ABSTRACT

Starting with the ninth grade, Hawaiian students are given the opportunity to take the Hawaii State Test of Essential Competencies (HSTEC) to demonstrate mastery of 14 Essential Competencies. These competencies are grouped into those covering the Basic Skills area and those covering the Other Life Skills area (e.g., distinguishing fact from fiction). Scores are reported by each Skill area and each Essential Competency. A student must correctly answer 28 of the Basic Skills questions and 33 of the Other Life Skills questions to demonstrate mastery of the 14 Essential Competencies. If mastery is not demonstrated on any one Skill area, the entire test must be retaken. Individual Competency scores are reported to assist the teacher in evaluating areas of weakness that must be attended to for the individual student. Administering the HSTEC to ninth grade students provides an additional year in which to utilize instructional strategies designed to assist students who might be most in need of the additional time. It also provides an additional opportunity for the student to demonstrate mastery. A sample HSTEC individual report is presented and an interpretation is briefly discussed. (PN)

Graduation Requirements and The Hawaii State Test of Essential Competencies (H.S.T.E.C.)

Effective for the Class of 1983

On August 17, 1978, the Board of Education approved expanded course and credit requirements, as well as the necessity for the demonstration of mastery of essential competencies, effective with the graduating class of 1983. (BOE Regulations #4540.1, revised 8/78)

The following is designed to acquaint you with one means of demonstrating mastery of the essential competencies. If you have any questions please see your school counselor or principal.

THE HAWAII STATE TEST OF ESSENTIAL COMPETENCIES (HSTEC)

Beginning in 1983, graduating seniors will be required to demonstrate mastery of the 15 Essential Competencies which are listed at the end of this pamphlet. One means by which students can demonstrate mastery of 14 of these Essential Competencies is through passing the Hawaii State Test of Essential Competencies or HSTEC. The remaining Essential Competency will be tested using a teacher assessment system. This system is under development.

Starting with 9th grade, students will be given an opportunity to take the HSTEC. In the event they do not demonstrate mastery of the Essential Competencies on their first try, students will be allowed to retake the HSTEC in following grades or they will be counseled to take one of the alternative modes of demonstrating mastery. Contact your school principal for more information on these alternatives.

There are two forms of the HSTEC, both of equal levels of difficulty. Different forms are necessary since they allow us to give students who did not successfully demonstrate mastery one year a different form of the test the following year. Both forms consist of 108 multiple choice questions. A sample of a typical multiple choice question is shown below.

Which Island has the largest population?

- (A) Hawaii
- (B) Lanai
- (C) Maui
- (D) Oahu

A	B	C	D
<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
"D" is the correct answer

HSTEC SCORES AND THEIR USES

The Essential Competencies are grouped into those covering the Basic Skills area and those covering the Other Life Skills area (see listing of Competencies). Scores are reported by each Skill area and each Essential Competency. Success on the HSTEC is determined solely by the scores on each Skill. Each student must correctly answer 28 of the questions dealing with Basic Skills and 33 of the questions dealing with Other Life Skills in order to demonstrate mastery of the 14 Essential Competencies tested by HSTEC. The student must retake the entire test if (s)he does not demonstrate mastery on any one Skill area.

While Skill area scores are used to evaluate whether or not each student has successfully demonstrated overall mastery of the Essential Competencies tested by HSTEC, individual Competency scores are reported in order to assist the teacher in evaluating areas of weakness that must be attended to for the individual student.

By noting each student's weaknesses and strengths, the teacher can provide more specialized programs tailored to that student's needs. Administering HSTEC to 9th grade students provides an additional year in which to utilize instructional strategies designed to assist students who perhaps need the additional time most. It also provides an additional opportunity for the student to demonstrate mastery.

Skill area scores cannot be arrived at by adding Competency scores. Some questions measure more than one Competency. Thus, some questions are counted more than once in arriving at the Competency scores. The brief example below shows this in detail.

EXAMPLE 1

Test Question	Skill Measured		Competency Measured
	A	B	1	2	3
#1	X		X		X
#2	X		X	X
#3		X	X
#4		X		X
#5		X			X
	2	3	3	2	2

If a student answers all five questions correctly then the total in Skill A and Skill B is 5 (2 + 3 = 5). If you were to total the Competency scores you would obtain 7 (3 + 2 + 2 = 7).

HSTEC REPORT INTERPRETATION

In the sample HSTEC Individual report shown below, "John" had Basic Skills and Other Life Skills scores of 28 and 42 respectively and has, therefore, successfully demonstrated mastery of the 14 Essential Competencies. If he had not been successful, a "*" would have been printed by the appropriate Skill score. It also shows that he got 4 of 9 items correct for Competency 1, 5 of 7 correct for Competency 2 and so forth.

SUMMARY

We urge you to go over the list of Essential Competencies with your children and if possible begin to provide situations in which they can demonstrate these competencies. You will be providing additional support to what they learn in school.

We hope this has provided you with sufficient basic information about the HSTEC and what can be expected in terms of its content and reporting system.

Questions 1 and 2 refer to the following advertisement:

 Firm Vine Ripened
 TOMATOES per lb. ---- 39¢
 New Crop Sweet
 POTATOES 4 lb. for ---- 88¢
