ABSTRACT

This revision of the 1975 publication of the same name has increased the scope of sources to include non-print materials, and has added several new categories: Order of Battles, Abstracts, Lineages, Statistics, and Guidebooks. The previous topic headings are grouped by document type or, in some cases, by subject, such as Customs, Decorations, Flags, and Insignias or Ordinance, Planes, Ships, and Vehicles. A title/author index is included.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Several people have added their skills and knowledge in aiding the compiler. I wish to express special acknowledgment to Mrs. Barbara Arlene Aimone, my wife, for assisting me in rewriting annotations. Mr. Robert Schnare, Assistant Librarian, for helpful format advice. the Visiting Military History Professor, Dr. Theodore Ropp, for his enthusiastic support. Miss Cheryl M. Sylvestor, for typing the final draft and to Miss Ann K. Harlow, Assistant Librarian, for over-all editorial assistance.

FOREWORD

This third edition of the Bibliography of Military History updates USMA Library Bulletins Numbers 7 and 14; issued in 1969 and 1975 respectively. Initially published in support of the Military History course for ROTC instructors conducted during the summer months, this guide has also been most useful in meeting the bibliographic and reference needs of cadets, faculty, outside researchers and amateur historians.

The recent appearance of quality films, audio and video tapes, slides and records on the subject of Military History has further contributed to the growing number of readers, viewers and listeners dealing with the history of the Military Art.

This new edition of the bulletin is therefore designed to facilitate access to a wider scope of sources in this discipline.

EGON A. WEISS
Librarian, USMA
INTRODUCTION

There is more interest in military history today than ever before. As a result, more materials are being published. Original sources have become more accessible as microfilming and photocopying of documents, landmark texts, and manuscripts have become common practice. Post World War II generations are probing the evolution of military institutions and the details and background of military history. The interest, however, is on many levels. Many writers cater to the American and English Civil War buffs, "living history" enthusiasts and to those who enjoy vicarious military experiences. At the other end of the spectrum, academicians are writing about subjects that have never before been studied. Their information and insights are expanding the knowledge and understanding of military history.

This annotated military history bibliography has been prepared to aid researchers. In this third edition, several categories, including "order of battles," "abstracts," "lineages," "statistics," and "guide books," have been added to broaden the scope and usefulness of this bibliography. The compiler's experience in assisting correspondents, civilian researchers, ROTC history students, and USMA cadets has determined the subject areas emphasized. Items selected for inclusion are mostly in English, contain reliable information, and are available in many large libraries. The most recent edition or reprinting is noted with few exceptions.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES OF U.S. MILITARY UNITS AND SELECTED WAR HISTORIES

Cresswell, Mary Ann, and Berger, Carl, comp. United States Air Force History: An Annotated Bibliography. Washington: Government Printing Office, 1971. This is the most current reference source listing books and magazines arranged by subject with both author and subject indexes.

Dorabusch, Charles Emil, comp. Histories, Personal Narratives, United States Army, A Checklist. Cornwallville, N.Y.: Hope Farm 1967. Revision of the 1956 Histories of American Army Units. A useful source as it lists 2,742 titles. Some are not to be found in Pappas' U.S. Army Unit Histories since that title lists only histories at Carlisle Barracks and does not include articles. Many unit histories are obscure as they were printed in Europe or by United States yearbook publishers.

Operational Archives. World War II Histories and Historical Reports in the U.S. Naval History Division: A Partial Checklist. Washington: 1973. An annotated checklist of resources held by the Naval History Division. It is useful for administrative records of U.S. Navy commands during the World War II era.

BIOGRAPHICAL SOURCES

Army and Navy Journal. Washington: August 29, 1863 to 1923, weekly. Various title changes (Vol. 61 September 1923 — in Periodicals). Since July 6, 1968 it has been a monthly under the title of Armed Forces Journal. This is an important source for obituaries of officers which cannot be found elsewhere. Reports concerning United States military and naval developments since 1863 are reprinted from newspapers and other sources.

Biography Index: A Cumulative Index to Biographical Material in Books and Magazines. New York: H.W. Wilson, 1949 to date, quarterly with annual cumulations. This is a valuable aid because it includes every person mentioned in books or periodical literature in English.

Great Britain. War Office. Army List. London: Her Majesty's Stationary Office, 1814 to date. This register lists officers in the British Army according to rank corps and regimental order. It is useful for officer service records. Its frequency has varied.

Heitman, Francis Bernard. Historical Register and Dictionary of the United States Army, from its Organization, September 29, 1789 to March 2, 1903. 2 vol. 1903. Reprint. Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 1965. This has long been the basic source for biographical information about officers and for other facts relating to the U.S. Army before 1903.

| Documents | Combined Retrospective Index Sets. 25 vol. Arlington, Ca.: Carrollton, 1977. Annual supplements. This is a new bibliographic source for English articles in the fields of history, political science and sociology. More than 531 journals are indexed by keywords, subjects and authors. The keyword index provides consistency which many indexes lack. |
| Periodicals | Engineering Index. Chicago: Association of Engineering Societies, 1891 to date. Changes in the terms indexed have been made over the years. |
| Documents | International Bibliography of the Social Sciences. Compiled by the International Committee for Social Science Information and Documentation. Chicago: Aldine. 1951 to date. This includes topics related to military affairs and international relations. Its author and subject indexes are useful as are the entries of foreign titles not listed elsewhere. |
| Documents | Lester, Daniel W., and Lester, Marilyn A., comp. Checklist of United States Public Documents, 1789-1970. 5 vol. Washington: U.S. Historical Documents Institute, 1972. This is an easier reference work to use than the indexes compiled by Poore, Ames and the U.S. Superintendent of Documents. The indexes include Superintendent of Documents classification numbers, government author-organizations, serial titles and a keyword index of author, organizations and publications. Regulations, reports, general orders, special orders, circulars, along with various department orders, are also listed and provide a wealth of information about individuals and the history of military and naval organization, administration and operation. |

The National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections. Washington: U.S. Library of Congress. 1962 to date, annual. An annotated survey of the larger United States and Canadian manuscript collections which have been reported to the Library of Congress.

Naval Historical Foundation. Manuscript Collection: A Catalog. Washington: U.S. Library of Congress, 1974. A descriptive catalog of 337,000 items in 254 collections deposited in the Library of Congress. This naval history collection adds to the official papers and oral history accounts found in the U.S. Navy's Operational Archives. This is the largest collection of U.S. Navy personal papers and is cross-indexed to help locate personalities and subjects.

New York Times Index. New York: September 1851-1905, January 1911 to date, annual with bimonthly editions. A master-key to the news since September, 1851. It is extremely useful in tracking events or following the by-play developments. The news is classified alphabetically by subjects, persons and organizations. The general availability of the New York Times on microfilm makes this a particularly useful reference. The index also provides clues to the dates of articles about the same subject that appeared in other newspapers.

These indexes by author and subject, major historical journals beginning in 1907.

It is a useful introductory guide to information about naval affairs.
JOURNALS WITH MILITARY SUBJECT-MATTER HAVING CUMULATIVE INDEXES

Periodicals

Aerospace Historian. Manhattan: Kansas State University Endowment Association for the Air Force Historical Foundation, September 1954 to date, quarterly.

A good source for reviews of books in the field and for articles about foreign air forces.

Periodicals

American Historical Review. Washington: American Historical Association, 1895 to date, quarterly.

The indexes are arranged by subject and author and include articles published in this journal as well as the books that were reviewed. Pertinent subject headings would include “military history” and the name of the war being studied. Beginning in 1975, a separate bibliography lists “Recently Published Articles.”

Periodicals

Cavalry Journal/Armor Cumulative Indexes, 1888-1968. Compiled by Walter E. Young. Bibliography Series No. 12. Manhattan: Kansas State University Library, 1974. An eighty year cumulated index adds to the value of this important military magazine which covers developments and changing doctrines related to armor and cavalry in America during the last 150 years. It is particularly useful for historians of the American West.

Periodicals

Army Information Digest Twenty Year Index. Volume 1-20. May 1946-1965. Cameron Station, Alexandria, Va.: U.S. Department of the Army, 1946-1965. This subject index has some cross indexing. It is useful for both historical and contemporary military affairs.

Periodicals

Moore Wing

Civil War History: A Journal of the Middle Period. Oberlin, O.: Kent State University. 1955 to date, quarterly. A bibliography about the Civil War era in the United States was featured in June issues until 1974 and is now in the December issue. Entries are arranged by topics.

Civil War Times Illustrated: Gettysburg, Pa.: Historical Times. April 1959 to date, ten times a year.

Civil War Times Illustrated Index. Compiled by Gary R. Planck and Robert D. Hoffsommer. Gettysburg, Pa.: Historical Times. 1959 to date, annual with five year cumulations.

The magazine is outstanding for its illustrative material and general interest articles. Each index contains person-place-thing-author and subject entries.

Documents

Congressional Quarterly. Washington: Congressional Quarterly, 1945 to date. This is the most authoritative and easy to use source of information about Congress. An annual digest is published under the title Congressional Quarterly Almanac. Other special publications include: Congress and the Nation: a resume of congressional and presidential actions from 1945 to 1972, the semi-annual Congressional Quarterly Guide to Current American Government and the weekly Editorial Research Reports about current controversial issues.

Periodicals

It merged with the Infantry Journal in August 1950 and continued as Army Combat Forces Journal then as Army. The index is useful for World War I and pre-War War II military affairs.

This quarterly publishes articles related to twentieth century foreign affairs.

Special Collections

Company of Military Historian Cumulative Index. Volumes I-XV, 1949-1963. Compiled by Maria P. Todd. Washington: 1966. Another fifteen volume index is being prepared. The indexes are useful for locating information about military uniforms and equipment as well as organizational histories of military units that served in or were organized in North America.

Periodicals

The journal's index covers both military and naval developments from 1853 through 1963.

Periodicals

Journal of the Society for Army Historical Research. London: Society for Army Historical Research. 1921 to date, quarterly.

Antiquarian in scope, the journal is devoted to customs, military life, uniforms and traditions of the British Army, empire and commonwealth land forces before World War I. The index is arranged by subject with military units indexed according to their names and numerical designations.

Periodicals

Articles about naval and maritime history are included.
Periodicals

Military Affairs. Manhattan: Kansas State University, Spring 1937 to date, quarterly.

The quarterly features a listing of "Recent Journal Articles" and "The Military Library." References to recent English Language doctoral dissertations about military history were published in the April issue in 1972 and 1973 and in the February issue since 1974. Occasionally a bibliography about a special subject is included.

Periodicals

Military Review. Fort Leavenworth, Kansas: U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, June/September 1922 to date, monthly.

This journal contains articles about military affairs and reviews military books. Early issues had some translated foreign writings. The index is particularly useful for locating articles about World War I and World War II.

Periodicals

Ordnance: Land, Sea, Air. Washington: American Ordnance Association, July 1920 to 1973, bimonthly. The title has been changed to National Defense with volume 38, number 320, September/October, 1973; it also became a monthly. This journal contains articles related to weapons development since World War I. Subject indexes are bound together, rather than cumulated and are arranged according to the weapons.

Periodicals

Periodicals

Southern Historical Society Index. Compiled by Kate Pleasants Minot. Richmond: Virginia State Library Bulletin, July/October 1913. This is an author and subject index to the Southern Historical Society Papers, volumes one through thirty-eight. It is particularly useful for Confederate military history.
