The course is the first of a series of four courses which provide the student with the knowledge and skills necessary to become an effective child care aide. Planned for junior or senior high school students, the course focuses on employment requirements including appearance, attitudes, relationships with employer and co-workers, and the legal regulations that pertain to the aide. The scheduling and food requirements of young children in groups is included. The course is arranged in four instructional blocks: (1) orientation; (2) job, job etiquette, and the laws; (3) child day care center aide at work; and (4) daily food requirements. A bibliography and resource guide is provided, and an appendix offers sample forms, requirements, licensing and laws related to child care centers, and general instructions for observing in child care centers. COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is the first in the series of four quinmester courses which will provide the student with the opportunity to gain the knowledge and skills necessary to become an effective Child Care Aide. This course will focus upon the employment requirements of an effective Child Care Aide including appearance, attitudes, relationships with employer and co-workers and the legal regulations that pertain to the Aide. The scheduling and food requirements of young children in groups will be included.

ENROLLMENT GUIDELINES

This course is planned for any junior or senior high school student interested in working with young children in group situations. It is especially designed for those students hoping to gain employment in a Child Care Center as an Aide. The courses, Preface to a Life and As the Twig is Bent, would be helpful earlier experiences. Trusting Threes Through Fetching Fives is a prerequisite course. It is recommended that the students for this course be screened as to intent and chance of success prior to enrollment.

RATIONALE

Home and Family Education courses have long provided basic skills and competencies for the improvement of home living. Now, however, due to the dual role of women, the need for skilled workers in all areas of employment, the growth in the service occupations, and the earlier and increased needs of youth, it is recognized that Home Economics must aim toward gainful employment. This course is designed for those students interested in development for such employment.

FOREWORD

This course has been developed as part of a larger effort to bring Home and Family Education closer to the realities of the world of work. It is not intended to be used as the only prescription for teaching this intent, but rather as a guide to the teacher in meeting this realization. It is hoped that these activities and resources, as they are used by the teacher, will serve as the impetus to further ideas. This first edition is but a working copy; it is hoped that the teacher will add and revise it as it is used. A course of study has developed under the direction and leadership of Mrs. Harriett Lee La Frenz, Consultant, and Mrs. Betty Morrow, Teacher-Consultant, Home and Family Education.
MAJOR GOALS

1. Recognizing the need for skilled workers in the early childhood services, the student will identify the attitudes and competencies necessary to meet this need.

2. The student will analyze the laws and regulations related to work in the area of Child Care Services.

3. The student will plan the daily schedule for a Child Care Center taking into consideration the purposes of the center, the needs of the children attending, the physical plant, and the staff size and experience.

4. The student will relate knowledge of nutritional needs to those of young children in large groups.

BEHAVIORAL OUTCOMES

The student will be able to:

1. Identify the requirements that are necessary for an effective Child Care Center Aide.

2. Define the roles in which women and young people participate in the world of work.

3. Identify the purposes of centers established for the care and training of children away from home.

4. Differentiate between the characteristics of day care centers which offer quality care and those of centers offering only minimal care.

5. Examine the regulations concerning labor laws, withholding tax and Social Security as related to one's job.

6. Investigate job opportunities in Child Care Services and complete the necessary forms for job placement.

7. Interpret the relationship between physical appearance and success in the world of work.

8. Analyze effective relationships between an employer and an employee, including ethics required in working under supervision.

9. Describe the functions of the staff planning sessions in the Child Care Center.

10. Identify the factors to consider when outlining the schedule of activities in terms of learning and opportunities provided for the children in the center.

11. Analyze various schedules in terms of the purposes of the center, the needs of the children, the physical plant, and the staff size and experience.

13. Apply knowledge of correct and attractive table settings to the serving of meals in the center.

14. Prepare for the nutritional needs of children in large groups.

SUGGESTED CONTENT IDEAS

Women and youth work outside the home both for economic reasons and for personal fulfillment.

Education for employment as a Child Care Aide often equips a worker for employment in many other services.

LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

- Divide into six groups. Each group draws from a box a fictitious statement concerning women in the labor force, i.e., working women neglect their families. Participate in a session and report to class.

- Invite a panel of working and non-working mothers to discuss their roles with the class. Select a student moderator to lead mothers to formulate opinions regarding:
  - Division of labor of household tasks
  - Psychological effect on husband
  - Personality and welfare of children
  - Personal feelings of achievement and fulfillment

- Research and list as many jobs as possible that might be obtained as a result of training as a Child Care Aide.

- Determine the possibilities for summer employment in the community for each of the jobs researched.

- React to the statement, "Education for employment in Child Care Services can have additional benefits as preparation for parenthood".

BEHAVIORAL OUTCOME: 5. Examine the regulations concerning labor laws, withholding tax and Social Security as related to one's job.

SUGGESTED CONTENT IDEAS

- Laws passed by the state and federal governments determine the type of work and hours of work allowed for persons under the age of 16.
- Before starting to work one must obtain certain credentials to satisfy the laws relating to employment.
- A place of employment may offer benefits other than salary as remuneration for work.

LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

- Debate: Any person qualified to take care of children should be allowed to work in a Child Care Center, with no limitations imposed by age.
- Prepare a folder to include the following credentials, with a short paragraph detailing how to obtain each:
  - A Social Security card/number
  - Health certificate
  - Birth certificate
  - Work certificate, if under age
- Give folder to teacher for correction and comment.
- Invite a director of a Child Care Center to discuss the fringe benefits offered in his center.
- Debate: Fringe benefits given to an employee cost less for the employer than if he increased salaries.
- Ask parents what fringe benefits they receive at their places of work, and compare.
- Ask a teacher from the business department to explain pay vouchers.
- Invite a certified public accountant to help in the preparation of a sample IRS form 1040 (if students have not previously done this activity in other classes).

Behavioral Outcome:

Suggested Content Ideas

- How a child feels when he comes to the table affects both his attitude toward eating and his appetite.
- Habits of personal cleanliness are stressed especially in relation to food and eating.
- Feeding behavior problems may be caused by the Aide who only wants to help.

Learning Opportunities

- Define quiet play and give at least three examples of activities that are suitable before mealtime.
- Demonstrate clever ways to bring a group of ten children, ages 2-5 to the table.
- Give possible solutions to mealtime problems such as:
  - Johnny and Joey begin climbing on their chairs.
  - Karen refuses to eat.
  - Ann does not use her silverware.
- Demonstrate, as though for a child, the correct way to wash hands before eating.
- Discuss: It is a good idea to feed the child who eats more slowly than the others.
- Survey the most common feeding problems, and suggest possible solutions.
- Debate: A child who does not clean his plate cannot leave the table.
- Listen to a student who has researched the development of moral concepts in the young child.
- Discuss the pros and cons of the separation of church and state in relation to the mealtime of young children.
- Develop some practices in saying grace at mealtime that might be acceptable to all faiths.

REQUIREMENTS—OUR GOLDEN RULES

YES—

Develop a positive self-concept. If you think well of yourself, and act it, others will think well of you also.

Be courteous to others. Poor manners close doors to you.

Share yourself. You have knowledge and talents someone else has not.

Be clean. Groom yourself and your surroundings.

Be responsible for your actions. Defend your position when you have facts, and be open-minded when you have opinions.

Be on time, with your presence, your assignments, your help.

NO—

Food in class.

Unexplained absences.

Unreasonable tardies, before and between class periods.

Articles left out, not put away.

RELATING TO THE COURSE—

Keep notes. You are responsible for every assignment, absent or present.

1. Title your notes for identification.

2. Date your notes for proper order.

3. Star (*) notes that are most important information.

4. File notes according to Job, Informational, References, Assignments, and Make-up Work.

Your time is valuable—use it well—I will not take you by the hand and lead you, but I will recognize an age-old axiom: One hand washes the other.
Child Care Services and The Law

LICENSING

The State Division of Family Services does not license pre-school educational programs; that is, nursery schools and kindergartens, which enroll children from three to six years of age for less than four hours a day.

The State Division of Family Services does license facilities which provide for the group day care of children in only three counties in the state, namely, Dade, Duval and Orange, in which are located, in the same order, Miami, Jacksonville and Orlando. Such a facility located in one of these counties must have a license issued by the State Division of Family Services in order to operate.

The Group Day Care of Children is defined by the Division as a program or facility, whether non-profit or commercial, which provides for the care and development of six or more children, two through six years of age, away from home, for a period of four hours regularly during the day time. Older children may also be cared for after school hours. This applies no matter what the facility names itself—kindergarten, nursery school or school and regardless of whether or not it has a pre-school educational program even with accredited teachers.

Licensing includes a sanitary inspection by the local Health Department and where indicated, a fire inspection by the local Fire Department. Licenses are re-issued annually. In Dade and Orange counties, nursery schools and kindergartens too must pass a sanitary inspection by the County Health Department and in the City of Miami, day nurseries, nursery schools and kindergartens must pass a fire inspection by the Fire Department.

If you plan to establish a program to provide for the group care of children in Dade, Duval or Orange counties, telephone or write the District Office; in Dade county, to make an appointment, the location of the District Office is P. O. Box 634, Biscayne Annex, Miami, 33152 (377-3751).

FEDERAL LABOR LAWS

1. Students enrolled in cooperative vocational education and receiving on-the-job training are subject to the provisions of all local, State and Federal labor laws, unless exempt by special application and approval.

2. The principal kinds of regulations pertain to: (1) age restrictions; (2) minimum wages and overtime pay; (3) hours of work; (4) hazardous occupations; (5) insurance; and (6) minimum wage exemptions for student-learners.

3. Information on labor laws should be obtained from the regional office of the Wage and Hours and Public Contracts Division of the U. S. Department of Labor, and from the appropriate State Department of Labor.

The Fair Labor Standards Act provides minimum age and overtime standards, requires equal pay for equal work regardless of sex, and contains certain civil labor standards.
Child Care Services and The Law, Continued

Wages. The minimum wage rate for employment covered prior to the 1966 amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act is $1.60 per hour. Some workers who were newly covered as of 1966 must receive $1.30 minimum, but will be subject to the $1.60 minimum by February 1, 1971. The law requires not less than time and one-half for all hours worked in excess of 40 per week, except in the case of agricultural workers. Students, unless exempt, are subject to the minimum wage and equal pay provision.

Special Minimum Wages. Most employers pay cooperative vocational education students not less than the statutory minimum for their on-the-job training and have not found it necessary to apply for the special student-learner minimum wage rates. When exceptions are requested, they are not approved if:

1. The occupation does not require a sufficient degree of skill to necessitate a substantial learning period.
2. Another worker is displaced.
3. Wage rates or working standards of experienced workers would be depressed.
4. The occupational needs of the community or industry do not warrant the training of students at less than the statutory minimum.
5. There are serious outstanding violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act.
6. The number of students at certificate rates is more than a small proportion of the establishment's working force.

Special minimum wage certificates for students contain:

1. Age: At least 16
2. Wage: Not less than 75% of the statutory minimum.
3. Hours: In general, the hours of work permitted at certificate rates plus the hours of school instruction (not including study hall, homeroom and activity periods with no academic credit) may not exceed 40 hours a week. If school is not in session, such hours of employment training may not exceed 8 a day or 40 a week.
4. Records: Each student paid certificate rates, and his occupation and rate of pay should be identified in the payroll records, which should also note when additional hours are worked at certificate rates because school was not in session. The application should be retained for 3 years.
5. Application: An application for a special minimum wage certificate is filed for each student with the regional or district office of the Wage and Hours and Public Contracts Division. It is signed jointly by the employer, a school official, and the student. Among other things, it gives information on the employment training and related school instruction to be provided, the certificate rates needed and for what period of time, and the age of the student.

Responsibilities of the employer:

1. Each minor in his employ has procured an appropriate employment or wage certificate and that the minor is of the proper age for the occupation and hours for which employed. Parents as employers are not exempt.
2. Must keep on file in his establishment a copy of such a certificate as long as the minor is in his employ. Expiration dates must be checked frequently.
3. Minors in his employ do not, with or without his knowledge or consent, engage in hazardous occupations prohibited to certain young workers.
4. Has the responsibility and obligation to himself and his industry group to recruit and train new workers.
Workmen's Compensation Insurance

An employer's workmen's compensation policy covers minors, whether they are legally or illegally employed. Workmen's Compensation rates cannot be increased by the employment of young workers. If an illegally employed minor is injured on the job, his employer may be required to pay him penalty compensation.

Age Certificates: All minors 16 or 17 years of age, employed in any gainful occupation are required to have an age certificate except when employed in domestic service in private homes, in farm work or in the occupations herein-after described as street trades (shoe shine, paper delivery).

How does a minor obtain a certificate? First obtain a promise of employment in writing from an employer, stating the nature of the employment offered and the hours of the day to be employed. Accompanied by his or her parent or guardian the minor must apply in person for the appropriate certificate to the County Superintendent of Public Instruction or such other person as may be designated by him to issue certificates. The promise of employment, proof of age, perhaps a health certificate may be required.

Minors 16 or 17 years of age may be employed between 5:00 A.M. and 10:00 P.M. They may not be employed for more than five hours at a time without an interval of at least thirty minutes for a lunch period.

Who Enforces the Child Labor Law?
The Florida Department of Commerce and its agents, all sheriffs and other law enforcement officers of the State of Florida or of any municipality of the State, and attendance assistants of the State Department of Education, are required to enforce the Child Labor Laws.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR OBSERVING IN CHILD CARE CENTERS

General Instructions for Students

1. Notebooks with stiff backs or clipboards are necessary. Notes should be taken as behavior occurs.

2. Record notes at the time the observations takes place. Do not rely on memory.

3. Do not take notes when you are working directly with the children on an assigned activity.

4. Be on time and do not be in too great a hurry to leave. Doing a few extra things may make a better day tomorrow for both children and adults. Always tell the group teacher when you are leaving. They may think you are watching the children.

5. Be alert and interested. Try not to interfere in a child's activity. Interference is necessary, of course, if such activity is endangering him or some other child.

6. Do not be afraid to go ahead. You may make mistakes but that is better than not moving when it is necessary.

7. Generally it is a good policy to withhold assistance from a child until he requests it or shows that he needs it. Often a reassuring "You can do it yourself" is all that is needed. Too much help hinders learning; too little help, when needed, discourages the child in his efforts. Be ready to help whether he asks for it or shows by other behavior that he needs it. There are times when he may be too tired to do things which he does readily on others days. Maintain a flexible attitude; adjust to the situation.

8. Do not be upset if some child does not cooperate or if he fails to respond to your approaches. It could be for a variety of reasons. Try a different approach the next time. Study the child and discuss your problems with the instructor.

9. If you have not worked with young children, you will be surprised when you learn how interesting they are. Have a happy face, a pleasant voice, enjoy the children and they will respond to you.

10. Children should be allowed to settle small difficulties by themselves. A young child should not be allowed to interfere unduly with the activities of others nor to endanger the safety of individuals or the group.

11. Be kind but firm in any instance where you step in to straighten out a difficulty. Report to the teachers what you have said or done in unusual situations.

12. Read your assignment carefully before going to class and have the things you want to look for clearly in mind.
13. As an observer you must keep in the background. Use your eyes and ears and do not follow the child with your whole body.

14. Sometimes it will be necessary, when observing a specific child, to follow him as he goes about his activities. You should stay close enough to be able to hear clearly and to see his facial expressions but do not get so close that you interfere.

15. Guard against grouping with other adults. No more than two students should be in one place at one time. Adult conversations should be kept at a minimum and should never relate to the children or their activities.

16. Observe professional ethics. For students to understand children, it is necessary that instructors and students discuss them frankly. It is important, however, that children should never be quoted outside the child guidance class.

Recommendations for student behavior:

DO

1. Listen carefully to any instructions before your visit.
2. Sit in a low chair outside the activity area.
3. Make notes on questions you may have and discuss later.

DO NOT

1. Talk to other observers or teachers.
2. Engage the children in conversation. If a child addresses you, reply briskly and courteously.
3. Move around through the rooms or hover over the children.
4. Laugh at the children or their activities. Reserve your comments for the classroom.

Suggested Assignments

1. Observe the one child and write a detailed account of that child's activities for 10 minutes. Make a record accurate and objective.

2. Choose a second child who is very different from the first in appearance, action and activity interest. Make a 10 minute record.
HOW THE CHILD RESPONDS

(To be used with "Equilibrium and Disequilibrium". Page 5 in Child Care and Development.)

At 8 months — Most respond to "bye-bye," "pat-a-cake," "friendly, can handle things pretty well, begin to creep. Is very satisfied—also can learn to understand "no-no." Says "du-da.

At 10 months — Creeps, some are walking. Acts "strange" with strangers. Loves "peek-a-boo" and being chased as he creeps. May want to be fed standing up. May want to use his spoon, which slows up feeding. (Let him stand, securely fastened, give him a spoon of his own)

At 15 months — Dart and dash and fling. "No-no" has little effect. Gets into everything. Loves to put one object inside another endlessly—bottle and poker chips or clothes pins. Some will sit on toilet, some drinking from a cup. Will cooperate in dressing. Easily diverted and amused.

At 18 months — Child moves in reverse—"come here"—he runs away. Put something in wastebasket, he'll be most likely to empty what's there. Now can walk away from him and he'll come running. "No" is chief word. "Now" is most important to him. He is fond of objects and treats other people as objects—will be as likely to step on a person as on a toy. Do not call him—he will not come. Use simple one-word commands; "look"—"toilet"—"out." He is quite temperate; expects very little. Do not call him "bad"—be creative—if he is doing something you don't want him to do—you crumple paper or dance a jig in another part of the room to divert him.

At 2 years — Breathing spell. Motor skills are better. Speech and understanding better. Makes fewer demands. Still cannot be made to share, but, if directed, will substitute a toy. Is loving and affectionate.

At 2½ years —
1. Rigid and inflexible. Wants it now—everything just so, in its proper place.
2. Domineering and demanding. He gives orders. He makes decisions.
3. Violent emotions—"I will—I won't" "go out, stay in." A decision on clothes can last all morning, because the child is torn in decision making.
4. Perseverance—wants to go on with whatever he is doing. Must help pick up toys, etc.

At 3 years —
1. Conformity. Likes to give as well as take. Will share—use "we" frequently. Is better balanced within self—easier to work around. People are important to him. Feeds himself, toilet trained except for few accidents. Wants to please more.
At 3½ years — All mixed up again. Coordination is poor again. May stutter, stumble, fall, etc. May say he "can't hear," "can't see," may blink eyes, bite nails, masturbate, pick nose; will whine, ask questions, for security: "Do you love me?" Wants exclusive attention.

At 4 years — "Out of bounds." Hits, kicks, runs away, throws stones, etc. Picks up profanity—uses bathroom terms often. Will frame them with other words. Is defiant, boasts, swaggers, shows off. His imagination—not lying, just knows no limits—extends play areas. Find someone to visit by himself. Physically active.

At 5 years — Motor development is good. Separation of sex; easy to get along with; needs little supervision. Stays busy for longer period of time. Can be reasoned with; puts words and actions together easily.

At 5½ years and 6 years — Behavior breaks up again—is antagonistic, aggressive, and contradicts himself—"okay" then "no" follows each other. Defiant of mother authority. What friends do is important.

At 6½ years — A joy again. Comfortable within himself, friendly, helpful, willing, well adjusted, well balanced.
