This catalog contains brief descriptions of the PLATO lessons that are available under the coordination of the Community College English Project. It is designed to serve instructors as a guide for incorporating PLATO courseware into their teaching activities. Each course entry includes a file name (for on-line access), descriptive title, author's name, objective, description, student time, grade level, and subject area, and many include special notes. Courses deal with capitalization, composition, editing, grammar, poetry, punctuation, research, spelling, usage, vocabulary, and miscellaneous. (LL)

INTRODUCTION

This catalog contains brief descriptions of the PLATO lessons that are available under the coordination of the Community College English Project. It should serve instructors as a guide for incorporating PLATO courseware into their teaching activities. On-line access to these lessons is available through the individual file names provided. It is strongly urged that instructors preview the lesson material before student usage.

For all lesson descriptions it should be noted that 1) ecs amounts will fluctuate, 2) student time are estimates, and 3) grade levels represent a target population.

This is part of the Community College Project directed by Daniel Alpert and coordinated by Pauline Jordan.

An additional manual currently available provides a description of the Community College English Project's Language Arts Routing System, LARS. This booklet is directed to all instructors interested in using LARS. Specific instructor control options are outlined and described; the complete LARS catalog, along with lesson descriptions, is also included.

To request a copy of the LARS Instructor's Manual, please contact Mary Sliger, Community College English Coordinator, 252 ERL, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois 61801, (217) 333-4405.

1. File name: nouns
   ecs: 4288
   Descriptive title: Common and Proper Nouns

2. Author: Doris Barr

3. Objective: To give student practice in recognizing common and proper nouns

4. Description: Student identifies nouns in sentences as either common or proper.

5. Student time: 25 - 30 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic English students

7. Special notes:
1. File name: edit
   Descriptive Title: Capitalization Diagnostic Test

2. Author: Errol Magidson and Jim Kraatz

3. Objective: To provide a diagnostic test in basic capitalization

4. Description: Nineteen categories are covered in 39 total items. This figure is adjustable and may be varied to suit instructional need. Student receives diagnosis of those forms he made mistakes in, e.g. religious capitals, proper names, etc.

5. Student time: 30 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic, especially GED students

7. Special notes: Student uses arrow key to move to word whose first letter needs capitalization. Student then types in capitalization which appears in proper place. Warning: student is told to use black arrow key only. It faces left although student invariably will be moving it in an opposite direction.
1. File name: caps
   Descriptive title: Capitalization of Names and Titles

2. Author: Elise Gorun

3. Objective: To teach the student the basic rules of capitalization as applied to names and titles.

4. Description: Capitalization rules on names and titles are presented. Six practice sentences are provided followed by a ten sentence quiz. Student must type in corrections needed.

5. Student Time: 15 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic or remedial English students

7. Special notes:
1. File name: caps2
   Descriptive title: Capitalization II
2. Author: Elise Gorun
3. Objective: To introduce the student to rules of capitalizing geographic sections, directions, and addresses
4. Description: The exercises given after the instruction allow the student to practice his knowledge of the rules. There is a ten question test at the end of the lesson.
5. Student time: 20 minutes
6. Grade level and subject area: Basic English students
7. Special notes:
1. File name:  caps3
   Descriptive title:  Capitalization III

2. Author:  Elise Gorun

3. Objective:  To familiarize the student with the capitalization rules for time, events, organizations, and subjects.

4. Description:  The lesson includes explanation, practice exercises, a final review, and a 14 sentence test to cover the above-stated topics.

5. Student time:  20 minutes

6. Grade level:  Basic English students

7. Special notes:
1. File name: rhetoric
   ecs: 2969
   Descriptive title: Assembling Sentences and Paragraphs

2. Author: Joe Vojacek and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To give the student practice in assembling words into sentences and sentences into a paragraph

4. Description: Two major sections are included. The first is scrambled words which allows the student to rearrange words to form acceptable sentences; the second is scrambled sentences which the student must organize to form paragraphs.

5. Student time: 45 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition or reading students

7. Special notes: Student has to reset (using LAB key) a paragraph if he gets one sentence in wrong place. Using the letter and number keys takes a little trial and error practice, but they are quite efficient once the student masters them.
1. File name: poem
Descriptive title: Verb Quiz and Theme Revision Symbols

2. Author: Joe Vojacek

3. Objective: To quiz the student on past tense and present participle; to familiarize the student with the marks and symbols he will encounter in themes graded by the instructor.

4. Description: Two distinct sections include one on verbs (past tense and present participle) and the second on alphabetical abbreviations and editing symbols.

5. Student time: 40 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students at any college level

7. Special notes: If PLATO gives HELP, student must re-do the exercises. When the section on verbs is finished, no instruction is given to the student on how to get to the second part of the lesson. The student is given theme abbreviation symbols, some of which are hard to read, and must type in their full meaning. PLATO gives answer after second incorrect response.
1. File name: lipscomb2
Descriptive title: Topic Sentences

2. Author: Delores Lipscomb

3. Objective: To aid the student in focusing his thoughts while writing and to instruct in the writing of topic sentences.

4. Description: Discusses the process for selecting and limiting a topic to write on and includes exercises which have the student actually write topic sentences.

5. Student time: 15 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes:
1. File name: lipscomb1     ecs: 2320
   Descriptive title: Irrelevant Details in Paragraphs

2. Author: Delores Lipscomb

3. Objective: To provide a guideline for the student to follow in order to write paragraphs which are free of irrelevant details.

4. Description: The lesson presents sample paragraphs and exercises. The student is asked to recognize only those sentences which are relevant.

5. Student time: 10 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes:
1. File name:  pgraphpl
   ecs: 3081
   Descriptive title: Editing a Paragraph I

2. Author: Robert Bator and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To improve editing skills of a student in recognizing wordiness, spelling and capitalization errors

4. Description: The student is presented with a choice of four paragraphs and is instructed to edit where necessary. Each paragraph emphasizes a different area.

5. Student time: 60 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes: Student locates error by moving arrow key. If he successfully classifies and corrects the error, the correction appears in the text and the misused word or punctuation is x'd out. A changing counter tells how many errors remain. HELP is available to locate position of errors. The fourth paragraph was written by a student. The author says to concentrate on agreement, mistakes and not to worry about the style. Authors may view completely edited paragraph by typing term "test."

Descriptive title: Editing a Paragraph IV

2. Author: Robert Bator and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To improve student recognition and correction of basic errors in diction and punctuation. Several paragraphs are provided to give practice in correction in context.

4. Description: The student is presented with a choice of four paragraphs and is instructed to edit where necessary.

5. Student time: 80 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes: Warning: Some of the examples include student writing. Do not expect great writing from great masters. Many kinds of punctuation problems are covered including quotation marks and underlining. Student locates errors by moving arrow key. If she or he successfully classifies and corrects the error, the correction appears in the text and the misused word is x'd out. A changing counter tells the student how many errors remain. HELP is available at all times. Term "tester" is available to authors enabling them to see entire paragraph corrected. The fifth section provides data on the lesson (number of people who have used the lesson, average scores per lesson).
1. File name: pgraph5
Description: Editing a Paragraph V

2. Author: Robert Bator and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To improve student recognition and correction of basic errors in punctuation and in word usage. Several paragraphs provide practice and context in these areas.

4. Description: The student is presented with a choice of four paragraphs and is instructed to edit where necessary.

5. Student time: 60 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes: Each paragraph has a different stress: underlining, capitalization, diction, etc. Student works on paragraphs until he finds and corrects all the errors listed. If he gets available help through the HELP key, he is redrilled on those items only. The fifth section provides data on the lesson. Authors are given special options, such as viewing the edited versions of the paragraphs.
1. File name: pgraph6
   Description: Editing a Paragraph VI

2. Author: Joan Sweany and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To provide student with experience in recognition and correction in editing sentences within a paragraph

4. Description: Three paragraphs, each containing 20 errors (in punctuation and individual words) which student must identify and correct.

5. Student time: 45 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes: DATA provides supplemental information. HELP is available to provide specific location of errors. A student must move arrow to line containing error. After three consecutive incorrect responses, PLATO supplies correct answer. Authors are given special options, such as viewing the edited versions of the paragraphs.
1. File name: ged1
   Descriptive title: Editing a Paragraph VII

2. Author: Errol Magidson and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To improve student editing skills; to get the student to recognize and correct commonly misused words

4. Description: Student may select from four paragraphs of different subjects.

5. Student time: 90 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students, especially basic, remedial, and GED students

7. Special notes: HELP gives the student a directional arrow which points out the misused word. Student uses arrow keys to identify line in paragraph containing error. After classifying the kind of error, he types in a correction which appears in the text with the misused word x'd out. If student makes three mistakes in one line, PLATO gives the answer and the student must re-do the exercises.

2. Author: Delores Lipscomb

3. Objective: To introduce the student to the agreement between pronouns and their antecedents

4. Description: A review of the pronoun is followed by an explanation on pronoun agreement. Exercises, including indefinite pronouns, give the student practice in identifying singular and plural pronouns.

5. Student time: 15 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition students

7. Special notes:
1. File name: eng92d, ecs: 3637
   Descriptive title: Pronouns

2. Author: Sally Wallace

3. Objective: To provide explanations and drills to familiarize the student with pronouns

4. Description: Includes a 16 part index. One quiz requires the student to identify pronouns within sentences as either subjects or objects. If one is missed, the student is sent automatically to review page. Another quiz presents a single word and asks the student to identify it as either a possessive or a contraction.

5. Student time: 30 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic English students

7. Special notes:
1. File name: pronouns

   Descriptive title: Copulative Verbs

2. Author: Sally Wallace

3. Objective: To give the student an introduction to copulative verbs

4. Description: Examples of copulative verbs serving as a bridge between subjects and information about the subject. Seven practice sentences in which student must correctly identify the verb as copulative or active.

5. Student time: 10 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic English students

7. Special notes: Four final sentences provide student with review of the rule that copulative verbs are not modified by anything. The student must type in correct form of adverb.
1. File name: wordstor2
ecs: 4940
Descriptive title: Verbs and Verb Phrases

2. Author: Joan Sweany and Mitsuru Yamada

3. Objective: To have the student recognize verbs and verb phrases within a sentence.

4. Description: Seven activities each contain fifteen sentences. The student must identify and type the main verb (or verb phrase), move the arrow to locate the synonymous verb from list of ten, and type the correct form of this synonymous verb (allowing it to fit in the sentence). The revised sentence then appears.

5. Student time: 60 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic and regular English students

7. Special notes: HELP is available to supply answers. BACK shows list of completed sentences. Pressing NEXT from list of completed work returns the student to former position; pressing BACK returns the student to index page. At the end of the entire activity, NEXT gives a list of all completed sentences. The last activity uses translations of haiku poems written by Saōtōka Takeda. A percentage score is given after each activity. Final section provides data on the lesson.

Descriptive title: Dangling Participles and Misplaced Modifiers

Author: Sally Wallace

Objective: To give the student experience in recognition and correction of dangling participles and some misplaced modifiers.

Description: Ten parts include introduction to participles, exercises on dangling participles, the punctuation of introductory participial phrases, plus a final test.

Student time: 60 minutes

Grade level and subject area: Composition students.

Special notes: Examples are corrected automatically if student is able to spot the kind of error committed in a sentence. Sentences are randomly generated. The student might get the same sentence twice. Incorrect answer on test questions automatically sends student to HELP page.
1. File name: infit
edescriptive title: infinitives

2. Author: Doris Barr

3. Objective: To introduce student to the infinitive and its uses

4. Description: Four parts include the infinitive as: a form of the verb; a subject; an object; a run-on (showing repair). Exercises and quizzes included.

5. Student time: 35 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Regular composition students

7. Special notes: Student interaction varied.
1. File name: ger
descriptive title: Gerunds

Descriptive title: Double Negatives

2. Author: Sally Wallace and James Kraatz

3. Objective: To give the student an introduction to double negatives

4. Description: Thirteen sections, one of which is a refresher page on clauses. Examples of sentences containing negative subjects, verbs, objects and adverbs. Explanation of negative properties in the words "hardly," "scarceley," "barely," and "help but."

5. Student time: 15 minutes.

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic English students

7. Special notes: A final 16 question quiz covers the rule of having only the major component of a clause negative. Six practice sentences are presented before the quiz.
Descriptive title: Direct and Indirect Objects

Author: Doris Barr

Objective: To provide the student with an explanation of direct and indirect objects

Description: The lesson includes 13 sections, some dealing with the various uses of direct and indirect objects and some quizzing the student on application of these uses.

Student time: 60 minutes

Grade level and subject area: Regular composition students

Special notes: Excellent graphics enable student to literally shoot an arrow into the direct object. Warning: a great deal of typing is expected of student in sections where entire noun clauses must be copied by the student without the aid of the copy key.
1. File name: whom whom
   Descriptive title: Who and Whom

2. Author: Pierre Long

3. Objective: To give the student heightened awareness of who/whom distinction

4. Description: Explanation and quiz are provided. Twenty-six (two parts each) items are provided in the quiz.

5. Student time: 60 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Composition

7. Special notes: A very formal approach. No student response needed except for NEXT in explanatory part of lesson. Includes defense of proper, formal English. Much terminology undefined, e.g., predicate nominative. A chart at the end gives accrued scores and percentages.
1. File name: ncl

3. Objective: To introduce students to adjective clauses
4. Description: Four parts include: recognition of adjective clauses; when to use who/whom/which/that; how to punctuate an adjective clause; placement of adjective clause within a sentence. Examples and quizzes are given.
5. Student time: 50 minutes
6. Grade level and subject area: Regular composition students
7. Special notes: H E D P sends student to a review of who/whom.
1. File name: adv-cl - ecs: 6476
   Descriptive title: Adverbial Clauses

2. Author: Doris Barr

3. Objective: To have student recognize adverbial clauses in complex sentences

4. Description: Three parts include: recognition, correction, and punctuation of adverbial clause fragments. Exercises and quizzes included.

5. Student time: 25 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Regular composition students

7. Special notes: The lesson begins with a review of the definition of an adverb.
1. File Name: blackbox ecs: 2089
   Descriptive title: Poetry Analysis

2. Author: Pauline Jordan

3. Objective: To present the student with an analysis of e. e. cummings' "portrait"

4. Description: Poetry lesson plus an optional second part: TUTOR judging commands. The latter is for teachers interested in the programming aspects of the lesson.

5. Student Time: 45 minutes.

6. Grade level and subject area: Literature students, especially poetry.

7. Special Notes: Students are asked interpretation-type questions about the poem. Alternate answers are accepted. Students often asked for his or her interpretation of a given phrase or line. Part II for teachers shows how variable answers are checked.
1. File Name: poetry
   Descriptive title: Poetry Composition

2. Author: Joe Vojacek

3. Objective: To allow the student to form his own collective concept of the poetic. To permit the student to define poetry composed of words randomly selected

4. Description: Two sections: kinetic and concrete.

5. Student Time: 15-20 minutes.

6. Grade level and subject area: Literature courses, especially poetry.

7. Special notes: A very inductive approach is used. A special feature is that the student is able to store any poem he generates. Student must use arrow keys. A limited vocabulary is stored for the generation of the poems.
1. File name: rhyme
   Descriptive title: Rhyme

2. Author: Joe Vojacek

3. Objective: To give the student practice in recognizing and understanding what makes full, part, and symbolic rhyme

4. Description: In full and part rhyme, the student learns by creating rhyme himself; in symbolic rhyme, he learns through abstract analysis.

5. Student time: 60 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Any course in which the recognition of rhyme would be important, e.g., most literature courses, especially poetry

7. Special notes: Special instructions allow the teacher to adjust the quiz sections for the number correct a student must get in each section. Otherwise, it is automatically set so that a student must get two full rhyme and three part rhyme answers correct plus four problems in symbolic rhyme. Caution: the vocabulary is restricted so that a student has to use a three-letter word rhyme. Real words are usually expected as opposed to nonsense words. The symbolic rhyme section is very inductive. A teacher may have to explain what is happening for those students who do not catch on to what they are doing in this very graphic section.

   Descriptive title: Consonant Symbols

2. Author: Joan Sweany

3. Objective: To acquaint the student with the consonant symbols used in the dictionary pronunciation guide

4. Description: The lesson provides explanation and drill in recognizing the sound/symbol relationships of consonants. The student is given the dictionary phonetic representation of words and must type the correct spelling of each; pronunciations are given and the student must match each with the correctly spelled word.

5. Student time: 30 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: First year college English students

7. Special notes: Variant pronunciations of alphabet letter "g" and variant spellings of the "f" sound are used to introduce contrasting idea of truly phonetic representation as used in the pronunciation guide.
Descriptive title: Syllabication and Accenting

Author: Joan Sweeny

Objective: To acquaint the student with syllable division, accentuation, and vowel symbols used in the dictionary pronunciation guide.

Description: The lesson first defines syllables and explains accents. Then it introduces the symbols for twenty vowel and diphthong sounds and gives exercises to familiarize students with them.

Student time: 35 minutes

Grade level and subject area: First year college English students

Special notes: The vowel symbols presented are taken from The American Heritage Dictionary. HELP in the quiz at the end of the lesson provides a review list of the twenty phonetic symbols.
1. File name: engl
   Descriptive name: Plural Nouns

2. Author: Barbara Geither

3. Objective: To improve student's spelling through presentation of rules and exercises

4. Description: Explanation, examples, and exercises on spelling rules covering "s," "es," "vowel-y," "consonant-y," "en" or vowel changing plurals, "ves," "fs," "os," "oes," hyphenated words. There are two review exercises. In the first exercise, the student is given the singular form of the noun and must type its plural (fifty words). In the second exercise, the words are used in context and the student must get twenty plural formations correct.

4. Description: Sixty-eight items cover 56 categories.

5. Student time: 45 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Basic, especially GED students

7. Special notes: Warning: student asked to indicate if sentence is "all right" without definition of that phrase. Students should know that the test seeks whether he can recognize a complete sentence.
1. File name: usage
   Descriptive title: Correct Usage

2. Author: Joe Vojacek

3. Objective: To have the student recognize and correct misused words of the type found in usage or diction sections of handbooks

4. Description: Six sets of exercises are provided. Student spots the word misused in a sentence and types in the correction, e.g., he types "an" before "hour" to replace the word "a."

5. Student time: 60 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: GED, basic, remedial, standard composition

7. Special notes: The author recommends that a student use a dictionary to aid him in doing this lesson. HELP sequences give a student a clue as to which word in a sentence needs correction. The second mistake a student makes on an individual word provides him with the answer.
1. File name: eng92i

    voc14 (English words based on Greek roots)

Descriptive titles: Vocabulary 1 - 14

2. Author: Richard Scanlan

3. Objective: To familiarize student with Latin and Greek roots to aid in vocabulary building

4. Description: Each lesson contains sections "a - f." Sections "a - d" have two sets of 12-item exercises, each set preceded by a list of 12 Latin (or Greek) roots, the meaning of each root, and a derivative of each root. After the student carefully studies the list, he begins the first series of 12-item exercises. (Each series involves a single format.) Once he accurately completes all 12 items, he is presented with the second list of roots/meanings/derivatives. He then proceeds to their set of 12-item exercises.

The format of questioning involves the following:
1. given 12 sentences with a derivative used in context—student selects the correct definition from four multiple choices.
2. given 12 sentences with a derivative used in context—from four given choices student selects the word with the opposite definition.
3. given 12 roots—student types either a noun, a verb, or an adjective derivative (specified in each set of exercises).
4. given 12 derivatives—student must type the appropriate root that forms the base of the word.
5. given 12 roots—student selects one derivative out of four multiple choices which is not a true derivative.
6. student matches 12 derivatives with 12 synonyms from a list provided.
7. student matches 12 derivatives with 12 antonyms from a list provided.
Section "e" is a "self-test" consisting of either 40 or 45 questions (using the same format used in the exercises). Section "f" allows the student to re-enter the current lesson or to progress to the succeeding lesson in the voc series.

5. Student time: Each lesson takes approximately 40 minutes.

6. Grade level and subject area: Average or above average (English) students; may be used by anyone interested in improving or enriching his vocabulary.

7. Special notes: In the exercises, HELP returns the student to the list of 12 roots/meanings/derivatives for a review. Student must answer all 12 items in each set successfully. A counter on the bottom of the page records the number of remaining exercises within a set. All questions answered incorrectly are repeated. Student may have to repeat an entire set of exercises. DATA supplies answer. Student may return to the index page. At the end of each "self-test" the student's score appears.

Descriptive titles: Vocabulary 15 - 23

2. Author: Richard Scanlan

3. Objective: To familiarize the student with key Latin roots to aid in vocabulary building

4. Description: Contains sections "a - h." (See description for voc series.) Sections "a - g" introduce the student to separate lists of Latin roots, general definitions of these roots, and common derivatives. Each section then has one set of 12-item exercises in which the student must supply information based on the introductory "root list" of that section. Section "h" allows the student to re-enter the current lesson or to progress to the succeeding lesson in the voc series.

5. Student time: 30 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Average or above average (English) students; may be used by anyone interested in improving or enriching his vocabulary

7. Special notes: While in the exercises, HELP returns the student to the list of 12 roots/meanings/derivatives for a review. The student must answer all 12 items in each set successfully. A counter on the bottom of the page records the number of remaining exercises within a set. All questions answered incorrectly are repeated. The student may have to repeat an entire set of exercises if he misses too many. DATA supplies the answer. The student may shift term INDEX any time to return to the index page. Total number of errors in entire lesson is given.
1. File name: analogy
Descriptive title: Analogies

2. Author: Joe Vojacek

3. Objective: To give the student practice in completing analogies and in recognizing logical relationships.

4. Description: A whole range of analogies is provided in an index. These include grammatical, synonymous and antonymous analogies.

5. Student time: 90 minutes

6. Grade level and subject area: Any student who needs to understand analogies better

7. Special notes: Analogies are often presented in job qualifying tests. Student reviews, in linear form, the questions he was asked originally in scientific or mathematical form. Some terms are slang a student would have to know, e.g., heroin : horse as ______ is to pot. For additional practice, student is directed to: David R. Turner, 1400 Analogy Questions (New York: Arco Publishing Company, 1973).
1. File name: wordwar
Descriptive title: Spelling Game

2. Author: Gary Michael

3. Objective: To involve the student in a challenging, stimulating and fun spelling word game

4. Description: Between three and eleven words, either correctly or incorrectly spelled, are presented to the student at one time. The object is to correct more words than your opponent. If the student types the word correctly before his opponent does, the student is credited with the win (involves skill, speed, and some luck).

5. Student time: Variable

6. Grade level and subject area: Any and all students, especially those with a competitive nature

7. Special note: Wordwar is available in three languages: English, Finnish, and Spanish. HELP gives the rules of the game. LAB presents the "all-time" records of the game. It is possible to play solo.
1. File name: hangman
   Descriptive title: Hangman Game
   ecs: 2586

2. Author: Gary Michael, Michael Berger, David Dennis, and Douglas Jones

3. Objective: To promote the understanding of word structure through a challenging game

4. Description: A fascinating prologue gives the fictitious origin of this game of hangman. The student is obliged to use his knowledge of such things as diphthongs and consonant blends (or, in some cases, a touch of luck) in order to correctly spell six words—without being told what these words are through the aid of any contextual clues.

5. Student time: variable

6. Grade level and subject area: Any and all students, especially those with a "game-curious" nature

7. Special notes: Two methods of playing:
   1. The easier allows the student to guess the letters in a word, subtracting one from the allowed number of guesses for each incorrect response. If the same letter occurs twice in a word, and the student guesses it once, he gets credit for both.
   2. In the harder ordeal, the student must guess duplicate letters separately and is not told what wrong letters he has already tried. Some students might be warned that the vocabulary used in the prologue is fairly difficult. However, the gothic script that is used in the lesson, along with the great graphics, should all be encouragements for students to try "hangman."
