The Law Education Goals and Learnings (LEGAL) Project of the Dade County Public Schools was funded by the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act Chapter 2. It is an authorized elective course of study for students in grades seven through twelve which emphasizes criminal and civil law areas. This evaluation was conducted to determine: (1) whether the LEGAL Project experienced an increase in student and school participation; (2) whether LEGAL staff provided appropriate instructional support services to teachers and students; (3) whether personnel have undertaken efforts to increase the number of school administrators who are aware of the project; (4) whether LEGAL made available appropriate in-service training to all LEGAL teachers; and (5) whether the LEGAL Project maintained and/or enhanced the support it receives from local, state, and national organizations. The evaluation indicated positive results in all areas. Recommendations resulting from the study are that the project should continue to be supported; workshops and inservice training sessions should be conducted to increase awareness of project activities through presentations at secondary schools; and consideration should be given to expanding the LEGAL project to the elementary level. Appendices contain LEGAL teacher, resource personnel, and student questionnaires and documentation of Project activities. (DWH)

Executive Summary

The 1983-84 LEGAL (Law Education Goals and Learnings) Project has operated in the Dade County Public Schools (DCPS) since 1976 and was funded by the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act (ECIA) in the amount of $110,565. It is an authorized course of study emphasizing criminal and civil law areas and is presently offered as an elective for students in grades seven through twelve. During the 1983-84 school year, LEGAL Jr., LEGAL Sr., and LEGAL "infusion" courses were taught in over three-fourths of Dade County's junior and senior high schools, involving approximately 40,000 students.

In addition to its functioning as an authorized course of study, LEGAL also facilitates three sub-components: the Law-Related Field Studies Program (funded by Close Up Partners through Florida Close-Up, Inc.); the Attorneys and the Schools Program (sponsored by LEGAL in conjunction with the Young Lawyers Section of the Dade County Bar Association); and the Mock-Trial Competition Program (sponsored by LEGAL, the Young Lawyers Section of the Dade County Bar Association, and the University of Miami Law School).

These three sub-components provide the following services. The Law-Related Field Studies Program enables students from LEGAL classes to visit such law-related field study sites as courts, police departments, and the juvenile justice center. During the 1983-84 school year, over 875 students participated in this program. The Attorneys and the Schools Program helps LEGAL and other social studies classes present in-class mock trials and supplies attorneys to serve as in-class resource persons assisting pupils in their understanding of various aspects of criminal and consumer law. The county-wide Mock Trial Competition allows students participating in the intra-school mock trial competition the opportunity to compete against other schools in a county-wide mock-trial competition.

The evaluation addressed the following questions:

1. Has the LEGAL Project experienced an increase in student and school participation?
2. Have the LEGAL staff provided appropriate instructional support services to LEGAL teachers and students?
3. Have LEGAL personnel undertaken efforts to increase the number of school administrators who are aware of the project?
4. Has LEGAL made available appropriate in-service training to all LEGAL teachers?
5. Has the LEGAL Project maintained and/or enhanced the support it receives from local, state, and national organizations?

Data for this evaluation were obtained from information that was routinely collected as part of the LEGAL Project as well as gathered strictly for this appraisal. "Instruments" employed to collect this data included project activity logs, DCPS records, interviews with project staff, and questionnaires developed by the Office of Educational Accountability (OEA) in conjunction with LEGAL personnel.
Results of this evaluation indicated that the LEGAL Project greatly increased the number of students and schools participating in the program; provided appropriate instructional support services to LEGAL teachers and students; and expended considerable effort to increase the number of school administrators who were aware of the project. Additionally, the project made available appropriate in-service training to all LEGAL teachers; demonstrated that local, state, and national organizations maintained and/or enhanced their support for the LEGAL Project; and received positive evaluations of program products and activities from LEGAL teachers, resource personnel, and student participants.

As a result of these findings, the following recommendations are made:

1. The LEGAL Project should continue to be supported.

2. The LEGAL Project should consider conducting workshops and/or inservice training sessions covering the following topics: conducting mock trials, conducting law-related field experiences, utilizing community resources, and infusing LEGAL into other social studies courses.

3. The LEGAL Project staff should continue its efforts to increase administrators' and social studies department chairpersons' awareness of project activities by making presentations at junior and senior high area principals meeting and at social studies department chairpersons meetings.

4. Given the success of LEGAL at the Junior and Senior high school levels, it is recommended that consideration be given to expanding the support for law related educational activities at the elementary level. These activities are currently provided only minimal funding through a Florida Department of Education mini-grant.
Background

Description of the Project

The LEGAL (Law Education Goals and Learnings) Project was initiated in the DCPS since 1976 and was funded (in 1983-84) by the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act (ECIA), Chapter 2, in the amount of $110,555. It is an authorized course of study and is presently offered as an elective for students in grades seven through twelve. In 1983-84 LEGAL Jr., LEGAL Sr., and LEGAL "infusion" courses were taught in over three-fourths of Dade County's junior and senior high schools, involving approximately 40,000 students.

The Social Studies Supervisor for Dade County Public Schools first envisioned the concept that later evolved into the LEGAL Project. Early in 1975, law-related education was identified as a specific subset of social studies education which could possibly make a strong contribution to the development of citizenship skills in students of the Dade School district. Consequently, an experienced social studies teacher and curriculum developer was contracted to prepare a law-education proposal for funding through Title III/IV (later, Title IV/C) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The resulting proposal proved successful, and the DCPS received a six month planning grant to develop a comprehensive law-related education project.

A coordinator was appointed for the project and, in the early stage of the project, primary concern was focused on identifying objectives and establishing the framework for a needs assessment. Attorneys, evaluation specialists and experienced consultants in the field of law-related education assisted in this task.

Following the planning grant phase, LEGAL obtained a one year operational grant for development. At this time permanent staff members were added and the professional services of additional experts were secured to review and refine objectives and develop items for the needs assessment instrument.

Upon completion, the needs assessment instrument was administered to students enrolled in accredited social studies courses from schools reflecting the multi-ethnic nature of the district's school population. This testing revealed that only 7% of the junior high school students and 15% of the senior high school students were able to attain a majority of the project's major objectives specific to law-related knowledge.

Faced with these results, the project staff set about devising a multi-faceted law-education program which would remediate the identified deficiencies. The LEGAL Project director worked closely with Dade County's social studies supervisor in devising procedures for incorporating LEGAL instructional courses into the district's social studies program.

During these planning sessions, it was agreed to deal with another critical aspect of the problem: not only were students deficient, but their teachers were not properly prepared to provide instruction in law studies. Thus, it was determined that the LEGAL Project would utilize a two-pronged approach in attacking the problem: 1) developing curriculum offerings for students, and 2) providing inservice education opportunities for teachers.
As LEGAL Project staff explored solution alternatives, they enlisted attorneys, educators, and knowledgeable community persons to serve the project in an advisory capacity. In addition, the staff surveyed secondary school social studies teachers and principals to identify prospective participants in the LEGAL Project.

To develop social studies courses for junior and senior high students in both criminal and civil law areas, LEGAL staff contracted skilled curriculum writers and legal experts to develop the various components of these law-focused courses. The resulting courses were based on the main program objectives that had also been used in preparing the needs assessment. For students enrolled in the courses, source books were developed to serve as student curriculum guides.

To provide students with appropriate field study experiences, project staff visited numerous locations in the community that best illustrated various elements of criminal and civil law. Built into all of the student materials were evaluation forms that solicited student input in determining the effectiveness of the various legal products.

As the student products were being developed, the framework for the teacher inservice process was also being established. Several LEGAL workshops were conducted during the first year, featuring nationally known leaders in the field of law education. While group workshops became an important part of the staff development component, the training design also provided for teachers to participate in the inservice process on a more individualized basis through the utilization of a teacher source book.

As the student and teacher products were being devised, an overall evaluation scheme for the project's entire program delivery system was also being constructed. Summative assessment instruments were developed for the junior and senior high programs, as well as individual component assessment instruments that were to serve as mid-term examinations for junior and senior high LEGAL courses.

As the various elements of program development and evaluation progressed, the LEGAL Project continued to establish communication links within the educational and legal communities. The initial citizen advisory concept was formalized so that a permanent body, meeting on a regular basis, provided continuing input to project staff. This advisory group has maintained its mandate throughout the life of the project.

The basic project elements established during the first developmental year were tested during the second developmental (or "pilot-test") year, reviewed and refined, then readied for the all-important third developmental year. During this phase of project development, a field test was conducted, with participating schools implementing products, strategies and testing instruments as prescribed. Evaluation results from the field test year confirmed that the project's stated objectives had been satisfied.

After being nominated for validation by the state advisory council, LEGAL was certified as an exemplary educational practice. Florida's Commissioner of Education authorized the LEGAL Project for the purposes of dissemination to other school districts in Florida. Through the state's Title IV/C Adopter
Grant program, 17 Florida school districts have been allotted small incentive grants to implement LEGAL. During three years of dissemination, this process has involved 25 schools. Teachers have received inservice training, monitoring service and technical assistance to facilitate their efforts.

On August 18, 1982 members of the joint Dissemination Review Panel in Washington, D.C., unanimously approved the LEGAL Project and invited it to join the National Diffusion Network as a nationally validated exemplary project. Although LEGAL has not yet received Network funding, LEGAL personnel have sent materials and curriculum products to consumers in numerous states. In addition, LEGAL has conducted training for adopters who represent several counties in the state of Indiana.

As LEGAL completed its third year of dissemination and final year of Title IV/C funding, it had been installed in over one-half of the public secondary schools in Dade County (30 junior high schools and 12 senior high schools) involving 60 teachers and approximately 6,000 students. In addition the program was in use in two schools in the private sector--Immaculata-LaSalle High School in Miami, and Blessed Trinity School in Miami Springs. Sr. Francis Leo Brown, Assistant Superintendent for Federal Programs for the Archdiocese of Miami, sits on the LEGAL Advisory Committee and helps to coordinate LEGAL services to schools in the Archdiocese.

During the 1981-82 school year, LEGAL added two new programs. One was the Law-Related Field Studies Program, funded by Close Up Partners through Florida Close Up, Inc., and managed by the LEGAL Project. This program enabled over 900 students from LEGAL classes to visit such law-related field study sites as courts, police departments and the juvenile justice center. The other program was the Attorneys and the Schools Program, sponsored by LEGAL and the Young Lawyers Section of the Dade County Bar Association. In one phase of this program, attorneys helped LEGAL and other social studies classes present mock trials. For other classes, attorneys made visits as resource persons to help students understand various aspects of criminal and consumer law. About 25 secondary schools participated in both phases of the Attorneys and the Schools Program.

LEGAL added a county-wide mock-trial competition to its program during the 1982-83 school year.

Major occurrences during LEGAL's final year as a Title IV/C project included a change in project management and the initiation of new procedures regarding the project's delivery mechanism. Both of these changes were described in more detail in the project's Interim Report (March, 1982).

The LEGAL Project's proposal for continuation in the 1982-83 school year via Chapter II funding under ECIA was approved (in May, 1982) by the DCPS Ad Hoc committee of citizens and educators. Shortly thereafter the DCPS Board endorsed the committee's recommendations. For the 1983-84 school year LEGAL was again offered as an authorized program of study for students in grades seven through twelve.
Description of the Evaluation

The evaluation was based on information that was routinely collected as part of the LEGAL Project as well as upon knowledge that was obtained strictly for this appraisal. It was designed to focus on the extent to which each of the project's objectives were accomplished. Instruments employed to gather the necessary data included Project activity logs, DCPS records, interviews with Project staff and questionnaires distributed to social studies and LEGAL teachers, resource personnel and student participants. (See Appendix A for copies of these questionnaires)

LEGAL Project staff established three broad goals for the 1983-84 school year which included:

1. the expansion of LEGAL to non-user schools and students,
2. the continuation and/or expansion of support services to schools currently using LEGAL and,
3. the reinforcement and/or expansion of linkages with resource agencies and organizations at the local, state, and national levels.

To ascertain the extent to which LEGAL achieved its three goals, this evaluation directed its attention to the following questions:

1. Has the LEGAL Project experienced an increase in student and school participation?
2. Has the LEGAL staff provided appropriate instructional support services to LEGAL teachers and students?
3. Have LEGAL personnel undertaken efforts to increase the number of school administrators who are aware of the project?
4. Have the LEGAL employees made available appropriate in-service training to all LEGAL teachers?
5. Has the LEGAL Project maintained and/or enhanced the support it receives from local, state and national organizations?

Results

The following section contains detailed findings of the evaluation of the LEGAL Project. Initially presented are the results of an appraisal of the LEGAL staff's performance vis-a-vis increasing the number of students and schools participating in the project. Following this, data are offered which evaluate the appropriateness of the instructional support services LEGAL personnel provided to LEGAL teachers and students. Next, information is presented which was used to determine if and to what extent LEGAL staff undertook efforts to make school administrators aware of the project. After this, an evaluation of the availability of appropriate in-service training for LEGAL teachers is discussed, and finally a determination is made concerning the extent to which the LEGAL Project maintained and/or enhanced its support from local, state, and national organizations.
Student and School Participation

To ascertain the extent to which the number of students and schools participating in the LEGAL Project increased from the 1982-83 to the 1983-84 school year, information stored in the DCPS computer files was accessed.

Examination of this data showed that during the 1982-83 school year a total of 6,383 pupils (5,470 junior high students and 913 senior high students) enrolled in either LEGAL Jr. or LEGAL Sr. whereas in 1983-84, 9,496 pupils (8,662 junior high and 834 senior high students) participated in LEGAL (See Table I). These figures indicated that the increase in the number of children in grades seven, eight, and nine enrolled in LEGAL classes was 3,192 students. The number of pupils in grades ten, eleven, and twelve registered in LEGAL courses changed from 913 to 834--a decrease of 79 students. Overall, however, the total number of DCPS students enrolled in LEGAL courses changed from 6,383 in 1982-83 to 9,496 in 1983-84--an increase of 3,113 pupils.

One should note that perhaps part of the student increase in junior high and student decrease in senior high may result from an amendment to School Board Rule 6GX13-5B-1.04 (which governs promotions, placement, and graduation for grades K-12 and adult education). This amendment directly impacted the social studies instructional program (for grades 7-12) by changing the grade levels which require a course in social studies. More specifically, this amendment removed civics as a required grade seven social studies course. Consequently, the Social Studies Curriculum Department Supervisor sent a memo to all secondary principals recommending that grade seven students who select a social studies course as an elective take CIVICS/LEGAL (see Appendix B for a copy of this memo). Thus, one can infer that the 7,543 enrollment increase in the 1983-84 grade seven CIVICS/LEGAL course was at least, partly due to this rule change and the resulting Social Studies Curriculum Department Supervisor's recommendation. Similarly, the 4,355 decrease in ninth grade enrollment in LEGAL courses may be due, in part, to this same rule which mandated World History/Studies as a required grade nine social studies course. Last year, no social studies course was required for grade nine pupils. Consequently, during that time, many ninth graders opted to take a LEGAL course. This option was not available this year.

To determine the extent to which DCPS secondary social studies teachers and students experienced LEGAL via an infusion methodology (i.e., units of study or individual lessons that deal with law-related topics), a questionnaire, developed by OEA, was sent to all first and second semester teachers of social studies. Analysis of the information garnered from this survey suggested that 296 social studies teachers (i.e. 151 during the first semester and 145 during the second semester) infused law-related educational activities into their regular social studies courses. Furthermore, analysis also showed that 29 teachers used infusion methodology for at least one day, 58 employed it from two to five days, 72 teachers utilized it from six to ten days, 40 teachers utilized from eleven to fifteen days; and 97 teachers employed it for more than fifteen days (See Tables IIa and b).

Regarding the number of social studies students involved with LEGAL via infusion, analysis of questionnaire data showed that for the 1983-84 school year approximately 24,000 to 31,000 pupils experienced law-related educational activities during their regular social studies courses. Further analyses indicated that between 12,000 and 16,000 pupils were involved with LEGAL infusion during the first semester and a similar number were involved during the second semester (See Table IIc).

Examination of the data concerning the number of schools participating in LEGAL showed that 50 schools (30 junior high and 20 senior high) were involved in the 1982-83 school year whereas 55 schools (36 junior high and 19 senior high) were involved in the 1983-84 school year. (See Table III)

Provision of Instructional Support Services to LEGAL Teachers and Students

To ascertain the extent to which the LEGAL staff provided appropriate instructional support services to LEGAL teachers and students, an examination was made of the project's activity logs to determine the quality and quantity of assistance supplied. In addition, OEA staff analyzed the results of specific items on questionnaires completed by almost all LEGAL teachers and a stratified random sample of pupils enrolled in LEGAL Jr. and LEGAL Sr. to determine the extent to which the instructors and students were satisfied with the project's support services.

Inspection of LEGAL's activity logs and warehouse materials showed that LEGAL personnel provided several types of instructional support to LEGAL teachers and students, including the creation and distribution of numerous lesson plans involving law-related educational activities, the development and dissemination of two teacher and student source books (i.e., one for junior high and one for senior high) to assist teachers and pupils involved with field study activities; and the coordination of 1) all law-related field studies, 2) the county wide mock-trial competition components of LEGAL, 3) the Urban Consumer Education Project; and 4) the Florida Close-Up Partners aspect of LEGAL.

More specifically, LEGAL staff devised some lessons based on law-related articles published in a local newspaper and created others which dealt with urban consumer education. In addition, LEGAL Project staff coordinated and/or supervised 31 law-related field studies encompassing 23 junior and senior high schools and involving approximately 875 students.

Furthermore, LEGAL Project personnel, while facilitating the county-wide mock-trial competition, held at least seven meetings attended by DCPS social studies teachers, school administrators, lawyers, and judges who were involved with this sub-component of LEGAL; established rules and procedures for the competition, provided the necessary attorneys and judges; and in conjunction with members of the Young Lawyers Section of the Dade County Bar Association, scored and/or ranked the competing teams. Finally, LEGAL staff met several times with teachers and administrators from MacArthur South, and as a result established this school as a Close-Up Partners "intensive site" as well as a facility that teaches LEGAL courses. LEGAL support for the school also included preparing the students for trips to Tallahassee and Washington, D.C., and chaperoning some of MacArthur's LEGAL students on these governmental field studies to view the legislative process.

Notwithstanding the above-mentioned specifics concerning LEGAL's instructional support activities to LEGAL teachers and students, inspection of LEGAL's activity logs also showed that program personnel provided support to LEGAL teachers from different schools on several occasions. On at least two occasions LEGAL staff met with LEGAL teachers to plan LEGAL activities and workshops for the 1983-84 school year. In addition, LEGAL employees met at least once with new LEGAL teachers at Shenandoah Junior, provided support to the LEGAL teacher at COPE North, observed consumer law lessons at both Miami

Finally, a visual inspection of LEGAL's offices showed that the LEGAL Project maintained, throughout the 1983-84 school year, a sufficient quantity of LEGAL curriculum materials which were supplied upon request to LEGAL teachers.

Analysis of responses to selected questionnaire items provided by LEGAL teachers (See Table IV) showed that 83.3% of all respondents were aware of LEGAL curriculum products, that 73.8% had requested LEGAL materials and that 80.7% of those who had asked for curriculum matter believed they had obtained "adequate" materials "always" or "most of the time".

Finally, the questionnaire results indicated that 83.8% thought materials were promptly delivered "always" or "most of the time."

Analysis of the LEGAL pupils' responses to the student questionnaire indicated that 40% of the respondents thought the quality of materials used to support the instruction was better than that employed in their other courses while 43.6% believed the quality of materials was about the same. Furthermore, 45.6% of the pupils indicated that the quality of outside resources used to support the instruction was better than the resources used in their other classes and 26.4% felt the quality was about the same. Finally, a majority of LEGAL pupils who had come into direct contact with resource personnel (such as judges, attorneys, etc.) rated all resource personnel categories "good", with especially high ratings given to judges and attorneys. Concerning the provision of instructional support services to LEGAL's sub-components, a partial breakdown of teachers' responses regarding this area produced the results displayed in Table VI. In brief, inspection of this table shows that 58% to 80% of responding LEGAL teachers believed they obtained adequate instructional support (responded "agree" or "strongly agree" to the statements). The Law Related Field Study Program received particularly high ratings for instructional support.

Administrators' Awareness of LEGAL

To ascertain the extent to which the LEGAL Project attempted to increase the number of school administrators who possessed awareness of the Project, the evaluator examined LEGAL's activity logs to determine the quality and quantity of LEGAL's efforts in this endeavor. Inspection of these logs showed that LEGAL personnel utilized several approaches to achieve this task. For example, LEGAL staff members presented information on the program and its services on at least three occasions to DCPS area principals' meetings. Also, LEGAL employees met individually, on at least two occasions with administrative personnel representing Psychological Services and teachers of severely emotionally disturbed (SED) children informing them of LEGAL project activities and discussing potential workshops for SED teachers. Furthermore, LEGAL staff made presentations concerning their project, on at least two occasions, to the Dade County Administrators Association. In addition, LEGAL Project employees distributed LEGAL materials and answered questions regarding LEGAL at the Quest Conference--a yearly educational conference which emphasizes the presentation of new programs, new materials, etc. Finally LEGAL personnel met on at least two occasions with social studies department chairpersons (from the North and South Central Areas) to explain the most recent developments regarding the LEGAL Project.

In short, it appears that the LEGAL Project undertook a sincere and conscientious county-wide effort to make junior and senior high principals, social studies department chairpersons, and social studies teachers aware of LEGAL and its services.

Provision of Inservice Training to LEGAL Teachers

To determine the extent to which the LEGAL Project made available appropriate inservice training to all LEGAL teachers, LEGAL's activity logs and some of the data obtained from questionnaires sent to all LEGAL teachers were analyzed to ascertain the quality and quantity of effort LEGAL employed to accomplish this task. LEGAL conducted at least 4 workshops (for all LEGAL teachers) which covered the following topics: the death penalty, juvenile delinquency, consumer law, and the teaching of Civics/LEGAL. In addition, the logs indicated that LEGAL held ten mini-workshops at ten different locations (with approximately 250 LEGAL teachers attending these workshops). These workshops covered such areas as law-related education and the emotionally handicapped, the death penalty, consumer law and law-related educational activities. Approximately 60 teachers participated in these mini-workshops. (See Appendix D for a sample of announcements/agenda/participant rosters documenting the provision of inservice training).

Analysis of LEGAL teacher responses to the survey indicated that about 70% of the teachers believed they had received adequate in-service training. Thirty-one of the 42 teachers who completed the questionnaire also stated that they would like more in-service training, particularly in the areas of selecting materials, utilizing community resources, conducting law-related field experiences, constructing evaluative instruments, and conducting a mock trial. Apparently, a large number of LEGAL teachers who filled out this survey, were eager to know more about LEGAL, despite the fact that most thought the in-service training which had been provided was adequate (See Table VII).

In brief, examination of LEGAL's activity logs and analysis of teacher responses to questionnaires suggested that the LEGAL Project did indeed make available appropriate inservice training to all LEGAL teachers.

Local, State, and National Organizational Support for the LEGAL Project

To ascertain the extent to which the LEGAL Project maintained and/or enhanced its support from local, state, and national organizations, the evaluator inspected LEGAL activity logs to determine the quality and quantity of contacts which LEGAL realized with these organizations. (See Appendix E for a sample of documents supporting these contacts.)

Regarding links with local groups, examination of the logs showed that LEGAL personnel met with representatives from county organizations including the Young Lawyers Section of the Dade County Bar Association, Youth Crime Watch, the Metro Dade Criminal Justice Council, the Dade Marine Institute, the City of Miami Police Department, Nova Law School, the Dade County Public Defender's Office, the Dade County Court Mediator, the Dade County Consumer Protection

Division, the Miami Dade Crime Commission, the Miami Herald, Miami Dade Community College, Florida Power and Light, and the Consumer Advocate's Office. More specifically, during the 1983-84 school year LEGAL staff met with individuals from the Young Lawyers Section of the Dade County Bar Association on at least six occasions, and with people from Youth Crime Watch on at least six occasions, and with personnel from the Metro Dade Criminal Justice Council on one occasion. Additionally, meetings were held with staff from the Dade Marine Institute on two instances, the City of Miami Police Department on one occasion, Nova Law School on three occasions, and on at least one occasion with the following organizations: The Dade County Public Defender's Office, the Dade County Court Mediator, the Dade County Consumer Protection Division, the Miami Dade Crime Commission, the Miami Herald, Miami Dade Community College, Florida Power and Light, and the Consumer Advocate's office.

Concerning communication with state organizations, perusal of LEGAL's 83-84 activity logs indicated that its staff achieved contact with several state organizations, including Florida Close-Up Inc. on at least twelve occasions, the Department of Education on at least three instances, The Florida Bar Association on at least two occasions and on at least one occasion with the Florida Council of Social Studies, the Southeast Florida Institute of Criminal Justice, and representatives from the Governor's office, the Attorney General's office and The Florida Supreme Court's office. Finally, LEGAL personnel offered workshops and/or provided consultative services to one other school district (i.e., Collier High School in Naples and other Collier County teacher).

Notwithstanding the contacts which the LEGAL staff maintained with local and state organizations, LEGAL personnel also established and/or enhanced relations with several national organizations including the American Bar Association, the National Council for the Social Studies, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and the Constitutional Rights Foundation. More specifically, representatives from LEGAL met with all the above-mentioned organizations on at least one occasion. In addition, LEGAL staff, on at least two instances, had contact with staff from the National Institute for Citizenship Education.

In brief, examination of LEGAL's activity logs suggested that the LEGAL Project adequately maintained and/or enhanced its contacts with local, state, and national organizations.

Discussion/Recommendations

Analysis of all data collected for the LEGAL Project evaluation indicated that the program achieved its three major goals for the 1983-84 school year. More specifically, it increased by 3,113, the number of students enrolled in 1983-84 LEGAL classes as compared to the number enrolled in 1982-83. Also, it enlarged by 5 the number of schools participating in LEGAL in 1983-84 as compared with the number participating in 1982-83. Furthermore, it maintained and/or increased its support services to schools currently using LEGAL and reinforced and/or expanded its linkages with local, state, and national resource agencies.

Based on these findings, the following recommendations are made:
1. Financial support for the LEGAL project should be continued.

2. The LEGAL Project should consider conducting workshops and/or inservice training sessions covering the following topics: mock trials, law-related field experiences, utilizing community resources, and infusing LEGAL into other social studies courses.

3. The LEGAL Project staff should continue its efforts to increase administrators' and social studies department chairpersons' awareness of project activities by making presentations at junior and senior high area principals meeting and at social studies department chairpersons meetings.

4. Given the success of LEGAL at the Junior and Senior high school levels, it is recommended that consideration be given to expanding the support for law related educational activities at the elementary level. The activities are currently provided only minimal funding through a Florida Department of Education mini-grant.

MEMORANDUM

RT-1275
March 12, 1984

TO: Social Studies Department Chairpersons
FROM: Ray Turner, Assistant Superintendent
Office of Educational Accountability

SUBJECT: RETURN OF THE LEGAL PROJECT SOCIAL STUDIES TEACHER QUESTIONNAIRES

During the week of February 6th, the above titled questionnaire was mailed to the principals of DCPS Junior and Senior High Schools for distribution to all teachers who were (during the fall of 1983) teaching courses listed under the category of social studies. Accompanying instructions requested recipients to complete the questionnaire and return it by February 10th. Although we have received many of those forms, the percentage of returns is not yet sufficient for us to generalize to the entire population of DCPS teachers of social studies.

Consequently, we are requesting that you place copies of the attached memorandum in staff mail boxes as a reminder to those teachers who may not have, as yet, responded. To assist you, we have included for each school, sufficient questionnaires and return envelopes to easily accommodate the respective number of forms which the various schools require.

Should you or others of your staff have any questions concerning this request please do not hesitate to call me or Norm Proller at 350-3447.

Thank you for your cooperation.

We are interested in information descriptive of the nature and extent of your involvement with LEGAL as well as your reactions to certain aspects of the project.

Samples of Documentation Supporting the LEGAL Project's Provision of Instructional Support
MEMORANDUM

June 14, 1983

TO: Junior High School Social Studies Department Chairpersons

FROM: Paul S. Hanson, Supervisor Social Studies

SUBJECT: REVISION JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL (GRADES 7-8) REQUIREMENTS

Attached you will find an explanation of the changes effective for the 1983-84 school year as those changes relate to social studies. Also, included in the attachment is my recommendation for the social studies elective at grade 7.

PSH/mb

cc: Mr. Richard O. White
    Principal
    Mr. Ronald Cold

Attachment
School Board Rule 66X13-5B-1.04 (Promotion, Placement, and Graduation, Grades K-12 and Adult) has been amended. The amendment directly impacts the required social studies instructional program at the secondary level.

The former required program was as follows:

* Civics (041303 and 041304) - Grade 7
  U.S. History (041601 and 041602) - Grade 8
  American History (041605 and 041606) - Grade 11
 American Government and Political/Economic Studies (044601 and 044602) - Grade 12

*Includes required units of Florida history and government and economics.
Includes required units of Americanism versus Communism and economics.

The revised required program is as follows:

* American Citizenship Education (044201) - Grade 8
  World History/Studies (041407) - Grade 9
  American History (041613) - Grade 11
 American Government/Economics (044901) - Grade 12

*Includes the required units of Florida history and government and economics.
Includes the required units of Americanism versus Communism and economics.

A large number of junior high schools are encouraging students to elect social studies at grade 7. If a student elects social studies at grade 7, it is my recommendation that the course offered to students be Civics/LEGAL (041305). This is a new course which combines the current Civics course and LEGAL Education: Criminal and Consumer Law. Should a student take Civics/LEGAL in grade 7, my further recommendation is that the student take U.S. History (041614) in grade 8. It would not be necessary for the student taking Civics in grade 7 to take American Citizenship Education (044201) as the student would repeat much of the content. American Citizenship Education is designed for students who have not taken Civics in grade 7 in 1982-83 or who will not take Civics/LEGAL in grade 7 in future years.

If an elective, social studies course other than Civics/LEGAL is selected by a seventh grader, American Citizenship Education would be required at grade 8.

In summary:

Thanks so much for sending out the tape. The kids really enjoyed it, and benefitted. I have sent a blank tape to Harriet at South Miami, and she's sending me a copy of their tape of last year's trials.

We have 2 classes, totalling 66 students, up from last year's single class of 16 - mostly due to the publicity we got around here from the mock trial competition.

Any information you have regarding setting up a field trip to the courts would be appreciated. Thanks again.

Dear Ron:

The CLOSE UP staff has just received notification from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention that our grant for the 1983-1984 Partners Program year has been signed. Please accept our sincere thanks for your patience and support during the past month.

We are pleased to announce that your community has been selected as a Partners intensive site, subject to the conditions that have been discussed by phone. The selection process was most difficult due to the number of excellent proposals that were received. We believe your proposal can offer a rich and rewarding program to the youth participants, yourselves, and your community.

The Partners Orientation and Training Conference for local coordinators and National Advisory Board representatives will be held Friday, August 19 - Sunday, August 21 at the Marriott Twin Bridges Hotel.

The conference will begin with a luncheon at noon on Friday and conclude mid-afternoon on Sunday. We will make all travel and room arrangements for you; airline tickets will be mailed in a few days. All expenses for Friday - Sunday will be paid by the Partners Program.

During the conference, we will discuss the youth selection process, the role of the National Advisory Board and local advisory committees, procedures, and curriculum for the 1983-84 Partners Program. Individual community proposals, work plans and concerns will be discussed in depth. Due to the amount of money received from OJJDP, it will be necessary to make some revisions in your budget. Additionally, community contracts will be available for your signature during the conference.
Thank you again for your support and patience. The CLOSE UP staff looks forward to working with you to make this program year successful for all of us.

Sincerely,

Sherry Schiller
Project Director

LEGAL Project

I would like to express my appreciation and the appreciation of the participants for the outstanding workshop you put on for Collier County teachers yesterday. The evaluation forms completed by those attending as well as informal remarks all indicate that the workshop was well planned, presented in an interesting manner, and provided many ideas and materials which would be of immediate use in the classroom.

Thank you for your efforts in sharing some of Project LEGAL's ideas and promoting the goals of law education in Collier County. I hope that we will be able to call on you both again and also have an opportunity to visit your program in operation.

Sincerely,

Theron L. Trimble

LEGAL/ELF ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEETING

September 7, 1983

The following members and visitors attended the first meeting of the new school year:

Roger Fritze
Bill Raup
Christine Arguello
Sally Heyman
Connie Krell
Bob McGee
Bob Collins

Jonathan Rose
Mike Friedman
Brenda Young
Paul Hanson
Ron Cold
Sylvan Seidenman

We thank all those who were able to attend. We know that there were many reasons why other members could not attend. Two long-time board members, Joan Stember and Howard Lenard, announced their wedding of September 6; if you wish more information, check case # 9-6-83, filed in the family division of the Dade County Courts. Our best wishes to Joan and Howard!

Shocking no one, the minutes from the June meeting were approved. The following reports were then presented:

- Efforts by Roger Fritze and Leonard Mellon to insure that LEGAL continued to be an integral part of the curriculum made an impression on school board members and administrative staff. A letter from Paul Bell, Associate Superintendent of the Dade County Schools, to Roger Fritze explained that more students could possibly be taking LEGAL at the junior high level this year than last. Ron Cold and Paul Hanson reported on the new Civics/LEGAL course which many seventh grade students will be taking this year. A semester course is also available to students in grades 7-12, and high school students, grades 9-12, may also take a year-long LEGAL class.

- Funding for LEGAL this year, reported Bob McGee, of the Office of Federal Projects Administration, will be approximately the same as last year.

- An evaluation of the LEGAL program was discussed by Bob Collins, of the Office of Educational Accountability. Teachers, students, and administrators were all very high in their praise of the LEGAL program. Evaluation of the data has been completed, and the report should be available soon.

- Christine Arguello, representing the Young Lawyers section of the Dade County Bar Association, reported that the high school essay contest last year was quite successful. Planned for this year are essay contests for junior as well as senior high students, and an elementary school poster contest.
Ron Cold reported that the LEGAL Project has received a grant from the Florida Council on Economic Education to implement the Urban Consumer Education project; this is modeled after the pioneer program in St. Louis, and will be geared primarily to seventh grade students. The program centers around a carefully structured use of community resources in the classroom.

It was announced that Bill Henderson, Educational Specialist with the LEGAL Project last year, received a promotion to Assistant Principal of Carol City Senior High School. Sylvan Seidenman, formerly Social Studies Department Chairman at Miami Springs Senior High School, is now the Educational Specialist for the project.

The CLOSE UP Foundation has again awarded Florida Close Up, Inc., a grant to participate in the Partners Intensive Site program. The program is managed by LEGAL. We will again be working with students from MacArthur South High School. Students will not only participate in the CLOSE UP week in Washington, but will, it is hoped, be trained in mediation skills which they can then use both in school and out.

Ron Cold announced that, with the help of the CLOSE UP Foundation and Florida Close Up, Inc., the very successful Law-Related Field Studies program will be continued this year. Another project LEGAL would like to initiate, dependent upon receiving grant money, is establishment of a Florida network for law-related education.

Work is progressing on revising some LEGAL publications, and a new guide to Metro courts, authored by Toni Kirkwood and Sheldon Zipkin will be available soon for teachers.

The Nova University Law School has offered to make its law students available to LEGAL classes in a variety of ways. One student is already beginning to work with LEGAL classes at Killian Senior High School. It is hoped that the University of Miami Law School will also become involved.

Connie Krell, new Coordinator of Youth Crime Watch, reported on the activities her organization was planning this year, and announced that a staff position for an elementary school coordinator was available.

Brenda Young, Educational Specialist for Character and Citizenship Education, reported on four programs found to be successful in working with elementary school students. One of the successful programs is our Elementary Legal Framework (ELF) Project.

Bill Raup suggested the possibility of incorporating study of international law into LEGAL courses. Ron Cold mentioned that proposals to establish programs in this area have been denied grants, but he was hopeful that ways could be found to accomplish this objective.

Meeting dates for the year were announced; they are: December 7, 1983; March 7, 1984; and June 6, 1984. All meetings are at 1:00pm.

Respectfully submitted,

Sylvan Seidenman
Educational Specialist

Dear Ron,

Please accept this letter as a request for Syvan Sideman and you to provide our 4th and 5th grade teachers with a workshop on law education. The workshop should include, but need not be limited to an overview of the ELF Booklet, strategies for teaching law education, and a review of the resources available for teaching law education.

The Wakulla County School Board will pay travel and per diem for you and Sylvan.

Based on our phone conversations it sounds as though Brenda Young's expertise in providing demonstration lessons would be a valuable asset to the workshop. Although the Wakulla County School Board cannot provide payment for Brenda's services, I would like to invite her to come. I will make arrangements for her to do a demonstration lesson at one of our elementary schools on both workshop days, if she is able to attend.

I've enclosed contracts for consultant services for both you and Sylvan. If they meet with your satisfaction, please sign and return prior to the workshop dates.

I'm looking forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Holub
Law Education Coordinator
