Designed to be both process and product oriented, the workshop was held to study secondary educational opportunities for migrant students to develop working policies to complement existing school programs. Objectives were to: create an awareness of the unique characteristics, education needs, and barriers preventing full access to quality education for migrant secondary students; identify promising approaches to creating effective interstate secondary education programs for migrant secondary students; and develop alternative policy statements that can be used by decision makers as a foundation for creating secondary education opportunities, including interstate/district credit accrual-exchange opportunities for migrant students. Representing 28 states, the more than 197 participants included Chief State School Officers, state migrant education personnel, state and local board members and superintendents, principals, and migrant program staff. The participants collectively developed nine resolutions pertaining to: graduation requirements; state efforts in identification, recruitment, enrollment and provision of educational services; state and nationwide dissemination of information on secondary programs; implementation of appropriate testing schedules; communication of high school credit requirements; parental involvement in educational process; state commitment of resources; interagency cooperation; and coordination of state and local resources. Appendices include the participant workbook, workshop agenda, and list of participating states and participants. (NQA)

I. FOREWORD

We have a public school system that admittedly has existed on the dreams of people like Thomas Jefferson, who believed that the single most important thing that government could do for its people is put them together with the ability to enlarge their intellect and their ability to learn. He foresaw the importance of universal educational equal opportunity as the very foundation of the America that he and the founding fathers dreamed of.

We have faltered along the way, but one of the exciting things we can do today is to get involved with the problems of population-- like the migrants--and look at it as a challenge to meet the promises of people like Thomas Jefferson. It then begins to be fun, because one can say, "Here I am in a position with an opportunity to form public policy and goals for the future, and indeed it all hasn't been done before me by somebody else." Here is a place where we still have a challenge. We still have an opportunity that is every bit as challenging as it was for the people who developed the first one-room schoolhouses all across the country.

I know of no better opportunity to apply the very best qualities which have helped make this country great, than the opportunities that still lay ahead of us with populations like, but not exclusively limited to, the migrant children.

Migrant farmworkers are among the most noble citizens we have. I am proud to have a chance to work with you so that life can be better for them and their children. Those of you who come here, come because you have a commitment to education and because you are proven people of goodwill. You have a very special obligation placed on you to help those people who nobody else really wants to help.

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM D. FORD
Member of U.S. House of Representative

II. WELCOME

We know what the problem is for migrant secondary students; we have several good models throughout the nation, but we have not yet devised a way of taking these successes out of isolation and replicating them in another. That is, a place where you have a strong local group, a strong school district, a strong commitment, and a strong staff enables you to get these things done. But we must now find a means to take successes out of one place, and move them to educational systems in other states.

I am hopeful that this National Policy Workshop will provide us with a national framework on which each migrant student can build a successful educational experience. We want to offer those young people three things: One, an environment in which to learn; two, credit towards graduation wherever that credit is earned; and three, freedom from the burden of guilt that is present in many situations for not giving the family economic support.

III. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

On August 16-20, 1981, a National Policy Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students was held in Seattle, Washington, in an effort to study secondary educational opportunities for migrant students with the goal of developing working policies to complement existing school programs. The Workshop was sponsored under the aegis of Congressman William D. Ford, the Chairman of the ECS Interstate Migrant Education Task Force, the National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education, the U.S. Dept. of Education and several other educational organizations. The goals of the Workshop were to:

1. Heighten the awareness among the participants concerning problems, needs, promising approaches, and potential solutions for migrant secondary students.

2. Create general realistic recommendations by educational policy makers in national organizations and at the federal, state and local levels of governance.

3. Develop policy resolutions that would lead to the establishment of national procedures that would ensure inter/intra state reciprocity of secondary exchange and accrual agreements within and across state borders.

Over one hundred ninety-seven (197) people from twenty eight states attended the Workshop.

Members of the Chief State School Officers, state and local superintendents, principals, State Migrant Education personnel and migrant project staff met in both small group sessions according to position/regional designation and in general assembly.

Topics addressed in the small group sessions included reports to the general assembly on:

- Analysis and definition of issues relating to roles and responsibilities in serving migrant secondary students.

- Discussion of promising approaches development of recommendations to improve secondary school programs for migrant students.

- Development of inter/intrastate strategies of who will assist in implementation of programs to serve migrant secondary students.

In combination with general assembly work sessions which also included panel response to work group reports and panel presentations, the participants collectively arrived at a comprehensive list of resolutions (See Section VI for entire list.) Key elements of the recommendations and policy options which evolved were:

1. Development by NASDME of proposals for adopting policies for:
   a) Establishment of reciprocity between districts.
   b) Granting full credit for competence, clock hours or proficiency tests.
   c) Issuing credit on a flexible, fractional basis.
   d) Acceptance and transmittal of coursework.
   e) Acceptance of home base school diplomas.

2. Concerted and coordinated state efforts in identification, recruitment, enrollment and provision of educational services
   a) Compilation and provision of a resource directory.
   b) Improvement and monitoring of MSRTS.

3. Sending states to provide coursework for graduation to include:
   a) Competency test results.
   b) Language(s) of instruction.
   c) Home base school address and phone number.
   d) Individual profile - itinerary pattern so a child's migrancy pattern can be traced.
   e) The transcript to include but not limited to:
      1. Grade level.
      2. What s/he completed (status) regarding requirements.
      3. Graduation requirements and the requirements the student has mastered as they apply to his/her school from which s/he will graduate.
      4. Grade or performance percentage obtained at the time of transfer.
      5. Actual dates of attendance.
      6. When appropriate, a final and/or a semester grade.
      7. Flexibility to change a student's course of study when s/he settles out or the student changes educational goals.
      f) Acceptance of the MSRTS credit accrual form as interim document.
4. State and nationwide dissemination of information on secondary programs.

5. Implementation of appropriate testing schedules; development of prototype schedule.

6. Communication of high school credit requirements; parental involvement in educational process.

7. Encouragement of use of traditional or alternative programs to assist in attainment of high school diploma or equivalent.

8. State commitment of resources; state contact person assigned credit exchange accrual program activities.

9. Interagency cooperation; coordination of state and local resources.

These recommendations and policy options are the outcomes of intensive work on the part of many people and represent a foundation upon which access to education, continuity and achievements can be realized for migrant students. The general body of the Workshop speaks to all parties responsible for the educational welfare of migrant students. These recommendations speak to the federal, state and local levels of decision makers as well as those who have responsibility for program, student records and graduation requirements. Collectively, these statements represent the concern of a diverse group of individuals from many positions of responsibility about the needs of migrant students. But these statements also offer some potential solutions that can be implemented to enhance the educational achievement of migrant students.
IV. HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

A. Introduction & Background

Realization of the National Policy Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students is connected to a series of efforts by many people on behalf of migrant students. These efforts have a legislative and programmatic history which have sought to provide continuity in education services to mobile migrant students. Legislatively, mobile migrant students received congressional recognition as a special needs group when the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 was amended in 1966 to establish a special mechanism which would provide for the needs of migrant children. As noted by Fuentes (1980) "subsequent amendments to ESEA—Title I, related to the migrant experience clearly, expressed congressional recognition of the uniqueness in the education of migrant and mobile students. These amendments also articulated congressional intent to establish a distinct system which can deliver comprehensive educational services effectively and efficiently to migrants and mobile students."

Programmatically, the emphasis for education services to migrant students has focused principally on establishment of state programs for migrant students in preschool through grade six: According to Fuentes (1980), the strong stress on preschool and elementary activities reflects the influence from the original philosophy of Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act which was to concentrate on the early grades to prepare the skills and personality foundation that would assure academic success in the running school years.

Fuentes agreed that it would be difficult to argue against the early grades emphasis approach but concluded that in light of a persistent high dropout rate—ninety (90) percent of migrant students do not graduate—it was blatantly obvious that Title I efforts needed to develop strong secondary education programs.

The ninety (90) percent dropout figure for migrant students had been rumored for some time. Yet, hard data to substantiate the figure was not forthcoming until the National Education Association (1380) scrutinized Migrant Student Record Transfer System (MSRTS) enrollment data. NEA found that there was a total enrollment (unduplicated count) of 422,190 migrant students. The breakdown by broad grade categories and their percentages of total enrollment was:

NEA presented these data to call Congress’ attention to the need for assurances that migrant high school students benefit from amendments to the Higher Education Act and to emphasize the need for educational continuity for migrant farmworker families.

Despite the early emphasis on preschool elementary students, a selected few states initiated programs aimed specifically at migrant secondary students. Examples of some of the programs established to address the 90 percent dropout figure include the Texas—Washington, and New York—Florida Credit Exchange/Accrual programs, the California—Mini-Corps and P.A.S.S. (Portable Assisted Study Sequence) programs, the H.E.P. (High School Equivalency Program) and C.A.M.P. (College Assistance Migrant Program) initially sponsored through the Department of Labor. Among the notable characteristics of many of these programs is their focus on secondary students, inter/intra-state communications, and their general desire to help migrant students succeed beyond the elementary grades.

While such regional efforts did impact a relatively high percentage of students in selected states, by no means were the programs national in scope. The National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education (NASDME) Committee for Secondary Programs for Migrant Students (1980) outlined the problem as follows:

A more detailed breakdown of the migrant high school enrollment showed that there was a decreased enrollment (dropout) between grade levels:

A comparatively high rate of attrition in secondary school participation and correlative low index of graduation for interstate secondary migrant student farmworkers exists.

The Committee identified the problem subsets as follows:

1. Lack of precise statistics describing the extent of the problem, as well as the academic categories (overachievers, achievers, marginal achievers) of secondary students affected.

2. Insufficient understanding of the highest frequency factors that contribute to the deterioration of desire or opportunity to complete secondary education.

3. Incorrect assumptions and inferences about the relationships and dynamics between migratory student farmworkers and school systems; e.g., interpretation of student's and school's capacity to complement each other (school staffs generally infer migrant students do not care for schooling).

4. Lack of local and/or national awareness that a problem exists for both 1) schools and 2) pupils due to student's educational discontinuity; e.g., the local and national effect of reproducing and maintaining secondary migratory students who are educationally dysfunctional.

5. Lack of ability to focus on the problem of pragmatically defining/developing testing solutions and negotiating these solutions (both policy and programmatic) between entities harboring the greatest share of the students; e.g., Texas and states receiving largest exports of secondary school migrant student farmworkers.

6. Lack of inter- and intrastate information dissemination to 1, 2 and 4 aforementioned.

The NASDME Committee outlined several recommendations to address the problem: Three of the recommendations call for a process which, in effect, would lead to establishment of a "national forum" (recommendation No. 7) "to review the problem and seek solutions."

The ECS Task Force under the leadership of its chairman Congressman William D. Ford had called for increased emphasis for secondary students through a series of recommendations beginning in 1977. One of the Task Force recommendations called upon the U.S. Department of Education to:

- host a biannual articulation conference in the Western, Eastern and Central United States, where each agency will compare course offerings, with special emphasis from local education agencies.

In January 1980, the U.S. Department of Education solicited input from the states with regard to Migrant Education activities to be funded under Section 143 of Title I ESEA. The Department of Education hosted a meeting to satisfy the statutory requirements of Section 143: "in consultation with the states..." in developing a set of recommended interstate and intrastate coordination activities. Secondary programs including credit exchange, dropout prevention, career awareness and vocational education, and expansion of programs for secondary students were included on the list of suggested areas for proposed Section 143 monies.

The U.S. Department of Education Section 143 possibility stimulated substantial activity among the states seeking to initiate or expand interstate activities. On June 12-13, 1980, Texas hosted a meeting of various state representatives to address the need for developing and submitting a grant proposal to procure monies from Section 143 Migrant Funds for the purposes of acquiring secondary credit accrual and exchange for secondary migrant students. The two-day workshop focused on several states (Texas, California, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Minnesota, Montana, Ohio, Oregon, New York, North Dakota, and Washington) working together to pursue development of an interstate consortium for purposes of expanding programs for migrant student credit accrual and exchange. One of the proposed activities of the consortium proposal entailed conduct of a national articulation conference aimed at creating awareness and linkages among policy makers from participating states and districts.

The consortium-multistate Section 143 grant application was eventually passed on to three states while searching for an appropriate fiscal agent. Also, as part of the U.S. Department of Education scrutiny and modification, the idea for Section 143 funding for the national articulation conference was lost. Lack of Section 143 funding did not become evident, however, until less than two months before the conference was scheduled to take place.

During the period December 1980 through May 1981, a Committee chaired by Senator John Perry of the Education Commission of the States Interstate Migrant Education Task Force initiated planning activities for conducting the proposed conference. For planning purposes, many of the meetings were conducted under the auspices of the Education Commission of the States, Interstate Migrant Education Project and involved state directors from participating states. A chronology of key meetings leading up to the National Policy Workshop is presented on the following page.

B. IMPLEMENTATION OF AN IDEA

Two key meetings of the National Policy Workshop Committee (Denver January 28, 1981; Seattle March 5, 1981) set the stage for the actual workshop. In these meetings the ECS consultants and staff in conjunction with ECS Task Force members and state representatives from Washington, Texas, California and Florida made several important decisions concerning the Workshop.

First, the Committee decided that the base of professional organizations would be expanded beyond those typically associated with Migrant Education. As a result, key executives or their representatives were asked to serve on the Planning Committee and assist in planning for the Workshop. Representatives from the following associations agreed to assist and provide a communication link with their membership: North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, National Association of Secondary School Principals, American Association of School Administrators, and the Council of Chief State School Officers.

Second, the Committee decided that the focus of the Workshop should be on creating policy resolutions which could then be used at the local, state and national levels to initiate new secondary programs or to strengthen existing programs.

Third, it was decided that the policy resolutions would be developed through a participatory process involving all of the participants. The Committee decided, because of this focus, that what was originally termed a National Articulation Conference would be modified to reflect the emphasis on policy development and the participatory nature of the meeting. This eventually resulted in determination of the final name of the meeting: National Policy Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students.

Fourth, the Committee decided that the majority of invitations to attend the Workshop be sent to individuals in policy making capacities. This decision resulted in a primary target list of potential participants from the following groups: chief state school officers, state school board representatives, local superintendents, principals, state advisory committee representatives, accreditation representatives, state task forces, teacher/counselor personnel, curriculum representatives and state Migrant Educational personnel.

Fifth, the Committee decided that state directors of Migrant Education take the lead in extending invitations to key personnel in their respective states. Representatives of NASDME, as noted in the chronology presented earlier, were involved in deliberations leading up to the Workshop and played a key role in identifying potential participants from the states. Also, where it was necessary and possible, many states contributed by providing travel assistance to the Workshop participants.

Sixth and finally, the Committee decided to seek the continuing support of the national association representatives on the Planning Committee through involvements in letters of endorsement and encouragement of their membership, plus participation in the Workshop.

C. SUMMARY - PLANNING PHASE

As can be noted, the idea for placement of greater priority on migrant secondary students spans several years, and can be traced 1) to a few “voices in the wilderness” who initiated demonstration projects or 2) to individuals and groups with continuing concerns for the nine out of ten migrant students who never receive a high school diploma. It was not, however, until 1981 that a concerted effort was made to establish migrant secondary students as a national priority. The events leading up to the National Policy Workshop, and the individuals and associations who assisted in achievement of the workshop goals, represent a fraction of the work that must be achieved in order to fully realize the concept of quality interstate secondary programs, including effective credit exchange and accrual for migrant students. Nevertheless, the National Policy Workshop created the opportunity for identification, discussion, and resolution, in many instances, of several perplexing problems encountered by this group of students.

V. NATIONAL POLICY WORKSHOP
GOALS, OBJECTIVES & APPROACH

A. GOALS/TARGET AUDIENCE

On August 18-26, 1981, a National Policy Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students was held in Seattle, Washington, in an effort to study secondary educational opportunities for migrant students with the goal of developing working policies to complement existing school programs. The Workshop was sponsored under the aegis of Congressman William D. Ford, the chairman of the ECS interstate Migrant Education Task Force, the National Association of Migrant State Directors of Migrant Education and several other educational organizations. The goals of the Workshop were to:

1. Heighten the awareness among the participants concerning problems, needs, promising approaches, and potential solutions for migrant secondary students.
2. Create general realistic recommendations of considerations by educational policy makers in national organizations and at the federal, state, local levels of governance.
3. Develop policy resolutions that would lead to the establishment of national procedures that would ensure inter/intra state reciprocity of secondary exchange and accrual agreements within and across state borders.

The Workshop Planning Committee viewed the workshop as a first step in expanding secondary school programs to more adequately meet the unique needs of mobile migrant students. The focal point of the Workshop was to identify methods whereby participants could cooperatively enhance migrant students' accumulation of credits toward graduation through interstate or intrastate or interdistrict exchange of credits.

The Committee also determined that participants in the Workshop would include superintendents, assistant superintendents, secondary school principals, teachers, school board members, chief state school officers, migrant educators and representatives from various professional associations.

It was anticipated that representatives from at least thirty-two states would attend the meeting including superintendents, secondary school principals, teachers, school board members, chief state school officers, migrant educators and representatives from various professional associations. The American Association of School Administrators, National Association of Secondary School Principals and Council of Chief State School Officers recognized the need for such a meeting and encouraged participation.

B. OBJECTIVES

Given the stature, diversity and range of background information anticipated among the prospective workshop participants, the Planning Committee determined that the objectives would center on a balance of information dissemination and participatory action leading to development of policy resolutions. The Committee preference was to de-emphasize the typical conference-speeches format and emphasize the participatory aspect. This would result in that talents, perspectives and knowledge of all participants could be utilized to help shape nationwide policy recommendations for migrant secondary programs. These Committee decisions are reflected in the Workshop objectives which are listed below:

1. To review the literature on the importance of school administrators in effective school programs and discuss the role of administrators in implementing educational improvements.
2. To provide a framework for understanding the problems posed by mobility for students and the education system.
3. To provide examples of migrant secondary programs that are currently operating.
4. To analyze the cyclical process of serving migrant students and identify the ideal roles and responsibilities of teachers, Migrant Students Records Transfer System operators, clerks, counselors, identification and recruitment staff, principals, superintendents and state agency staff in sending and receiving states and who are responsible for serving migrant secondary school students.
5. To describe a) how educators see their roles in improving services to migrant students, and b) what critical issues and barriers educators have identified in order to improve services.
6. To develop policy recommendations identifying how to improve secondary school programs for migrant students in order to: a) reduce dropouts, b) improve student achievements, and c) create post secondary opportunities.
7. To develop interstate and intrastate plans to expand and improve secondary school programs for migrant students.
C. APPROACH

As can be noted, the Workshop Committee arrived at a fairly substantial list of desired objectives to achieve in a two-day period. (A complete description of each objective is provided in the participant workbook contained in Appendix A).

To achieve these objectives and the desired outcomes, the staff utilized the combined expertise of members of the Interstate Migrant Education Project, state Migrant Education personnel, project staff and Washington State Migrant Education staff in a variety of capacities. These included roles as group moderators, recorders, resource persons, panelists and speakers.

The Workshop agenda (presented in its entirety in Appendix B) was structured in such a fashion to minimize formal presentations. Rather, presentations were brief and tied to specific work group objectives. The workshop participants were divided by professional position, e.g., chiefs or deputy chiefs, superintendents, and principals into five working groups for the first day-and-one-half. Each group was chaired by a moderator; these persons were generally representatives from the ECS Task Force. Each work group also contained a resource person (members of state Migrant Education Programs), a recorder to record group proceedings, a migrant student, and a staff person to assist the moderator in achievement of group goals.

Although the participants were divided by position of responsibility as noted, all groups focused on the same goals and objectives. Following each work group session (see Workshop agenda), group moderators shared the results of the previous session with all of the participants. In addition, a panel of people with extensive experience in Migrant Education reacted to or commented upon work group findings.

This format was followed until the final work group session which was designed to stimulate discussion concerning possible interstate projects among states sharing migrant students. For this purpose the participants were assigned to Midwest (including Eastern & Northern), West and Southwest work group sessions.
The Workshop Planning Committee designed a meeting that was both process and product oriented. Elements of the process aspect of the Workshop included the need to disseminate descriptive information concerning 1) the migrant population; 2) characteristics and needs of migrant students; 3) needs, characteristics, problems of migrant secondary students; and 4) alternatives to serving migrant secondary students. The information dissemination portion of the Workshop was achieved, in part, through formal presentations, but mainly through 1) sharing of information in group sessions, 2) discussions during general assemblies, and finally 3) on an individual basis during meals or activities following formal Workshop proceedings. The intent of the Committee was to create a dialogue among all of the participants to share information, clarify problems and develop recommendations for possible implementation at the federal, state and local levels of education. The group reports presented to all participants, plus the eventual policy statements comprised the product of the Workshop. These results are reported in the next section.

In summary, it should be emphasized that the aim of the Workshop was to:

Create an awareness of the unique characteristics, education needs, and barriers preventing full access to quality education for migrant secondary students;

Identify promising approaches to creating effective interstate secondary education programs for migrant secondary;

Develop alternative policy statements that can be used by decision makers as a foundation for creating secondary education opportunities, including interstate/district credit accrual-exchange opportunities for migrant students.

VI. NATIONAL POLICY WORKSHOP

RESULTS

A. INTRODUCTION

As noted in the preceding section, the approach used in the Workshop was both process and outcome oriented. Attendance at the Workshop, attendance at the various problem solving sessions, dissemination of information in formal and informal sessions constitute some of the aspects of the process portion of the workshop. The process portion was linked very closely to the outcome portion of the proceedings. That is, each segment of the Workshop was tied to specific goals and objectives (See Participant Workbook Appendix A). For example, a general presentation to the participants on the topic - "A framework for understanding the problems posed by mobility for students and the education system" - was followed by work group sessions in which the participants were required to identify, from their own perspectives (i.e. district, state, position, etc.) policy and program barriers that are now inhibiting secondary school programs.

The results of the work group sessions were then reported by the moderators to the general assembly in a subsequent session. At this time a panel of Migrant Education specialists was given an opportunity to react to the work group reports. Following the panelists reaction, participants were also given an opportunity to comment, clarify statements or pose questions. It was intended that the process used would achieve an atmosphere of shared understanding, participatory decision making and ownership of the policy resolutions.

B. PARTICIPANTS

Over one hundred ninety seven (197) people attended the Workshop. Twenty-eight states were represented at the Workshop (See Appendix C for a complete listing of states, the attending number and list of participants) with regional representation as follows: Northern-Southern-Midwest-Eastern - 17 states, Western - 6 states and Southwestern - 5 states. By category of participant, the Workshop achieved its desired goal of having the majority of participants from policy making positions. Seventy-three (73) participants were from policy making positions. The breakdown by category of participant was as follows:

The turnout for the Workshop was a major surprise to the Planning Committee because the dates selected were so close to the start of the school year. Originally during the planning sessions prior to the Workshop, the Committee conservatively estimated a possible turnout of seventy five to 100 participants. The eventual turnout, responsiveness, and understanding of people who attended the workshop at an unpredictable time of year constituted a major achievement for the Committee and many others involved in conducting the workshop.

C. WHAT WERE THE OUTCOMES?

It would be somewhat repetitious and inefficient to report the recorded proceedings of each of the thirteen separate work group sessions (five groups A-D, two work sessions; three regional groups-one work session). Rather, it is important to know that the information and recommendations developed by the separate groups was ultimately reviewed, discussed, synthesized and adopted by the entire Workshop assembly. This was accomplished over the two-day period of the Workshop through a laborious but effective procedure. Starting with multiple ideas, everyone had an opportunity to offer a recommendation or comments on others', eventually refining them to those that the entire assembly wished to adopt.

Participant review and endorsement of the policy options which had evolved during the Workshop occurred during the final work session of the assembly. One observer commented that this particular session had the atmosphere of work sessions at national political conventions because it entailed discussion by distinguished "delegates" from throughout the nation with often divergent views on a particular matter. This session was moderated by the Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction from the State of Washington, Mrs. Mona H. Bailey. Mrs. Bailey, in conjunction with Senator Perry, work group moderators and staff had prepared a lengthy list of recommendations and policy options for review, modification and adoption by the participants.

In contrast to other conferences wherein attendance dwindles as the conference winds down, attendance at the National Policy Workshop final session swelled to over two hundred people. The size of the assembly presented some difficulties in terms of presenting the list of recommendations and policy options, but it was resolved by projection of each item for review via an overhead projector so that everyone could read and react to what was being adopted:
NINE RESOLUTIONS

Listed below are the policy options and recommendations that were adopted by the participants at the National Policy Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students:

1. Recognizing that a significant portion of the nation's population is mobile, and that such mobility limits high school student's opportunity to meet state and local graduation units of credit requirement,

Therefore, be it resolved that this workshop urges the National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education (NASMDE) to develop proposals to be submitted to Chief State School Officers, State Boards of Education, and such national educational organizations as the Council of Chief State School Officers (CCSSO); National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP), Education Commission of the States (ECS) and National Association of State Boards of Education (NASBE) to assist in adopting policies enabling local school districts to establish graduation requirements for migrant students by:

A. Establishing reciprocity between and among districts for completed coursework for which credit has been granted from an accredited secondary institution.
B. Granting full credit for demonstrated competence or performance, clock hours or proficiency tests.
C. Issuing credit on a flexible, fractional basis.
D. Accepting, sending and receiving schools' course-work to be continued in receiving schools.
E. Acceptance of diplomas sent by students' home base school in schools where students reside: at the time of graduation.

2. Be it resolved that each state make a concerted and coordinated effort to identify, recruit, enroll and provide educational services for all secondary students in that state. Effective communication should take place among all states and cooperating agencies in the identification and recruitment of secondary students in order to provide continuity of services for these students wherever they are found.

Be it further resolved that, as part of this process, each state director compile and provide a resource directory: of all agencies providing education, employment and/or training services to potential migrant students between the ages of 14 and 21.

Be it further resolved that state agencies must improve and monitor the implementation of the Migrant Student Record Transfer System (MSRTS) to insure the efficient utilization of the system.

3. Be it resolved that each sending state school district provide, for its home-based migrant students, a course of study for graduation based on that local education agency’s requirements, entered and maintained on the MSRTS, and updated by each receiving state in which that student is serviced by including:

A. Competency test results.
B. Language(s) of instruction.
C. Home base school address and phone number.
D. Individual profile - itinerary pattern so a child’s migrancy pattern can be traced.
E. The transcript to include but not limited to:

1. Grade level.
2. What s/he completed (status) regarding requirements.
3. Graduation requirements and the requirements the student has mastered as they apply to his/her school from which s/he will graduate:
4. Grade or performance percentage obtained at the time of transfer.
5. Actual dates of attendance.
6. When appropriate, a final and/or a semester grade.
7. Flexibility to change a student’s course of study when s/he settles out or the student changes educational goals.
RESOLUTIONS

Be it resolved that in the absence of an official transcript, the credit accrual form of MSRTS will be an acceptable interim document of academic credits, courses to be completed, and such other items to be added and approved by the National Association of state Directors of Migrant Education (NASDME).

4. Be it resolved that states utilize whatever resources are available to disseminate information, to provide the opportunity to share program information, ideas, problems and solutions, and to model successful secondary migrant state programs.

5. Be it resolved that in states where competency tests are mandated, that the NASDME be encouraged to implement appropriate testing schedules to assure access by migrant secondary students. It is further recommended that the NASDME assume the leadership role in development of the prototype schedule for use by the states.

6. Whereas the success of the academic setting is contingent on a team effort between school and home, Be it resolved that the educational institution has the obligation to communicate requirements on high school credit accrual based on time and performance leading to high school graduation to parents of migrant secondary students.

Be it further resolved that the school has the responsibility to encourage and welcome parent participation in educational process of their children.

7. Be it resolved that schools assist migrant students in the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent either through a traditional school system or through an alternative certified program such as the High School Equivalency Program (HEP).

8. Be it resolved that each state which shares migrant students commit, as a priority, the necessary financial and human resources to coordinate the credit exchange accrual program.

Be it further resolved that each state assign a contact person to accomplish this task.

9. Be it resolved that the state agencies which operate migrant farmworker programs articulate program objectives and/or plans and seek the assistance of other agencies in the educational process.

Be it further resolved that state agencies encourage, through incentive and/or regulation, the cooperation and coordination of resources on the state and local levels.

These recommendations and policy options are the outcomes of intensive work on the part of many people and represent a foundation upon which education access, continuity and achievements can be realized for migrant students. The general body of the workshop speaks to all parties responsible for the educational welfare of migrant students. These recommendations speak to the federal, state and local levels of decision makers as well as those who have responsibility for program, student records and graduation requirements. Collectively, these statements represent the concern of a diverse group of individuals from many positions of responsibility about the needs of migrant students. But these statements also offer some potential solutions that can be implemented to enhance the educational achievement of migrant students.
D. SUMMARY & FOLLOW UP

Implementation of these proposed recommendations will be the true test of the success of the National Policy Workshop. A substantial amount of work, thoughtful deliberation and negotiation went into the development of these statements. Nevertheless, at this time they remain just that ... statements of intent. It will be the task of the National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education, the federal Office of Migrant Education and concerned state directors to transform these policy recommendations from statements into action. To do so, it will be important to work with the professional organizations, the education officials and others who helped shape the ideas expressed in this document.

To address this very important question of follow up, the general assembly adopted the following resolution:

Whereas the National Policy Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students was convened at the request of states which were convinced of the need for increased interstate cooperation in order to achieve the maximum benefit from federal, state, and local resources, be it resolved that the state representatives attending the National Policy Workshop communicate to their state legislators and members of Congress, their support of the federal Title I Migrant Education Program, and the increasing need for states to coordinate curriculum, academic credits, graduation requirements and continued updating of the Migrant Student Record Transfer System with the goals of assuring access for migrant children to educational opportunities in all of the states, and raising the level of high school graduation.

Action on the part of the National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education was immediate in terms of support of the resolutions plus a willingness to move forward with specific activities. Mr. Robert Youngblood, President of the Association indicated that the Executive Committee of NASDME would meet immediately after the Workshop adjourned to take action on the recommendations. Also, the State Director of Migrant Education in Texas indicated that the superintendents who attended from his state had organized and planned to visit the Chief State School Officer of Texas to discuss the resolutions developed in order to ensure implementation.

Four specific action oriented steps were outlined and agreed upon by the Workshop participants:

1. That the Education Commission of the States Interstate Migrant Education Task Force and the National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education send the policy options that are ratified for their consideration to the Council of Chief State School Officers, and the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

2. That meetings be established with the groups identified in 1 (above) to determine action to be taken on the resolutions and policies.

3. That Workshop participants seek agreement and implementation strategies upon returning home with their local districts and state education agencies.

4. That regional implementation meetings be held to follow up the National Workshop. It is suggested that these follow up meetings take place on the spring of 1982 and that state directors establish regional planning committees to plan the regional meetings. It was suggested as part of this action item that state directors establish the regional planning committees by December of 1981.

The preceding resolutions, recommendations and action steps constitute the outcomes of two-and-one-half days of deliberations by education representatives from throughout the nation. But, as noted by two distinguished participants, the resolutions now have to be translated into meaningful and lasting action:

"... when we walk out of this hotel this afternoon, we're walking out knowing that we each have a role to play, and that something is going to happen to what you came here and sweated and labored over for the two-and-one-half days that you have been here ..." Mrs. Mona H. Bailey, Washington State Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"... I'm very concerned about the number of migrant students who finish the twelfth grade ... with the kind of discussion I hear today, we can reduce that down to a very small percentage of dropout students, and I think that's where we want to go. We don't want this segment of our population to be forgotten ... I feel good about what I have heard today but I hope it wasn't an exercise in futility. I hope we didn't come here and have some friendship and see old friends and go through a process of doing some work, and then leave here and come back next time and start from ground zero." Dr. Vincent Reed, Assistant Secretary of Education, U.S. Department of Education.

RE: Participant Workbook

This workbook is provided to clarify the purpose of each session, and to provide a space for you to make notes of your thoughts about each topic.
Please study this workbook prior to the sessions, whenever possible. This will allow for maximum usage of our time during the work group and general sessions.

Please remember this is a policy workshop; we are not asking you to design new programs. Rather, we would like to first review the problems and some promising approaches to those problems, and then develop recommendations concerning the policies required to implement those approaches.

'Policy' is a broad term. We are using it to describe an act which enables programs and governs the actions of persons implementing the programs. Thus, for Migrant Education, we must consider policies for federal and state governments as well as local school districts. Some examples of what we mean by the word 'policy' are displayed in the following table:

GENERAL SESSION #1

6:30 p.m. - 7:30 p.m.
Tuesday, August 18

PURPOSE:
- Workshop Welcome
- Workshop Notes/Information
- Keynote Speech

SPEAKERS:
- Mrs. Mona Bailey, Asst. Superintendent, Washington State Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction
- Mr. Robert Youngblood, State Director of Migrant Education, State of North Carolina, President of National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education
- Senator John Perry, Member, New York State Senate, Workshop Chairman
- Congressman William Ford, Member, U.S. House of Representatives, Michigan

NOTES:
GENERAL SESSION #2
8:30 a.m. - 9:00 a.m.
Wednesday, August 19
Moderator; Senator John Perry

TOPIC: The Importance of Local School Administrators in Improving Education

SPEAKER: Dr. David Crandall, Executive Director; The NETWORK, Inc., Andover, Massachusetts

PURPOSE: To review the literature on the importance of school administrators in effective school programs.

To discuss the role of administrators in implementing educational improvements.

NOTES:
GENERAL SESSION #3

9:00 a.m. - 9:30 a.m.
Wednesday, August 19
Moderator, Senator John Perry

TOPIC: A Framework for Serving Migrant Secondary School Students

SPEAKER: Mr. Roy Fuentes, Program Manager
National Education Association

PURPOSE: To provide a framework for understanding the problems posed by mobility for students and the education system.

PARTICIPANT NOTES: Please try to think about:

1) How students generally are transferred into and out of your school,
2) What your role is in the transfer, placement and instructional process; and
3) What issues or problems about student transfers you can recall.

NOTES:
GENERAL SESSION #4

2:30 a.m. - 10:00 a.m.
Wednesday, August 19
Moderator, Senator John Perry

TOPIC: Currently operating secondary school programs for migrant students

PANELISTS:
Ms. Jane Foshee - Parlier, California
Portable Assisted Study Sequence Program (PASS)

Mr. Robert Levy - Oneonta, New York
New York State Migrant Education Program

Mr. Jesse Vela - Pharr, Texas
Texas-Washington Interstate Program

Migrant Secondary Students
Ruben Peña
Ruben Arredondo
Ricardo Rodriguez

PURPOSE: To give participants a preliminary look at how some programs are operating now.

PARTICIPANT NOTES: Please compare what you hear from the panelists with the previous discussion--A Framework for Serving Migrant Secondary School Students--and think about your role in the implementation of programs similar to those being described.

NOTES:
PURPOSES: To analyze the cyclical process of serving migrant students.

To identify the ideal roles and responsibilities of teachers, MSRTS terminal operators, clerks, counselors, identification and recruitment staff, principals, superintendents, and state agency staff in sending, receiving, and serving migrant secondary school students.

To identify problems and policy barriers to serving migrant secondary school students.

KEY QUESTIONS TO ASK THE EXPERTS:

1) What policy or program barriers are inhibiting migrant secondary school programs now?

2) Which problems are the hardest to address? Why?

QUESTIONS FOR CONSIDERATION:

1) What problems do you have placing transfer students properly?

2) What problems do you encounter:
   a) helping students transfer out of your school?
   b) helping students transfer into your school?

3) How can students be placed in educational programs when they have a home base from which they move every year?
   a) Whose graduation requirements should be met?
   b) Whose curriculum should be followed?
   c) How can we find out what the student has been learning, and how well the student is doing?

4) How can we help students finish their coursework while they are working in the fields?

5) How do we involve mobile parents who work in areas situated far from the school site?

6) Which policy barriers prevent us from improving secondary school programs for migrant students?

7) How can these barriers be eliminated; who can eliminate these barriers?

Wednesday, August 19
Work Group Sessions by Professional Roles
Moderators, Specified to Each Group

SOME BRIEF - The Problem - Migrant Students:

BACKGROUND INFORMATION:
- Generally have low basic skills and have not done well academically;
- Have irregular attendance patterns; and
- Frequently drop out of school early ill prepared to compete in the job market.

Some Causes of the Problem

1) Students often lack basic skills because they have had many disruptions in their education, their learning experiences lack continuity, schools may lack appropriate materials to cope with cultural and linguistic differences, and schools are generally not prepared to teach short term students.

2) Students attend school irregularly because they move frequently, need to work to supplement the family income, are in poor health or need to babysit younger siblings while their parents work.

3) Students frequently leave school early because they need to work, are frustrated with school, are unable to be part of extracurricular activities or are unable to accumulate credits toward graduation.

WORK GROUP SESSION #5

10:15 a.m. - 11:45 a.m.
Wednesday, August 19

Work Group Sessions by Professional Roles
Moderators, Specified to Each Group

IN SUMMARY:

The Mobile Migrant Student is Faced With:

- Attendance in schools with different curricula
- Different teaching methods and materials in each school
- Different grading systems and expectations in each new school
- Difficulty accumulating enough time or progress in class to complete required courses
- Difficulty gaining access to special programs for the disadvantaged
- Difficulty attending school during regular school hours because of the need to work
- Difficulty being involved in extracurricular activities

Additionally:

- Movement and the need to work make for irregular attendance.
- The need to work creates pressure to drop out of school.
- Frustration with the lack of access to programs and student activities makes dropping out a more reasonable alternative.

GENERAL SESSION #7

1:30 p.m. - 2:30 p.m.
Wednesday, August 19
Moderator, Senator John Perry

WORK GROUP REPORTS: To describe 1) how educators see their roles in improving services to migrant students, and 2) what critical issues educators have identified, and what barriers were identified in order to improve services.

NOTES: 1) Roles

2) Issues

PANEL RESPONSE TO WORK GROUP REPORTS:
To provide further insight and information to participants concerning roles and issues in providing secondary school services for migrant students.
To discuss barriers to improve services and how those barriers can be eliminated.

PANELISTS:
Mr. Jesse Vela, Jr. - Texas-Washington Interstate Program
Ms. Jane Foshee - PASS Program
Dr. Gene Bender - St. Edwards University
Mr. Winford Miller - Migrant Student Record Transfer System

Moderator, Senator John Perry

TOPIC: Promising Approaches to Serving Migrant Secondary School Students

PRESENTERS:
- Dr. Paul Nava - High School Equivalency Program (HEP)
- Mr. David Randall - Texas-Washington Secondary Credit Exchange Program
- Mr. Joe Dunn - National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education, MSRTS Committee

PURPOSE: To provide participants with more information concerning alternatives in secondary school programs for migrant students.

To provide information on policies that enable their programs and discuss how those policies were created.

NOTES:
WORK GROUP SESSION #9

3:15 p.m. - 4:45 p.m.
Wednesday, August 19
Work Group Session by Professional Roles
Moderators, Specified to Each Group.

PURPOSES: To develop policy recommendations identifying how to improve secondary school programs for migrant students in order to:

1) reduce drop outs,
2) improve student achievement, and
3) create post secondary opportunities.

KEY QUESTIONS TO ASK: 1) How will the recommendations benefit the students?
2) What must each person do in their professional roles to implement the recommendations?

PROCESS: Begin with the student and work back through the educational hierarchy and describe what each level must do to bring about the desired improvements.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

SERVICE OR FUNCTION AREAS:

1) Records transfer
   --sending
   --receiving
2) Instructional continuity and treatment (setting and materials)
3) Credit accrual and exchange
4) Instructional coordination and counseling
5) Communications between LEAs (MSRTS and/or ?)

BASIC APPROACHES TO PROBLEMS:

1) Receiving schools replicate as closely as possible the course schedules and content of the sending school.
2) Offer night and summer courses so students can complete their courses.
3) Provide supplementary or independent study materials where students cannot complete a course.
4) Track student schedules and counsel schools to have classes and programs ready for students.

NOTES:
GENERAL SESSION #10
8:30 a.m. - 9:45 a.m.
Thursday, August 20
Moderator: Senator John Perry

TOPIC: Summary of Work Group Recommendations

PRESENTER: Dr. Gene Bender, St. Edwards University

PURPOSE: To summarize recommendations of previous day and provide analysis of the implications of those recommendations.

NOTES:

PANEL RESPONSE TO RECOMMENDATIONS:
To give participants additional insight into the problems and prospects concerning the recommendations.

PANELISTS:
Mr. David Randall - Secondary Credit Exchange Program, Washington State Migrant Education Program

Cooperating Process

Planning Process

Who?
When?
Where?

Policies Required to Enable and Implement Programs

Source of Desired Policies (Policy making body)
PURPOSE: To develop interstate and intrastate plans to expand and improve secondary school programs for migrant students. The considerations should:

1) Identify programs that schools sharing students are willing to undertake.

2) Identify the steps required to implement programs in such a way that the largest possible number of students is included.

3) Outline the process by which program implementation plans will be developed including:
   a) states, school districts and schools involved
   b) who will be involved in the planning
   c) the project dates and places for follow up meetings

REQUIRED BACKGROUND INFORMATION:

1) A profile and count of student population for sending and receiving schools.

2) The school districts and state that students move from -- to.

3) The times of student attendance.

4) Credit accrual and exchange:
   a) the curricular requirements of the home base school
   b) the persons responsible for assigning and accepting credit for work -- sending and receiving

IMPORTANT CONSIDERATIONS:

1. Policies are required to enable program recommendations.
   a) What policies are required to implement the desired program?
   b) Who is responsible for creating the desired policies; state legislature, state board of education, chief state school officer, local boards of education, or local superintendents?

2. Identify the policies required to enable and implement the desired programs (See Session #9 PROCESS)

TOPIC: Setting the National Agenda, Workshop Summary and Identification of Future Directions and Priorities

SPEAKER: Mrs. Mona Bailey, Assistant Superintendent, Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, State of Washington

PURPOSE: To identify policies that participants feel are most needed and which they will support.
To clarify plans of regional groups concerning participating schools.

ACTIVITIES: Mrs. Bailey will provide an analysis of 1) issues, 2) recommendations, and 3) regional plans in terms of the current status of the program, what policy changes would be required, the implications of those changes for state and local education agencies.
Mrs. Bailey will then seek commitments from individuals to the proposed plans and policies.
GENERAL SESSION #14

3:00 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.
Thursday, August 20
Moderator, Senator John Perry

TOPIC: The Federal Role in Improving Secondary School Programs for Migrant Students

SPEAKER: Dr. Vincent Reed, Assistant Secretary for Education, U.S. Education Department

PURPOSE: To clarify the federal position regarding migrant education and where possible, what has occurred during the meeting.

NOTES:
"A workshop to study secondary educational opportunities for migrant students; to develop working policies to complement existing school programs and supplement where appropriate."

August 18-20, 1981
Doubletree Inn, Seattle, Wa.
Workshop Goals:

- Develop general, realistic recommendations for consideration by education policy makers in national organizations and at federal, state, and local levels of governance.

- Develop policy resolutions that will lead to the establishment of national procedures that will ensure inter/intra state reciprocity of secondary exchange and accrual agreements within and across state borders.
Dear Participant:

It is with immense pleasure that I extend to you a hearty welcome to Washington State to assist us in developing recommendations and policies for the education of migrant secondary students. The outcomes of this national policy workshop will have an immediate bearing on educational opportunities for migrant secondary students. We hope to achieve this through your direct involvement in discussions related to key issues, plus through your assistance at the school local, state, and national levels once you have returned home.

As you know, much has already been achieved on behalf of migrant students through the Title I Migrant Education Program as evidenced by its growth at the national level. Substantial inroads have been made towards serving a mobile population through the efforts of the State Directors of Migrant Education. Among the major national accomplishments achieved at the elementary level where needs were initially identified greatest are 1) the Migrant Student Record Transfer System (MSRTS) and 2) skills lists in early childhood, reading, language arts, and math. These were achieved in a relatively short time period. Yet, many needs remain unmet as you will learn during the course of this workshop.

Migrant secondary students have been serviced in a variety of programs in various parts of the country, but it is now time to begin to formalize the necessary linkages on a national basis in order that the educational continuum be available for all migrant students.

We have a formidable task ahead of us, but through your assistance, we can help to open new horizons for migrant students.

Again, ¡bienvenidos! and thank you for taking time from your busy schedule to assist us.

Sincerely,

DIVISION OF GRANTS AND EQUITY PROGRAMS

General Information

Conference Site: All general sessions, work group sessions, and registration will be held at the Doubletree Inn. The general assembly banquet on Wednesday, August 19, will be held at the Dallas/Phoenix Rooms at the Doubletree Plaza across the street.

Registration will be held on: Tuesday, August 18, 1981
9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Please see Linda Roberts, Workshop Staff, if you have questions about registration or need to late-register.

Work Group/Regional Group Assignments:
You will receive a work group (A through E) and regional group (I - III) assignment. The work groups have been established to allow for discussion within specific roles and responsibilities. You may be assigned a work group which does not directly apply to the job/position you fill. This has been done to allow for more stimulating and differing perspectives to evolve. If you have questions about your work group assignment, please seek assistance from Workshop Staff. (Also, see Changes on page 5.)

Badges: Please wear your Workshop badges to all meetings.

Conference Packet: Your packet contains such items as a special events schedule, complimentary pen, program, participant workbook, and other details.

Workbooks: All participants will be provided a Workshop Workbook, included inside the Conference packet. This workbook is to be used in work group and general sessions. Special space has been provided for note taking.

Workshop Staff: Workshop staff members will be available to assist you. All key workshop staff members will be wearing name tags with ribbons designating their role.

In addition, the Workshop headquarters will be the central point of activity for typing, reproducing or disseminating Workshop materials. Office equipment is available should participants request such.

Message Center: For your convenience, a Message Center has been established in the Inn Foyer near the ballroom. Check the message board as well as your hotel room for anticipated communications.

Display/Materials: An MSRTS terminal has been set up in the Inn Foyer. This terminal has been established for participants' informational purposes in order to provide a quick and informal display of the Migrant Student Record Transfer System and its attributes.

Program materials, brochures, etc. of existing secondary school programs for migrant students have been made available in the Inn Foyer.

Convention Bureau brochures and pamphlets of the Seattle and Northwest area have been made available in the Inn Foyer.

Changes: All hotel room arrangements are to be made directly with the hotel front desk. Special assistance can be provided by Workshop Staff upon request.

All program, room/group assignments, or session changes must have approval secured through Linda Roberts, Jim Gonzales, or Bruce Hunter.
Proceedings Handbook: A proceedings handbook summarizing major Workshop events, resolutions and agreements will be sent by mail to Workshop participants following adjournment.

Video Tape: Portions of the Workshop will be video taped. Copies of these tapes will be made available to participants upon request at a nominal fee. We encourage the use of this material in order to coordinate individual/local, state and/or regional programs of a similar nature.

Food: A no-host social hour will be held on August 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Inn poolside, weather permitting.

General Assembly Banquets are included in your registration fee. They will be provided on August 19 and 20 at the Doubletree Plaza and Inn respectively.

An optional event is scheduled for August 19. This includes a ferry boat ride with cocktails available to a nearby island. Special appetizers and a traditional salmon bake will be provided. Cost is $21.00.

The Doubletree Inn has excellent eating facilities, and there are many fine restaurants located in the Seattle area.

Acknowledgements

The realization of the National Policy-Workshop on Education for Migrant Secondary Students represents a giant stride for persons throughout the nation concerned about the educational welfare of migrant students. It also provides us with an opportunity to ensure meaningful continuity of education experiences for these students, between and among school districts within the states. Finally, it will provide us with procedures whereby we can help mobile migrant students achieve what other students routinely obtain upon completion of high school—a diploma.

This effort, as all major activities that are national in scope, is the result of the vision and hard work of many organizations and people throughout the country. Principals among these individuals are Dr. Frank Brouillet and Mrs. Mona Bailey from the Superintendent of Public Instruction Office, State of Washington; Congressman William D. Ford, former Chairman of the Subcommittee on Post Secondary Education and his staff: Ms. Roberta Stanley, Ms. Margie McGonagill, and Mr. Rick Sitz. Also, our acknowledgement is due to the National Association of State Directors of Migrant Education (NASDME).

Under their leadership and guidance, the Workshop Planning Committee has been able to bring together this distinguished body for resolution of issues that will benefit not only migrant students, but the entire citizenry.
