A revised annotated bibliography of Navajo and Native American teaching materials published between 1910 and 1982 (most from 1970 to 1982), compiled as part of the Title IV-B Navajo Materials Development Project, lists resources for teachers of Navajo and other Native American students. Most citations are of written materials, although some posters, non-textual materials and catalogs of audio-visual aids are described. The first two sections divide text materials by grade level and by language: 148 written primarily in Navajo (Section I), and 193 bilingual (Navajo-English) or primarily in English (Section II). Both sections cite: fiction and non-fiction; Navajo-based texts in social studies, history, mathematics, physical education, music and art; and teacher's guides to accompany texts. Items are listed alphabetically by author's last name; each citation contains: author's/illustrator's name; title; date/place of publication; grade level (often overlapping); content; graphics; size; recommendations; and availability. Subsequent sections list other materials to augment Navajo-Native American Studies programs: 9 audio-visual guides (Section III); 20 periodicals helpful to teachers of Navajo students (Section IV); 142 supplementary references on Navajo and Native American language and culture (Section V); and 11 curriculum development centers, 16 museums and libraries, and 14 publishers and materials distributors for additional resources (Section VI). Introduction

This bibliography was compiled as part of the Title IV-B Navajo Materials Development Project at Rough Rock Demonstration School. The three-year project was charged with assessing the current status of Navajo-Native American curricula, determining what "gaps" exist in a K-12 curricular framework, and utilizing extant materials as a base for new materials development in a comprehensive, K-12 Navajo Studies program.

To accomplish these goals, the project staff first consulted community members, students, teachers, administrators and curriculum developers at Rough Rock and other schools on and off the Navajo Reservation. These individuals were asked to identify the strengths and weaknesses of the native-oriented programs with which they were familiar. Teachers were asked what types of materials they were using; students were asked what they liked or didn't like about the Navajo Studies programs at their schools. A common response to these inquiries was the lament that, "We cover the same material year after year!" Although many teachers were aware that a variety of volumes dealing with Navajo-Native American content had been published, most did not know where to obtain these or how to adapt them to their students' needs. This bibliography was compiled in part to alleviate this problem.

After conducting the survey, the project staff began to visit regional libraries, museums, publishers and materials development centers. These visitations provided information on the nature and availability of textbooks and audio-visual aids which can be used by teachers of Navajo and other Native American students.

The results of this process were published in a preliminary edition of this bibliography, which was then distributed to participants in the initial project survey. Many recipients responded by providing additional or revised entries to be included in a final version. They were enthusiastic: "The bibliography should save teachers of Navajo students hours of hapless research trying to find something relevant for their kids." . . . "It's great to have all available Navajo materials compiled in one place . . . we have even rediscovered some materials that we'd forgotten about here at our own school!"

The present edition represents a synthesis of the additions, revisions and suggestions of respondents with the original data contained in the preliminary bibliography. Most materials listed in this revised edition are written (as opposed to audio-visual) resources, although some posters and non-textual materials are cited and a special section on catalogs of audio-visual aids is provided (Section III). Written curricula fall into two broad categories: those written primarily in Navajo, and those which are bilingual (Navajo/English) or which are written entirely in English. Sections I and II list and describe these two types of materials. Both sections contain information on fiction and non-fiction readers, Navajo-based texts in social studies, science, history, mathematics, physical education, music and art, and teacher's guides which accompany textual material.

English-as-a-second-language (ESL) materials are generally not included in this listing, since the aim of the bibliography is to document curricula which can be used to teach Navajo language and Navajo-Native American culture. Some ESL materials which reflect or emphasize Navajo culture and history — for example, the Navajo kinship series produced by the Chinle Title I program — are included, however.

The resources outlined in each of the first two sections are first divided into grade levels. Under each grade level, materials are cited alphabetically by author's last name. For each cited work, information is provided on the following:

1) Author's name; illustrator's name; title; date and place of publication. The author's name is printed in capital letters, and is followed by the name of the illustrator (given in parentheses; the illustrator's name is not provided if it is the same as the author's). The title for each material is italicized, and is followed by the place of publication and publisher's name. Date of publication is cited directly under the author's name.

2) Grade level. It is important to note that grade level designations often overlap. For example, the grade level assigned to one textbook might be "K-3" (kindergarten through third grade). This particular text, however, will be listed only under the sub-category, "Kindergarten." Similarly, a resource which can be used in grades 5-12 will be listed under the lowest applicable grade level, 5. In addition, many materials listed under higher grade levels can be used by elementary teachers as background or supplementary resources. Teachers should review materials under all grade categories to determine what materials are most appropriate for their students and classroom needs.

3) Content. This is a note on the substance of the particular cited work. This note tells, for example, what the plot line is for a reader, how a teacher's guide is designed, and/or the major concepts covered in the text.

4) Graphics. This alerts teachers to the size of type, readability, and illustration quality of the publication.

5) Size. The overall size of the volume, number of pages and quality of cover (i.e., soft cover/hard cover) are listed here. If no page numbers appear in the text, this is noted by "unpaginated."

6) Recommendations. This is a comment on how the referenced work might be used in the classroom; often suggestions for supplementing the publication with others are provided.

7) Availability. Information is given on where the cited work can be purchased, or if it cannot be purchased, where the reader can obtain more information on that particular publication.

Sections III through VI of the bibliography document materials which can be used to augment a Navajo-Native American Studies program, and the places where those materials can be obtained. Section III provides a directory of major audio-visual resources. Section IV lists periodical publications (newspapers, magazines, professional journals, etc.) that may be helpful to teachers of Navajo students. A sampling of the literature on Navajo and Native American culture and language is contained in Section V. The references cited in the latter section can be used by both teachers and students to increase their knowledge on particular topics covered in a Navajo-Native American Studies course. Finally, Section VI provides a descriptive listing of curriculum development centers, libraries, museums, publishers and other organizations which can assist teachers in locating, developing and supplementing their curriculum.
Acknowledgements

The Materials Development staff is indebted to many individuals who, over the past three years, supported the project and gave generously of their time to complete this bibliography. We would like to thank the members of our Parent Advisory Committee who observed, listened and shared their thoughts and hopes for a Navajo-based curriculum. We also thank Robert and Ruth Roessel, Norman and Jeri Eck, Frank Isaac, Darlene Redhair, Mary Laviolette, Eve Little, Thomas Wheeler, Francis Teller, Maxine Denetdeel and Teddy Draper, for their helpful advice on the format and content of the preliminary edition of the bibliography. The Rough Rock teaching staff and administration also provided needed input and recommendations. In particular, we thank the members of the Rough Rock School Board who acted during the project’s grant period — Wade Hadley, Teddy McCurtain, Thomas James, Simon Secody, Billy Johnson, the late John Caboni and the late Yellowhair Begay — and the school’s Director, Jimmie C. Begay, for their support of our work.

Numerous individuals at schools, libraries, museums and media centers provided much of the factual information contained in this document. We are very grateful to the former Title VII staff of the Native American Materials Development Center — Jay DeGroat, Steve Wallace, Caryl McHarney and Steve Thayer — who helped us design the bibliography format, and who freely shared their materials and ideas with us. Agnes Holm and Stella Tsinajinnie of Rock Point Community School also generously exchanged materials and ideas with our staff. After dissemination of the preliminary edition, Sam and Janet Bingham, whose many works are cited herein, provided suggestions and additional citations from which the revised edition has greatly benefited. Douglas Knox of the American Indian Bilingual Education Center (AIBEC) in Albuquerque was kind enough to conduct several data searches and to locate J. Lee Correll’s “Through White Man’s Eyes” in his materials bank. We are very appreciative of the consistent support offered by AIBEC’s Director, Joe Gonzales, who always had an encouraging word and who assisted in distribution of the preliminary edition and many of the project’s curriculum products. Michael Fillerup and Verna Clinton-Tullie of the Chinle Title I program provided detailed information on their materials and guided us to those most relevant to Navajo social studies. Finally, we thank May Lee of Ramah School, Bill Kniseley of Borrego Pass, Dawn Gardner of the Window Rock District Media Center, Russell Hartman of the Navajo Tribal Museum, Robert Bowen of the Museum of Northern Arizona, Sandy Kass and Chris Atcitty of the Shiprock Central Consolidated School District, Jean Hendrickson of Navajo Community College Library, Ed and Martha Garrison of Kayenta, and Mrs. Ernie Panigua of the University of New Mexico’s Zimmerman Library, for the many materials, references and comments they provided. Without the concern and cooperation of each of these individuals who recognized the need for a comprehensive listing of Navajo teaching materials, this bibliography could not have been completed.

II. BILINGUAL MATERIALS AND MATERIALS WRITTEN IN ENGLISH

This section lists instructional materials for teaching Navajo language and Navajo-Native American culture, which are written in both Navajo and English, or in English only. Most of these materials focus on Navajos, but we also include selected resources which place the Navajo experience in the broader context of Native American cultures and history. Unless otherwise indicated, these materials are written in English.

References are again categorized into grade levels K–12, with a final sub-section devoted to bilingual curricula suitable for use at all or many grade levels. The latter includes a number of non-textual materials such as posters and flashcards.

For the most part we have excluded ESL materials from this listing. We cite only those ESL resources which have applications in Navajo and Native American social studies programs.

AUDIO-VISUAL Reference Guide
III. AUDIO-VISUAL MATERIALS:
A DIRECTORY OF SOURCES

A complete listing of audio-visual curricula relating to Navajo and American Indian Studies is beyond the scope of this bibliography. Audio-visual aides, however, play an important role in the classroom as lively and vivid accompaniments to written materials. To provide teachers with more information about Navajo- and Native-oriented audio-visual aides and where they can be located, we provide a brief directory of sources for obtaining these materials.

In addition to the written catalogs and references cited in this section, readers should consult Section VI of this bibliography, "Places to Go For Developing and Supplementing Curriculum." Many of the curriculum development centers, publishers and materials distributors listed in Section VI also produce and/or disseminate audio-visual resources.

Teacher Resources: Places to go for developing and supplementing curriculum
VI. TEACHER RESOURCES: PLACES TO GO FOR DEVELOPING AND SUPPLEMENTING CURRICULUM

The entries in this section are resource places for teachers — places which develop curricula, places that produce and disseminate classroom aides and professional resources, and places where teachers can go to obtain additional information on Navajo and Native American language and culture.

The listings are divided into three broad categories: (1) resources developed and distributed by Navajo and bilingual-bicultural curriculum centers; (2) resources contained in libraries, museums and cultural centers; and (3) resources available through publishers and materials distributors.

In compiling this list, an effort has been made to include only primary resources — that is, places which deal chiefly with Navajo-related materials and which are easily accessible to the teacher working on or near the Navajo Reservation.

CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT CENTERS AND ORGANIZATIONS

BORREGO PASS SCHOOL, CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT CENTER, Crownpoint, NM (87313) — (505) 786-5237

The Borrego Pass School has developed a collection of written and visual materials to test linguistic abilities of Navajo children, and to provide a Navajo emphasis to standard academic subject areas (K–6). The Curriculum Center is also engaged in a project to develop written and audio-visual Navajo history, culture and literacy materials. For more information, contact the Center at the address above.

CENTRAL CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL DISTRICT #22, TITLE IV MEDIA CENTER, Shiprock, NM (87321) — (505) 368-5175

The Title IV Cultural Center in the Shiprock Consolidated School District serves as a repository of textual and audio-visual aids, and as a curriculum development enterprise. Many of the Center’s publications (cited in Section II of this bibliography) are useful for both Navajo-Native American Studies and ESL classes. Call or write the Center for more information.

CHINLE SCHOOL DISTRICT #24, TITLE I NAVAJO CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT AND PRODUCTION CENTER, P.O. Box 587, Chinle, AZ (86503) — (602) 674-3474

The Chinle Title I Program develops Navajo-oriented reading and ESL materials. Because it is an ESL program, all materials are written primarily in English. Many of these materials, however, are simultaneously applicable in Navajo social studies classes. For example, Chinle Title I has produced a series of Navajo kinship readers, and several other readers are based on actual events in Navajo history (see Section II of this bibliography). The Curriculum Development Center also produces ESL posters, maps, charts, games, films and cassettes. For a catalog of Chinle Title I offerings, call or write the Title I Center.

CHINLE TITLE IV-A BILINGUAL-BICULTURAL PROJECT, Chinle School District #24, Chinle, AZ (86505) — (602) 674-3475

The Chinle Title IV-A Project has produced a series of Navajo culture curriculum guides for grades K–3; guides for the 4th and 5th grades are in preparation. The objective of these guides is to provide an integrated Navajo social studies curriculum; guides deal with the topics of Navajo family and clan, history, leadership, government, food and dress, natural history, and arts and crafts (see Section II of this bibliography). For more information on Chinle’s Title IV-A materials, contact the Project Director.

DINÊ BI’ÖLTA’ ASSOCIATION, c/o Navajo Academy, Farmington, NM (87401) — (505) 327-0803

The Diné Bi’Olta’ Association is an organization of professional Navajo educators whose aim is to train teachers on and off the Navajo Reservation, and to develop curriculum materials in Navajo language and culture. The association has been involved in research on Navajo curriculum needs and exemplary bilingual programs. It has also provided scholarships and in-service workshops in Navajo linguistics. Curriculum materials produced by Diné Bi’Olta’ are listed in Sections I and II of this bibliography.

GALLUP-MCKINLEY COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOLS BILINGUAL-BICULTURAL TITLE IV PROJECT, Gallup, NM (86301) — (505) 863-6098

The Gallup-McKinley County Public School system, through both Title VII and Title IV funds, has developed written materials for Navajo and Zuni students. Navajo materials include several beginning bilingual and Navajo-language readers and a series of intermediate- to high school-level books on Native American literature, urban Indians, and general Navajo culture (see Sections I and II of this bibliography). More information on Gallup’s bilingual-bicultural program can be obtained by writing or calling the Title IV Project.
NAVAJO CURRICULUM CENTER, ROUGH ROCK DEMONSTRATION SCHOOL, Star Route 1, Rough Rock, AZ (86503) — (602) 728-3311, ext. 254

In the past 16 years Rough Rock's Navajo Curriculum Center has produced numerous volumes dealing with Navajo life, history, language and culture. Many of these are written in Navajo; others are bilingual readers and some, written primarily in English, have applications in both Navajo Studies and ESL classes (see Sections I, II and V of this bibliography). The Center has recently developed a series of Navajo social studies readers and teacher guides for grades 3–6. These materials spiral from the content and concepts in NAMDC's K–2 NBBC Curriculum. Coupled with the NAMDC materials, the Rough Rock program provides a comprehensive course of studies for grades K–6. For more information on Rough Rock's curriculum development efforts or for a list of publications, call or write to the address above.

ROCK POINT COMMUNITY SCHOOL, Rock Point, AZ (86503) — (602) 659-4224

The Rock Point Community School has developed a number of Navajo language and culture materials. Many of these are written in Navajo and are aimed at teaching initial Navajo literacy skills; others require advanced Navajo reading skills (see Section I of his bibliography). In addition, Rock Point has pioneered in developing high school materials which deal with contemporary problems and issues in Navajo society — natural resources, government, agriculture and resource development (see Section II). Most of Rock Point's materials are for experimental use in that school and cannot be purchased, but many may be borrowed or exchanged. Contact Rock Point Books, Rock Point Community School, for additional information.

SAN JUAN SCHOOL DISTRICT CURRICULUM CENTER, Box 824, Blanding, UT (84511) — (810) 678-2281

The San Juan Media Center has produced Navajo-emphasis curriculum guides which can be adapted to standard academic subject areas (math, social studies, language arts, physical education, etc; see Section II of this bibliography). San Juan materials include elementary and secondary "Cultural Awareness" guides, "experience stories" based on traditional Navajo narratives (e.g., "Coyote and Crow") and a host of films and cassettes to accompany written materials or to be used as independent instructional aids. The Center also houses a small museum containing Navajo, Ute, and historic Anglo-American artifacts. A catalog of San Juan's materials is available on request from the Curriculum Center.

WINDOW ROCK LANGUAGE AND CULTURE CENTER, Window Rock School District #8, P.O. Box 559, Fort Defiance, AZ (86504) — (602)

The Window Rock Language and Culture Center has recently developed several Navajo language and culture products (cited in Sections I and II of this bibliography). At present, these materials are for experimental use only at Window Rock Schools. For more information on this project, write or call the Language and Culture Center.

LIBRARIES, MUSEUMS AND CULTURAL CENTERS

ARIZONA STATE MUSEUM, University of Arizona, Tucson, AZ (85721) — (602) 626-1604

The Arizona State Museum houses exhibits on the cultures of prehistoric, historic and modern Arizona Indians, and their relationship to the Southwest environment. The museum has several displays on Navajo weaving and sandpainting. Guided tours of the museum can be arranged for grades 3–6; tour times are 10:00–11:50 a.m. daily. Also available through the museum are exhibit loan kits, which may be borrowed for classroom presentation. The museum has one kit on Navajo weaving, another on general Navajo culture, a Hopi kit, Apache kit, prehistoric Indian kit, and several others on various Southwest Indian tribes. Each kit contains artifacts from the museum's collections, archival photographs, teacher guides, literature and slides.

ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ (85281) — (602) 965-9011

The Hayden Library on the ASU campus contains extensive materials on Southwest Indians and Arizona history. The Arizona Collection, on the library's fifth floor, holds materials on Navajo acculturation, Navajo traditional stories, Navajo religion and government, the development of the Navajo Reservation and Navajo education. These materials cannot be checked out, but are available for reference in the Arizona Room. (Materials on Southwest and other Indian tribes which can be borrowed are listed in the library's general card catalog.) In addition, the Arizona Room contains document boxes with pamphlets, historical papers and news clippings relating to Navajos. Adjacent to the Arizona Room is the Arizona Historical Foundation. Many of the materials in this collection are uncataloged; they include historical manuscripts, archival documents, photographs, political papers and journals relating to Navajos, other Arizona Indian tribes and the history of Arizona.
CENTER FOR THE HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN INDIAN, THE NEWBERRY LIBRARY, 60 West Walton Street, Chicago, IL (60610) — (312) 943-9090, ext. 266/267

The Center for the History of the American Indian was established in 1972 by Chicago's Newberry Library, with the aim of making the material housed at the library accessible to educators and others in and outside the Chicago area. The library's collections include over 100,000 volumes on American Indian history, Indian languages, Indian-white relations, treaties and tribal history. It has recently supervised on the publication of annotated bibliographies on American Indians, including several on Navajos, Apaches, Southwest Indians and missions. Address inquiries to the Director, Center for the History of the American Indian.

GALLUP PUBLIC LIBRARY, 115 W. Hill Avenue, Gallup, NM (87301) — (505) 863-3692

The Southwest Room of the Gallup Public Library contains old documents, journals, and historical reports of the Smithsonian Institution, relating to the history of Southwest Indian tribes and the State of New Mexico. The library also has a "Rare Book" collection, with primary sources, historical texts and documents on New Mexico and Southwest history. All materials can be borrowed except those in the "Rare Book" Collection.

HEARD MUSEUM OF ANTHROPOLOGY AND PRIMITIVE ART, 22 Monte Vista Road, Phoenix, AZ (85004) — (602) 252-8848

The Heard Museum has temporary and permanent exhibits featuring Native American art, history and culture. Of particular interest are the galleries on the culture history of the Colorado Plateau, Navajo weaving, Southwest silver work, and a replica of a Navajo hogan. Contact the museum for information on hours and tours.

HUBBELL'S TRADING POST, Ganado, AZ (86505) — (602) 755-3254

Established by John Lorenzo Hubbell in the early 20th century, Hubbell's Trading Post is now a National Historic Site, open daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Trading Post contains old and new articles made by Southwest Indians and includes a Navajo rug room. A Visitor Center is located adjacent to the Trading Post; here, visitors can observe Navajo women weaving rugs and a Navajo silversmith at work. The Trading Post and Visitor's Center also offer a small collection of books on Navajo art and history.

INDIAN PUEBLO CULTURAL CENTER, 2401 12th Street, N.W., Albuquerque, NM (87103) — (505) 843-7270

The Indian Pueblo Cultural Center has a large collection of Southwest Indian arts and crafts, a museum, and an Indian food restaurant. The museum displays art works and artifacts of many Pueblo tribes and includes exhibits on the prehistory of Native Americans in the Southwest. Navajo and Pueblo art — silverwork, pottery, basketry and rugs — are on display and for sale at the Arts and Crafts Center.

MUSEUM OF NORTHERN ARIZONA, Route 4, Box 720, Flagstaff, AZ (86001) — (602) 774-5211

This museum features exhibits on prehistoric Indian populations in the Southwest (Paleo-Indian, Anasazi, Basketmaker cultures) and historic Arizona Indians (Yuman, Apache, and a large Navajo exhibit). The Navajo gallery includes exhibits on silversilver, the religious significance of the San Francisco Peaks, pottery and rug weaving. The museum also has a Study Center which has historical photographs and documents on Southwest Indians. The museum sponsors a Saturday Children's Program, featuring films and discussions by scientists, educators, and artists. A Research Center is affiliated with the museum; it contains books and historical documents on Southwest Indian tribes. The Museum Press provides technical publications on items of regional interest. Publication catalogs are available at no charge, on request.

NAVAJO ARTS AND CRAFTS ENTERPRISE, P.O. Drawer A, Window Rock, AZ (86515) — (602) 871-4095

Located adjacent to the Navajo Tribal Museum, the Navajo Arts and Crafts Enterprise has a large collection of Navajo jewelry, blankets, sandpaintings and other objects of art which can be purchased. The Enterprise also sells a selection of books relating to Navajo and Pueblo Indian culture.

NAVAJO COMMUNITY COLLEGE LIBRARY, Navajo Community College, Tsaile, AZ (86556) — (602) 724-6132, ext. 132

The Navajo Community College Library contains one of the most extensive collections of Navajo-related written and audio-visual materials. The Library includes the Moses-Doner Collection, which has reference materials on the Navajo Tribal Code, Tribal budget, Tribal Council records, Tribal Scrapbooks, Monographs of the American Ethnological Society, Bureau of American Ethnology Reports, Peabody Museum Papers, a Rare Books Collection, and other written materials relating to Navajo and American Indian language and culture. The Library's Pamphlet Files contain articles, news clippings, documents and other written resources on Navajo agriculture, education, code talkers, coyote tales, economic development, tribal services, law, livestock, music, plants, social organization, religion and students, among other subjects. The Pamphlet Files also contain materials on many American Indian tribes. NCC's Library includes a Dissertation Index on all doctoral dissertations dealing with Navajo Indians, and a substantial collection of books on bilingual-bicultural education and curriculum development. In addition, the Library has an audio-visual service which loans films and videotapes relating to Navajo and American Indian culture. A directory of the Library's audio-visual holdings is available for $1.00. (This directory is listed in Section IV of this bibliography.) A general brochure on the Library is available at no charge, on request.

NAVAJO COMMUNITY COLLEGE MUSEUM AND CULTURAL CENTER, Navajo Community College, Tsaile, AZ (86556) — (602) 724-3311

Navajo Community College, in conjunction with its Navajo/Indian Studies Program, features a museum of Native American and Navajo culture and history. Contact the museum for information on hours and tours.
NAVAJO TRIBAL MUSEUM, P.O. Box 308, Window Rock, AZ (86515) — (602) 871-4941, ext. 1673
The Tribal Museum was established in 1961 to collect and preserve Navajo historical and cultural material. The museum has over 4,000 items, including examples of early and contemporary Navajo weaving, jewelry, religious material, and prehistoric and contemporary pottery. A series of booklets and short papers on Navajo history, culture and places of interest, is available from the museum. (Many of these are cited in Section II.) For a complete listing of the museum’s publications, and/or further information on tour times, call or write at the numbers above.

NORTHERN ARIZONA UNIVERSITY LIBRARY and LEARNING RESOURCES CENTER, Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, AZ (86002) — (602) 523-9011
The Main Library of the Northern Arizona University contains a collection of materials relating to Southwest and American Indian history and culture, and has a large section on general curriculum materials. The library provides pamphlets describing its Native American and historical literature, and several brochures explaining how to use the card catalog and find materials. (Brochures are located in the library’s main lobby and reference section.) On the university’s South Campus is an extension library, the Learning Resources Center, which has a special collection on Arizona history, photograph catalogs (including many of Navajo hogans, chicken pull, Navajo men and women, sandpainting, and trading posts), historical documents, and pamphlets and journals on Arizona history. Learning Resource Center materials are for reference in the Center only.

TUBA CITY CULTURAL CENTER, P.O. Box 67, Tuba City Public Schools, Tuba City, AZ (86045) — (602) 283-4211, ext. 226
The Tuba City Title IV Cultural Center was developed to benefit Indian students in the Tuba City area, and is open to all visitors. The Center features exhibits on Navajo and other Native American cultures, including displays on food and dress, cradleboards, pottery, basket-weaving, jewelry-making, plants and herbs. The Cultural Center’s library houses books on Navajos and other tribes, biographies of Indian leaders, and other written materials for classroom use. In addition, the Center has developed Navajo- and Native-oriented filmstrips, records and videotapes; these can be borrowed within the Tuba City District. For more information on the Tuba City Cultural Center and Title IV Program, contact the Center Director.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO LIBRARY, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, NM (87131) — (505) 277-5761
Navajo and Native American materials, in addition to those in the regular stacks, are contained in the Ethnic Studies Reference Room of the UNM Library. Materials in this section are cataloged separately from those in the stacks; these materials include many on Native American and Navajo archaeology, history, religion and social organization. The Ethnic Studies Section also has an Information and Referral Department, which can assist in locating materials, and a substantial collection of encyclopedias, bibliographies, and other reference materials on Navajo and American Indian language, culture and history.

WINDOW ROCK PUBLIC LIBRARY, Window Rock, AZ (86515) — (602) 871-8469
The Window Rock Public Library has an Arizona Collection and Indian Collection. These include books on general American Indian history, Indian education, Navajo culture, religion and social life. Books in the Arizona Collection are for reference only in the library.

PUBLISHERS AND MATERIALS DISTRIBUTORS

AMERICAN INDIAN BILINGUAL EDUCATION CENTER (AIBEC), College of Education, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, NM (87131) — (505) 277-3551
AIBEC is a member of the Title VII network of service centers which assist regional bilingual-bicultural projects. AIBEC’s service area includes Navajo, Jicarillo Apache and New Mexico Pueblo tribes. The Center provides inservice training for teachers and parents involved in bilingual projects, and offers a materials bank with Navajo and Spanish bilingual resources. (A bibliography of AIBEC’s holdings is cited in Sections III and V.) AIBEC is linked to the National Clearinghouse for Bilingual Education (NCBE) data base. Through this data base, AIBEC is able to research topics relating to bilingual-bicultural education, and to locate all written sources on particular topics. Teachers and bilingual program developers can request data searches from AIBEC. For more information on AIBEC services, contact the Director.

ARIZONA DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, CENTRAL DISTRIBUTION SERVICES, 1535 West Jefferson Street, Phoenix, AZ (85007) — (602) 255-3088
The Arizona Department of Education publishes curriculum guides, Basic Skills materials, evaluation reports, program handbooks and an assortment of other materials relating to bilingual education, community education, guidance, health, literacy, proposal writing, reading and values. The Department has recently developed a Navajo language component of Basic Skills objectives for students in grades K–6. An updated catalog of Arizona Department of Education publications is available upon request.
CANYON RECORDS, 4143 North 16th Street, Phoenix, AZ (85016) — (602) 266-4823/4659
Canyon Records distributes recordings of noted Indian singers and groups; many of these are performances from tribal festivals, dances, and pow-wows. Canyon Records' selection includes the music of Navajo (Squaw Dance songs, Yeibichai, social songs, sway songs, peyote songs, and songs performed by Bita Hochee Travelers, Klageto Maidens, Klageto Swingers and others), Apache, Sioux, and Plains Indians. Canyon Records also distributes craft supplies — beads and beadwork materials, patterns for Indian robes and shawls, feathers, and iron-on designs. A catalog of Canyon Record products is available at no charge, on request.

CENTER FOR INDIAN EDUCATION (CIE), Farmer Education Building 302, College of Education, Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ (85281) — (602) 965-6292
The Center for Indian Education sponsors M.A. and Ph.D.-level programs in Indian Education through Arizona State University's College of Education. In the past 15 years, the CIE has produced numerous texts, bibliographies and other references on Indian education and Native American languages and cultures. The CIE's Journal of American Indian Education (cited in Section IV of this bibliography) is published quarterly and contains articles on current topics in Indian education. A regional Title VII Bilingual Education Service Center (BESC) is affiliated with the Center for Indian Education. BESC can provide materials on Native American bilingual-bicultural education, and also assists Arizona, California and Nevada Indian tribes in developing native-based curriculum and in training parents and teachers to work in federal bilingual projects. BESC is linked to the National Clearinghouse for Bilingual Education data base, and is capable of conducting literature searches on topics relating to bilingual education. For more information on CIE and BESC, contact the CIE Director and/or BESC Associate Director.

DISSEMINATION AND ASSESSMENT CENTER FOR BILINGUAL EDUCATION (DACBE), Educational Service Center, Region XII, 7703 North Lamar, Austin, TX (78752) — (512) 475-5601
DACBE is affiliated with the Title VII network of bilingual-bicultural service and materials development centers. DACBE distributes written and audio-visual curriculum and professional resources for Navajo, Hualapai, Choctaw, Maskoke and Spanish-English programs. A catalog of DACBE publications is available at no charge, on request.

ERIC DOCUMENT REPRODUCTION SERVICE, LEASCO, Information Products, Inc., P.O. Drawer O, Bethesda, MD (20014) — (301) 656-9723 — (Regional Office: Box 3AP, Las Cruces, NM 88003; PH. 505-646-2623)
ERIC is a federally-funded national information system which disseminates educational resources and materials on educational research. There are 18 ERIC network centers; each center focuses on a particular topic area in education. (For example, the regional center in Las Cruces, NM, deals with rural education.) ERIC compiles information obtained from the journal, Research in Education — a monthly publication containing abstracts of research reports in education — and from the Current Index to Journals in Education, a monthly file of citations from over 500 educational journals, yearbooks and quarterlies.

IROQRCRAFTS, LTD., Rural Route #2, Ohsweken, Ontario, Canada (NOA IMO) — (416) 765-4206
Iroqcrafts is a distributor of American Indian resource materials — in particular, art resources — that can be used in the classroom. Iroqcrafts products include silkscreens and posters, Indian art calendars, maps, wood crafts, jewelry, native musical instruments, beadwork, basketry, and books. A catalog of Iroqcrafts products can be obtained free of charge.

NATIONAL CLEARINGHOUSE FOR BILINGUAL EDUCATION (NCBE), 1300 Wilson Boulevard, Suite B2-11, Rosslyn, VA (22209) — (703) 522-0710/(800) 336-4560
The primary purpose of NCBE is to provide answers to questions about bilingual education, and to serve as an information collection and retrieval system. NCBE has the only data base in the U.S. devoted solely to bilingual education. The NCBE Accessions File is a list of all materials housed at bilingual education service centers throughout the U.S. (e.g., AIBEC, BESC). The NCBE Bibliographic File lists curriculum and non-curriculum bibliographic sources on such topics as parent roles, bilingual programs, teacher education, evaluation, language, testing and adult education. A Directory File provides names and addresses of federal agencies, publishers, and other organizations involved in bilingual education. NCBE also publishes information on bilingual education — booklets and guides to developing and assessing programs, bibliographies and resource directories, newsletters and articles on critical issues in bilingual education. Finally, NCBE provides field representatives to assist regional bilingual education centers. For information on NCBE's services, or for answers to questions about bilingual education and bilingual education programs, call the Center's toll-free "hot line," or write NCBE.
