Helping students take a look at what the traditional family provides—necessities, protection, affection, security, transmission of values and culture, and a setting for socialization—is relevant in today's curriculum. Developed to be used at the senior high school level, the curriculum guide offers a course outline emphasizing 11 major concepts: (1) the individual in the family, (2) the role of the family, (3) the family as managers, (4) the family as consumers, (5) preparation for marriage, (6) children in the family, (7) food for the family, (8) clothing for the family, (9) housing for the family, (10) family transportation, and (11) job and career opportunities related to family living. Supporting concepts and performance objectives are stated. The material is organized according to content and generalizations, teaching strategies, learning, evaluating experiences, and corresponding resources. Classroom materials in the appendix include personal evaluation forms and checklists, a forced choice values test, charts, fact sheets, sample forms and questionnaires, a play script, puzzles, games, and transparency masters. Concluding the guide is a list of related books, booklets and pamphlets, films, filmstrips, charts, kits, periodicals, programmed learning materials, tapes, and transparencies. Sources are listed for all items cited. (MN)

FOREWORD

This guide was developed to be used as a resource guide in planning and teaching a family living course at the senior high level. It may be taught for junior and senior students on either a yearly or a semester basis.

Traditionally American society has been built around the family, and the concern for the preservation of the family has been expressed by educators, sociologists, etc. Helping students take a look at what the traditional family provides—necessities, protection, affection, security, transmission of values and culture, and a setting for socialization is extremely relevant in today's curriculum.

This course also provides opportunities for students to better understand themselves, to learn to live harmoniously with family members and acquaintances, and to develop a sense of community responsibility.

The guide was edited by Pat Schrader.

The cover was designed by Raymond L. Gilmore, artist, Curriculum Development Center, University of Kentucky. The transparencies were also prepared by Mr. Gilmore.

| A. Self Appreciation and Role Identification | Interest Approach: Bulletin board, "Who Am I?"

Note to teacher: Ask the students to bring two pictures to class. You may choose to have them bring a current picture and a baby picture of themselves or a current picture and a picture of what they hope to be in the future. Have the class compare the two sets of pictures and draw conclusions as to how the pictures differ and what factors have brought about the change.

Brainstorm to determine what the class members consider to be their basic needs.

Read references to discover the basic physical needs of each individual.

Basic Needs

a. Every person is born with the same basic needs and a knowledge of these basic needs will increase one's understanding of behavior, both of one's self and of others.

b. Basic physical needs include the following:

1. Satisfaction of hunger and thirst
2. Self-preservation
3. Satisfaction or sublimation of sexual drives
4. Growth
5. Activity

- No. 38, Living with Your Family, Ch. 1.
- No. 66, Tomorrow's Homemaker, Ch. 1, pp. 5-14 and Chs. 4-5.
c. Basic psychological needs include the following:

(1) To be valued by others
(2) To experience success
(3) Security and safety
(4) Variety and new experiences
(5) Freedom and independence
(6) Religion and a philosophy of life
(7) To care for and conform to others

d. Satisfaction of the basic needs is a primary factor in the development of a healthy and mature self-image.

e. Certain needs have priority, thus creating a hierarchy of needs.

f. Adjustive behavior indicates a solution to the problem has been found. Maladjustive behavior indicates only the treatment of a symptom. When basic needs are not fulfilled, maladjustments in the personality may result.

Read references to discover the basic psychological needs of each individual.

Discuss the basic needs of all individuals.

Collect and display advertisements which appeal to each of these basic needs.

Note to teacher: Construct a bulletin board or prepare a handout to acquaint the students with the hierarchy of needs.

Invite a resource person to discuss basic needs and circumstances which may arise if these needs are not met.

and/or

Group work: Write case histories which reveal maladjustments which an individual may experience if his basic needs are not met.

Exchange case histories and give alternative solutions which would indicate adjustive behavior.

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

2. Self Concept

a. Self-analysis involves critical evaluation and recognition of those qualities that the individual may be able to develop or improve and those qualities which he may be unable to change. One's self-concept will include a personal, a social, and an ideal self-concept.

b. One's personal self-concept involves the image one possesses of himself as a physical and social entity.

c. One's social self-concept includes perceptions, attitudes and feelings about himself in relation to other persons.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

Evaluation: Answer the following questions:

--- How does one fulfill one's needs?
--- How do advertisers appeal to one's needs in order to sell products?

Complete a personal evaluation checklist, checking items which describe you.

Read references to gain knowledge of one's self-concept.

Complete personal evaluation checklist a second time, checking the items you would like to describe you.

Compare the two checklists and make a plan for improvement.

Analyze one's own self concept as related to the following:

--- Personal self-concept
--- Social self-concept

Resources

Books:

- No. 49, Relationships: A Study in Human Behavior, Ch. 2.
- No. 4, Between Parent and Teenager, Ch. 5.

Appendix: No. I-B, pp. 244-245, "Personal Evaluation."
d. One's ideal self-concept is that image which one has of what he wishes to become.

---Ideal self-concept

Evaluation: Write a paper regarding the above analysis. The paper shall include the following:

--How one feels toward one's self
--How one fits into peer groups
--What one wishes to become

Note to teacher: It may be helpful to borrow psychology and sociology books from another department.

b. Acceptance is a basic need of all individuals. Peer group acceptance takes on additional importance in certain stages of development.

Read and discuss references to find a definition of the term peer and to gain knowledge concerning peer groups.

Recall experiences in which you have been rejected by your peers. Indicate your feelings at that time.

Discuss peer influence relating to such topics as fads in dress, attitudes toward school work, participation in extracurricular activities, and acceptance of family values.

Share incidences in which peers have had more influence upon your behavior than your parents.

Relate how the attitude of your parents toward your friends affects your feeling either in a positive way or a negative way.

4. Evaluation of Peer Relationships

a. Peer relationships may be either beneficial or harmful.

b. Beneficial peer relationships are often found in clubs sponsored by the schools or churches in the community.

c. One may find that membership in certain organizations is not beneficial. These organizations would include those which

(1) lack adult supervision,
(2) have secret initiations,
(3) have illegal requirements for membership.

Cite experiences in which your friends have had a positive or negative influence on your development.

List community activities and organizations in which teenagers participate.

Choose those community activities and organizations which promote proper growth and development through membership or participation and those you feel would have a harmful influence on teenagers who participated.

List certain procedures which indicate that one needs to avoid certain types of clubs and organizations. This may include certain types of initiations and requirements.

Recall experiences in which you have been tempted by pressure from peer groups.
5. Responsibilities of Role

a. A role is a function assumed by an individual or a group in a particular situation.

b. Each role which one accepts will have certain expectations.

Include all the arguments which would be used to interest one in such activities and dramatize situations in which students are being pressured by peers to experiment with the following:

--Tobacco
--Alcohol
--Drugs

Predict the outcomes.

Note to teacher: For an evaluation give the students a list of situations and ask them to decide whether parents or peers would most influence their decisions. Include the following:

--Attending church
--Skipping school
--Selecting clothes
--Other situations

Define the word role.

Point out the role expectations of the following:

--Being a teenager
--Being feminine or masculine
--Being a daughter or a son
--Being a friend
--Other roles

Decide the responsibilities and privileges of each of the above roles.

B. Personality Growth and Development

1. Definition of Personality

a. Personality is the unique way in which individuals behave. This includes the following:

(1) The way one walks
(2) The way one dresses
(3) The way one talks
(4) The way one thinks
(5) One's feelings
(6) One's hopes and dreams

b. Personality traits have been classified as extrovert, introvert, and ambivert.

c. It is seldom that a person's behavior is such that it fits perfectly into one of the classifications mentioned above.

d. One's personality develops as the individual grows and develops.

Brainstorm to develop a definition of personality.

View and discuss a transparency made from the personality diagram in the appendix.

Reassess your definition of personality in light of this diagram.

Consult references to discover the different classifications of personalities and the characteristics of each type.

Draw conclusions as to whether any person is likely to fit into any one of these above classifications.

Complete and discuss the checklists on personality and personal characteristics.

Invite a qualified resource person to talk about desirable personality traits.

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

- e. Certain personality traits may be either desirable or undesirable, depending upon how they affect one's relationships with others.
- f. One seldom sees himself as others see him.
- g. An understanding of one's self is a first step in understanding others.
- h. Self improvement projects require the following preliminary steps:
  1. Identifying personal strengths and weaknesses
  2. Accepting the need for improvement

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

- Group work: List the personality traits which you like and those which you dislike in others.
- Describe yourself as you would like to appear to others.
- List traits which you feel are a part of your own personality.
- View and discuss a film which describes how to improve your personality.

  - No. 27, Homemaking for Teenagers, Book 1, Ch. 1.
- Film: No. 17, "Improve Your Personality."

Evaluation: Refer to the personality checklist previously completed and being very analytical describe yourself as you see yourself.
2. Factors That Influence Personality

a. Hereditary factors may effect one's personality.

Choose areas you plan to improve and make a plan for accomplishing this improvement. Plan only what you can successfully accomplish.

Consult references to determine some hereditary factors which may effect personality and describe what role each plays in the development of personality. Include the following:

--Slow birth defects
--Susceptibility to disease
--Bone structure
--Color of skin, hair, and eyes
--Texture of hair
--Other factors

b. Environmental factors have a great influence on one's personality.

Determine some environmental factors which affect personality. Include the following:

--Occupation of one's parents
--Education and interests of one's parents
--Talents of one's family members
--One's hobbies
--One's church
--One's school
--One's acquaintances
--One's activities
--One's experiences
--One's position in the family such as, only child, first born, last born, and middle child.

Teaching Strategies

- c. One's personality during the teen years is influenced by the attitude one takes toward the physical changes of the body and the concepts one forms of individual physical abilities and limitations.

- d. One's emotions are more intense during teenage years than at any other time. Strong emotions need to be released in ways that are not harmful to the individual or his acquaintances.

- e. Prejudice is a preconceived judgment or opinion formed without sufficient knowledge of the subject.
(1) Prejudices are not natural occurrences but are learned from the culture, from the society, and from the family in which one lives.

(2) Prejudicial attitudes may be overcome through learning about other cultures and other races.

3. Retraining Personality Traits
   a. Personality development is a life-long process. Unlearning a trait or habit is difficult and will require a strong desire; however, it is possible to change personality traits.

   Recall some common prejudices that you have observed in the community.
   Determine the factors responsible for the development of such prejudices.

   Invite a resource person to describe the culture of other people.
   or

   View a film showing the various ways culture is transmitted.

   Evaluation: List the factors that you feel have most influenced your personality.

   Read and discuss references to determine how personality traits may be changed.

   Suggested resource persons: foreign student, person who has visited another country, naturalized citizen.

   Film: No. 21, "Man and His Culture."

   Books:
   No. 65, Today's Home Living, Ch. 2, pp. 27-34.
   No. 34, Lessons In Living, Unit 3, Lesson 1, p. 276.
   No. 6, Building Your Home Life, Ch. 2, pp. 41-50.
   No. 66, Tomorrow's Homemaker, Ch. 1, pp. 14-22.

   Note to teacher: Give the name of each person in the class to a selected number of students. Ask each student to write a personality description for each of the names he/she is given. Collect the description, make a compilation for each student and destroy the original student papers. Give each student the compilation of his personality description.
I. The individual in the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

b. Youth has some responsibility for its own personality traits.

C. Maturity

1. Types of maturity

a. Maturity is revealed in an individual's use of available resources to develop his potentialities.

b. Chronological maturity identifies the number of years a person has lived, but does

Teaching Strategies Learning - Evaluating Experiences

Evaluation: Study your personality description and use it as a basis to write a paper describing how you might improve your own personality. If you disagree with the description made by your class members give the reasons why you disagree.

Complete a checksheet, "How Mature Am I?"

Note to teacher: Help the students rate their maturity according to the following:

--13 or more yes responses--"You Have What It Takes."
--10 or 12 yes responses--"You're In The Safety Zone."
--Below 10 yes responses--"Get Busy On Improvements."

Group Work: Read references and report to the class on the different types of maturity. In the report describe each type of maturity, give examples of this maturity, and tell when it is likely to occur. Include the following:

--Chronological maturity not necessarily indicate any other type of maturity.

c. Physical maturity is orderly and sequential, but irregular. There is great variation among individuals in the growth toward physical maturity.

d. Intellectual maturity is dependent upon inherited mental potential, environmental experiences, and motivation.

e. Emotional maturity results when one understands his feelings and can control his actions. This is essential to the development of a favorable personality.

f. One develops toward maturity by wisely forming his own code of social behavior. Socialization means an individual learns the ways of a given group so that he can function within it.

g. Becoming philosophically mature involves understanding of one's self and choosing individual values and goals.

Evaluation: Complete the following sentence. "My maturity is revealed by..."

2. Aids to Maturity

a. Defense mechanisms (cont.)

Read references to discover some different types of defense mechanisms. Include the following:

3. Problem Solving

a. Problem solving follows a sequence of steps. These steps may include the following:

1. State the problem.
2. Determine when a final decision must be made.
4. Examine alternatives.
5. Make the decision.
6. Try out your solution.
7. Check to see if it worked and make necessary adjustments.

b. One may cultivate both mental and physical health by facing problems honestly and mastering them.

Describe two actual experiences, one in which there was evidence of a lack of self-control, and one in which self-control was used.

Evaluation: Summarize the characteristics and behavior of a mature individual.

Read references to analyze the steps in problem solving.

Group work: Present a short skit showing a difficult decision a teenaged person must make. The skit may be on one of the following subjects:

-- Part-time employment
-- Future vocational plans
-- Early marriage
-- Other subjects

Evaluation: Using the problem-solving technique, reach a solution for all the groups other than your own. Report solutions to the class.

4. Parent and Teen Relationships

   a. Parent-teen relationships are often turbulent during the period of adolescence. It is important for parents to learn to guide their children adequately.

   b. Adolescence is the teenaged years, the period from thirteen to twenty.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

- Compare solutions.
- Choose the best solution.
- Read and discuss references for a better understanding of parent and teen relationships.
- Participate in a buzz session in which a teenager's problems with his/her parents are identified. Include how the parents often handle the problems and describe what you feel would be a better solution. The parents' solution may be one of the following:
  --- Do it because I say so.
  --- When I was your age...
  --- Other solutions

Booklet: No. 36, "The Adolescent in Your Family."
c. The adolescent is striving to perform certain tasks. These include the following:

1. Achieving physical competency
2. Getting along with one’s family
3. Getting along with peers of both sexes
4. Achieving scholastic success
5. Making advanced educational plans
6. Developing a set of values, goals, morals, religious beliefs, etc.
7. Developing socially responsible behavior
8. Discovering and developing an acceptable self
9. Becoming economically independent
10. Preparing for marriage and family life

Recall from above reading assignment the developmental goals or tasks of the adolescent period.

d. Adolescents need to find their own identity as well as to maintain their interdependent relationship with their family.

I. The Individual in the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

e. It is not unusual for teens to feel their parents do not understand them. In some cases, parents are reluctant to allow the independence which the teenager is seeking.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

Analyze some common conflicts which occur between the parent and the teenager. Include the following:

--Inability to communicate
--Grades in school
--Jobs and careers
--Drugs and alcohol
--Housing, clothing and standards of cleanliness
--Quarreling or divorced parents
--Mobility of family

Note to teacher: Ask the students to develop a case study for each of the problems they listed.

Evaluation: Analyze one of the case studies developed.

or

Defend the statement "The transition from childhood to adulthood is facilitated by parental understanding."

or

Give twenty responses to the statement "When I become a parent of a teenager I will . . ."
5. Personal Philosophy of Life

a. One's philosophy of life will consist of the beliefs, the attitudes, and the concepts which one has developed.

b. During the adolescent period one is involved in the development of a personal philosophy of life.

c. One's personal philosophy affects the way one relates to others.

Discuss ways in which your philosophy is influenced by your values, goals and environment.

Think of people who may have influenced your philosophy of life. Decide in what ways they influenced you.

Identify conflicts which are present in our society and the kinds of behavior which may accompany each conflict. The conflicts identified may include the following:

--family vs. career
--Religion vs. science
--Equality vs. segregation
--Honesty vs. don't get caught
--Brotherhood vs. war
--Other conflicts

Discuss how one might react to situations such as the following:

--Sharing a limited amount of food
--Aiding an injured stranger
--Revealing secrets of one friend to another
--Other situations

2. Values and Goals

Read references to secure definitions of values and goals.

a. Values are those things which you consider very important.

Complete the statement "Values are . . .". Compare your answer with those of other students. Discuss implications.

b. Values are products of current experiences and are learned from parents, peers, friends, church and community.

Compile a list of ten personal values. Ask parents to list ten personal values in order of importance to them. Compare your list with your parent's list.

State values that you would choose for your life. Decide what you do daily which reveals these values.

c. A goal is an ambition one wishes to attain.

Recall the definition of a goal.

d. Goals are classified as being long-term or short-term.

Differentiate between short-term and long-term goals.

Group work: Study a list of items given to you by the teacher and decide which would be short-term and which would be long-term goals.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

Note to teacher: Below is a list of goals you may wish to include for the students to use for their group work:

- A new car
- A colored TV
- A college degree
- A promotion on the job
- A new dress or suit
- Completion of apprenticeship
- An A in algebra
- Other goals

Read and discuss references to determine how goals and values are related.

Group work: Write and dramatize a skit entitled "If I Had Three Wishes."

Discuss how values and goals influenced the decisions dramatized in these skits.

Complete a forced answer test on values, goals, and standards.

Score the above test.

Draw conclusions as to what values are important to you.

3. Code of Behavior

   a. One's code of behavior will reflect one's values, goals, and standards.

   Evaluation: Complete the following statements:

   --If your primary goal is a new car, your values are ____________.
   --If your primary goal is a new house, your values are ____________.
   --If your primary goal is a college degree, your values are ____________.
   --If your primary goal is having many friends, your values are ____________.
   --If your primary goal is a good job, your values are ____________.

   or

   Using the list of values you have previously listed as a guide, develop a list of immediate and long-term goals.

   Select a goal that seems most important to you now and complete a plan for reaching it.

Evaluation: Cite examples of various ways in which knowledge of the family life cycles can help families prepare for situations before they occur.

D. Role Identification of Family Members

Note to teacher: The dual role curriculum guide may be an additional source of information on role identification.

1. A role is a function or a part that one accepts and carries out in life.

Explore references to define role and to discover the accepted role of each family member.

Dramatize your ideas as to the role of each family member. Include the following:

--- Father
--- Mother
--- Teenager
--- Grandparent
--- Adolescent
--- Preschool child
--- School age child

a. The child in the family of the past was an asset as a worker and helper.

b. The child in today's family has little chance to help in providing for the family and is therefore, primarily dependent.

5. Roles of all family members are currently changing in today's society.

a. As authority patterns and family structures change, the concept of male and female roles change.

b. The masculine role is undergoing changes as the society changes.

c. The traditional feminine role is changing to meet the changing needs in the family and in society.

In small groups discuss why children of past generations were considered assets. Share findings with class.

Brainstorm ways which children of all ages may assume responsibilities in the home.

In small groups create cartoons, posters, or stories to illustrate the following:

---The role of children two decades ago
---The role of children in today's family

Explore and discuss references concerning the roles which are changing.

View a filmstrip which describes masculine and feminine roles.

List what you consider masculine tasks. Decide which of the tasks may be done by other family members. Include the following:

---Lawn care
---Auto care
---Employment
---Discipline

2. The family of the future may not have the same responsibilities and functions as the family of today.

Discuss family functions in the 19th century. These may include:

--Growing and preserving food
--Making clothing
--Family education
--Moral standards
--Other functions

Group work: Discover how the above functions have been assumed by the community and by government agencies.

Evaluation: Identify factors which indicate that the family is changing and may undergo further changes in the future.

or

Debate "The roles of men and women will be the same in years to come."

F. Family Members in the Community

1. As one becomes an active member of a community, friendships are developed.

  - Group organizations such as the P.T.A.
  - Other services

- Interview a panel of community officials to determine the purpose of a variety of community organizations.

- Listen to a resource person describe and evaluate community services and community responsibilities.

- Identify annoying infringements on the rights of others. Include the following:
  - Littering
  - Trespassing
  - Pets
  - Noise

Evaluation: Describe the benefits offered in your community by various agencies.

Resources

Suggested resource persons:
- Fireman, policeman, librarian, day care official, planned parenthood representative.
- Community leader, law enforcement officer, health official.
MAJOR CONCEPT: III. The Family As Managers

SUPPORTING CONCEPTS: A. Management
B. Decision Making
C. Management of Time and Energy
D. Use of Leisure Time

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of this unit the student will be able to analyze the elements of management and how these elements aid the family in utilizing its resources.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Identify the management process and the elements which are involved in management.
B. Determine the factors involved in making and implementing decisions through the use of the decision-making process.
C. Follow an individual time schedule for one week.
D. Develop standards for the use of leisure time.

How evaluation is used in the management process

Discuss the statement, "Control may make or break the plan."
Needs generally refer to those items we must have in order to survive. Wants generally refer to those things beyond the basic necessities of life.

Determine the following:

- The difference between needs and wants
- How needs and wants influence planning
- Which needs and wants have priority
- How needs and wants may vary with each individual
- How one's values, goals and standards will influence one's needs and wants
- How wants are influenced by others

View the filmstrip which describes how wants are often created.

Recall how friends, relatives or acquaintances have influenced one to want something.

Evaluation: React to a word association game in which the steps in the management process and the elements involved in management are used.

Books:
No. 40, Management For You, Ch. 3.
No. 29, Home Management Is..., Ch. 6.

3. Resources for Management

a. Resources are those tools which one has at his disposal to use to obtain his goal or to satisfy a want or need. Resources may be classified as either human or nonhuman.

Recall the meaning of resources and determine the types of resources available.

Brainstorm to discover ideas of human and nonhuman resources.
Teaching Strategies

Listening - Evaluating Experiences

Make a list of resources and decide which ones are classified as human and which ones as nonhuman resources.

Brainstorm to discover the various resources available in the local community.

List the resources named.

Form buzz groups in which the participants list the benefits offered by each community resource listed.

Discuss the following questions:

--- Are community resources free?
--- Is your money wasted if you do not use the community resources?

Evaluation: Make two lists, one of family resources and one of school resources. Analyze ways which you contribute to these resources. If you do not contribute to them, determine how you might make a contribution.
B. Decision-Making

1. Although they may be stated in varying terms, rational decision making occurs in a series of logical steps. The following is an example of how these steps may be stated.
   a. Recognize the need for making a decision.
   b. Seek all possible alternatives.
   c. Gain information and knowledge concerning all alternatives.
   d. Choose the best alternative.
   e. Accept the responsibility for the decision.

2. Making decisions concerning the use of resources is the essence of management and is necessary when more than one alternative is available.

Note to teacher: As an interest approach, prepare several bags containing articles. Ask students to choose an article quickly. Ask: "Why did you choose that?" Define this as a snap judgment or irrational decision.

Research references to identify the steps involved in decision-making.

  - Attending school
  - Other appropriate activities

- Group work: Choose a problem which teenagers may have and reach a solution by using the steps in decision-making.

- Determine the difference between routine and habit.

- List through class discussion the advantages and disadvantages of routine and habit.

- List habits which are observed in students. Determine which are beneficial or detrimental.

Evaluation: Observe and record two instances in which rational decisions were made, and two instances in which irrational decisions were made. Discriminate between the two types and their outcomes.

Resources
C. Managing Time and Energy

1. Time is the one resource which is equal for everyone.

2. The wise use of time determines whether one will be able to complete necessary tasks as well as have time for leisure.

3. Poor managers of time find themselves
   a. Unable to complete assigned tasks.
   b. With limited time for recreation.
   c. Frustrated because they do not have the satisfaction of doing things well.

4. The amount of energy available will vary with each individual and its wise use will prevent excessive fatigue.

SUPPORTING CONCEPT: A. The Consumer
B. Income
C. Money Management
D. Family Financial Records
E. Banks and Banking Services
F. Savings
G. Consumer Credit
H. Family Security
I. Consumer Buying
J. Consumer Citizenship

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of the activities in this unit the student will be able to analyze efficient consumer techniques.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Identify the roles of the consumer.
B. Identify some sources and types of income, some methods of increasing the income, and anticipated income changes during the different life cycles.
C. Analyze the division of family incomes and factors which will influence the spending of the family income.
D. Determine the kinds of financial records which may be kept by the family and the importance of these records.
E. Describe the different services offered by banks.
F. Select savings plans for a variety of families.
G. Enumerate the advantages, disadvantages, responsibilities, costs, and dangers involved in obtaining and using credit.
H. Identify a variety of programs which are available to provide family security.
I. Formulate guidelines to be followed by the consumer when considering a purchase.
J. Generalize on consumer protection, the rights and responsibilities involved in being a consumer, and sources of consumer information.

A. The Consumer

1. Who Is the Consumer?
   - a. Every person is a consumer in the sense that everyone uses or consumes economic goods and services.

4. Variations During the Family Life Cycles
   a. Family income will vary during the different life cycles.
   b. An awareness of the expected income and expenses of each period of the family life cycle will aid a family in future planning.

Brainstorm to find what class members feel they might do to add to the family income.

List activities of family members which may be used in homes to add to the family income. Include the following:

- Refinishing furniture
- Knitting
- Sewing
- Gardening
- Household repair
- Other activities

Note to teacher: Review with the students the life cycles taught in Concept II.

Discuss the following topics:

- Periods in the family life cycle when income is likely to be the smallest
- Periods in the family life cycle when income is likely to be the greatest

   a. Buying is an act of choosing between the following:

   1. Wants and needs
   2. Luxuries and necessities
   3. One product and another of the same kind
   4. Different kinds of products
   5. Spending or saving for another purpose

   Note to teacher: As an interest approach ask students to bring at least one article recently purchased which has not been useful and explain why it was purchased.

   Indicate your personal shopping rating by checking the pretest.

   Compile a list of questions one should ask before purchasing a good or service to justify purchase. The questions will include the following:

   - Do I need it?
   - Is it worth the cost?
   - Could I use my money a better way?
   - Why am I buying it?
   - Other appropriate questions
b. No product is worth buying unless it is worth more to the buyer than the money which is spent for it.

c. There are various motivating factors which stimulate one to purchase goods and services.

2. Principles of Buymanship

a. Money is a worthwhile resource only in terms of what it buys.

b. Intelligent application of shopping techniques will help the individual and the family gain greater satisfaction for the money spent.

View a filmstrip dealing with why one buys an item.

J. Consumer Citizenship

1. Consumer Protection

   a. Local, state, and federal laws have been passed to protect the consumer.

   b. The federal government requires that all food, drugs, and cosmetics bear labels with certain information.

   c. The Federal Trade Commission has the responsibility of stopping unfair commercial practices.

Consult references to determine recent consumer protection legislation.

Research to find required labeling information.

Discuss what the average consumer can do to promote better commercial practices.

Note to teacher: Make a list of household items to be used for the evaluation. Have each student draw the name of one item. Provide references for student use.

Evaluation: Formulate guidelines to be followed when purchasing a household item.

MAJOR CONCEPT: V. Preparation For Marriage

SUPPORTING CONCEPTS:
A. Dating Experiences
B. Selection of a Marriage Partner
C. Marriage Laws and Customs
D. Marriage Adjustments

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of this unit the student will be able to analyze factors significant during the stages preparatory to married life which may assist couples in reaching a mature love relationship and other factors affecting marriage success.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Analyze the role of dating in forming love relationships.
B. Recognize factors influencing choice of a marriage partner.
C. Cite laws and customs regulating marriage.
D. Describe marital adjustments which couples need to make and their contribution to successful relationship in marriage.
A. Dating Experiences

1. Purpose of Dating

- A. A knowledge of dating patterns contributes to satisfying dating relationships.
- B. A knowledge of dating terms contributes to effective communication about dating.

Brainstorm reasons for dating.

- Group dating
- Casual dating
- Steady dating
- Engagement

Note to teacher:

Prepare a bulletin board using the idea given in the appendix.

- Books: No. 45, *Personal Adjustment, Living, Ch. 5 and 6, No. 44, Marital Life, Ch. 4, No. 49, Relationships, A Study in Human Behavior, Ch. 17.

Resources

- Reading references to determine the functions and values of dating in our culture.

References

- No. 45, *Personal Adjustment, Living, Ch. 5 and 6.
- No. 44, *Marital Life, Ch. 4.
- No. 49, *Relationships, A Study in Human Behavior, Ch. 17.
c. In our culture, dating may help one

(1) Meet needs for approval, recognition and companionship.
(2) Prepare for the give and take of marriage.
(3) Become better acquainted with one individual as a basis for deciding whether or not to marry.
(4) Develop standards regarding what is desirable in a mate.
(5) Increase understanding of the opposite sex.

Compile a list of reasons for dating.

Complete and discuss dating checklist entitled, "What Is a Good Date?"

Discuss reasons for dating and not dating and the advantages and disadvantages of different patterns of dating.

Question Box: Write personal questions related to dating and place in a question box. Discuss questions in class.

or

Listen to a resource person discuss the questions placed in the question box.

Evaluation: List the functions or values of dating.

or

Write a paragraph listing and explaining the functions of social dating.

- Read selected parts of assigned reading to examine dating practices of the following:
  - Colonial America
  - Foreign countries
  - Primitive cultures

Note to teacher: The above may be assigned to special students who will report findings to the class.

- Invite someone from a foreign country living in the community to discuss dating practices common in their culture.

- Compare and contrast dating customs practiced in other cultures and those practiced in the United States today.

- Discuss reasons for the differences and similarities.

- Decide if and how local dating patterns differ from those practiced elsewhere in the United States.

Resources

- Encyclopedias
b. Dating practices are influenced by culture, family and peers.

Identify the factors which influence personal standards in dating behavior. Include the following:

--Parents
--Religion
--Personality
--Individual traits
--Friends
--Lifetime goals
--Other factors

c. Steady dating may have both advantages and disadvantages.

Survey peers and adults to discover prevalent attitudes toward steady dating.

Compile results. Present results of survey by using a student panel.

Summarize findings and report in school newspaper.

Read reference to facilitate a discussion of the differences between steady dating for convenience and steady dating as a type of informal engagement.

Decide the advantages and disadvantages of each type of dating.

Evaluation: Defend or repute the statement, "Going steady is better than 'free dating' for persons sixteen and older."

3. Dating Manners and Etiquette

- Examine references and determine guidelines for social behavior.

- Group work: Research and prepare presentations on the following:
  - Accepting and/or refusing a date
  - Inviting another for a date
  - Introducing a date to one's family
  - Avoiding passes without humiliating the passer
  - Saying "no" gracefully
  - Conversational ability
  - Telephone courtesies

b. Successful teenage dating involves two thoughtful people who are considerate of each other, their families, and friends.

Prepare a self-rating check list of social dating skills.

Use the self-rating device in evaluating personal skills.

Use the self-rating device to conduct a survey among students to determine social skills considered important in dating.

Report findings to class.

Discuss the following:

-- How does an individual learn social skills?
-- What factors influence one's motivation for developing social skills?
-- What courtesies should dating partners extend to each other?
-- What are some of the most common sources of irritation in dating behavior?
-- Are social courtesies, as applied in dating situations, really unique or different from those applied to other situations?

Evaluation: In small groups write case studies which involve problems in social dating situations. Exchange case studies and find solutions to all the ones prepared by groups other than your own.
4. Sexual Behavior and Morality

a. When young adults are given freedom of choice they determine their own moral behavior and need to accept the responsibility for their decisions.

b. Young adults need to set their own dating standards.

Examine some of the problems which are frequently discussed in relation to social dating. Include the following:

--Early dating
--Going steady
--Sexual exploration
--Promiscuity
--Petting
--Premarital intercourse
--Others

Listen to a panel discussion on the key issues involved in the moral standards of dating behavior. Ask the panel to discuss some of the following:

--Sexual behavior (parking on dates, etc.)
--Driving behavior (dragging, speeding, etc.)
--Other issues

or

Read case studies which illustrate moral problems arising in dating situations. Analyze the problems and discuss possible solutions.

Choose a dating problem which prevails in our society today and complete a report which will include the following:

--An identification of the problem
--Conditions which form the background for the development of the problem (cultural influences)
--Possible solutions to the problem

--- When parent and peer values are different, what course of action may be taken?
--- How do personality traits such as self-respect, self-discipline, and empathy relate to making decisions in the dating situation?
--- How do girls sometimes unwittingly cause problems for themselves in maintaining dating standards?
--- How is an individual's standards of dating behavior related to his overall reputation or image?

Evaluation: Complete the following open ended statements:

--- "Standards of dating behavior are . . ."
--- "One's concept of morality is determined by . . ."
5. Venereal Disease

a. Venereal diseases are contagious diseases transmitted by sexual contact.

Brainstorm preconceived ideas about venereal disease.

Read and discuss references on venereal diseases.

b. In the early stages, venereal diseases may be cured by drugs in a week or ten days. However, no drug can cure the harm that may result from delayed diagnosis.

View and discuss films concerning venereal diseases.

Listen to a resource person explain the transmission, symptoms, cures, and recent legislation on various venereal diseases.

6. Alcohol and Drug Use

a. Some young people because of boredom, a negative self-concept, or pressure from others have turned to drugs or alcohol.

Consult references and discuss why some teen-agers try drinking alcoholic beverages or using drugs.

View films or filmstrips on the effect of alcohol and drugs.

b. Both alcohol and drugs introduce harmful chemicals into the body that affect body functions.

c. Young people who experiment with drugs or alcohol seem to have three characteristics in common.

1. They want to feel accepted.
2. They want to feel important.
3. They want to feel grown up.
7. Concepts of Love

a. Love, like other forms of development, occurs in sequential steps. If any step is skipped, mature love is less likely to occur. The steps to mature love include the following:

(1) Self
(2) Mother
(3) Family
(4) Gang
(5) Adolescent
(6) Mature

Write your definition of love. Share with classmates. Save your definition for evaluation at end of unit.

Interest Approach: View a film about the beginning of love.

Study references on concepts of love.

Using the fish bowl technique, have a class discussion of the following questions pertaining to the stages of love:

--Is it possible to skip a stage of love and still reach mature love?
--What factors might cause the elimination of one of the stages of love?
--Under what circumstances may a person repeat the stages of love? Example, divorce or death of mate.
--Why is it important to proceed through several stages of adolescent infatuation?
--What may happen if a person marries during a stage of adolescent infatuation?
--What are some characteristics which may cause a person to progress only to infatuation? Examples: jealousy, focus on physical attraction only, and failure to face reality.
--What are some characteristics of mature love?

B. Selection of a Marriage Partner

1. Mature Love

   a. Mature love implies an increased capacity to care about the well-being of another person and a realistic acceptance of that person.

   Define mature love.

   b. Mature love accepts and prepares one to meet the realities of marriage.

   React to the statement: "One must love one's self before he can love another person."

   Invite a resource person to discuss: "The Meaning of True Love."

   c. Mate selection is not only different in various cultures and countries, but in different periods of history.

Group work: Read selected parts of the assigned reference on mate selection in various countries and cultures and report findings to the class.

Note to teacher: Introduce "Phillips 66" discussion technique where six students are given six minutes to discuss a question or problem and decide on an answer or opinion.

Discuss the following questions using Phillips 66 technique:

---How does one's personal character development affect a love relationship?
---Is personal maturity a factor in distinguishing between love and infatuation?
---How does a positive view of self help one develop a "you attitude" rather than an "I attitude"?
---How does one's stage of personality development affect a love relationship?

React to the statement: "One must love one's self before he can love another person."

Invite a resource person to discuss: "The Meaning of True Love."

Suggested resource persons: minister, mature married couple.

2. Factors Which Affect Marriage Success

a. Concept of Ideal Mate

(1) One's concept of an ideal mate is formed as one progresses through the stages of love.

(2) One's ideal mate will fulfill one's needs and complement one's personality.

b. Interest and Background

(1) People tend to choose partners of similar age, social status, neighborhood background, education, and race.

Brainstorm how knowledge of factors influencing mate selection may increase the likelihood of marital success.

Interest Approach: Listen to tapes which describe desirable characteristics of a mate.

Brainstorm to identify reasons people marry.

Identify premarital factors which could cause problems in marriage such as different status, pregnancy, and unhappy home life.

List qualities you want in a marriage partner in three columns entitled Necessary, Important, and Desirable.

Use the list to rate a person you are presently dating or someone you would like to date.

Check the qualities this person possesses.

Compare this person's qualities with the ideal list.

List people, such as parents or teachers, who have influenced your concept of a satisfactory mate. Explain how and to what extent they have been influential.

Debate: "Like marries like."

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Resources

A lasting marriage is more likely if there is similarity in religious backgrounds.

c. Parental Approval

1. Marriage is not only the union of two individuals but two different families as well.

2. Studies show that parents' approval and successful marriage adjustment are correlated.

3. Close relationships between parent and child are shown to be favorable to marriage.

4. Parental cooperation and approval of a marriage is a valuable asset and the lack of it is a danger signal.

5. Parents who are happy, well-mated and settle their problems together establish patterns of adjustment that children learn and carry into their homes.

Invite a resource person to speak on spiritual values which contribute to permanency and happiness in marriage.

Write a paragraph on the topic: "But I'm marrying Joe—not his family."

Share the paragraph with the class.

Discuss the following questions:

---How does parental approval contribute to marital success?

---Does a close relationship between a parent and a child influence the child's marriage?

---What problems may arise in a marriage entered without parental approval?

---Will the success of the marriage of one's parents affect one's marriage?

Suggested resource persons: minister, priest, rabbi, marriage counselor.

V. Preparation For Marriage

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

(6) Reasons for parents objecting to a marriage may include the following:

- Age differences
- Differences in race or religion
- Educational differences
- Cultural differences
- Social differences
- Previous marriage of selected mate

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

- List reasons for parental objections to a marriage. Which ones are justified?

Resources

Book No. 45, Personal Adjustment, Marriage and Family Living, Ch. 10 and 12.

d. Health

(1) Good health contributes greatly to a couple's attitudes and relationships to each other and their enjoyment of life.

Role play

- The approaching marriage of a couple without parental approval
- An approaching marriage of a couple with parental approval
- Your suggestion to a friend whose parents disapprove his mate selection

Discuss the following:

- How good health or the lack of it may affect one's chances for a successful marriage.
The following health factors may need to be considered before a couple decides to marry:

--Genetic health problems or diseases
--Blood factors
--Venereal diseases
--Infertility
--Hereditary, physical or mental problems

List physical traits which are inheritable.

Recall examples of inheritable traits which could affect mental or physical health or life span.

Predict how these hereditary traits could affect a marriage.

Discuss when and/or if a person should tell his fiancee about the possibilities of his passing on defective genetic traits.

Recall and discuss the following:

--Examples of marriages that have failed because of physical handicaps
--Examples of marriages that have succeeded in spite of physical handicaps

Physical handicaps will have an impact on one's marital relationships.

Financial Responsibility

Money is often listed as the main cause of marital dissension between husbands and wives.

Note to teacher: If this has been thoroughly covered in Unit IV, you may wish to omit.

g. Emotional Independence of Individuals

(1) Emotional independence is a requirement for successful marriage. This has been achieved when one is able to rely on oneself for making successful decisions.

(2) An individual's family experiences are significant factors in influencing his preparation for marriage.

(3) A factor affecting one's preparation for marriage is the extent to which one's personal needs have been met.

Define emotional independence.

Brainstorm and discuss the influence of one's family upon his decisions toward such topics as housing, use of money, religion, children, education.

Dramatize a situation in which one of the marriage partners has unmet needs which affect the marriage relationship. Examples could be the young man who insists on a large bank account while denying his family's needs because of an insecure family background or a young woman who resents the close ties between her husband and his family because she never felt close to her own family.

h. Young Marriages

(1) Teenage marriages are notably unstable. The divorce rate is greater and ratings of marital happiness are lower.

Research and discuss the following:

Interracial marriages are marriages of people of two different races such as the following:

- Caucasoid-Negroid
- Negroid-Oriental
- Caucasoid-Oriental

Whether nationality differences influence the success of a marriage may depend on the following:

- The community in which the couple lives
- How well the foreign nationality group is accepted
- Other contrasts in religion, language, and customs

The following influence the success or failure of a religiously mixed marriage:

- Strength of convictions of marriage partners
- Attitudes of other family members and friends

Interracial, interfaith or international differences create unique problems in addition to the usual adjustments in a marriage relationship.

Determine some factors which influence the success or failure of an interfaith marriage. Discuss how children of these marriages are affected by these factors.

Note to teacher: Divide the class into groups. Assign each group a different combination which would be considered a mixed marriage.

Group work: Research mixed marriages and report to the class. Point out advantages and disadvantages. After the group reports, discuss the following:

C. Marriage Laws and Customs

1. The Engagement Period

Write a paper to summarize your own personal viewpoint on mixed marriages. Tell why you have this opinion.

Evaluation: Rate in order of personal importance the factors we have studied which affect the success of a marriage.

or

Select the ten most important factors you would consider when choosing a marriage partner. Give reasons for your priorities.

Interest Approach: Prepare a bulletin board entitled "A Big Step."

Note to teacher: Ask students to clip engagement announcements from newspapers. Place a large footprint in the center of the bulletin board and place announcements around it.

Brainstorm what it means when a couple becomes engaged.

View and discuss a film on the engagement period.

Films:
No. 13, "Engagement, Romance, and Reality"
No. 23, "Meaning of Engagement"

a. Becoming engaged involves two people pledging themselves to love and care for each other for their lifetimes.

Interview engaged and newly married couples to identify adjustments necessary during an engagement.

Discuss the following:

--- Engagement etiquette such as when and how to purchase a ring, how to announce an engagement, appropriate behavior for the engaged couples, etc.

--- The minimum length of time of an engagement

--- The relationship of the length of the dating and engagement periods to probable success in marriage

--- The role of communication in making adjustments during engagement

List reasons for broken engagements. Decide the consequences of breaking an engagement.

4. Planning the Wedding

- A wedding is a ritual or ceremony which formalizes the marriage vows. Marriage ceremonies of all faiths bear definite similarities.
a. The prospective bride will have the choice of the following types of weddings:

(1) Formal
(2) Semi-formal
(3) Informal

b. Weddings that are planned to fit the couple's values, goals, standards, needs, wants and resources are more likely to result in satisfaction for the couple.

5. Premarital Counseling

a. Premarital counseling is a personal course of instruction adapted to prepare young people for marriage.

b. Premarital counselors consider the individual backgrounds and specific needs of the couple concerned.

Read and discuss the types of weddings couples may choose.

Compare the costs of the different types of weddings.

Make a schedule of prewedding events determining who is financially responsible for each event. Include the following:

-- Decide on type of ceremony
-- Plan reception
-- Shop for trousseau
-- Select and mail invitations
-- Choose attendants
-- Other prewedding events

Plan and carry out a mock wedding and reception.

Note to teacher: You may want students to plan their own mock wedding or use a prepared one as listed in the resource.

Evaluation: Complete a quiz on legal requirements for marriage, marriage customs, and wedding ceremonies.

Read about and explain premarital counseling.

6. Planning the Honeymoon

a. The purpose of the honeymoon is

(1) To begin the transition to married life.
(2) To establish a sexual relationship.
(3) To learn something of one's own competence as a marriage partner.
(4) To provide privacy away from family and friends.

b. The success of the honeymoon depends upon careful planning.

Interest Approach: Collect cartoons and arrange a bulletin board reflecting ideas about the honeymoon.

Read references to ascertain the following:

--The purpose of the honeymoon
--Why there should be this period of transition from single to married life
--The cost of the honeymoon

List and discuss factors which can contribute to success or failure of honeymoon such as fatigue, distance from the place of the ceremony, and parental approval.

Describe how the purpose of the honeymoon can be fulfilled under the following circumstances:

--A week long trip
--Moving in with parents
--Moving to an apartment following the ceremony and returning to work

Identify opportunities for privacy in each of the above situations.

a. If a marriage is to be successful, it is essential that both partners accept an independent adult role.

b. A successful marriage depends upon the degree to which the relationship approaches the expectation of the two partners.

c. Understanding characteristics of marital success may help a couple avoid disillusionment.

3. Solving Marital Problems

Evaluation: Role play a domestic scene in the early months of marriage in which both husband and wife are trying to get each other to change certain habits. Dramatize their frustrations and logical solutions.

Buzz Session: Discuss the following:

- Why do people get married?
- What do couples expect from the marital relationship?
- What does society expect from the marriage relationship?
- What criteria would you suggest for determining the success of a marriage?
- Can marriages be judged by a rigid set of standards?

Panel discussion: Invite a group of couples to speak to the class about the realities of married life. Find out if their concept of marital happiness has changed any since the early days of their marriage.

Read and react to case studies on the realities of marriage.

Evaluation: Defend the following statement: "No marriage can be expected to meet all the criteria for success all the time, nor can it be expected to arrive at complete perfection."

MAJOR CONCEPT: VI. Children in the Family

SUPPORTING CONCEPTS:
A. Factors Which May Influence the Decision to Become Parents
B. Planning for Parenthood
C. Growth and Development of the Infant
D. Growth and Development of the Toddler
E. The Preschool Child
F. The Playschool

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of this unit the student will be able to analyze the factors which affect decisions to become parents and factors which need to be anticipated in dealing with young children.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Recognize the factors a couple needs to consider in deciding to become parents.
B. Analyze the basic factors which influence family planning and aid in the development of a happy well adjusted family.
C. Analyze the factors which influence the development of the infant.
D. Identify the stages of development of a toddler.
E. Choose some effective guidance techniques for children ages three to five years.
F. Practice guidance techniques for preschool children in a playschool situation.
A. Factors Which May Influence the Decision to Become Parents

1. Attitudes Toward Children

a. It is important for individuals to determine their attitudes toward children before they assume the responsibility of parenthood.

Resources
- Magazine or newspaper articles selected by the students and/or teacher.

Teaching Strategies
- Complete a pre-test to identify individual attitudes toward children.
- Read articles which deal with incidents involving attitudes toward children.
- Report to class the issues involved in the articles you read.

or

- Read and discuss references to determine how a child might be affected by the following:
  - --Being wanted by parents
  - --Being unwanted by parents
  - --Being given tender and loving care by adults

b. When families treat children impersonally

1. (1) They tend to develop physically at a slower rate.
2. (2) Their intellectual performance suffers.

c. When a husband and wife have differences which they are unable to resolve, the arrival of a child is almost certain to increase these differences, rather than simplify them.

Teaching Strategies
- Brainstorm to determine the adjustments couples need to achieve prior to the birth of their first child.
- List and discuss all suggestions made by class members.

2. Parental Responsibilities and Adjustments

a. Most couples need to adjust to living together and to work out a successful relationship before adding pregnancy to the complications.

b. The birth of a child requires the parents to adjust their routine to meet the needs of the child.

Choose the main categories of responsibilities involved in the total role of becoming a parent.

Read and discuss references to determine the skills, attitudes, and emotional maturity couples need to possess before becoming parents.

or

Interview young parents to find out how adequately they planned for their first child.

Prepare a list of questions you wish the young parents to answer. Include the following:

- Were you emotionally ready for parenthood?
- Did you anticipate all of your needs and those of the baby?
- Did the baby change the way you felt about each other?
- Were you able to give the baby loving care without sacrificing the attention you gave each other?

Report to the class on the result of the above interviews. Compare and assess findings.

3. Family Influences

4. Hereditary Factors

- a. Influence of Heredity
  - Heredity is the transmittal of genetic characteristics which cannot be changed.
  - Complete and discuss a pretest on heredity.
  - Refer to references to find genetic determinates.
  - List and define terms found in references.
  - View a filmstrip on the influence of genetics.
  - Determine hereditary factors which might influence a couple to decide not to become parents.
On each of the chromosomes are many genes which determine the specific physical traits passed on through heredity. Some genes are dominant while others are recessive.

The sex of a baby is determined by the combination of chromosomes resulting from the sperm from the father joining the egg from the mother.

Complications of the Rh factor can occur only if the father has Rh positive blood and the mother has Rh negative blood.

Examine a chart which shows the dominant and recessive genes in man. Discuss which physical traits are determined by genes. Include the following:

- Eye color
- Skin color
- Bone structure
- Other traits

Check references to learn when and how the sex of a baby is determined. Discuss the misconception many people have of this fact.

Class project: Draw a diagram or prepare a bulletin board on how chromosomes from mother and father pair up to produce a boy or a girl baby.

Read and discuss references to learn about the Rh factor. Summarize learnings.

Invite a resource person to discuss the Rh factor and newest treatment which prevents complications.

Note to teacher: You may also wish to have the resource person develop the concepts of miscarriage and birth defects.

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

1. Identical twins are the products of a single egg, while fraternal twins are products of two different eggs fertilized by two different sperm.

2. Triplets, quadruplets, and quintuplets are formed by different combinations of the same fertilization process which produces twins.

c. Abnormalities

1. Miscarriage is a lay term referring to the expulsion of the fetus from the uterus at a time before it has developed enough to live in the outside world.

2. Some drugs may harm unborn babies.

5. Personal Factors

a. One of the most important decisions a couple has to make is the decision to become parents.
b. The years between eighteen and thirty-five are generally considered the prime childbearing years for women.

c. How many children to have is a very personal and private decision and no longer needs to be left entirely to chance.

d. Due to health or personal reasons many couples are choosing to adopt a child.

---Economic conditions
---Health of the parents
---Religious beliefs
---Age of parents
---Other factors

Read references to determine the best age for bearing children. Discuss advantages and disadvantages of bearing children at different age levels.

Note to teacher: Develop some case studies on family size from which the students may work.

Using case studies, determine appropriate family size and structure in various situations.

Read references to become familiar with adoptive procedures.

Listen to a resource person describe adoptive procedures. Include the following:

---Waiting period
---Qualifications
---Cost
---Availability
---Age requirements
---Other factors

Draw conclusions as to the advisability of adopting a child.

B. Planning for Parenthood

1. Cost of Having a Baby

   a. The expense of pregnancy necessitates planning and wise use of financial resources to prevent strain on the family budget. The financial demands of pregnancy may influence the following:

   (1) The personal relationships within the family
   (2) The ability to make wise decisions in financial matters
   (3) Marital adjustments

   Note to teacher: Students will do the following activities in groups.

   Compile a list of financial decisions and plans which expectant parents must make, such as the following:

   ---Layette choice
   ---Hospital room choice and cost
   ---Medical costs
   ---Additional household help
   ---Loss of mother's income

   Estimate the cost of each of the above.

   Discuss the different methods of payment for maternity care.

   Make a spending plan for the coming year for a young couple expecting their first child based on a monthly income of $400. Analyze the plan of each group other than your own.
b. The manner in which financial demands created by an expanding family are met tends to influence relationships within the family.

c. Medical and hospital insurance is especially worth while during the family-bearing years.

d. Babies need only a small number of clothes because most of their time is spent sleeping and they outgrow clothing rapidly.

Group work: Itemize the cost of having a baby and the cost of adopting a baby.

Compile the lists of all the groups. Draw conclusions.

Interview parents with young babies to find out the range of expenses incurred in the community for hospital, doctor's fees, equipment, etc. Decide if these expenses could have been met without medical and hospital insurance.

Interview parents with an adopted child and determine the costs they encountered when adopting.

Report findings of the above interviews to class.

Compare the costs enumerated by the parents and those itemized by the class.

Compare the cost of giving birth to a child with the cost of adopting a child.

Invite a resource person to bring a layette to class, discuss the approximate importance of each item, and tell the cost of each item.

Examine the above layette, and discuss which items might be eliminated.

Interview young mothers to ascertain the cost of food, medical bills, diaper service, and any other expenses in the first year of a baby's life. Report findings to the class. Compare costs.

Parents of young babies

Parents of an adopted child

Suggested resource persons: representative of children's clothing store or department store, young parent, health department nurse.

2. Human Reproduction

a. A knowledge of the terminology of a subject will enable one to better communicate with others on this subject.

Read and discuss references which explain the process of fertilization and reproduction. Choose, define, and discuss the following vocabulary words found in references:

| --Ova | --Semen |
| --Sperm | --Vagina |
| --Ovulation | --Cervix |
| --Fertilization | --Fallopian tubes |
| --Uterus | --Testes |

Books:
- No. 41, Married Life, Ch. 3
b. Conception occurs when the male sperm meets the female ovum.

View and discuss a film which illustrates the process of human reproduction.

Question Box: Write a question or questions which you would like to have answered concerning conception. Place individual questions in the question box.

Invite a resource person to speak to the class about conception.

Note to teacher: Group the questions, and submit to the resource person a minimum number of questions which will cover the students' queries. If possible, submit these to the resource person in advance. Be sure to include how and when conception occurs and the tests for pregnancy.

Evaluation: Complete a written vocabulary test on human reproduction or match vocabulary words with reproductive diagram prepared by the teacher, and answer questions on the process of conception or complete a multiple choice quiz on conception.

3. Contraception

a. Unanticipated pregnancies are often a strain on family resources. Both the parents and the child suffer when their needs are inadequately met. Community agencies are available for advising parents who want to limit or space their children.

Identify your feeling concerning family planning by completing a questionnaire.

Discuss the pros and cons of family planning. Include the following:

--Emotional implications
--Physical implications
--Religious implications
--Financial factors
--Ecological factors

VI. Children in the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

b. Family planning is the process of regulating

1. the number of offspring,
2. the time at which babies are born,
3. the period that elapses between pregnancies.

c. Social, emotional, and biological factors are involved in conception control.

d. No contraceptive device is one hundred percent effective.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

1. Determine some reasons for spacing children.
2. Identify resources available in the community that aid couples in planning their families.
3. Debate: "Parenthood should be planned."
4. Define conception control.
5. Research and report on various methods of conception control. Distinguish between those methods that may be used temporarily and permanently.
6. Listen to a resource person discuss conception control methods. Ask questions to clarify your understanding of contraception.

Note to teacher: The same resource person might be used to help develop the concept of "Signs of Pregnancy."

Evaluation: Write a paragraph on your ideas about family planning and list in order of relative effectiveness some conception control methods.

Resources

- Book No. 8, Child Care and Development, Ch. 29.
- Book No. 49, Relationships: A Study In Human Behavior, Ch. 29.
- Suggested resource persons: representative of Planned Parenthood, county health nurse, physician, nurse.
4. Symptoms of Pregnancy

a. Symptoms of pregnancy may occur early in the pregnancy, but the same symptoms are not experienced by all persons.

Read and discuss references which describe early symptoms of pregnancy and how they may differ from one individual to another.

b. The most positive confirmations of early pregnancy are made by clinical tests.

Listen to a resource person explain the following:

--Examples of early symptoms of pregnancy
--When symptoms begin in relation to fertilization
--The clinical tests which give early positive confirmation of pregnancy

Evaluation: Write a short paper on the first symptoms of pregnancy.

5. Prenatal Development

a. The development of the fetus is influenced by many factors.

Read references on prenatal care and development.

Determine the factors which influence the development of the fetus.

Define the following terms which relate to prenatal development:

--Prenatal environment
--Zygote
--Embryo
--Fetus
--Placenta
--Umbilical cord
--Fallopian tube

Evaluation:
- Complete a multiple choice quiz on prenatal development.
- Write a paper entitled, "What I Learned About Prenatal Development."

Group work:
- Determine which activities are recommended and which are not recommended during pregnancy. Include the following:
  - Traveling
  - Smoking
  - Drinking
  - Working outside the home
  - Exercise

Research dietary needs during pregnancy.

Develop a suggested diet for a pregnant woman.

c. Most pregnant women may avoid fatigue by sleeping eight hours at night and by taking rest periods during the day.

d. The comfort of the mother during pregnancy is affected by the type of clothing she wears.

e. It is important for the expectant mother to have good medical care in order to remain in good health and to protect the development of the fetus.

Report conclusions to class.

Determine the causes of fatigue in pregnant women and how it may be avoided.

View and examine a display of maternity clothing.

Review current publications to determine what is fashionable in maternity clothes.

Discuss the ways in which maternity clothing may affect the morale of the expectant mother and/or father.

Formulate guidelines for choosing maternity clothes.

Use guidelines to evaluate clothing on display.

Cite the places where a woman may obtain an examination to confirm pregnancy. Include the following:

---County health department
---Private physician
---Hospital clinic
---County medical society

Determine points to be considered in the selection of a doctor.

7. Labor and Delivery

a. A well informed, cooperative mother-to-be is more likely to have a smooth delivery.

Interest Approach: Brainstorm tales and ideas about childbirth, and follow with a truth session.

Research the process of childbirth. Discuss how the mother's body is suited for pregnancy and delivery.

Books:
- No. 48, Pregnancy and Birth, Ch. 13.
- No. 12, Conception, Birth and Contraception.
c. The plan for delivery should be decided upon early in pregnancy.

d. A knowledge of the process of birth enables one to develop a wholesome attitude toward reproduction and birth.

e. Labor is divided into three stages:

(1) The first stage begins with the dilation of the cervix and lasts until the cervix has dilated sufficiently to allow the fetal head to pass into the vaginal canal.

(2) The second stage consists of the fetus passing through the birth canal and the cutting of the umbilical cord.

(3) In the third stage the placenta and fetal membranes are expelled.

Select and analyze several types of plans for the delivery of a baby.

Interview experienced persons to find out what arrangements are necessary for hospital confinement in the local community.

Share with the class the results of the interviews.

Draw conclusions as to the availability of hospital services in the local community.

Interview:

- Young couples to learn how they felt about their new role as parents. Include such questions as the following:
  - Did the mother experience "post partum blues?"
  - What adjustments were necessary in the home life after the baby arrived?

Report:

- The results of the interviews to the class and compare findings.
c. As soon as the baby is born, the uterus starts to shrink, but it may take six weeks for it to return to its usual state. It is desirable that the mother have a medical examination by the end of six weeks, to determine the progress of her healing.

Examine references to determine the amount of sleep usually required by infants and how this decreases as they mature.
Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

1. A baby's wakefulness at night may be solved by shortening his daytime naps.
   - Participate in a "swing-around response" to the question, "How can you get a baby in the proper frame of mind for sleeping?"
   - Invite a person who is experienced in caring for infants to discuss their sleeping patterns and to answer questions about what to do when the baby is wakeful at night.

2. A newborn needs a room of his own because during the first six months he sleeps 15-18 hours a day.
   - Describe desirable characteristics for a room where the baby is to sleep. Include the following:
     - Light
     - Temperature
     - Quiet
     - Others

3. To prevent possible suffocation, select a firm mattress and do not use a pillow in the baby's bed.
   - Comment on the type of bedding and sleeping garments which should be provided for an infant.
   - Point out some safety practices to observe in relation to a child's sleeping arrangement.
   - Develop a criteria for evaluating an infant's bed, bedding, and sleeping garments.

4. Providing a healthy, safe environment contributes to the prevention of disease, accidents and emergency situations.
   - Respond to the following questions:
     - How often does the mother take the child to visit the doctor during the first year?
     - What is the purpose of these visits?
     - What routine activities may be prescribed by the physician?

Resources

(1) Knowledge of childhood illnesses contributes to effective child care.
(2) Skill in caring for the sick child influences the child's attitudes toward illness.
(3) Medical care is an important aspect of providing for the needs of the infant and young child.

2. Physical Development of the Infant
   a. Each infant develops in his own way and at his own speed.

   --Are there community agencies which provide needed services for babies either free or at a minimum charge?
   --What are some guidelines for determining when a child should be taken to the doctor other than for regular check-ups?
   --What are some common causes of accidental injury of infants?
   --What are some of the communicable diseases contracted by children?
   --What are some symptoms of each of these communicable diseases?
   --Which are the most serious? Can they be prevented, and how should they be treated?

Evaluation: Complete a true-false quiz on infant care.

Interest Approach: View a film on the physical development of a baby.

Note to teacher: Develop a film guide which includes the following questions:

   --What is the definition of physical development?
   --What is included in the physical development of the infant?
   --What factors influence the physical development of the infant?

or

3. Emotional, Mental and Social Development of the Infant

a. During the baby's first year foundations for emotional, mental, and social growth are established by his relationships with other people.

b. Mothering is looking after, caring for and loving the child.

c. Body controls and motor accomplishments are indicators of mental growth.

d. A variety of mental and physical experiences promote a child's intellectual growth.

e. Environment influences language development.

Read and discuss references dealing with social, mental, and emotional development during the first year.

Define mothering.

Discuss the personality characteristics needed by the parents if they are to communicate a warm, accepting attitude toward their child.

Relate physical development to intellectual development.

List a variety of interesting things one can provide for a baby to see, hear, and/or feel.

Discuss reasons for avoiding the use of baby talk when communicating with children.

Review books suitable for use with infants.

Note to teacher: These books may be brought by students or borrowed from a library, a book store or a department store.

Cite examples of ways all members of a family, their friends, and relatives may contribute to the baby's total development.

D. Growth and Development of the Toddler

1. Physical Development of the Toddler

Discuss what is included in the physical development of the child one to three.
a. Knowledge of growth and development patterns lead to better understanding and guidance of children.

b. Children of the same age tend to have similar physical characteristics.

c. Development proceeds in an orderly sequence but growth varies from person to person.

2. Emotional, Mental and Social Development of the Toddler

a. Language is a part of the total social, emotional and mental development of the child.

b. Play can contribute to the total development of the child.

c. Social adjustments are learned by association with others.

Read references on the physical development of young children.

List factors which influence the physical development of children.

Observe children and list opportunities or activities that serve to promote physical growth and development.

Evaluation: List the physical characteristics of toddlers.

1. The growth of a child's body is not regular but develops in a predictable pattern.
2. Social development encompasses the process of learning the values, attitudes, knowledge, skills, and techniques which a society possesses.

3. The mind is not used exclusively for thinking, but directs movement, controls our emotions, and determines our behavior.

4. There are many factors that combine to determine a person's emotional responses. Three of the most important are
   a. basic individuality,
   b. age,
   c. environmental circumstances.

Visit children in a kindergarten or Head Start program to observe various stages of physical, social, mental and emotional development.

Discuss the parents' responsibility for furthering the development of the young child.

Role play some situations which illustrate how parents may help a child develop physically, socially, mentally and emotionally.

View and discuss a film which shows the development of the preschool child.

Note to teacher: This film is old but the concepts are good.

Present mini-skits illustrating how physical, emotional, social and mental development are interrelated.

Evaluation: Given a list of characteristics of children between one and six, indicate which are typical of preschoolers (3-6).

Interest Approach: Label two keys discipline and punishment. Caption: "Which Key Will Unlock the Door to a Happy Childhood?"
a. Various guidance techniques are effective in guiding children.

b. Discipline is a form of learning, and, if it is fair, firm, kind and consistent it can contribute to a child's sense of security.

c. Basically there are two ways to give guidance to a child.

(1) Psychologically through love or intangible reward

--- Demonstrates that the attention and approval of others are important
--- The child learns that his behavior may bring on a loss of attention or approval

--- Discipline

--- Guidance

| e. Positive reinforcement is praise or reward. Negative reinforcement is unwanted treatment which conditions the child to do or not to do a particular thing. | Read references to determine the important factors in planning a playschool. | |

F. The Playschool

1. A well organized playschool provides wide and varied experiences for children in all areas of their development.

2. Enrollment forms give a preview of a child's experiences.

Adapt an enrollment form for the playschool using the Appendix as a guide.
3. Activities provided according to the child's age and ability will enable him to experience and enhance his self image.

4. The room arrangement will influence the success of a playschool program.

5. A playschool experience provides an opportunity for learning more about preschool children.

6. Some factors to consider when selecting toys and planning entertainment for children:
   a. Age
   b. Stages of development
   c. Needs of the child
   d. Cost

   Plan a sample schedule which includes the basics of a good program for children. Include the following:
   - Quiet and active play
   - Routines
   - Individual and group activity
   - Opportunity for creativity and conformity
   - Flexibility
   - Minimum confusion
   - Variety of experiences
   - A snack
   - How responsibility is shared

   Plan the room arrangement for the playschool.

   Note to teacher: It is suggested that the playschool be planned for three days during regular class time. Divide the class into three groups and have the groups rotate activities for the three days. The following type of activities may be assigned the groups:
   - Group I, planning for playschool and working on class assignments
   - Group II, working in playschool
   - Group III, observing children in playschool

   Plan and conduct a playschool.

SUPPORTING CONCEPTS: A. Social and Psychological Aspects of Food
B. Nutritional Needs
C. Meal Planning
D. Food Shopping
E. Table Setting, Service and Etiquette
F. Meal Preparation
G. Use of Convenience Foods
H. Eating Away From Home

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of this unit the student will be able to analyze the significance of food and mealtime to the family.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Analyze the social and psychological influences of food on the family.

B. Develop a plan for improving daily dietary habits.

C. Determine the value of planning nutritious family meals.

D. Demonstrate planning and buying principles which can result in nutritious meals at minimum food costs.

E. Apply the principles of acceptable table setting, table service, and table etiquette.

F. Prepare nutritious meals in laboratory experiences.

G. Differentiate between appropriate and inappropriate use of convenience foods.

H. Distinguish some of the factors which will make eating away from home a pleasant experience.

2. Eating Habits

a. Eating habits are influenced by one's environment.

Discuss the following questions:

--- Has there ever been a time when you ate food you were served, but did not want? Why?
--- Why do people cook?
--- Have you ever eaten food when you were not hungry? Why?

View appropriate transparencies which give examples of ways people use food to express love, relieve tension, relieve boredom, express creativity.

Describe eating habits of your family and friends. Make a class list of these good and poor eating habits.

Work in groups to prepare illustrations depicting the consequences of poor eating habits.

Discuss questions such as the following:

--- How will parents' eating habits affect their children's eating habits?
--- How may parents encourage their children to eat a balanced diet?
--- Is there a need for parents to eat a variety of foods? Why or why not?

b. Eating habits determine an individual's level of nutrition.

Read a case study of a person who has poor eating habits. Analyze the eating habits of the character portrayed. Determine how our eating habits affect those around us as well as ourselves.

Teaching Strategies Learning - Evaluating Experiences

Resources

Complete the following activities:

- Describe a poor eating habit you have.
- Explain how you developed this poor habit.
- Decide how this poor eating habit affects your health, appearance, family and friends.
- Make a plan to improve your eating habit.
- Share the plan with the class.

3. Family Relationships

a. Family relationships at mealtime are influenced by a variety of factors.

Give examples from television programs, movies, or stories of family relationships at mealtime.

Decide what has caused the formation of these relationships and what customs, routines, values or standards are revealed by these relationships.

Identify customs that your families observe at mealtime. Answer the following questions:

- What customs would you like to continue in your own family?
- What values and standards are revealed by your family's mealtimes?
- How are your family's mealtime routines affected by customs, values and standards?
- How does custom influence the food preparation, the type and form of food served, the food service and the location of the eating area?

Transparency No. 6, "Food and Nutrition."
b. Setting standards for family meals will contribute to more harmonious relationships.

c. The acceptance of mealtime responsibility is influenced by changing roles of family members.

Formulate criteria for family meals such as the following:

- Ideal time
- Acceptable conversation
- Appropriate manners
- Pleasant atmosphere
- Attractive table service

Decide how families could achieve the ideal mealtime relationships described by the criteria.

Group work: Choose one of the following radio-scopics and determine who should be responsible for various aspects of family meals including meal planning, food shopping, food preparing, and clean-up.

- A young married couple with the husband working outside the home and the wife staying at home
- A young married couple with the husband attending school and the wife working outside the home
- A family with teenaged children in which both the mother and father work outside the home
- A family with teenaged children in which only the father works outside the home
- An older retired couple whose children live away from home
4. Food, An Asset to Entertainment

a. The following are some reasons for entertaining:

1. To avoid being alone
2. To become better acquainted with others
3. To celebrate a special occasion
4. To renew or keep friendships
5. To fulfill obligations

List reasons for entertaining.

b. When entertaining guests one usually serves some type of food.

Give some examples of when food is used to entertain guests.

Visualize such entertainment without food.

Recall some examples of occasions families celebrate with food.

Collect and display illustrations of foods served for special occasion entertainment.

B. Nutritional Needs

1. While the basic four food groups are necessary to everyone, each individual has his own specific needs.

   Interest Approach: View a bulletin board or chart showing the basic four food groups. Determine the number of servings needed daily for family members.

   Keep a record of what you eat for a given number of meals. Determine whether you are eating the proper foods. Make a plan for improving your personal eating habits.

   Plan meals for a day which include the requirements of the basic four. Keep for future reference.

2. Food Nutrients

   A knowledge of the food nutrients enables one to eat well balanced meals.

   Note to teacher: Ask students to use references to make a complete list of nutritional terms. Distribute the terms among the students, ask them to find available facts about each term, and report the findings to the class.

   Complete a nutrition crossword puzzle.

2. Practicing good table manners enables one to feel at ease. Study and discuss the table manners listed on the student handout.

Without using names of people, relate table manners you have observed that were unattractive.

3. It is as easy to follow the basic principles of table setting as it is to set a table haphazardly. Group work: Set the table appropriately for a given menu. Analyze the setting of all groups other than your own.

Note to teacher: Demonstrate table service using the table settings prepared by the students.

Practice table service with your group.

Evaluation: Role play various situations involving table manners, table setting, and table service.

or

Collect pictures of attractive table settings and evaluate them; demonstrate setting a cover for one person; describe a type of table service appropriate for a Sunday dinner at home; and explain the proper way to hold and use a dinner knife, dinner fork and a teaspoon.

F. Meal Preparation

1. Understanding and using a recipe involves knowing tables of measurement, equivalents of common measurements, and abbreviations and terms used in recipes.

6. Preparing meals for two presents special management problems.

View illustration in the reference for preparing meals for two, such as dividing recipes, buying canned goods, and managing leftovers.

Give reasons for dividing recipes when there are only two people.

Observe a demonstration on how to divide recipes.

Practice dividing given recipes.

Research to obtain information about leftovers. Discuss the following:

---What are planned leftovers?
---How should leftovers be stored?
---How can planned leftovers be helpful when cooking for two?
---How can planned leftovers save time and money?

Group work: Develop some hints for meal preparation for two. Using menus given to the groups, make a market order needed to prepare the meals for two people.

Plan, prepare, and serve a meal for two.

Evaluation: Complete a modified true-false quiz on the factors which affect meal preparation.

H. Eating Away From Home

1. Each day more Americans eat more meals away from home.

- Brainstorm for places to eat away from home. Include the following:
  - School cafeteria and snack bars
  - Restaurants
  - Cafes
  - Concession stands
  - Drive-ins
  - Picnics
  - Friends' homes
  - Vending machines
  - Other eating places

Discuss the reasons for the increase in eating away from home.
2. Good manners learned at home will carry you through when eating out.

3. Becoming familiar with a variety of menus will make one more confident in ordering food.

Discuss the following questions:

--How do you select a place to eat away from home?
--What are the factors you consider?
--Why are these factors important?
--What factors should you consider when eating out in an unfamiliar town?

Describe or role play a visit to a fashionable restaurant, illustrating the necessary points of etiquette.

Read and discuss a case study on dining out.

Evaluation: View a variety of menus found in public eating places. Define unfamiliar terms or foods found on these menus. Practice ordering from a menu. Analyze the meal you choose.

MAJOR CONCEPT OF UNIT: VIII. Clothing For the Family

SUPPORTING CONCEPT: A. Social and Psychological Aspects
B. Physical Aspects
C. Management and Consumer Aspects
D. Care and Maintenance

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of this unit, the student will be able to analyze the various factors to be considered in providing clothing for the family.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will
A. Analyze the social and psychological effects which clothing may have on the individual.
B. Apply the elements of design and fashion trends to individual clothing selection.
C. Analyze the factors which affect clothing decisions.
D. Determine the proper methods for care and maintenance of clothing.
VIII. Clothing For the Family

A. Social and Psychological Aspects of Clothing

1. Clothing aids in the fulfillment of man's basic social and psychological needs.

   - View filmstrips or transparencies of costumes through the ages. Discuss reasons man has used body coverings through the ages. Include the following:
     - Climatic conditions
     - Individuality
     - Decoration and ornamentation
     - Group identification
     - Status
     - Ceremonies
     - Other reasons

   - Recall the place of clothing as a basic need of man.

   - Explain ways in which the clothing illustrated in the filmstrip or transparencies satisfied man's basic needs.

2. A choice in clothing selection allows one to express self, feelings and moods.

   - Collect pictures of current fashions and determine how one's basic needs are satisfied by today's fashions.

   - Compare current fashions to historic costumes. Decide how they are similar and how they are different.

3. Dress reflects what we think we are and what we want to be.

Discuss the following:

--How clothing affects one's self-concept
--Situations when you were not appropriately dressed and how you felt
--Persons you know whose self-concept affects the way they dress
--How clothing may reflect what an individual thinks of himself
--The ways in which clothing may be used as defense mechanisms
--How clothes may enhance a "good" self image
--How clothes may cover up a "poor" self image
--How clothing may influence the wearer's behavior

Role play situations in which one is not dressed appropriately.

Books:
No. 61, The Second Skin, Ch. 6.

6. One may express individuality and personality through clothing selection.

Produce a minute drama to illustrate how clothing reflects an individual's role in society.

Recall your personality traits revealed by the "Personality Check List" used in Concept I.

Research to find philosophies of dress such as:

--Symbolism of color
--Psychological effects of color
--Color and selection based on the seasons
--Other philosophies

Predict ways individuality may be expressed by clothing selection.

Discuss how one's clothing selection contributes to social ease and comfort.

View a filmstrip which shows what our clothing portrays.

View transparencies and describe the individuality portrayed through clothing.

Point out individuality portrayed by characters viewed on television or in movies or described in stories.

Give examples of ways clothing affects one's emotions such as a change of mood or a lifting of morale.

8. An individual may reflect his values through clothing selection.

Name articles of clothing or accessories that reflect status or prestige in the following:

- Teen-aged groups
- Middle-aged people
- Older adults

Describe ways clothing reflects one's values.

View pictures of various types of dress and describe the values reflected by each type.

View illustrations of dress over the past decades. Discuss national values that are reflected.

Discuss the following questions:

- Do you dress for yourself, the opposite sex, or members of your own sex?
- Why do you dress as you do?
- What values influence your dress?

B. Physical Aspects

1. Elements of Design

   a. Elements of design may be used to enhance an individual's physical characteristics.

   b. Figure features may be emphasized or minimized through the proper selection of clothing.

Interest Approach: Present a fashion show using clothing secured from local merchants.

Identify your physical characteristics and coloring.

View a filmstrip or transparencies illustrating the elements of design.

or

Observe a flannel board presentation of the elements of design.

Assemble and arrange illustrations of designs that stress your best characteristics or cover up undesirable ones.

Draw a silhouette of one garment which is suitable for your figure.

Evaluation: Explain your reactions to one of the following statements:

   --"Clothes make the man."
   --"You are part of the scenery for other people."

Role play situations in which various shopping practices are demonstrated.
b. A knowledge of the sources of clothing contributes to effective shopping practices.

List the sources for clothing selection in your community. Include the following:

- Department stores
- Fabric stores
- Discount stores
- Community distribution centers

Identify type of clothing each source offers. List advantages and disadvantages of each source.

Bring a collection of labels from ready-to-wear garments.

List information found on the labels.

Explain how this information may aid you in selecting ready-to-wear garments. Discuss how labeling may be misleading.

Select an appropriate garment according to label information in a given problem solving situation.

Research to find standards for good fit in garments. Include the following:

- Key lines on grain
- Lines conform to body structure
- Set of garment smooth
- Ease adequate
- Garment balanced
- Other standards

Note to teacher: Ask students to volunteer to be models for the following activity:

View male and female models wearing garments which fit properly and improperly. Distinguish between the good and poor fit.

D. Care and Maintenance

1. Specific fabrics and items of apparel require definite care and maintenance.

   - View a filmstrip which describes permanent care labeling.

   - Identify the care required of the following garments:
     - Permanent press shirt
     - Double knit slacks
     - Cotton blouse
     - Nylon lingerie
     - Wool suit
     - Wool sweater
     - Knit dress
2 Living away from home presents young adults with unique problems in the care of clothing.

3. A basic knowledge of simple clothing care may result in a savings of time and money.

Observe a demonstration or view a filmstrip on laundry techniques.

Note to teacher: Demonstrate and allow students to practice some of the following:

- Pressing a shirt
- Pressing a man's suit
- Sewing on a button
- Mending a seam by machine and hand
- Removing stains
- Packing a suitcase

Evaluation: When given a list of garments and a description of the fabrics from which they are made, describe the care and maintenance each garment would need.
MAJOR CONCEPT: IX. Housing For the Family

SUPPORTING CONCEPTS: A. Influence of Housing on Family Members

B. Factors Which Influence Housing

C. Housing Decisions

D. Future Housing

UNIT OBJECTIVE: The student will formulate opinions and guidelines concerning the various factors involved in providing satisfactory housing for the family.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Analyze the various factors in housing which will affect the family physically, psychologically, and socially.

B. Determine how human, environmental, and technological factors influence the housing made available.

C. Analyze the needs, wants, and resources of the family which are to be considered before a housing choice is made.

D. Identify the factors which will be reflected in changes in future housing.
A. Influences of Housing on Family Members

Note to teacher: As an interest approach, prepare one of the following bulletin boards:

- Display pictures which show the progression of housing and entitle it, "Housing Through the Ages."
- Use the appendix as an example for a bulletin board.

Brainstorm: "Home is where I . . ." for ideas of housing.

Consult references to gain knowledge concerning housing and what it may mean to an individual or a family.

Develop a definition of housing.

1. Physiological Benefits

- a. Housing provides one with the following physical benefits:
  - Display which physical needs housing will help satisfy.
  - (1) Shelter
  - (2) Comfort
  - (3) Location
  - (4) Convenience
  - (5) Health

b. Proper housing provides one with shelter from the environmental elements.

2. Psychological Benefits

a. Satisfactory housing may aid one in developing psychologically and may meet the psychological needs for privacy and security.

b. The psychological effects of housing may or may not be affected by the economic level of the family.

3. Sociological Benefits

a. Housing provides security in which one may develop socially.

List the environmental elements from which one is sheltered by one's home.

View a filmstrip illustrating the psychological effects of housing.

Discuss how housing benefits one psychologically. Include interests, privacy, beauty, etc.

Sketch or describe a house you would consider undesirable. Express orally your feelings about the house. Pretend that your best friend moves to this house. Decide if your feelings about the house would change.

View a filmstrip which brings out the sociological needs the home fulfills.

Describe two visits to the homes of others, one when you felt at home and comfortable and one when you felt ill at ease. Analyze the two situations to determine why you felt differently.

IX. Housing For the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

b. The benefits provided by housing vary according to family, social and economic position, cultural background, and environment.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

Note to teacher: Divide the class into four small groups and ask each group to decide how one of the following affects the benefits provided by housing:

- Family social position
- Family economic position
- Cultural background
- Environment

Evaluation: Write a paper entitled "How my home benefits me."

B. Factors Which Influence Housing

1. Human Factors

   a. Family life today is in a period of transition.

   Brainstorm how housing needs have changed in the past fifty years and in the past ten years.

   View a filmstrip which depicts the historical progression of housing.

   -or

   Read references which depict changes in housing and explain why these changes have occurred.

Resources

Books:
b. Today's family demands more in the way of housing.

c. Housing standards for the average family have greatly increased.

d. Housing needs and wants are affected by the various life cycles of the family.

List items you consider essential in the home which were luxuries only a few years ago.

Decide which individual values caused the items to change from luxuries to essentials.

Review the life cycles.

Describe the types of housing which might be desirable during each cycle.

or

Use a check list to indicate the housing needed by the family during different life cycles.

2. Environmental Factors

a. Environmental factors influence the form, the location, and the use of a house.

Listen to a resource person describe the environmental factors which influenced the planning of a house.

or

Read references to determine how environmental factors influence the planning of a house.

Note to teacher: If you use a resource person you may want to also develop the concept of technological factors first and have him talk on building materials as well as environmental factors.

b. Housing is to be designed to fit into the landscape.

View pictures or slides of famous architectural structures. Determine whether the structures fit into their surroundings.

Concept II

Suggested resource persons: architect, contractor, home owner who has planned his home.

3. Technological Factors

a. The variety of building materials which are available and the changes and advancements in building technology will influence housing today and in the future.

b. The traditional building materials are wood, brick, and stone. New synthetic materials, especially plastics, are being introduced into all areas of housing.

c. Other technological advancements include pre-assembled cores, modular buildings, and improved mobile homes.
C. Housing Decisions

(2) A modular building is made up of modules which are factory constructed and taken to the site where they are connected to each other to form a building.

(3) Mobile homes are single dwelling units which may be moved from one site to another.

--- Modular buildings

--- Mobile homes

Note to teacher: There is a teaching unit available on mobile homes if more depth is needed.

Evaluation: Write a short paper which explains the factors which affect housing and why.

or

Complete an objective test on factors affecting the housing of the family.

Booklet No. 15, "Facts On Mobile Home Selection."

Teaching Guide No. 5, "Mobile Homes--Consumer and Homemaking Education."

Note to teacher: As an interest approach ask the students to describe the type of dwelling they expect to live in when they have families of their own. Encourage them to be realistic in their choice.
Housing For the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

1. Types of Housing
   a. Today's families have more choices in housing than ever before.
   b. A primary goal of many families is home ownership.
   c. Increased costs of housing may prevent families from purchasing conventional types of housing.
   d. Families may prefer to retain their mobility rather than purchase a house.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

- Research to discover the types of housing available. This will include the following:
  - Apartments
  - Condominiums
  - Cooperatives
  - Mobile homes
  - Prefabricated houses
  - Modular housing
  - Conventional homes
  - Take a field trip to some of the above types of housing. (Some may be under construction.)

- Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of each type of housing listed above.

- Survey the community to determine the types of housing which are available in your particular locale. (You may have seen some of these on the field trip.)

- Invite couples who have not permanently located to discuss the advantages of renting rather than buying a house.

Resources

2. Life style
3. Social level
4. Vocational needs
5. Educational needs
6. Recreational needs
7. Spiritual needs
8. Personal protection (fire, police, health)
9. Community facilities (water supply, sewage and garbage disposal)
10. Income

Read references to discover which factors are to be considered when making a housing choice.

Group work: Given the statistics of a hypothetical family, choose a house plan which you feel would meet their needs.

Note to teacher: Provide each group with different family statistics and have a variety of house plans from which the groups may choose.

2. Evaluation of Housing

a. Space

(1) Through identification of housing needs and wants, a family may develop a guide for home selection.

Identify various situations which may affect housing choices. Include the following:

--Stage of the life cycle
--Attitudes and values
--Vocation
--Social and cultural needs
--Economic status

b. Building Codes

(1) There are local, state and federal laws which control the building of homes.

(2) Zoning ordinances, building restrictions, and the types of housing within a community affect the size, design, and construction of a house.

Listen to a resource person explain some of the standards a house must meet in order to comply with building codes.

Research to gain knowledge concerning the purposes of zoning ordinances.

Suggested resource persons: realtor, loan official, housing official, contractor, architect.

Book No. 31,
Zoning ordinances regulate residential and business areas of the community.

c. Storage

1. Adequate storage space will increase the desirability of a dwelling.

2. Adequate and correctly located storage space will affect the efficiency of the homemaker and other family members.

d. Safety

1. All systems within a dwelling must comply with safety regulations.

or

Listen to a resource person discuss the purposes of zoning ordinances.

Examine copies of local zoning ordinances.

Evaluate and suggest improvements.

or

Design a zoning ordinance for your town or community.

Research to discover proper amount and proper location for storage within a home.

Group work: Determine and report to class the storage requirements of each of the following areas within the home:

- Living
- Dining
- Sleeping
- Bathing
- Utility
- Kitchen

Discuss the dangers and the problems which may arise if the following systems are not closely inspected:

- Electrical
- Plumbing
- Heating

IX. Housing For the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

2. It is important that all housing systems be inspected before purchasing a house.

3. Financial and Legal Decisions

   a. Renting

   1. Rather than buying a home, a family may choose to rent a house or apartment.

   2. A lease is a contract between the owner of the property and the one who is renting the property. It describes the responsibilities of both the owner and renter.

   3. A lease, like any contract, is not to be signed until it is read and understood.

Teaching Strategies Learning - Evaluating Experiences

- Visit the industrial arts or agriculture department and listen to an illustrated lecture on thorough inspection of housing systems.

- Popcorn session: Answer the following questions:
  - What is available for rent in the local community?
  - What is the cost of the different types of dwellings which are for rent?
  - How adequate is the rental property?
  - Other appropriate questions

- Listen to a tape which tells what one needs to look for when renting a home.

- Read a reference which outlines the responsibilities of both the landlord and the tenant.

- Examine sample rental contracts. Be aware of the conditions stated in "fine print."

Resources

b. Buying

(1) A house may be purchased from the owner or through an agent acting for the owner and involves the following legal steps:

---When the buyer and the seller reach an agreement, they enter into a contract of purchase. This is written and signed and is legally binding.
---When the agreement is drawn up, a deposit or down payment is made by the buyer.
---A title search is done to establish that the owner does legally own the property involved.
---The buyer may borrow the balance owed after he has made a down payment. This is known as a mortgage.
---The written document transferring ownership is known as a deed.
---Closing costs involve fees and charges made as the transaction occurs.

Note to teacher: As an interest approach, ask each student how long he has lived in the home in which he now lives. If the home is owned, ask him to determine during which life cycle his parents purchased the home.

Research to gain information concerning the legal steps involved in the purchase of a home.

d. Operating and Maintaining

(1) A well planned house will be practical and easy to care for.

List the daily, weekly, and occasional tasks necessary for the operation and maintenance of a well run home.

(2) Efficiently planned schedules facilitate the performance of homemaking responsibilities.

Determine how the above tasks need to be delegated to family members in a home where the mother is a full time homemaker. The family is composed of the following:

---Mother
---Father
---Teenaged son
---Teenaged daughter
---Nine year old son

Using the same family, determine how the tasks need to be delegated if the mother is employed outside the home.

e. Furnishing and Equipping

(1) Adequate equipment is essential for satisfactions in housing.

Observe a demonstration of various pieces of equipment in the home economics department.

Using references, determine which items of equipment would be essential for newlyweds and which could be eliminated.

IX. Housing For the Family

Some Supporting Content and Generalizations

1. Limitations of money and space require a practical approach when choosing home furnishings.

2. Older pieces of furniture may add both beauty and comfort to one's home if skillfully remodeled.

3. Knowledge of furnishings and equipment costs contribute to realistic housing decisions.

Teaching Strategies

Learning - Evaluating Experiences

- Read references and determine the essential furnishings (other than equipment) needed by a newly wed couple for an unfurnished two bedroom home or apartment.

- Group work: Plan ways in which the costs of furniture may be reduced. This may include the following:
  - Refinishing
  - Buying used items
  - Do-it-yourself projects
  - Unfinished furniture

- Using catalogs, advertisements, magazines, etc., estimate the cost of the items of furnishings and equipment needed by a newly wed couple for an unfurnished two bedroom home or apartment.

- Consult references to gain information concerning future housing.

- Sketch a house for the year 2000. Explain why this house has certain features.

Resources

- Catalogs, magazines, newspapers.

- Books:
  - No. 31, Homes with Character, Ch. 3.
2. The increase in population and a scarcity of land has resulted in more vertical building.

3. Increased longevity is creating the need for special housing for the elderly.

4. Because of environmental influences, future homes and communities may be underground, under water, or in the air.

Discuss the growth of vertical buildings and why this type of structure will become more popular.

View pictures of a variety of types of buildings.

Brainstorm to discover housing features which are helpful to the aged. Examples:

--One floor dwellings or dwellings with elevators
--Hand rails
--Nonskid floor coverings
--Ramps and wide doors for wheel chairs
--Other features

Brainstorm for ideas of how the interest in environmental control may affect future housing

Examples:

--Houses may be built without windows because interior environment will be easier to control and there may be fewer attractive views to be seen from windows.
--Because of the concern for overcrowding, pollution, noise and the lack of beauty, we may see more planned and self-contained communities.
--Other affects

Evaluation: Write a paragraph describing a house of the future. Share your paper with the class.
MAJOR CONCEPT: X. Family Transportation

SUPPORTING CONCEPTS: A. Analysis of Needs
B. Purchase of an Automobile
C. Warranties
D. Costs of Ownership

UNIT OBJECTIVE: Upon completion of this unit the student will be able to analyze factors involved in providing family transportation.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will

A. Analyze the need for an automobile in various family situations.
B. Formulate guidelines which will be helpful in the purchase of a new or a used automobile.
C. Analyze the terms offered in the warranty of a new car and a used car.
D. Calculate total costs involved in owning an automobile.
A. Analysis of Transportation Needs

1. The availability of public transportation may influence one's decision to purchase an automobile.

2. The need for a personal automobile(s) will vary with the family situation.

3. Family income may be increased by providing adequate transportation for all family members who have the ability to work.

4. The automobile has been the most common type of transportation purchased by families or individuals, but new trends may change this pattern.

Teaching Strategies

Interest Approach: Prepare a bulletin board using the appendix as a guide.

Survey the community to find what forms of public transportation are available.

Brainstorm the values of owning an automobile.

Discuss how not having an automobile would affect your family.

Consult references to gain knowledge concerning car ownership.

Read current periodicals and listen to television and radio programs to learn new trends in types of transportation.

Evaluation: When given three different case studies indicating family transportation needs, decide which families need and can afford cars.

Resources

- Books:
- Current periodicals or current programs.
B. Purchase of an Automobile

1. There are many decisions which are to be made before shopping for a car. These decisions include the following:
   a. Total money available
   b. When to go shopping
   c. Necessities vs. wants
   d. Where to shop
   e. What to shop for
   f. Insurance
   g. Intended use
   h. Estimated operating costs

Determine which decisions are to be made by the consumer before shopping for a car.

Discuss why the above decisions should be made before shopping.

2. Purchasing A Used Automobile

   a. Many factors will influence one's decision to purchase a used car.

   Many factors will influence one's decision to purchase a used car.

Research current magazines to determine what one should look for in a used car.

Invite an automobile representative who sells both new and used cars to talk to the class. Ask the representative to discuss some advantages and disadvantages of purchasing a used car.

Read and discuss a reference which explains how to check used cars.

Formulate a check list which might be used in evaluating a used car.

Note to teacher: An example of a check list is a part of the appendix.

</table>
C. Warranties

1. All promises or statements regarding the car should be in written form.

2. It is the responsibility of the buyer to read and to understand the terms of the warranty.

3. New automobile warranties generally give broader protection for a longer period of time than those for a used automobile.

Recall advertisements heard regarding car sales.

Brainstorm: "What is covered in the warranty when an automobile is purchased?"

Review copies of warranties on new and used automobiles. Compare and discuss the differences.

Evaluation: When given copies of several warranties for both new and used cars, make a list of the following:

- Items covered by the average new car warranty
- Items not included in the warranty
- Items covered in the average warranty for a used car

Car dealers in the area.

D. Costs of Ownership

1. Maintenance and Operation

   a. The costs of owning and operating an automobile are affected by the size and type of the automobile, the number of miles driven, and the age and skill of the drivers.

   b. Proper maintenance practices may result in lower fixed costs, higher resale value, and longer life for the car.

   Popcorn session: Share ideas as to total costs involved in operating an automobile.

   Discuss how each of the listed factors may affect costs.

   Keep a record of family car operating expenses for one week.

   Interview a car owner to determine what maintenance practices are advisable and their costs.

   Compare findings and formulate conclusions.

Book No. 70, Your Family and Its Money, Ch. 9.
The cost of automobile ownership may be classified in the following manner:

1. Fixed costs, which include payments, insurance, oil change, licensing fees and depreciation

2. Flexible costs, which include gasoline, tires and repairs

Evaluation: Calculate the cost per mile of owning and operating a car for one year using the following facts:

- Miles driven: 9,000
- Gas and oil: 273.32
- Repairs: 75.09
- Tires and Battery: 90.44
- Insurance: 182.38
- License: 12.50
- Inspection: 2.00
- Miscellaneous: 11.00
- Depreciation: 514.30

Total cost per mile?
2. Insurance

a. Kentucky requires that all drivers be covered by liability insurance.

b. If an automobile is financed, the lender will require that the automobile be covered by collision insurance.

c. Other types of automobile insurance may include fire and theft.

d. One should shop for the most comprehensive and least expensive insurance available.

e. Accidents are to be reported to the insurance company and to the police immediately.

f. A high percentage of accidents occur while the driver is under the influence of alcohol.

Develop a list of risks which one takes when he owns and operates an automobile.

Discuss which of the above risks may be covered by insurance.

Consult references which describe automobile insurance.

Invite an insurance agent to explain the different policies offered to the car owners and drivers.

Develop a list of factors which may affect the cost of insurance. These will include the following:

--Coverage
--Age
--Prior accidents
--Grades (if student)
--Driver's training
--Other factors

Listen to a law enforcement officer explain the process of reporting an accident and the adverse consequences of not reporting an accident.

View a film which depicts the dangers of drinking and driving.

Directions for Scoring Values Test

1. Count the number of times you circled #1 on the Values Test and insert the number counted in the blank to the left of statement #1 below. Do this for each of the items through #12.

2. Rank the items in the column to the right by assigning number one to the item that you circled the most times, number 2 to the item circled the second highest number of times, etc. In case of a tie give the items all the same rank, but allow a full number count for each item. For example, if there is a tie on number 3, assign two number threes, which take up the 3 and 4 spots making 5 the next rank.

3. When you have completed ranking, you may look at the key to the left of the ranking and determine the highest to lowest values. Example: If #10 is ranked 1, that means your highest value is "Orderliness."

Be sure to check with the teacher if you have any questions on scoring or ranking.

DUAL ROLE FACT SHEET

1. As of April, 1970, almost half (49 percent) of all women 18-64 years of age were in the labor force.

2. Women are most apt to be working at ages 20 to 24 (57 percent).

3. The labor force participation rate drops at age 25 and rises again at age 35 and reaches a second peak of 54 percent at age 45 to 54.

4. At age 35 a woman can expect to work 24 to 31 more years.

5. Of the 29.9 million women workers 16 years of age and over in March, 1969, nearly 3 out of 5 were married and living with their husbands.

6. There is a direct relationship between the educational attainment of women and their labor force participation. The more education a woman has received, the greater the likelihood that she will be engaged in paid employment.

7. Women who are college graduates are motivated to seek employment outside the home because:

   --There is an increasing demand for highly trained personnel.
   --They desire to use the skills they have acquired through higher education.
   --They wish to take advantage of the higher earnings available to them.

8. Many women do not make maximum use of their educational background in their jobs. Almost one-fifth of employed women with 4 years of college were, in March, 1967, working as service workers (including private household), operatives, sales workers, or clerical workers. A startling 8 percent of employed women who had completed 5 years or more of college were working in the same unskilled or semi-skilled occupations.

9. Women's annual earnings are substantially lower than those of men. In 1968, women's median earnings were only about three-fifths those of men or $4,457.

10. Decisions of individual women to seek employment outside the home are usually based on economic reasons. Most women in the labor force work because they or their families need the money they can earn. Some women work to raise family living standards above the level of poverty or deprivation. Others work to help meet rising costs of food, education for their children, medical care, and the like. Relatively few women have the option of working solely for personal fulfillment.
11. A growing trend toward the employment of women with children has focused attention on the rising need for day-care centers.

12. Research studies reveal that mothers are more satisfied in the dual role if their children can receive high quality care outside the home.

13. The fight for rights for women reaches back to the 1800's when Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton dedicated their lives to the effort.

14. Women in the U.S. were not allowed to vote until 1920, after 72 years of struggle. Susan Anthony was once arrested for voting in a New Jersey election.

15. In 1920 the percentage of women enrolled in college was 47.3, a higher percent than even today.

16. The woman has been the symbol of evil and temptation since Eve offered Adam that first fateful apple.

17. In most states it is against the law for a woman to use her maiden name only if she is married.

18. A common belief expressed in the 1800's was that mental exertion would damage a woman's brain.

19. Labor predicts that of today's teenage girls, 9 out of 10 can expect to spend 20-25 years in full-time work.

20. Less than 2 percent of the women working today make $15,000 per year. A total of over 19 percent of the men working make $15,000 per year.

21. In March, 1970, there were 18.4 million working wives in the U.S., 780,000 more than the previous year. This number includes one-fourth of all wives with children under 3, one-third of those with children under 5 and one-half the mothers of school age children.

Appendix III-C
MONEY MANAGEMENT QUESTIONNAIRE

Opinion polls can also be helpful in discovering attitudes toward money management and lead to stimulating discussions. Consider the following:

1. Clearly defined goals contribute to effective use of income.
2. A large income is essential to family security and happiness.
3. Budgeting takes the fun out of spending.
4. A budget is a plan for the use of income.
5. Needs and wants are the same thing.
6. Families with high incomes do not need to budget.
7. Parents should tell a child how to spend his money.
8. Every member of the family should have a say in how family income is to be spent.
9. High price means top quality.
10. Advertising provides helpful buying information.
11. Impulse buying is a good way to get the goods and services you really want.
12. A sound credit rating is a valuable financial asset.
13. Credit can help families raise their level of living.
14. Buying on credit costs more than paying cash.
15. Investing in the stock market is the best way to provide financial security.
16. Consumers pay for trading stamps in the long run.
17. Government services are free.
18. Our system of mass production offers advantages to individuals and families.
20. Consumers play only a minor part in the success or failure of our economy.

THE CORNER STORE

This will require two class periods, one for planning and exploration, and the other for the actual game and evaluation.

NEEDED ITEMS OR PEOPLE: Representatives of stores, parents, teachers, or students to act as store representatives. Representatives will be needed for the following roles:

A. Apartment owner--his prices should be set
B. Department Store--prices will vary
C. Grocery Store--prices will vary
D. Bank--for savings and checking account
E. Play money and receipts

EXPLANATION:

1. Each person will be receiving his first monthly pay check. This amount may be set by the instructor according to the salaries in the local community.
2. Divide into two groups.
   A. A group plans how their monthly income will be spent, setting aside a certain amount of money for each category of spending. This should be done during the first class period.
   B. B group spends at random without planning.
3. During the first class period, explain how the game works. If students are to take roles of the representatives, have them get together and discuss what their responsibilities will be.
4. On the second day, students will talk to representatives, who are located in corners of the room, about what they want to buy.
5. The students in group A who have made a spending plan will tell the representative what they want and how much they can spend. The representative will take their money and give them a receipt. (Example: One person says that she needs a blouse for $10 and a skirt for $12. That is all that person will spend. She also knows that the store has the items she wants at those prices.)
6. The students in group B who have not planned will ask for what they want and the representatives will give a price. The student will pay the quoted price not caring if it is too high. He will give the representative the money and will in turn receive a receipt. (Example: One person wants some shoes, a blouse, and slacks. He asks how much they are. The store clerk will naturally want to sell the most expensive items first so he will quote a higher priced item. The student does not really care about saving money and buys the higher priced item.)
7. The actual buying should not take up any more than half of the class.
8. Compare what A group was able to buy with what B group bought.

EVALUATION: Fishbowl an inner and outer circle, students who are quieter will be in the inner circle first. Each must make a comment before a person from the outer circle may take their place. Discuss advantages and disadvantages of a budget and planning to keep within a budget. Discuss principles of money management.

SUGGESTED SCHEDULE FOR PLAYSCHOOL

1:00 - Arrival and free play
1:20 - Creative activity
1:30 - Story time
1:35 - Toileting and handwashing
1:40 - Snack time learning experience
1:55 - Clean up departure

SUGGESTIONS FOR PHYSICAL ARRANGEMENT OF PLAYSCHOOL

For the total development of the child, there should be centers for the various types of play. The locations of these centers will depend upon the physical arrangement of the room, safety features, traffic patterns and the number and location of observers.

In order to separate the play centers, dividers might be used. Examples of these dividers might be movable shelves, cardboard furniture, tables, book cases or a desk.

The following list of areas contain suggestions for equipment. Space should be provided for each child to leave belongings, clothing, and personal items.

Housekeeping area: Dress up clothing for boys and girls, dolls, buggies, dishes, housekeeping furniture, and cleaning items. This center will be more effective if it is located out of the major traffic lanes so privacy will be provided.

Active play area: This area of the playschool should be located out of the major traffic areas. Equipment in this area might include blocks, trucks, cars, balls, a sand box, tunnels, boards on which to climb and riding toys. Some of these items may be placed in the room and others brought into the room for variety. Music equipment may also be in the active play area. Items that may be found are record player and records; musical instruments such as drums, triangles, bells, sandpaper blocks, shakers made from pie pans, and cymbals made from pan lids.

Quiet play area: This area should contain items for children to use in art activities. Included might be improvised easels, paints, clay, paper, crayons, scissors, finger paints, paste, play dough and other materials. Other activities might include puzzles, books and toys that do not require the use of large muscles. In this center the teacher might include live animals such as turtles, rabbits, mice, birds, and an aquarium; plants, rocks, old clocks, magnets, rulers, scales, prisms, nuts, bolts, and locks. These items might be placed on tables or shelves.

MARY'S EATING HABITS

Mary, a high school senior, is a busy popular student. She likes sports, is an average student, has a good personality and is well liked by her school mates. She has a part time job and has learned to manage her money well. In the fall she plans to attend school and continue to work. She has a tendency to be slightly over weight and recently she has noticed that she has a complexion problem. She has also noticed that her grades have gone down in her morning classes. The following paragraph describes a typical eating schedule for Mary.

She skips breakfast and drinks a coke on the way to school. Between first and second period she has a candy bar. She skips lunch at school because she is not really hungry at that time. After school she is hungry but must hurry to her job so she has a coke and potato chips. By the time she gets home from work to have dinner with her family she is really starved. Her mother is a good cook and Mary eats a large dinner. She is especially fond of fried foods and starches. After dinner she usually studies or watches TV. She is usually hungry before bedtime and she may have a pizza or a sandwich before going to bed.

Analyze Mary's eating habits.

CONSUMER BUYMANSHP

Although food is usually the largest single expense in a family budget, you can generally reduce the amount you spend for food in the following ways:

1. Make a list and stick to it.
2. Look at labels.
3. Check the weights.
4. Shop for advertised specials.
5. Buy in quantity when it is more economical.
6. Compare costs and buy food in the form that gives the most savings for the money.
7. Use USDA grades whenever possible.
8. Use cereals you cook yourself since they are almost always less expensive and usually more nutritious.
10. When buying meat, consider the lean meat in the cut, not the cost per pound.
11. Take advantage of seasonal abundances.
GOOD MANNERS FROM A TO Z

A-void putting your fingers in your mouth or picking your teeth before others.
B-utter a small portion of bread at one time.
C-hew food with your mouth closed.
D-rinking or talking with food in your mouth shows poor manners.
E-lbows belong fairly close to your side and off the table.
F-ood is carried to the mouth on the fork with the prongs up; use fork rather than spoon whenever possible.
G-good posture is important to good table etiquette so sit erect.
H-old knife in right hand and fork (with tines down) in left hand when cutting food.
I-t is best to learn good manners early and use them all the time until they are so much a part of you that they are completely automatic.
J-eilds and jams are placed on your plate and then spread on a small portion of bread; never place directly on bread from serving dish.
K-eep one hand in your lap except when passing food or buttering bread, etc.
L-eave your napkin crumpled slightly to the left of the plate; extended house-guests would refold cloth napkins and place to left of plate.
M-anners reflect your consideration for others.
N-ever blow on food to cool it.
O-pen edges of napkin (which is on left-hand side of place setting) are placed at the lower right corner so one may easily and quietly place in lap (opened halfway).
P-assing of food should be in one direction, and you should pass with the hand fartherest from the person to whom you are passing.
Q-quiet conversation about pleasant topics is conducive to sociability and digestibility.
R-eceive passed food with the hand fartherest from the person and transfer to the other hand before passing to next person.
S-oup is eaten by dipping the soup spoon away from you and sipping from the side of the spoon nearest you.
T-ry to time your eating so that you finish when the others do.

U-sed silverware should not be placed on the tablecloth but placed on the plat-where used or on the serving dish where it will not fall off when dishes are removed.

V-ery considerate guests watch the hostess for cues as to when to begin eating-what silver to use if in doubt, and when to leave the table.

W-hen mishaps happen, apologize quietly and let the hostess take care of the situation.

eX-press your thanks to your mother or to the hostess for an enjoyable meal.

Y-ou should take what is served without comment unless offered a choice.

Z-est for food should still not cause you to gulp beverages, eat rapidly or scrape everything clean as though you are on the verge of starvation.

AUTOMOBILE BINGO

Ruth Freel

This game may be used as an evaluation or review device at the close of a study of automobiles.

Equipment Needed:

1. Bingo-type boards (one per player) with each of the 25 squares having a card symbol (e.g., 9 of hearts or King of spades) instead of the usual numbers under the Bingo letters. All boards are different.

2. Grains of corn or other material to cover squares as earned.

4. Deck of cards with questions about automobiles (see examples on following pages which may be cut out and used for the game).

Rules of Play:

1. Both decks of cards (the regular deck of cards and the ones containing questions about cars) are placed face down on the table.

2. Each player is given a bingo type board with card symbols in each space.

3. The player whose birthday comes first in the year is first, and turns proceed to the right.

4. The players, in turn, draw a card from each deck. If his board contains the symbol card he drew, he tries to answer the question on his question card.

5. If he successfully answers the question, he covers that square on his board. If he does not answer the question correctly, his question card is placed in a separate stack for later use.

6. If the player does not have the symbol card he drew on his board, he passes both his cards to the next player and this constitutes the "draw" of the player to whom they were passed.

7. If a player draws a joker, he may draw two additional cards. No bingo boards have a joker on it.

8. The winner is the first one to cover five squares in a row on his board, either vertically, horizontally, or diagonally.

9. At any turn, a player may request an opportunity to draw an extra card from the stack of question cards that have been missed. If he succeeds in answering the question correctly, he may cover any square on his board except the center or corner squares.
