This glossary includes definitions of words, acronyms, initialisms, and phrases which are used generally in librarianship or specifically in the Colorado State University (CSU) Libraries. Many definitions are taken directly from the "American Library Association Glossary" but others, specific to the CSU Libraries, are taken from the department or division of their origin. (EMH) a glossary of initialisms, terms, acronyms, phrases, etc.
INTRODUCTION

This is a glossary of terms used in the CSU Libraries. It includes definitions of words, acronyms, initialisms and phrases which are generally used in librarianship, as well as items which are unique to CSU Libraries. Our purpose has been to include as much as possible, rather than to exclude anything.

There is no claim to originality. Many definitions have been borrowed intact from the ALA Glossary and elsewhere, and some have been only slightly modified. Definitions of local origin come, insofar as possible, from the department or division where they are most used. Many have been shortened or simplified to provide more general usefulness and interpretation.

Each term is defined in the form most commonly used in the CSU Libraries. In some cases, this may be an acronym or initialism; in other cases, it is the whole word or phrase.

Work began on this glossary in the spring of 1974. Many staff members have served on the committee: Barbara Burke, Robert DeWitt, Karen Fachan, Dorothy Garner, Marlene Hersox, Lynn Hodapp, Anna Kueneman, William Lindgren, John Newman, and Patricia Smith. Myra Jo Moon designed the cover page. In addition, the Committee would like to thank all the other staff who contributed their ideas, comments and criticism and especially thank Scarlet Taylor and the Front Office for compiling the Appendix and typing the "whole thing."
