ABSTRACT

This guide lists selective reference sources which are useful for research in sociology. The guide is arranged by document type: guides, dictionaries, encyclopedias, directories and biographical sources, statistics, book reviews, theses and dissertations, general social science bibliographies, sociology bibliographies, special subject bibliographies, and related-discipline bibliographies. The special subjects included as bibliographies are social structure, social change, social issues, demography, marriage and the family, ethnic groups, industrial sociology, and methodology. The McLennan Library call number, a full citation, and an annotation are provided for each entry. (ND)

 * Documents acquired by ERIC include many informal unpublished *

The study of sociology has expanded enormously in recent years and the quantity of literature often poses problems for students and researchers. This guide lists printed bibliographical sources currently available at McGill which will facilitate research in sociology. Although the significant reference works for a number of specialized areas in sociology have been outlined, this is a selective listing. Students are advised to refer to the following guides on related topics: Mass Media; Women's Studies; Urban Affairs; Psychology. (Copies are available at the Reference desk). In particular, it is worthwhile to note that POVERTY and TRANSPORTATION are two topics covered in the Urban Affairs guide.

Government reports, studies and statistical compilations are essential to almost any sociological inquiry and a vast number of these publications are readily available at McGill. The Government Documents Department on the second floor of McLennan Library is a depository for all Canadian federal publications and for those of the United Nations, UNESCO and some other U.N. agencies. In addition, it contains a useful selection of Canadian provincial and municipal publications as well as large quantities of United States, United Kingdom, Common Market and Indian government publications. It is important, however, to remember that the holdings of this collection are recorded only in the Department's own catalogue and are not listed by author or subject in the McGill Union Catalogue or subject catalogues on the main floor. There is a specialized staff in the Department to help you use the various indexes and bibliographies which access these materials.

The collection in the Social Work Library is also a valuable supplementary resource for researchers in sociology since the two fields overlap to a considerable extent. The literature in the Social Work Library tends to be somewhat more applied than theoretical in nature, and there is considerable emphasis on the local scene especially insofar as pamphlet and other vertical file material are concerned.

Similarly the Law Library is useful for forensic sociology and specifically for materials on criminology. The Medical Library collects materials on the socialization of medicine and is helpful for the clinical side of such issues as old age, drug abuse, abortion, etc.

Please note that bibliographical references are not only to be found in the works listed in the sections labelled BIBLIOGRAPHIES. Many of the guides, dictionaries and encyclopedias are especially valuable for the bibliographical references they include.

All locations for titles mentioned in this bibliography have not been indicated. For additional locations please check the McGill Union Catalogue under the entry used in this bibliography. If you have any difficulty using this guide or the sources listed in it please do not hesitate to ask a reference librarian for assistance.

No.40 Columbia. Compiled by Wendy R. Chambers and Lillian McIntyre.
Ref. Vancouver, B.C., 1972.
- Designed to be "simple to use but detailed enough to facilitate research at a graduate level." (Introd.) Part I lists materials on sociology in general under form headings, e.g. guides, encyclopedias and dictionaries, biography, etc. Entries in part II are arranged according to specific subject divisions of sociology, e.g.
group interactions, social control, demography, etc. Author and title indexes at the back.

- Unlike the traditional handbook designed principally for consultation purposes, this comprises 22 essay-type chapters prepared by specialists in the field. Arranged in four parts: (1) the sociology of illness; (2) practitioners, patients, and medical settings;
(3) sociology of medical care; and (4) strategy, method, and status of medical sociology. Each chapter ends with an extensive list of references. In addition the entire last chapter is a bibliography of 60 pages. Name and subject indexes.

scientists under the auspices of UNESCO. Contains signed definitions in essay format for about 1000 selected terms in anthropology, sociology, economics, political science, and social psychology. Most entries are divided into sections: (A) supplies the meaning while (B-D) gives the historical background and more detailed discussion of the subject. Text contains numerous bibliographic citations.

- 117

A biographical dictionary in German including more than 1000 signed entries. Entries consist of a brief biographical sketch, an analysis of the person's work, and a bibliography of the principal works by and about the person. International in scope but emphasis is on German sociologists. No index. Supplemented by biographical entries in Emilio Willems' Dictionnaire de sociologie (see section II).

V. STATISTICS

Of great importance to those in sociology are sources of statistics, some of which are located in the Reference Department, many more of which are in the Government Documents Department on the second floor of McLennan Library. Statistical materials may also be located through the use of the subject catalogues by looking under the subdivision STATISTICS following the name of the country or region on which statistical information is desired. Many other headings also cover sources that are primarily statistical. Among them are main headings such as STATISTICS, INCOME, POPULATION, LABOR SUPPLY and subdivisions (following names of countries, regions or subjects) such as POPULATION, COMMERCE and YEARBOOKS. A useful selective list of statistical sources is provided in Urban Affairs A Student's Guide to Reference Sources. (Copies available at the Ref. Desk). Remember that all statistical information in books becomes dated soon after publication. For current data, government bulletins and other periodical literature need to be consulted.

Emphasis is on the U.S. but foreign countries are covered. "Primary statistics sources" are identified beneath the name of the country. Includes a selective but useful bibliography of key statistical sources.

VI. BOOK REVIEWS

General book review sources are outlined in Book Reviews: A Guide to Locating Reviews in the Social Sciences and Humanities. (Copies available at the Reference desk). Numerous sociological journals index book reviews. For a useful list of such journals consult British Columbia University Library's Guide to Reference Materials in Sociology in the Library of the University of British Columbia, pp. 30-33. A major international abstracting journal covering several thousand periodicals. Format and title vary - sociology was originally part of the philosophy section of the Bulletin. All abstracts are in French. A French translation of the title generally follows the original. The 1975 volume contains 24 subdivisions for sociology. Includes author and "concept" (i.e. subject) indexes. Difficult to use because of its complicated organization but valuable for its extensive coverage of world literature.
