IDENTIFIERS Florida

ABSTRACT These 24 self-contained competency-based modules are designed to acquaint Florida adult students with laws they will meet in everyday life; fundamentals of local, state, and federal governments; and the criminal and juvenile justice systems. (The 130 objectives are categorized in the first three levels of the Cognitive Domain and parallel the Adult Performance Level competencies.) Rationale and terminal performance objectives are first presented. Each module may contain some or all of the following: objectives, vocabulary list with definitions, enabling activities, resources needed, synopsis of film(s) listed as resources, and handout(s). Topics covered include need for laws, driving laws and signs, voting duties and responsibilities of citizens, consumer law, citizen rights, legal importance of name, need for lawyer, legal documents, social legislation, Florida police, local government, elected county government, state officials, Florida governor, Florida laws, how a bill becomes a law (state and federal), powers of the president, United States Court System, Miranda warnings, felonies versus misdemeanors, court appearances, juvenile justice system, and juvenile delinquent and PINS (Persons in Need of Supervision). Other materials include an answer sheet, competency task matrix, and bibliography. Also, teacher's instructional guide is attached. (YLB)

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Acknowledgement is extended to John E. Lawrence, Administrator of Adult and Community Education, Department of Education, Tallahassee, Florida, and his staff, for their far-sightedness in the development of pertinent materials for the advancement of quality education for the adult learner.

Appreciation is expressed to Richard C. Wells, Superintendent, and the Flagler County School Board for their support and dedication for the improvement and advancement of the Adult Education Program within Flagler County and the state of Florida.

*****

Special recognition to E. L. (Buddy) Taylor, Director of Adult and Community Education, Flagler County School Board. Mr. Taylor was the originator of the 310 SOFLAIR Grant Project—the outcome of which is KNOW YOUR LAWS.

A very special thanks to Ruth C. Hamm, Office Manager of the Adult and Community Education, Flagler County School Board. Mrs. Hamm's expertise is exhibited in the editing and the typing of this text. It was through her dedication and perseverance that KNOW YOUR LAWS was completed.

Acknowledgement is conveyed to the members of the Florida Bar Association and the Florida Law Enforcement Agencies of Flagler and Volusia Counties for their excellent cooperation and contribution.

RATIONALE

The purpose of Know Your Laws is to acquaint the student with the laws he or she will encounter in everyday life, and the fundamentals of our local, state and federal governments and our criminal and juvenile justice system. Emphasis will be placed on Florida laws, consumer application needs, legal documents and social legislation.

TERMINAL PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVE

For the student, your primary goal is to become knowledgeable of the laws on the local, state and federal levels as stated in Know Your Laws. Upon completion of one or all twenty-four (24) modules, the student must achieve a passing score of 70%. The satisfactory passing score of 70% and the ability to demonstrate proficiency and practical application in comprehending and utilizing legal terminology and obeying the laws indicates a student can successfully interact in the mainstream of our American society.

HANDOUT--Laws Throughout the Ages

Code of Hammurabi

The Code of Hammurabi is one of the earliest lists of laws. This list was put together around 1790 B.C. on the orders of Hammurabi. Hammurabi was the king of ancient Babylonia. Babylonia is now the country of Iraq. A listing of laws is called a "Code." The Code of Hammurabi was chiseled in stone. The Code of Hammurabi can be found in a museum in Paris and the writing is still readable. Some of the laws of this Code are stated above and list punishment for wrongdoers.

The Ten Commandments

Another code of law came from the Middle East. This was called the Ten Commandments, or the Law of Moses. Moses was the leader of the Jewish people. Thus, the code sums up the religious rules/laws of the Jewish people. The Ten Commandments are moral rules. They are rules for telling what is right from wrong. Unlike the Code of Hammurabi, the Ten Commandments do not list punishment for wrongdoers. Through the ages the Ten Commandments have had an effect on Christians, Moslems and some ideas are found in United States laws.

Roman Laws: Laws of the Timeline Tables

The Romans were one of the great civilizations of the world. Roman laws were fairly simple and school children were made to memorize the laws. The laws were arranged on timeline stone tables. This code, called Laws of the Twelve Tables, was written around 450 B.C. Of special importance was the Roman idea—that certain principles of justice applied to all people. They called these principles "natural law." These principles of "natural law" are thoughts expressed in our Declaration of Independence.

Code of Justinian (533-534 A.D.)

The Code of Justinian originated by order of Justinian I, emperor of Constantinople, a part of the Eastern Roman Empire. After the collapse of the Roman civilization, Justinian I ordered his lawyers to draw up a list of the best Roman laws. From this list, the lawyers produced a new code of law. It was called The Code of Justinian, or "The Body of Civil Law." Throughout the years, the Code of Justinian was updated, especially under the French emperor, Napoleon.

The Code of Justinian differs from our modern laws in many ways. For example: theft was not considered a crime, but a dispute between two people was. The victim had to sue the thief. If the victim won, the thief would have to repay the victim. The code gave both married and unmarried women the right to own property and to make legal agreements. There are still some nations throughout the world that do not give women certain rights like the above.

Common Law (1154-1189 A.D.)

In the early Middle Ages, English law lacked consistency. Henry II, who ruled England from 1154-1189 A.D. played a major role in reforming the law. He sent judges throughout the country to hold court. Wherever these judges went, they applied the same rules of law. These rules became known as the "Common Law." Common Law is the basis of law for most English-speaking countries throughout the world, including the United States and Great Britain.
"Precedent Common Law" is sometimes called "judge-made-law," because it grew out of the decision (precedent) of judges. Common Law also has many rules (laws) made by law-making bodies, such as the British Parliament in England; in the United States, laws are made by the Congress or the states. Judges who must apply these laws still rely on "precedent"--the decisions of judges in earlier cases.

The Social Security Act of 1935 was the basis for the development of old-age assistance. The original concept of this act was a safety net for the elderly and was never intended to be a primary retirement plan. Since that time, several other benefits have been expanded from this act, i.e., disability aid to dependent children, and certain health benefits.

Module: How a Bill Becomes a Law (Federal and State)

Bill introduced by Congressperson in own house

Bill is given a number and sent to a committee

Committee discusses; may hold public hearing

Committee takes action; may approve or "kill" it

If approved, bill is sent to house for vote

If both houses pass bill, it goes to the President

President may sign bill making it law; veto it; or allow it to become law without signing

If bill is vetoed, a 2/3 vote in both houses makes it law

If passed, goes to other house; same process

If you are arrested, you must be told the police can start to question you:

1. YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN SILENT.
2. ANYTHING YOU SAY CAN BE HELD AGAINST YOU IN A COURT OF LAW.
3. YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO THE PRESENCE OF A LAWYER.
4. IF YOU CAN'T AFFORD A LAWYER, ONE WILL BE APPOINTED FOR YOU BEFORE QUESTIONING, IF YOU WISH.

FACTS ABOUT THE MIRANDA WARNINGS

Suppose you are arrested and accused of a crime. Do you have to answer the questions the police ask? Do you know your rights?

The Fifth Amendment of the Constitution states that no one can be forced to testify against himself or herself. He or she has the right to remain silent.

The United States Supreme Court outlined rules that must be followed by the police when a person is arrested. These rules--the Miranda Warnings--MUST BE READ to the person who is under arrest by the police.

The rules--Miranda Warnings--was the result of a court case called Miranda versus Arizona.

Sight

Many students are unaware of how vital our five senses are and of the importance they play in our daily lives. To be able to see is a gift, but to be aware of what you see is a gift in itself.

I spy

Questions
1. What color eyes do I have?
2. What is the color of my hair?
3. How much do I weigh?
4. Do I have a scar on my face?
5. What color are the clothes I am wearing?
6. Did I carry a weapon?
7. How tall am I?
8. Was I sitting, standing or running?

See how many details you can remember about a fellow student:
1. Look at a fellow student for one minute.
2. Turn your back.
3. Have the student ask you these questions----
Objectives

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Know Your Laws consists of twenty-four (24) competency-based modules. There are 130 objectives which are categorized in the first three (3) levels of the Cognitive Domain. These objectives parallel the Adult Performance Level Competencies in which an adult must demonstrate some degree of functional proficiency in order to succeed.

Vocabulary: Since legal terminology is involved in studying the laws, a vocabulary list with definitions is provided in each module. The teacher should emphasize the importance of the list and have his/her learners become knowledgeable of the vocabulary pertinent to each objective. Vocabulary review is stressed to enhance the student's terminology so that in discussing the laws, he/she will be able to utilize the correct words with regard to specific legal matters.

Enabling Activities: Suggested Enabling Activities are included in each module to assist the student in completing each objective. Field trips are encouraged to the local courts and county jail. This affords the student personal encounters with the law in action. Guest speakers from the Florida Bar Association (local lawyers and judges) and members of our law enforcement community are more adept at discussing and interpreting specific areas of law. Guest speakers also afford the student the opportunity to interact more closely with people directly involved in the law within the community.

In this specific area, the teacher can be flexible by incorporating Enabling Activities that he or she feels would further enhance the completion of each module's objective. Group discussions, role playing and mock voting are just some of the group interactive methods used to stimulate complete classroom attention to the specific subject matter. Feel free to be flexible, creative; a learning facilitator who has enthusiasm and spontaneity which will be contagious. When reinforcing, incorporate new interests and approaches. Please tell the learners of their progress and improvement, as an additional incentive is provided by the knowledge of progress. Most important of all, a democratic climate promotes learning, and motivation can carry a learner to new heights of individual achievement.

Resources: To support each module, free resources have been gathered from various sources of the federal, state and local government printing offices. Here again, be flexible. If you have any government booklets pertinent to the subject area of a particular module, utilize them. Supplementary reading for each module is listed in the bibliography section.

Film Synopsis: The film synopsis is taken directly from the free Educator's Guide to films. These films correlate closely to the specific subject matter of each module. It is suggested that you order films in advance, so that you receive the films prior to teaching the specific module in which they are included. There are other sources of free films, and these sources should be tapped in the event a specific film cannot be acquired.
Pre/Post Tests: The pre-test can be administered either orally or by reading and answering the true and false questions. On some tests, the student must read certain items. If you have not assessed a learner's reading skills, such a pre-test can be used for this purpose. If the learner cannot read or write the answers, discussing the questions orally will help you determine whether the problem is weak reading and writing skills, or lack of knowledge of the subject area.

As the learner completes each module, you will want to check his or her mastery of the subject matter. The pre/post-tests are sequenced so that each module has a specific group of test questions. Therefore, you may test, utilizing the pre-test up to the specific module the learner has completed. You have the freedom to ask questions similar to those on the pre-test, or administer the pre-test. If, at the end of a module there are areas the student is unable to cope with, then he or she should be channeled back into the specific area for review or referred to supplementary material.

It is suggested that the post-test be given in its entirety upon the learner's completion of all twenty-four (24) modules.

Skills: For these materials, the author has tried to avoid assigning traditional grade levels. Competency-based materials do not follow the traditional vocabulary development designed for grade levels 1-12; therefore, no precise grade level can be assigned. Objectives have been written in the first three (3) levels of the Cognitive Domain, combined with Competency Tasks Matrix, so an approximation would put these materials generally at the 6 to 12 grade levels.

Many activities are included to give the student the opportunity to develop skills. See Know Your Laws Competency Task Matrix (p. 76). Reading and listening are input skills; speaking and writing are output skills. Problem-solving involves the ability of the adult learner to make the best decisions. Various activities have been included in these modules to assist the learners in developing good skills. Some of the materials provided are in the form of hypothetical situations followed by the suggestions for group discussions or simulation of situations involving role playing. The adult learners' interaction assists in the development of an interpersonal relationship with a diversified group of people. The ability of the adult learner to communicate and interact successfully in enabling activities leads to more successful daily coping within his or her community and with people within the community.

Diagnosis and Placement: An adult learner's attention span is longer and interest in learning is higher when the topic being studied is considered by the learner to be personally important. This principle should be applied in moving the learner through the competency-based modules, and this is precisely why the author sequenced the modules from personal to general in accordance with the table of contents.

Along with recognizing the learner's personal areas of interest as he or she perceives them to be, you also need to diagnose the learner's competency level.
Whether you determine these levels formally or informally, it is information you should have.

A formal means of assessing a learner's competency is available from:

The American College Testing Corp.
2201 N. Dodge Street
P. O. Box 168
Iowa City, Iowa 52240

The test is based on the APL original 40-item survey and will tell you the learner's competency level in each of the five (5) knowledge areas.

In order to complete your diagnosis, you also have to determine skill levels of the learners.

Below is a list of some general skill tests used with adults:

The Adult Basic Learning Examination (ABLE)
The Psychological Corporation
757 3rd Avenue
New York, New York 10017

(ABLE is an instrument for determining general education levels of adults who have not completed the eighth (8th) grade. It tests vocabulary, reading, spelling, arithmetic and problem solving)

The Tests of the Adult Basic Education ("\ABE")
California Test Bureau
Del Monte Research Park
Monterey, California 93940

(This test measures an adult's achievement in reading language, arithmetic and spelling. The examination has a locator test and three (3) forms):

- level E (easy)
- level M (medium)
- level D (Difficult)

The Wide Range Achievement Test (WRAT)
The Psychological Corporation
757 3rd Avenue
New York, New York 10017

(This is an individual screening instrument for oral reading, spelling and arithmetic).

It should be clear that there is no set order for progression through the series of twenty-four (24) modules. You may use one or all 24 modules as each is a self-contained unit of learning with a test measurement.
