This compilation of instructional materials, activities, and curricula is based on materials developed in an intensive English as a second language (ESL) and cultural orientation program conducted in Indochinese refugee processing centers in Southeast Asia beginning in 1980. Students in the 14- to 20-week program ranged in age from 16 to 55 years. This volume begins with a collection of general classroom techniques, including dialogues, drills, and games and activities. Each technique or activity is described on a single sheet. An additional section is devoted to similar activities designed specifically to foster literacy. Finally, a collection of competency-related ESL activities, arranged according to skill level deals with such everyday concerns as housing, food, banking, health, and employment. A bibliography concludes the volume. (JB)

Volume II

This volume is one in a series of four volumes that have brought together materials developed for use in the Intensive English as a Second Language and Cultural Orientation Program in Southeast Asia since 1980. The complete set includes:

INTRODUCTION

This section is composed of descriptions of General Techniques that are used to present the material in the regional curricula. It is not all-inclusive, but representative of techniques used in the region.

For users of the manual new to teaching English as a Second Language, the section gives a beginning repertoire of techniques. For those who have been teaching, a number of the techniques may be familiar. However, the variations of the techniques presented may prompt a slightly different use of those known. In any case, the section should be viewed as a working one, with users encouraged to add, adapt and delete to suit their individual needs.

Notes on Techniques and Methods
Oral Dialogues

Purpose
To improve students' speaking and listening skills
To familiarize students with natural utterances and conversational exchanges related to the competencies

Directions
The teacher introduces the characters, frequently two, in the dialogue by using stick-figure drawings or pictures. Then the teacher acts out the dialogue several times, taking both parts and concentrating on presenting the general meaning, pronunciation, rhythm, stress, and intonation of the utterances. Visuals or props can be used to dramatize the dialogue.

The next step is for the students to practice repeating each line of the dialogue. This can be done using the repetition drills technique.

After the students can repeat each line accurately, the teacher takes one part of the dialogue, and the whole class the second. After the dialogue is practiced several times, the roles are reversed. Then one-half of the class takes the first part with the other half taking the second. After the dialogue is practiced several times, the roles are again reversed.

Finally in pairs, students practice the dialogue. Both students should practice both roles. At this stage, the teacher can circulate and monitor the students' performance, correcting where necessary.

A substitution drill or disappearing dialogue can follow.

Notes
Two line dialogues are appropriate for lower level students. Generally dialogues are about six to eight lines long.

Depending on whether or not the students are literate and on whether or not the teacher wishes to emphasize listening comprehension, the dialogue can be written on the board. See written dialogue for suggestions as to how writing dialogues can be used.
Disappearing Dialogues

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To practice a dialogue</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>After following the general technique described as oral dialogues, the teacher writes the dialogue being practiced on the board and erases every fifth word. A dash is left instead of a word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Example:</td>
<td>Excuse me. Would you like some coffee? No, thanks. But I would like tea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The preceding becomes:</td>
<td>Excuse me. Would you ___ some coffee? No, thanks. ___ I would like tea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Using the oral dialogues technique, i.e., teacher-whole class, half-class to half-class, student-student, the students practice the dialogue. Next the teacher erases more words, how many depending on the students' ability.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Example:</td>
<td>Excuse me. Would you like some coffee? No, thanks. But I would like tea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The preceding becomes:</td>
<td>Excuse ____. Would you ___ some ___? No, ____. ___ I ___ like ____.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The oral dialogues technique is used again. This time students are supplying more missing words as they say the dialogue.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>This process is repeated until there are no words on the board, only dashes and punctuation.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Example:</td>
<td>____. ____?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>At this point the students should be able to recite the dialogue completely. This can be done in pairs.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>As a final step, the students can dictate the dialogue back to the teacher or to a student who fills in the blanks on the board.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Line-Gram Dialogues

Purpose
To introduce or practice a dialogue

The teacher draws a line-gram on the board representing the lines of the dialogue. Each word is represented by a line; all punctuation is included.

Example: What's your last name?
My last name is Thao.
The preceding becomes:

____ _____ _____

The teacher models the dialogue, following the steps in the oral dialogues general technique. In order to help the students with rhythm, stress, and intonation, the teacher uses a pointer to tap out the lines while s/he is modeling them. The teacher can also tap out the lines while the students are repeating.

As students master the first pairs of lines, more lines can be added and tapped out. The teacher may want to continue to tap out the initial lines in order to keep the students' memories fresh.

Students can also clap or tap out the lines.

Note
The lower the level, the simpler and shorter the line-grams should be, at least initially. As students become more proficient and gain confidence, the complexity and length of the line-grams can be increased.
Written Dialogues

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To provide practice in reading and writing dialogues</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher first follows the directions for oral dialogues and, as a possible additional step, the directions for disappearing dialogues. After the students have shown at least a partial oral mastery of the dialogue, then this technique can be used. The teacher stands at the board and writes after prompting the dialogue with a visual or the first line, exactly what the students dictate to her. If the students make a mistake, the teacher records it on the board exactly as it was said. If anyone catches the mistake, the teacher corrects it. If no one catches it, the teacher points it out and then sees if anyone can correct it. If there are still problems in recognizing and correcting a mistake, then the teacher should prepare a review on the point for presentation at a later time.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variations</td>
<td>The students can simply copy the dialogue and then practice the lines as homework. It is better if this is done after there is partial oral mastery of the dialogue. The teacher can dictate the dialogue to the students using the dictation technique.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Note</td>
<td>This kind of technique should be used only with literate students.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Repetition Drills

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To improve students' speaking and listening skills by providing practice of new or weak structures and/or vocabulary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher models an utterance, usually a sentence or a phrase, and the students repeat, first in a large group, then in smaller groups, and finally individually. Pictures can be used to reinforce the utterances. Example: Teacher/T: I'd like chicken. Student/S: I'd like chicken. T: I'd like rice. S: I'd like rice. T: I'd like tea. S: I'd like tea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>

Substitution Drills

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To improve students' speaking and listening skills by providing practice of new or weak structures while varying and expanding vocabulary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Directions | The teacher models the first utterance which the students repeat, first in a large group, then in smaller groups and finally individually. This is really a repetition drill which serves as an introduction to the substitution drill. Then the substitute item is given as a cue. This can be done by showing a picture or by saying the word(s) or by doing both. The students then say the entire phrase or sentence, at the same time substituting the new cue in the previously modeled sentence. To continue, the teacher produces the next cue and the students respond with the complete utterance.

Example: I need a blouse.
Cue: "shirt" or a picture of a shirt
I need a shirt.
Cue: "dress" or a picture of a dress
I need a dress.

| Variations | To cue substitutions, cubes with the words (or pictures) to be substituted can be used. One word or picture is placed on each side of the cube. The teacher or a student throws the cube. Whatever comes up is the cue.

Another device that is used to cue students is a chart containing a series of from six to eight frames. In each frame there is a picture or word to be used as a cue. The pictures/words can be arranged in sequence, if that is appropriate for the drill, or they can be in random order. The students then proceed through the frames one by one. Thus, the teacher is no longer saying the cue.

| Note | The item substituted can be any part of the utterance. |
Rejoinder Drills

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To elicit appropriate responses in two-line dialogues</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher says the first line in the two-line dialogue. The student supplies the second line. The appropriate rejoinder can be cued by a word or phrase given orally or written on a card, or by a picture.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>
<td>The teacher can do this with the whole class, parts of the class, or individual students. Students, in pairs, can also use this technique.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notes</td>
<td>If pictures are used as cues, they should be as clear as possible. No unnecessary details should be included. Pictures can be used to set a scene as well as to cue the rejoinders.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>This is a good review activity.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Chain Drills

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To practice asking and answering questions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher begins the chain by asking one student a question. &quot;What's your last name?&quot; The student answers, and then that student asks another student the same question. The chain continues until all the students have asked and answered the question. Usually the chain goes up and down the rows.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variations</td>
<td>Students sit in a circle and the chain goes around the circle. Or students can ask anyone of their choice.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>To keep the pace quick and lively, students can toss a beanbag or ball back and forth, first asking the question, then throwing the beanbag or ball to the student they want to answer.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>To keep everyone involved, the teacher, can periodically ask questions in the third person singular, e.g., &quot;What's his/her last name?&quot; and request another student to answer.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Note</td>
<td>This activity promotes student involvement and gives the teacher time to monitor student performance.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Concentric Circle Drills

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To provide practice in asking and answering questions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher directs the students to stand or sit in two concentric circles so that the students are in pairs facing each other. The teacher writes one question on the blackboard, a question with which the students have already had some practice. Both students in a pair ask and answer the question of each other. After this, the students in the inner circle move one person to the left. For example, A asks and answers first with D and next with E. B is first with E and next with F, etc. Each time the inner circle moves, the teacher writes a new question on the board, and each student asks and answers all questions with the new partner.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>
<td>• After five or six questions, the teacher may erase one question, starting with the first one, each time a new question is added. This helps the students to question and answer more naturally.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notes</td>
<td>Students usually become so involved in this activity that they forget to speak in their own language. After 3 or 4 questions, they often begin greeting their new partner in English. The repetition of questions and answers also helps students to polish their answers. The teacher is free to monitor and correct. A lot of peer correction also takes place.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Direction Drills

| Purpose | To practice giving and following directions
|         | To improve listening and speaking

Directions

The teacher demonstrates a series of directions while the students watch and listen. The students then follow directions while the teacher gives them. The students then practice saying the directions. A repetition drill may be used here. Next the class is divided in half. One half gives the directions, while the other half follows them. The last step is having the class divided into pairs, with each member of the pair practicing giving and following the directions.

The directions may be simple and short.

Example: 1. Close the door.
         2. Open the window.

Or they may be longer and involve props and dialogue. As an example, see the ESL activity for Post Office, Competencies 10.2 and 10.3, suggested by the American Council for Nationalities Service/Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service.

Variations

- A pair of students can give and follow the directions in front of the rest of the class.

- A student can give the directions for the rest of the class to follow.

- If the students are literate, the directions can be written on the board and copied by the students.

Note

It may not be necessary for the students to give the directions, for example, "Fill out this application," or "Sign here." They may only have to follow these directions. In these cases, especially if the level of the students is low, they should not be required to learn how to say them. The above technique should then be adjusted accordingly.
Chanting

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To practice the rhythm, stress, pronunciation, and intonation of English</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>Jazz Chants, a creation of Carolyn Graham, are used in the Intensive ESL/CO programs. The users of this manual are referred to her book Jazz Chants, Rhythms of American English for Students of English as a Second Language (see Bibliography) for a description of jazz chants as well as a discussion of how to use them. Chanting, i.e., repeating over and over, can be used in repetition, substitution and rejoinder drills. When chanting, attention should be given to keeping normal English rhythm, stress, pronunciation and intonation. While utterances are being chanted, their rhythms and stresses can be tapped out.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>
<td>If a student says an utterance with incorrect rhythm and stress, the teacher can tap out the correct ones without saying any words. During the tapping the teacher asks the student to listen carefully. The student then tries to say his/her utterance correctly. Students can also tap out rhythms/stresses for other students.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Note</td>
<td>Chanting is a technique for practicing what is spoken. Sentences that occur only in writing should not be chanted.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Dictation

Purpose

To practice listening, spelling, reading, writing skills.

The teacher reads the dictation through once. The students just listen and don't write.

The teacher rereads the dictation for the students to write. The teacher reads slowly, phrase by phrase. Punctuation can be included. Each phrase can be repeated once during this reading.

The teacher reads it through again. During this reading the students are instructed to try to correct their own copy.

Dictation can be corrected in any of several different ways:

The teacher can call in the papers. In "correcting" the dictation s/he points out the errors by circling them rather than correcting them. The dictations all returned to the students and they correct them by writing the correction above the circle. Thus, the benefit of the correction lies with the student rather than with the teacher.

Copies of the dictation are handed to the students who correct their own work with the teacher's help.

Students go to the board to write individual sentences or sections of the dictation.

Students are put into pairs or small groups to compare their work. Any of the above can then be done.

Students exchange papers and correct another's dictation. As in the first option, errors can be circled rather than corrected. Papers are returned to the owners with the direction that the owners correct the mistakes. If there is any disagreement as to the errors, the teacher is called in as the immediate mediator.
Variation

Have all students put their pencils and papers away. No one is to write while the teacher is reading the story. The teacher reads the story three times. The teacher can read slowly, but the intonation should remain the same. After reading the story, the teacher asks students to come forward to write on the board or a sheet of paper all the phrases they can remember. The teacher should first ask the slower students to write the words as they will probably remember key nouns and verbs. Then the faster students can be asked, as they will probably remember more. During this time there should be no pencils or papers on individuals' desks. As a class the students, with the teacher's help if necessary, complete the story. The teacher then asks a few questions from the story.

See 10.2, 10.7 Buy items in the post office, register mail by The Experiment in International Living/Save the Children Federation for an example of this variation.

Dictations can be done on any level, assuming, of course, that the students are literate. The dictation should be at least a couple of sentences but no longer than three paragraphs in length.

Lower level students should be familiar with the language of the dictation. Unknown words and structures can be confusing and frustrating. For higher students it might be useful to include a few unfamiliar words or structures to challenge them.
Memory Game

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To practice recall of vocabulary or a dialogue relevant to a picture</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher divides the class into two teams of equal size and then shows the entire class a picture for a very short time, about five seconds. No writing is allowed during this time. Next the teacher asks members of each team to recall as many words, phrases, or sentences as possible that are relevant to the picture. At this stage, teams can write down what they remember. Each team earns one point for every correctly recalled utterance. The team with the most points wins.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variations</td>
<td>In order to win a point, the team must spell the words in the utterance correctly. Before showing the picture, the teacher tells the students to find as many words as possible beginning, for example, with the letter M, or as many verbs as possible. The team with the most points wins.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Note</td>
<td>This is a good review activity.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Categories

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To learn vocabulary items by categorizing them</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Directions | The teacher takes pictures, either magazine cutouts or line drawings and mounts them on cardboard. The pictures should all be relevant to the topic, situation, or competency being studied. Students, individually in pairs, or in small groups, must sort the cards into categories. The student or team who sorts correctly and can identify all the items wins.

Example: Cards: furniture and appliances
Sort the cards according to which furniture and appliances belong in which room of the house. |
| Variation | This technique can be used with realia as well. |
Elicitation Using Pictures

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To elicit student-centered conversations about pictures</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher shows the students a picture and asks them to describe it, perhaps also asking questions about each vocabulary item or situation. For example, What is it used for? Where is it found? What does it look like? Who uses it? How do you use it? What do you need this for?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>
<td>Questions can be scaled up or down depending on the level of the students. Acceptable responses can be single words, phrases, or complete sentences.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notes</td>
<td>This technique can be used as an introduction to a topic or lesson, as one way to diagnose how much students are already familiar with the relevant language. It can also be used as a refresher or review activity.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Pass and Switch

Purpose
To practice asking and answering questions based on pictures

Directions
Students are placed in pairs in two lines facing one another.

Each student on one side has a picture. S/he shows his/her picture to his/her partner across the way and asks a question about the picture. The partner gives an answer to the question. When all the pairs are finished, the teacher says, "Pass." Students pass their picture to the next student. The teacher brings the picture from the student on the end to the first student in the line. The process is repeated as many times as desired or until the first picture arrives back to the person it started with.

When the teacher calls "Switch," the students give the cards across to their partners and they change roles asking and answering questions.

Note
See ESL Activity 14.2 Secure Household Repairs, suggested by The Consortium.
Skits

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To practice language skills through the creation of real-life situations in the classroom</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>A skit is a short play. Skits can be created by the students with the help of the teacher or created by the teacher for the students.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>In the former case, the class can be divided into groups to work on separate skits or to work on parts of one larger skit. The students are given a situation or series of situations in which to use their English. The students can create and assign roles, develop the dialogue, gather props, and direct the action. The skit is then practiced and presented. While the students are working on the skit, the teacher is circulating, helping where needed. It is recommended that the teacher give a final check before the skit is presented to the rest of the class.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Skits can also be written by the teacher for the class. The teacher selects a focus, e.g., a competency with its accompanying language, and writes a short play. The skit is presented to the class. The culminating activity would be the presentation of the skit by groups of students to the rest of the class.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Generally, the language students use in the skits should have already been introduced and practiced. Especially if the students are going to generate their own skits, they should have some language ready to incorporate in them.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note
Roleplay

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To practice speaking and listening skills by creating real-life situations in the classroom</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>In the broadest sense a roleplay is when a person assumes a role or part and uses the language and carries out the actions associated with that role. The roleplay may or may not involve props and/or costumes. Generally students should be familiar with/have practiced the language they are going to use in a roleplay. Students can roleplay using a few lines of dialogue or a complete dialogue they have worked on or they can write the dialogues they will use in their roleplays. Examples of roleplays using all of the preceding can be found in the ESL activities section.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variation</td>
<td>The following is one variation of roleplay. The teacher divides the students into small groups or pairs. Each student is given a part to play, a role. This part can be described verbally or can be written on a card. Example:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Student 1</td>
<td>You are the sponsor of a refugee.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Student 2</td>
<td>You are a refugee. Telephone your sponsor and invite him/her to dinner at your home.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Each group or pair has a few minutes to practice before performing for the whole class. While the groups are practicing, the teacher can circulate and give help where it is required. After the roleplay, the teacher can give individual feedback to each group.
Instead of being assigned roles, each group or pair can develop their roles based on a picture cue. Some examples are a picture of a doctor and patient or of a customer and a salesclerk at a department store.
Listening Cloze

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To provide practice in listening for selected vocabulary</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher shows a picture to the students and tells them a story about it or acts out a dialogue about it. The teacher repeats this story or dialogue several times and then gives each student a paper with the same story or dialogue written on it, but with several blanks instead of words. The teacher reads the story or dialogue again, line by line. The students try to fill in the blanks as they hear the word(s). The teacher should repeat the story or dialogue one more time, with the students trying to correct mistakes while it is being read.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Example: | Picture: weekend activities
What did you do last weekend?
I played volleyball.
What did you do last weekend?
I went swimming and watched TV. |
| Variations | Students receive one point for each blank filled in correctly. |
| Variations | • Leave a blank for every nth (5th, 9th) word. |
| Variations | • Leave a blank for content words that need to be drilled, e.g. all verbs. |
| Variations | • Instead of a story or dialogue, songs, newscasts from the radio or any kind of speech can be used. |
| Notes | To provide extra help, the teacher can provide several alternatives for each blank. Students must select the correct answer based on their listening. |
| Notes | The first line should contain no blanks. |
| Notes | The teacher can help the students to fill in the first blank to show them what to do. |
Jigsaw Listening

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To provide practice in intensive listening to an American English speaker</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Directions</td>
<td>The teacher introduces the lesson by explaining that the class will be divided into three groups. Each group will listen to a taped story and answer a set of questions about the story. Each group will work with three different parts of the same story. Therefore, each of the three tapes will be different and each group's set of questions will be different. After listening to their tapes, the groups will meet as one class to piece together the story as a whole.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notes</td>
<td>After introducing the exercise, the teacher divides the class into three groups and gives each group a tape recorder, a prerecorded tape of an American reading a story, and a set of questions. Each group then listens to the story several times through to get the gist of their part of the story. Next they begin to listen more closely in order to answer the questions. During this part of the activity, the teacher circulates around the room providing help where it is needed. When each group has finished answering their set of questions, they meet as one class to piece together the story as a whole.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>The stories and accompanying questions must be clearly written. Information should not conflict.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Some teachers find it useful to separate the three groups so that they will not overhear the tape of another group.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>The groups should be basically equal in ability, i.e., each group should have strong, average and weak students in it.</td>
</tr>

Scrambled Words

<tbody>
<tr>

<td>The teacher cuts a sentence from a story or dialogue into individual words. Then, in small groups or pairs, the students must put the words into a logical sequence. Each small group or pair is given one complete sentence. Students should look for clues to ordering.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Variations</td>
<td>The teacher can divide the class into teams and give each team the same sentence cut into individual words. The team that arranges its words into a logical sequence first wins. Words of the same structural category, e.g. nouns, verbs, can be written on the same color paper. In other words, a complete set would have nouns written on blue paper, verbs on green paper, pronouns on yellow paper, punctuation on white, etc.</td>

Scrambled Sentences

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>To provide practice in sorting out sentences into a logical sequence, making a story or a dialogue</th>

The teacher cuts a story or a dialogue into strips, with one sentence on each strip. Then, in small groups or pairs, the students must put the strips into a logical sequence. Each small group or pair is given one complete story or dialogue. Students should look for clues to ordering, either obvious clues like time adverbials, e.g. first, second, next, today, tomorrow, then or covert clues, e.g. steps in a prescribed sequence.

The teacher can divide the class into teams and give each team the same story or dialogue cut into strips. The team that arranges its strips into a logical sequence first wins.

The students are given a strip and asked to memorize their sentence. After a few minutes the strips are collected and the students put themselves into a logical story line.

*Questions and answers can also be scrambled. First the questions and answers are cut into strips. Then the questions and answers are separated and scrambled. Students in groups or pairs must match the correct question and answer. Or individual students are given either a question or an answer. They then move around the room to find their correct "match."

Scrambled Pictures

| Purpose | To provide practice in describing a process or sequence.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>To promote left-to-right reading skills</th>

</thead>
</table>
| Directions | The teacher prepares a group of pictures, cutout,
|           | stick-figure drawings or line drawings, with one picture
|           | for each action or frame in the narrative. For example,
|           | the pictures could describe the usual sequence for writing
|           | and mailing a letter. Small groups of students are then
|           | given the set of pictures and must arrange them in the |           | appropriate sequence. |
| Variations | • The teacher shows the students the sequenced set of |           | pictures and tells a story about the pictures, controlling
|           | structure and vocabulary at an appropriate level. Then
|           | the students, as a group, tell the story back to the |           | teacher. The teacher can use elicitation if the students
|           | forget some of the details or need help with the language.
|           | • As a follow-up step, students can write the story down,
|           | either as a whole class, in small groups, or individually.
|           | • The teacher can ask the students to tell the story using |           | different verb tenses, for example, first telling the
|           | story in the present continuous tense and then changing
|           | to the past tense.
|           | • The teacher can give one picture to each student, e.g.
|           | if there are five pictures, five students are needed.
|           | They stand in front of the class and tell the story, each
|           | student telling the part of his/her picture represents.
|           | • For higher levels cartoon strips can be used. The strips
|           | are cut into frames. The class is divided into groups.
|           | Each group receives an envelope with the cartoon cut into
|           | frames in it. Their job is to put the frames into the |           | correct order. A strip of paper with the correct answer
|           | on it may be included in the envelope. Care must be given
|           | when selecting the cartoons. The sequence should be evident
|           | in the strip, either in the pictures or the language.

32
For lower-level classes, the number of pictures should be limited to three to four pictures. Upper-level classes work well with longer sequences.
Notes on Techniques and Methods

The preceding techniques are used widely in the Intensive ESL/CO Program in Southeast Asia. A number of these techniques such as oral dialogues, repetition drills, substitution drills, chain drills, rejoinder drills and line-gram dialogues exemplify a methodology known as the Aural/Oral Method. Other methodologies used in the programs to varying degrees are Counseling-Learning/Community Language Learning and the Silent Way. The Silent Way involves the use of sets of rods in various colors.

The users of this manual may find the following references helpful. (See Bibliography for complete citation.)

LITERACY ACTIVITIES
INTRODUCTION

The literacy activities described in this section are primarily designed for pre-literate and non-literate students, but they can be adapted to other groups of students, depending on their needs.

These activities are not meant to take place of a literacy curriculum.

Rather, it is hoped that they will stimulate teachers to think of their own activities. Any adaptation or expansion of the activities in the section is encouraged.

ALPHABET MAKE-A-SQUARE

Purpose
To recognize different ways of writing the letters of the alphabet

Number of Players
Pairs

Materials
One pack of alphabet make-a-square cards (52) cards. For detailed instructions on making a set of these cards see Olsen, 1977. The following description of the combinations on the cards is taken from this source, p. 79.

The Combinations:

1 - back 1 - front 1 - back 1 - front

A a A a

2 - back 2 - front 2 - front 2 - back

Capital - Small letters Capital - Small print Capital - Small cursive

Directions
Mix up all the cards, so that pairs are not together and give them to the 2 players. The players must fit the paper halves together. Each partner in a pair tries to make as many pairs as possible. The one with the most pairs wins.

Variation
The game can become both a reading game and a communicative game by requiring players to use language like, "Please give me a ......" or "Do you have a ......?"
ALPHABET ORDERING

Purpose
To learn and review letters in alphabetical order.

Number of Players
Small groups of 3-4 players.

Materials
A pack of alphabet cards containing 26 letters.

Directions
Each group of players is given a complete pack of cards. The cards are dealt out to all the players so that each player has a similar number of cards. The player with the M starts and lays the M-card down on the table. Players in turn lay down one card if they have the next one in sequence either forwards or backwards. If they do not have the appropriate card, they lose their turn. If they do have the right card, they continue playing. Eventually, a long alphabet snake should be formed. The winning group is the one that puts all its letters down in order first.

Variations
- For reinforcement, players must say the name of the letter. If they say the name incorrectly, they lose their turn and the next player takes his turn.

The leader puts down two cards, for example, A and C. Players must identify what is missing—B.

This can be played with number cards.
Purpose

To recognize numbers, letters, times, money, words presented orally.

Whole class.

Materials

- A bingo card for each player.
- Tokens (paper clips, pebbles, coins) in quantity as each player could use up to 23.
- Cards that match the symbols on the bingo cards.

(For o-100 NUMBER BINGO)

Each player is given a bingo card and some tokens. The leader puts all the number cards in a container and pulls them out one-by-one. After each card has been pulled, the leader calls that number out loud. If a player has that number on her bingo card, she covers it up with a token. The first player to cover up five numbers in a row (horizontally, vertically, or diagonally) wins.

The leader should keep track of all the numbers in order to verify that the player has actually won and not made any mistakes.

Variations

- Times, money, words can be used.
- Used a smaller set of numbers and a 2 X 3 grid instead of a 5 X 5 grid. The first player to cover all her numbers wins. Use this variation as an introduction.
- Give each player a sheet of paper on which squares have been ruled out (4 X 4 or 5 X 5). On the board, the leader lists either numbers, letters, words, or times—about 25 to 40—from which each member of the class copies down 16 or 25, one in each empty square. The leader then calls out the numbers, etc. at random, and players cover up the ones they hear with a token. The first to get 4 (or 5) in a row wins.

CROSSING OUT

Purpose
To recognize numbers, letters, times, money, vocabulary.

Number of Players
One or more.

Materials
Blackboard and chalk; paper and pencils.

Directions
The leader writes down a set of numbers on the blackboard or on paper. (This can also be done on an individual student worksheet.) The students are instructed to cross out, for example, all the 7s. The student who does it first, and accurately, wins.

Variation

Blackboard and chalk; paper and pencil.

A player thinks of a word and writes a number of dashes on the board that corresponds to the number of letters in the word. The other players guess what the letters are by asking "Is there a T in it? Has it got an M?" The correct letters are written in. For each incorrect guess, however, a line is added to the gallows to make up a hangman. Players must guess the word before they are hanged.

- To help the very beginning students play this game, the leader (or teacher) could begin the game with some of the letters already written in.
- Use student names.
- Use vocabulary within one topical area and tell the players what the topical area is.

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Purpose

To match pairs of cards with shapes, numbers, letters, times, words on them.

Number of Players

Whole class or two groups of at least 8-10 members each.

Materials

Each group (the whole class is one group) requires two packs of cards, with an equal number of cards in each pack. The total number of cards should be twice the number of players. The two packs correspond in that each of the cards in one pack matches one of the cards in the second pack. Five possible matching packs are shown below:

1. \[ M \] \times \[ m \]
2. \[ ONE \] \times \[ 1 \]
3. \[ A \] \times \[ a \]
4. \[ G \] \times \[ g \]
5. \[ \bullet \] \times \[ \bullet \]

Directions

Each player is given two cards, which do not match. He puts one card in his left hand and one card in his right hand. Each player tries to find the player who has the card that matches the card in his left hand and the player who has the card that matches the card in his right hand. Players who have matched up cards should stand next to each other, like this:

Eventually a large circle including everyone in the class (or group) should be formed.

Variation

- If the focus is on visual recognition or reading, then players should not talk when trying to find partners, but rather should read the cards and gesture.
LETTER NAMES

Purpose
To learn to say and recognize the names of the letters.

Number of Players
Small groups; whole class, perhaps divided into teams.

Materials
One pack of alphabet cards (26).

Directions
The leader calls out the name of a letter, for example, "E", and the players hold up the card with that letter on it.

Variations
- Instead of using letter names, the sounds of the letters could be used. The leader could say, "Find a letter with the sound /K/!" and players could hold up [ chicago or [K] or even [G] [B] together. Phonics work should precede this activity.
- This could easily be played by teams. Points can be awarded to the team that holds up the correct card first.
Purpose

To practice number, time, word etc., recognition.

Number of Players

Small group of 4-6 players.

Materials

- Lotto cards, enough so that each player has one. Bingo number cards can be used for this purpose. Teachers can also make letter, time, money, vocabulary, or sentence lotto cards.
- A pack of cards that match and can be used to cover the items on the lotto cards. Teachers should make the cover cards for numbers, letters, time, money, vocabulary, or sentences.

Directions (FOR NUMBER LOTTO)

Each player has a different bingo or lotto card. There is a pile of number cards face down in the middle of the playing area. From this pile, every player takes one card in turn. If the number card a player takes does not appear on the player's large card, he returns it to the pile. If it does, he places it over that number and takes another turn. The first player to cover all the numbers on his card is the winner.
MISSING LETTERS

Purpose
To learn to recognize what words look like.

Number of Players
One or more.

Materials
Blackboard and chalk; paper and pencil.

Directions
The leader writes a word that the class knows on the board and asks the class to read it. Then the leader erases one letter. The players have to guess what the missing letter is.

Variations
- This can be played individually on worksheets prepared before class.
- Or this can be played with the whole class divided into two teams. The team with the most correct guesses wins. Before playing in teams, it's best to play with the whole class.
- At first only remove one letter. Later, more letters can be missing.

Note
ONLY USE WORDS THE PLAYERS ARE FAMILIAR WITH.
PICTURE STORIES

Purpose
To reinforce left-to-right and top-to-bottom eye movement for beginning readers.

Number of Players
One or more.

Materials
Blackboard and chalk; paper and pencil.

Directions
The teacher draws a story with a minimum of three scenes. The topic could be as common as "My Morning" or as complicated as a story describing writing and mailing a letter. The drawings should be simple and clear. Stick-figures are OK. The drawings should be "read" from left-to-right and from top-to-bottom. After drawing his story, the teacher tells it and then invites the class to tell him back his story. While the students are retelling the story, the teacher should not correct their language, but rather help them when they ask for help. One student could describe one frame, another the next, and so on. Or, the whole class could collectively describe the story. The next step is to ask the students to draw their own story and then to tell it. If students want to know how to write some of the words, the teacher can write them down; but this should not be overdone.
To practice numbers.

Whole class divided into two teams.

Blackboard and chalk, preferably colored chalk.

Various numbers are written clearly on the board. (The numbers used depend on which numbers the players need practice with.) There are two teams. One member from each stands at the board, each with a different color of chalk in hand. The leader stands at the side and calls out one of the numbers. The two opposing team players look for it, and the first to put a ring around it scores a point. Those at the board should be replaced after 3 numbers. The winning team has the most numbers circled.

- In place of numbers, there could be letters, clock times, digital times, weights and measures, dates, telephone numbers, sums of money, or vocabulary.

THE ACTION IS THE IMPORTANT THING.
SAME OR DIFFERENT?

Purpose
To practice recognizing same or different numbers, letters, words, times, money, shapes.

Number of Players
One or more.

Materials
Blackboard and chalk; paper and pencil.

Directions
The leader writes a row of letters, with several of the letters repeated. Before the row, she writes the repeated letter. Players must circle all the repeated (or SAME) letters in the row. The first to finish accurately wins.

Variations
- This can be played with numbers, times, money, and words. Shapes can be used as a pre-reading exercise.
- The class could be divided into 2 teams. Whichever team matches the symbols first wins.

SNAKES AND LADDERS

Purpose
To practice numbers 1 to 100.

Number of Players
Whole class, preferably divided into small groups of 4–6 players.

Materials
A Snakes and Ladders board (see below); a pair of dice; a token for each player.

Directions
Each player throws the dice and moves his token along the line, saying each number aloud. When he lands on a square at the foot of a ladder, he goes up it. If, however, he lands on a snake's head, he is swallowed by the snake and has to go back. The winner is the player who reaches 100 first.

Variation
- Instead of using dice, the players could use a pack of cards with numbers written on them. In order to move, they have to take one of the cards and read the number.

Review
INTRODUCTION

The ESL activities described in this section are used in the teaching of the competencies in the regional curricula. These activities are not all inclusive but are representative of those being used in the Intensive ESL/CO Program in Southeast Asia. Users of the manual are encouraged to make their own adaptations, contributions, and deletions to suit their own needs.

Activities are noted for one or more specific levels of ability, but they can be rearranged, modified, and expanded to further suit the users' specific students. An activity may also be cross-referenced to one or more general techniques in the General Techniques section.

The following is a definition of the levels to which the letters at the top of each activity refer. It is the same as that found in the description of ESL curriculum development.

DEFINITION OF ESL LEVELS

Level A (Preliterate) : Students from a society with no or a relatively new, tradition of literacy, such as the Hmong. These students have little or no literacy skills, even in their own language, and score between 0-7 on the CAL Placement Evaluation.

Level A (Nonliterate) : Students from a society with a tradition of literacy, such as the Khmer or lowland Lao. Though there is literacy in the culture, such students have little or no literacy skills in their own language, and score between 0-7 on the CAL Placement Evaluation.

Level B : Students who are literate in their native language(s), score between 0-7 on the CAL Placement Evaluation, and may be able to answer some basic information questions but have no systematic knowledge and/or use of the English language.

Level C : Students who are literate in their native language(s), score between 8-15 on the CAL Placement Evaluation, and have some conversational English ability, but little systematic knowledge and/or use of English.
Level D
Students who are literate in their native language(s), score between 16-24 on the CAL Placement Evaluation, and have some knowledge and/or use of English.

Level E
Students who are literate in their native language(s), score 25 and above on the CAL Placement Evaluation, and have a systematic knowledge and/or use of English but lack fluency.

NOTE ON DIALOGUES

For several of the competencies there are one or more dialogues showing typical conversations related to the competencies. In some cases dialogues from one competency can be used to continue or expand dialogues for a later competency. For example, dialogues 4 and 5 under competency 1.1 can be added to dialogue 1 under competency 1.3. And in some cases a new optional continuation is provided, as with dialogue IX under competency 1.2. These continuations can be used at the teacher's discretion, depending on the ability of the students to handle the additional material. All instances where the preceding cases are possible are noted.

1. The first student says his name. The second student says the first student's name and his/her own name. The third student says the first and second students' names and his/her own name. And so on. At the end, the teacher must say everyone's name. Good luck!

- Have the students stand and come to the front of the room when they say the names. This gets them used to speaking in front of a group from Day 1. Call for "volunteers." The sooner a student volunteers, the fewer names to say.

- Instead of doing the entire class the same day, do only a half or a third of it. Finish on the following days.

- The teacher introduces five or six students a day. All the students and the teacher must remember those students' names. Ask one student to call off names of those students or ask "What is his/her name?" The next day review and add five or six names.
1.1

COMPETENCY: Identify self, name

LEVEL: A, B

GENERAL

TECHNIQUE:

Estimated Time: 1 - 2 hours

Purpose:
To practice the appropriate responses to questions concerning name
To practice recognition of names

Materials:
Name cards in two colors, one for the first name and one for the last.
Poster board student roster. A pocket chart is made from poster board. The pockets will hold name cards. On the left side of the poster board students' names will be listed.

Directions:

Name Cards:

1. The teacher asks: What's your first name?
   OR
   What's your last name?

2. The student responds: My first name is ____________.
   OR
   My last name is ____________.

While responding the student holds up the name card with the appropriate response.

3. The teacher practices with all students in random order.
Variations

Student Roster:

1. The teacher asks: What's your first/last name?

2. The students reply and match their first/last names by putting their name cards in the proper pockets on the poster board and student roster.

- The teacher asks: What is his/her first/last name? The students respond and match their classmates' name cards by putting them in the correct pockets on the poster board student roster.

- The teacher may want to have another poster board student roster, one with last name first, and practice with it. However, it is recommended that students have thoroughly mastered one before introducing the other.

- Students are placed into groups of four to five. A name card is shown to the group by the teacher or a student in the group. The student says his/her name when it appears. The leader should vary the activity by using first names, last names, and both names together.
Estimated Time

20 minutes

Purpose

To practice responding to questions about first and last names in the third person singular

Materials

Pictures of a variety of people. (Comical ones enliven the class)

Directions

1. The teacher holds up a picture and says, "His name is John Smith" (or an equally simple/common name).
2. The teacher asks, "What's his name?"
3. The student responds, "John Smith" or "His name is John Smith."
4. The teacher asks, "What is his first name?"
5. The student responds, "John."
6. The teacher asks, "What is his last name?"
7. The student responds, "Smith."

Variation

- The students can be called up to choose and name a picture. The class (or teacher) can then ask the student the first, last name questions.

</tbody>
</table>
| Directions     | 1. The teacher writes the following questions on the board:

   - What's his/her name?
   - Where did s/he come from?
   - How old is s/he?
   - Whom did s/he come with?
   - How did s/he get here?
   - When did s/he leave (Laos)?
   - Why did s/he leave (Laos)?
   - What was his/her occupation in (Laos)?
   - How long has s/he been in ______?

2. The teacher places a picture of a refugee next to the questions and asks the class to describe the person by answering the above questions.

3. As the class answers the questions about the picture, the teacher writes sentences with the answers on the brown paper.

4. The class is divided into pairs, each pair receiving a sheet of brown paper, a magic marker, and a picture of a refugee. The teacher circulates about the room giving assistance as the students answer the questions and write their stories.
5. When all are finished, the sheets are hung around the room.

6. Each pair reports on their story to the group.

7. After all oral reports are given, the students go around the room reading the sheets and writing down any mistakes found.

8. The sheets are taken down, and students come to the board to write the sentences with mistakes in them and their corrections.

9. The teacher and class go over the sentences. The teacher can group the common mistakes and give the appropriate grammar lesson.

- The teacher can pass out pictures of a variety of different kinds of people. Each pair would then describe the picture they were given.

- This activity can be done without the reading and writing component. The teacher begins by describing a picture and then has individuals or pairs do their pictures orally. Time can be given for them to prepare their oral presentations.

COMPETENCY: Identify self

GENERAL
TECHNIQUE: Chain drills

Estimated time

15 minutes

Purpose
To practice asking and answering personal identification questions

Materials
One or two bean bags. (Bags can also be made of rice. Rock bags can be dangerous.) Or one or two small or large rubber balls.

Directions
1. The teacher forms students in groups of six to ten in a circle.

2. S/he throws the bean bag asking a personal identification question, i.e., "What's your address?"

3. The receiver answers as s/he catches the bag and then throws it to another student asking either the same question (if the class is drilling that particular structure) or another personal identification question if the exercise is to be used for review.
Estimated Time
1 - 2 hours

Purpose
To practice the appropriate responses to "Where are you from?"

Materials
Rods or pieces of paper of three different lengths in two different colors:

- BLUE -

- PINK -

Rods or strips of paper are used as cues for specific words in a sentence. For example, for the sentences,

I'm from Laos. (country)
I'm from Xieng Khaun. (state)
I'm from Som Nra. (city)

use different size pieces of paper or rods for each geographical location.

Directions
1. The teacher holds up the longest piece of paper/rod (in, for example, pink) and says, "I'm from the U.S.A." (Shows map of U.S.) S/he then holds up the middle size piece of paper/rod and says, "I'm from Washington state." (Shows Washington state on map). The teacher then holds up the shortest length of paper/rod and says, "I'm from Tacoma." (shows Tacoma on the map).

2. The teacher then brings out maps of the refugees' countries. (If the students have never seen a map before, a translator/aide will have to explain the concept). S/he shows the city, province, and country where some of the students were born. (This information is taken from refugee biodata in advance). The teacher says "You're from ________, ________, _______" relating the appropriate size piece of paper... to the geographical location; long-country, medium-province or state, short-city. When speaking about the refugee, the other color (blue) strips/rods are used.

3. The teacher then asks the question "Where are you from?" and cues the desired response by holding up the appropriate piece of paper. Students respond with the information about themselves.

- Break students into pairs or small groups and give them sets of strips/rods. Have them cue each other in response to the question, "Where are you from?"

Estimated time:

1/2 hour

Purpose:

To provide practice in sorting out words into a logical sentence

Materials:

The dialogue below cut up into word and punctuation segments

Directions:

1. See General Techniques: Scrambled Words. Use it with the following dialogue.

   A: Hi, my name's Peng. What's yours?

   B: Seng Leng.

   A: Nice to meet you.

   B: Pleased to meet you, too.

   The pieces will look as follows:

   [Diagram of scrambled words]

2. Each student is given one of the pieces. The class is then told that it is a dialogue and asked to rearrange themselves into sentences and then to put the sentences into the proper order.

- The class can be divided into groups and each group given a different dialogue.

If there are faster and slower students in the same class, this activity can be given to the former, while the teacher works with the latter.
| Estimated time | 20 minutes |
| Purpose | To practice introducing oneself |
| Purpose | To practice greeting and being greeted |
| Directions | 1. Present the dialogue: |
| Directions | A: Hello. My name's __________________________. |
| Directions | B: Hi. My name's __________________________. |
| Directions | Nice to meet you! |
| Directions | A: Nice to meet you, too. |
| Directions | "Nice to meet you too." is only used on the first meeting and not on subsequent meetings. |
| Directions | • Have the students move around the classroom greeting and introducing themselves to one another. The teacher should also join in. This is a good ice-breaking activity. |
Estimated Time
1 hour

Purpose
To practice introducing others

Directions
1. The students are placed in a circle. Use two circles if the class is large.

2. The teacher demonstrates with a few students how to give a firm handshake with solid eye contact. The students practice giving the hearty handshake.

3. Next the teacher introduces the sentence, "How do you do?" in connection with the handshake. The students practice.

4. The students are broken into groups of three and practice Step 2.

5. Next the teacher demonstrates a basic introduction with two students. "This is Lou." gesturing to Lou; "This is Kim." gesturing to Kim. The students practice.

6. The teacher then adds each of the students names to form a proper introduction: "Kim, this is Lou," "Lou, this is Kim." The students practice.

7. The students regroup in different sets of three and continue practicing.

GENERAL TECHNIQUE: Rejoinder drills

Estimated Time: 20 minutes

Purpose: To practice effective oral strategies for the clarification of information

Materials: Pictures or real objects for section 2D below

Any combination of clarification items can be required. For example,

T: Please put the paper clip on the table.
(Spoken very quickly)

The students must first ask if the teacher can speak slowly and then about the meaning of the paper clip.
In examples such as 2C, students can be encouraged to ask for verbal explanations of words or phrases until the definition is clear.

TECHNIQUE: Oral dialogues and role play

Estimated Time
1 1/2 hours

Purpose
To practice identification of medical problems

Materials
Signs "doctor," "hospital," "clinic"; pictures showing people with different medical problems

Directions
1. Review parts of the body by asking a volunteer to draw a body on the board and by asking other students to label parts of the body.

2. Review previously learned medical problems. For example, headache   toothache stomachache sore foot backache     sore arm

   earache      sore throat

3. The teacher asks the students to state the names of the medical problems in a series of pictures s/he shows to the class.

4. The teachers and students practice the following dialogue together:

   A: What's the matter?/What's wrong?/What's the problem?/How do you feel today?
   B: I have ____________________ .
   A: How long have you had ____________________ ?
   B: Two weeks. (Or some length of time)

5. The teacher asks three to four students to act as doctors. S/he puts the signs "doctor," "hospital," "clinic" on their desks.

6. The teacher hands out the picture with the medical problems to the rest of the class.
7. The students role play doctor and patient using the dialogue in Step 4.

8. The teacher circulates about the room giving encouragement and corrections.

9. The teacher asks students to exchange pictures or roles.

   - The teacher may want to write the dialogue on the blackboard to help the students' recall before they are asked to act out the lines.

For lower level classes:

   The number of ways the question is asked in the first line of the dialogue should be limited as should the number of medical problems in the activity. Instead of the third line, the "doctor" may point to a calendar/clock and say "Sick one day?" or "How long?"
Estimated time
45 minutes

Purpose
To practice asking for giving directions to secure medical help

Materials
Rods, labels for the rods

Directions
1. The following is the dialogue used with this activity:

   A: Excuse me. (Where is the hospital?)
      (How can I get to the hospital?)

      It's beside the post office.

   A: Thank you.

   B: You're welcome.

   (As well, other direction expressions should have been presented:)

   Turn right.
   On the corner of ______ and ______.
   At ______ address.

   Vocabulary such as "drugstore" and "clinic" should have been presented.

2. Construct a map with streets, corners, blocks, buildings represented by rods. Tape the names of buildings, streets, etc. on the rods. Choose two rods and assign them names. Have them "talk" and move through the above dialogue.

3. Have students move the rods through the dialogue.

4. Substitute other words in the first line; "clinic," "drugstore." Have other students perform the dialogue and move the rods.

5. Change the map or have the students change it. Repeat the activity with a new map.
Variation

After the class has seen and practiced the dialogue and rod activity, the class can be divided into groups. Each group can be given rods and labels and instructed to make a map. They would then repeat the activity. The teacher can circulate, giving help where necessary.

9. A: Please send a taxi to 911 Sixth Avenue.
   B: Where are you going?
   A: To Central High School.
   B: OK. Right away.
Estimated Time: 15 - 30 minutes

Purpose: To respond appropriately to directions regarding place

Materials: Obstacles, such as chains, wastepaper baskets, people, desks, etc.

Directions:
1. The teacher demonstrates phrases such as:
   - Go straight ahead.
   - Turn left.
   - Turn right.
   - Stop.

2. An obstacle course is set up with anything that would block a straight path. (This activity can be called "Airport Obstacle Course." In this case the obstacle course becomes the "runway.")

3. The students stand at the end of the obstacle course. They are blindfolded.

4. The teacher, and then eventually the students themselves, direct a blindfolded student ("airplane") down the course with the directions. "Stop" is an essential command in this game.

Variations:
- This game can be played as competition with two teams trying to get their "airplanes" down the "runway" as quickly as possible.

Additional language can be practiced with directions such as, "Take four steps and then turn left."

Purpose: To practice filling in a form for a job which includes educational background.

Materials: Three or more forms on large sheets of paper; individual forms for the class (See sample)

Directions:

1. The teacher places one of the forms on a large sheet of paper on the board and does a Direction Drill using the following:
   1. Write today's date on the first line.
   2. Fill in your name and address.
   3. Check the correct box for sex.
   4. Write in your nationality.
   5. Fill in age and date of birth.
   6. Fill in educational background.
   7. Write in languages spoken.
   8. Sign your name clearly at the bottom.

2. Then the teacher asks three more students to come to the front of the room and fill out large forms while the individual forms are handed to the rest of the students in their places.

3. The directions are repeated by the teacher.

4. The teacher and class then check the work of the students in front of the class.

5. Individual forms can be corrected by the students individually or in pairs or the teacher can collect them and go over them herself/himself.
• The form can include spaces for any information that the teacher wishes, e.g., work experience, skills, boxes for job preference, etc.

The students do not need to learn how to give these directions, only follow them. Therefore, they do not have to practice saying #1-9.

   When did you (work in (Vietnam (study (Cambodia ? (Laos

   What languages can you speak?
   Did you go to school in (Cambodia (Vietnam ? (Laos
   How many years did you go to school?
   Where did you go to school?
   What grade did you finish?
Variation

- After five or six questions the teacher may erase one sentence, starting with the first each time a new question is added.

What we like about this activity:

The students become so involved in this activity that they forget about speaking in their own language. There is a lot of peer correction taking place which is also in English. Because the questions and answers are repeated many times, the students gain confidence and speak more naturally and easily, and having a new partner each time keeps their interest although the questions are the same. After the first time two or three questions, the students are very relaxed and begin greeting each other in English before moving to the list of questions.

Purpose

To ask/answer questions about the location of things in a supermarket

Materials

Desks or tables and realia/representations - supermarket items

Directions

1. Arrange the desks/tables in such a way so as to form aisles in a supermarket. Put numbers on the aisles. Hide supermarket items in the desks or under the tables according to their sections.

2. The teacher gives a map of the location of items to a "manager" or "clerk" who is standing in the classroom. (There may be more than one manager/clerk.)

3. The rest of the class is outside. They are the "shoppers." They enter one by one and ask the manager/clerk about the location of items. The shopper goes and finds the items according to the directions given. For example,

   A. I want to buy _________. (Where is it?)

   (Where are they?)

   B. (It's _________.)

   (They're on aisle number _________.)

4. After the shoppers finish shopping, they exchange places with the clerks/managers.

   - Another student can be the cashier. The purchases are checked out and paid for with play or real money. All of the supermarket items must have prices on them.

   A. How much is the total?

   B. It's $ _________. (¢)

COMPETENCY: Locate food items in a supermarket

LEVEL: A (can be adapted for all levels)

GENERAL TECHNIQUE: Role play
What we like about this activity:

It facilitates the students understanding the numbering of aisles and reinforces items previously taught.

It is a picture of a real supermarket. There are price labels on all items, there is a cashier, and items must be found according to the section or aisles.

During the activity the students really use English, although quite restricted to the language that has been studied.

Estimated Time: 1 hour

Purpose:
To ask/answer questions about the prices of food items
To compute a food bill

Materials:
For each group of four in the class:
Three shoppers' envelopes in which there is a set of cards indicating both the item and the quantity/quality of item purchased. Discount coupons for one or two items can also be included. One cashier's envelope with a set of cards including all of the items with the same information as found in the three shoppers' envelopes. As well prices are given on the cashier's cards.

Directions:
1. The class is divided into groups of four.
2. In each group, three people receive shopper's envelopes, and one receives a cashier's envelope.
3. Shopper #1 asks the cashier,
   How much is/are a/the ________?
4. The cashier answers,
   It's/They're $ ________. (c)
   The cashier gives only the unit price as printed on the set of cards. If a shopper is buying more than one item, the computation is to be done by the shopper.
5. The shopper writes down the price of the item on the front of his/her envelope computing when necessary, based on the quantity/quality being bought as stated on the card. If any other shopper has the same item on a card, they also pay attention and record the correct price for their purchase.
6. Each of the other shoppers then takes his/her turn role playing with the cashier.

7. If shoppers have discount coupons, they lower the price on those items by the amounts of the coupons.

8. The activity is finished when all three shoppers have computed their food bill and the teacher has checked it.

- Play/real money can be included in the envelope. The final step would then be for each shopper to conclude whether s/he has enough money to pay the bill or not.

| 1 hour         | To teach the skills of several popular occupations that are available to the refugees | Sets of pairs of cards; in each pair, the occupation is on one card and two or three skills of that occupation on another card | 1. As a warm up activity, the teacher pantomimes occupations, for example house painter, gardener, janitor, etc. The students give the occupations.
2. The students then pantomime an occupation. (They may also wish to pantomime the occupation they had in their country.)
3. The class is divided into groups of five. Each group receives a set of cards consisting of 5 pairs to each group.
4. All occupation and skill cards are shuffled and placed down on the table. The first student in the group takes two cards and sees if the cards match or not. If the cards match, the student reads them out loud. For example, the student would say:
   A mechanic fixes engines and changes flat tires. If the cards do not match, they are shown to the members of the group before the student places them face down.
5. The next student then takes a turn selecting two cards and so on until all the pairs have been matched. The teacher may want to demonstrate the whole procedure with one group before all the groups do it independently.
6. When the groups finish, they can exchange sets of cards. |
Variation

- The students have only the skill cards. The teacher asks, "Who repairs engines?" The student who has the skill card replies, "A mechanic." or "A mechanic repairs engines." If the level is high, the teacher can combine two or three skills in one question. "Who repairs engines and fixes flat tires?" "A mechanic." or "A mechanic repairs engines and fixes flat tires." The students then continue the activity in groups, with the student answering, then asking the question.

- The students have only the occupation cards. "Again, the teacher models, "What does a mechanic do?" The student who has the card responds with the appropriate answer. The students then continue the activity in groups with the student answering then asking the question.

What we like about this activity:

This activity is student-centered. The students do most of the talking in the classroom rather than the teacher. The teacher only needs to model a part of the whole activity and then is free to walk around checking the activity. Furthermore, there is a lot of fun here since it is performed as a game.

Purpose

- To practice addressing envelopes properly
- To practice selecting correct postage
- To practice choosing the appropriate mail slot

Materials

- Real U.S. cancelled stamps
- Envelopes
- Paper for letters
- Mailbox with slots for "Airmail," "Local Mail," and "Out of Town" "Post Office" signs

Directions

1. The teacher has each student use paper and an envelope to write a letter to someone. Basic letter writing language and form should be taught/reviewed.

2. Students are given one cancelled U.S. stamp. (They are not all for the same amount.) They are to glue the stamp on their letter.

3. Each student's letter should be checked for the correct address, return address, whether the envelope is sealed, the stamp is placed correctly, etc. When the letters should be mailed by each student in the appropriate slot.

4. After the letters have been "mailed," they are collected and then redistributed randomly. (Not back to the writers.)

5. One student is assigned to go to the board and another to read the address of the letter he has and the amount the stamp is worth. The student at the board writes the amount of postage necessary for the letter (airmail, surface, overseas, domestic) and under the figure the amount of the stamp on the envelope. The question asked is, "Is there enough postage?" Either student can give the answer. This can be done for all or one half of the letters in the class.
• Demonstrate what happens when not enough postage is put on the letter, i.e., it is returned for additional postage. For example:

A. Have student X in the U.S. send student Y in Hongkong or somewhere else abroad a letter, with less than 40¢ postage. Have the student mail the letter to you. Take the letter, stand under the Post Office sign. Pretend to stamp the letter. Write on the board and on the letter. "Returned for additional postage." "Mail" it back to the sender. Student X should then add the proper amount of postage, and mail the letter again. This time pantomime an airplane speeding the letter to Hongkong or somewhere else abroad to happy student Y.

B. Repeat the above, except this time do not return the letter to the student. "Take" the letter to student Y, inching your way across the classroom, and using a picture of a boat, or a sign "Surface mail." Show on a calendar that six weeks pass from time of mailing to the time student Y receives the letter. Have student Y look impatient.

• The students can recreate the above pantomiming a fast airplane or a slow boat. As well they can create their own dialogue.

• Include airletters in the activity. Show that they are cheaper. Tell them nothing can be placed inside.
Estimated Time: 2 hours

Purpose:
- To practice writing, addressing, mailing postcards
- To practice asking for/purchasing stamps

Materials:
- Homemade or purchased postcards, homemade or real stamps, play or real money

Directions:
1. The teacher can have the class make postcards if s/he wishes.
   - Before going into class the teacher cuts large cardboard into pieces the size of a postcard, 10 cm x 15 1/2 cm or 4 inches x 6 inches.
   - The teacher draws the following on one side of each postcard.

   ![Postcard template]

   - Before letting the students prepare the front of the postcards by themselves, the teacher should demonstrate the following. First a colorful "postcard" type picture is cut from a magazine. It should be the same size as the cardboard. It is then glued to the front of the postcard.

2. The teacher demonstrates how to write the message and address on the blackboard. The following are sample directions.

   WHAT SHOULD BE WRITTEN? WHERE SHOULD IT BE WRITTEN?

   (1) Date
   - On the left side of the postcard in top right corner.
Dear, (FIRST NAME OF ADDRESSEE)

(GREETINGS) Hello, how are you?

SUGGESTED CONTENTS:
- The weather here is terrible.
- What did you do last week?

Bye, see you.

Love,

(NAME OF SENDER)

(NAME AND ADDRESS OF ADDRESSEE)

Students should be reminded not to sign their names illegibly but to write them clearly.

3. The students role play asking for/purchasing stamps and mailing their postcards. The following is a sample.

STUDENT ACTION CONVERSATION

(1) Go into the Post Office - "Where can I buy stamps?"

(2) Point to the counter that says, "STAMPS ONLY." - "Go to that counter, please." or "Here/Over there."

(3) Line up to buy the stamps. Don't show the postcard to the clerk. Ask for the correct postage. - "I need to send a postcard by LOCAL MAIL/AIR MAIL."

(4) Pay for the stamp. - "How much is it?" "Here you are." "Here's your change."

(5) Get the stamp and stick it on the postcard. - "Thank you."
Variations

(6) Put it into the suitable - "Put it in the mail slot (AIR MAIL slot mailbox," or LOCAL MAIL slot)

For lower beginning students, teachers may have to let the students copy the message from a sample provided on the chalkboard. During the practice of the dialogue with the post office clerk, teachers may have to coach the students.

For upper level students, teachers can encourage their students to write the message by themselves. Give them some hints, such as: What did they do last weekend? How's the weather today? How do you feel today? Tell something about the picture on your postcard.

- Instead of a role play the students can write real messages and addresses and then take a field trip to the post office to mail them.
Estimated Time: 45 minutes

Purpose:
- To teach/review buying items and registering mail in the post office using dialogues
- To strengthen listening comprehension using a selection on buying items in the post office

Materials: Blackboard

Directions:
1. The teacher teaches/reviews the dialogues. The following are samples.

   Dialogue I:

   A: Have you mailed the letter yet? It's already the tenth of the month.
   B: No, I haven't. I'm out of stamps.
   A: Well, let's go to the post office and get some.
   b: O.K. If the windows are closed, we can use the machine in the lobby.

   Dialogue II:

   A: I want to make sure my son receives this letter. It has his high school diploma in it.
   B: You can send it either by certified mail or registered mail.
   A: Which do you recommend?
   B: If you only want to make sure it's received, send it by certified mail.
   A: O.K. How about this package?
   B: What's in it?
   A: A watch.
   B: You should insure it for the value of the watch, and send it by registered mail. It's more expensive, but it's the safest way.

2. The teacher does a dictation with the following passage.

   The Story:

   When Mrs. Park is out of stamps, she goes to the post office. If the windows are closed, she uses the machine in the lobby. Sometimes she has something important to mail. If she wants to make sure it is received, she sends it by certified mail. If it is something very expensive, she insures it. It costs a little more money, but it is the safest way.

QUESTIONS:
1. Where does Mrs. Park go to buy stamps?
2. How does she send important mail?
3. How does she send something expensive?
Estimated time
1/2 to 1 hour

Purpose
To practice following directions, for taking medicine
To practice asking questions about taking medicine

Directions
1. The students should have already worked with the following dialogue.

Doctor: Here are your pills.

Patient: How often should I take them?

Doctor: Take two pills three times a day.

Patient: How long?

Doctor: For two days.

2. The person playing the doctor actually counts out the number of pills. They can be counted out for each day and then the total number computed.

3. Next the variables can be changed. For example in the above dialogue it could be changed to two pills three times a day for three days. It is recommended that only one variable be changed at a time.

4. The above can also be done with liquid medicines, with the obvious changes being made in the dialogue.

Variation
In a review lesson, "How often" questions can be reintroduced, such as,

How often do you drink coffee?
How often do you go shopping?
How often do you eat bananas?
Estimated Time: 1 hour

Purpose: To practice buying a plane ticket and requesting information about gate, flight, time and destination

Materials: Gate signs, plane tickets

Directions:

1. The teacher makes gate signs as below, with arrows pointing in different directions.

   - Gate 1 - 10
   - Gate 11 - 20
   - Gate 21 - 30

   The teacher places these signs over doors or on different walls of the classroom. S/he explains to the students how to follow the signs.

2. Students roleplay buying a ticket. The students can be given a dialogue or make their own depending on level. Some sample questions are:

   - Where are you going?
   - What is the flight number?
   - What time is the flight?
   - What gate?

3. Students leave the ticket counter and must go to the correct gate sign.
| Estimated Time | 1 1/2 hours |
| Purpose | To practice asking the destination of a bus. |
| Purpose | To practice recognition of the sight words "BUS STOP" |
| Purpose | To practice waiting for a bus at a bus stop |

| Materials | Pictures of buses or models of buses with numbers or destinations on them. Three or four "BUS STOP" signs |

| Directions | 1. The teacher teaches/reviews: |
| What's this? | It's a bus./A bus. |
| What are these? | They're buses./Buses. |
| Where does this bus go? | This bus goes to 4th Street./To 4th Street. |
| Does this bus go to ___? | Yes/No. |
| The teacher/students practice the above using the pictures/models. |

| Directions | 2. The teacher then asks three or four students to pretend to be "bus drivers," each with a different route. The rest of the students won't know the routes. |

| Directions | 3. The rest of the students are divided into three or four groups. Each group is instructed to take a different route. |

| Directions | 4. The teacher places the "BUS STOP" signs in different places in the room. The bus drivers are instructed only to stop at the bus stops. |

| Directions | 5. The students from each group scatter themselves at different bus stops. As a bus comes by and stops they ask: |
| Does this bus go to ___? | OR |
| Where does this bus go? |
If it's the correct bus, the student "gets on," i.e., stands behind the driver and walks away behind him. If it's not the correct bus, the student waits at the bus stop for the next one.

- If the level is more advanced (on B level, but at a later time), the students can then practice asking, "How much is the fare?" The bus driver says the amount and the student gives the correct change in play or real money.

Purpose
To practice telephoning in emergencies

Materials
Telephones, flashcards with pictures depicting emergencies such as fire, robbery, various kinds of accidents

Directions

   (Please) send an ambulance to _______________________ (address)

   (Please) send a policeman to _______________________ (address)

   There's a fire at _______________________ (address)

   Emphasize the importance of stating the address clearly.

3. Using the flashcards depicting various emergencies have various students role play telephoning appropriate information for the emergencies.

   563-7851.
   A: That's near your house. Why don't you call?
   B: I will. I need to earn some money.
3. A: Good morning. May I help you?
   B: I'm Miss Tran Thi Sam. I'd like to make an appointment for an interview.
   A: Do you have an application form?
   B: Yes.
   A: Fine. Can you come here tomorrow at 3:00 p.m.
B: Yes, I can. Thank you.

4. A: Good morning. I have an appointment with Mr. Smith at 3:00.

B: Please sit down. I'll call you.

A: Thank you.

Variation

With these dialogues, the teacher showed several pictures of appropriately and inappropriately dressed job applicants. The students were asked to show approval or non-approval by responding "Yes" or "No" to the teacher's question, "Is this O.K.?

Note

If the above variation is done, the pictures of appropriately/inappropriately dressed applicants should be job specific. The applicants for a secretarial job in a city would obviously dress differently than those for a farmer's helper in the countryside.

SLIPS FOR STUDENT PAIR PRACTICE

A. Invite your friend to lunch next week, on Tuesday or Wednesday.
  B. You don't want to go because you are busy. Refuse politely.

A. Invite your friend to a party at your home, at 1:00 p.m. this Sunday.

A. Invite your friend to have dinner at your home tonight at 6:30 p.m.
  B. You want to go, but you can't go at that time. Ask if you can go another time.

Directions
1. The teacher divides the class into pairs. In each pair one student is designated A, the other B.
2. The pairs are told that A is going to invite his/her partner to do something.
3. A and B slips are passed out. Students read their slips silently. If there is a question, the student raises his/her hand and the teacher speaks to the student individually.
4. The A students begin the exchange. The teacher circulates among the pairs to observe and offer help.

5. When the students have finished, they are requested to perform their dialogues before the class. The class can be asked questions about the performances by the teacher. For example,

</tbody>
</table>
Estimated Time: 1 - 1 1/2 hours

Purpose: To practice various social language competencies in a simulated party role play

Materials: Drinks, snack food or empty cups, "pretend" snacks

Directions:

1. Language in greetings (guests and hosts), excuses for latecomers, food/drink requests/offers, and departures (hosts and hosts) is reviewed.

2. The sequence of activities in a party is introduced either on the board or just orally:
   - A. Greetings
   - B. Offering food/drinks
   - C. Ending the visit - this can be indicated by pointing to a clock drawn on the board, calling out "Time to go," or other means.

3. Party "groups" are set up. The students arrange chairs into three to four distinct groups, not in circles but in arrangements similar to a living room. If real food and drinks are available, they are put on the table to the side of each group.

4. Students are divided into three to four groups. In each group one student is designated as "host/hostess," the others as "guests." Among the guests pair the students so that one is a friend of the host/hostess and must introduce his/her partner. Also designate one pair or the extra student, if an odd-numbered group, as "latecomer(s)."

5. The parties are started. Guests should stand outside the living room; the host should be waiting inside. All except the latecomers should then approach the living room to be greeted by the host/hostess. Since Americans often stand at parties, the teacher may want to insist that the guests do not sit down until the host/hostess asks them or that they don't sit down at all.
6. Once all guests except the latecomers are greeted, the host begins to offer and serve food/drinks. The teacher circulates among the groups to make sure this is happening and that the latecomers are still waiting outside the group.

7. While the guests are being served, the teacher signals the latecomers to arrive. The hosts interrupts the serving to greet them.

8. While the teacher is circulating among the groups, s/he can ask the hosts what individual guests are eating/drinking. As well s/he can ask the guests what they are eating/drinking. Further s/he can introduce herself/himself to the guests or ask the host/hostess to do so.

9. Once the serving is completed the teacher gives the signal for leaving. The teacher again circulates among the groups to make sure each guest speaks to the host before leaving. All guests should then be outside the living room, leaving the host inside.

- Latecomers can be instructed to give the reason why they are late and the hosts/hostesses to expand on the reason. For example,

I'm sorry. I'm late. I got lost.

EXCUSE

That's all right. How long did it take you to get here?

This can be part of the language introduction in Step 1.

- During and after the serving of food/drinks, guests can be making "small talk." For example,

Complements to the host/hostess on his/her home or the food/drink being served.

Talk about the weather.

Introductions of guests to each other.

Personal information, such as

Where are you from?
What do you do?

NOT

SUGGESTED BY:

COMPETENCY: Act appropriately as a host/guest

LEVEL: All

GENERAL TECHNIQUE: Rejoinder drills

Estimated Time

Varies with level

Purpose

To ask/answer the following questions:

Would you like something (to eat) (to drink)?

What would you like (to eat) (to drink)?

Materials

Pictures of food and drink

1. The teacher teaches/reviews the vocabulary of food and drink. ("Are you hungry/thirsty?" can be taught/reviewed here.)

2. The students are arranged in a circle with the teacher in the middle.

3. The teacher asks a student, "Would you like something to eat/to drink?" The student replies "Yes" or "No, thank you."

4. If the student answers "Yes" the teacher then asks, "What would you like to eat/to drink?" and shows the food/drink choices. The students makes a request, and the teacher gives the picture(s) to the student. There should be at least one picture for every student.

5. After every student has been asked, the teacher goes back and gives a picture to those students who answered, "No, thank you."

6. The teacher then steps out of the circle and invites the students to ask one another the same questions. The teacher encourages the students if they don't initiate the action themselves.

1. The teacher passes out blank information cards to the students. Each student should have at least five to eight cards.

2. The students are instructed to fill out their cards with different names and different information. They can ask other students for information and also "make it up" if they wish.

3. The students are instructed to show the teacher their cards when they finish them. The teacher offers corrections.

4. The class is divided into three to four groups.

5. The teacher becomes the "boss" and the students "office clerks."

6. Each group will have a different job to do with its set of cards. For example, one will have to arrange the cards alphabetically, another to arrange them chronologically by date of birth, etc.

7. The clerks must check with the boss to see that they are doing the job correctly. Finally, they notify the boss when they are finished with the job. The boss then checks the work.
Variations

- Steps 1-3 can be done one day; Steps 4-7, another day.
- Steps 4-7 can be repeated with different groups doing different jobs.
Estimated Time: 3 hours

Purpose: To explain sickness, lateness, absence, mistakes to an employer or teacher

Materials: Telephones; pieces of paper with excuses, written on them

Directions:

1. The students are given or encouraged to write their own dialogues for being late or absent from school or work.

2. The teacher pantomimes an explanation, for example, cold, toothache, waking up late, etc. and one student (worker) calls another (employer) and explains why s/he can't come to work based on the teacher's action. To make it more "real," the "employers" should not see the teacher's actions.

Variation:

- On the intermediate level, the teacher prepares pieces of paper with excuses on them and puts them in a box. A student draws one and then makes the appropriate phone call.
Estimated Time: 1 hour

Purpose: To describe past, present and desired future experiences using the past, present and future tenses.

Materials: Pictures of occupations, leisure activities, different types of housing, etc. both in Asia and the U.S. Chart:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>YESTERDAY</th>
<th>NOW</th>
<th>TOMORROW</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Note: When first presenting this activity, the teacher may wish to work with only one chart, e.g., the present, "Now." Past and future charts can be added, one by one, in subsequent lessons. The culminating activity would be to work with all three charts in all three tenses at one time.

Directions:

1. In the columns the teacher places pictures of different types of housing, occupations, leisure activities.

2. (It is assumed that the appropriate language has been presented.) Either as a class or in small groups, the students ask and answer questions in the past, present and future tenses based on the pictures in the charts.

3. Students then ask/answer questions of one another about their own experiences in the past, present and future tenses.
Estimated Time
1 hour

Purpose
To ask/answer questions about family, recreation, weather, traffic, news

Materials
Pictures of a variety of people; refreshments

Directions
1. The teacher teaches/reviews the language used to ask/answer questions about family, recreation, weather, traffic, news.

2. The teacher passes out pictures of different people, one per student.

3. The students are told there is a party for employees. The students are to go around talking to one another under their assumed identities. Refreshments are served.

   • The party can be of any type: company picnic, cocktail party, etc.

   • The activity can be done again at a future date, but the students talk about themselves rather than assume an identity.

GENERAL
Role play

LEVEL: C, D, E

COMPETENCY: Converse with fellow employees
Estimated time: Varies according to the level of the students and the nature of the dialogue.

Purpose: To practice utterances and responses appropriate and natural to the competency.

Directions: See General Techniques: Oral Dialogues. For more capable students or additional reinforcement, consider also using the technique written dialogues.

D:

Dialogue 1

1. At the airport:
   A: Excuse me, I'm lost. Can you help me?
   B: Sure. Where are you going?
   A: To Gate 26, please.
   B: Take a left at the information desk.
   A: Thanks.

2. At the airport:
   A: Excuse me, can you help me?
   B: Sure. What's the matter/problem?
   A: What flight goes to St. Louis Missouri?
   B: Flight 713.
   A: What time does it leave?
   B: It leaves at 5:15 p.m. from Gate 4.
   A: Where's Gate 4.
B: Back that way.

3. On the plane:
   A: Can you help me?
   B: What's the problem?
   A: I feel sick.
   B: Just a minute. I'll bring you something.
   A: Oh, thank you.

4. On arrival: not being met by a sponsor
   A: Excuse me, I'm lost. Please help me find a telephone and make a call.
   B: Who would you like to call?
   A: Nancy Johnson, my sponsor.
   B: Do you have her phone number.
   A: Yes, it's 392-5251.
   B: OK.

LEVEL: D, E

GENERAL TECHNIQUE: Rejoinder drills

Estimated time: 20 - 30 minutes

Purpose: To express agreement or disagreement using a variety of rejoinders

Materials: Board and chalk to score; perhaps a watch for timing

Directions:

1. Explain to the class that this is an answering game. They will be asked questions and must answer in the affirmative or negative but without saying "Yes" or "No" or shaking or nodding their heads.

2. The class is divided into two teams. One student is asked to be timekeeper. The teacher can ask the questions or a student (preferably one who has strong aural/oral skills) can do it.

3. When the timekeeper says "Go," a question is asked to one of the teams. For example,

   A: What's your name?
   B: My name is Tran Van Lim.
   A: Tran Van Lim?
   B:

   If the answer is a "Yes" or "No" or nod or shake of the head the teacher will say "Out." If the student answers correctly, s/he is asked another question. If s/he can keep going for a minute or 30 seconds, or whatever time the teacher prefers, his/her team will get one point. If not, the point goes to the opposing team.

   Possible variations of "Yes" and "No":

Variation

- Students can be asked any direct questions that require affirmative or negative answers. They can also be tricked by being asked such thing as:

  You didn't say yes, did you?

  This variation is only for levels D, E.

Materials

Paper dolls representing various members of a family; a large surface in front of the class on which to attach the paper dolls.

Directions

1. The teacher uses paper dolls to describe his/her own family saying, for example:
   - This is my mother.
   - This is my father.
   - These are my parents.
   - This is my nephew.

2. As the teacher holds up a paper doll, s/he may also hold up a sign with the word on it, e.g., "FATHER," etc. This step is optional.

3. The teacher asks the students after the introduction of each family member, "Who's this?" The students respond, "Your father." or depending on level and material covered, "That's your father."

4. The teacher places the dolls in the form of a family tree on the surface in front of the class.

5. After the tree is completed, the teacher no longer asks the question, "Who's this?" but rather simply holds up a paper doll taken from it and the students say the family member,

6. The teacher then asks individual students to come up and describe their families. The student holds up a doll and says, "This is my niece." The teacher may then ask "Who's that?" of the class or an individual student, eliciting the response, "That's..."
her niece." or "Her niece." The teacher may also ask the student speaking the same question, eliciting the response, "My niece."

With low level students only introduce a few family members at a time.

Having taught "this" and "that" prior to this activity would be helpful.
Estimated time: 1 1/2 hours

Purpose: To improve listening and speaking through listening to and discussing stories about family relationships

Materials: Four tape recorders; four tapes of an American speaker reading the four passages of the story below; a set of story questions for each student; an enlarged copy of the story questions to hang on the blackboard

Directions: See General Techniques: Jigsaw Listening

Note: In this version all students have the same questions. Since each group has a different part of the story, the class must be advised they will only be able to answer some of the questions. In the class discussion afterwards, they will get the missing answers from members of the other groups.

Two sets of cards: one set consists of pictures of different families. For example, a picture that has a mother, father, grandmother and three children in it. Or a picture with a mother, one child and a grandfather in it. The other set of cards has a sentence on it describing the pictures of the families. The sentence for the first picture example would be:

This family has a mother, father, grandmother and three children.

For the second picture example:

In this family there are a mother, one child and a grandfather.

There should be enough cards so that half the students have different picture cards. The other half of the class have the corresponding descriptions. If the class is very large, students can work in pairs: two students to a picture or word card.

1. The class is divided in half.

2. Picture cards are given to one half. (The students should be told not to show their cards to the other half.) Word cards are given to the second half.

3. Students with picture cards go to students with word cards and ask individually of each a question such as:

Do you have three children, a mother, father and grandmother?
The students continue asking until they receive an affirmative answer.

4. The cards can be mixed up and redistributed within each group. This time the students with word cards do the asking.
Estimated time: 5 - 15 minutes daily

Purpose: To practice recognition and production of the date

Materials: Two date boards: one for the month and year written in full; the other for numerical abbreviations. Piles of the following: months of the year, numbers for days, years.

Directions:
1. Daily the teacher says, "Today is date."
2. Students come to the front of the room and select the appropriate date from the piles of months, days and years and slot them in the date boards.
3. The teacher can then practice any of the following:
   - What's today's date?
   - What's the date today?
   - What was yesterday's date?
   - What was the date yesterday?
   - What's the date tomorrow?
   - What will tomorrow's date be?

   While practicing, the dates in the date boards are, of course, changed accordingly.

Variation:
- An additional board for the days of the week can also be used. The same type of practice can be done with it.
Estimated time: 1 hour

Purpose: To practice prepositions of place

Materials: Chalk and board

Directions:

1. Draw a street and put a building on it. Let students decide what sort of building it is. (It's called "A" for convenience below.)

   ![Diagram of A]

   Where's the ________?
   It's next to ________

2. Put B next to A, again letting students decide what sort of building it is. Practice

   ![Diagram of A and B]

3. Using the same method, put C (opposite across from B).

   Practice as described.

   ![Diagram of A, B, and C]
4. D next to A

    C

5. E opposite across from D

E C

6. F between E and C

D A B

E F C

7. Put G, perhaps a school, near D.

G D A B

E F C

8. If one of the buildings is a supermarket, movie theater, etc., you could put a parking lot behind it (H)

G D A B

E F C

Variation

Figures can be drawn in front of or behind buildings, e.g., a policeman is in front of the school.
| Estimated time | 1 hour |
| Purpose        | To give and follow directions containing some or all of the following prepositions of location: in, beside, behind, to the right of; on, between, below, to the left of; under, over, in front of, next to; opposite, above, in back of, across from |
| Materials      | Rods |
| Directions     | The class should be familiar with the list of prepositions above. As well they should be familiar working with rods. |

1. The teacher and a student sit in front of the class back to back. Both have a pile of various colored rods in front of them. The teacher describes to the student in what position to put his/her rods.

2. The teacher begins with, "Take a (blue) rod." and continues giving directions to the student using any of the prepositions previously taught. For example:
   - Take a blue rod and put it next to the green one.
   - Now put a white rod on the blue rod.

3. The student, by following the directions given, builds a structure that is supposed to be identical to the one the teacher is building.

4. When the teacher is finished giving directions, the student then describes to the teacher what his/her structure looks like. For example:
   - The red rod is under the pink one.
   - The pink rod is beside the orange one.
5. As the student describes his/her structure, the teacher confirms whether it is correct or not. If the structure built by the student is incorrect, the teacher tells him/her how to change it.

6. When both are in agreement as to what the structures are, the student looks at what the teacher has built.

7. Two volunteers come to the front and repeat the process.

8. The class is then broken into pairs, each student with the same set of rods as his/her partner has. The students give one another directions as the teacher circulates about the class giving assistance.

Note

Depending on the level, as described above, the activity may run more than one hour. The teacher should feel free to stop and carry over to the next day whenever s/he feels it suitable.

Variation

- The student following the directions may repeat what s/he is doing after each instruction. Immediate correction can be given by the partner. Also with this variation the present progressive tense is being practiced. For example,

  I'm taking the green rod and putting it on the red rod.

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The Experiment in International Living/Save the Children Federation</td>
<td>LEVEL: All</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>GENERAL TECHNIQUE:</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Estimated time: 1 hour

Purpose:
To review material covered through the asking/answering of appropriate questions.

Materials
Six sided cubes. Cubes may be made from heavy cardboard or square cardboard boxes may be used. On each side put a picture relative to one of the competencies. Pictures on a cube may be limited to one competency, such as health, or mixed, depending on the amount of material the teacher is reviewing. Also on each side is a number indicating the number of points that picture is worth. For example, if the competency being reviewed is limited to health, each side must depict a different ailment, backache, cut hand, stomachache, etc. Backache could be worth five points, cut hand 20 points, etc.

Directions
1. The class is divided into teams which can be named. Bring at least two cubes for each session.
2. Team One rolls the cube. Team Two must ask an appropriate question for the picture that is up. For example, if the picture is of a backache, Team Two could ask, "What's the matter?" Team One must then answer based on the picture, e.g., "I have a backache."
3. If the correct answer is given, that team receives the number of points on the cube face. "Backache" is worth five points, so Team One receives this number.
4. The game continues with each student on the teams taking a turn asking and answering questions. The team with the most points wins.

Variations
The variations are endless. For higher levels besides varying the topics, the teacher can request a different question for each roll of the cube. For example, instead of "What's the matter?", questions could be "What happened?" or "What's wrong?" There could be variations in tense, person, number, etc. For higher levels then, both questions and answers could be scored.
SUGGESTED BY:
The Experiment in International Living/Save the Children Federation

COMPETENCY: Review
LEVEL: All
GENERAL: Categories

TECHNIQUES:

Estimated time
1 hour

Purpose
To practice putting pictures into categories
To practice review vocabulary

Materials
A set of 40 cards with pictures on them from categories such as the ones below. There must be a set of four of any one item from each category.

1. fruits
2. vegetables
3. occupations
4. furniture
5. appliances
6. clothing
7. parts of the body
8. transportation

Directions

1. The class is told the object of the game is to get four cards of the same kind and have no cards left in the hand. The game should be demonstrated at first by the teacher.

2. The class is divided into four or six groups. Four cards are dealt to each person. The rest of the cards are placed face down in a pile in the middle of the group.

3. One player takes a turn going around the circle asking:

    Do you have any ________?
    Do you have a ________?
    Do you have some ________?

4. If the person asked has that card, s/he must give the person asking every card s/he has of that kind. If a player receives cards, s/he gets another turn to ask for another card. Anyone in the group may be asked.

5. If the person does not have the card asked for, s/he says, "No, go fish!" Then the person asking takes a card from the top of the pile and it is next the person's turn.

6. When a player has four of a kind s/he must lay the cards down, face up, on the table. The person who is the first person to have no cards in his/her hand is the winner.

- Vocabulary words can be used instead of pictures OR a combination of both can be used, some sets of four can be pictures, others words.

- There can be scoring at the end. Going out receives so many points and a set of four cards down receives so many. Each person must compute his/her own score. The one with the highest number of points wins.

- A variation of the game can be played using pairs of cards. In addition a "Joker" is added. The object is to have all pairs down and not to have the "Joker." In this variation cards are not asked for. A player takes one card from the hand of the player on his/her left. Of course the hand is not shown to the person doing the choosing and no one says who has the "Joker." Then the person chooses a card from the person on his left, etc. around the circle. The loser is the person left with the "Joker." Again, scoring can be done at the end.
Estimated time
1 hour

Purpose
To review past material

Materials
A drawing on the board of two ladders, one for each team

Directions
1. Questions are prepared on material covered. These can be prepared by the teacher, or if the class is advanced, by the students themselves.

2. The teacher or a student volunteer asks a question of a team. If the team answers correctly, it advances one step. The stick figure is erased and placed on the next higher step. If the team questioned misses the item, the second team has a chance to answer. If neither team can answer, the teacher provides the information and neither team scores.

Variations
- Rather than having the team answer as a whole, each individual on the team may be required to take a turn answering a question.
- If the class is advanced, more steps may be added to the ladders.
