This secondary unit of instruction on written communications is one of sixteen Common Core Units in Business Education (CCUBE). The units were designed to implement the sixteen common core competencies identified in the California Business Education Program Guide for Office and Distributive Education. Each competency-based unit is designed to facilitate personalized instruction and may include five types of materials: (1) a teacher's guide, which provides specific strategies for the units as well as suggestions for the use of the materials; (2) a student manual that directs the student through the unit's activities and jobs and brings the student to the competence level for the unit; (3) working papers, which are consumable materials used in completing the jobs and activities and (5) suggested electronic media. A strategies manual and the California Business Education Program Guide and supplements are also available--see note. (LRA)

"Written communications. Rats! All that writing and all those commas and things. I HATE THAT!"

Hold it! Hang on! How about looking at it another way. Do you know that the original meaning of the word Communication is to share? Think about it...to share...your ideas, your feelings, your very self with someone else. Written communications is nothing more than sharing a part of yourself with another person by using your skill in writing rather than your skill in speaking. In fact, a student once said, "You know what written communications is all about? Learning to talk through writing."

How did you learn to talk? It's pretty hard to remember that far back; however, by watching little children, it's easy to see (and hear) that they practice a lot. They practice because they soon realize that the sound must be just right or the other person will not be able to understand.

The same thing can be said for written communications. In order to share your thoughts with another person using your writing skill, you need to practice. A skill is learned through practice.

"What am I going to practice? It all seems so confusing." Maybe you can't remember learning to talk, but remember what you did before receiving your driver's license? Besides actually learning to drive the car, you had to learn the "rules of the road." Wasn't it confusing at first?
Just as you knew many of the rules of driving before you ever got behind the wheel of a car, so too you probably know many of the “rules of the writing road” already. In order to become a better sharer of yourself with others through writing, here are some of the areas covered in this unit:

THE SENTENCE
PUNCTUATION
WORD USAGE
CAPITALIZATION
COMPOSING SIMPLE MESSAGES

Here is how this Unit works. You do some reading. This reading will give you facts or information. It is the first step in learning.

Next, you will be asked to do something. This “doing something” is called an ACTIVITY. It is the second step in learning a skill. The ACTIVITIES help you practice. They are short and always refer to what you have just read.

In the third and last step there is practice material called JOBS. These usually take a little more work on your part and help you practice all of the facts you learned in a Major Section of this unit on Written Communications.

The ACTIVITIES and JOBS are found in a separate booklet with the title:
STUDENT WORKING PAPERS
You will find a STUDENT PROGRESS CHART on the first page of the Student Working Papers booklet. Use it to keep track of your progress. It will help you and your teacher know what’s happening.

The Student Working Papers booklet also has the answers to all ACTIVITIES and some JOBS. This will help you to find out whether you understand what you read right away.

Finally . . . . . . this unit is only one way to help you with some writing skills. Whenever you feel you need more help or have questions,

ASK YOUR TEACHER
The Complete - Incomplete Sentence

When we speak, we automatically place words in a certain order. This order usually makes sense to the listener. If she doesn't understand what we are saying, we can easily tell by questions from her or by facial or other body language. When we are writing, we must be very careful. The reader is seldom right there to ask us what we really mean.

A word or a group of words that do not form a complete thought sometimes leaves the other person confused.

Activity 1

Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 1, and follow instructions.

If the group of words in ACTIVITY 1 would have had a clear meaning to you, they would have been complete sentences.

Definition of a sentence . . . . . . . A sentence must name something AND tell what it names.
1. tell what it names does
2. tell what it names is

Example

1. A sentence must name something AND tell what it names does
   (The dog went to sleep.)
2. A sentence must name something AND tell what it names is
   (The dog is very lazy.)

Activity 2

Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 1, and follow instructions.
Perhaps you’re saying, “This is easy. What I don’t get is subjects, verbs, and all that stuff.”

DON’T PANIC!

It’s not that difficult.

Remember the definition of a sentence:

A sentence must name something AND
1. tell what it names does
   OR
2. tell what it names is

The part of a sentence that names something is THE SUBJECT of the sentence and the thing named is a NOUN. A NOUN is the name of a person, place or thing.

Activity 3

Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 2, and follow instructions.

Did you identify all of the subjects correctly in ACTIVITY 3? Great! If you made more than two mistakes, please study the definition of a sentence given above one more time.

The part of a sentence that tells what the subject does or is, becomes the PREDICATE. The word that tells what the subject does is called a VERB.

EXAMPLE

1. A sentence must name something AND tell what it names does.
   (The dog is very lazy.)
   SUBJECT and dog is NOUN
   PREDICATE and is is the VERB

2. A sentence must name something AND tell what it names does.
   (The dog went to sleep.)
   SUBJECT and dog is NOUN
   PREDICATE and went is VERB

Activity 4

Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 2, and follow instructions.
Did you identify all of the predicates correctly in ACTIVITY 4? Fantastic! You didn't? Well, if you made more than two mistakes, please study page 4 again.

You should be able to tell whether a group of words is a complete simple sentence or not.

You should also be able to give a very short definition of a simple sentence. It could be something like this: A simple sentence is a group of words containing a subject and a predicate. The subject contains a noun and the predicate has a verb.

The following exercises will help you to review and learn what you have read on pages 3 and 4. Cover up the answers with a paper or card. Read the questions or statements, answer them in your mind (don't write anything on this paper) and move the card or paper down. The correct answer will appear. If the answer you had in your mind does not match the answer you uncovered, go back to page 3 or 4 and see if you can find where you made your mistake. If you still can't find your mistake, see your teacher.

14. True or false A SUBJECT tells what is done.
    False

15. True or false A simple sentence has a SUBJECT AND PREDICATE.
    True
The Simple Sentence

Congratulations! You are improving your communication power. How about taking another step to help you share part of yourself clearly through writing?

Here is a simple message:

I want a cookie.

You probably have no trouble with the above picture. You can easily understand the meaning and even identify the subject and predicate. (Turn this page over for the correct answer).

The sentence, I WANT A COOKIE, is an example of a simple sentence. A simple sentence is defined as a group of words having a subject and a predicate.

This is important: A subject in a simple sentence may be compound, and a predicate in a simple sentence may be compound. Compound means having more than one of something.

Study the following examples:

A simple sentence with a subject and predicate.

I want a cookie.

A simple sentence with a compound subject and one predicate.

My dog and I want a cookie.

A simple sentence with one subject and a compound predicate.

I want a cookie and milk.

A simple sentence with a compound subject and a compound predicate.

My dog and I want cookies and milk.

Activity 7

Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 4, and follow instructions.
More exercises. Remember that a skill is learned through practice. Follow the same directions here as you did on page 6. Cover the answers. Read the question or statement, answer it in your mind, then uncover the correct answer. If your answer is wrong, find out why. You may do this by either reading that material again or by seeing your teacher.

The Compound Sentence

Remember that compound means having more than one of something. You have just been working with compound subjects and compound predicates. There are also compound sentences.

A compound sentence is one that contains two or more simple sentences. Isn't that easy? Two simple sentences combined into one. These simple sentences are sometimes called independent clauses. A clause is a group of words that contain a subject and a predicate. Independent means to be able to stand alone . . . no need for support.

I want a cookie. That's a sentence. I'll scream. That's a sentence. Each is an independent clause. Each can stand alone; however, when they are hooked together, they become a compound sentence. This hook word is called a conjunction. The following words are some of the common hooks or conjunctions:

and but for or

REVIEW AREA

Rather than rushing on, how about using this as a Rest and Review spot?

Please turn the page for some reviewing ..............
A group of words that forms a complete thought is a sentence.

Example
Ms. Wong is flying to Fresno.

A sentence must name something AND tell what it names does.

Example
Ms. Wong is flying to Fresno.

A sentence must name something OR tell what it names is.

Example
Ms. Wong is our new store manager.

The part of the sentence that names something is the subject.

Example
Ms. Wong is flying to Fresno.

(Subject)

The part of the sentence that tells what the subject does or is, is the predicate.

Example
Ms. Wong is flying to Fresno.

(Predicate)

A simple sentence is a group of words having a subject and predicate.

Example
Ms. Wong is flying to Fresno.

(Subject) (Predicate)

A simple sentence may have a compound subject and/or a compound predicate. Compound means containing more than one of something.

Example
Ms. Wong and Mr. Flynn are flying to Fresno and driving to Lodi.

(Compound Subject) (Compound Predicate)

A compound sentence is one that contains two or more simple sentences.

Example
Ms. Wong is flying to Fresno with Mr. Flynn, but she will not visit the new store in Merced.

PUNCTUATION

Simple Sentences

If you drive a car, you certainly are aware of the importance of road signs. Laws have been created to make these signs the same throughout the State of California. No matter where you drive, you will know that everyone is following the same rules. By using the rules, you protect yourself and others from serious trouble.

Punctuation rules have been created for the very same reason. When you are writing, you want to follow the "road signs" other writers follow so that your readers will not be in serious trouble. Punctuation helps the reader understand your message.

You would think that the only punctuation a simple sentence needs is a period at the end. Look at these simple sentences and notice the commas.

- No, I don't believe the figures balance.
- Our salesperson will call on Wednesday, April 3, at 9 a.m.
- The extra charge, of course, will not be included in the total.
- Mr. Correa, moreover, will call personally to make an appointment.
- Please order one each of the red, white, and blue.
- Order the red items from Redding, California.

There are many road signs used throughout the country; however, the average driver sees the same signs over and over.

There are also many rules for punctuating sentences. Let's review some of the common ones used over and over with commas.

RULE 1
Place a comma after YES or NO if either begins a sentence.
—Yes, every person should have a Social Security number.

RULE 2
Separate the month from the year.
—We will hold our annual dance August 3, 19—.

RULE 3
Set off parenthetical expressions. A parenthetical expression is a group of words or a single word that explains or is used for effect. It is not needed to make a complete sentence. It interrupts the thought flow; therefore, commas are needed. There are parenthetic words such as however, therefore, moreover, though. There are parenthetic phrases such as of course, in addition.
The office, however, will be closed this Saturday.
The office, of course, will be closed this Saturday.

RULE 4
Set off appositive words or groups of words that rename the subject. It is easy to remember this rule because these words always explain the noun or pronoun that they follow.
—Leroy Cooper, our new clerk, has traveled a lot.

RULE 5
Commas are used to separate a series of words or numbers.
—Our sales have risen in March, June, August, and October.

Notice that the business writer places a comma before the and in a series. This is done to eliminate confusion. For example:

Do I want to order a red item, blue item, and white item?
If I do, then the sentence would look like this:
Please send one only of red, blue, and white.

Do I want to order a red item, and a blue and white item?
If I do, then the sentence would look like this:
Please send one only of red, blue and white.

RULE 6
Use a comma to separate a city from a state.
—Please send a memo to our Ukiah, California branch office.

Activity 9
Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 9, and follow instructions.

May I, therefore, have a cookie on this Sunday, May 5, with, of course, a glass of milk?
Compound Sentences

The rules you have just reviewed were used to punctuate simple sentences. This doesn’t mean you can’t use them for other types of sentences as well. For example, the rules could easily apply to COMPOUND SENTENCES.

A compound sentence is one that contains two or more independent clauses (each independent clause could be a sentence all by itself). Each one of the independent clauses is connected with a coordinating conjunction (and but or). A comma always comes before one of the coordinating conjunctions and NEVER AFTER IT. Keep this picture in your mind and you can’t go wrong.

EXAMPLES

— We may all arrive at 8:00 a.m., but the doors will be open earlier.
— The old cash register will be traded at the end of this month, and a new electronic machine will be installed.

The compound subject and compound predicate... Remember? (My dog and I want cookies and milk.) (If you forgot, see page 7)

Commas never go before conjunctions in these situations.

The two independent clauses that form a compound sentence may have other connectors. These are adverbs that are sometimes used as conjunctions (words that connect). Some examples of these conjunctive adverbs are: nevertheless consequently therefore however moreover thus then so otherwise.

IMPORTANT — If one of the conjunctive adverbs joins two independent clauses to form a compound sentence, it must have a semicolon after it.

SEE next page for examples ........................................
Example
We must close the store this coming Tuesday; therefore, no deliveries will be made that day.

- If one of the conjunctive adverbs acts as a parenthetical expression, a comma goes before and after.

Example
The store, therefore, will be closed this Tuesday.

CAUTION

WORD USAGE

Subject - Verb Agreement

✓ "I ain't got no time on me. S'pose it be 3-4 clock. Ev'body, he's go home awreddy."

Is this acceptable communications? It is if the person using this style is effectively communicating to another person.

✓ "Our family go to hear Martha in the school choir. She sing last night. It make us feel good."

Is this acceptable communications? Again, it is if one person is effectively communicating to another.

The key to effective communications is the reader's (or listener's) response. We cannot assume that, as long as the reader receives the general idea, the message has been successfully given.

READER'S REACTIONS ARE VERY IMPORTANT especially in business communications.

As in the previous sections in this unit, knowing some rules and then practicing them will help you to improve your writing. You will be able to share with the other what you really wanted to share. You will not use something that will distort the message and even drive the person away.

This section is divided into subject-verb agreement, tenses, and verb problems. First, how about tackling subject-verb agreement.

The subject and the verb in the predicate must agree in number in person
O. K. Let's take ONE STEP at a time.

A list of all the words you need to know and their definitions is given below. Read each meaning slowly. Don't worry if you can't understand each one. Examples will be given later with practice material. Soon you will be able to use these tools to communicate clearly.

subject . . . . A part of a sentence that names something.
noun . . . . The thing named in a subject. (person, place, thing) pronoun . . . . A word used in place of a noun.
predicate . . . . A part of a sentence that tells what the subject does/is.
verb . . . . Shows action (run, go) or a state of being (to be).
number . . . . This means singular (one) or plural (more than one).

person . . . . Noun and pronoun . . . a change in the word to show:
1. the speaker (first person)
2. the person spoken to (second person)
3. the person or thing spoken of (third person)

Verb . . . the property of a verb that shows its relationship
1. to the speaker (first person)
2. the person spoken to (second person)
3. another person or thing spoken of (third person)

Before examining SUBJECT – VERB AGREEMENT, there are two definitions that need to be looked at a little closer.

The first definition is NUMBER.
Remember that number means singular (one) or plural (more than one).
NOUNS are changed from singular to plural by adding s or es to the base work . . .
day days tax taxes
NOUNS are changed within from singular to plural . . . child children
NOUNS ending in s are usually plural.

A good dictionary will help you to form plural nouns.

VERBS are much different. You will be able to see how they change from singular to plural by breaking down their definition.
Again, the definition of a verb is . . . a word that shows action or a state of being.
1. Verbs show action (run, go).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The boy runs home.</td>
<td>The boys ran home.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>That girl goes home.</td>
<td>Those girls go home.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

When you add an s to verbs, they become singular.

2. Verbs show a state of being (to be).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I am home.</td>
<td>We are home.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>She is home.</td>
<td>They are home.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I was home.</td>
<td>We were home.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

IMPORTANT — The singular of to be = am is was
The plural of to be = are were

The second definition of PERSON

A change in the word to show:

1. the speaker (first person)
2. the person spoken to (second person)
3. the person or thing spoken of (third person)

NOUNS AND PRONOUNS change in person this way:

1. (first person) the speaker
   - Singular
     - I am here.
   - Plural
     - We are here.
2. (second person) the person spoken to
   - Singular
     - You are here.
   - Plural
     - You are here.

✓ IMPORTANT . . . . The pronoun of the second person (you) always takes a plural verb. "You is here," or "You was here," is poor grammar.
3. (third person) the person or thing spoken of

GUIDE TWO

Find the real subject and make the verb agree with it.

Wrong: The captain, as well as five others, are going to Palo Alto.
Right: The captain, as well as five others, is going to Palo Alto.
Wrong: Ruth, along with several fellow employees, have awards.
Right: Ruth, along with several fellow employees, has awards.

GUIDE THREE

Collective nouns use either singular or plural verbs. It depends on the meaning of the sentence.

Collective nouns are names of groups. (number, team, crew)

Examples
The team is leaving for Pasadena this afternoon.
This morning the committee were discussing last nights meeting wherever they went.
(each member discussed it individually)

GUIDE FOUR

A singular pronoun needs a singular verb.

(either, neither, another, nobody, somebody, someone, each, everyone, everybody, anybody, anyone, anything)

Wrong: Everyone in this office were careful.
Right: Everyone in this office was careful.

GUIDE FIVE

The pronoun you always requires a plural verb.

Wrong: You is a very dependable person.
Right: You are a very dependable person.
Wrong: You has an interview this morning.
Right: You have an interview this morning.

Activity 16
Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 17, and follow instructions.

GUIDE SIX

When two or more subjects are linked with and, a plural verb is used.

Wrong: Typewriting and shorthand is my favorite subjects.
Right: Typewriting and shorthand are my favorite subjects.

Two IMPORTANT Points
1. When the two subjects form one unit or idea, not two things, use a singular verb.
Wrong: The can of peas and carrots are on the shelf.
Right: The can of peas and carrots is on the shelf.
2. When each and every comes before two or more singular subjects linked with and, use a singular verb.

Wrong: Every student and teacher were asked to be here.
Right: Every student and teacher was asked to be here.

GUIDE SEVEN

If or or nor links two or more singular subjects, use a singular verb.

Wrong: Carlos or Peggy are going to the meeting.
Right: Carlos or Peggy is going to the meeting.

IMPORTANT ................. If or or nor links a singular subject with a plural subject, the plural subject should be nearest the verb and the verb must be plural.

Wrong: A typewriter or pens was required for the test.
Right: A typewriter or pens were required for the test.

GUIDE EIGHT

Amounts of money used as subjects need singular verbs.
Wrong: The $40 have been owed to both customers.
Right: The $40 has been owed to both customers.

GUIDE NINE

If the subject is the word number and the comes before it, (the number), use a singular verb.
If a comes before the word number, (a number), use a plural verb.

the number ............... singular verb
a number ............... plural verb

Right: The number of invoices has increased.
Right: A number of invoices have to be paid.

GUIDE TEN

Here and there are not subjects. Usually the verb comes before the subject in sentences of this type. Find the subject and make the verb agree with it.

Wrong: Here is the invoices for March.
Right: Here are the invoices for March.

NOTE TO STUDENT
Choose any two JOBS out of the three listed.
A verb serves several purposes in a sentence.

It gives the subject action.

Calvin ran to work.

It shows a condition of the subject.

He was late his very first day.

It shows a state of being of the subject.

He had to have that job.

We can change the time of the story simply by changing some of the verbs.

Calvin runs to work.

He is late for his very first day.

He has to have that job.

Verbs can tell time. They help writers inform their readers when the action is happening. This ability is called TENSE. Let's study three TENSES.

The PRESENT TENSE shows action going on right now.

He runs to work.

I go to work.

You do the work.

STUDY THE WORDS AT THE RIGHT.

Notice how some of the words change.
Activity 18

The PAST TENSE shows what happened in the past.

He ran to work.

I went to work.

You did the work.

STUDY THE WORDS AT THE RIGHT.

Activity 19-20

The FUTURE TENSE shows what will take place at a later date.

I shall run to work.

You will go to work.

He will do the work.

STUDY THE WORDS AT THE LEFT.

Notice how some of them change.

Job 12
Problem Verbs

It seems as though there are some verbs whose only reason for existence is to cause students problems. Does one lie or lay, sit or set, shall or should?

The last part of this section on WORD USAGE will try to help you become the winner of this war on words.

LIE — LAY

Meaning of Lay — to put, set down, place, deposit. The actual putting down of something.

Example: Lay it down there. (put it there)
I shall lay the dictionary down. (put it down)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PRESENT TENSE of lay is lay</th>
<th>PAST TENSE of lay is laid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Singular</td>
<td>Plural</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I lay</td>
<td>you lay</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you lay</td>
<td>they lay</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PAST PARTICIPLE of lay is laid

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I have laid</td>
<td>we have laid</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you have laid</td>
<td>you have laid</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it has laid</td>
<td>they have laid</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HINTS TO HELP

1. Lay always takes an object. An object is a word receiving the action from the subject. Clare lays the book down.
   S. V. O.
   An object answers the question what or whom.

2. If you can use place or put instead of to lay, then use a form of this verb.
Meaning of Lie — to rest, the resting there, to recline, a resting position, to stay.

Example:

Lie down and try to rest. (position of rest)
The dictionary lies open ready for use. (stays)
The responsibility will lie on her shoulders. (rest)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PRESENT TENSE of lie is lie</th>
<th>PAST TENSE of lie is lay</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Singular</td>
<td>Plural</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I lie</td>
<td>we lie</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you lie</td>
<td>you lie</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>she lies</td>
<td>they lie</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PAST PARTICIPLE of lie is lain

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I have lain</td>
<td>we have lain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you have lain</td>
<td>you have lain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it has lain</td>
<td>they have lain</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HINTS TO HELP

1. Lie never takes an object
2. The words place or put cannot be used instead of the verb to lie.

SIT — SET

The sit/set combination follows the lie/lay pattern. You could pair up set/lay as one pattern and sit/lie as another pattern. Notice the line under the i in sit and lie. If you can remember how to use lie, you'll have no trouble with sit.
Meaning of Set — to put, place something

Example: You set a typewriter down. (to place)
Set that flower there. (to put)

Present Tense of set is set

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I set</td>
<td>we set</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you set</td>
<td>you set</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it sets</td>
<td>they set</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Past Tense of set is set

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I have set</td>
<td>we have set</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you have set</td>
<td>you have set</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>it has set</td>
<td>they have set</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Hints to Help

1. Set takes an object. (Object answer what or whom)
2. If you can use put or place instead of to set, then use a form of this verb.

Meaning of Sit — to take a sitting position, to be in place.

Example: Please sit here. (take a position)

Present Tense of sit is sit

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I sit</td>
<td>we sit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you sit</td>
<td>you sit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>she sits</td>
<td>they sit</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Past Tense of sit is sat

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I sat</td>
<td>we sat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you sat</td>
<td>you sat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>she sat</td>
<td>they sat</td>
</tr>

RAISE — RISE

Meaning of Raise — to lift, to set upright

Example:

Raise the bridge. (to lift)

Raise the flower that fell. (set upright)

Meaning of Rise — to get up, to move up, come up

Example:

All rise for the judge. (to get up)

She will rise to become president. (to move up)

HINTS TO HELP

1. Keep this summary of tenses in mind when deciding which word to choose.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Present</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>raise</td>
<td>raise</td>
<td>raised</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rise</td>
<td>rise</td>
<td>rose</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>risen</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

2. Raise needs an object.

3. Rise does not need an object.

SHALL — WILL

Refer to page 23, Future Tense Section. Notice that shall is used in the FUTURE TENSE, first person. Other tenses use will.
SHOULD — WOULD

1. Should and would are past tenses of shall and will and are used in their place.
2. Should shows a condition when referring to the present and used with I and we as subjects. (I should visit her.)
3. Would shows a condition when referring to the present and used the same as will.

CAPITALIZATION

You are con...ing close to the end of this unit on Written Communications. Although this section is one of the last, it is VERY IMPORTANT.

Besides making thoughts clearer for the reader, capital letters are powerful tools that help to SHAKE the reader's ATTENTION

OF COURSE, LIKE ANYTHING ELSE, OVER-CAPITALIZATION MAY TURN THE READER OFF.

Don't let this section TuRn YoU OFF ..................... LET'S GO GO GO GO GO GO

Although capitalization is sometimes used in business correspondence for effect, there are well-established rules that apply to any type of writing. A few of these rules are given here. A good business reference manual will help you solve most capitalization problems.

1. Capitalize the first word of a sentence.

2. Capitalize proper nouns and adjectives that come from them.
   - Proper nouns are the names of specific persons, places, things. (Gloria, Madrid, Stanislaus National Forest, Ford car)
   - Adjectives modify nouns (in this case sometimes called proper adjectives because they refer to proper nouns) Example: South American

3. Capitalize the days of the week, the months of the year and holidays or special events. (Monday, May, Easter, National Secretary Week)

4. Capitalize the first letters of the main words in titles of books, newspapers, and magazines. Underline the remaining letters.
   - Stockton Record, Newsweek, Polk's City Directory
   - Note: Styles differ from business to business

5. Capitalize names of points of the compass when they refer to specific parts of the country or when used with other proper names. Do not capitalize when they show simple direction or compass points.

6. Capitalize important events and documents. (World Series, Annual Sale)
7. Capitalized nouns that come before a figure. Unit 58  Line 45  Code 8

8. Capitalized religions, languages, races, and nationalities.
   - Baptist
   - Spanish
   - Indian
   - Chinese

9. Capitalized the pronoun 'I' anywhere in the sentence.

10. Capitalized titles preceding professional, business, civic, religious, military, and family names.
    - Assemblyman Brown
    - The Reverend Mr. Williams
    - Chairperson Lu

   Titles following names are not usually capitalized unless the person is a high government official.
    - Jose Martinez, chairperson of the ...........
    - Mr. McDuff, Assemblyman of .............

   A title that refers to a certain person and is used in place of the person’s name is capitalized.
    - Does Dad have a day off tomorrow?
    - The Mayor of San Francisco issued a statement.

   When words occur that are not used in place of personal names, they are not capitalized.
    - Our dad does have a day off tomorrow.

   Titles of office holders in organizations are usually capitalized when they are in minutes, rules, or reports.

ONE MORE SECTION TO GO AND YOU ARE FINISHED WITH WRITTEN COMMUNICATIONS
Can we bring it all together? Are we ready to write simple, clear notes or messages while on the job? Here is a true story that caused some problems.

Bill’s boss said this to him while on her way to a meeting early Monday morning.

“Bill, would you please put a notice on the employees’ bulletin board? Tell them there will be a meeting tomorrow in Room 3 for anyone interested in the Clerk III exam coming up next week.”

“What time is the meeting, Ms. Washington?” asked Bill.

“Oh, make it 2 p.m.,” Ms. Washington replied as she rushed out.

Bill typed this message:

IMPORTANT NOTICE

All employees interested in the Clerk III exam should meet in Room 3 tomorrow at 2:00 p.m.

He tacked the notice on the board about 9 a.m. Monday morning.

Karen was sick Monday and stayed home from work. Tuesday she felt fine and came to work. As she passed the Employees Bulletin Board, she scanned the announcements. To her surprise and delight, she read Bill’s note about the Clerk III meeting.

“Great! I sure want to find out about that exam. I’ve been waiting for months. This is my chance to advance. I’ll be the first one there tomorrow.” she thought to herself.

On Wednesday, at 2 p.m. Karen was the only person in that room. She remained there until 2:15. When no one else showed up, she left feeling very confused and very, very angry.

Activity 32

Go to the ACTIVITIES SECTION, page 39, and follow instructions.
Here are a few simple rules to follow when composing messages or notes while on the job.

- Be sure of your facts. Ask the person giving you the information to repeat it if you're not sure.
- Check the calendar for dates.
- Try to keep your sentences short.
- After the message has been composed and typed, PROOFREAD it carefully for:
  1. Correct facts.
  2. Spelling errors.
  3. Typing errors, especially numbers involving dates and time.

Some of your notes or messages will be done in your own handwriting. Please write clearly. KEEP THAT READER IN MIND.

You will be given a series of JOBS. Each JOB requires the composing of a message. Try to make your messages short, clear, correct, and complete. If dates are necessary, use the current calendar year.

CONTRATULATIONS! You have just taken a giant step on the road to clear written communications. Now that you have completed this unit, be sure to take the Post-test.
This unit on Written Communications has been created to meet the following Performance Objectives:

Number 116.01.01 Given 20 sentences, some of which are incomplete, the student will identify the incomplete sentences with 80% accuracy.

116.01.02 Given 5 incomplete sentences, the student will rewrite them into complete sentences with 80% accuracy.

116.01.03 Given a dictionary and 5 sentences containing errors in word usage, the student will correct the sentences with 80% accuracy.

116.01.04 Given simple/compound sentences with punctuation omitted, the student will punctuate the sentences with 80% of the sentences punctuated accurately.

116.01.05 Given 5 simple sentences with capitalization not indicated, the student will capitalize where necessary with 80% accuracy.

116.01.06 Given a job-related situation requiring a note or message, the student will write a brief statement which conveys the essence of the message and contains no serious defects in word usage or punctuation.

The total Written Communications module consists of:

A Teacher Guide containing:
   ...A Pre-Test
   ...Two Post-tests
   ...Answers to the Pre- and Post-Tests
   ...Answers to the student ACTIVITIES and JOBS
   ...General Information

A nonconsumable student booklet called a "Student Manual" containing what is to be learned.

A consumable student workbook called "Student Working Papers" containing:
   ...Student Progress Charts
   ...Exercises arranged so that the student does the work on the pages provided.
   ...Answers to the exercises.

Three prerecorded cassette tapes.

*As stated in the California Business Education Program Guide for Office & Distributive Occupations developed by the Bureau of Business Education, California State Department of Education.
Materials necessary for implementation of this unit:

1. Every student must have a pen, pencil or typewriter.

2. A tape recorder (listening only) is required for three activities at the end of the unit. If individualized instruction is being used, earphones for the tape recorder should be provided.

3. Several good dictionaries. (Standard college dictionaries such as Funk & Wagnalls or Merriam-Webster)

4. Not absolutely necessary but good to have:
   ...Several Secretarial Manuals from various publishers.
   ...Business English textbooks from various publishers.
   ...Copies of English textbooks used in the local school system. (Grades nine through twelve)
   ...Several copies of good Handbooks to English. (For example, Harbrace or McGraw-Hill)
   ...Subscription to the local daily newspaper.

5. Material from publishing companies to be used by students who need more help than this unit can provide. The teacher should prescribe, rather than have the student browse through.

Teacher Preparation

Before going further, it is strongly recommended that the teacher read through the student booklet. This will help you understand several points being made in the remaining pages of this Teacher Guide. It is also suggested that the teacher skim the student exercises called ACTIVITIES and JOBS.

The examples created in much of the total work are aimed toward a broad business world. This was done because students working in the Common Core may have many different goals from "seeing what it's all about" to specific job classifications in Office or Distributive Occupations.

This unit is fairly long with much student activity. Survey after survey, advisory committees, local business people, teachers and tests indicate that students have difficulty writing. The Written Communications unit provides some of that needed practice so necessary for skill improvement.

General Statements

Certain points need to be made in order to use this unit of instruction effectively.

1. Writing is a skill. To improve that skill, practice under direction is vital.

2. Written communications cannot be "taught" or "learned" through one unit of instruction. The teacher must monitor student's work in such a manner that grammar, punctuation, spelling, and sentence structure will constantly be in the forefront no matter what the student is doing. For example, all messages taken from telephone conversations in the Telephone Unit or students asking questions concerning the Ten Key Adding Machine Unit must comply with good English techniques.
3. Themes, essays, compositions or any form of written communications the student embarks upon requires much teacher input. Unless the teacher guides the student through written exercises, little is accomplished. The student's work must be read and the teacher's reactions given soon after a problem is completed. Long time lapses between problem completion and teacher comments, or no teacher input results in minimal skill development. Good class management with students acting as aides will help to release the teacher so papers may be checked “on the spot”.

4. The teacher needs to be well verse in materials available for further study should students require additional help. These materials must be ready to use and pertinent to the individual student’s problem.

5. Articulation with the English Department of the local school system is necessary. Rapport should be established. The English Department could be made a part of the Business Team.

6. Students should be encouraged to read as much as possible. Reading does help writing skills. Office or Distributive Occupation material should be readily available.

7. The material covered in this unit is not everything one needs to know about Written Communications to work in business. It teaches to the six objectives listed earlier, and for office students, it leaves room to expand in the Office Core and the various job classifications.

Evaluation of Student Progress

As was mentioned earlier, Written Communications needs teacher input. You cannot give students this Unit and have them do their own thing. The Unit is designed to allow students to read and practice what they read through individual work assignments called ACTIVITIES. Your input comes into the picture through work assignments called JOBS.

1. ACTIVITIES
   Immediately upon completing an ACTIVITY, a student checks his work against a key that is provided within the UNIT. This allows for immediate feedback to the student as to his understanding of the material just covered. If the student does well, he moves on in the Unit. Should he run into trouble, the CHART refers him to the teacher. This safety valve helps the student contact the teacher when performance indicates that help is required.

   Notice that there are times in the ACTIVITIES Section of the Unit where the student is directed to go no further until the teacher has checked his PROGRESS CHART. It is hoped that this can be done right in the classroom during class time rather than to have the student hand in the sheet and wait several days for it to be returned. The PROGRESS CHART is so designed that a quick glance reveals:
a. Students acceleration rate. (Date Completed Column)

b. Students overall success:

...If there are many check marks in the "See Your Teacher Right Away" section, you know the student is having a problem with this Unit.

...If most check marks are concentrated in the Excellent section, you may wish to ask a few simple questions pertaining to the content of the unit completed by the student thus far.

If satisfactory answers are given, sign the PROGRESS CHART and encourage the student to continue.

If unsatisfactory answers occur, there are several assumptions that could be checked out. For example, the student may have forgotten, had a difficult time with self-evaluation or just plain cheats. Your positive approach towards job competency skills should help overcome this problem.

2. JOBS

JOBS are completed by the student and turned in to the teacher for approval. The JOBS are constructed in such a manner that students must create some form of written communications, observe misuses of grammar, etc. Your PROMPT return of the student's work gives that person encouragement, a sense of progress and above all, a feeling that someone cares.

None of the JOBS involve much work on your part. You will, however, discover areas where remedial or supplemental help is required.

Please evaluate each paper according to these values:

Good — meaning that everything is satisfactory.

Fair — meaning that there was a slight problem; however, in your judgment, it can be remedied by a simple teacher comment.

See me — Here is where you, as an instructional strategist, could really provide the necessary expertise. The student must see you for further help. This help comes in a multitude of shapes and styles. You, as an individual teacher, now have the unusual and unique opportunity to provide what no text or printed paper can . . . the one-to-one human touch.

Teaching Strategies

The word "strategy" comes from the military and at one time meant the office of a general (generalship) or the leader of an army (Cæsar). Now one of its meanings is a plan or technique to achieve some goal. It is important that this concept be kept in mind when implementing the Unit. As a leader who knows various methods and techniques, you will create plans to improve your students' skills. If you are attempting to individualize your class, this unit is but one arrow in your arsenal. What follows are some suggestions on how to use the arrow effectively. You will certainly find other ways. Perhaps the best way for some students might be not to use the unit at all! Not everyone learns the same way.

One of the benefits of individualization is that it can quickly point to flaws in skill development. One of the hazards is that this newly discovered flaw could easily remain just that unless the teacher is a good manager. The PRE-TEST will help you discover flaws. It will be up to you to decide what to do after the discovery. Below are several possibilities:

1. The PRE-TEST is divided into Five Parts. The Student Working Papers are also divided into five parts, each part corresponding to the PRE-TEST parts. A student should only work through the Unit and Student Working Papers that correspond to the parts he/she failed on the PRE-TEST. Failure would be less than 70%.

2. If the PRE-TEST shows the student missing over half of the questions, you could assume several possibilities:
   a. This student is poor in most English skills.
   b. This student may be deficient in reading.
   c. This student couldn't care less about Written Communications.

3. Whatever else you do, it seems that a reading test should be priority Number One. If the student is reading at the 6th grade level or below, you should have some plan in mind to help bring that skill up. No, we are not reading experts. Your school system should be able to help you. Knowing who is having problems in reading is a must because this flaw will affect everything the student does in your class.

4. If the PRE-TEST score was very low and reading is not the problem, have the student go through the unit, but monitor him carefully. The low score may be attitudinal and you could greatly influence that attitude by showing that you really care.

Students should be able to help other students. There should be a freedom (within reason) to discuss some of the work with other students, especially when the JOBS are being done.

The student may show a weakness in only one area out of six in this Unit. Don't hesitate to have her do that area only and skip the rest. Why bore someone with unnecessary activity.

Records are important. Records are not so important that they interfere with the teaching process. Have students keep their own records as much as possible. It gives them instant feedback as to progress as well as a feeling of trust and responsibility.
Give students as much of an opportunity to compose messages outside of this Unit as you can.

1. Late-to-class or absent students should compose an acceptable message to the teacher stating the time, date, and reason.

2. Requests for individual help might take the form of a written message placed in a certain tray, tacked on a board or whatever. The teacher would take the messages on a rotational basis and only if written in acceptable grammar, etc. (This is a working system in one classroom in this state. Recently a message came through with the student's name and one word... HELP!... Certainly an acceptable, clear message that brought quick teacher response.)

As was stated in the General Comments section, page 3, of this Teacher Guide, material must be available for students who need more practice, further explanation, or a different approach to the presentation of the concept. The teacher should rely heavily on assigning material from various publishers. Each author has a slightly different method or technique. One strategy that might be used is this sentence:

1. The student just finished Simple Sentences, page 7 and you discover that she cannot recognize a simple sentence. Create a special plan for her. It might be wise to have a sheet of paper and actually construct the plan in her presence. The plan would spell out exactly what she is to do and include the amount of time both you and she feel it could be done.

2. In this case you might assign her some reading about the simple sentence in a book such as English 2600 by Blumenthal published by Harcourt, Brace & World. If her reading level is low, she might be assigned the Junior High text in the same series (English 2200).

3. You file the plan in a tickler file.

4. On the due date, or before if she finishes early, you could give her an oral test, or assign something from English the Easy Way by Schachter, South-Western Publishing Co. or the Troubleshooter series by Benner published by Houghton Mifflin Co. as a test of her knowledge and understanding of a simple sentence.

These brief side trips into other texts are invaluable simply because you are calling on experts to help you solve a particular problem. You will find that five or so copies of each text will be enough to take care of most of your needs. The books listed above are but a few in the field. Conventions, workshops, other teachers, English teachers, and publishing company sales representatives are good sources for meeting your particular requirements.

Grading

The Performance Objective (see top of first page of Teacher Guide to Common Core, Written Communications) calls for 80% accuracy as passing. This could also be defined as a "C" letter grade. Your philosophy, the department's policy, or local job requirements might determine deviations from the 80% figure.

Some teacher may wish to have a student work through the entire unit with only one goal in mind... to pass the final Post-Test. Others may feel that grading an ACTIVITY or JOB now and then helps students. Still others may wish to grade everything a student does. The Unit was designed for maximum flexibility and could fit any of the above.

Final Tip... Make a copy of each audio tape in case the master is destroyed.

Job 17

This is a rough assignment. I never did one of these before. My teacher, Ms. Taylor, said the resume is a very important tool for job hunting. Mr. Smith and the Reverend Mr. Collings gave their approval so I’ll be able to use them as references. Now what other facts do I have to gather?

I had some babysitting experience with the mayor’s children. Oh yea, delivering the _L. A. Times_ for six months last year should be included.

Should I mention traveling down South Labor Day. I’ll ask Ms. Taylor. My being president of our F.B.L.A. club must be listed. Perhaps it would be easier if I started writing these facts down.

See next page for Job 18.
Teacher Key to the three audio tapes for JOBS 18, 19, and 20.

General Points:
1. Students should, if at all possible, try to listen to the tape only once.
2. These are suggested solutions. Students may create messages of superior quality. Some could easily find these too cold and would rather humanize their messages. (Hi ya, Bill. How's everything?) All well and good, however, watch for wordiness, appropriateness, and good taste.
3. Sentences should be complete. (Not verbatim from the tape.)
4. Punctuation and word usage should be accurate.

Job 18
Carl

Mr. Gomez asked me to write you this note. Move the Mom’s Root Beer next to the potato chips tonight. Mr. Gomez thinks we might sell more chips because of the special on Mom’s this weekend.

Jerry

Points to look for:
... Name of person note intended for ... Carl
... Writer should say that Mr. Gomez told him to do this.
... What should Carl do? ... move the root beer next to the chips.
... Explain why Mr. Gomez wants this done ... sale this weekend might sell more chips.
... Either typed or signed name of writer ... Jerry

Job 19
Larry

Mr. Coleman in Accounting called. He wants to know what happened to the order for 1,000 invoices he placed with us last Thursday.

Stan

Points to look for:
... Name of person note intended for ... Larry
... Are all facts there:
1. Mr. Coleman in Accounting called
2. What happened to the order?
3. 1,000 invoices ordered.
4. Ordered last Thursday
... Either typed or signed name of writer ... Stan
Teacher Key to the three audio tapes for JOBS 18, 19, and 20, continued.

Job 20

To Sandwich Machine Vendor

Machine Number 3 is giving the wrong change. Please repair.

Ms. Yee

Points to look for:

... What machine is causing trouble? ... No. 3
... What is wrong? ... giving wrong change
... Either typed or signed name of writer.

Mrs. Hope

When you were sick last week Monday, May 4, you used your last day of sick leave. If you have any questions, please see Ms. Washington.

Ms. Yee

Points to look for:

... Name of person note intended for ... Mrs. Hope
... Are all the facts there:
   1. Besides the day of the week (Monday), it is always wise to put the calendar number in.
   2. Used last day of sick leave.
   3. Any questions, see Ms. Washington.
... Either typed or signed name of writer ... Ms. Yee

You do not hand anything in to the teacher. When you finish the job, go to page 18 in the Student Manual and continue reading.

JOB 8

Listen very carefully to others speak for the next two days. Keep a list of mistakes you hear involving singular/plural disagreement. Type or use good handwriting and give your list to the teacher. For each mistake you list, make the proper correction. Your name, Written Communications and JOB 8 should be on the paper.

Construct a longer sentence for each of the group of words listed in GUIDE ONE. For example: I talk to my friend daily.

Type or use good handwriting and give your sentences to the teacher. Be sure JOB 8 is on this paper also.

JOB 9

Look through a current newspaper and find one example for each of the ten GUIDES. Either cut the copy out of the paper and tape or paste each example (along with a copy of the proper GUIDE), or copy each one by typing or using your best handwriting. When you finish, give your paper to the teacher. Remember to put JOB 9 on your paper as well as your name.
JOB 10

Construct two sentences for each of the ten GUIDES. First give the GUIDE, then your two sentences, then the next GUIDE, and your two sentences, etc.

When you finish, give your paper to the teacher. Be sure JOB 10 and your name is on it.

JOB 11

Correct and re-type the following paragraphs. When you finish, give your paper to the teacher. Is JOB 11 as well as your name on the paper?

Jim and Paul was going to the park. Each were thinking about the ballgame. As they came close to the stadium, a familiar aroma was in the air. Hot dogs and hamburgers was being sold. Everyone were buying one, but the two boys had just enough money for the tickets.

Jim, along with Paul, were very excited. Everyone were shoving and pushing, but they finally got in. "Is you going to find a seat," asked Paul?

Jim said, "No, I are going to stand."

Paul didn’t think this are very funny.

"Here come the team on the field," yelled Paul.

Now both teams were ready to go. The home-team captain, along with two players, were introduced. Everything was all set to go.

"Stop!" screamed Paul.

Everyone in the stadium were looking at Paul. It was awfully quiet. The loudspeaker made this announcement:

JIM OR PAUL IS GOING TO FIND A SEAT FIRST.
JOB 12

Write the PRESENT TENSE, PAST TENSE, FUTURE TENSE, singular and plural, all three persons for the words that are given.

When you finish, check your work with the key on Page 34.

chooses begin build

Do two out of the three JOBS given below: Jobs 13, 14 or 15.

JOB 13

Some people say the most difficult words to use correctly in sentences are shall/will, lie/lay, sit/set. What do you think? Would you like to take a mini survey?

Ask students, friends or family (not members of the class doing this section) several questions and record your answers. Give the results to your teacher. Try asking about ten people.

Questions:

1. Which is correct?
   a. I am going to lie down.
   b. I am going to lay down.

2. Which is correct?
   a. I shall go home.
   b. I will go home.

3. Which is correct?
   a. They will sit the TV in place.
   b. They will set the TV in place.

4. Which is correct?
   a. Lie it over there.
   b. Lay it over there.
JOB 14

Ask someone to slowly read the following sentences while you listen. Immediately after each sentence is read, make a choice of either lay/lie or sit/set.

When all ten sentences have been read, compare your answers with those in the key provided on Page 34. If you made any mistakes, find out why by going to the proper section in the unit.

After you finish, give your answer sheet to your teacher. Be sure that JOB 14 is on it.

List of Sentences

Directions to reader: THE SENTENCE SHOULD BE READ TWICE — once with each word.

Example: I (lay, lie) down.
Reader reads: “I lay down.”
“I lie down.”
