondence should be addressed to: The Williams & Wilkins Company, 428 Preston St., Baltimore, Md. 21202, (301) 727-2870. Editorial closing dates are March 1, June 1, September 1, and December 1. MEMBERSHIP GRADES AND ANNUAL DUES: Student Member: Must be a full-time student, $10. Affiliate Member: Must be interested in the arts and sciences of technical communication, $20. Member: Must be engaged full-time in technical communication for at least one year, $20. Senior Member: Must have at least seven years experience in technical communication and must have been a member of STC for at least two consecutive years, $20. Associate Fellow and Fellow are distinctive grades, $20. Sustaining Member: Corporations interested in supporting the aims and programs of the Society, $250. For new members there is an additional one-time enrollment fee of $5 except for students. For Senior Members there is a one-time nonrefundable fee of 15 to cover the expense of verifying the applicant's work history and to help cover the cost of Senior Member distinctives. The dues year runs from January 1 to December 31, but new members who enroll after October 1 are ereditied with having paid dues for the following year. MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS, Affiliate Members, Members, and Senior Members are entitled to vote and to hold elective or appointive offices within the Society as specified by the bylaws. Student Members may vote within their chapters only. Membership, of whatever grade, in-cludes a subscription to Technical Communication and to "intercom," the Society's quarterly newsletter. All members are eligible for reduced registration fees for conferences sponsored by the Society. Most Society members live in or near a city where an STC chapter is located. Most chapters provide for their members, at no cost, monthly or semi-monthly program meetings for at least ten months of the year. At these programs guest speakers and panels discuss theoretical and operational problems of interest to the technical communication profession. Through active participation in chapter activities, through contacts with other members of the profession, through the direct educational effects of chapter and conference programming, and through administrative involvement in Society management, members increase their personal and professional capacities. Most chapters of the Society operate a local employment information service for the members. SPEAKERS: The Executive Director will try to suggest knowledgeable speakers upon request. BACKGROUND: The Society was organized at Washington, D.C. on March 31, 1930. Member CCS. PURPOSES: The prime objectives of the Society are to promote linguistic professionalism, to advance language knowledge and linguistic competence, to provide a forum for discussion of language problems and means of disseminating language information, and to atimulate interest in linguistic activity through professional and social programs. The Society also promotes the professional education and training of linguists, adherence to the highest professional standards in linguistic activity, and appropriate recognition of professional linguistic competence. ACTIVITIES: The Society affords a milieu in which its members have maximum opportunity to develop skills by holding regular monthly meetings devoted to the problems of translation, interpreting, and related language problems; by issuing a professional quarterly, The Federal Linguist, and (during the fall, winter, and spring quarters) a monthly newsletter; by communicating with gov ernment agencies and other appropriate organizations; and by sponsoring a variety of linguistic projects such as surveys and language seminars. The Society works through committees to establish professional standards of performance in the linguistic fields as well as to promote effective educational curricula and training programs in linguistics. The Society works particularly closely with the Civil Service Commission in attempting to define and establish meaningful categories for the classification of linguists in the federal service. MEMBERSHIP: Most of the members are or have been employed by the U.S. Government as translators or interpreters or in positions that require the use of one or more foreign languages. Some members are employed outside the government but are still deeply involved in knowledge and use of languages other than English. The Society numbers about 100 members, most of whom are located in the Washington, DC area. PUBLICATION: The Society's primary publication is The Federal Linguist. It is issued quarterly. It publishes articles relating particularly to problems of the translator and interpreter in the federal service. It also publishes some articles of general linguistic interest. It contains occasional items of Society news, but this information is disseminated primarily through the "SFL Newsletter." Articles should be submitted to the Editor: The Federal Linguist, P. O. Box 7765, Washington, DC 20044. MEMBERSHIP GRADES AND ANNUAL DUES: Full Mem ber: U.S. citizen, employed by the federal government as a translator or interpreter or in a position that requires use of a foreign language at least half time, $10. Associate Member: same as Full Member, except not employed by the federal government, $10. Life Member: An honorary grade that may be conferred upon Full or Associate Members for having rendered distinguished service to the Society and the profession after at least 15 years of regular membership, None. Honorary Member: People who have made outstanding contributions to the linguistic profession but who have not been members of the Society, may be elected to Honorary Membership by the Society, None. Both Full and Associate Members are required to pay a $1 initiation fee. MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS: Full, Associate, and Life Members are eligible to vote on all matters coming before the Society and may hold office in the Society, except that Associate Members and Life Associate Members may not hold the office of President or Vice President. All members may attend meetings of the Society and receive both The Federal Linguist and the "SFL Newsletter," The Society also furnishes its members with information on language tools and techniques and advises them on job opportunities in foreign language fields.

Association Meeting Calendar

In the following listing we have included as much information as we had available at press time about national meetings of the organizations listed in the first section of this Directory. Bear in mind that plans do change, so data for 1975 and after must be considered as tentative and should be reconfirmed with the sponsoring organizations before making travel plans. To find the name-abbreviation for a particular organization, look up the organization in the Association listing. To translate the name-abbreviations used in this listing into their full organization names, refer to the siphabetical listing of acronyms on the gray-edged pages at the end of the Directory.

Research Centers

It is particularly difficult to keep up-to-date on Centers. New ones open and old ones close or move to a new location with astonishing rapidity. Every effort has been made to make the following listing accurate and current, but it will undoubtedly contain some errors. The Editor will very much appreciate having erroneous or omitted entries drawn to his attention.

BUREAU OF COMMUNICATIONS RESEARCH Dept. of Journalism and Mass Communications South Dakota State Univ., Brookings, SD 57006 Tele: (605) 688-4171

DIRECTOR: George Phillips ----

MISSION: The mission is to conduct research in the area of the Bureau's greatest competence: typography and printing. Generally, the approach has been on the problem-solving level, rather than on the esoteric theoretical level of communication. Yet these studies have added to theory one brick at a time.

SUBJECT COVERAGE: Typography and printing.

BUREAU OF MASS COMMUNICATIONS RESEARCH School of Journalism, Univ. of Iowa, Iowa City, Ia. 52240 Tele: (319) 353-3283

DIRECTOR: Richard W. Budd

- MISSION: The Bureau is a step in an effort to upgrade markedly both the quality and the quantity of mass media and communication research goals from the University. The Bureau assists in focusing the research goals of the University communication program, and seeks support for and facilitates research by faculty members and graduate students.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The work of the Bureau encompasses research and development in helping to solve and improve upon the simple act of people communicating to people through the mass media.

BUREAU OF MEDIA RESEARCH

College of Journalism and Communications University of Florida, Gainesville, Fl.

This organization no longer exists under this name. Its duties have been assumed by the Communication Research Center, 400 Stadium, College of Journalism and Communications, University of Florida, Gainesville, Fl. 32601, which see.

BUREAU OF PRESS AND BROADCASTING RESEARCH School of Journalism

Univ. of Montana, Missoula, Mt. 59801

Tele: (406) 243-4001

DIRECTOR: Warren J. Brier

- MISSION: To report and evaluate the performance of the mass media with emphasis on Montana newspapers and radiotelevision stations; to encourage study and understanding of the news media; to present the research findings of students, faculty members, graduates, and visiting lecturers of the Montana School of Journalism; to trace and preserve historical information about the Montana news media and Montana journalists; to foster improvement in the communications industry and the profession of journalism.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The news media, stressing those in Montana.
- PUBLICATIONS: Montana Journalism Review, published annually since 1958. Directory of Montana Broadcasters, published annually since 1959.

CENTER FOR APPLIED LINGUISTICS 1611 North Kent Street, Arlington, Va. 22209 Tele: (703) 528-4312

DIRECTOR: Rudolph C. Troike

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: A -- Hood -- Roberts (Vice President), John H. Hammer (Secretary), Bernarda Erwin (Assistant Secretary), Walter P. McIntosh (Treasurer).
- MISSION: To apply linguistics to practical problems and to further linguistic studies in general.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: Teaching English to speakers of other languages; teaching standard English to speakers of non-standard varieties; teaching foreign languages; linguistic studies; bibliographics, state-of-the-art papers and surveys; linguistic documentation.
- PUBLICATIONS: All orders and inquiries concerning publications should be addressed to Publications Section, Center for Applied Linguistics. The Linguistic Reporter, the newsletter of the Center for Applied Linguistics, is published 6 times a year. Editor, Allene Guss Grognet; annual subscription, $1,50.
 - Bibliographic Studies: A Bibliography of American Doctoral Dissertations in Linguistics: 1900-1964, compiled by Phillip R. Rutherford; 1968; $5.00.
 - A Bibliography of Contrastive Linguistics, compiled and edited by John H. Hammer in consultation with Frank A. Rice, 1965; $3.50 cloth; $2.00 paper.
 - Information Sources in Linguistics, compiled and edited by Frank Rice and Allene Guss Grognet; 1965; $3,50 cloth; $2.00 paper.
 - A Provisional Survey of Materials for the Study of Neglected Languages, by Birgit A. Blass, Dora E. Johnson, and William W. Gage; 1969; $9.50.
 - Linguistic Reading Lists for Teachers of Modern Languages, edited by Charles A. Ferguson and William A. Stewart; 1963; $2.50.
 - Reference List of Materials for English as a Second Language, edited by Sirarpi Ohannessian and others. Part 1: Texts, Readers, Dictionaries, Tests; 1964; $5.00 cloth; $3.00 paper. Part 2: Background Materials and Methodology; 1966; $5.00 cloth; $3.00 paper. Supplement: 1964-1968; 1969; $5.00.
 - Study Aids for Critical Languages, compiled and edited by Frank A. Rice; Rev. ed., 1968; $1.00.

Dakar Walof: A Basic Course, by Loren V. Nussbaum, William W. Gage, and Daniel Varre; 1971; $10.00.

SPEAKERS: Headquarters staff will try to suggest knowledgeable speakers upon request.

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATION RESEARCH (Michigan)

Western Michigan Univ., Kalamazoo, Mi. 49001 Tele: (616) 383-0923

DIRECTOR: Charles T. Brown

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Loren Crane, Richard Dieker, William Livingston, George Robek, and Ernest Stech.
- MESSION: The Center, a division of the Department of Communication Arts and Sciences, carries out studies in oral communication.
- PUBLICATION: At present, the Center has no publication of its own but publishes its findings in speech and communication journals.

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATION RESEARCH (Texas) School of Information

The University of Texas, Austin, Tx. 78712

Tele: (512) 471-4101

DIRECTOR: Alfred G. Smith

OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Robert Kahan, Werner Severin, Lennart Kopra, Jack Whitehead, and Robert Brooks.

MISSION: Along with the Journalism, Radio TV-Film, and Speech-Communication Departments, the Center for Communication Research (CCR) operates as a department within the School of Communication at the University of Texas. CCR was founded on the assumption that the faculty and students of the School would benefit from the centralization of research sources. In this respect then, although CCR operates in its own offices, it "belongs" to the other departments of the school.

SUBJECT COVERAGE: Research efforts are conducted on several subjects, including print techniques, the disadvantage of speaking nonstandard English, confrontation sessions between opposing populations, a guide to literature in human communication, and increased public understanding of science information. The Center operates several services to benefit those faculty members and students of the School who are involved in various research efforts.

PUBLICATION: The Center occasionally publishes a newsletter, "Communication Research Notes", for the purpose of facilitating the dissemination of research activities pertinent to the School as well as the Center.

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATION RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Sacramento State College, Sacramento, Ca. 95819 Tele: (916) 454-6688

CO-DIRECTORS: Al Kowitz, Richard E. Clark

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Phil Biddle, Kenneth Hirsch, Gene Knepprath, Patrick Marsh.
- MISSION: The Center serves to coordinate the involvement of students in on-going research projects, locate granting agencies and assist faculty and students in the design and execution of research proposals, promote the dissemination of research information in communication areas, and support communications-related research activities in the college.
- PUBLICATIONS: The center occasionally publishes research monographs. Lists of available papers are available on request, c/o Communication Studies Department.

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATION STUDIES

College of Communication, Ohio Univ., Athens, Oh. 45701 Tele: (614) 594-4341

DIRECTOR: Robert S. Goyer

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Michael Z. Sincoff (Associate Director), Evan Rudolph (Assistant Director), John B. Fink (Research Associate), Maung Gyi (Research Associate), and Richard Whitman (Research Associate).
- MISSION: To-serve as a convenient instrumentality for planning and executing research employing interdisciplinary approaches to the study of communicative process, to serve as an information clearinghouse for the distribution of special reports prepared by professional colleagues, and to provide a service function to both academic and nonacademic organizations by making available personnel to develop and teach short courses and seminars dealing with communication oriented behaviors and problems.

SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center consists of faculty members, space, and equipment to generate, conduct, and report research across the broad spectrum of communicative process and to provide commensurate instructional services.

The Center's function is to serve all professional areas concerned with the process of communication. To this end, the Center's staff welcomes requests for information or assistance relative to any of its objectives.

Research studies may be generated through standard academic channels or on a contract basis for organizations outside the University who desire to provide financial support for systematic research in this area. Investigations typically employ empirical research methodologies; however, no methodological approach which shows promise is excluded.

PUBLICATIONS: Between 1964 and 1969 the Center published 24 special reports on such subjects as the teaching of statistical methods, forced-choice rating techniques, construction of objective examinations, measuring the ability to organize ideas, general models of communication, communication theory, and semantic distance. Since 1969, the Center has issued the following special reports:

25. Definitions of Communication, by Robert S. Goyer, 1970.

- Communication Theory and Feedback Appraisal Systems, by Robert S. Goyer, 1970.
- 27. Effective Communication Tbrough Supervisor Visibility and Credibility, Walter Wiesman, 1971.
- The Birth, Care, and Feeding of Centers for Research in Communication, by Robert S. Goyer, 1971.
- 29. Selected References in Small Group Process, William R. Berdine, 1971.
- 30. Interpersonal Communication and Human Interaction: A Bebavioral View, by Robert S. Goyer, 1972.
- 31. The Communicator in Industry, William C. Hochstuhl, 1972.
- SPEAKERS: The Center will try to suggest knowledgeable speakers on request. Contact Dr. Robert S. Goyer, Center for Communication Studies, R-TV Room 253, Ohio Univ., Athens, Oh. 45701.

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATION STUDIES AND SERVICES

Univ. of Montana, Missoula, Mt. 59801

Tele: (406) 243-4331

CO-DIRECTORS: William W. Wilmot and Duane D. Pettersen

- MISSION: The Center is allied with the Univ. of Montana's Institute of Social Science Research. The primary mission of the Center is to provide facilities and personnel for basic and applied research in human message-media systems. Additional services include consultative, training, and assessment programs for private and public organizations and agencies, and preparation of tapes for rate-controlled recorded speech.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: Information systems and processing, validity and reliability estimation of unobtrusive measures, psycholinguistics, human decision-making, participative management, communicator credibility, psychophysical correlates of meaning assignation, human encounter, rate-controlled speech. A speech compressor/expander and auxiliary equipment are available.
- PUBLICATIONS: The Center's publications since 1970 and earlier bibliographies are listed below:

Research Reports:

- RR4. A Comparative Study of Ecological Values Represented by Executives in Profit and Service Organizations, E. Baker, K. Bulloch, J. Holden, L. Karjola, and D. Lester, 1970.
- RR5. A Sociolinguistic Study of Elaborated and Restricted Code Systems, D. Pettersen, 1970.
- RR6. Differences Between Managers and Subordinates in Their Perceptions of Three Types of Organizational Opinion Leadership, B. Peterson, 1972.
- Special Reports:
- SR5. Bibliography and Abstracts of Current Interviewing Literature, 1969.
- SR7. "Swim, Sink, or Dogpaddle", E. Baker, 1970. An educational game designed to illustrate implications of academic departments associated with communicology, rhetoric, or speech-communication approaches.
- SR8. Activities for Teacbing Interpersonal Communication, B. Peterson, 1972.
- SR9. Organizational Communication in Relation to Future Sbock, E. Baker, 1972.
- SR10. Communication: A Helping Relationship, D. Pettersen, 1972.
- Thesis Abstracts:
- An Experimental Investigation of Personality Factors Associated with Persuasibility During a Fear State, L. Karjola, 1970.
- An Experimental Study of the Relationship of Persuasibility to Male-Female Involvement with Message Topics, K. Bulloch, 1970.
- Oral and Written Channels in the Serial Reproduction of Information, T. Hegstrom, 1971.

Determining the Predictability of the Transactional Analysis Personality Model (Parent-Adult-Child) in Persuasive Communication: An Experimental Study, M. Milkovich, 1972.

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATIONS

Fordham Univ., Bronx, New York 10458

Tele1 (212) 933-2233

DIRECTOR: John M. Phelan.

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Philip Freund, Louis D. Boccardi, Edward A. Walsh, Edward M. Wakin, Ralph Dengler, Raymond Schroth.
- MISSION: To train students at the undergraduate level to be competent, relevant, and humane. To help those already at work in the arts and industries who want to keep in touch with the live issues while they are still hot, relevant, and undecided. The Center will provide an ongoing forum for the discussion of such issues and will provide in-service training for those who would like to step back for a week, month, or year to sharpen their perspective and skills.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The aims of the communication program are to provide an overall view of the field of communications, especially the current pervasiveness of the mass media; to deepen intellectual and cultural background by extensive reading of books and magazines and visits to centers of art and music, as well as such structures as the United Nations; development of the habit of straight thinking and writing; development of basic research ability through individual projects. These aims are based on the belief that a liberal education will make a person a better professional, but that it is possible within a framework of that education to provide training in basic specialized skills.
- PUBLICATION: The Center has no formal publication. Senior Investigators, however, have had their own writings published independently.

LENTER FOR DOCUMENTATION AND COMMUNICATION RESEARCH School of Library Science Western Reserve Univ., Cleveland, Oh. 44106

Tele: (216) 368-3210

DIRECTOR: Dean of the School of Library Science.

OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: A. J. Goldwyn

- MISSION: The Center was established in 1955 within the School of Library Science for the purposes of exploring non-conventional approaches to the analysis, storage, retrieval, and dissemination of recorded knowledge. Since that time, the interests of the Center have broadened somewhat to comprehend communication rather than the narrower and more constrained considerations involved in retrieval. In recent years there has been a shift from developmental activity and applied research toward basic research as the importance and feasibility of fundamental research have become more apparent. In this manner we are more concerned with research of an interdisciplinary nature than we were some years ago.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: Subjects of current research include the development of a methodology for evaluating the performance of information retrieval systems, the utilization of quasilinguistic techniques for the achievement of automatic indexing, the establishment of an experimental Selective Dissemination of Information (SDI) system for researchers in the field of diabetes, exploration of the psychological factors involved in relevance assessments, a study of the mathematical basis of communication, and computer applications in information processing. (The Center's on-line access to a UNIVAC 1108 computer is backed up by a full-scale complement of data-processing equipment.)

The academic program has emerged from, and contributed to, the research program. As the Center has become increasingly committed to basic research, and as the field has advanced over the years, the curriculum has reflected these changes.

Research programs sponsored by such agencies as the Air Force Office of Scientific Research, the National Science Foundation, the U.S. Office of Education, the National Institutes of Health, the National Library of Medicine, and the State Library of Ohio, indicate the broad base of national and regional service.

PUBLICATION: A Selected Bibliography of Documentation and Information Retrieval, issued annually by the Center, is a representative listing of the research and documentary work at the Center.

CENTER FOR INFORMATICS RESEARCH

339 Larsen Hall, Univ. of Florida, Gainesville, Fl. 32601 Tele: (904) 392-0920

10101 (JV4/ J72-0720

DIRECTOR: Julius T. Tou

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Alex Bednarek, Zoran Pop Stajanovic, Jack Lipovski, Stanley Su, Robert Simmons, Owen Rennert.
- MISSION: The Center for Informatics Research (CIR) is a unit for advanced study and research within the Univ. of Florida. The Center is staffed by scholars drawn from many disciplines represented at the university. These scientists and engineers are seriously concerned with solving problems in various disciplines by using modern computing machines, recent communication sciences, and latest information technology.

As an interdisciplinary center, CIR creates a stimulating environment for basic and applied research to seek new insights in and optimal solutions to engineering, physical, biological, medical, management, and social problems by uncovering new patterns in massive amounts of data. The primary functions of CIR are to develop the theory and techniques for the design of computer systems and software, to provide advanced technology for the design of new information systems for various disciplines, and to provide coordination and direction for launching interdisciplinary attacks on complex techno-socio-economic problems by the systems approach.

- SUBJECT COVERAGE: Biomedical implications, language processing, pattern processing, information systems, computer systems, software engineering, computer sociology, health-related science, behavior science.
- PUBLICATIONS: CIR is publishing an international journal Computer and Information Sciences and the international series Advances in Information Systems Science.

CENTER FOR INFORMATION SERVICES c/o Institute of Library Research University of California at Los Angeles 405 Hilgard Avenue Los Angeles, Ca. 90024

CENTER FOR RESEARCH ON LEARNING AND TEACHING

University of Michigan

109 East Madison St., Ann Arbor, Ml. 48104 Tele: (313) 764-0505

DIRECTOR Stanford C. Ericksen

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Donald R. Brown, Theodore M. Newcomb, Warren F. Seibert, Layman B. Allen, George L. Geis, James M. Hedegard, Frank M. Koen, James A. Kulik, Hazen J. Schumacher, Jr., David D. Starks, Karl L. Zinn, Barbara Z. Bluestone, James W. Conklin, George Henlein, Doris E. Miller.
- MISSION: The center's role combines service to the faculty and research on the basic problems and conditions of instruction that today or in years ahead may be of concern to the faculty and students. Part of its budget, the Wolverine Fund, is set as a seed money for experimentation by subject-matter teachers on a wide variety of instructional problems. Priority is given to projects which can be evaluated in terms of their educational value. Professional members of the Center's staff are available to individual teachers and departments for consultation. The Center occasionally conducts workshops for faculty members on partice ular topics and procedures.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE. Research projects undertaken by members of the Center's staff can be grouped into educational technology, instructional procedures, student development, and continuing education. For example, among the projects in educational technology is the study of problems involved in the transition from different audiovisual devices and books to the computer console for self-instructional study. Work is underway on a prototype statewide computer network for instruction.
- PUBLICATIONS: Memo to the Paculty, 84"×11" and about 8 pp. long, is published bimonthly. Annual subscription rate, $1.00. Recent titles include "Learning the Teaching Process;" "The Teacher as Counselor," by Edward Borden; "The Study of Higher Education," by Marvin W. Peterson; "The Classroom Scene: A Report From the Faculty;" "What Happens to Students in College," by T. M. Newcombe; "Theories 'N Queries: A New Instructional Game," by Layman Allen and Joan Ross. Address inquiries to Mrs. Barbara Z. Bluestone,

CENTER FOR THE ADVANCED STUDY OF COMMUNICATION

University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa 52240 Tele: (319) 353-5414

DIRECTOR: Dr. Lee Thayer

MISSION: To stimulate the emergence of a broadly comprehensive theory of human communication accommodating the several levels of analysis (and disciplines) involved.

- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center attempts to fulfill its mission through conferences and publications, and by serving as a point of confluence for the field.
- PUBLICATIONS: The Center publishes an international journal, Communication, to be issued biannually with the first issue in the fall of 1973. The Center publishes an Occasional Papers Series, which contains translations of significant work by foreign scholars that might not otherwise be seen by American scholars. Occasional Paper No. 1, Towards a Philosophy of Publicistics, by Henk Prakke, 1971, 4"X7" and 24 pp. long, is available for $1,50. Other publications include:
 - Communication: Theory and Research (Proceedings of the First International Conference), edited by Lee Thayer. Springfield, Il.: C. C. Thomas, 1967.

Communication: Concepts and Perspectives (Proceedings of the Second International Conference), edited by Lee Thayer, New York: Spartan Books, 1967.

Communication: General Semantics Perspectives, edited by Lee Thayer, New York: Spartan Books, 1970.

Communication: Etbical and Moral Issues, edited by Lee Thayer, New York: Gordon and Breach, 1972.

Etbical Issues in Mass Communication, New York: Gordon and Breach, 1973.

CENTER FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF HUMAN COMMUNICATION

North Benson Road, Fairfield, Ct. 06430

Tele: (203) 255-1011

DIRECTOR: Rev. Thomas J. M. Burke, S.J.

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Theodore A. Cheney (Administrative Coordinator), James J. Kennan, Ralph Baldwin, Jeri Nedela, George Crane.
- BACKGROUND: The educational arm of the center is the Graduate School of Corporate and Political Communication, Faitfield University, Fairfield, Ct. 06430.
- MISSION: To discover and to clarify the conceptual core and explanation of the human communication process in its varied society manifestations. The Graduate School aims to provide rigorous graduate education in social science principles and insights from the humanities as preparation for careers in which effective communication is essential.
- PUBLICATIONS: One Day in The World and Human Communication.
- SPEAKERS: The center will try to recommend knowledgeable speakers upon request.

CENTER FOR THE INFORMATION SCIENCES Lehigh University Bethlehem, Pa. 18002 DIRECTOR: Robert S. Taylor

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF INFORMATION PROCESSING Carnegie Institute of Technology

Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213 DIRECTOR: David H. Nickerson

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF THE AMERICAN PRESS

College of Journalism, Marquette University 1135 West Kilbourn Avenue, Milwaukee, Wi. 53233 Tele: (414) 224-7132

DIRECTOR: George E. Reedy

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: James Arnold, Louis Beiden, Warren Bowee, Clifford L. Helbert, David Host, Albion Ross, and Lucas Staudacher
- MISSION AND SUBJECT COVERAGE: To study performance of the American press (newspapers, radio, television, magazines) so that through an ever-deepening understanding of the American press-its nature, its function, its indispensable social role in our life-it can be steadily strengthened by those who operate it and be more efficiently used by those for whom it is intended, the American people.

PUBLICATIONS: Warren G. Bovee, Magazine Editor-Writer Relationsbip, 1965, $2.00, Albion Ross, English-Language Bibliography on Foreign Press and Comparative Journalism, 1966, $2.00, George R. Berdes, Friendly Adversaries: The Press and the Government, 1969, $6.00.

CENTER FOR TRANSLATION AND INTERCULTURAL COMMUNICATION (CTIC)

c/o Dept. of Comparative Literature,

State University of New York at Binghamton,

Binghamton, NY 13901

Tele: (607) 798-3582

DIRECTOR: Gerald Gillespie

ACTING DIRECTOR: Marilyn Gaddis Rose

CONSULTANT AND ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT: Ramon Lavera

BACKGROUND: Established with the help of a grant from the U.S. Office of Education through the National Endowment for the Humanities.

MISSION: To train professional translators in the humanities and the sciences and to develop new learning methods in the field of intercultural communication.

SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center's Translation Workshop program includes French, Spanish, German, and Italian and is being expanded to include classical and modern Chinese, Russian, Polish, Yiddish, and Biblical and modern Hebrew. The Center's integrative and interdisciplinary program includes a series of forums on translation, intercultural awateness, and communication. The Center also serves as a clearinghouse for translations in progress, translations under contract, and works in need of translation.

CENTER FOR UNDERSTANDING MEDIA, INC. 267 West 25th Street, New York, NY 10001

Tele: (212) 691-2260

DIRECTOR: John M. Culkin

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Robert Geller (Director of Educational Projects), Susan Rice (Director of Research) Jerry Colbert (Director of Special Events)
- MISSION: The Center engages in research and projects in communications, education, and the arts. It specializes in projects involving young people and the new media. It tries to develop discriminating consumers for the various forms of communication and to train creative producers for these media. It stresses the need for programs in media study and media making at all levels of education.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: In cooperation with other institutions, the Center is active in a number of projects involving the new media and children and young people. It participates in a film and television production workshop for high school students. It launched the Children's Film and Television Foundation, which focuses on projects involving children under twelve. It promotes international exchange of TV materials. It is working towards developing a full-time teacher training program in the new media. Through the Young Directors' Center, it distributes films produced by young people, ages 5-19. It sponsors conferences on television and film.

CENTRE DETUDES POUR LA

TRADUCTION AUTOMATIQUE Domain Universitaire 38 Saint-Martin-d'Heres, Grenoble, France Mail To: Cedex 53, Grenoble Gare, Grenoble, France Tele: 87-45.61 DIRECTOR: Bernard Vauguois

12

MISSION: Etude et conception d'une méthode pour la traduction automatique.

SUBJECT COVERAGE: Computational linguistics, communication homme-machine.

PUBLICATIONS: Between 1962 and 1969 the Centre issued 21 morphological studies of Russian, German, French, and Japanese, 21 computer programs incorporating some of these analyses and 6 studies of formal languages. The titles of these publications were listed in Directory of Communication Organizations 1970-71 and are available upon request from the Centre.

CENTRE FOR INFORMATION ON LANGUAGE TEACHING State House, 63 High Holborn

London WC1, England

COMMITTEE ON MASS COMMUNICATIONS

Indiana University

419 N. Indiana Ave., Bloomington, Indiana 47401 Tele: (812) 337-6895

DIRECTOR: Dr. Keith W. Mielke

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Dr. Barry Cole, Dr. Richard Gray, Dr. G. Cleveland Wilhoit, and Prof. Donley Feddersen.
- MISSION: Mass Communication is an interdisciplinary doctoral program rather than a department with its own faculty. The varied research activities of the Mass Communications Committee members tend to be identified with the members' departments. The Mass Communications Program has no formal research center of its own, although it cooperates with the Bureau of Media Research in the Department of Journalism, and conducts occasional studies of its own.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: Recent and current research includes a study of the effects of editorial opinion on broadcast news; a study of the cueing process which appears to take place between the aural and visual stimuli within instructional television; a continuing content analysis of Indiana daily newspapers; the report of the 1969-70 State Department's Foreign Journalist Project as managed by the Indiana University Department of Journalism; a study of communication between state departments of education and the culturally deprived; a study of the social and intellectual context of the underground press; the press coverage of Alfred Kinsey during his research on American sexual behavior (in process); a study of standards of newsworthiness on the part of professional newsmen and the public (in progress); a study of public policy relating to broadcast license granting and renewal (past, present, and future) with particular attention to the effect of cross ownership50f media, reasons for license revocations, and consistency between FCC statement of intent and actual performance in granting and renewing licenses.
- PUBLICATIONS: No formal publications are sponsored by the Mass Communications Program.

COMMUNICATION ARTS CENTER University of Denver, Colorado 80210 Tele: (303) 753-2166

DIRECTOR: Dr. Harold Mendelsohn

- MISSION: To develop innovative scientific research and experimentation in mass communications. To relate scientific research to the development of innovative techniques and messages in mass communication. To upgrade mass communications efforts in the public service area. To train practitioners in current scientifically-based techniques of effective mass communications. To disseminate scientific findings which relate to mass communications.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center studies all aspects of the mass media as they impinge on the communication processes.

COMMUNICATION PROGRAM

Department of Speech Univ. of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213 Tele: (412) 621-3500, ext. 371 DIRECTOR: Herbert Rubin

- FACULTY: Jack Daniel, David Dickson, Donald Egolf, Audrey Holland, Peter Longini, Jack Matthews, William Hanks, and adjunct members.
- PURPOSE: To engage in basic research and teaching in biocommunication, interpersonal communication, and mass communication and to develop applications of such findings to contemporary social problems. Although the research is interdisciplinary in orientation, as a component of the University of Pittsburgh Speech Department, degree programs at both the Masters and Doctoral level are offered in Communication Research.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: A variety of topics in the areas of neurophysiology, psycholinguistics, sociolinguistics, interpersonal and intercultural communication, mass media, and political communication are studied.

COMMUNICATION RESEARCH CENTER (Boston) Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts 02215 Tele: (617) 353-3472

DIRECTOR: Dr. A. George Gitter

- MISSION: The mission of the Center is to meet the growing needs for professional research in governmental, commercial, and academic institutions in the area of communication. It offers graduate training to provide for these research needs.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center's activities cover all facets of study related to communication with a focus on study design and data reduction problems in psychology and sociology.

COMMUNICATION RESEARCH CENTER (Kansas) University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas 66045 Tele: (913) 864-2700 DIRECTOR: Dr. Kim Giffin MISSION: The mission of the Center is to combine research investigation, developmental programs, and dissemination of information useful in helping people to communicate more effectively.

- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center conducts basic research on communication problems in selected communication settings. The Center provides developmental programs utilizing the findings of basic research at the Center and elsewhere. These programs include preparation of instructional materials as well as consulting services. The Center engages in distribution of research reports, working papers, memos on research techniques, and special research bibliographies to professional colleagues, upon request, for fees equated to the cost to the Center.
- PUBLICATIONS: Since 1963, the Center has issued nearly 100 reports, papers, and collections. A complete list is available from the Center upon request. A sampling of recent titles is given below:

COMMUNICATION RESEARCH CENTER (North Dakota) University of North Dakota, Box 8143 University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58201

Tele: (701) 777-2159

DIRECTOR: Barbara J. Bowes

OTHER INVESTIGATORS: The Center has 32 active members.

- MISSION: The Center conducts systematic inquiry into various phases of the communication process. As such, it provides a common meeting ground for investigators from the various disciplines, representing an interdisciplinary effort to learn mote about the psychological, sociological, historical, political, philosophical, and geographical aspects of communication, particularly the behavior of people in predominantly rural areas. The Center seeks to provide for the systematic organization of communication research activities at the Univ. of North Dakota, centralize and coordinate research activities conducted by departments and individuals, encourage research by faculty and students, seek and coordinate financial support, make available to students, new and disseminate research results, develop research facilities and maintain an inventory of faculty interests, assist off-campus organizations and individuals in communication-oriented research projects, and act as a depository for research results, particularly those relating to the upper midwest and predominantly rural areas.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center conducts both basic and applied research. CRC members have independently conducted research projects on the following: experimental study of the dimensions of credibility which affect jury verdicts, content analysis of speeches by Bugene V. Debs, compilation of codes and documents affecting the press, emergency communication networks in disasters, communication gap between educator and layman, polarization during a campus strike. Other interests of members include polling, leadership, readability, media content, symbol systems, attitude change, political persuasion, source credibility, history of the mass media of the region, role of the communication process in social change, and the building of communication theory.

- PUBLICATIONS: North Dakota Quarterly: Communication Issue. Harvey K. Jacobson, editor. Univ. of North Dakota, Communications Research Center, Spring 1969, Vol. 37, No. 2. 80 pages; $1.50.

COMMUNICATION RESEARCH CENTER (Purdue)

(of the Department of Communication) (Indiana) Department of Communication, Heavilon Hall Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana 47907

Tele: (317) 749-2692

DIRECTOR: Dr. W. Charles Redding

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Dr. William D. Brooks, Dr. Norman A. Felsenthal, Dr. Gustav Friedrich, Dr. Mark Knapp, Dr. G. Wayne Shamo, and Dr. Ralph Webb.
- MISSION: An agency of the Department of Communication (administered as an integral part of that Department), founded in 1951 by the late P. E. Lull, reorganized in 1956; comprising faculty and graduate students actively concerned with theory and empirical research relevant to the scientific study of human communication behavior. Although its headquarters are located in the Department of Communication, its research activities are typically interdisciplinary in character. Its basic objectives are to serve: (1) as a central agency for the planning of research and the encouragement of research work, including the provision of an instrumentality for handling funding support; (2) as an information clearinghouse and distribution center for reports of studies done by its own associates; and (3) as a convenient mechanism for encouraging and coordinating interdisciplinary or "team" research.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: Primarily with oral and face-to-face interpersonal communication behavior, in dyads, small groups, and audience settings. However, writer and other modalities are not at all excluded; in fact, in future years increasing attention is expected to be devoted to radio, television, film, and journalism. The Center happens to have been identified, ever since the early 50's, with studies in "organizational communication"; i.e., human communication behavior as it occurs in the environment of large, complex organizations, such as industries, labor unions, hospitals, and government agencies.
- PUBLICATION: The Center issues no formal printed publications. It does, however, distribute (free of charge) a number of mimeographed research reports and abstracts.

COMMUNICATION RESEARCH CENTER (Washington) School of Communications

University of Washington, Seattle, Washington 98105 Tele: (206) 543-2346

DIRECTOR: Peter Clarke

MISSION: To facilitate faculty and student research on communication processes and effects, to serve as a research training facility for undergraduate and graduate students, and to initiate communication research.

SUBJECT COVERAGE: Recent projects conducted using Center facilities include research on perceptions of conflict, cognitive structure and information seeking behavior, socialization of media behavior among children, children's information seeking about the performing arts, and the study of persons' "stopping behavior" in the course of processing messages.

PUBLICATIONS: The Center does not publish reports under its imprimatur. These are issued by individual principal investigators who may or may not have used Center facilities in conducting their work.

Tele: (412) 621-3500, ext. 6485

DIRECTOR: Patrick R. Penland

OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Clark D. Rogers

- MISSION: To undertake investigations which will lead to an integration of media, library, and information science.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Center provides new impetus in giving communication services explicit form as a major professional area based upon concepts or models from communications. It develops principles and methods for the evaluation of new program ideas and methods of motivating citizen participation and learning. It focuses attention on the need for long range systematic research programs using new methods and techniques of research as a basis for effective planning. It validates techniques of investigation which minimize error and maximize yield of information for both research in the laboratory and evaluation of ongoing communications situations. It tests a wide range of problem solving and decision making knowledges and skills in simulated environmental systems that have axiomatic and real-world referents.

DIRECTOR: R, Lyle Webster

- OTHER SENIOR INVESTIGATORS: Jim Richsted (Senior Program Officer)
- BACKGROUND: The East-West Communication Institute is one of five problem-oriented institutes established at the East-West Center. The Center is an educational institution of the Govern-ment of the U.S. in cooperation with the University of Hawaii.
- MISSION: The overall goal of the Communication Institute is the same as that set forth in the legislation which created the East-West Center: "to promote better relations and understand-ing between the United States and the nations of Asia and the Pacific-through cooperative study, training, and research," The Institute concentrates its efforts on use of communication in economic and ended methometar, and in charter knowledge economic and social development, and in sharing knowledge across cultural barriers.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Institute awards scholarships for graduate study in communication; invites Senior Specialists to the Center for study, research, and teaching in communication; conducts non-degree training projects for communication workers in a variety of specialized fields of economic and social development; assembles a Document Collection of communication resource materials with emphasis on Asian and Pacific development programs; offers Jefferson Fellowships to mid-career Asian and Pacific journalists and broadcasters; designs and conducts research in cross-cultural and development communication areas; arranges conferences and seminars; disseminates knowledge and findings; furnishes support to the other institutes of the East-West Center.

ESPERANTIC STUDIES FOUNDATION

6451 Barnaby Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20015 PRESIDENT: E. James Lieberman

- MISSION: The Foundation was established to support research on language planning and international communication in all relevant disciplines, for example, linguistics, education, international relations, and the behavioral sciences. ESF does not promote Esperanto but notes a dearth of objective research and teaching on this language and related topics.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: ESF will advise on potential areas of research, assist in obtaining funding for suitable projects, and serve as a clearinghouse for information. A list of research ideas is available on request.

EUROPEAN TRANSLATIONS CENTER Doelenstraat 101, Delft, The Netherlands

BACKGROUND: The Center is part of an international network of cooperation with regard to translations in the field of science and technology, founded under the auspices of the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development. The network is composed of the European Translations Center, ten National Centers, and numerous cooperating organizations throughout the world.

MISSION: The Center acts as a clearinghouse for scientific and technical translations. The Center does not prepare translations. Its main function is to keep a central reference catalogue and to run an information bureau which handles requests for and information on translations.

- SUBJECT COVERAGE. The Center acts as a clearinghouse for scientific and technical translations prepared throughout the world from languages of Eastern Europe, the Middle East, and the Far East into Western languages, mainly English, French, and German.
- PUBLICATIONS: The Center's major publication is the monthly World Index of Scientific Translations and List of Translations Notified to Etc. Each third issue of the index section is a cumulation for that quarter, the last issue of the year is a comprehensive cumulation. Cost to countries represented on the comprehensive cumulation. Cost to countries represented on the Board of Management, (Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Japan, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland) $60.00 per year: others, $85.00; airmail, $20.00 extra. - SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Institute studies the effects of the introduction of educational television into underdeveloped countries, the information-seeking patterns and the information needs of scientists and other audiences, the economics of mass media, attitude change and information flows, and other aspects of international communication.

INSTITUTE FOR COMMUNICATION STUDIES

Van Dyck Hall, Rutgers University.

New Brunswick, N.J. 08903.

Tele: (201) 247-1766 x 6354.

DIRECTOR: Brent D. Ruben, Ph.D.

BACKGROUND: Organized in 1966.

- MISSION: To provide through original research or otherwise seek to make available studies in humans communication theory and to foster the application of human communication theory in a pragmatic fashion.
- SUBJECT COVERAGE: The Institute's areas of interest include speech, general system theory, cybernetics, journalism, and sociology to provide an interdisciplinary perspective on theoreti-cal development. In recent years, many institute affiliates have also been interested in human-communication training devices and have explored simulation, encounter and t-groups, games, role-playing, and other experience-based, learning-teaching tech-niques as means for disseminating understanding of human communication theory to diverse audiences.
- PUBLICATIONS: In 1968 and 1969 Institute affiliates published four reports the titles of which are available upon request. In 1970 and 1971, they issued the following:
 - The Communication System Simulation: An Overview (by B. D. Ruben and A. D. Talbott, 1970).
 - Bibliography of Self-Instructional Learning Materials for Communication and Journalism Education (B. D. Ruben, 1970).
 - Communication, Education, and Simulation: Some Thoughts on the Learning Process (R. W. Budd, 1970).
 - The General Problem-Solving Simulation (B. D. Ruben, 1971).
 - Survey of Doctoral Programs in Communication, Speech-Communication, MassCommunication, and Human Communication (B. D. Ruben, 1972).
- SPEAKERS: The The Institute's director will try to suggest knowledgeable speakers upon request.

WASHINGTON JOURNALISM CENTER 2401 Virginia Ave., N.W., Washington DC 20037. Tele: (202) 338-4100 DIRECTOR: Julius Duscha ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR: Arch Parsons MISSION: The Center was established in 1965 as an independent, nonprofit, educational institution to encourage better reporting of public affairs and to help educate those who are training to work in the mass media about their vital responsibilities to society with the goal that these responsible communicators will work toward improving public information and understanding in whatever media they work.

ACTIVITIES: The Center offers fellowships to public affairs seminars and for work on individual reporting projects to active journalists who are working on newspapers and magazines and in radio and television news departments. It also provides fellowships designed to encourage and assist members of racial minorities to seek journalism careers. These fellowships include both participation in public affairs seminars and internships with Washington news organizations. The Center also sponsors at least annual three-to-five-day conferences at which editors, editorial writers, news directors, commentators and reporters can discuss with government policy makers and other experts key issues in the news and critical problems in public affairs.

Research Data Sources

In the listing that follows, an entry may consist of as many as six parts: a title, a description (in parentheses, but sometimes omitted), a source abbreviation, a type code, price data, and occasionally, an explanatory note (also in parentheses). The parts of the entry always appear in the order just fisted, allowing for omissions. The type code indicates what kind of a document the item is. A list of these codes and of the codes used to indicate the prices may be found on the inside of both the front and back covers. To find the full name and mailing address of a source, look up the source abbreviation alphabetically in the acronym list on the gray-edged pages at the end of the Directory.

Research Glossaries

In the listing that follows, an entry may consist of as many as six parts: a title, a description (in parentheses, but sometimes omitted), a source abbreviation, a type code, price data, and occasionally, an explanatory note (also in parentheses). The parts of the entry always appear in the order just listed, allowing for omissions. The type code indicates what kind of a document the item is. A list of these codes and of the codes used to indicate the prices may be found on the inside of both the front and back covers. To find the full name and mailing address of a source, look up the source abbreviation alphabetically in the acronym list on the gray-edged pages at the end of the Directory.

Research Support Sources

In 1973 CCS circulated a questionnaire to Communication Centers and to departments of communication-related subjects inquiring about the sources of financial support for communication research. We asked the respondents to list the organizations from which they received grants and the organizations who refused them grants. We also asked them to indicate the amount of the grants actually received and the amount they requested when the grant was denied. We also asked our respondents for their intuitive impression of the relative ease or difficulty of obtaining grants today as opposed to two, five, and ten years ago. The totals do not cross-check between the following tables because many respondents had received grants, some had never requested them, and some felt they had too little experience to give intuitive impressions of the current level of difficulty in obtaining grants. Also, while most respondents gave dates for the grants they received, some did not.

Education Source Table

The following table lists nineteen communication specialties and shows the level of degree or certificate programs offered in various colleges and universities throughout the U.S. and Canada. Certain communication specialties, such as English and Speech, are not listed because they are offered at virtually all large and at most smaller schools, so that finding degree programs in them is not a problem. The data in this table are taken from those publications listed in the Education Information Sources section of the Directory that were sent to the Editor. (They are indicated by an asterisk in that listing.) in most of the sources supplied, information on Canadian schools was scanty, so, regretably, the Canadian portion of the table is quite incomplete.

If you are interested in a particular subject area, we recommend that you send for the source book(s) in that area. Those books will add to the information presented in the table in two ways. First, they will, in most cases, specify the department in which the program you are interested in is given in each college or university. The departments offering the same degree program often differ widely in different schools. It is always well to know the department involved before you write to the school. Often, too, the approach taken to a given subject will vary significantly depending upon the department in which it is offered, so you may be able to tell whether a school is approaching your subject the way you want to from seeing what department is running the program.

Second, the depth of different schools' strength in a given subject may vary considerably. Ona indication of these differences is the organizational level accorded the subject. One university may have a School of Journalism, for example, whereas the next may have only a Department of Journalism. A college, on the other hand, may have only a Division of Journalism as a part of the English Department, or may have only an Interdepartmental Program in Journalism. Needless to say, you will want to take into account each school's depth in your subject as you evaluate how well it suits your needs.

Although we have tried to make this table as complete and comprehensive as our sources permitted, no such list can be free of errors, both of omission and commission. We suggest, therefore, that you use it as an initial guide, a starting point for your investigation of educational institutions. Use also all the resources of your local library, the education information sources listed in this Directory, and direct inquiries to the schools themselves.

The abbreviations used in the following table are listed below. The two letter symbols at the tops of the subject columns should be interpreted as follows:

AU	- Audiology	LB – Librarianship
8C :	- Business Communication	LG – Linguistics
CA	 Communicative Arts* 	MI - Medical Illustration
CM	- Communication	ML – Medical Librarianship
DR	- Drafting	MR - Medical Records Administration
ED	 Engineering Design 	PR – Public Relations
GA	- Graphic Arts	RT – Radio and TV Broadcasting
IT	 Instructional Technology 	SP - Speech Pathology
JL	- Journalism	TC - Technical Communication
	TE - Teaching Eng of Other La	• • •
	ustration, Still Photography, Motion-Picturesetting, Printing	ure Photography, Design

The following abbreviations are used in the columns of the table to indicate the level of the programs offered by each school (they are listed in order of increasing level):

U - Level Unknown

- 8 Bachelois degree
- X Non-degree-granting program
- C Certificate or diploma
- A Associate degree

P - Post-Bachelor certificate program M - Masters degree

- G Advanced Graduate Study Program
- D Doctoral degree
- The addition of an asterisk above a level-indicating symbol indicates that school's program is "accredited" by the professional accrediting organization for that subject.

Organization Index

In this index the present names of the organizations included in this Directory are listed by acronym and by each major word in the name, except that a listing does not occur under such common words as "American", "Association", "Communication", or "Soclety" unless one of those words is the first word in the organization's name. Names formerly used by an organization are followed by the notation "(f.)" and the page number of the organization's listing under its present name, Names of organizations that have been obsoleted by reason of mergers among organizations are followed by the notation "(o.)" and the page number of the resultant current organization. In the main Association entries, former names and the history of mergers are listed under the heading "Background".

State of the second

In this index, also, the following words are abbreviated as indicated: Academy (Acad.), American (Amer.), Association(s) (Assoc(s).), College(s) (Coll(s).), Communication(s) (Comm(s).), Conference (Conf.), Council(s) (Coun(s).), Department(s) (Dept(s).) Development (Devel.), Federation (Fed.), Institute (Inst.), International(e) (Intern'l(e).), National (Nat.), Research (Res.), Society (Soc.), Societies (Socs.), University (Univ.).

Title Index

In this index, titles have often been truncated by dropping out words to form an informative "short title" that will suffice to lead you to the full reference. Do not be surprised, therefore, if the index entries are not a word-for-word match of the citations to which they refer. The citations themselves almost always contain the full title and, in the bibliographic listings, are listed alphabetically by the first word of the full title.

ABBREVIATIONS

In the Research Data Sources, Research Glossaries, Career Information Sources, and Education Information Sources sections of this Directory three types of abbreviations are used. All three are clustered at the end of each entry after the item's title and and descriptive material.

The first is an acronym for the organization through which the item is available sometimes the originating organization, sometimes a secondary distribution agency such as NTIS or ERIC. Those acronyms are listed alphabetically on the gray-edged pages at the back of the Directory along with the full name of the supplying organization and the address to which you should write to obtain the material.

The second is a code letter indicating what type of thing that item is. Those abbreviations are listed below under the heading "Type Codes". When a type code is followed by a number, the number indicates how many times a year the item is issued.

Abbreviations of the third kind relate to the price of the item. The prices indicated are for single copies unless they are followed by "/y" (per year), in which case the price given is for a year's subscription. The abbreviations used to specify price structure are listed below under the heading "Price Codes".
