This directory lists 107 child advocacy programs in 37 states, the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands. Each entry includes project title, address, telephone number, contact person, a statement of purpose and a summary of current advocacy activities. Entries are indexed under the following terms: adolescent parenthood, appropriations/funding, child abuse and neglect, child care/day care, child labor, child welfare, coalitions, community involvement, comprehensive coordinated planning, deinstitutionalization, delivery of services, developmental disabilities, developing monitoring and assessment instruments, drugs, early periodic screening/diagnosis and treatment, foster care, health care, individual advocacy, juvenile justice, lead poisoning, legislative action, mental health, Native Americans, parent education, public education, recreation, rights of children, state-wide child advocacy structure, training advocates, workshop on data collecting and planning, and youth. (RR)
This recently revised directory of child advocacy programs reflects the great variety and richness of advocacy efforts throughout the Nation on behalf of children and youth. The advocacy resources listed include those programs established specifically to influence improvements in the practice of community institutions working with children and young people.

We hope that this directory, which is not exhaustive, will be useful not only to advocates for children but that it will also stimulate communication among persons with similar interests and concerns. It contains illustrations of various types of programs and suggests similarities in practice. It includes programs in the process of organizing as well as established and functioning programs. The listing can provide a base for further investigation and documentation of practice.

This directory is published with appreciation to all who are active on behalf of children and young people. We particularly appreciate those persons who helped make this publication possible by preparing descriptions of their programs.

Youth Law Center
693 Mission Street, 2nd Floor
San Francisco, California 94105 Telephone: 415/495-6420

Contact Persons: Peter B. Sandmann and Stefan M. Rosenzweig

Purpose:
The Youth Law Center provides free legal representation to young persons to assure protection of their rights. The Center is funded by the Legal Services Corporation, and is a California non-profit corporation.

Legal assistance by Center attorneys is directed in several areas: it represents a number of community and civic groups concerned with the rights of young people; it provides legal advice and consultation to other attorneys; and to public service groups concerned with legal problems affecting youth; and it becomes involved in court cases to establish, confirm or protect legal rights of young persons. Finally, the Center through its Juvenile Rights Litigation Project provides back-up support to legal services attorneys and others who are seeking vindication of the rights of juveniles.

Current Advocacy Activities:
The principal substantive areas of activity of the Center are matters which are ordinarily the concern of juvenile and family courts. These include such matters as delinquency, persons in need of supervision (PINS), neglect proceedings, custodial placement of juveniles in residential and non-residential programs, adoptions, foster care placements, illegitimacy, termination of parental rights proceedings, and other similar matters in which state or local social welfare agencies intervene into the lives of families, and the rights of juveniles to such benefits and services as adequate education, health care, shelter and nutrition.
Sonoma County Citizen Advocacy, Inc.
835 4th Street
P.O. Box 444
Santa Rosa, California 95402 Telephone: 707/546-4622

Contact Person: Albert Zonca

Purpose:
To provide advocacy services for persons with developmental disabilities.

Current Advocacy Activities:
Citizen volunteers are recruited, trained, and monitored by a staff of human service professionals to become personal advocates to developmentally disabled persons. Advocates act as teachers, spokespersons, companions, representative payees (financial managers), surrogate or foster parents and/or guardians. Advocates may teach a handicapped person, for example, how to plan a budget, shop in a retail store, or ride public transportation. In addition, Citizen Advocacy also offers related services to aid developmentally disabled persons and/or their families. These include information and referral, counseling, representation and intervention, and legal advice and assistance. Citizen Advocacy also assists developmentally disabled persons and/or their families in identifying services which they may need and in acquiring those services. Citizen Advocacy represents the interests of developmentally disabled persons in community organization and planning activities and data is collected and studied regarding the social needs and problems of these individuals. An on-going public education campaign is conducted to heighten the community's awareness of and sensitivity to the needs of developmentally disabled persons. Presentations are made to church, civic, educational and other community groups; informational brochures on developmental disabilities are distributed, and public and private media are stimulated to bring the issues and concerns of developmentally disabled persons before the public.
COLORADO

Colorado Citizen Advocacy Program
Colorado Association for Retarded Citizens
2727 Bryant Street, L-3
Denver, Colorado 80211  Telephone: 303/455-4411

Contact Person: Joni Seivert

Purpose:
To provide a one-to-one relationship to developmentally disabled individuals, matching volunteers (advocates) to mentally retarded and other developmentally disabled citizens (proteges). Advocates can assume roles which vary according to the needs of the impaired person. The state office coordinates and supervises 14 local programs including Ridge House in Wheatridge and other programs in the following counties: Adams, Arapahoe, Aurora, Boulder, Denver, El Paso, Fremont, Fort Morgan, Larimer, Jefferson, Mesa, Pueblo, Greeley.

Current Advocacy Activities:
Current activities include a mass media campaign using radio, TV, billboards, speakers, brochures, etc., to spread the word on Citizen Advocacy. Our hope is that this will not only help in the recruitment of more advocates, but will make us more visible in the communities of Colorado. We also have a legal advocacy branch that we work with very closely.
Purpose:
This group is a coalition of non-profit organizations and interested individuals who are advocates on behalf of the overall needs of children and specifically for quality child care services. It is independent of government bodies and agencies. The coalition functions in an advisory capacity as unpaid consultants which, in turn, makes significant decisions regarding the present and future needs of the children of Colorado.

Current Advocacy Activities:
The coalition attempts to influence policy and legislation about children's needs and child care in Colorado by: 1) consulting with governmental bodies and agencies; 2) preparing and delivering appropriate testimony; and 3) regularly publishing a state-wide bulletin on current issues. The coalition educates advocates around the state at workshops to which they have been invited. The coalition has received a grant from the Administration for Children, Youth and Families to co-sponsor in 1978 a two day state-wide conference on advocacy for children and families.
CONNECTICUT

Resouce to Encourage Services to Provide for the Ongoing Needs of the Disabled (RESPOND)
United Cerebral Palsy Association of Connecticut, Inc
One State Street
New Haven, Connecticut 06511 Telephone: 203/772-2080

Contact Person: Janet T. Strom

Purpose:
RESPOND is a free advocacy service for the physically, mentally and emotionally disabled population in the sixteen-town Greater New Haven area. RESPOND addresses the handicapped community's need for ongoing communication of resources and services available to meet their needs. Within this context, RESPOND maintains an ongoing needs assessment process by identifying, describing and assessing all community resources for the disabled individual and his family. When a service gap is identified, RESPOND advocates for appropriate program development.

Current Advocacy Activities:
RESPOND is involved in two major advocacy programs: case advocacy and class advocacy. Case advocacy involves a one-to-one relationship between the Director of Client Services and a person who is disabled, in which the rights of the disabled are advocated. The advocate may use referral, information-sharing, communication facilitation, liaison, mediation, pressure or personal representation. Case advocacy insures the responsiveness of existing community resources and programs to the individual's needs.

When the implication or outcomes of advocacy affect an entire group of persons, the advocacy effort moves into the category of class advocacy. Class advocacy seeks to prevent problems or assure intervention on a global basis for those with problems and difficulties.

RESPOND is involved in several components of class advocacy at the present time--systems advocacy, community organization and program development. Within the systems approach, RESPOND acts to modify systems that deliver services so that services are more accessible and useable by consumers.
District of Columbia

Office of Child Health Advocacy
2125 13th Street, N.W.

Social Advocacy Department
United Charities of Chicago
64 E. Jackson Boulevard, 7th Floor
Chicago, Illinois 60604 Telephone: 312/939-5930 ext. 214

Contact Person: John D. Purdy

Purpose:
A service designed to improve life conditions of people and especially families. Its purpose is to see to it that systems and institutions which affect families work for and, where possible, with those families -- not against them. Program emphasis is on humanizing and making more effective the contacts of people with institutions -- both public and private -- and the framework within which institutions serve people.

Current advocacy activities:
Currently our committee and staff are relating in several ways at various levels to the Illinois Department of Public Aid. Since the function or malfunction of this system has great impact upon a large number of our clients, activities range from challenges by our Legal Aid Bureau where regulations are not upheld, to the providing of systems experts for intake design. Also working on public education and health.
The Child Advocate Association
19 South LaSalle Street, #401
Chicago, Illinois 60603
Telephone: 312/263-0406

Contact Person: Teri Talan

Purpose:
To improve social and legal services for abused and neglected children.

Current Advocacy Activities:
The Association has several specific goals, including:
- the establishment of hospital-based, interdisciplinary, inter-agency child abuse teams at key hospitals in Cook County.
- the development of a pool of volunteer attorneys from major downtown law firms to provide legal assistance in child abuse cases.
- the provision of legal and social work consultation to medical personnel, social workers, and other professionals dealing with child abuse.
Purpose:
The development and promotion of solutions to meet the needs of children are the basis for the workload of the Commission. This is carried on through special project committees and consultation and preparation of materials for persons in policy-making responsibilities. A unique feature of the Commission on Children has been and continues to be that working committees of the Commission not only have responsibility for the fact-finding and determination of the scope of the problem, but the responsibility for helping to bring about the implementation of the solutions they develop.

Current Advocacy Activities:
Rights of minors, deinstitutionalization of children when necessary, diversion from court proceedings when unnecessary, limitations on detention, right to treatment when custody removed, appropriate educational services, interrelationship of preventive services to remedial services, duties of State Administration for delivery of services as opposed to authorizations or authority to do so but no mandate, comprehensive planning as opposed to fragmented planning, licensing and monitoring of children's services.
Purpose:
To promote the effective use of public and private resources in order to provide maximum opportunities for each child to reach his or her full potential. The Council serves as an information center, informing the public of available resources and facilitating communications among the various agencies and organizations. The Council works with both the providers and recipients of resources in order to help improve existing services and stimulate the development of needed programs.

Current Advocacy Activities:
- provide assistance at the district and local levels to facilitate coordination of services to children;
- develop a state training plan of available training opportunities for day care providers;
- adopt state policy statements regarding children and families;
- develop continuing educational opportunities for parents;
- prepare and distribute periodical informational papers and legislative updates outlining both federal and state issues, e.g., information on the Food and Nutrition Program, Title XX training funds, and child care insurance evaluation;
- continue to promote more services and better access to health care;
- publish a comprehensive booklet on the "Status of Children in Iowa";
- continue the expansion of the public information program;
- publish a monthly newsletter entitled, "Children: Iowa Growing Resource" and distribute it to over 2,500 people, both in and outside of the state; and
- continue to promote increased usage of the Child Care Food Program.

Box 4194
Topeka, Kansas 66604
Contact Person: C.E. "Ken" Kennedy Telephone: 913/532-5505

Purpose:
The purpose of the Council is to serve as advocate for Children's concerns and to facilitate communication among groups and organizations serving children. Six study committees monitor the status of services and the well being of children and families. These committees are:
- Early Childhood
- Middle Childhood and Adolescence
- Handicapped Children
- Children in Stress
- Health Services for Children
- Education-Recreation-and-Moral Development

Child Advocacy Activities:
KCCY supported proposals that will expand the mandate to report child abuse and neglect, promote continuing education for SRS staff and improve inter-state communication. It has encouraged the legislature to maintain present standards for child care centers. As a result of KCCY involvement, Kansas was successful in achieving leadership for the subsidizing of adoptions. The use of school and state monies for special education, as well as the role of family life education curriculum in the classroom were recommendations from KCCY. The organization has also reacted to revisions and proposals concerning the juvenile code and children's residential centers.

School Youth Advocacy
300 South Capitol Avenue
Lansing, Michigan 48926
Telephone: 517/373-8225

Contact Person: Gwen McIntosh

Purpose:
The diversion of "high risk" school age youth from further movement into the juvenile justice system. School Youth Advocacy provides the schools with a program that can serve as a substitute for suspension, expulsion and other costlier forms of discipline.

The modality used in this diversionary process is called Guided Group Interaction or G.G.I. This is a peer counseling process. Ten students meet for one hour a day under the supervision of a trained group leader and solve problems by way of an eight step problem solving technique.

Current Advocacy Activities:
School Youth Advocacy provides a vehicle for the active involvement of many youth in an honest, straightforward problem solving approach that take into account not only the problems they themselves encounter, but the rights, concerns and needs of others as well. Students are taught to care for the rights of others as they actively seek solutions to their own problems.

Family Advocacy
Sunbeam Family Services
616 NW 21st
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73103 Telephone: 405/528-7721

Contact Person: Larry L. Brown

Purpose:
Family Advocacy is designed to improve life conditions for people, particularly poor people. It is based on the day-to-day work with troubled families whose ability to function is hindered by inadequacies of institutional systems of welfare, housing, health, education and employment. A part of this is to promote legislation to improve the general well being of individuals, families, and the community.

Current Advocacy Activities:
The primary emphases are legislation, health care, and welfare. This agency has actively supported legislation dealing with minors health services, social work licensing, pharmaceuticals, and child welfare concerns. Successful work has been done with local health departments to provide free immunizations to all children in day care at the day care center locations. Agency has a concern for quality foster care and community based institutional care for adolescents. In addition to work on issues, work with the local welfare office is done frequently on a case basis, seeking specific services for specific individuals.

Family Advocacy
Family and Children's Service
630 Janet Avenue
Lancaster, Pennsylvania 17601 Telephone: 717/397-5241

Contact Person: Vernon C. Richard

Purpose:
Advocacy is a service of this agency whose goal is to fulfill human potential by improving life conditions of people. Arising primarily from case experience of unmet needs, advocacy moves from case to cause, to change dysfunctional community institutions and systems to insure that they work for people, rather than against them.

Current Advocacy Activities:
Class issues arising from a diverse caseload are chosen for study action. Current activities include efforts to strengthen family life education in the community, efforts to help Hispanic counseling agencies develop funding sources and efforts to advocate on behalf of abused children through the Lancaster County Committee on Child Abuse. Two of our projects have recently been spun off and have developed a life of their own. Prescriptive learning centers for underachievers have sprung up in several county schools and a shelter for abused women and their children is strained to capacity.

--Participating heavily in consortium on Special needs of Teenage Parents (helped organize).
--Participating in Community Emergency Services Advisory Board to improve existing services and develop needed services.
--Training of foster parents to improve quality of foster care.
Purpose:
The Tennessee Office of Child Development, in the Office of the Governor, has three major functions: (1) planning children's services to improve and expand existing services (2) coordinating all services for children, birth-18 years (3) providing technical assistance to all programs serving children and their families. There are 14 major powers and duties enumerated under these functions in the legislation creating the Office of Child Development. These include: reviewing budgets of all state agencies delivering services to children; evaluating child development and family service programs and facilities; and to design, develop, and review a comprehensive, statewide plan.

Current Advocacy Activities:
The Office is currently developing mechanisms for coordination in conjunction with all agencies represented on the State Child Development Coordinating Council. Through our nine Regional Coordinators placed in each of the planning districts, we are developing priorities for implementing new programs for children and conducting needs assessments in each region. We are also working closely with the Governor's Office developing plans for Governmental Reorganization as it affects children's services.
Purpose:
To collect facts and statistics, make special studies of conditions affecting the welfare of youth, and to act as an advisory and consultative body.

Current Advocacy Activities:
To monitor legislation affecting youth, to provide information on the status of all such legislation; to publish a current book of laws which affect youth; to publish monthly news of programs for children and youth across the state.
Purpose:
The Family Advocacy Program was created in 1971 to enable the agency to expand its focus from individual counseling to include a strong commitment to changing community conditions and institutional policies detrimental to families.

Current Advocacy Activities:
- Work with families in a neighborhood deprived of water and sewage systems. This project was added to a list of projects in the metropolitan area that have applied for Federal funding through the Metro Council.
- Community organizing in one section of Davidson County with special emphasis on developing after school care centers for children age 6 to 12 in some of the local churches. A needs assessment was done in five of the grammar schools in that particular area and a proposal has been written to document the need.
- Legislation on (a) obtaining birth certificates for foreign-born adopted children and (b) on increasing Aid to Families with Dependent Children grants across the state.
- Developed a workshop on "Women's Issues" with special emphasis on education, employment counseling, financial counseling and legal assistance for women. Also helped in establishing a free legal clinic for women through the YWCA.
