Designed to assess the ability to interpret the major types of figurative language or tropes such as similes, metaphors, proverbs, and personification, the two forms of this instrument each contain 50 items in a two-part, multiple-choice format. Part I tests the meaning of figures of speech in isolation; part II tests the meaning in the context of a sentence(s). In both parts, the reader is required to select which of four possible answer choices represents the most common meaning for each figure of speech. To aid the reader, figurative statements are underlined, no figurative statements are contained in the answer choices, the test is untimed, and the test items are written at or below the fifth grade readability level. Validity, reliability, and normative data are included. (This document is one of those reviewed in The Research Instruments Project (TRIP) monograph "Measures for Research and Evaluation in the English Language Arts, Volume 2," published by the Committee on Research of the National Council of Teachers of English in cooperation with the ERIC Clearinghouse on Reading and Communication Skills. The TRIP review, included here as an introduction to the instrument, describes the instrument's category (reading), title, author, date, age range (intermediate to postsecondary and adult basic education), purpose, and physical characteristics.) (JL)
The measurement instruments contained in this document have been reviewed in a monograph (cited below) edited by William T. Fagan, Charles Cooper, and Julie Jensen, for The Research Instruments Project (TRIP), and funded by a grant from the Trustees of the NCTE Research Foundation:

Measures for Research and Evaluation in the English Language Arts

The purpose of the editors has been to select and review measurement instruments pertaining to all aspects of research and evaluation in the English language arts, e.g. language and language development, literacy, literature, reading (including comprehension, teacher-pupil interaction, etc.), writing, and teacher knowledge and attitudes. In order to make some of the actual instruments reviewed more readily available, the ERIC Clearinghouse on Reading and Communication Skills (ERIC/RCS) has cooperated with the editors by processing selected instruments into the ERIC system (see the 42 documents assigned Clearinghouse accession numbers CS 207 904-945).

Title: Smith/Palmer Figurative Language Interpretation Test

Authors: Edwin H. Smith
Barbara C. Palmer

Age Range: Intermediate to Post-Secondary (including Adult Basic Education Students)

Description of the Instrument:

Purpose: To assess the ability to interpret the major types of figurative language or tropes such as similes, metaphors, proverbs, and personification.

Date of Construction: 1979

Physical Description: The figures of speech used in the Smith/Palmer Figurative Language Interpretation Test items were selected from those found in basal reader series, Sutherland's (1973) recommended trade books, Brewer's (1978) Dictionary of Phrase and Fable, and Bartlett's (1968) Familiar Quotations, Fourteenth Edition, plus newspapers and magazines such as Time and Newsweek. The pilot version of the test contained two equal parts of 50 items each--part one tested the meaning of the figures of speech in isolation; part two in the context of a sentence(s). (See sample items at the end of this section.) In both parts the reader was required to select which of four possible answer choices represented the most common meaning for each figure of speech. The test was not timed. To minimize comprehension difficulties, all test items were written at or below the fifth grade readability level, using the EDL Revised Core Vocabulary (1969). All figurative statements were also excluded from answer choices. Also, the figurative statements were underlined as an aid to the reader. At the end of the pilot study, based on a detailed item analysis, the instrument was revised and the 100 improved items were randomly divided into Form A and Form B with 50 items each. Within each of the tests the original part one/two, multiple-choice format was retained.

Part I:

Walking on air means feeling:

A. impatient
B. careful
C. joyful
D. careless
Part II:

Just by listening to the two of them, you could see that they were painted with the same brush. They were:

A. very much alike
B. both young
C. sisters
D. relatives

Validity, Reliability, and Normative Data:

Content validity was established for the Smith/Palmer Figurative Language Interpretation Test by selecting a large number of figures of speech from basal reader series and trade books; these were supplemented by selections from the works of Sutherland, Brewer, and Bartlett. These sources were chosen because of their common usage. In addition, the content and format was compared with similar instruments such as those found in the dissertations of Muller (1976) and Hartman (1978). After a detailed item analysis, the 100 item test was revised and the improved items were randomly divided into two forms of the test with 50 items each.

Reliability as assessed by the Kuder-Richardson Formula 20, on three occasions yielded coefficients of .83, .84, and .76.

The mean performance on the 100 item test for a sample of grade seven, eight, and nine students was 40.40 with a standard deviation of 10.61 and a standard error of measurement of 4.43. For a group of teachers enrolled in a graduate reading extension course, the mean was 82.45 with a standard deviation of 4.55 and a standard error of 3.11. The administration of each form (50 items) with adult basic education students yielded a mean of 27.89 with a standard deviation of 7.59 and a standard error of 3.06 for Form A, while for Form B, the statistics were 27.80, 6.11, and 3.01.
