Annotated Bibliographies; Blacks; Check Lists; Elementary Secondary Education; Equal Opportunities (Jobs); *Females; Feminism; *Instructional Materials; Justice; Language Usage; Nondiscriminatory Education; *Resource Materials; Rural Education; Sex Bias; Sex Discrimination; *Sex Fairness; Sex Role; Visual Aids

The result of a thorough search, review, and compilation of resources on women's equity, the annotated bibliography represents a sample of print materials, games and kits, photos and posters, and audiovisual aids now available on sexism that should prove useful to counselors, instructors, school administrators, parents, and elementary and secondary students. Resources were selected on the basis of contents, price, and usefulness for target groups. Arranged under 9 broad categories, entries for 236 print resources include author, title, place and date of publication, publisher, price, and brief annotation. Subject categories focus on an overview of sexism in society, education, employment, law, language, media, and guidance programs; checking for sexism in schools, educational materials, employment, language and media; guidance resources for counselors; resources for educators and parents; resources for preschoolers, students, and parents; women, work, and education; equal opportunity laws; general interest topics; and black women. A separate section lists 21 films and where to get them and sources of photos and posters showing women in nontraditional roles. Special features are a listing of publishers with addresses; listings of 29 organizations and 20 periodicals promoting women's equity; and checklists for analyzing sexism in curriculum materials, elementary readers, and school libraries.

PREFACE

In the course of this project the West Alabama Curriculum and Materials Resource Center of Miles College-Eutaw attempted to address the need for counselors to have access to nonsexist counseling materials. The Center's activities included research, review, collection, and dissemination of resources. The primary functions were organized to respond to the specific limitations imposed by rural areas, limitations that include the inaccessibility of area library facilities to research issues related to women's equity; transportation problems in acquiring resources; and financial problems with school systems purchasing resources. Counselors' use of the Center varied greatly according to content area. The resources available were viewed favorably by counselors, but the counselors primarily used the audiovisual aids, games, and exercises. And although program outreach efforts served to get the materials to counselors, a prime remaining need is for school systems themselves to develop ways of obtaining the resources for local use, in their own schools.

Our research, review, and collection efforts, resulted in this annotated bibliography. Using this bibliography will, we hope, eliminate the research and review process for those involved in similar endeavors.
INTRODUCTION

This annotated bibliography represents a thorough search, review, and compilation of literature on the subject of women's equity. Though the bibliography is by no means complete, it does represent a sample of the literature now available on sexism. Prices are listed for many of the resources, and those price listings are subject to change; the absence of a price listing suggests that the project obtained complimentary copies.

The resources were put through an extensive review process, and those included were selected on the basis of content, price, and usefulness for various target groups. Some of the annotations, however, were extracted from other bibliographies.

The bibliography covers a wide range of subject areas and should prove useful to counselors, instructors, school administrators, and parents, as well as to elementary school students and junior and senior high school students. Included under various categories are print materials, games and kits, photos and posters, and audiovisual aids. Since some resources apply to more than one category, certain entries are repeated under different categories, and a title index is provided for the convenience of the user.

Special features of this bibliography are a partial listing of publishers and their addresses, to expedite ordering the resources; listings of organizations and periodicals that promote women's equity; and a checklist for analyzing sexism in curriculum materials.
AN OVERVIEW OF SEXISM

These resources explore the sexism that exists in various aspects of our society—in education, employment, the judicial system, language, the media, and guidance programs. These resources should increase the reader's understanding and awareness of sex-role stereotyping. They are generally intended for senior high school students and adults.

IN SOCIETY

A series of books about the sex roles that are imposed on girls and boys in our society. Book I, Education and Work, looks at our upbringing, education, and work. Book II, Sex and Marriage, looks at relationships between the sexes and shows how social pressures and conventions often defeat attempts at good relationships. Book III, Messages and Images, looks at language and the way we use words and images in books, films, etc., showing how these underline and sometimes create stereotypes. Hard facts and provocative questions.

Examines the personally limiting conditions under which females live and suggests some of the possibilities for changing those conditions.

Examines the contributions of home, school, books, toys, and the mass media to stereotypes that can interfere with a child's ability to grow up aspiring to diverse kinds of work and creativity.

Provides a definition of institutional sexism, examples of it, and statistics on housing, government, the economy, the media, and education.

Summarizes the failure of schools to offer equal opportunities to girls and women. Also a useful text for in-service courses for teachers.

A collection of essays aimed at illuminating the political nature of woman's condition to describe the structure of our sexist society. Seeks to demonstrate that woman's condition is the result of a slowly formed, deeply entrenched cultural decision that woman shall remain defined by childbearing properties rather than through the development of her brain, will, or spirit.

Probes the myths about women for the meanings of the myths and their effects upon behavior. Also takes a look at those forces which influence the position of women and which have produced the drive for women's rights.

Considers the role of religion in shaping the traditional cultural images that have suppressed and degraded women.

Examines the conditioning that has kept women "in their place." Also discusses the changing institutions and attitudes that are allowing women to grow. A book about roles.

IN EDUCATION

Discusses the ideas and traditions that define and limit the female role in education.

Points out that schools reflect the larger society's attitudes about sex roles and that schools are a strong force in perpetuating those attitudes. Documents and analyzes institutional, cultural, and psychological forms of sexism in education.

Takes a look at the contributions of traditional educational institutions to occupational stratification by sex, even though the institutions have the potential to play a primary role in the sexual integration of the occupational world.

IN EMPLOYMENT

Explores why women have jobs, rather than growing careers; the problems of sex discrimination; sex-role conditioning; and the presumed incompatibility for women of family and career.

Examines the social forces that have prevented women's access to and progress in higher-level jobs. The data are mainly from the fields of law, medicine, science, engineering, and teaching.

IN LAW

A feminist analysis of the laws and legislators, the judges, the lawyers, and the law professors that make up our legal system. Discusses our legal system's prejudicial attitudes against women.

Describes how decisions are made in the juvenile justice system and summarizes studies that reveal the different treatment of males and females.
Incended to help specialists, planners, and concerned individuals to understand better the needs of young women in the system and to provide ideas for improvement.

IN LANGUAGE AND THE MEDIA

Discusses an industry dedicated for the most part to "reinforcing the lie" that women are inferior creatures.

Miller, Casey, and Kate Swift. Words and Women. Garden City, N.Y.: Doubleday, 1977. $2.95

Highly readable discussion of the sexism that pervades our language.

IN GUIDANCE PROGRAMS

A series of in-depth papers, with bibliographies, representing a comprehensive analysis of sex bias in measurements and inventories. Included are guidelines developed to combat sex bias in interest measurements.

An appeal for change in counseling; includes a useful chart listing the similarities between two oppressed groups: women and Blacks.

Describes ways to detect sexism and to counteract its effects in the classroom. Analyzes the findings of a study of 100 career education items examined for sexism.

These guidelines are intended not as legal requirements but rather as standards. Developed as part of the NIE Career Education Program.

Reviews a study of children's perceptions of jobs appropriate for women and men.

A special issue that focuses on the unique problems related to counseling women. Presents several articles that identify strategies, describe self-concept issues, and suggest models for action.

A pamphlet that makes recommendations to alleviate sex bias in educational counseling.

Presents materials to aid in the elimination of sex-role stereotyping in making career choices. The kit is designed for guidance and vocational counselors, administrators, personnel directors, teachers in high school, and other adults. Now available from Educational Resources Information Center, P.O. Box 190, Arlington, Virginia 22210.

Reports the findings of an assessment of career guidance materials for the representation of careers for women.
CHECKING FOR SEXISM

These resources provide a mechanism to evaluate both attitudes and programs for the existence of sexism.

IN GENERAL

A short pamphlet of funny, creative ideas for changing people's consciousness about sex roles.

IN SCHOOL

A guide generally concerned with equal educational opportunity and specifically concerned with equal opportunity for girls and women in schools. The intent is to give school staff, students, and community groups a better understanding of how to eliminate sexism from the schools in which they work or study.

IN EDUCATIONAL MATERIALS

A Study of Racial Bias in Social Studies Textbooks. Textbook Committee of the American Jewish Committee's Dallas Chapter, n.d. $1.50.

The committee studies American history textbooks, with consideration mostly confined to Blacks, Mexican-Americans, and American Indians. Available from the American Jewish Committee, Dallas Chapter, 1270 Hillcrest Road, Suite 101, Dallas, Texas 75230.

A flier for teachers, librarians, parents, and students that offers easy-to-use methods for evaluating the stereotypes, distortions, and omissions frequently found in school and library books.

IN EMPLOYMENT

A guide to eliminating sex discrimination. Provides checklists for recognizing discrimination, detailed advice on how to document it, and in-depth sections on legal remedies, affirmative action, and organized power.

IN LANGUAGE AND THE MEDIA

A good resource for teachers that includes suggestions for activities and discussion, as well as bibliographies on sexism in language, nonsexist literature, and sexism in the media.

A combination of silent and sound filmstrips with exercises; the materials ask students to analyze current language usage in movies, television, books, magazines, and advertising to reveal the sexual values carried therein.
GUIDANCE RESOURCES FOR COUNSELORS

These resources are specifically designed for counselors to assist them in (a) increasing their awareness and understanding of sexism in the guidance program and (b) delivering sex-fair counseling.

REFERENCE READINGS

A report that focuses on an assessment of the needs and attitudes of rural, non-college-bound high school women. Available from Educational Resources Information Center (ED 152 454), P.O. Box 190, Arlington, VA 22210.

A monograph that grew out of a 1973 workshop. Topics covered include the expansion of career options, career barriers, and leadership roles.

Presents a definition and analysis of psychological barriers to women's occupational success. Also explores the psychological forces and their impact.

Discusses the conditions under which the characteristics of the sexes and the human impulses expressed by men and women are not rigidly assigned. Androgyny seeks to liberate the individual from the confines of what is thought to be appropriate.

Develops and promotes the awareness, understanding, and knowledge needed by counselors to assist girls and women in utilizing their potential in the world of work.

Stresses such vital topics as the career guidance needs of disadvantaged youth; objectives for meeting those needs; and goals related to self-development and an understanding of the world of work. Describes 22 activities to help enhance skills in career development and guidance.

A comprehensive review of the research on women and careers; includes chapters on individual factors related to women’s career orientation, parental influences on women’s career development, barriers to women’s career development, sex-role stereotypes, and the career versus homemaking orientation of women.

Explores how vocational education programs have contributed to job and pay segregation. Poses the question, What can be done?

Explores the impact of racial and sex-role stereotyping on Black women who are preparing for or working in nontraditional professions.

A brief analysis of the characteristics of high school counselors, their counseling activities, and their level of information about labor market forecasts.

An analysis of the issues and the present recommendations for changes in the educational system to make it more responsive to the real needs of women students.

Explores some of the reasons Black teenage girls have higher unemployment rates than any other group in the work force. Describes steps that school counselors can take to improve the situation.

An overview of the problems of counseling high school women.

Each chapter speaks to a significant and emerging trend or theory in career planning—career guidance for women, guidance and the technological boom, models for future planning, and much more.

EDUCATIONAL AND OCCUPATIONAL RESOURCES

A compilation of information about salaries in science and engineering.

An overview of life in the armed forces and careers for young men and women that have very little to do with actually going to war.

Written to assist women in selecting and surviving a medical school education.

A process-oriented vocational exploration technique, developed as an alternative to the traditional testing approach used in vocational counseling. Available from Route 4, Box 217, Gainesville, Fla. 32608.

Designed as a set of companion volumes to currently available texts in career counseling. A Woman's Guide explores what work is like for women today, what the problems are, and how to overcome them. The Counselor's Sourcebook emphasizes recent advances in counseling, offering up-to-date information about women's participation in the labor market and about current education and training opportunities. The Selected Annotated Bibliography covers such topics as career opportunities for women, particularly in occupations formerly dominated by men; the legal rights of women, as related to the world of work; counseling techniques and strategies; and current social science research on women in the work force.

Contains facts relating to the present economic, civil, and political status of women. An excellent source of statistics.

Emphasizes careers that require only a short training period--two years or less--and that offer the best prospects for jobs and earnings.

Discusses the roles of the nurse practitioner in the health field.

Examines where and how high school graduates who do not wish to go to college can find on-the-job training.

A photographic documentary of the wide range of work being done by American women; makes an effort to portray diverse role models.

Provides information about more than 100 careers—what each career is like, what kind of education is needed, what the future for women is, and where more information can be obtained.

Non-Traditional Career Day Programs. Atlanta, Ga.: Feminist Action Alliance, 1975. $5.00.

A useful guide to assist in planning a career-day program. Includes a schedule of tasks that should be accomplished prior to the program and provides samples of correspondence and program materials used in planning.

Addresses the rewards available to, and the obstacles faced by, women who aspire to management positions. Suggested ways to develop management skills.

Covers more than 500 nontraditional occupations that offer employment opportunities for women. Discusses in detail careers in law, medicine, the healing arts, the helping professions, science and math, engineering, the creative arts, business, the manual trades, and government service.

Provides basic advice on planning for college and making a success of the endeavor. Written especially for minority students.

Descriptions of 2,878 colleges, grouped according to state. Arranged to help the student choose a college by identifying the options available and judging them in light of the student's purposes and goals.

Includes information about fields of study and the colleges that offer them.

Written to help students arrive at a decision, the guide provides facts and advice on planning a career in medicine.

Annotated listing of articles and other materials on women's employment in nontraditional professional and skilled/vocational jobs.

ASSERTIVENESS TRAINING

A basic guide to assertiveness training.

Explores coping through using the skills of systematic assertive therapy, a successful technique that utilizes training dialogues. Covers everyday situations—returning merchandise, asking for a raise, rejecting or accepting sexual invitations, handling criticism and praise—and shows how to deal with manipulative employers and employees, in-laws, spouses with different sexual agendas, and so forth.

WOMEN AND EDUCATION

Examines how effective the affirmative action strategy is in bringing about employment opportunity for blacks in higher education.

A summary of trends over the past decade in the percentages of women earning degrees, by level of degree.

Addresses full equality and the need for more job education for women.

A series of brief summaries on the status of minority women. The first focuses on the myths about the educational status of black women; the second, on the educational and employment status of Spanish-speaking women.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY LAWS

A compilation of American law as it affects women in marriage, adoption, divorce, rape, widowhood, work, and other areas.

Report on the enforcement of Title IX.

Statistics on oppression and control in the economy, health care, housing, education, the news media, and the government.

Discusses the scope of existing child-care programs, the efforts to enact some form of child-care legislation, the current status of those efforts, and the prospects for significant legislative action in the near future.

A guide to eliminating sex discrimination. Provides checklists for recognizing discrimination, detailed advice on how to document it, and in-depth sections on legal remedies, affirmative action, and organized power.

An important book for school administrators. Provides information on women workers today, equal opportunity legislation, and affirmative action programs. Includes effective ways of integrating women with men in employment areas previously composed solely of males.

Includes all state legislation relevant to women in education, administrative policies adopted by state education agencies, the number of women superintendents and principals, and the activities of state commissions on the status of women.

A study analyzing how the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare handled Title IX complaints brought against elementary and secondary schools. The results show that rules and policies perpetuating unequal treatment of males and females are still going uncorrected in the nation's schools.

Provides the text and the date effective for each of the amendments or constitutional provisions of the states having an equal rights amendment.

Summarizes laws of special interest to women. Highlights trends that have become evident in the past several years.
GENERAL INTEREST

Resources in this section are designed to provide current information on various topics of interest to women.

MALE LIBERATION

What the ERA means, what it will do, and why we need it.

Takes a look at the shift in male attitudes.

Lester discusses growing pains and male role awareness.

A men's liberation manual designed to help high school males realize the full range of choices available in developing all aspects of their lives.

Proposes a new definition of masculinity—one that will open thoughtful men to the kind of self-examination that brings new insights about their roles, their leisure, their work, their emotions, their sexuality, and their relationships.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

Discusses the woman athlete: What does she want? Why does she want it? How is she going to get it?

Presents the basic tools for a lawsuit on behalf of a girl who wants to play on a boys' athletic team.

Discusses how women are transforming athletics.

DAY CARE

A publication that outlines programs of federal agencies that provide funds for day-care projects.

A consumer information leaflet about the Tax Reform Act of 1976.

CREDIT AND INSURANCE

An interview that takes a fresh look at the insurance requirements of women.

A resource guide to women's credit rights, designed to help women take full advantage of their rights to equal credit opportunity now guaranteed by federal law.

FEMALE LIBERATION

A revealing personal history that also addresses the larger issue of creativity--and specifically, women's problems throughout the history of art.

Sets forth the idea that women today are subject to new challenges, yet still burdened by the fears and anxieties of their mothers. Discusses the problems that prompt women to seek therapy.

A Redbook poll offers some truths about how working women and homemakers feel about themselves, their lives, and each other.

HEALTH

Discusses the new mood among American women to control their own bodies. Addresses abortion, childbirth, Cesarean birth, infant formula, and contraceptives.

PARENTING

A documented examination of childbirth today, dealing with the uses and abuses of drugs, technology, and hospital procedures in the United States.

A thoughtful analysis of the future of mothering, examining the present trends in American society.

Thoughts and feelings about growing as a parent and about the emotions parents struggle with—depression, guilt, anger. Speaks to the experiential and intellectual elements of the role of mother.

Welfare mothers discuss what poverty is really like: how it feels to be subjected to the indignities and dehumanization of the welfare system.

MARRIAGE, DIVORCE, AND WIDOWHOOD

Booklet for Women Who Wish to Determine Their Own Names after Marriage. Barrington, Ill.: The Center for a Woman's Own Name, 1974.

Provides basic information on laws, children's names, court decisions, and contracts.

Tells of the agonizing death of the author's husband and how she coped with widowhood.

Shows the growth and fulfillment that staying single can offer to both men and women, whether widowed, divorced, or never married.

Shows how the decision to divorce can be the beginning of a satisfying life.

An outgrowth of the MOMMA organization that offers practical information crucial to the survival of the single mother.

Based on a research study of women's attitudes toward housework, this book probes the conventional trivialization of housework and the sociological neglect of housework as a serious topic.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT AND RAPE

A basic guide to assertiveness training.

Mead, Margaret. "A Proposal: We Need Taboos on Sex at Work." Redbook, April 1978.

Mead discusses what we can and should do about sexual harassment on the job.

A discussion of the varied aspects of rape—why its incidence is so common, how it affects women's daily lives, who commits rape, and why rape rates are climbing so fast.

Focuses on male harassment of female students and employees—the scope of the problem, the legal implications, and the possible remedies.

Explores coping through using the skills of systematic assertive therapy, a successful technique that utilizes training dialogues. Covers everyday situations—returning merchandise, asking for a raise, rejecting or accepting sexual invitations, handling criticism and praise—and shows how to deal with manipulative employers and employees, in-laws, spouses with different sexual agendas, and so forth.

LIFELONG LEARNING

A brief, descriptive account—the focus on older Americans—of programs in community colleges.

Discusses how obtaining educational credits for what one knows can lead to a better job, advancement, or a second chance at college.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT

Budde, JoAnn, and Joan Krauskopf. Homemakers Need the Equal Rights Amendment. Housewives for ERA (now Homemakers Equal Rights Association, P.O. Box 3593, Longwood, Florida 32750).

Discusses why homemakers need the ERA.

Attempts to answer the question, Why bother about an equal rights amendment?

Uses a question-and-answer format to address what the ERA will do.

Discusses insurance, alimony, child support, child custody, and inheritance.

These resources will acquaint the reader with literature about Black women.

A biography of the first Black congresswoman. Suitable for young readers.

An anthology that includes poetry, stories, and essays.

Profiles of modern women leaders of Africa.

The life story of a former slave who joined the civil rights movement when she was 109 years old.

The story of the "Poetess of the American Revolution."

A study of Black womanhood, the book attempts to depict what the Black woman's life was like in the past, what barriers she had had to overcome in order to survive, and how she is coping today.

Born a slave, Sojourner Truth fought all her life to gain rights for women and Black people.

Born a slave, Harriet Tubman escaped. This book presents the story of how she went back repeatedly to help others gain freedom.

Examines the conditioning that has kept women "in their place." Also discusses the changing institutions and attitudes that are allowing women to grow. A book about roles.
FILMS AND WHERE TO GET THEM

Shows how men have traditionally been trained to repress their emotions, and suffer in silence rather than ask for help, and how these unfair expectations are slowly changing. Discusses how men and women have in some cases reversed roles and how women's liberation may mean men's liberation.

Gives the history of women and how their roles have changed. Geared toward helping girls understand their choices in today's society.

Presents a teenage couple who have a tense marriage that lacks communication. The woman suffers because of guilt about sex and because of low self-esteem. Each partner feels rejected by the other until they begin to talk and realize that they are both responsible for the state of their marriage. Recommended to show traditional role expectations and the problems they can create.

Examines where young people can obtain training for lifelong careers. Proceeding from an evaluation of college and the difficulties many graduates have in finding jobs, the program examines the possible nature of the job market in the future, the merits of practical versus theoretical education, the junior college, sources of training, and the possibilities of on-the-job training.

The Emerging Women. Film Images/Radim Films, Inc., 1304 Lake Street, Oak Park, Illinois 60301. High school and up.
A well-documented history of the women's movement in the United States. It shows what changes the women of the past have made and ends with an inspiration to continue to make changes.

The Fable of He and She. Learning Corporation of America, 4100 West Diversey, Chicago, Illinois 60639. Grades 5-12.

A light, entertaining animation of the masculine Handybars and the feminine Mushamels who are separated from each other and have to expand their roles in order to survive. When the threat no longer exists, they continue to live according to their expanded roles. Creates an awareness of sex roles within the family and society.

A series of drawings, narrated by children, that depict both a boy and a girl doing things they want to do rather than what might be expected of them because of their sex. A clever way of initiating a discussion with children about what sex-role stereotyping is and how it affects them.

I'm Glad I'm a She, I'm Glad I'm a He. North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, Room 352, Education Building, Raleigh, North Carolina 27603. Junior and senior high school.

Demonstrates how both men and women are damaged by restrictive sex roles, and how they should be free to be themselves without being limited by sex roles.

Analyzes sex bias and stereotypes as seen in the pictures and language of social studies, science, and math textbooks at the elementary level. Also shows how females can be depicted in expanded roles.

I Only Want You to Be Happy. CRM Educational Films, Del Mar, California 92014. High school.

The main characters are a sister who plans to marry, a sister going to medical school, and a traditional mother. Mother and sisters argue over what each should do.

Gives a documentary treatment of seven young women at their jobs. The dialogue focuses on choice, preparation, and satisfaction.
Making It in the World of Work. Film Fair Communication, 10900 Ventura Boulevard, P.O. Box 1728, Studio City, California 91604. High school.

Presents a series of young people working in various jobs that are nontraditional for their sex. The young people tell what they do, why they chose that work, and what they want out of life. They stress enjoying one's work and doing a good job. Realistic; offers good advice.

Shows that stereotypes still exist, even though society has changed and many people have overcome them. Demonstrates how stereotypes can be damaging to both males and females, and shows that those choosing careers should consider all options without regard to the limitations of sex-role expectations in the past.

Discusses the history of women's roles.

Directed to educating the general public about sex stereotyping.

Introduces students and adults to nontraditional careers for women. Reviews the history of the role of American women in the labor force, presents particular women working in nontraditional careers, and discusses opportunities for training.

Other Women, Other Work. Churchill Films, 662 North Robertson Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90069. Junior and senior high school.

Portrays women enjoying their work in traditionally male professions. Increases the viewer's awareness of the additional options available to women who work.

Sex Role Development. CRM Educational Films, Del Mar, California 92014. High school.

Gives examples of stereotyping and follows each with a psychologist's comments about research findings. The film next presents a couple with expanded roles, and then the Pacific Oaks School in Pasadena, California, where the staff uses an androgynous approach.

Sex Role Stereotyping Edu-Pak. National Education Association, Publication Order Department, The Academic Building, P.O. Box 509, West Haven, Connecticut 06516. Grade 8 and up.

Explains that prescribed sex traits and sex stereotypes do not reflect today's reality. Shows how stereotypes are perpetuated by the school and its personnel, by other institutions, and by parents. Concludes with what we can do to combat stereotyping.

Women. Clearview Corp., 666 North Oliphant Street, Chicago, Illinois 60631. High school.

Gives a complete history of women and the advances they have made in expanding their roles. Shows women happy in their work as well as other women happy in their traditional roles. Emphasizes that further changes are needed.

Gives a history of the role of women in the work force and presents women holding jobs that have traditionally been male.

CHECKLIST FOR ANALYZING SEXISM IN CURRICULUM MATERIALS

INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS

The power of instructional materials to shape attitudes is particularly strong and direct in the early and middle grades, when they constitute much of the student's information about the world. But the influence is still there in high school and in college. As is the case with the curriculum, the material contained in textbooks represents—at least by inference—both the kind of learning and the particular content that has the institutional stamp of approval. By consequence, it is again the knowledge that is easiest for a student to acquire. Moreover, it is not unfair to assert that textbooks sometimes determine curriculum, and that what is covered in the text ends up being what the school in fact teaches.

The direct implication is that it is critically important for the materials used in schools to foster a sense of personal worth and dignity and a respect for the abilities and rights of all people—of all races, of all ethnic backgrounds, and of both sexes.

An examination of instructional materials is convenient because it provides a project with a clear and tangible focus. It may be helpful to follow these steps:

1. Examine both the procedure and the criteria for selecting new instructional materials. A lot of time and energy can be saved later if the consideration of sexism is made a part of initial textbook selection.

2. Take some time at the outset to consider alternatives should the examination discover sexist materials. How soon could such materials reasonably be discontinued? What could be done in the meantime to offset their influence?

3. Begin by evaluating only selected materials, preferably those in widest use or those about to be adopted.

* * *

*One alternative exists in the school library and is discussed in that section of this document.
Sexism in learning materials may take many forms and, because most of us have always used textbooks that sex stereotyped men and women, it may at first be difficult to identify. In general, a book (film, tape, etc.) about which any of the following is true is sex-biased:

1. Personality traits, aspirations, abilities, vocations are identified with sex.

2. Most women (girls) are characterized as weak, passive, irrational, fearful, self-effacing, artistic, untrustworthy, devoted, domestic.

3. Most men (boys) are characterized as strong, competitive, assertive, objective, practical, independent. They work outside of the home.

4. Little space and/or serious attention is given to women's accomplishments in a wide variety of fields.

It is worth pausing to emphasize the word most: The goal is not to portray all women as bold and aggressive, or all men as timid and self-effacing. The important point is that such traits should not be associated with sex at all. Some people are bold while other people are timid. Instructional materials should not show a pattern of linking such individual characteristics with groups defined on the basis of sex.

At the end of this section is a checklist for analyzing instructional materials. This particular list is designed for elementary readers. However, since the general concepts apply to all kinds of instructional materials, it can readily be adapted to suit any curricular area at any educational level. The following additional criteria may be helpful in making adaptations. These are traits of nonsexist materials:

PICTURE BOOKS -

1. The female figure is shown to be equally as competent as the male figure.

2. The female figure is shown as frequently as the male figure.

3. The female and male figures engage equally in activities. Examples: "All the children ran," "All the children washed the dishes."

4. Females are shown in a variety of occupations.

5. Stereotypes of family roles are avoided. Examples: The mother sometimes works outside of the home, while the father works in the home.

6. Female figures are proud and happy to be females.

7. Male figures are shown with emotions appropriate to the situation. Example: Fathers show tenderness toward children.
LANGUAGE ARTS

Readers:
1. Girls are depicted as often as boys, women as often as men.
2. Females' roles are as varied as males' roles.
3. Females face and solve their own problems.
4. Females' accomplishments, not their clothing or features, are emphasized.
5. Derogatory references (tomboy, sissy, old maid) are omitted.
6. Biographies of women (beyond mere tokenism) are included.

Anthologies:
1. Selections by and about women are included.
2. Biographical headnotes on authors do not imply that women write intuitively while men are conscious artists.
3. Background materials discuss the position of women in the society of the era, attitudes toward women writers, and the social, political, and economic implications of literary conventions regarding women.

Language Texts:
1. Stereotyping (such as associating women with the kitchen and men with business) is avoided in introducing vocabulary units.
2. Assumptions about women inherent in the language are discussed. Example: masculine and feminine.
3. Constant listing of the feminine pronoun in a secondary position (such as he and she and he, she, it) is avoided. (An alternative is to list them alphabetically: he/she, her/his.)

SOCIAL STUDIES

History:
1. The roles of women are treated equally with the roles of men. They are given equal attention and equal importance is attached to them.
2. Women are depicted in a variety of roles.
3. Women in nonstereotyped roles (such as politician and labor leader) are treated sympathetically and seriously, not as laughable oddities.
4. The women's movement is discussed as a serious and continuing struggle, not one that ended with the right to vote.
5. Subsuming terminology (such as "the pioneers and their wives" and "the settlers and their wives and children") which suggests that women were not pioneers and settlers is avoided.
6. The exclusive use of man or men or mankind for people is avoided.

Sociology and Psychology:
1. The process of social conditioning is described in such a way as to make it clear that masculine and feminine are socially defined concepts that vary from culture to culture.
2. Non-Freudian studies of female psychology by feminist psychologists and psychiatrists are included.
3. Courses and units on marriage and the family should be expanded to present a variety of lifestyles (such as single adult living).
4. Courses and units on human development stress individual growth, not adjustment to a statistical norm.
5. Divorce, illegitimacy, juvenile delinquency and prostitution are treated as problems of the whole society. It is not suggested that these are problems created or increased by the emancipation of women.

6. The text indicates that a division of labor based on physical differences ceases to be essential in an automated, mechanized society.

Economics:
1. Information on women in the labor market is included.
2. The problem of sex discrimination is discussed.
3. The subject of women and property laws, and the effect of marriage on a woman's property rights, is discussed.
4. Woman is examined as a consumer, including methods of manipulation by the media.
5. The positions of women under different economic systems are examined.
6. Sex stereotyping (such as having women concern themselves with the household budget and men with the stock market) is avoided.

Political Science:
1. The legal status of women is discussed.
2. The under-representation of women in all levels of government is discussed.
3. Government and policy-making are treated as appropriate vocations for both men and women.

ARITHMETIC AND MATHEMATICS

1. Examples should be drawn from all aspects of life. Boys and girls depicted in examples should not be sex stereotypes (e.g., boys as well as girls should bake cookies and girls as well as boys should build club houses).
2. Suggestions that women are incompetent in mathematics (such as "Jane's way" and "John's way" to depict the long and short method, the wrong and right way) are avoided.

HOME ECONOMICS/INDUSTRIAL ARTS

1. All areas of practical information for personal survival (from cooking and sewing to the use of simple tools and auto repair) are described to facilitate the movement away from sex-segregated courses.
2. Suggestions that certain kinds of work are for women, others for men, are avoided.

FINE ARTS

1. Achievements of women and men are discussed with equal attention and seriousness, and research is encouraged.
2. The text does not suggest that participation in certain of the arts indicates sexual abnormality (such as the ballet for men).
3. Artistic conventions regarding women are discussed.
4. Discussions do not suggest that women excelling in the arts do so because they are naturally more subjective and intuitive and, therefore, artistic in some respects.
5. Art history texts discuss domestic crafts as important contributions.

SEX EDUCATION -

1. Depending on the age level, the text includes some or all of the following subjects:

- equality as the necessary basis for a love relationship
- the social and political implications of the double standard
- sex, reproduction and parental responsibility
- birth control methods and reliability
- a definition of sexuality in non-Freudian, nonstereotyped terms

NATURAL AND PHYSICAL SCIENCES -

1. The discoveries and achievements of women are discussed with equal seriousness and attention as those of men. Example: Madam Curie is shown as someone more than her husband's assistant.
2. Problems and/or discussion questions avoid sex stereotyping, and illustrations show girls working out science problems as often as boys.

GUIDANCE AND COUNSELING

The meaning of counseling varies somewhat depending on whether it is being applied to basic education (K-12) or to higher education. In the first 12 grades, counseling is frequently considered one part of a broad guidance theory. This may include the choosing of programs of study, the selection and scheduling of courses, maintenance of study records, college and/or job placement, counseling for personal and/or learning problems, health care, and discipline. These activities are normally conducted by an identifiable team of professionals called the pupil personnel staff.

Often, institutions of higher education have no coordinated program of counseling services. Health services are available from the infirmary. Academic counseling is a function of the dean's office (usually delegated to individual faculty advisers). Personal counseling may be accessible either through a counseling center or, recently, through a student-staffed hot-line facility. The college placement office maintains career-related credentials. Rarely are more than two or three of these activities integrated.

Because of these differences, it is helpful to consider this aspect of education separately for basic and for higher education.

Virtually all secondary schools and many elementary schools in Pennsylvania provide some guidance services for their students. This means that their guidance functions are likely to touch all students at some time or another—in the form of career counseling, testing, personal consultation, or some other way. It is extremely important that neither the methods nor the tools show sex-bias. Following are some of the elements of guidance which should be reviewed. Where bias is found, appropriate remedial action should be taken.

All students should be encouraged to consider seriously all programs of study, and to make choices based on their interests and talents rather than on their sex.

Students should not be discouraged from taking any class because of their sex.

Students should be encouraged to consider career options not traditionally associated with their sex. (This should occur not only in individual counseling late in high school, but also in a coordinated career development program beginning at least as early as the middle years.)

Career materials should be free from sex-bias. (See the Instructional Materials section of this manual for guidelines.)

Work/study experiences should not be assigned on the basis of sex, either in terms of who participates in the program or in terms of the particular type of work assigned.

Vocational preference tests should not have separate forms or separate marking keys for females and males.

Every standardized test should state clearly the population on which it was normed (including sex breakdown) and the uses to which it may validly be put.

Standardized test items should avoid sex stereotypes in the content of problem statements.

Personal counseling should place emphasis on individual characteristics rather than traditional masculine or feminine roles.

Pursuant to a 1971 Attorney General's opinion, unless there is a medically certified health danger, guidance personnel should make every effort to keep pregnant students in regular school programs and to provide special guidance where necessary.

Pursuant to a 1973 Attorney General's opinion, a student or the student's parents have the right to examine that student's school records. This option should be exercised to review records for sex-biased comments, test results, and/or interpretations. The ruling provides that student or parental consent should be obtained before records are released to other parties.

College counseling should provide the student with knowledge of different types of postsecondary programs and institutions.

Special programs (such as role model seminars and workshops on family relationships, career aspiration and career problems) are provided to help overcome the effects of past discrimination.
