ABSTRACT

One of 11 guides designed for junior high school teachers who wish to develop their own materials related to the fine arts and humanities area of career education, the primary focus is on identifying the components within each segment of the arts and humanities and the career areas within each segment. The fine arts are divided into art, music, dance, drama, and literature, then subdivided into career areas within each discipline. In art, the areas are painting, drawing, sculpture, graphics, design, ceramics, jewelry, textiles, art education, architecture, art history, and commercial art. The area of music is subdivided into vocal and instrumental categories and the dance area covers classic, popular, folk, and dance instruction. The drama field includes stage production and other entertainment media. The field of literature explores writing careers and supporting activities. Each unit specifies a unit purpose and performance objectives and includes: (1) a brief description of unit content, (2) teaching-learning activities, (3) evaluation techniques, and (4) suggested resources. Each unit specifies supportive instructional materials including transparency masters, reference lists, and other suggested activities. Addresses of publishers are provided in the appendix. (SW)

DISCRIMINATION PROHIBITED - Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 states: "No person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance." Therefore, any program or activity receiving financial assistance from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare must be operated in compliance with this law.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The writer would like to express appreciation to Tom VanTreese for his help with illustrations and to the many teachers and teacher educators who helped supply some of the materials found herein. A special word of appreciation is due the classroom teachers who field tested the original guide and made many helpful suggestions for the revision of this guide.
PREFACE

Career education may be described as a program of systematic educational experiences which prepares students for economic independence and personal fulfillment. Such a program should focus on the development of knowledge, general and specific abilities, and the awareness of the values of a work-oriented society; assisting all individuals— at all educational levels and ages—to interact with the economic sector.

Career education includes vocational training, but it is more than this. It aims toward developing the total individual; i.e. an individual able to perform all of his life roles with the skill, knowledge, and understanding necessary for success in all of these roles. It aims at developing the self-motivating and self-fulfilled individual who is a constructive force in the maintenance and improvement of the social body of which he is a part.

To meet the needs of individuals of all educational levels and ages, five phases of career education need to be implemented: awareness, orientation, exploration, preparation, and adult and continuing education.

Career awareness, emphasized early in the career development program, is to lead the individual in developing certain fundamental attitudes toward himself, toward other people, and toward work. Career orientation and exploration—emphasized in the middle school years—provides appropriate educational experiences which enable the individual to become familiar with the economic system and which allow the individual to explore various occupational clusters, to obtain initial work experience, and to integrate work values into his personal value system. The career exploration phase places equal emphasis on exploration of specific occupational clusters and on the relevancy of academic subject matter to career goals. During the preparation phase, which may begin at grade ten or later, the individual narrows his choices of careers and prepares to enter the labor market or to continue his education. The purposes of adult and continuing education are to assist in the individual's advancement and to aid adults in discovering, analyzing, and preparing for new careers.

Accepting the philosophy underlying career education probably means change for the educator and the educational system; it certainly means additional planning and organizing. Adopting this new concept could mean adding totally new programs, changing present programs, training new personnel, and/or developing new courses of study.

To say that education must change is one thing; implementing that change is something else. This guide, "Exploring Careers in Fine Arts and Humanities" is one of eleven such guides (including "Orientation to the World of Work," an introduction to all the guides) which can be used as a resource for teachers in implementing the exploration phase of career education in the middle/junior high school.

The following are suggestions for implementing this guide:

(1) It can be used as one of the eleven guides as resource material for a series of mini-courses or activity courses, each dealing with a separate occupational area or cluster.

(2) It can be used as a resource to integrate career exploration activities into the existing curriculum.

In either option, this career exploration cluster guide can provide a valuable resource for student exploration of the Fine Arts and Humanities cluster.
INTRODUCTION

Purpose of this Guide

The purpose of this guide is to aid the classroom teachers in developing their own materials related specifically to the fine arts and humanities area of career education. It attempts to break down the structure of the arts and humanities in such a way that it becomes manageable for a teacher who may not feel adequately prepared in this area. It identifies the components within each segment of the arts and humanities, identifies careers within each segment, and gives examples of possible classroom experiences which could be used in the exploration phase of career education.

Suggestions for Using the Guide

This guide is not an exhaustive in-depth study of the fine arts and humanities fields; rather it will serve as an indication of directions a classroom teacher might take in introducing the cluster at the junior high school level for exploration and "hands-on" experiences in career education. The teacher may wish to use all or parts of the guide depending on the subject matter taught and his or her interests and capabilities. For purposes of simplification this guide will divide the fine arts into art, music, dance, drama and literature, and will treat the humanities as a field which incorporates the intellectual and aesthetic developments within cultures.

The structure within the individual areas of the fine arts will be developed in more detail as the areas are introduced. The general areas under art will be painting, drawing, sculpture, graphics, design, ceramics, jewelry, textiles, art education, architecture, art history and commercial art.
Undoubtedly many philosophical arguments could be started about where "fine arts" start and "not-so-fine-arts" ends. Since we are concerned with the possibilities of earning a livelihood through developing skills, we will deal with occupations requiring skill development in the arts regardless of where the occupation falls in the hierarchy of educational preparation or professional prestige.

In this guide the area of music is divided into vocal and instrumental categories which are further subdivided into classic, popular, and folk. Jobs in the making, maintenance, and repair of musical instruments will be discussed along with music education and history.

The section which deals with the dance area covers classic, popular, folk and dance instruction. The drama area covers stage production, motion picture, radio, television drama and supporting activities related to drama production. The field of literature deals with fictional and non-fictional writing and supporting activities related to literature.

Structure of the Art Area

Aesthetic development in the visual arts is largely dependent upon the development of skills and enhanced conceptual and perceptual alertness, but most of all it is dependent upon continua practice with chosen materials. A good potter makes good pots because he makes pots often. A good water color artist spends more time making paintings with water colors than he does making paintings in any other medium. An artist who may not be skilled in the techniques of drawing may still achieve national, or even international recognition in some other area of the visual arts where drawing skills are not required. It is an erroneous assumption that artists are born with some nebulous quality called "talent." Artists appear to have "talent" because they have mastered the basic concepts of a given area, or areas, in art and have the interest necessary to sustain them over the long period of practice which is mandatory if technical proficiency is to be attained. It is a moot point where technical proficiency ends and creative genius begins in the arts, but since creative genius is seldom evident at the junior high school level, the most we can strive for in the classroom is to establish an environment in which students have the freedom to foster budding creativity, develop visual awareness and promote whatever degree of technical proficiency is necessary to inculcate, or maintain, the inner satisfaction essential for further development in this area.

Any reasonably intelligent layman can fathom the mystic of the artist, for there is no mystery where there is understanding. Unfortunately, too many otherwise intelligent persons make the fallacious supposition that the primary prerequisite for the production of creative work in the arts is the mastery of drawing skills. Hence we often hear the wistful remark, "I can't draw a straight line." There are areas of art such as textile design, weaving, sculpture, jewelry, photography, ceramics and certain types of painting where skill in drawing is not essential. However, for personal satisfaction and for the elevation of self-confidence in the arts, skill in drawing is a desirable attribute and one which can be acquired. Everyone who has learned to write can learn to draw. Everyone who has learned to write can probably draw already, but the results may not be satisfying because at some point during the elementary school phase of education almost every child needs to be taught some basic fundamentals of drawing. Unfortunately, this segment of education is usually neglected; consequently, after a period of drawing repetitions of childhood cliches and imagery, the child stops drawing altogether for childlike drawings no longer render satisfaction. A parallel in another area would be to teach a child to add and subtract, but expect him to stumble onto multiplication and division on his own. To alleviate the stagnation which may have arisen in the creative development of junior high students, it is recommended that the desire to draw be revived. Probably of equal importance in creative development is a feeling for design. Consequently, it is recommended that drawing and design units serve as an introduction to the Fine Arts and Humanities cluster and that subsequent time be devoted to exploration in other areas of the arts and humanities.
UNIT ONE

DRAWING

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of "drawing" in terms of sketching, finished drawings and cartoons

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Draw simple box shapes in one-point perspective and then apply the principles learned through this experience to drawing from visual experience.

II. Draw an optical illusion using two-point perspective.

III. Draw a cityscape using two-point perspective.

IV. Create a cartoon character in human or animal form.

V. Identify careers which require drawing skills.
I. The student will draw simple box shapes in one-point perspective, and then apply the principles learned through this experience to drawing from visual experience.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Exercise in one-point perspective
   2. Application of one-point perspective

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Using the one-point perspective illustration ("One-Point Perspective," p. 15) or a similar illustration of the teacher's choosing as a guide, have the student draw from this illustration.
   2. Using pencil and paper, have the student apply the principles of one-point perspective by doing a sketch of the classroom you are in at the time. (See "Classroom" p. 16.)

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. The student will demonstrate an understanding of one-point perspective if all lines aimed toward an imaginary horizon meet at a single vanishing point.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. The Art of Drawing
      b. Graphic Perception of Space
   2. Films
      a. "Discovering Line"
      b. "Discovering Perspective"
   3. Resource Persons
      a. Artist
      b. Art teacher
II. The student will draw an optical illusion using two-point perspective.

A. Suggested Content

1. Exercise in the use of two vanishing points to create the illusion of space of a two-dimensional surface using line only

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using the optical illusion of space illustrated ("Optical Illusion," p. 17) or a similar one as a guide, have the student draw an optical illusion by placing a vanishing point at each side of the page. Next draw a horizon line between these two points (in the center of the page) and with the aid of a ruler, measure off points equal distances apart above and below the horizon line and extending to the top and bottom of the page. Connect the vanishing points and the center points with lines. Color or black every other "square." An ordinary sheet of typing paper can be used for this exercise. Mark off equally spaced vertical lines over the pattern formed by the horizontal lines.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will demonstrate an understanding of creating optical illusions using two-point perspective if the horizontal lines converge at the vanishing points and an illusion of space is created.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books

   a. Graphic Perception of Space

   b. The Complete Drawing Book

III. The student will draw a cityscape using two-point perspective.

A. Suggested Content

1. Application of the use of two-point perspective to create the illusion of space from the visual experience

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. On a sheet of 12" x 18" drawing paper, have students locate a vanishing point in the center of both sides of the paper. Next have them draw buildings of different heights with the horizontal lines aimed toward the vanishing points. (see "Two-Point Perspective," p.18) One of the most common errors of beginning students is slanting the vertical lines, so it may be necessary to point out that the verticals remain straight up and down. This exercise needs to be repeated in several environments and followed by a lesson designed to promote the creative use of the knowledge acquired.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will demonstrate an understanding of two-point perspective if the horizontal lines converge at the vanishing point and a feeling of space is created.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. The Art of Drawing
   b. The Complete Drawing Book

2. Films
   a. "Discovering Line"
   b. "Discovering Perspective"
   c. "Vertical"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Art teacher
   b. Artist
   c. Draftsman
IV. The student will create a cartoon character in human or animal form.

A. Suggested Content

1. Examination of the techniques used by professional cartoonists and application of knowledge to create an original cartoon character

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. After examining, and perhaps drawing, some cartoon characters from the funny papers, magazines and comic books, have the student attempt to create an original comic character. This character could be featured in one cartoon complete with "punch line" or could appear in comic strip form, preferably in a humorous situation.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will demonstrate an understanding of the cartooning process by drawing an original cartoon character.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Drawing People
   b. The Complete Drawing Book

2. Films
   a. "The Human Figure in Art"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Newspaper cartoonist
   b. Art teacher
   c. Commercial artist
V. The student will be able to identify careers which require drawing skills.

Other Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Further exploration should be devoted to drawing directly from the visual experiences, classroom props, landscapes, figures in action etc., since students at this age are interested in realism.

2. Rudimentary information regarding anatomy and proportions is needed at this age level and consequently drawing from student models is recommended. (See "Figure Measurements" p. 19 and "Features" p. 20.)

3. Additional subject matter for drawing could revolve around natural objects, and students can be taught to compare the effects of line variants, i.e., length, width, degree of curvature, direction and texture as well as an exploration of shapes, volumes and tone.

4. Variety can be added to the sketches, drawings and cartoons by introducing new drawing materials.

5. Classroom activities for career education should include bringing into the classroom for interviews artists in the community who use drawing skills, field trips to the art department of a newspaper, television station or commercial art studio, or showing any of a number of films on artists or on drawing.

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of "design" as it relates to the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster and careers in designing.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Create a composition in which he incorporates the elements of design.

II. Create a composition in which he demonstrates his understanding of the principles of design.

III. Identify careers which require skill in designing.
I. The student will create a composition in which he incorporates the elements of design.

A. Suggested Content

1. Elements of Design
   a. Line
   b. Color
   c. Shape (mass and form)
   d. Texture
   e. Tone

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Line: Using brush and ink on paper, have the student work out a composition which demonstrates the way lines vary in width, length, degree of curvature, direction and texture. This design should be non-objective and could be used as a poster to advertise a product or event.

2. Color: Using watercolor or tempera paint have the student
   a. Make the secondary and tertiary colors from the primary colors, and work these into a design.
   b. Create a monochromatic design to explore the range of value from light to dark in one hue.
   c. Create a design using colors in juxtaposition to demonstrate the spatial effect caused by varying intensities of bright and dull hues.

3. Shape: Using a variety of materials, have the student create several two and three dimensional shapes and forms using organic free-form in some and geometric shapes and forms in others.

4. Texture: Have the student discover texture in the following ways:
   a. Using a large sheet of tracing paper, have the student make rubbings of various textures around the classroom and school. Then have him attempt to draw these textures.
   b. Have the student create a black, white and gray design using texture only.
   c. Using objects brought from home, have the students make a collage design showing the range of texture from rough to smooth.
5. Tone: To explore this element in both hands-on and visual experience,

a. Have the student explore the range of tone by mixing black, white and one hue of tempera color and working these tones into a non-objective or abstract design showing a range of tints and shades.

b. Using color cut from magazines, have the student identify the color(s) which appreciably modify a hue or white or black (as a gray paper of blueish tone, for example.)

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work for elements of design or have him identify these elements in his classmates' work or in commercial designs found in magazines and elsewhere.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Design: Elements and Principles
   b. Design: A Search for Essentials
   c. Visual Design: A Problem-Solving Approach

2. Films

   b. The "Discovery" Series

3. Resource Persons
   a. Artist
   b. Art teacher
   c. Landscaper
   d. Architect
   e. Commercial artist
II. The student will create a composition in which he demonstrates his understanding of the principles of design.

A. Suggested Content

1. Principles of design:
   a. Harmony
   b. Dominance
   c. Balance
   d. Rhythm and repetition
   e. Transition
   f. Variety
   g. Economy of means

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Harmony: Have the student work out compositions which show a. the harmony of line variants (width, length, degree of curvature, direction and texture),
   b. the harmony of both warm and cool color compositions,
   c. the harmony of shapes and forms composed with only organic shapes and forms, and then with only geometric shapes and forms,
   d. the harmony of similar textures,
   e. the harmony of close value tonal compositions.

2. Dominance: Have the student work out five designs which exemplify dominance in each area of the elements of design (line, color, shape, texture and tone).

3. Balance: Have the student work out five designs which exemplify balance in each of the elements of design.

4. Rhythm and repetition: Have the student work out five designs which exemplify rhythm and repetition in each of the elements of design.

5. Transition: Have the student work out five designs which exemplify transition in the elements of design. It is recommended that this be done through the use of magazine cut-outs in the form of collages.
6. Variety: Using cut paper, have the students work out designs which show variety among the elements of design.

7. Economy of means: Have the students express a single concept (such as "happiness" or "lost") using all of the elements of design, but with an economy of means.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how well he has demonstrated his understanding of the principles of design in his own work, or have him identify these principles in the work of his classmates.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Design: Elements and Principles

PAINTING

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of painting in art as it relates to careers for painters

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Develop compositions in paint which create the illusion of space.

II. Develop a composition in paint which demonstrates his understanding of positive and negative space.

III. Develop a composition in paint which demonstrates a technique for creating texture in paint and explore the techniques of glazing.

IV. Identify careers which require painting skills.
I. The student will develop compositions in paint which create the illusion of space.

A. Suggested Content

1. Bright and dull colors
2. Warm and cool colors
3. Light and dark colors
4. Large and small areas of color

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Bright and dull colors: Using the primary colors plus brown, have the student develop a painting in poster paint which demonstrates creating the illusion of space through the use of bright and dull colors.

2. Warm and cool colors: Using the full range of colors have the student create three paintings.
   a. Painting in warm colors only
   b. Painting in cool colors only
   c. Painting combining warm and cool colors

3. Light and dark colors: Using the full range of colors, plus black and white, have the student develop a painting which demonstrates the illusion of space created through the use of lights and darks.

4. Large and small areas of color: Using colors of equal value and intensity, muted, have the student create a painting in which large areas come forward and small areas recede.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how well he created the illusion of space through color alone and how well he can identify the techniques of painting which created the illusion of space in the works of classmates and professional painters.

D. Suggested Resources

   d. Commercial artist
II. The student will develop a composition which demonstrates his understanding of positive and negative space.

A. Suggested Content

1. Composition
2. Positive space
3. Negative space

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Composition: Using slides or reproductions of well known painter's works, have the student analyze the compositions in terms of positive and negative space.

2. Positive space: Using a still life subject matter, develop a black and white design with the still life components in such a way that either the positive or the negative areas are solid black.

3. Negative space: Have the students abstract the composition developed to show positive space in such a way that the negative space become equally important in the painting. When the positive and negative spaces have been satisfactorily adjusted, have the student use this composition as the basis of a painting done in either monochromatic, warm or cool colors.

D. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how well the positive and negative spaces work as a unit and how well the negative spaces become part of the painting rather than functioning as leftover areas.

E. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Techniques of Painting
   b. The Painters' Pocketbook of Methods and Materials

2. Films
   a. "Abstractions"
   b. "Composition"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Artists
   b. Art teachers
   c. Designers
III. The student will develop a composition in paint which demonstrates a technique for creating texture in paint.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Smooth texture
   2. Dot-pattern texture
   3. Impasto
   4. Glazing

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Smooth textures: Using acrylic paints, or acrylic medium mixed with tempera paints, have the student develop a smooth texture painting using many layers of thin washes on a smooth background.
   2. Dot-pattern texture: Using the same composition used for the smooth texture painting, have the student develop a painting using spatter paint, spray guns or spray cans and stencils to create dot-pattern texture.
   3. Impasto: Again, using the same composition, have the student develop a painting using very thick paint to create heavy impasto painting. A study of the paintings of Roualt or Van Gogh could precede this lesson.
   4. Glazing: Using one or more of the paintings created above, introduce the student to the techniques of glazing with acrylic washes.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how readily one can identify the type of texture created in the painting and whether the glazing techniques added harmony to the composition.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Techniques in Painting
      b. The Painters' Pocketbook of Methods and Materials
      c. The Artists' Handbook of Materials and Techniques
   2. Resource Persons
      a. Art teacher
      b. Artists
      c. Designers
IV. The student will identify careers which require painting skills.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers requiring painting skills:

- Artist-painter
- Photographic touch-up artist
- Thetre set designer
- Sign painter
- Television set designer
- Designer
- Motion picture set designer
- Decorator of ornamental objects
- Magazine illustrator
- Landscape artists
- Billboard painter
- Commercial artist
- Portrait painter
- Advertising artist
- Ad

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using field trips, interviews and research, have the student explore the training necessary, the working conditions and the employment potentials of the careers listed above.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will list and describe at least eight careers which require painting skills.

D. Suggested References

Other Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. If the budget and classroom space make it feasible, have the student experiment with different types of paint, i.e., water color, poster paint, acrylic and encaustic made from old crayons. In order for the visual effect of the medium to be more obvious, it is recommended that the same composition be used for the different types of painting.

2. Have the student develop a water color painting using glazes only.

3. Have the student develop an acrylic painting using glazes only.

4. Have the student create a water color using the rubber cement technique.

5. Have the student create the effect of impasto using thick gesso on a cardboard or masonite base.

6. Have the student develop a mural for a specific location in the school.

7. Bring local painters into the classroom for interviews.

8. Take a field trip to a painter's studio.

9. Show films of painters at work.
UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of "sculpture" as it relates to the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster, in terms of concepts about form and the material suitable for developing specific types of form into sculpture, and to discover careers which require skills in sculptural techniques.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Make a three-dimensional object using geometric forms.
II. Make a three-dimensional object using organic forms.
III. Demonstrate a knowledge of opened and closed form.
IV. Demonstrate a knowledge of low, medium or high relief sculpture.
V. Contrast add-to and take-away sculpture.
VI. Explore combining form, color and texture.
VII. Identify careers which require skills in sculpture.
I. The student will make a three-dimensional object using geometric forms.

A. Suggested Content

1. Cube
2. Sphere
3. Cylinder
4. Cone
5. Pyramid

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. After demonstrating how to make the geometric forms listed above, have the students attempt to make these forms from paper. Additional forms such as ellipsoids, hyperboloids, dodecahedrons and plinths may be attempted by accelerated students. Multiples of two or more forms can then be glued together to make a hanging or standing form. Corrugated cardboard works well for this, and the film "Designing With Everyday Materials: Corrugated Paper," (BFA Educational Media) is a good introduction to this lesson.

II. The student will make a three-dimensional object using organic form.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Organic form

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Using natural objects for illustration, discuss what is meant by organic form, and have students identify organic form in reproductions of contemporary sculpture. Using clay, wire and plaster, or wood, have the student create a piece of sculpture composed of organic forms.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. The student will have demonstrated a knowledge of organic form if no geometric forms appear in his work. Have him describe the organic forms used in his classmates' work.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Exploring Sculpture
      b. New Dictionary of Modern Sculpture
   2. Films
      a. "Discovering Form"
      b. "Art from Found Materials"
   3. Resource Persons
      a. Designer
      b. Architect
      c. Artist
      d. Art teacher
III. The student will demonstrate a knowledge of open and closed form.

A. Suggested Content

1. Open form
2. Closed form

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Precede the hands-on experiences with a class discussion of open and closed form using slides or reproductions for illustrations. Have the student create an open form sculpture and a closed form sculpture out of any of the following materials: clay, toothpicks, toothpicks and paper, wire and string, soda straws, paper or corrugated cardboard. This may be followed by presenting the student with the problem of creating a piece of sculpture which combines open and closed form.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work for open and closed form and/or have him identify these forms in the sculpture of others.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Exploring Sculpture
   b. New Dictionary of Modern Sculpture
   c. Young Sculptors

   c. Artist-sculptor
   d. Potter
IV. The student will demonstrate a knowledge of low, medium and high relief in sculpture by experimentation.

A. Suggested Content

1. Low relief sculpture
2. Medium relief sculpture
3. High relief sculpture

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Introduce relief sculpture with slides, reproductions or examples of relief sculpture and have a class discussion on the differences between low and high relief. Have the student draw a composition which lends itself to relief sculpture. When a satisfactory composition has been worked out, have the student transfer this to a wood, plaster or wax block and carve the composition in low medium or high relief.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work for elements of composition, relief and carving ability. Have him identify these qualities in the works of others.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Exploring Sculpture
   b. Young Sculptors
   c. New Dictionary of Modern Sculpture

2. Resource persons

1. Films
   a. "Discovering Form"
b. "Discovering Color"

c. "Discovering Texture"

d. "Art From Found Materials"
V. The student will contrast add-to and take-away techniques of producing sculpture.

A. Suggested Content

1. Built-up form
2. Direct carving, take-away techniques

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Define or demonstrate the difference between the additive and subtractive techniques of making sculpture. Have the student start from two identical clay blocks and two identical themes, and add to one block while subtracting from the other block the amount of clay needed for the add-to method. Both blocks should become a piece of sculpture with identical themes in two different techniques.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of composition, consistency of theme and purpose.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Exploring Sculpture
   b. New Dictionary of Modern Sculpture

2. Resource persons
   a. Artist
   b. Art teacher
   c. Potter or sculptor VI. The student will explore combining form, color, and texture.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Form
   2. Form and color
   3. Form and texture

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Using any or all of several materials (paper, cardboard, plaster, toothpicks, collage materials, metal foils, etc.) have the student design and execute a piece of sculpture where color and texture become an integral part of the design. It might be well to have groups of students working in different materials so the end results can be compared with the materials used. The themes used can be either realistic, abstract or non-objective. A review of color and texture may be in order.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how well the color and texture enhance the form and emphasize the planes on which they are used.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Films
      a. "Discovering Form"
      b. "Discovering Color"

      b. Artist-sculptor
      c. Art teacher
      d. Architect
VII. The student will be able to identify careers which require skills in sculpture.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers requiring sculpture skills

- Artist-sculptor
- Automobile designer
- Float designer or worker
- Aircraft and space ship designers
- Display manager
- Dentist
- Furniture designer
- Leather craftsman-designer
- Plastic surgeon
- Jewelry designer
- Industrial designer
- Flatware designer
- Toy designer
- Flower arranger
- Architect
- Cabinet maker

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using field trips, interviews and research, have the student explore the necessary training, the working conditions and the employment potential of the above listed careers.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will list and describe at least ten careers which require skill in sculpture.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books

   a. Dictionary of Occupational Titles
   b. The Encyclopedia of Careers and Vocational Guidance
   c. Occupational Outlook Handbook

Other Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. For exploration of form, planes and take-away method of carving, have the student do direct carving in balsa wood, clay, wax or soap.

2. Have the student develop a wire and string free-standing sculpture to emphasize curving and twisting planes.

3. Using painted boxes, have the student explore open form with overlapping planes by punching rows of holes at different levels in the box and running colored threads through at different angles and directions.

4. Have the student explore making sculpture out of stuffed fabric or macrame.

5. Have the student explore the possibilities of making sculpture out of found objects and scrap materials such as the "left over" from shop classes, lumber yards and industrial scraps.

6. Have the student plan and execute a mobile or wall sculpture for a specific building in town.

7. Bring an artist working in sculpture into the class for interviewing or take a field trip to a sculpture studio. If this is not possible, show films on sculptors at work and techniques used.
UNIT PURPOSE: The student will explore the scope of "graphics" as it relates to the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster and the careers found therein.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Identify various kinds of prints, understand the numbering system for prints and know the difference between a print and a reproduction.

II. Compose and make an etaglio print.

III. Compose and make a relief print.

IV. Compose and make a serigraph.

V. Identify careers which require printmaking skills.
I. The student will be able to identify various kinds of prints, understand the numbering system for prints, and know the difference between a print and a reproduction.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Intaglio
   2. Relief
   3. Serigraph
   4. Lithograph
   5. Numbering an edition
   6. Reproductions

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Using real prints and plates if possible, help the student see the differences between intaglio, relief, serigraph and lithograph prints and printing techniques through the lecture, demonstration, discussion-type approach. Explain the system for numbering a print edition and the meaning of the term "artist's proof." Explain the difference between a print and a reproduction, and show the student how to tell the difference. Show films on printmaking so the student can see the process.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student in terms of his ability to discern types of prints, his explanation of the number system and his ability to identify a reproduction when he sees one.

II. The student will compose and make an intaglio print.

A. Suggested Content

1. Below-the-surface printing
2. Making a plate
3. Inking a plate
4. Wiping a plate
5. Printing a plate
6. Numbering a print
7. Matting a print

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Review the characteristic of intaglio printing and discuss dry point, etching and engraving, as well as techniques for inking, wiping, printing, numbering and matting a plate or print. Using plexiglass or plastic for a plate, have the student do a dry-point composition which can be transferred to the plate. With a sharp needle or other instrument have the student make, ink, print, number the print and mat a dry-point print.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of each step in the process and by his ability to identify the intaglio process in the prints of others.

III. The student will compose and make a relief print.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Linoleum prints
   2. Plaster prints
   3. Wood cuts
   4. Collographs

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Review the characteristics of relief printing and discuss suitable materials for this type of print as well as techniques for making the plates, inking, wiring, printing, numbering and matting the plate or print. Using linoleum, plaster, wood or collograph materials, have the student make a relief plate, print a relief print, number and mat the print.

IV. The student will compose and make a serigraph.

A. Suggested Content

1. The silk screen process

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Review the silk screen printing process and demonstrate how simple silk screen frames can be made. Discuss squeegees, inks, and stencil materials. Have the student make a simple silk screen frame from a shellacked cardboard box or wooden frame. Have the student design a serigraph, cut the stencil, adhere the stencil to the frame and print the silk screen composition. Have him number and mat the prints.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of each step in the process and by his ability to identify the silk screen process in the prints of others.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. The Complete Printmaker
   b. Printmaking Today

   Engraver for U.S. postage stamps Photoengraver Silk screen artist Poster maker

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using field trips, interviews and research, have the student explore the training necessary to enter the above careers, the working conditions involved and the career potentials.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will be evaluated on his ability to list and describe at least five careers which require a knowledge of printmaking skills.

D. Suggested Resources

CERAMICS

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of "ceramics" and the careers in this field.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Research the composition and locations of clay deposits.

II. Explore the techniques involved and make a pot.

III. Research the composition of glazes and learn to apply glazes to one or more of his pots.

IV. Research the principles of building a kiln, pit firing and raku firing.

V. Identify careers which require knowledge about ceramics as well as careers which require skills in working with clay.
I. The student will research the composition and location of clay deposits.

A. Suggested Content

1. Types of clay
2. Location of clay
3. Refining and aging clay
4. Commercial production and uses

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using encyclopedias, technical books and information obtained from the research division of the state department of commerce, the geology department of the nearest college or university, environmental agencies, departments of mines and minerals, and personal interviews, have the student find out all that he can about clay. If there are local clay deposits, have the student dig and refine clay, and be able to tell the difference between natural clay and modeling clay. Have him explore the commercial production and uses of clay in the ceramic industries, and have him compile all information into a notebook.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student’s work on the basis of the thoroughness and accuracy of the information in his notebook.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Encyclopedias
   b. Ceramics—A Potter’s Handbook

2. Resource Persons

   e. Clay production worker II. The student will explore the techniques involved and make a pot.

A. Suggested Content

1. Pinch, coil and slab methods
2. Drape - shape method
3. Potter's wheel

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. After giving a demonstration or showing films on various methods of constructing with clay, have the student make pots using one or all of the following methods: pinch, coil, slab, draping rolled out clay over another form, or throwing on a potter's wheel. Discuss tensile strength, construction techniques, decorating possibilities and aesthetic qualities.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the students' work in terms of aesthetic quality, suitability of form to function, construction techniques employed and originality of decorating devices.

III. The student will research the composition of glazes and learn to apply glazes to one or more of his pots or tiles.

A. Suggested Content

1. Glaze composition
2. Glaze application

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. By using encyclopedias, technical books and information obtained through writing producers of ceramic supplies, have the student compile a notebook on glaze information. If chemicals are available have the student make his own glaze and apply it to a piece of his own ceramic work. Otherwise have him apply a commercially prepared glaze. The student should be aware of the fact that not all glazes work on all clay bodies.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work on the basis of the content of his notebook and the success of his glazing endeavor.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Ceramics: A Potter's Handbook
   b. Encyclopedias

2. Resource Persons
   a. Art teacher
   b. Potter
   c. Chemist or chemistry teacher
IV. The student will research the principles of building a kiln, pit firing and raku firing.

A. Suggested Content

1. Kiln construction and materials
2. Draft systems
3. Temperature control and regulation
4. Safety features
5. Types of kilns

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. While this is basically a research problem which requires the student spend some time in the library ferreting out information and making notes and drawings of kilns for a notebook, it can readily be turned into a hands-on group experience if the teacher is willing to supervise the actual building of a kiln from scrap materials either on school grounds or at the home of one of the students. If kiln building is attempted, a raku kiln is recommended because of the speed with which it can be built, the simplicity of materials and the firing experience involved. A pit kiln is second best.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work on the content of his notebook and/or the successful operation of the kiln.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Encyclopedias

2. Resource Persons
   a. Art teacher
   b. Potter
V. The student will be able to identify careers which require skills and knowledges in ceramics.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers requiring ceramic skills

- Artist- craftsman
- Potter
- Glazer
- Clay refiner
- Kiln foreman
- Kiln maker
- Pottery decoration designer
- Tile designer
- Spark plug maker
- Bathroom fixtures designer
- Ceramic chemist
- Clayminer
- Ceramic geologist
- Pottery wheel maker
- Pub mill workers

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student explore the training needed, working conditions and career potentials in the ceramic field.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student should be able to identify and explain at least 10 careers in the ceramic industry.

2. Ask a potter or ceramic sculptor to visit the class for demonstration and interview.

3. Take a field trip to a clay site and let the students dig, refine, and use their own clay.

4. As a group project, have the students design and make an unglazed ceramic mural in built-up relief for a specific location.

5. Explore the utilitarian function of clay by having the student design and make hot plates, lamp bases, tile top TV tables, candle holders, weed pots, hanging pots, bells, etc.

6. Have the student explore the possibilities of underglazes through a series of decorative problems.
UNIT SEVEN

JEWELRY

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of jewelry designing and making and the career possibilities in this field

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Explore the possibilities and techniques in enameling.

II. Explore the possibilities and techniques of making jewelry from wire.

III. Explore the possibilities and techniques of making jewelry from wood.

IV. Explore the possibilities and construction techniques of making jewelry from found objects and tumble polishing found objects for caged jewelry.

V. Research the lost wax technique of casting and the commercial techniques for making jewelry as well as exploration of gems and jewels.

VI. Identify careers which require knowledge about jewelry as well as careers which require skill in jewelry design and execution.
I. The student will explore the possibilities and techniques in enameling.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Cleaning the metal
   2. Burrning edges
   3. Transparent and opaque enamels
   4. Firing
   5. Cleaning and finishing

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Show examples of enameled jewelry and do a demonstration on the techniques involved including safety precautions and care of enamels. Explain why each step is important if the finished piece of jewelry is to be a success. Discuss different ways designs are made with enamel such as stencils and sgraffito. Let the student design and execute a pin or pendant using copper enameling techniques.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of design and craftsmanship.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Step by Step Jewelry
      b. Contemporary Jewelry: A Studio Handbook
   2. Films
      a. 'Enameling'
   3. Resource persons
      a. Jewelry craftsman
      b. Art teacher
      c. Enamel hobbyist
II. The student will explore the possibilities and techniques of making jewelry from wire.

A. Suggested Content

1. Forming
2. Hammering
3. Cleaning and polishing

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Demonstrate the techniques of making jewelry from one piece of wire by bending it with pliers, hammering sections to flatten the wire, making pin backs by filing one end into a point and bending the other into a hook. Buff the finished piece on a polishing wheel, and lacquer the piece of jewelry to keep the metal from tarnishing. Using inexpensive copper or brass wire, let the student design and execute a wire pin, necklace, pendant, bracelet or hair ornament.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of design and craftsmanship.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Step by Step Jewelry
   b. Contemporary Jewelry: A Studio Handbook

2. Resource Persons
   a. Jewelry designer
   b. Jewelry craftsman
   c. Art teacher
III. The student will explore the possibilities and techniques of making jewelry from wood.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Laminating
   2. Cutting
   3. Filing
   4. Polishing
   5. Attaching findings

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Obtain a variety of scrap woods from lumber yards and/or from the high school shop teacher using simple hand tools, i.e., clamps or clothes pins, saws, buffers, sanders or sandpaper, etc., demonstrate how woods can be laminated and shaped into jewelry by cutting out a shape and rounding the surface through filing and polishing. Inform the student on how to mix epoxy glues to adhere findings to the back side. Have the student design and execute a piece of jewelry in wood.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of design and craftsmanship.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Creating with Found Objects

   2. Resource Persons
      a. Industrial arts woodshop teacher

IV. The student will explore the possibilities and construction techniques of making jewelry from found objects and tumble polishing found objects for caged jewelry.

A. Suggested Content

1. Designing jewelry
2. Gluing, soldering
3. Caging

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Show examples and explain the construction techniques of making jewelry from found objects. Explain the techniques for tumble polishing and demonstrate methods of bending wire to cage objects for jewelry. Have the student collect rocks, shells, nuts and bolts and a variety of other objects. Have him design and execute a piece of jewelry made from these objects.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of design, function and craftsmanship.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Creating with Found Objects

2. Resource Persons
   a. Industrial arts woodshop teacher
   b. Jewelry craftsman
   c. Art teacher
V. The student will research the lost wax technique of casting and the commercial techniques for making jewelry as well as an exploration of jewels and gems.

A. Suggested Content

1. Methods of:
   a. Making a wax model
   b. Sprueing
   c. Investing
   d. Casting
   e. Finishing

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student do a research paper complete with illustrations on the lost wax casting technique, commercial means of making jewelry, and jewels and gems for jewelry.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of the content and quality of his research paper.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Step by Step Jewelry
   b. Contemporary Jewelry: A Studio Handbook

2. Films
   a. "Rings on My Fingers"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Artist - craftsman
   b. Art teacher
   c. Jewelry repairman VI. The student will be able to identify careers which require knowledge about jewelry as well as careers which require skill in jewelry design and execution.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers which require skill in jewelry design and execution

- Artist-craftsman in jewelry
- Gem cutter and polisher
- Jewelry repairman
- Jewelry appraiser
- Dentist
- Jewel and gem dealers
- Bead maker
- Jewelry supply salesman
- Craftsman-teacher
- Jewelry salesman
- Jewelry designer
- Silversmiths
- Goldsmiths

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student explore the training needed, working conditions and career potentials in the jewelry field.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student should be able to identify and describe at least eight careers in the jewelry field.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books

   a. Dictionary of Occupational Titles
   b. The Encyclopedia of Careers and Vocational Guidance
   c. Occupational Outlook Handbook

Other Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student locate and interview persons working in the jewelry field, and give a class report on these interviews.

2. Have the student visit the studio of an artist-craftsman working in jewelry, or have the artist-craftsman give a demonstration in class.

3. Take the class on a field trip to a jewelry store and interview a salesman, the owner and a repairman about their jobs.

4. Give the student an opportunity to make a piece of jewelry for a crippled child, a poor person, a shut-in, a senior citizen in a hospital, a deaf person or someone specific who might appreciate having something made for them.

5. Have the student contact the geology department of a college or university, or invite a faculty member to the class to ascertain what metals, gems and jewels are native to this state.
UNIT EIGHT TEXTILES

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of "textiles" as it relates to the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster and to explore jobs in the textile area

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Research types of fibers, types of weaves and types of looms.

II. Construct a loom and weave a simple piece of fabric.

III. Experiment with tie-dye and batik fabric design.

IV. Design and execute a block print or silk screen print on fabric.

V. Design and execute a creative stitchery wall hanging.

VI. Design and execute a three-dimensional standing or hanging fabric sculpture.

VII. Identify careers which require a knowledge about textiles as well as careers which require skill in working with textiles.
I. The student will research types of fibers, types of weaves and types of looms.

A. Suggested Content

1. Cotton, linen, wool, silk, synthetic fibers
2. Plain, twill, herringbone, satin, pile, etc., weaves
3. Frame, primitive, inkle, fixed heddle, backstrap, harness looms

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Show films on weaving. Have the student develop a notebook on as many aspects of weaving as seem appropriate. Have the student illustrate the various types of weaves through paper weaving, and have him make drawings of the different types of looms.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of the content of his notebook.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Encyclopedias
   b. On Weaving

2. Films
   a. "Hands and Threads"
   b. "The Textile Touch"
   c. "The Weaver"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Interior decorator
   b. Weaver - craftsman
   c. Buyer for a department store (textiles)
   d. Art teacher
II. The student will construct a loom and weave a simple piece of fabric.

A. Suggested Content

1. Primitive looms
2. Simple weaving techniques

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Through research already completed, the student will have acquired some basic knowledge about the principles of loom construction. Have him apply this knowledge to the construction of his own loom, and then have him weave a simple piece of fabric which could serve as a table runner, purse, or dish cloth.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how well the loom functions and the flawlessness of the finished fabric.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. On Weaving
   b. Encyclopedias
   c. Practical Encyclopedia of Crafts
   d. Arts and crafts catalog

2. Resource Persons
   a. Weaver
   b. Industrial arts teacher
   c. Occupational therapist
   d. Art teacher
III. The student will experiment with tie-dye and batik fabric design.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Fabric design
   2. Types of dyes
   3. Tie-dyeing and batik making
   4. Setting the dye

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Show film on batik and discuss examples of tie-dye and batik work, if available. Discuss types of dyes and where they come from. Discuss which fabrics are suitable for accepting the dye. Demonstrate the process and then let the student experiment on a piece of scrap material. Next let the student tie-dye or batik a tee shirt or wall hanging and set the dye so it will not fade or run with the set recommended by the dye manufacturer.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of textile design and completed product.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Batik: Art and Craft
      b. Practical Encyclopedia of Crafts
      c. Instructions which come with dyes
   2. Films

   3. Resource Persons
      a. Artist - crafts
      b. Art teachers
IV. The student will design and execute a block print or silk screen print on fabric.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Stencil or block print design
   2. Application of textile paint
   3. Setting textile paint

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Demonstrate and discuss designing for block print and/or silk screen printing for textiles. Show examples. Have the student develop a design for a specific use and then cut the block or stencil, print it on the fabric and set the textile paint according to the instructions given by the paint manufacturer.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of suitability of design to the function of the material and how well the design was transferred to the fabric.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Printed Textiles
      b. Practical Encyclopedia of Crafts
   2. Resource Persons
      a. Artist - craftsmen, textiles
      b. Printmaker
      c. Art teacher
V. The student will design and execute a creative stitchery wall hanging.

A. Suggested Content

1. Designing on fabric
2. Types of stitches
3. Use of stretcher bars
4. Finishing edges
5. Ways of hanging a wall hanging

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Show examples of creative stitchery and do a demonstration of how various stitches are made. Suggest the student acquire some stretcher bars, or a type of frame which will hold the material taut while working. Have the student design and execute a creative stitchery wall hanging. Have him finish the edges of the stitchery and devise a means of hanging the finished product.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Books
   a. Stitchery: Art and Craft
   b. Practical Encyclopedia of Crafts

2. Resource Persons
   a. Interested parents
   b. Home economics teacher
   c. Artist - craftsman in textiles
   d. Art teacher
VI. The student will design and execute a three-dimensional standing or hanging fabric sculpture.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Application of textile design and techniques to fabric sculpture

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. By this time in the textile unit, the student will have had a wide range of experiences with weaving and decorating textiles. Let the student have an option about what techniques he chooses to combine to make a piece of fabric sculpture. By making this a non-functional piece of art work, more creative results can be expected.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of idea, design and craftsmanship.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Resource Persons
      a. Interested parents
      b. Home economics teacher
      c. Interior decorator
      d. Sculptor
      e. Art teacher
VII. The student will be able to identify careers which require a knowledge about textiles as well as careers which require skill in working with textiles.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers which require knowledge and skill in working with textiles

   - Weaver-craftsman
   - Batik craftsman
   - Fabric designer
   - Interior decorator
   - Loom maker
   - Yarn worker
   - Clothing buyer
   - Reweaver
   - Pattern designer
   - Embroidery designer

2. Ask persons working with textiles to visit the class and discuss their work.

3. Take a field trip to the studio of an artist-craftsman in textiles, or visit the weaving room of a college art or home economics department.

4. Explore the field of knotting and macrame.

5. Have the students arrange a textile exhibit with fabrics borrowed from world travelers.
UNIT NINE

ART EDUCATION

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of "art education" as it relates to the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Research the history and purposes of art education, analyze the areas of art, and develop an art program by units and lessons; develop the equipment and supply list of materials necessary to teach an art program.

II. Work out a lesson plan and teach one lesson in some area of art.

III. Identify careers in art education.
I. The student will research the history and purposes of art education; analyze the areas of art, and develop an art program by units and lessons; develop the equipment and supply list of materials necessary to teach his art program.

A. Suggested Content

1. History and purposes of art education
2. Human growth and development in art
3. Suitability of art lessons by grade level
4. Equipment and supplies for art

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using the library, reference books borrowed from the art teacher and school supply catalogs, have the student explore the theories of art education and the practical application of these theories, and have him keep a record of the information obtained and/or developed in a notebook.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of his written record in the notebook.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Encyclopedias
   b. School supply catalogues
   c. Preparation for Art
   d. Art Education in Contemporary Culture
   e. Art, Artists and Art Education
   f. Perceptual Growth in Creativity

2. Films
   a. "Art: How Does a Child Grow"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Art teacher
II. The student will work out a lesson plan and teach one lesson in some area of art.

A. Suggested Content

1. Will vary with the area chosen but should include:
   a. Major objective or purpose
   b. Performance objective or outcome expected
   c. Amount and distribution of supplies
   d. Working time
   e. Means of evaluation
   f. Display

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Demonstrate how a teaching-learning experience is developed for a specific grade level. Help the student select and develop an art lesson, and let him teach this lesson to a class.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's performance as you would that of any other student-teacher.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Art, Artists and Art Education

2. Resource Persons
   a. Interested parents
   b. Art teacher
   c. Scout leader
III. The student will be able to identify careers in art education.

A. Suggested Content

1. Art teacher in:
   a. Elementary school
   b. Secondary school
   c. Private school
   d. College
   e. Army school or recreation department
   f. Hospitals
   g. Educational television
   h. Workshops

2. Textbook writer for art

ART HISTORY

UNIT PURPOSE: To survey the field of art history as it relates to career education in the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Explore the different periods and cultures of art history.

II. Identify careers in art history.
I. The student will explore the different periods and cultures of art history.

A. Suggested Content

1. Ancient art
2. Medieval art
3. Renaissance art
4. Baroque art
5. Modern art
6. Contemporary art
7. Art of the Near East
8. Art of the Far East
9. Art of Africa
10. Art of South America
11. Art of the American Indian 12. Eskimo art
13. Art of northern countries
14. Aesthetics and art criticism

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. List the above and all other possible areas of art history on the board and have the student select an area of special interest to him. Have him do a research paper on the area, or a creative piece of art work which reflects the art style of a given period or time while using a contemporary theme.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the students work in terms of the thoroughness of his research paper or the quality of his artwork.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books

   a. Art through the Ages
2. Films
   a. "Art of the Sixties"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Museum workers
   b. Art critic
   c. Art teacher
   d. Art historian
   e. Gallery director
   f. Art appraiser
II. The student will identify careers in art history.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers requiring knowledge of art history:

   High school art or humanities teacher Junior college, college, or university art history teacher Museum curator of paintings, prints, sculptures, drawings, oriental art, etc.
   Museum teacher Writer of art history materials Insurance company examinant for art works Gallery director (public, university or private) Art appraiser Art expert on archeologist team Art critic Educational television teacher Public speaker on art Technical expert for motion picture industry

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

Other Suggested Teaching–Learning Activities

1. Visit a museum and have the student interview the people who work there.

2. Have the student write or visit a professional art gallery to accumulate information on careers in art history.

3. Have a professor of art history or museum curator visit the class and explain his field.

4. Have the student develop a file on art works from different periods and cultures.

5. Have the student develop an exhibit of reproductions of art from different periods or cultures.

6. Demonstrate to the student how to make slides of art work reproduced in art history books.
UNIT ELEVEN

COMMERCIAL ART

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the field of commercial art as it relates to career education in the Fine Arts and Humanities Cluster

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Explore the different types of commercial art in terms of skill requirements; he will then execute a piece of commercial art.

II. Identify careers in commercial art.

NOTE: This unit could be expanded to cover an extensive period of time if local resources are adequate.
I. The student will explore the different types of commercial art in terms of skill requirements; he will then execute a piece of commercial art.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Industrial design
   2. Advertising art
   3. Book illustration
   4. Lettering
   5. Others

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. The exploration of commercial art should be preceded by a study of the careers found in commercial art since some of the art in this field requires a knowledge of three-dimensional design (as in automobile design) while others are limited to two-dimensional illustration (as medical illustration). After the student has explored careers and learned to letter, have him select one area of commercial art and design a piece of art work which might be used in that area.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of idea, design and neatness of presentation.

C. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Art Career Guide
      b. The Artists' Handbook
      c. The Commercial Artists Handbook
   2. Resource Persons
      a. Newspaper illustrator
      b. Sign painter
      c. Commercial photographer
      d. Department store display artist
      e. T.V. artist
II. The student will identify careers in commercial art.

A. Suggested Content

1. Careers which require knowledge in commercial art

Medical illustrator Advertising lay-out man T.V. artist Book illustrator Dress designer Architectural draftsman Set designer Cartoonist
Interior decorator
Sign painter
Industrial designer Photographer
Greeting card designer Fashion Illustrator

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student explore the training needed, working conditions and career potentials in the commercial art field.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student should be able to identify and describe at least ten careers in commercial art.

D. Suggested Resources

Other Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Take the student on a field trip to a commercial art studio.

2. Have commercial artists visit the class and tell about their work.

3. Have the student write to the art department of industries, businesses and advertising agencies for information on careers.

4. As a group project, have the students contract to do the advertising for a fund raising campaign for a local social service agency.

5. Take the student to a print shop to study the problems related to the reproduction of commercial art.

6. Have the student explore careers in blueprinting.
Structure of the Music Area

The area of the arts most concerned with the structure and organization of sound is the music area which is usually divided into vocal music and instrumental music. In both of these divisions we find a wide range of types of music from simple folk music, which grew out of man's need for expressing earthy emotions, to the more sophisticated sounds which emanate from the opera halls and concert stages. Music is a universal language. It is also a vast and complex field which many students feel is too complicated to tackle. Like all of the arts, the field of music has some basic structure which when mastered can lead the student into more complex structure. Unfortunately, too many of our elementary school music programs are developed around teaching children merely to sing, and consequently, the creative ability, which might develop in the student, never starts to unfold. To promote the greatest degree of creativity in music, one must help the student learn not only to sing and/or play an instrument, but to compose as well. Before a student can learn to write music, he must first learn to read music. This need not be a dull and boring task. Many books have been written on this subject. It is recommended that the teacher acquire some very basic books on the subject, start the student at the very beginning, and ask for help from the music teacher.

1 Heffernan, Charles W. Teaching Children to Read Music, Appleton-Century-Crofts, New York, 1968.
Obviously there will not be time in the regular school day for the classroom teacher to devote many hours to teaching music, even if the teacher were qualified, but some time can be devoted to letting the student explore music and find out about careers in the music field. For purposes of simplification in this guide, the structure of the music area is divided into vocal music, instrumental music, music education, and music history and literature.
UNIT TWELVE

VOCAL MUSIC

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of vocal music as it relates to career education

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Read a simple scale and sing a song while reading the music.

II. Define musical terms and apply this knowledge to his singing.

III. Compose a song.

IV. Identify careers in vocal music.
I. The student will learn to read a simple scale and sing a song while reading the music.

A. Suggested Content

1. The diatonic scale (key of C)
2. Rhythm, beat, tempo, meter (4/4 time)
3. Melody
4. Key (C)
5. Note value (whole, half, quarter, etc.)

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Show the films listed in the references for this unit. Read and develop charts or handouts from a simple book on music, such as Teaching Children to Read Music by Charles W. Hefferman. The charts or handouts should cover the components listed above under content. Discuss these with the student. Copy on the chalkboard the music from an uncomplicated song, such as "Do-Re-Mi" from "The Sound of Music." Have the student analyze the components, read the notes, sing the notes, then sing the lyrics while reading the music.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will have mastered the information taught if he can read and sing a similar but unfamiliar piece of music.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Teaching Children to Read Music
   b. Basic Music
   c. A Junior High School Music Handbook

2. Films
   a. "Discovering Music Series"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Interested parents
   b. Church organist or choir director
   c. Musician
   d. Music teacher
II. The student will be able to define some musical terms and apply this knowledge to his singing.

A. Suggested Content

1. Rhythm
2. Melody
3. Harmony
4. Pitch
5. Tone
6. Key

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using beginning music books, dictionaries and encyclopedias, have the student compile a notebook of musical terms related to vocal music. Using the same song used for Performance Objective I, have the student identify these components from a recording of the song and attempt to demonstrate his understanding of their meaning while singing the song as a solo or as part of a group.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of the accuracy of written definitions and his ability to apply the knowledge to his own singing.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Junior High School General Music
   b. Teaching Children to Read Music
   c. A Junior High School Music Handbook
   d. Basic Music

2. Films
   a. "Discovering Music Series"

3. Resource Persons
   a. Music teacher
b. Interested parents

c. Church choir director III. The student will compose a song.

A. Suggested Content

1. Lyric writing
2. Rhythm and melody
3. Recording
4. Publication and distribution

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student write an original poem. Let him read the poem out loud, over and over again, until he finds the rhythm of the words. Have him make a tape recording of the rhythm. Next, let him compose a melody that fits the words and mood of the poem. Record the melody. If the student is unable to write music horizontally (rhythm) or vertically (melody), ask a music teacher to help him learn to write music. Have the student explore careers in the publication, distribution and recording of music.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of poem content, writing mechanics, and the unity between the poem, the rhythm and the melody of the song.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Basic Music

2. Resource Persons
   a. Music teacher
   b. Musician
IV. The student will identify careers in vocal music.

A. Suggested Content

1. Classic vocal music
   - Minstrel singer (medieval)
   - Madrigal singer
   - Opera singer
   - Concert singer
   - Voice teacher
   - Choir director

2. Popular vocal music
   - Actor (musicals)
   - Night club singer
   - Recording artist
   - Music teacher
   - Radio or TV singer
   - Chorus girl
   - Blues, rock, etc. singer

3. Folk vocal music
   - Folk singer
   - Gospel singer
   - Recording artist
   - Country music singer
   - Western singer
   - Music teacher

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Through interviews, correspondence, field trips and/or research, the student will explore the training, working conditions and career potentials in the above listed careers.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will be able to identify and describe at least five careers in each of classic, popular or folk vocal music.

D. Suggested Resources

Other Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Analyze the job of the high school glee club director through observation and interviews.

2. Interview choir directors from local churches, and have students make recordings of the choir in his own church for classroom analysis.

3. Write well-known singers and ask them how they got started in their careers and ask for information on their working conditions.

4. Visit the nearest music store and interview the manager about the sales and profits of recorded vocal music.

5. Interview a disc jockey about his career and find out what makes some records more popular than others.

6. Take a field trip to a recording studio.

7. Interview a night club or supper club singer.

8. Listen to parts of an opera and identify singers' voices, as "tenor," "baritone," "bass," "contralto," "soprano," etc. Do this also with other types of vocal music.
UNIT THIRTEEN

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of instrumental music as it relates to career education

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Identify and play several string instruments.
II. Identify and play several wind instruments.
III. Identify and play several percussion instruments.
IV. Identify careers in instrumental music.
V. Identify careers supportive to instrumental music.
I. The student will identify and play several string instruments.

A. Suggested Content

- Violin
- Viola
- Cello
- String bass
- Harp
- Guitar
- Banjo
- Dulcimer
- Auto harp
- Zither

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Show the appropriate films from the "We Make Music" series. Let the student gather photographs of different string instruments from charts supplied by music companies for a bulletin board. Invite players of string instruments to class to discuss their instruments and career possibilities, and to give a demonstration of the different types of music they can play. Have the student select a simple piece of music, and using instruments from the high school music department or local music store, attempt to play one or more string instruments. Let him keep a written record of what he has learned.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of the content and accuracy of his written record.

5. Develop a unit centered around Indian, mountain, oriental or folk music and musical instruments.
Structure of the Dance Area

Almost everybody who is physically able dances at one time or another in his life, providing dancing is not frowned upon by his religious group. The dance is considered an art form because it expresses some of man's inner emotions through body movement. The quality of the emotion may differ considerably if we compare ballet to barn dancing; both are forms of expression, whether the dance itself is formal or informal. Structurally the dance area may be divided into classic dance, which requires many years of training and long house of constant practice, popular dance, which is primarily performed for recreation and personal enjoyment, and folk dance, which preserves some of the cultural heritage of ethnic groups. There are careers to be found as a dancer, but opportunities are somewhat limited, and at the present time the field is overcrowded. At the junior high school level, relatively few students will be interested in ballet, but should have the opportunity to be exposed to it. Many have had some experience with the popular dances prevalent among their peer group and may have had some experience with folk dance through the effort of the physical education people in the school system.

Professional dancers have some basic characteristics in common, such as relatively good looking bodies, good health and stamina, self confidence and perseverance, coordination, a sense of rhythm, and a strong desire to be successful. They must be willing and able to travel extensively and to tolerate less than ideal accommodations. They must also be willing to give up a great deal of their personal time to practicing their art and many evening hours to performing in public. They must be able to survive frequent periods of unemployment.

Dancers may be employed as performers on stage, screen, television, in night clubs and dinner theatres. A few are employed as dance therapists for hospitals, but a large number are dance teachers in private or public schools, colleges and universities.

The purpose of this unit is not to turn the junior high student into a great dancer overnight, but to expose him to the area, giving him an opportunity to see how well he likes this area and to explore the career potentials for dancers and people who work with dancers.
UNIT SIXTEEN

CLASSIC, POPULAR AND FOLK DANCE

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of the dancing field and careers found therein

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Compare and contrast dance forms from different cultures.

II. Perform a dance.

III. Compose a dance (choreography).

IV. Identify careers in dancing.

V. Identify careers related to dancing that do not require dancing skills.
I. The student will compare and contrast dance forms from different cultures.

A. Suggested Content

1. Form
2. Movement
   - Classic
   - Popular
3. Rhythm
   - Folk
4. Style

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student write to foreign embassies in Washington, D.C. for films and information on dance forms in other cultures. Have him gather additional information through the references used at the end of this unit and other resources he may find on his own. Let him write a paper or put on a performance comparing and contrasting dance forms of different cultures and "cultural levels." He may wish to compare dances within our own "melting pot" culture such as American-Indian dances, Cajun dances, barn dances, Mexican-American dances, etc.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of accuracy and thoroughness of his written report or presentation.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Contemporary Square Dancing
   b. Jazz Dance
   c. Folk Dancing
   d. Ballroom Dancebook for Teachers

2. Resource Persons
   a. Librarian
   b. Embassies personnel II. The student will perform a dance.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Rhythm
   2. Movement
   3. Form
   4. Style
   5. Expression

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Discuss, or show films on dance movements, form, and style. With the aid of an outside resource person, the physical education teacher, or an older student or parent, the student will learn a new dance, (new for him) and perform the dance in class, either as an individual or as part of a group of dancers. (The teacher may wish to divide the class into interest groups—tap, acrobatic, modern, popular, or folk, depending on the student interest.)

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of accuracy or expressiveness of movement and rhythm.

      b. Records belonging to the students III. The student will compose a dance.

A. Suggested Content

1. Correlation of music and movement
2. Choreography
3. Rhythm analysis

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. After there has been discussion and analysis of different types of dances, let the student select a record with instrumental music only, then analyze the music for rhythm and mood. Using a section of the record (or the whole record) have the student create a dance which goes with the mood of the music. (This can be ballet, folk, or rock.)

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of how well the music and dance correlate in mood, and on his performance, particularly with regard to transition.

D. Suggested Resources

Structure of the Drama Area

Drama is the art of communicating a story by movement and speech. Creative dramatics provides an avenue of expression for active imaginations and an outlet for a wide range of emotions and talents as well.

The rudiments of acting appear early in childhood. The child's first words are imitations of the words of others, and as the child grows his desire to "act" grows with him and finds expression in the form of play—"Let's play doctor," "Let's play cowboy and Indians," etc. In these early role-playing games are found the two major basic components of acting—speech and movement as related to thought and emotion. The child's interest in dramatics continues for as long as self-consciousness remains positive. Most adults will "act the fool" among friends who appreciate their antics, but few would have the "nerve" to get up on a public stage and do the same thing. The large majority become the audience instead, and continue to role play, but by this time it has become a vicarious experience.

Drama is an expression of life in its many varied forms and consequently we find a wide range of "form" in the field from lofty Shakespearean tragedy to slap-stick comedy. Different types of drama require different types of acting. Some actors and actresses can shift types readily and others can not, so they specialize in horror shows, musical comedy, westerns, pantomimes, puppetry, etc.

All actors and actresses have some qualities in common. They must be able to concentrate, to memorize lines, to effectively use facial expressions, to create feelings of emotion with body movements, to speak clearly and distinctly, and to co-operate with others as part of a team.

As in the other arts, few actors and actresses rise to the apex of the profession—most of them settle for minor roles in little theatres, motion pictures, radio or television work. In 1968 there were roughly 14,000 actors and actresses working on the stage, in motion pictures, on radio or television. In recent years there has been a growth in outdoor theatres, summer stock, and dinner theatres.

Some skills besides acting, such as dancing, singing, playing an instrument, etc., help increase the chances of getting started in an acting career. Drama pulls together many of the arts—writing, dancing, sculpture, music, painting and designing all fit in. Because it is such a varied field, related and supportive careers are also covered in this guide.

Structure of the Literature Area

The literature area is a large and varied one, but since the concern here is with literature in relationship to career education, the term will be used to include any form of writing, literary or commercial, which a student might do to earn a living.

A writer of any type must have, or be willing to develop, a sense of order to compose written words in a logical coherent manner. He must know the basic structure of the language which, simplified, breaks down into the following components.

1. Grammar - which includes case, subject-verb agreement, pronoun-antecedent agreement, mood, tense, principal parts, adjectives-adverbs, pronouns, conjunctions, etc.

2. Punctuation and mechanics - which includes the use of the comma, semicolon, colon, dash, the hyphen syllabication, apostrophe, possessives, italics and various miscellaneous marks.

3. Words - which includes their connotations, spelling, knowing which ones are colloquialisms, provincialisms, vulgarisms, slang and jargon, as well as knowing how to use a dictionary.

4. Sentences - which includes sentence unity, parallelism, split construction, clauses, word order, dangling modifiers, transitions, etc.

5. Paragraphs - which includes an understanding of the function of opening and closing sentences, transitions, length, proportion, unity and paragraph mechanics.

6. The entire theme - which includes an analysis of the topic, title, outline, structural form, transitional paragraphs, bibliography, etc.
The art of writing, like all the other arts, requires both a knowledge of the basic structure of the area and practice, if the writer is to be successful in his endeavors. In this area we will concern ourselves with the practice the student gets in writing fiction and nonfiction, as well as some experience and exploration into the supporting fields.

In this guide the literature area has been subdivided in the following way:

1. Unit twenty-two - Writing Fiction
2. Unit twenty-three - Writing Nonfiction
3. Unit twenty-four - Supportive Careers Related to Literature UNIT TWENTY-TWO

WRITING FICTION

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of fiction writing and some of the careers found therein.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Write a short story.

II. Write poetry or prose.

III. Write a one-act mystery play for stage, television or radio.

IV. Identify careers which require an ability to write fiction.
I. The student will be able to write a fictional short story.

A. Suggested Content

1. Topic selection
2. Plot development
3. Outlining
4. Punctuation, grammar, spelling
5. Sentence and paragraph structure
6. Transition, climax and closing sentence

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Develop in advance a list of short story topics or titles and a list of some suggested situations and plots. Ask the students to select topics and/or situations from these lists, or make up ones of their own. Most textbooks in the Language Arts offer suggestions for stimulation techniques to be used for creative writing. Select those best suited for the particular class. Have the student select a topic and situation, develop a plot and characters and write a short story. Let disadvantaged students work in small groups.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of structure, writing mechanics, plot interest, buildup, climax and closing sentences.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Choices: Situations to Stimulate Thought and Expression
   b. Short Fiction: A Critical Collection
   c. A Student-Centered Language Arts Curriculum Grades K-13, A Handbook for Teachers

2. Films
   a. Coronet Films series on writing II. The student will write poetry or prose.

A. Suggested Content

1. Analysis of form
2. Construction of new form

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Have the student analyze and compare the structure of traditional and contemporary poetry and prose. Then have him select and develop a topic which lends itself to creative structure.

A TREE

MAS TREE IT CAN-

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of the appropriateness of the structure to the content.

D. Suggested Resources

1. Books
   a. Forms of Poetry
   b. A Student-Centered Language Arts Curriculum Grades K-13, A Handbook for Teachers
III. The student will write a one-act mystery play for stage, television or radio.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Structure
   2. Character building
   3. Stage directions
   4. Scenery directions
   5. Timing

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Have the student review and analyze several short one-act plays, followed by a class discussion about what makes a good mystery, what devices help build suspense, and how to determine timing in a scene. Let the student write a one-act play which could be used on a stage, on television, and/or radio.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of originality, interest suspense, and accuracy of timing.

D. Suggested Resources
   1. Books
      a. Choices: Situations to Stimulate Thought and Expression
      b. Modern English Handbook
      c. A Student-Centered Language Arts Curriculum Grades K-13, A Handbook for Teachers
IV. The student will be able to identify careers which require an ability to write fiction.

A. Suggested Content

1. Short story writer
2. Novelist
3. Poet
4. Playwright
5. T.V. serial writer
6. Collaborator
7. Ghost writer
8. Humorist
9. Political speech writer
10. Writer of children's books
11. Mystery writer

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Using field trips, interviews and research, have the student explore the training and working conditions of people in the above careers. Have them ascertain the career potentials in these fields.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. The student will list and describe at least seven careers which require skill in writing fiction.

UNIT TWENTY-THREE WRITING NON-FICTION

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of writing non-fiction and some of the careers found therein

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to

I. Write an autobiography or a short biographical sketch of an interesting local character or friend.

II. Write a news item, sports story or editorial which could be used in a school paper.

III. Write a technical paper or a critical review.

IV. Identify careers which require an ability to write non-fiction.
I. The student will write an autobiographical sketch or a short biographical sketch of an interesting local character or friend.

A. Suggested Content

1. Interviews
2. Information and data
3. Biographical components
4. Accuracy
5. Style

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

1. Discuss with the student the purpose of a biographical sketch and the styles in which they can be written. Give him the option of writing about himself, a colorful local person or a friend. Discuss the personal characteristics and events which might make an individual's life story interesting to read. Have him interview the person and write a biographical sketch of his or her life if the student does not elect to write about himself.

C. Suggested Evaluation

1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of interest, style, accuracy of writing mechanics and information.

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities

   1. Have the student collect and analyze news items, sports stories, and editorials from the newspaper. Let him write a story or editorial growing directly out of his own experiences in the school setting, suitable for use in a school paper.

C. Suggested Evaluation

   1. Evaluate the student's work in terms of style, accuracy and completeness of information, and suitability of the story or editorial to the purpose for which it was written.

D. Suggested Resources

   1. Resource Persons

      a. Newspaper writers

      b. Newspaper reporters and editors
III. The student will write a technical paper or critical review.

A. Suggested Content
   1. Research techniques or analysis of criticism
   2. Precision writing
   3. Vocabulary building

B. Suggested Teaching-Learning Activities
   1. Review with the student some technical papers from any field within his range of understanding, or a critical review of a book, play, movie, television performance, or art exhibit. He should study the style of writing in both the technical paper and the critical review. Let him elect to write a technical paper or critical review of his own on a subject of his interest.

C. Suggested Evaluation
   1. Evaluate the student's work on the basis of style, accuracy of information, precision, and suitability of vocabulary to the subject chosen.

D. Suggested Resources

3. Visit the studio of a commercial artist and discuss the training, working conditions, and career potentials of an illustrator.

4. Have the student illustrate some of his own writing.

5. Interview a local book salesman, book store owner, or textbook representative.

6. Interview a librarian about careers around a library.
Structure of the Humanities

A study of the humanities is a study of the development of the human race within particular cultures and time periods. More specifically, it is a study of the aesthetic and intellectual growth and change within cultural groups. The scope of the humanities is subject to debate, but art, music, literature and philosophy are generally accepted as the basic core of study within the field. Some humanities studies also include law, religion and languages.

The humanities are not generally taught in the junior high school as such, but are usually brought into other courses in the form of "appreciation" or "history." Philosophy, law, foreign languages and comparative religion are usually ignored, while the history and/or appreciation of art, music and literature are taught by specialists in the field and perhaps included in social studies programs.

There is only one career open to a person who wishes to specialize in the humanities and that is teaching—usually at the college level where a Ph.D. degree may be required. If the student is to have a realistic hands-on experience in the humanities it necessitates researching the art, music, literature and/or philosophy of a specific culture during a specific time period (or on a time continuum from ancient to modern, for example), and then teaching his findings to the rest of the class.
UNIT TWENTY-FIVE HUMANITIES

UNIT PURPOSE: To explore the scope of the humanities.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVE: The student will select and research the art, music, literature and/or philosophy of a specific culture at a specific time period, and then teach a humanities lesson to the class. (Note: This is not for all students.)
