Developed by experienced vocational teacher-coordinators and teacher-educators, this guide is intended to be used as a resource by cooperative distributive education and marketing teachers in Louisiana junior and senior high schools. The guide contains suggested curriculum for both beginning and advanced courses. Course I consists of 19 units in four areas: introduction, marketing, sales promotion, and optional units (such as careers in marketing, credit and collections, income tax, and telephone techniques). Course II consists of 14 units in these areas: introduction to marketing and Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), marketing research, entrepreneurship, human relations, and special advanced units (such as advanced selling, fashion merchandising, and laws of contracts). Each unit consists of an introduction, goal, performance objectives, suggested activities, an instructional materials list, and where applicable, references. Laid out in a two-column format, teachers' notes are correlated to those sections of the units to which they are pertinent. (KC)

INTRODUCTION

Cooperative education is one of the most vital vocational education programs today, and certainly, marketing and distributive education is one the leading cooperative education programs. Because of the importance of this vocational discipline, a handbook is needed to assist the marketing and distributive teacher-coordinators. It may be used as a guide to assist the beginning teacher-coordinator with the resource material needed and to provide experienced teacher-coordinators and administrators with a ready reference on current procedures and practices.

In an effort to provide the most reliable handbook possible, only experienced vocational teacher-coordinators and teacher-educators were used in its development. It is my hope that you will use this handbook as a source of reference.

1-A. MARKETING AND DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION

INTRODUCTION

The learning opportunities provided in this unit should help students to understand the role Distributive Education will play in their careers in the field of marketing. Emphasis will be placed on the three related components of a Distributive Education program--classroom instruction, on-the-job training, and DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America), the youth organization.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will have an understanding of the role of marketing in the American economic system. He will have knowledge of the types of marketing career opportunities available to him, and he will be aware of the Distributive Education program objectives and requirements.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES
After completing this unit the student will be able to:

1. Define the term Distributive Education.
2. List the benefits of Distributive Education to the student, to the school, to the businessman and to the community.
3. Summarize briefly the history of the Distributive Education program.
4. Identify the elements of the marketing function.
5. List career opportunities in the field of marketing as they relate to Distributive Education.
6. Define and discuss the nature and purpose of DECA and its relationship to Distributive Education.

DECA is a vocational program in which students are trained for careers in retailing, wholesaling and service establishments.

A scrapbook or slide presentation of former MDE students at their various jobs helps the students relate MDE to career opportunities.

Compare the program to a 3-legged stool - on-the-job training, classroom instruction and DECA — it takes all three to make it work.

Suggested Time: 3-5 hours

INTRODUCTION

DECA is considered to be an integral part of Distributive Education, equally as important as the training station or the related instruction. Its Program for Youth Activity aims to motivate its members to excel in their marketing skills. This unit is concerned with DECA and its activities as they are related to the individual marketing student and his career goal.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit, the student will know the personal rewards he may obtain by being an active member of DECA. He will understand how DECA contributes to his learning of marketing and distribution principles and practices. The student will be motivated to become an active DECA member.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

After completing this unit the student will be able to:

1. Identify qualities needed for leadership.
2. Define and discuss the nature and purposes of DECA.
3. Identify the organizational and democratic principles used in DECA.
4. Develop competencies needed for leadership in social and civic activities as evidenced by holding office or committee membership.
5. Develop competencies essential for poise and self-confidence in and before a group as evidenced by his performance at club meetings.
6. Participate in developing a program of activities suitable for a local DECA chapter.
7. Identify DECA activities and describe how they contribute to learning.

The DECA Creed

I believe in the future which I am planning for myself in the field of distribution, and in the opportunities which my vocation offers.

I believe in fulfilling the highest measure of service to my vocation, my fellow beings, my country and my God—that by so doing, I will be rewarded with personal satisfaction and material wealth.

I believe in the democratic philosophies of private enterprise and competition, and in the freedoms of this nation—that these philosophies allow to the fullest development of my individual abilities.

I believe that by doing my best to live according to these high principles, I will be of greater service both to myself and to mankind.

2-A. HUMAN RELATIONS AND PERSONALITY DEVELOPMENT

Suggested Time: 8 hours

INTRODUCTION

This unit provides students with training in the necessary social skills and physical qualities important to distributive workers. These factors involve personal attributes, ethical conduct, and desired work habits that are essential to progression in a career in marketing. Emphasis will be placed on the importance of good human relations with management, customers, and co-workers.

GOAL

On completing this unit the student will have an understanding of the importance of the role of human relations as it relates to his career in marketing. He will be able to identify and develop the attitudes necessary for successful career planning, job entry, and advancement.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

At the completion of this unit the student will be able to:

1. Define human relations.
2. Describe the basic needs that all people have.
3. Describe the characteristics of effective human relations.
4. Identify the personality traits that are considered acceptable in social and business relationships.
5. Classify his own personality traits into the categories of physical, mental, or emotional.
6. List the qualities he now possesses or can develop that will aid him in a successful marketing career.
7. Recognize the personality traits, measure his own personality, and aim toward improving himself and his attitudes.

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES:

90% of all jobs lost are lost due to the inability to get along with others.

Discuss Maslow's Theory.

Role playing aids in the understanding of what is acceptable and unacceptable.

Have each student do a self-study of his or her own personality, then chart a personality improvement plan.

Have each student complete a data sheet of the qualities he possesses for a marketing career.

Have each student complete a personality rating sheet.
REMEMBER ME

I'm the fellow who goes into the restaurant; sits down and patiently waits while the waitresses finish their visiting before taking my order.

I'm the fellow who goes into a department store and stands quietly while the clerks finish their little chit-chat.

I'm the fellow who drives into a service station and never blows his horn -- but lets the attendant take his time.

You might say I'm the good guy. But do you know who else I am? I'm the fellow that never comes back.

It amuses me to see businesses spending so much money every year to get me back. When I was there in the first place, all they needed to do was give some service and extend a little courtesy.

Louisiana DECA students are trained to give service and be courteous. If anyone sees a D. E. student not doing so, please notify the D. E. Coordinator.
A SHORT COURSE IN HUMAN RELATIONS

The six most important words:
I admit I made a mistake.

The five most important words:
You did a good job.

The four most important words:
What is your opinion?

The three most important words:
If you please.

The two most important words:
THANK YOU!

The one most important word:
WE!

The least most important word:
I.
Try to remember four main points when you are in doubt as to what to do. These four points can be developed into molding the proper attitude which will make you a success in the business world.

1. Be professional.
2. Be aggressive and hard working.
3. Be sincere.
4. Be honest.
8. List several human relations traits that are especially important to supervisors and employees.

9. List several human relations problems a new employee may encounter and make suggestions for avoiding them.

10. List the careers in marketing in which effective human relations are essential.

11. Define the vocabulary terms necessary to an understanding of effective human relations.

12. Recognize those elements of personality necessary for career development.

COMMUNICATIONS FOR MARKETING

LEADERSHIP

Suggested Time: 5-10 hours

INTRODUCTION

The effectiveness of an employee's communication is important both to himself and to his employer. The learning opportunities in this unit indicate to the student this fact and that his success on his job is related to his ability to communicate. He will study methods of writing and speaking his thoughts, study his own habits, and then prepare a self-improvement plan.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit, the student should have knowledge of the importance of the use of both proper written and oral communication in marketing. He should be able to demon-

3-C. PRICING

Suggested Time: 5-8 hours

INTRODUCTION

This unit emphasizes those factors that must be considered before deciding on a retail price. The final price must include expenses, risk of loss, and a margin of profit.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student should be able to predict the factors to be included in a retail price. He will be able to compute the amount of markup necessary for each item of merchandise.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

After completing this unit the student will be able to:
1. Given a product or service, identify the overhead expenses that must be considered in determining a fair retail price.

2. Discuss the following factors affecting prices:
   a. Cost of goods.
   b. Desirability of the merchandise.
   c. Possible markdowns.
   d. Customary prices.
   e. Supply and demand.
   f. Competition.

3. Discuss how the following factors affect retail price:
   a. Price lines.
   b. Psychological pricing.
   c. Fair trade laws.
   d. One-price policy.
   e. Leader.
   f. Loss leader.
   g. Markdown.
   h. Sales price.

4. Apply the following equations to calculate retail prices:
   a. Cost + Markup = retail
   b. \( M\% = \frac{\text{Markup}}{\text{Retail}} \)
   c. \( \text{Markdown} = \frac{\text{Selling Price}}{\text{Selling Price}} \)

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES

Stress that all money paid for an item above its cost is not necessarily profit. Expenses must be considered.

Have students list some typical overhead expenses. Stress why it is necessary for the selling price to be higher than the original cost of the item. (Discuss types of expenses such as security for jewelry stores.)

Point out the difference between initial markup and maintained markup. Stress the difference between a leader and a loss leader.

Have students consider the question, "Can an item be priced too low?"

3-D. SHRINKAGE AND STORE SECURITY

Suggested Time: 5-10 hours

INTRODUCTION

The increasing problem of inventory shrinkage is a serious threat to retailing. In retailing terms, inventory shrinkage is a decrease in the merchandise carried by the store for resale. Equally serious is the loss caused by employee theft. This unit will be concerned with the marketing student's responsibility in preventing this problem.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will be aware of the scope of the shrinkage problem and how it is drastically cutting profits. He will know some of the reasons why employees and customers steal and how management attempts to stop it. Emphasis will be placed on the importance of the role of the salesperson in reducing theft. Included is a study of fraudulent checks and check cashing procedures.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES
At the completion of this unit the student will be able to:

1. Define and explain internal shrinkage and its causes.
2. Identify the type of customers who might fall under suspicion as potential shoplifters.
3. Use the correct procedure to follow if he sees or suspects a person of being a shoplifter.
4. Discuss the shoplifting laws.
5. Develop a campaign to stop shrinkage.
6. Cite methods used by employees who steal from the cash register.
7. Determine preventive methods that can be devised to stop inventory shrinkage.
8. Discuss the importance of employee accuracy in relation to the entire

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES
Dept. of Commerce estimates that as much as 80% of all retail shortages are caused by employees.

Discuss what constitutes shoplifting. Emphasize that switching price tags and changing sizes of multi-piece outfits are forms of shoplifting.

Discuss other methods employees can use, such as taking back items, procuring uniforms, eating food off the shelf.

Hold a shoplifting diversion contest.
9. Identify a fraudulent check and a properly filled out one.
10. Be able to handle courteously and properly customers who present suspicious checks.

5-B. CREDIT AND COLLECTIONS

Suggested Time: 5-10 hours

INTRODUCTION

In this unit the student will become familiar with what has become known as the lifeblood of business. This unit provides the principles of offering credit to the American consumer. According to the National Retail Credit Association, 95 percent of our country's population uses credit in some form at some time.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will be able to determine whether credit should be offered to the consumer and, if so, which type to offer him. He will be able to screen applicants and develop a plan to collect past due accounts.
GOAL

After completing this unit the student will be able to:

1. Define credit.

2. Explain the following advantages of credit:
   a. Credit makes regular customers.
   b. Credit customers are less price conscious.
   c. Credit customers buy more freely.
   d. Credit builds confidence.
   e. Credit offers a preferred trade.
   f. Credit smooths out business peaks.
   g. Credit builds retail profit.

3. List and explain the following disadvantages of credit:
   a. Ties up capital.
   b. Extra bookkeeping expenses.
   c. Collection expense.
   d. Bad debt losses.

4. Compare the following credit plans:
   a. Open or regular.

5-G. JOB APPLICATION AND INTERVIEW

Suggested Time: 5-10 hours

INTRODUCTION

This unit focuses on the techniques of applying and interviewing for a job. These will include locating job sources, obtaining an interview, preparing for it, and conducting oneself appropriately during an interview. The student should be able to fill out an application blank correctly and prepare a personal data sheet. In this study he will become aware of the different pre-employment tests as well as the law concerning employment of minors.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will be able to locate a job, apply for it, and conduct himself properly during the interview.
He will be able to complete an application form and prepare a personal data sheet. The student will understand the laws concerning his employment and will be familiar with the types of pre-employment tests used by many employers. This unit will be applicable to anyone applying for employment, regardless of career intent.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

On doing this unit the student will be able to:

1. Identify various sources for finding job openings (employment opportunities).
2. Obtain an interview for employment.
3. Conduct himself properly during an employment interview.
4. Complete a job application form accurately and prepare a personal data sheet.
5. Demonstrate proper personal grooming.
6. Demonstrate the techniques in applying for employment as outlined in the DECA Handbook.
7. List steps to follow after completing a job interview.

Stress that there are other methods for finding jobs besides the newspaper.

A brief discussion on body language would be relevant. Secure some sample applications from local businesses. Emphasize the importance of good grooming and proper make-up procedure. Secure a make-up consultant (Mary Kay or Mary Kay). Demonstrate proper business make-up. Stress that blue jeans are not proper attire for a job interview.

III-2. MDE/DECA WRITTEN REPORT
Suggested Time: 5 hours

INTRODUCTION
What is a research manual? It is a factual presentation of other people's findings or opinions on a given subject. A good research paper contains more fact than opinion, and the opinion it does contain is the opinion of your source—not your own. If properly done, your research paper should be original. What will make it original is the way in which you present the material and your choice of what to use and what not to use.

GOAL
The purposes of doing a research manual are many, but just a few are listed here:
1. To give experience in research, selection, and organization of information.

2. To provide others with an organized, thorough summary of information on a subject.

3. To provide a learning experience which will contribute to the student's vocational competence for careers in marketing, management, and distribution.

4. To provide a co-curricular activity relating directly to classroom instruction.

5. To contribute to distributive education and its educational objectives.

6. To teach how and where to locate information quickly.

7. To teach how to organize thoughts.

8. To give the student an opportunity to compete with others and to gain recognition for outstanding work.

PLANNING THE RESEARCH MANUAL

Most students squirm at the very thought of planning and writing a research manual. Mentally they can see themselves wading through miles of books and acres of words to find the material they will need. Usually this is because in the past they went about writing a research paper inefficiently and unwisely.

When your teacher assigns a research paper you are expected to work on it over a period of time. It may take weeks or even months to find and organize all the material you will need for an accurate, interesting report. The assignment will be made far enough in advance of the deadline to give you the necessary time. If you put it off till the last minute, your final report will reveal all too clearly the fact that you hurried. Awkward organization and careless writing will give you away.

You will be given detailed information by your teacher about the different areas of competition in manuals. According to DECA standards there are 11 categories for competition, as follows:

1. Creative Marketing Project
2. Pepsi Learning and Earning Project
3. 7-Up/MDA Civic Consciousness Project
4. Phillips 66 Free Enterprise--Individual

6. Competency Based Events:
   A. Advertising Services.
   B. Apparel and Accessories.
   C. Finance and Credit.
   D. Food Marketing.
   E. General Merchandise.
   F. Petroleum.
   G. Restaurant.

IV-2. THE ECONOMICS OF MARKETING

Suggested Time: 10-15 hours

INTRODUCTION

The learning opportunities provided in this unit will enable students to understand the fundamentals of the economics of marketing. Included in it will be a study of the channels of distribution, the functions of marketing, business financing, and types of business organizations. The student will investigate the forms of business and assess the advantages of each in terms of ease of entry, legal considerations, and financial obligations.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will have an understanding of those business activities that direct the flow of goods and services from the producer to the consumer. He will know the role marketing plays in our economic system and will be able to make a comparison of the major economic systems.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

After completing this unit the student will be able to:

1. Describe the various goals of an economic system.
2. Compare our economic system with other major systems.
3. Identify the worker's role as a citizen in a free economy including his privileges, restrictions, and responsibilities.
4. Compare the roles of marketing and distribution in the various economic systems.
5. Describe the relationship of distribution to production and consumption.
6. List two ways in which employees of a given firm can increase the firm's profits.
7. List the advantages of each type of... business organization, including franchises.

8. Identify the different types of retail stores and service businesses according to their different forms of organization.

9. Diagram the different channels of distribution.

10. List the elements or functions of marketing.

11. Discuss the advantages of the different sources of capital used in the formation and operation of a business.

12. List the purposes of financial records and relate these to the success of a business.

13. Read and analyze an income statement.

15. Given a product that is sold in the consumer market and also in the industrial market, explain how the marketing process differs for each.
16. Describe market segmentation as it relates to the consumer's age, sex, education, ethnic background, and income.

17. Define the terms incidental to the study of this unit.

18. Tell how consumers participate in making decisions about what is produced and how it is produced.

19. Be able to use the information presented in this study in preparing a speech as outlined in the DECA Handbook.

20. Given his career goal, describe possible future changes in retailing and relate the effects these will have on career opportunities and training needs.

SUGGESTED ACTIVITIES

1. For the Instructor:
   A. Determine and discuss unit objectives.
   B. Provide students with information sheets and study guides.
   C. Prepare audio-visual materials.

Point out how "diet" drinks, "lean" cuisine, and salt-reduced items were brought about by health-conscious consumers.

5. Explain the following steps in product planning:
   a. Study of the present market position of the company's products.

b. Development of new products.
c. Improvement of existing products
d. Pricing.
e. Elimination of unprofitable products from the product mix.

6. Given a product, identify and describe the stages through which the product must pass before it can be introduced safely to the market.

7. Explain the following terms as they relate to product planning:
   a. Brand
   b. Fashion
   c. Diversification
   d. Survey

8. Given a product and knowledge of its probable market, design an appropriate brand.

9. Explain the following functions of packaging:
   a. To provide a container for the product.
b. To protect contents.
c. To identify the product.

Point out the failure of Merlier "brand adult food because of the company's long association with baby food.

Discuss the new packaging for over-the-counter drugs.

Discuss the effectiveness of child-proof caps on medication.
Cooperative Marketing and Distributive Education II

10. Identify and describe certain abuses that have occurred when a few marketers attempt to escape their responsibilities to the consumer.

11. Given certain products and marketing practices of their manufacturer, itemize and document the requirements of the consumer laws affecting these products and practices.

12. Given a variety of pricing strategies and a series of diverse products, identify the possible effects of each pricing strategy on the success and profitability of the product.

13. Given a product, identify the factors considered by the manufacturer in determining the price of the product.

V-1. ADVANCED SELLING
Suggested Time: 10-15 hours

INTRODUCTION
Creative selling is that discipline which separates the ordinary salesperson from the extraordinary one. The learning opportunities in this unit indicate to the student this fact and that his success on his job is directly related to his ability to be creative.

GOAL
Upon the completion of this unit the student will be aware of the importance of the tasks that are to be performed, the conditions under which these specific tasks are to be performed, and the standards of minimal acceptable proficiency associated with those tasks in creative selling. He will also become aware of the many career... opportunities available in the field of creative selling and the benefits that can accrue to him.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

After completing this unit, the student will be able to:

1. Identify the specific marketing mix and select and justify a channel of distribution.
2. Develop a selling strategy which includes the channels of distribution and the types of salesmen needed to sell a product in a given market.
3. Welcome the customer, determine the need, present suitable merchandise, overcome any sales resistance, and close the sale.
4. Increase the size of the sale by using an appropriate form of suggestion selling.
5. Plan an effective approach, present and demonstrate the right product, and close the sale to an industrial buyer.

Emphasize the difference between suggestion selling and "pushing"
6. Identify the chief buying motives of an industrial buyer and relate these motives to a product that will satisfy his needs.

7. Determine a basis for understanding the telephone customer's point of view and settle any complaints to the satisfaction of the business and of the customer.

8. List the product features and potential customer benefits for a specific product.

9. Qualify each prospective customer in terms of want or need for a particular product, ability to pay, authority to buy, and accessibility to sell.

10. Prepare an effective customer list and suitable itinerary for a given territory.

11. Establish and maintain an effective set of customer files.

12. Prepare a meaningful sales performance analysis.

13. Develop an appropriate compensation

INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES

Discuss the three basic types of industrial buyers.

Stress that customers purchase benefits, so it is advantageous to salespeople to convert features into benefits.

Emphasize the importance of listening to the customer.

Discuss the various methods of securing names for a customer list.

V-2. CUSTOMER SERVICES

Suggested Time: 5-10 hours

INTRODUCTION

In the field of retailing, customer services are no longer confined to such minor efforts as offering free parking, gift wrapping, and delivery. The revenue earned from all types of services is beginning to rival the revenue earned from the sale of merchandise. This unit emphasizes those customer services chiefly identified with retailing businesses.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will be aware of customer services as they relate to retailing. He will have a knowledge of job activities and career possibilities in this particular area of retailing.
PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

After completing this unit the student will be able to:

1. List the customer services used to support the sale of a product and identify those services which are profit centers.

2. Identify a useful role for customer services for a given business.

3. List the methods used to provide consumer credit offered by a retail store.

4. List the sources of credit information and identify those used in investigating applicants for mercantile credit.

5. List the customer-service jobs that are associated with the credit field.

6. Devise and implement a collection procedure to gain payment from a delinquent customer.

7. Identify the merchandising-handling services that a firm might provide to gain customer good will.

Note that prestige stores offset various customer services to create the illusion of "more" for your money.

The three C's of credit are:

1) Character
2) Capacity
3) Capital

Contact the local Credit Bureau for information on how a credit search is conducted.

Have interested students research careers in Credit and Collections.

Discuss laws that prevent collections agencies from harassing the customer.

Bridal registries, gift wrapping, interest-free credit, mailing gifts, etc.
8. Distinguish between the accommodation services offered to the consumer and those offered to the industrial user.

9. Identify the accommodation services that a retailer, a wholesaler, and a manufacturer might provide to gain increased customer patronage.

10. Distinguish between informational and advisory services offered to the consumer and those offered to business firms.

11. Identify the informational and advisory services that a retailer, a wholesaler, and a manufacturer might extend to customers.

12. Distinguish between those customer shopping conveniences offered by a large retailer and those offered by a small retailer.

13. Identify the customer shopping conveniences that a supermarket and a department store might offer to customers.

14. Distinguish between those items of [delivery, storage and warehousing, quantity discounts.]

The teacher may wish to discuss "perks" or "bribes" in industrial sales such as expense account lunches, gifts and kickbacks.

Contact the Better Business Bureau for information on a business or to file a complaint against a business.

Suggested Time: 5-10 hours

INTRODUCTION

Training in fashion merchandising will enable the student to develop an understanding which will enhance his pleasures of life and provide solid background knowledge and skills for such career opportunities as fashion marketing, advertising, the display arts, or interior decoration.

GOAL

After completing this unit the student will be aware of the place of fashion in many things—clothing, home furnishings, automobiles, cosmetics, opportunities in the field of fashion merchandising and mobiles, cosmetics, and opportunities in personal apparel.
INSTRUCTOR'S NOTES

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

At the completion of this unit the student will be able to:

1. List the major fashion centers and their individual contributions to the fashion industry.

2. Describe the effects that fashion has on our American way of life.

3. Describe recent changes of attitude toward fashion by both men and women.

4. Outline the stages of the fashion cycle.

5. Describe the changes that have taken place in the retailing of fashion apparel.

6. List several special buying considerations a fashion buyer would have that a buyer of staple goods would not be concerned with.

7. Identify the major design periods in the history of clothing.

8. Define special fashion terms used in the study of this unit.

9. Identify various sources of fashion ideas.
10. List the factors that affect the development of a fashion.

V-4. FRANCHISING

INTRODUCTION
During the past few decades, franchising has rapidly grown and today franchise operations have become an extremely important part of our business community. This unit emphasizes the importance of the role franchising plays in the American economy.

GOAL
Upon completing this unit the student will be aware of the career possibilities in the field of franchising. He will have an understanding of the function of franchising and will be familiar with the various methods, techniques, and concepts of franchising.
PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

At the completion of this unit the student will be able to:

1. Define franchising as it relates to:
   a. Products.
   b. Entire business enterprises.
   c. Franchise operation.

2. List the advantages of franchising:
   a. To the franchisor.
   b. To the franchisee.

3. List the disadvantages of franchising:
   a. To the franchisor.
   b. To the franchisee.

4. Identify sources of franchise opportunities.

5. Determine the franchisee's need for legal counseling.

6. Identify sources of financial assistance available to a prospective franchisee.

7. Determine sources of management and technical aids available to a franchisee.

#2 and #3 are excellent topics for panel discussions or debates.

Fast food offers excellent franchise opportunities. Point out that some franchises have so much control over the business that the franchisee is little more than a manager. Government agencies are more willing to aid an "established" business, such as McDonald's Hamburgers II.

INTRODUCTION

Standards governing conduct while selling products are set both by laws and regulations of public authorities and by codes of ethics developed by business itself. To do his job well, the marketing student must have a working knowledge of business law. Of particular importance to him are the laws of contracts and sales. This unit will be devoted to this topic and its relationship to the marketing student's career objectives.

GOAL

At the completion of this unit the student will understand the laws of contracts and sales and will be aware of the importance of using ethical Contract assignments:

Contract requirements:
1. Complete five (or ten) case studies as assigned by the teacher.
2. Complete reading assignments as assigned by the teacher.
3. Prepare an essay on the resource person's visit to the class. (or field trip, etc.)

Contract electives:
1. Interview a lawyer on contract procedures.
2. Draw up a sample partnership agreement for a new business.
3. Explain (in essay form) why marriage can be considered a contract.
4. Explain (in essay form) how and why the marriage contract may be discharged.
5. Draw up and label the parts of a sample contract.
6. In a cartoon scene, depict a reason why a contract would be rescinded.
7. Prepare and explain to the class a teaching bulletin board on contracts.
8. Prepare and explain to the class a teaching bulletin board on partnership agreements.
9. Write a courtroom scene for settlement of the following situation. Be ready to defend your actions.

Margaret contracted with Charlie to buy 1,500 pairs of pants to sell at her boutique. When the date specified in the contract for the delivery of the pants arrived, Charlie announced that he would not deliver the pants. In order to have pants to sell, Margaret had to buy lower quality pants and did not make as large a profit as she had hoped. She sued Charlie for her damages. In awarding damages to Margaret the jury would have to estimate what profit she might have made on the more expensive pants.

Grading:

To earn a D on the contract section, a student must complete satisfactorily all of the requirements and one elective.

To earn a C on the contract section, a student must complete satisfactorily all of the requirements and two electives.

To earn a B on the contract section, a student must complete satisfactorily all of the requirements and three electives.

To earn an A on the contract section, a student must complete satisfactorily all of the requirements and four electives.
CONTRACT

I, __________ (student name), being of sound mind and body on this __________ day of __________ (date) (month) (year) do fully understand the terms of the contract system which we shall use this period while we are studying __________ (subject). I understand that to earn a D I must complete satisfactorily all three of the requirements plus one elective. It is my goal to earn the grade of __________ (grade) therefore, I agree to complete the following:

I also understand that these items must be completed on or before the date of __________ (date of unit completion). I realize that if I turn any item in early, and it is not satisfactory, I shall have an opportunity to redo it.

I also understand that I may not make a grade higher than the grade for which I have contracted. If I contract a grade, I must do my utmost, barring any unforeseen circumstances, to carry out the requirements to earn such grade.
